MORTON & HERITY, PROPRIETORS

ENTHUSIASM FOR WILSON AND THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS AT DEMOCRATS' CONVENTION

Several Contentious Subjects May Delay for Three Days Presentation of Platform —Fights Over Prohibition, League and Ireland Expected.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 28.—The rules committee of the Democratic National Convention decided tonight on the following order of procedure:

Speeches nominating presidential candidates shall be made before the presentation of a platform; but balloting will be held only after the platform is adopted.

San Francisco, June 28.—From the shadow of the Golden Gate, the host of Democracy sent a roaring tribute across the country today to President Wilson.

The national convention flung aside for the moment the business before it, while delegates carried on a demonstration that swept the great gathering off its feet.

It was a half hour before the outburst evoked by a sudden display of the president's portrait could be still-ed. Again and again, as his name was mentioned, the cheers broke out anew, to culminate in the shout of approval that adopted and sent to the White House tonight a striking testimonial of his party's faith and pride in the man who has led it through troublous years.

Arrangements for the first national political convention to be held in the far west had been well made. The great hall, its clean architectural lines almost unmarred by added decorations, was ready, and through a dozen wide entries thousands poured in with little delay or congestion. They found a wide octagon space awaiting them, with a massive organ rearing its stockade of pipes above the platform, and the other sides rising to a far line of seats under high windows, framing squares of California's bluest skies.

In the centre of the hall where the delegates sat rolled within a wide square of seats, an inner ceiling was suspended, colored in soft, old blue that rested the eyes and lent something of quiet dignity to the scene. Below a forest of standards bearing the names of states and territories was the only reminder of national conventions of the past. Perched high beside the organ in a special gallery, a military band whiffed away the time.

The Star Spangled Banner

When Vice-Chairman Kremer of the national committee gave the signal, a sharp scented "attention," the sharp staccato call rang out over the uproar of conversation. The first notes of "The Star Spangled Banner" rang out from the band and the organ together, and as the delegates, alternates, spectators and attendants stood in tribute, a monster flag was dropped from the ceiling to form a wall of color behind the platform. It obscured the view of the band, gallery and organ loft, but as it fell the booming tones of the organ rose behind it, joining with majestic thunder in the National Anthem. From floor and galleries delegates and spectators joined in the mighty tones.

Then came the touch that set the convention off with a wild shout of exultation. The great flag was gathered slowly upward in the silks and as it rose, it uncovered a flag-draped and illuminated portrait of President Wilson, placed against the high pipes of the organ. For a moment there was a brief pause. Then came the tumult.

A wild shout rang from the floor. It was caught up and echoed from side to side.

Delegates leaped on their chairs waving and shouting. They stampeded into the aisles, jostling and cheering in a packed mass before the platform.

A Historical Outburst

Over in the Virginia section a delegate ripped the standard from the loop and charged toward the speaker's stand, waving it high in the air. Other states followed. Some of them were slower to get in motion, but as the shouting and tumult continued, standard after standard came up and the march around the hall began. In the New York section, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt seized the standard and rushed into the crowded aisle battling with others who sought with eager hands to uphold the sign.

But there were some among the New York delegation who struggled with Roosevelt to prevent him carrying the state standard in the demonstration for the present. There was a lively scrimmage akin to a centre rush in a football game, in which fists were flying and there seemed danger of bloody noses. A policeman who interposed got a pummeling, one man had his coat dragged off and several men lost their nose glasses. No one was hurt; the protesting delegates changed their mind and Roosevelt triumphantly marched off with the New York standard to join the Wilson demonstration.

A shout of added intensity marked the delegates' recognition of the president and a cheer for Roosevelt was all but lost in the general tumult.

It was long before order could be restored. When Vice-Chairman Kremer had launched upon his speech, echoes of the storm still lurked in the air. He was repeatedly interrupted by the clamor of approval that greeted every phrase at the Republican National Convention.

When Chairman Homer S. Cummings of the national committee had been elected temporary chairman and escorted to the platform they finally hushed and prepared to listen with close attention to his keynote address. Delegates expected something to cheer at. They were in a mood for it and were not disappointed.

The Keynote Speech

Mr. Cummings began in a quiet voice. A few shouts of "louder" came from far back in the hall, but he did not proceed far before the great throng was so still that every syllable was carried to the highest galleries. It was a long speech. Mr. Cummings suggested that to his hearers, but cries of "go on" "take your time" met him. He drove his points home hard and his audience was alert to cap them with shouted approval.

When Mr. Cummings characterized the Chicago platform as a masterpiece of evasion, a shout greeted the attack and a moment later when he declared that the "old guard" had sold the honor of the nation at Chicago to name a "reactionary candidate" it grew into a roar, punctuated with cries of "go to it," "hit 'em again," "that's the stuff."

"When the chairman called the roll of nations already in the league and asked the delegates if they wanted to hear also of neutral states that had or were about to join, shouts of "tell us," answered him. Nation by nation he named them, and then asked if the delegates wished to know what nations had not joined the league. Cries of "Yes, yes, tell us," came from all parts of the floor. "Revolutionary Mexico, Bolshevik Russia, unspcakable Turkey and—the United States of America," he answered. A roar swept the hall that took minutes to quiet.

They were much interested in the extension of Bridge Street improvements to the city line and also pleased with the local improvements under construction.

They met Mayor Riggs and Secretary Fredericks of the Chamber of Commerce. The question of the highway bridge was one of the problems discussed.

The vote was taken on the main estimate of three hundred thousand dollars, which was adopted without division. Marmora Masons Held Grand Banquet

Ladies and Gentlemen Join in Great Welcome to Visiting D. D. G. M.

The official visit of Rt. Wor. Bro. Chas. J. Symons, D. D. G. M., of the Masonic Order to Marmora Lodge last night was a repetition of the convincing welcome and the honors he has won elsewhere and it was something more. He was welcomed at a superb banquet in which ladies and brethren joined in extending good cheer and hospitality.

The lodge, which in session, exemplified the work of the first degree and the officers were paid a very high compliment for their accuracy, skill and proficiency. In some important respects the work was the best anywhere seen.

The following are the officers of the lodge for this year:

W. M.—W. Bro. Rev. W. P. Woodger.

After the closing of the lodge the brethren repaired to the fine auditorium of the Town Hall where the ladies had spread the tables for the guests. It was a dainty feast, temptingly prepared and the hungry diners expressed their appreciation in the most practical manner.

The L. P. M. Wor. Bro. Riggs, performed the duties of toast master in a manner that left nothing to be desired, giving to the banquet the touch of geniality that made everybody feel perfectly at home.

The toast, "The Grand Lodge," was worthily responded to by R. W. Bro. Symons, who left a deep impression on his audience by his masterly definition and illustration of the fundamental principles of Masonry, brotherly love, relief and truth.

"The Ladies," proposed in a brief but humorous speech by W. Bro. T. E. Laycock and responded to by Bro. Prof. Sam Laycock of Alberta University, who is visiting his father, en route to Columbia University, where he is about to enter upon post-graduate work. Prof. Laycock's tribute to the ladies was a remarkably pleasing deliverance and adorned with some apt tales from the war zone, where Prof. Laycock had served for three years.

THE CONDITION OF MOIRA RIVER DISCUSSED BY BOARD OF HEALTH

Provincial Board of Health Requested to Take Steps at Once to Have Nuisance Abated—City Now Free of Contagious Disease.

The Belleville Board of Health at a special meeting yesterday afternoon referred the matter of the condition of the Moira River to the Provincial Board asking that steps be taken immediately to alter the nuisance.

Mr. J. J. B. Flint was present and on motion was granted permission to address the board on the subject of the pollution of the waters of the Moira River and the Bay of Quinte. Mr. Flint stated that large number of dead fish were floating in the bay and river and expressed the opinion very strongly that such fish were killed by reason of the refuse which was said to be discharged into the river from a plant and pointed out that the stench from the polluted water and the decaying fish might seriously affect the health of the residents especially in the lower part of the city.

After some discussion as to the best means of overcoming the difficulty, the seriousness of which was fully recognized, it was moved by Dr. H. A. Yeomans, Medical Officer of Health and seconded by Mayor Riggs:

"That the secretary be instructed to communicate with the Provincial Board of Health calling attention to the previous correspondence of the pollution of the river and stating that present conditions are even worse than formerly and asking that the Provincial Board of Health take steps without delay to have the nuisance abated."

Prorogation Fixed for Tomorrow

(Special 4 p.m. Despatch from Canadian Press Ltd.)

OTTAWA, June 29.—Prorogation has been tentatively fixed for tomorrow afternoon. Preparations to this end have been made although there is considerable doubt if the House will be able to conclude its business today, even with an all-night sitting. FAULTY KNOT MAY CAUSE THE DEATH OF "HUMAN FLY"

Daredevil Hutcheson Makes Last Climb at St. Catharines—Falls 75 Feet From Welland House Roof—Physicians Fear He Will Die.

ST. CATHARINES, June 24.—His hand slipped clear of the rope, and his white-clad body plunged down to the verandah floor, where it lay, a crumpled heap. Hutcheson landed on his side, his face struck the verandah railing and blood spattered. Only those close to him realized at first that the fall was not a part of the program, and a burst of cheers rose from those on the outskirts of the crowd. A sudden hush followed as the limp body was raised and carried away. When the nature of the accident became known, horror swept the throng of watchers. Several women fainted, and one girl became violently hysterical. Hutcheson's fall was due to the knot in the end of the rope coming undone when his hand struck it. He had tied the knot with his own hands before making the ascent. At a late hour tonight the "Human Fly" was reported as unconscious. Physicians held out little hope that he would survive.

"All-Day Suckers" and Licorice Pipes Just Half the Size of Yester Year, Say Youngsters

One-Cent Piece Has Shrunk in Value Just as Much as Dollar—Parents Should Remember This When Doling Out "Candy" Money.

While the Canadian dollar has been steadily shrinking in value before the onslaught of the forces of the high cost of living, its sufferings followed the laws of proportions have descended down to its smallest offspring, the homely cent piece, much to the disgust of the tender youth of the city. When at one time occasional coppers kept the boys and girls supplied with sweets, they now can be used only for war tax or church collections. A tour of the candy stores of the city which cater to the tastes of the youngsters will convince anyone that this is true. If one has forgotten because of long years that tickets which now read one, two and three for a cent, once read four and up to ten for the same amount of money, they need only to listen to the sad lament of the storekeepers to know that times have changed in the candy business.

Can't Understand "The worst part of it all," said one storekeeper. "The kiddies can't understand why their money doesn't buy as much as before the war. It keeps us busy explaining and then they feel convinced that we are profiteers. We do not make a cent of money out of the business, but then we cannot stop selling the candy, for that would completely take the joy out of the youngsters' lives. Perhaps it would help some if the mothers would understand and give the kiddies two or five cents to spend instead of one cent of golden times. The grievance, however, has not stopped with candy, for now "pop" the popular beverage of the street corner gangs, can no longer be bought at two bottles for five cents, but now cost ten cents straight or two for fifteen, with extra for the bottles.

Blagrave Thinks Woman is Cured

Dr. R. C. Blagrave has cause to believe that one woman yesterday afternoon was cured when James M. Hickson laid his hands upon her. It was at St. Mark's Church on Cowan avenue. A little group of fifty people had gathered there in secret by appointment. They were principally out of the city cases. Mr. Hickson had intimated that he would be able to visit some of the other Anglican churches of the city, where everything would be very quiet. Two churches were therefore chosen by the committee, one in the eastern part of the city and St.

Gay Young Lochinvar Elopes in Airplane Makes Fortune in 12 Years in West

School Marm and Farmer the First Canadian Couple With Modern Ideas WINNIPEG, Man., June 25.—The first couple in Canada to elope in an aeroplane, Charles Henderson and Miss Florence MacKenzie of Dodsland, Sask., were discovered here yesterday in the Port Garry Hotel, where they are spending their honeymoon. Henderson, who founded the town of Dodsland and is a prominent farmer in the district and proprietor of the weekly paper there, and Miss MacKenzie, Dodsland school teacher, whose romance has been watched with interest by all the villagers, pulled off the elopement on Monday during the sports carnival, while hundreds of people were assembled in town. They slipped into the residence of the minister, were married in record time, and raced a mile in an automobile, pursued by scores of other automobiles, to a waiting plane on the prairie. Pursuers caught up just as the plane was starting and showered the couple with rice. Piloted by Lt. H. S. McClelland, of Saskatoon, the plane brought the couple to Winnipeg, after heading west first, to give pursuers the impression that they were going to Calgary.

A Young Man Still The man who, by his own endeavors, has accomplished all this is but 33 years old. His name is Edward E. Bellamy. Stakes All on Flax Advised by friends, Bellamy went straight into the Goose Lake country, about 150 miles south of Saskatoon, and famous for its wheat. Planking down $10 at the land office, he settled down on a desirable quarter-section. He erected a tiny shack and stable, bought some horses and implements and set to work. Determined to make or bust, he decided to break every possible acre of that 160 by his own efforts and to have the rest broken by contract. He also decided to get the utmost out of his first crop, and accordingly sowed flax, that prolific friend of the poor settler. Luck was with him. His bold stroke succeeded and he harvested a good crop, which not only paid off all his indebtedness, but set him on his feet. He bought more land on deposit of first payments, making his more cautious neighbors fairly gasp at his boldness, and succeeded with it as well as he had with his first venture.

Rathbun, of Trenton, will go to Kingston to command the steamer Brockville, which is at the present time under the command of Capt. John Carnegie. Capt. Wedding Bells

THOMPSON—WYNN On Wednesday, June 16th, the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wynn, Seymour West, was the scene of a pretty but quiet wedding, when their eldest daughter, Violet Christina, became the bride of Mr. Claude Thompson, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson, of Trent River. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. L. Hinton, of Campbellford, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride, becomingly gowned in white georgette over silk, carried a beautiful bouquet of carnations and maiden-hair ferns. The bride was the recipient of a large number of handsome and useful gifts. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold pendant. After the ceremony and congratulations a wedding dinner was served. Later, amid showers of confetti, the bride and groom left by motor for points west.—Campbellford Herald.

Saskatchewan Crops Never Looked Better

Optimistic Report from the West by William Rose, Who Has Just Returned to the City. "I have never seen the crops looking so well at this season of the year," was the optimistic statement made to the Ontario today by Mr. William Rose, who is a large landholder in Saskatchewan, and who has just returned from that province to his home in Belleville. Mr. Rose went to Saskatchewan in the early spring accompanied by his son-in-law, Capt. William Allen. They proceeded to Girvin in the Saskatoon district, where Mr. Rose owns a section and a half of land. Not long after their arrival in the west, Mr. Rose, in partnership with his son-in-law, purchased another section of land about 35 miles farther on. As provision had been made to work the old farm on shares, Mr. Rose and Capt. Allen concentrated their attention on their new farm. It is beautifully situated along Imperial lake, a fine sheet of water 60 miles long. The farm has been worked 14 years and in that time never had a crop failure. It also had a magnificent set of modern new buildings valued at $12,000. The month of April was very cold and backward and it was the 4th day of May before spring's work commenced. With a force of twelve horses the work was then rushed along. They plowed 200 acres and seeded 400 acres in all and had the work all done by the 10th of June. The last seeding done was 60 acres of flax, which was regarded as a safe crop for late seeding. The ground was fine and moist to begin with, and then there has been

The few friends who had the pleasure of meeting the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herrington's Napanee, of last week, Miss Macdowell, of Victoria, Australia, were deeply interested in hearing of her thrilling experiences and regretted that her visit in Napanee was so brief. Miss Macdowell is a graduate nurse of one of the largest hospitals in Australia, and was visiting friends in Italy when war broke out. She went to England, joined the Red Cross nurses, was sent to Serbia and was with them during their awful retreat to the coast. One day during their march they walked forty miles. Later she was sent to Russia and was there during the Kerensky regime. The Historical Society are hoping to be able to get Miss Macdowell later on to give an illustrated address for them. A very remarkable case is reported from the Portsmouth Penitentiary, Kingston, today, in which a prisoner had so serious an abscess of a tooth that the lower part of his face was swollen to almost twice its natural size and it was absolutely impossible for him to open his mouth. It was, indeed, as if he were locked jaw, and he suffered excruciating agony until relieved by Dr. Anglin and Dr. Waugh, who was summoned to the Penitentiary to relieve the abscess. An excursion from Rochester to Cobourg is billed for Sunday next, and there is considerable speculation as to whether they will be allowed to leave the boat at Cobourg, or not. The ruling of Hon. Wm. Patterson when he was Minister of Customs officers need not grant clearance passes to steamers landing excursionists on Sunday. W. D. Snider, Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, upon being locally consulted has written to say that Sunday excursions are il-

The steamer Canadian Adviser, a new vessel from the Collingwood shipyard, passed Brockville Wednesday evening on her maiden trip to Montreal. Capt. Booth was in charge. This boat is similar to the steamer Canadian Beaver, launched in Kingston last fall. She has been built for the Department of Marine and Fisheries and will be used in ocean traffic.

Indians on the Piapot reserves, about twenty miles northeast of Regina, had themselves in the fortunate position of being possessors of $150,000 in cash as the result of the sale of twenty-four sections to the Federal Government for soldier settlement purposes. The Department of Indian Affairs secured their surrender and transferred them to the Soldier Settlement Board. One-half of the fund created by the sale will be kept as a permanent account, and only the interest can be used.

The report for 1919 of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board places the number of accidents in the County of Frontenac during 1918 at 316. Of these three resulted in death and 30 in permanent disability. Seventy-eight required medical aid only, 205 received compensation. In Lennox and Addington there were 45 accidents in that year. In Leeds, 140. The Board has $6,600 invested in City of Kingston debentures. As a result of a report made by Dr. T. A. Starkey, of McGill University, to the Cornwall Town Council showing that all samples of water submitted showed the presence of certain bacteria, it is likely that the intake pipe there will be extended into the river and that, in addition, the water will be treated by chlorination or other processes.

The electrical storm accompanied by heavy rain which broke over Brockville, Thursday-afternoon, was of rather unusual severity. The storm was quite general throughout the district and in the vicinity of Mattland and the Tin Cap a quantity of fall fell, a small bag full of which was picked up on the road Friday morning by R. C. Latimer, Athens stage driver and brought to town. A horse was killed on the Traynor farm, Throspontown, and at Athens a cow owned by W. J. Doherty was killed, both victims of the electrical fluid.

John W. Wilson, a young blacksmith residing with his parents about 1 1/2 miles west of Pinkerton, was fined $500 in Walkerton on Saturday last for infractions of the liquor law, says The Walkerton Herald and Times. Wilson, who had been suspected of manufacturing moonshine whiskey for some time, was caught foul with the goods early Saturday morning last after the officers had visited his place on two former occasions without result.

Owing to the great shortage of newsprint in the United States, no "Saturday Evening Post" have been coming into Canada and Belleville for the past several weeks. This enables the Curtis Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, who publish the Post, to supply the American demand for these magazines. This is the only American magazine that has, as yet, been cut off entirely, but the number of "Ladies Home Journals" sent to Belleville each month is steadily decreasing.

In the case of the "Saturday Evening Post" subscriptions are being filled out to the limit, and renewed, but new subscribers are being told that their subscriptions can not be taken until the paper situation improves.

A number of other magazines from across the border have commenced to put two months' issue in one. In addition to these, several others will be putting out two issues in one shortly. With all these, supplies are being largely curtailed.

It is not improbable that within the next month practically no American magazines will be available for Canada, except those supplied to old subscribers to the magazines. It is expected that American papers will shortly be withdrawn from Canadian news-stands.

Chief Biddle, Picton, writes the Kingston police that he holds a warrant for the arrest of Chris Thomas for the theft of three tires. He is described as being 23 years of age, five feet ten inches in height, blue eyes and clean shaven.

Much flax is raised simply for its seed, from which linseed oil is expressed. In this case the straw is burned—acrimonial waste it would seem, since it has now been shown that it can be used for making a high grade of paper. A writer in The Pulp and Paper Magazine believes that this is to become an important Canadian industry. It will not pay to haul the straw for long distances, he thinks, for it takes nine tons to make a ton of pulp; but portable mills can be constructed and set up wherever the crops are largest, for flax is what he calls a "migratory crop."

This new industry, he asserts, will revolutionize the flax-growing problem, and at the same time give a great impetus to the paper industry by furnishing it with a large supply of high-grade pulp. This is no question of experiment. That stage has been passed, and production on a semi-commercial scale has actually been accomplished. Over a ton of unbleached flax-straw pulp has been manufactured, and then made into paper in two paper mills. This was submitted to various large paper manufacturers for their opinion, and from them it received the highest commendation.

A farmer who was in Kingston, from the country Thursday prophesied $1.50 a bag for potatoes next fall. He says the crop promises to be excellent this year. He is an extensive potato grower, last year selling $500 worth of these vegetables.

The equipment for the baby clinic that is to be opened shortly in the Mission Hall, Albert St., Oshawa, has nearly all arrived. Among the things that are used in all baby clinics, and that have arrived in Oshawa, are baby scales, platform scales for the pre-school aged children and other minor necessities and other incidentals for the clinic. The clinic is being financed by the Red Cross.

The Conference Board of the Typographical Unions of Ontario and Quebec in session at Hamilton passed a resolution that will be forwarded to Premier Borden and Hon. Gideon Robertson, asking that paper manufacturers be obliged by law in event of the refusal to do so, to supply a proportion of the domestic requirements for news print, at prices not higher than those in current contracts for export to foreign countries. It also passed a resolution of protest against the proposal to increase the postage rate 300 per cent. on publications, and suggested that the increase be not more than 50 per cent.

A strong combine of Chinese firms in Hong Kong, headed by Yuet Loong Chan & Co., controls the importation of "Soo Mook," wood from the Philippines; and makes the red ink paste that is used for inking the "chops" or seals that the Chinese employ in affixing their signatures to documents of a formal nature.

In Hilo and other parts of the Philippines the tree is called the "Cibucaco," and it has its interest for Americans in that it provides also the dye which stains red the paper that the Chinese use to make the firecrackers that the Canadian small boy has long been familiar with on the 24th of May. Thus the tree which is so little known to the world at large, gets rather amazingly distributed in the form of a dye, inking "chops" for China and coloring firecrackers for the United States, as well as helping in coloring Chinese cloth and stationery. The wood is boiled to obtain the stain, and the process of extracting the dye is said to be crude and wasteful; but the syndicate is strong enough to regulate the output and price, nor is there any immediate likelihood that its monopoly will be taken away from it. Sooner or later, however, one may reasonably expect that conservation will observe the unnecessary wasteful Chinese way of obtaining the product and raise the slogan "Save the Soo Mook," for the process, it is said, could be much more economically conducted if the dye were extracted in the Philippines and exported to China.

The 14th Regiment band, under Bandmaster Christmas, Kingston, is making arrangements for going to Napanee on July 1st. They will be present at the unveiling of the soldiers' memorial and in the afternoon will play at the horse races. The Salvation Army Band Kingston, under Bandmaster Granger, expects to come to Belleville for the week-end to play at the S. A. meetings here on Sunday.

The trouble between the township council of Loughboro and the firm of Barker Bros., Sydenham, over the street lighting contract has not been settled. A few weeks ago, the twenty electric street lamps which furnished light for the village were turned off on account of the council and the producers not being able to reach an agreement as to the charge for current. For some time Barker Bros., furnished the current at a cost of $20 a month for twenty lights. The contractors asked for an increase of fifty per cent, but the council would only agree to go half way. As a result of the refusal of the council to increase the price, the contractors removed all the electric bulbs from the poles. Since that time the village has been in darkness at night.

That Deseronto's chances of ever securing another training camp for fliers are pretty slim is a fact that The Deseronto Post learned some time ago. Camp Borden, with its cemented hangars, a camp that has cost the government upwards of two millions will be the east's only training grounds. Other camps are assured in Canada, but these camps will spread from Winnipeg to the coast.

What is there, then, for Deseronto, the town where so many good pilots got their training? Well, if Deseronto wishes a call from the fliers as they speed from Ottawa to Toronto or vice versa, the town will have to provide a landing. This landing need not be more than four hundred yards square and should be leased or purchased by the town for landing purposes only. The idea that the government is going to buy any land around this town or erect buildings or open a training camp is a mistaken idea. The government air board has no money. So the sooner our people meet the new conditions and provide an aerodrome the better it will be.

Training will begin at Camp Borden about July 15th. Many planes will travel from Ottawa, the headquarters, via Deseronto, Toronto, to the camp. These pilots will stop at Deseronto going and coming for repairs if Deseronto has a licensed place for them. If this arrangement is not made, some other nearby town will see the benefit of being on the aerial map and will have an aerodrome.

Queen's University at Kingston is a busy place at present. The authorities during the absence of the students, are busy with many changes and repairs. The Y.M.C.A. rooms in the old arts building are being transformed into a library and reading room for arts students, particularly those in politics and economics. In the old medical building a large class room which was used as a Red Cross room during war time, is being fitted for a laboratory for medical classes. This will relieve the congestion in the new medical laboratories. Masons are busy pointing the stonework, which has been showing signs of weak, James Bewst, a row of students are busy again at the cement walks. The board walks are now a thing of the past.

The court of revision will on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon of next week, beginning at two o'clock and in the evening of these days at 7.30 o'clock hold sittings for the hearing of appeals, against the 1920 assessment. The Grand Field Day arranged by Court Moira No. 33 of the Independent Order of Foresters on Victoria Park, Wednesday, July 7, promises to be one of the most popular events of this year. Hundreds of prizes are to be given away for the sports ever witnessed in this section. All kinds of races will be held for men, women and children. There will be a tug-of-war between the strong men of the I.O.F. against all comers. Great interest is being taken in the baby show, 3.30 p.m., and many entries are already in, some of them from a distance. A dancing pavilion will be erected which will be open both afternoon and evening, with band in attendance. Dr. C. Day Clarke, Asst. Supreme Physician, has promised to be present and will deliver a brief address in the afternoon. Tickets have been placed at the low price of 10 cents. The Township of Murray has had considerable difficulty over its assessment like Belleville and the matter is now in the hands of the court. Judge Rogers of Cobourg held court yesterday at Wooler before a crowded house composed of residents of Murray township to deal with assessment appeals. S. Mason, K. C. and W. C. Mikel, K. C., appeared on behalf of the parties interested. The Court of Revision upset much of the assessment and the Judge restored it.

On Holloway Street Church lawn last evening an enjoyable lawn social was held under the auspices of the Epworth League to raise funds for decorating their room. They raised the objective for there was a goodly attendance. The lawn was gaily decorated with Chinese lanterns. Music was furnished by Mr. Charles Goyer and Mr. Harry Weese. Tea cream and refreshments were served. The Rev. A. H. Foster presided over the program of music and readings which was given in the Sunday School rooms.

The Canadian National Express Company's staff, twelve in number, enjoyed an outing yesterday evening. They travelled by motor to the vicinity of Jones' Creek where dinner was partaken of on the green sward. After an enjoyable hour or two the party took motors for Trenton, where a happy time was spent. Returning to Belleville, they were entertained at the home of the agency, Mr. G. H. Griffin, 24 Chatham St., where music was enjoyed. Ice cream and other refreshments were served to the staff at the close. Mr. Stillman, an official of the company now located in Belleville and Mrs. Stillman were members of the party.

Mr. Eddie Thomas will referee the Peterborough game at Cobourg this afternoon in the Central Ontario Baseball League.

The police arrested William John Saunders and his wife Mary Saunders early this morning. They claimed to have been married in Toronto last Saturday and to have been on their way to Roblin, Mr. Saunders told that the conductor on the train said Belleville was nearer Roblin than Napanee and let them off the train here. They were walking east and he says were invited into Gilbert's bakery. They were charged with vagrancy. The case was still in progress as the Ontario went to press. When arrested Saunders crumpled up some papers and attempted to throw them out of the police car but the officer saved them.

By almost a miracle Mr. Malcolm McCarthy, of 15 Oak Street, Oshawa, escaped with his life on Saturday afternoon last about four o'clock, but not without sustaining very severe internal injuries as well as several broken ribs and a severe shock, when the scaffolding on which he was working gave way, causing him to fall to the ground, a distance of slightly over twenty feet.

Provincial police Wednesday arrested Dan Lough, in connection with the murder of six farmers in the vicinity of Grand Prairie, Alta., on or about June 18th, 1918. About three weeks ago the attorney-general's department offered a reward of $5,000 to the person or persons who would give information that would lead to the arrest of the perpetrator of the crime. The police, it is said, have been entirely responsible for the arrest, so the reward will remain unclaimed.

All the murdered men were known to have large sums of money on their persons at the time of the murders and were about to leave Grande Prairie for Vermillion where they were going to take up ranching.

Canadians wishing to fish in American waters of the St. Lawrence in Brockville vicinity do not require a license. Game Warden Edward Farrell, Morristown, told the Brockville R. and T. Thursday. Several inquiries have been made concerning the arrangement and Mr. Farrell states that a reciprocal policy has been adopted by the Canadian and N.Y. State governments. Under the present arrangements the St. Lawrence river between Kingston and Brockville has been made an international park and residents of either side of the river can fish along the opposite shores without going through the formality of securing a license. The respective laws of the two countries as to close seasons must be observed. Canadians may secure licenses at Morristown on payment of $2.50 entitling them to fish in any inland water of New York State and on payment of $10.50 can secure the sportsman's license for hunting and fishing throughout New York State.

The traffic with automobiles, vehicles and bicycles, is becoming so heavy in Kingston, that unless the best of care is taken by all drivers, serious accidents are bound to occur. The Kingston police-department is doing all in its power to stop speeding, and to have the rules of the road observed, but unless citizens do their part there is sure to be trouble.

Four automobile drivers were summoned to appear before Magistrate Farrell, Kingston, on a charge of violating rules of the road, passing standing street cars, passing street cars on the wrong side and standing too close to a water hydrant. All four pleaded guilty before the session of the court and sent in the money to cover their fines.

Oshawa will shortly have a cafeteria for girls and women only, that will serve meals of the highest order at the lowest possible cost, and the cooking of which will be done by experienced cook. The foreman of the work now being done at the Mary Street school, Mr. Fred Curi, who came to Oshawa last fall from Smith's Falls, likes Oshawa so well that he's going to remain there and start a grocery store, the back part of which will be used as a cafeteria for girls and will be run by Mrs. Curi.

The Kingston City Council and Board of Trade, are pushing along the scheme to erect a new hotel for Kingston. The present hotel, accommodations and facilities the city feels are inadequate to take care of the travelling public. They proposed that the citizens of Kingston build a hotel of at least 150 rooms and the estimated cost of hotel, site and furnishings do not exceed $6000.00. It is designed to make the hotel the centre of Kingston's social, business and public life, and have it operated by a successful and practical manager under the supervision of a strong local board of directors.

St. Mary's Collegiate Institute, of Oshawa, is in a very unique position at present, in that it cannot lay claim to any teaching staff whatever. It is decidedly without a "staff" to support it. In other words, the principal, has resigned. The rest of the teachers were not willing to be re-engaged at the same salary, and as the Board could not see its way clear to increase the salaries, they too resigned. This means that eight new teachers must be hired by the Oshawa Collegiate Board, one of whom will have to take the Principalship. The Board did offer Principal Ramage a $500 increase, but he would not accept this as he has determined to leave the teaching profession.

The new health tonic is already at work in Kingston. Wednesday a Kingstonian was observed toiling along the floor of a down-town store with dainty, airy steps. His Countenance beamed. Thinking that probably he had inherited an immense fortune, he was asked the reason for toms, m'x, boy," he chuckled, "If you want to be healthy and happy." In a few minutes, he had converted the reporter so thoroughly that before going to bed he tried it. He became so glad—to lie down and sleep.

Mrs. Maxwell, a well-known summer resident, has sold her residence at Cobourg, formerly known as the Hargrave homestead, to Michael Mulhall, Grafton. The price is stated to be $6,000. Mr. Mulhall has conducted the Mansion House at Grafton for a number of years, and is retiring from hotel keeping.

Hard pressed to carry out its co-ordination with the C.N.R. at Colby and Napanee, the Grand Trunk will not be able to inaugurate its C.N.R. service into the Union Station Brockville, by June 27th, as had been originally intended. On this date the summer time bill goes into effect. When the work of joining the two roads at Colby and Napanee is completed, however, a track-gang will be placed at Lyn station and it is contemplated that the junction will be ready for the running of C.N.R. trains from Westport into Union Station early in July.

Even the tile made by the prisoners confined in the County Jail at Kingston, is taxable, according to the new government tax. On Wednesday morning, J. W. Bradshaw, county clerk Kingston, was busy figuring out the tax on all the bills of tile which have been shipped. The tax is one per cent. This season some time has been lost in making tile on account of the shortage of cement.

A Chalmers car, the property of a Wellington street resident Lindsay, which was parked on a side street near the circus grounds Wednesday night, was found to have disappeared when the owner came for it. After the show, joyriders had evidently overcome the lock with which the car was protected, and taken it for a run about town, as it was reported Thursday morning standing on a side street some distance from the grounds, and in good condition.

No more permanent paving will be done this year in Kingston, after Montreal street of that city is completed. This was the decision of the Kingston city council at a special meeting on Wednesday evening. The finance committee made the recommendation, pointing out that it was most advisable to curtail road repairs and keep the credit of the city unimpaired. Kingston's credit stood high in the money market—but present conditions made it advisable that care be taken to maintain it—and the curtailing of all unnecessary work was one way of doing this so that the debt burden might not be too largely increased. Mayor Nickle spoke strongly on the matter and urged as much economy as possible. While the argument was made that Brockville and Belleville might be undertaking much road paving this year neither of these places, like Kingston, was erecting a contagious hospital at a cost of $150,000 or doing other things that Kingston is doing. If the council wanted to keep the tax rate within bounds a halt would have to be called, for the present at least, to expensive paving. The property owner was not calling for this paving, neither was the pedestrian. It was the automobile owner who alone was eager to have the roads made to suit his pleasure.

A Kingston gentleman who owns property in Calgary, assessed at $1,600, was thunderstruck Thursday morning when he received his tax notice showing a total tax on the property of no less than $95.12—or almost six percent. Needless to say, he is highly indignant and declares this to be civic profiteering at the expense of the tax payer. His opinion is that the Government should step in and prevent such profiteering.

All was excitement at the R. M. C. Thursday morning while the cadets were making ready to depart for their well-earned holiday. A number of carters and taxi drivers from Kingston, were on hand to move the baggage and cadets to the stations for their homes. The final formalities were held Wednesday and Thursday morning the only movements around the college were preparations for departure. Most of the cadets left on the noon trains and others followed on the afternoon train.

Thirty-three of the number which left will not return as they have finished their course at the College while it is expected that all the rest who were at the College last term will be back again. A large class of recruits will be present at the next opening. The staff will be the same as it was during the past term.

One of the reasons why wireless telegraphy has not been made compulsory on smaller vessels is that its value has depended upon an operator being continuously on duty. Important calls might come at any moment, night or day, and unless there was an operator always with his ear to the telephone, the value of the installation would be enormously reduced. This drawback has been removed by a recent invention by a British wireless telegraph expert. It is described as an "automatic call device" which rings a bell when messages of a certain kind, such as the ship's special call signals or the S. D. S. signal for help, are being sent out. When this device is installed, a ship does not need relays of operators continuously in the wireless cabin. It is enough to train two or three officers in the use of the wireless telegraph instrument. The bell calls them when they are likely to be required—as in the case of the ordinary telephone.

No more permanent paving will be done this year in Kingston, after Montreal street of that city is completed. This was the decision of the Kingston city council at a special meeting on Wednesday evening. The finance committee made the recommendation, pointing out that it was most advisable to curtail road repairs and keep the credit of the city unimpaired. Kingston's credit stood high in the money market—but present conditions made it advisable that care be taken to maintain it—and the curtailing of all unnecessary work was one way of doing this so that the debt burden might not be too largely increased. Mayor Nickle spoke strongly on the matter and urged as much economy as possible. While the argument was made that Brockville and Belleville might be undertaking much road paving this year neither of these places, like Kingston, was erecting a contagious hospital at a cost of $150,000 or doing other things that Kingston is doing. If the council wanted to keep the tax rate within bounds a halt would have to be called, for the present at least, to expensive paving. The property owner was not calling for this paving, neither was the pedestrian. It was the automobile owner who alone was eager to have the roads made to suit his pleasure.

A Kingston gentleman who owns property in Calgary, assessed at $1,600, was thunderstruck Thursday morning when he received his tax notice showing a total tax on the property of no less than $95.12—or almost six percent. Needless to say, he is highly indignant and declares this to be civic profiteering at the expense of the tax payer. His opinion is that the Government should step in and prevent such profiteering.

All was excitement at the R. M. C. Thursday morning while the cadets were making ready to depart for their well-earned holiday. A number of carters and taxi drivers from Kingston, were on hand to move the baggage and cadets to the stations for their homes. The final formalities were held Wednesday and Thursday morning the only movements around the college were preparations for departure. Most of the cadets left on the noon trains and others followed on the afternoon train.

Thirty-three of the number which left will not return as they have finished their course at the College while it is expected that all the rest who were at the College last term will be back again. A large class of recruits will be present at the next opening. The staff will be the same as it was during the past term.

One of the reasons why wireless telegraphy has not been made compulsory on smaller vessels is that its value has depended upon an operator being continuously on duty. Important calls might come at any moment, night or day, and unless there was an operator always with his ear to the telephone, the value of the installation would be enormously reduced. This drawback has been removed by a recent invention by a British wireless telegraph expert. It is described as an "automatic call device" which rings a bell when messages of a certain kind, such as the ship's special call signals or the S. D. S. signal for help, are being sent out. When this device is installed, a ship does not need relays of operators continuously in the wireless cabin. It is enough to train two or three officers in the use of the wireless telegraph instrument. The bell calls them when they are likely to be required—as in the case of the ordinary telephone.

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are creating a sensation in London. Crowds follow them; the newspapers give them more space than they give the Irish situation, the new war with Turkey or the meeting of the premiers at Hythe. Both were delighted with their first day there, and were not embarrassed by the at-attention attracted. Miss Pickford is charming in her black frock, relieved with silver bead trimming, and a $60,000 rope of pearls about her throat. Her gorgeous black hat gave her the wistful Edna-Mayhew look due to London.

She created a furore when she entered the dining-room of the Ritz. All stopped eating and talking to stare. Duchesses trained their lorgnettes on her gazing with open mouths; war millionaires half rose from their chairs.

The couple will spend a week here and then make a flying trip through France, Norway, Sweden and Germany, spending a few days in Paris, and sailing for America in about four weeks' time.

A despatch from Montreal states that the Montreal Transportation Company has been purchased by the Canada Steamship Lines, Limited, and will enter the big merger under one corporation. It was expected that the M. T. Company would enter the merger as a separate company.

For the first time since its erection a decade ago, the Woolworth building, of New York, the tallest of steel structure in the world—is to be encumbered by a mortgage. It was announced that heirs of the late F. W. Woolworth, founder of a chain of five and ten-cent stores, had arranged to borrow $3,000,000 on the structure to provide ready funds to meet state and federal inheritance taxes which total $8,000,000.

The Woolworth building, 792 feet high and covering nearly an acre of land in lower Broadway, returns an annual income of $1,550,000 and is valued by federal experts at $10,000,000.

Sidney Dryden, who for the past thirty years has been employed as a tinsmith with the firm of Boyle & Sons, Napanee, lies in a very serious condition at his home as the result of burns which he received on Thursday morning.

According to information received from Napanee, it appears that Mr. Dryden was working in the tinsmith shop at the rear of the main store and his clothes took fire from the gasoline torch used to heat the soldering irons. It is thought that the accident was caused by the tap on the torch blowing off and causing the gasoline to go all over his clothes and ignite them. Mr. Dryden called for assistance and William and Edward Boyle responded, but were unable to extinguish the fire before most of the unfortunate man's clothes had been burned off his body. Mr. Dryden suffered very bad burns from his head down to his waist line. While attempting to extinguish the blaze the Boyles had their hands badly burned.

The sentences to run concurrently. Mott withdrew his previous election to be tried by jury and pleaded guilty. Prior to appearing before the judge Mott came up before Magistrate Ball on the charge of breaking jail, and was sentenced to two years in Kingston. Our wild fowl under modern conditions either tend to disappear or forsake their former haunts in favour of more unsettled regions. Never shall I forget my first glimpse of it as I stood on the little station platform in the spring twilight watching my train speed away and curves around the harbor like a great black snake dotted with golden spots. Disk approached from the east, spreading her arms about the sleepy hamlet, and only in the west remained the soft, hazy light of the afternoon that fell with magic touch on the gleaming waters of the quiet little harbor, where five or six brown-sailed fishing smacks rested, swaying gently with the motion of the water. Far out on the point, tall and straight, in dark relief against the western sky, stood the Public Lighthouse. At the far end of the harbor, high above the houses, a church spire with a glittering golden cross stood out darkly in the pale light of evening. The dusty road winding in and out by the sea, like a white ribbon, was peculiarly alluring. Never can I remember being in such an atmosphere of brooding peace and quiet—all sounds seemed to have been hushed and only a few twinkling lights from the neat, unpretentious little white houses broke the darkness—they might have been fireflies in the still purple twilight.

But the darkness was gathering fast and I had not decided where to spend the night. There was an inn a few miles down the road, but, longed to know the Acadians as one only can by dwelling under the same roof, I chose the humble home of an old fisherman and his wife. It was a little frame house painted white, standing on a hill next door to the schoolhouse. Within, the furnishings were of the plainest, but everything was spotlessly clean, and the simple graciousness and kindly hospitality of my new-found friends was almost touching. Indeed, they showered me with kindness. The hardy old fisherman, who was over seventy years of age, with wavy silvery hair and beard and clear blue eyes, told me he had given up the sea only a year before and he regaled me with stories of life on the deck, while his wife prepared my evening meal, and such a delicious simple meal it was! There was tasty home-cured fried ham and eggs, simple slices of white, fresh home-made bread, the sweetest of butter, which my Acadian hostess had churned the day before, and a glass of cold creamy milk. And, for dessert, a dish of preserved blue berries and a thick piece of yellow sponge cake.

Where do you get your blue berries? I asked, whereupon the little woman sitting in a low rocker with her hands folded on her big, snowy apron, and rocking herself to and fro, smiled serenely and replied, "Oh, they grew out in the pasture. Yes, and I did up one hundred quarts last year."

At that moment a fine-looking youth of about nineteen, wearing blue overalls, entered. He was Henri, the youngest of their eleven children.

The Beautiful, Rugged South Shore of Nova Scotia

Who that dwells amid the noisy rush of the busy marts of commerce but has felt the warring winds of the work-a-day world breaking in upon the sail with a fierceness that at times has become well nigh unbearable?

Who, pushed along in the ceaseless march of civilization ever increasing in its velocity, but has longed to step out of the current for a time and let the world rush by?

And we all have frequently come to the conclusion that it does not, and that our grandmothers lived a saner, healthier, and happier life than the majority of the people of today. Were we right or were we wrong?

While travelling along the Halifax and Southwestern Division of Canadian National Railways, along the southern shore of Nova Scotia, I came, a little while ago, upon a quaint little fishing village—which I afterwards learned had been founded in 1650 by Major Philippe Muis D'Entremont, Baron de Pouboncourt, a son of the royal house of Bourbon, and where his descendants and many other Acadians still dwell and spend their days in much the same manner as their forefathers of a century ago—a spot that modern civilization seems to have left untouched—a little apart. It is called Pouboncourt, a name evolved from that of the founder, and, because the life there is so unique, so old-time, so utterly removed from the average present-day mode of existence—it seems like a quiet island in the swirling restless sea of modern life.

After school the children, instead of crowding into a stinky "movie" straining their eyes and for hours afterwards trying to puzzle out life as they saw it depicted on the screen, made their way down to the white beach to gather shells or build castles in the sand. They learned the secrets of the sea and knew it in all its moods, and often the old fishermen would tell them wonderful stories of that other world. They also made many trips to the woods to gather flowers or pick berries, and when love came into the lives of these Acadian youths and maidens, it was natural and beautiful, as the unfolding of a flower. Never have I had a peep into more beautiful "hope boxes" than some which were shown me down here. They contained the finest of hand-embroidered and hemstitched linens, crocheted laces and beautiful quilts, not to speak of a number of heavy velvet hooked mats the girl and her mother had made. One particularly attractive one had a design of autumn leaves on a shell gray background—really a work of art.

Where did you get such beautiful shades? I asked as I gazed in wonder at the rare blending of the colors, and the girl replied smiling, but as if it were quite the simplest thing in the world, "Oh, we just dyed them."

The wives of the fishermen churning, baked, spun, made their own clothes, and even the oilskins for the men, and were, in the majority of cases, the mothers of families ranging from seven to ten, twelve or eighteen children. My hostess was one of twenty-two and herself the mother of eleven children and yet these women were always happy and contented, and I assure you they were not faded nor wizened up at fifty, while many, like my hostess, were even fresh and rosy, not with rouge powder, but merely owing to good health, good food and the constant touch of the sea; in contrast to our city-bred friends who are ever hunting for time-saving devices of every description and finding them.

But the question remains, what are the city folk doing with their time? Are they after all, any happier than our Acadian friends?

A girl gets mad if a young man tries to kiss her. And if he succeeds she gets mad if he doesn't keep it up last year.

London Board of Education decided to build a new collegiate institute containing 26 rooms on the site of the old one.

Gen. Ross May Show Up System at Penitentiary

Will Give Public Facts If Borden Refuses Portsmouth Probe

KINGSTON, June 28.—Brigadier-General Ross stated today that if Sir Robert Borden does not make a thorough investigation into recent dismissals at the penitentiary, he will appeal to the public and show up the system under which the penitentiary is being conducted.

"The whole matter is up to Premier Borden," remarked General Ross. He characterized as false a statement of the prison superintendent, in a letter to Premier Borden, that all of the complaints registered were "100 per cent. exaggeration" and said that no sensible people would tolerate the treatment meted out to officials who had spent many years in the service upon such ridiculous charges based upon pure presumption and the flimsiest evidence.

There was nothing, he said, to warrant summary dismissal of men whose standing in the community is beyond reproach. Superintendent Hughes, he said, stated that only one man was dismissed, whereas those who resigned were practically dismissed for their resignation.

Allowed No Photos. Gen. Ross states that he is not after anybody's scalp, but he is determined that honest officials who have spent their lives in the service without a reproach are not going to be treated as these men have been.

"Think of a poor prisoner tearing up the photograph of his mother in his cell to prevent it being forcibly being taken from him," remarked Gen. Ross. "Prisoners were forced to do this in an order issued that prisoners were not to be allowed to have pictures, letters or books in their possession. It is an order of that kind consistent with any policy of reformation?"

That Man is Happy Who Loves His Work

Some one has called that man happy who has found his work. Stevenson put it better in an immortal sentence, "If a man loves the labor of any trade apart from any question of success or fame, the gods have called him."

It is the same vision that Kipling had of the home of the soul where— Only the master shall praise us and only the master shall blame, And no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame, But each for the joy of working.

Perhaps one of the homeliest, more everyday tragedies of life is the square man in the round hole. He does the best he can under the impulsion of necessity, and wears out his life in unfriendly work. For over a quarter of a century Charles Lamb sat at "the desk of dull work," forever casting up figures in a mercantile house in London. When he was finally retired on a substantial pension by this generous house he wrote an essay to celebrate his freedom, "The Superannuated Man," which is one that generations of tired and workbound readers have turned to with ever-renewed delight and thankfulness.

With opportunity so happily given, a man's great instincts usually tell him what he is best fitted for. Mind, body, and soul are too great to be doctored by birth or place. A man should, when humanly possible, trust to his intuitions or instincts upon the matter of occupation. In this way he is likely to find himself engaged in the thing he really loves to do. So may he more nearly than otherwise approach the ideal of laboring at a trade apart from "the question of success or fame" for the pure love of the work.

But a man is never entirely bound even by unfriendly work. It may hamper and wear, but if he recognizes his real work as elsewhere, there is always opportunity for achieving it or for working toward it—even though under difficulty. Charles Lamb was always writing his immortal essays, poems, and tales even while engaged in India House. Possibly he did, even better for the obstacle, for "from felled light leaps color's flame." He was all the time accumulating capital, though not in money expressed, despite his handicap. All progress is in the accumulation of capital. Any man's capital is what has been laid up for him, by others or by himself. We usually think of capital as in money, but it is often in learning, ability, experience, reputation, and what not.

A man who has learned to run a locomotive has that much stored up skill capital. Charles Lamb's ability to write and his knowledge of the old masters of literature became his skill-capital. There lay his real work—the work which he loved "apart from any question of success or fame." All his life he moved toward it, and the release finally came that enabled him to devote his time and labor to the thing that he most loved. So on the whole, and despite the quarter of a century of slavery to the desk, he wrought out his liberty to do the thing he loved to do, and, as Stevenson put it, he was called of the gods.

Any man can do this if he will—Minnesota Journal.

Boy Drowns at Madoc Village

Walter Rogers' Son a Victim in Seymour's Creek.

At Madoc village on Friday afternoon a sad drowning occurred when the twelve-year-old son of Mr. Walter Rogers lost his life in Seymour's Creek. The boy with others was just out from school and were tempted to try the water of the creek on account of the heat. The lad got part of the way across and sank out of sight. The alarm was given and his body was recovered not long after. An effort was made to resuscitate him but proved in vain. The parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their loss.

TO SAFEGUARD YOUR DIGESTION

The Blood Should Constantly Be Kept Rich and Pure

If you suffer from any form of indigestion, your diet should be carefully chosen. Over-eating is always harmful, but at the same time one must take enough food to supply the needs of the blood. It must be remembered that the blood has to carry nourishment to every part of the body, find fuel for energy and defence against its enemies, as well as the requisite juices for digestion. Hence, when the blood becomes weak and fails to do its work, indigestion arises; also when indigestion begins the blood still further suffers. Therefore, to safeguard your digestion the blood should be kept rich and red, and this can best be done by taking a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills are a blood-building, nerve-restoring tonic and through their use your digestive system will respond naturally, your appetite will improve and your food will do you good. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of stomach trouble is shown by the experience of Mrs. J. H. Alexander, Barriefield, Ont., who says: "Some year ago I was in a terribly broken down condition. I had indigestion of a severe nature, and sharp pains of agony all through me. My stomach was so weak that it was difficult to retain food, and often after eating I would have vomiting spells. I was under medical treatment, but as I did not improve my nerves were in a terrible condition and I was always in much misery. One day I read of a woman who had been cured of similar trouble through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them. The result can be summed up by saying that after using the pills for some weeks I was completely cured, could eat a hearty meal, and was again enjoying life. If I feel run down at any time I take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and always get benefit from them." You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OBITUARY

MRS. SAMUEL JARVIS.

On Monday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Samuel Jarvis took place at Black River Bridge. In the absence of Rev. Mr. Stanton, Mr. Manly Duetta officiated at the service. Six sons of the deceased—Gilbert, William, Delbert, Fred, Allan and Percy—were present and acted as pall bearers, the seventh, Murney, being resident too distant to reach home. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot at the Methodist chapel cemetery. A sister of the deceased and the only daughter, Mrs. Arthur Aleya, Rosmore, were also among the chief mourners. From the surrounding countryside in which Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Jarvis have been long known and highly regarded, many came to pay their last respects to one who was a devoted mother and a generous-hearted neighbor. Picton Times.

MRS. R. B. BRANSCOMBE

There passed from this life on June 22, 1920, Mrs. Sarah Herchmer Branscombe, wife of the late R. B. Branscombe. Mrs. Branscombe before her marriage was Miss Peterson of Kingston, Ont., her mother being Mary E. McDonnell, of Prince Edward county. Miss Peterson received her professional training in Kingston and came to this county as a public school teacher, teaching at Salmon Point, Schoharie and Waring's Corners. While engaged in this work Miss Peterson won words of praise from the public and from the school inspectors, not only for her academic ability, but also for being the pioneer in inaugurating the decoration of school properties, closing this chapter of her life, she married the late R. B. Branscombe, of Hallowell. Of the work she performed in the schools, churches and homes of her neighborhood, we can but let those who knew bear testimony. Enough to say her strength, her mind and her aid were ever at the service of all. And perhaps service is the best monument we can build. After the death of her husband in 1918 she remained at her old home until the fall of 1919 when she moved to Picton. Under these new and of necessity trying circumstances she never could speak too highly or too often of the many kindnesses shown her. While called suddenly to meet the new sunrise, she no doubt faced it with a firm resolution developed by a busy and long sojourn here. With what interest and joy she will take up the life only those who knew her best can surmise. She is survived by one son, Dr. M. E. Branscombe, of Picton.—Picton Times.

Talk of the Town and of the Country

W. R. Smith, of Los Angeles, Cal., has arrived in Kingston to visit relatives and friends, after travelling alone all the way by motor in twenty-one days, stopping off in Ohio for a three weeks' visit. He came by the Santa Fe trail to Dayton, Ohio, then to Kingston by way of Hamilton. During the entire trip Mr. Smith camped out and cooked his own meals. Judging by his appearance he must be an excellent cook. In reply to a query, Mr. Smith stated that the best piece of road that he travelled was between Hamilton and Toronto. "Indeed," he continued, "during all my travels I have seldom seen more beautiful scenery than between Hamilton and Kingston." Mr. Smith was born at Jones Falls and lived for some time in Kingston before leaving for California, twenty-one years ago.

Do not forget that this is the summer to teach your boy or girl to swim. Never put off until tomorrow what may be too late tomorrow morning.

At a special meeting of the directors and members of the South Victoria Agricultural Society held Thursday in Lindsay, it was unanimously decided that the present property owned by the society was not sufficiently large for their requirements. Present buildings will be extended and other buildings erected. There will also be provision made for a large area in which automobiles may be parked.

Cyril W. Knight, assistant provincial geologist, is in Cobalt commencing the work of making a re-survey of the geological conditions of the Cobalt silver field for the Ontario Bureau of Mines. Mr. Knight has selected the Beaver Temiskaming area in south-east Coleman as a point of beginning, and will work from that point, making a careful examination of surface and underground works, linking up each property as he proceeds, and within five or six months hopes to complete the work.

Mrs. T. F. Rixon, who was driving with some lady friends, had one of the gates come down on top of the car and considerably damaged the top of the automobile. Safety first. There are several entrances to King St., near this point and the gates should be closed slowly and in sufficient time to avoid accident.

Hides and wool worth $3,500, were destroyed in Cornwall, by fire of undetermined origin which was discovered in the barn and adjoining sheds of Mr. Bottler at Alexandria. The fire had made considerable headway before the alarm was sent in but the firemen did good work in preventing a spread of the flames. Mr. Bottler carried insurance of only $1,500.

In speaking about bands and town bands in particular, we sometimes hear people carelessly say, "What good is a band in town, anyway?" Well, first take inventory of the fellow who makes the remark. You may have reason to allow the silly question to go unanswered. But regarding the remark more seriously, let us say that a good band is one of the most useful things a town or community can possess. It is one of the best advertisements a town can have. Emerson says something about the world making a beaten path. Well, a good band will make all the roads leading to the town's best paths, even though the town's other attractions be not enormous, every merchant is benefited by a good band. Many people come to town to attend the delightful entertainments, and they combine shopping with this pleasure. The promoters of business and musical enterprise always have the satisfaction of knowing that their civic demonstrations from time to time will be successful, because they have a first-class band to lead the parade and attract the crowd. A band composed of able players is a tower of strength to any town or section of country. It cultivates the public ear to a high class of music, and does it right at your door, too. Every enterprising citizen will boost the band wherever he goes.

The first airplane, with international markings to land at Deseronto, came up from Ottawa last Wednesday afternoon and made night in a hangar at Perry field. GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic diarrhoea and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as in Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Called by Death

SILAS LENNOX

Silas Lennox, for many years a well known and popular resident of this city, passed away on Saturday at the home of his brother at Bloomfield. As Mr. Lennox had been for years past suffering from a form of paralysis, death was not unexpected.

The late Mr. Lennox was a native of Tremungua township and was sixty-two years of age.

He came to Belleville at a young man and was for a time dry-goods salesman. Then for a number of years was manager of the Quinte Laundry. He left that calling to engage in the insurance business. He was for a considerable period associated with Mr. H. F. Ketcheson and later with Mr. Chancey Ashley. He then was given a position with the inland revenue department at the Belleville Vinegar Works. His health failing, he resigned his position and went to reside with his niece, Mrs. W. W. Reid, of Shannonville. When Mrs. Reid moved to Belleville, after the decease of her husband, Mr. Lennox went to make his home with his brother at Bloomfield where he remained up to the time of his death.

Mr. Lennox was for many years a well known figure on our streets and, because of his geniality and open-heartedness, won a host of friends.

He was a member of Moira Lodge A.F. and A.M. and the funeral will be held tomorrow, Tuesday, afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, under Masonic auspices, from his brother's home at Bloomfield. Prince Edward Lodge No. 18 will have charge. Interment will take place at Glenwood cemetery, Picton.

Dr. Scott Bids Farewell

Large Congregation at Bridge Street Last Evening

The Rev. Dr. Scott last evening bade farewell to Bridge Street Methodist Church, having completed four years in the local pastorate. A large congregation attended to hear his parting message.

The Recording Steward, Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, paid a tribute to Dr. Scott and Mrs. Scott. He expected to see the finish of their work shown in better lives in the congregation of the city.

"The more we love a people, the heavier the burden seems," said Dr. Scott. "In the pastoral life particularly it is impossible to do all we feel we ought to do. I regret that in our life there is so little room for friendship. I want to thank one and all for their kindness. All has been kindness, even from those outside."

"I am in debt to the many organizations. The four years have been nothing but pleasantries in the relation with the Quarterly Board."

"I want to speak in complimentary terms of our choir. It has been a great benefit to have such beautiful music. I want to thank the choirleader and organist, Prof. Hunt."

Dr. Scott also thanked the Ladies Aid for their work and kindness to Mrs. Scott. The kindness to his son was deeply appreciated.

Dr. Scott's sermon was based on the words of Christ—"Arise, let us depart hence." This life is a life of change but it fortunately tempered with hope. Yet we know that in every departure is significant.

Experience is a great teacher. Theories fail to agree with facts. History is the great agent of shattering theories. We go out to prove by practice the value of these truths. The time has now come when the work of the pastorate will be tested by experience. There comes a time when fellowship must give way to service. The danger of the mystic is ever with us. Devout souls would like to shut themselves up from the world. In one city in which he labored, Dr. Scott said that one congregation was so devout that its members would not join in the campaign to abolish the liquor traffic. They were too proud to vote, but the defeat of local option rested on their shoulders. Life is given us to do practical things. We are here to influence, not to crowd, but individuals. Personality must reach personally.

There comes a time when pleasure must give way to pain in order to be able to minister. Out of the pains, comes the joy of the world. Altruism in nature is evident. The physician and the nurse demonstrate the labor of love for others.

There comes a time when the seen must change to the unseen and we must walk by faith. Nature is full of analogies of the spiritual.

At the close of the service the choir sang "God be With You Till We Meet Again," and later Dr. and Mrs. Scott bade farewell at the church entrance to all as they passed out.

They have gone on their wedding tour by motor to visit friends in Collingwood and other places. Great Light of Masonry

Rev. Bro. A. H. Kenney Delivered Address to Freemasons.

The annual church parade of the Masonic brethren of the three city lodges, Moira No. 11, The Belleville No. 123 and Eureka No. 283 was held yesterday at the Tabernacle Methodist Church where Bro. the Rev. H. B. Kenney, of Campbellford delivered the address on "The Great Light of Masonry." There was a large turnout of the members of the fraternity.

The choir sang "Land of Hope and Glory," (Elgar). Rev. Bro. Dr. E. N. Baker offered up prayer. The anthem "Send Out Thy Light," was sung very effectively by the choir. Bro. James Booth rendered a solo, "Behold There Shall Come a Day," and Messrs S. R. Burrows, M. LaVoie, E. A. Mouck and H. Moorman sang "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me."

The Rev. H. B. Kenney said in welcoming the Masons of Belleville that he was pleased again to meet them and to preach in the church where he spent one of the happiest of his pastorates.

The religious element in Masonry was first touched on by the preacher. Some claim its principles are subversive of religion and conducive to atheism. Others regard it as the true spirit of Christianity. It is more than a system of morals. It is that and it is more. More than any other order it has been connected with religion. It is still permeated through and through with religious teaching and Masonry takes no secondary place to any other order.

Early man endeavored to penetrate the darkness of the mystery of life. This has been ever man's quest. This explains symbolism in Masonry.

The operative Masons of the middle ages were under the authority of the church. In search for the divine truth in nature, man and revelation, is the aim of Masonry in order to bring light and happiness to the race. Masonry has endured from time immemorial in spite of persecution because of its unshakable foundation. Until men can undermine the foundations of God's Word, Masonry will endure. So long will Masonry flourish as the Book is the light unto our feet. This Book is the broader and basis upon which any institution can be established. The Book cannot change because it is true and you cannot change truth. One writer says this Book remains the fountain of perpetual youth. It can be studied in youth and age and it has its infinite variety and appeal. Holy men of old wrote as they were inspired and God's humble workmen were the translators of the Bible. It has become the anchor of national seriousness. It is a temple built not of marble but of words. There is no temple in England comparable to her Bible. We are interested in the men who made the Book, but more so in the men whom the Book has made. It makes the best men to be found. Mastermasons and mastermen should be synonymous terms. The Bible is the great builder of men. It accomplishes its purpose best in revealing the heart of men, in making men understand that they have in their possession jewels to be polished—immortal souls, the offspring of God.

The Book is the chief source of information as to right conduct. It is no dry code of morals, but a life. It contains not mere precepts but the perfect life of Christ. No Book has so inspired charity as this Bible. A Mason's charity should know no bounds—to visit the fatherless and widowed and to keep himself unspotted from the world.

The Bible gives great comfort. This Book that is the foundation of our whole system of Masonry, is the great Book on immortality. No man can speak on immortality without his thought being colored by the Bible.

The Bible should take its place in the life of every master Mason, in the home and the nation, said Rev. Mr. Kenney, citing the familiar scene from Burns' "Cotter's Saturday Night."

We want family religion. We want national religion. May we stand as sentinels and declare that men must follow the dictates of conscience. Follow the Bible and you will become beautiful in thought and deed. As we grow older, the volume of the Sacred Law is found to be built on the rock of God.

Charge Against Dr. Lapp, Arising
Out of Setting a Child's Arm,
Not Allowed by Trial
Judge.

The action brought by Mr. A. R. Leonard, C. N. R. Station Agent at Cobourg, for $10,000 against Drs. T. C. Lapp and W. E. Wilkins occupied the first two days of the Supreme Court Sittings here before Hon. Mr. Justice Logie, and attracted a great deal of attention. It arose out of the unfortunate accident that befel Borden Earle, the bright young son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard, and which is so deeply regretted by citizens generally. The little boy last summer fell and fractured his arm about an inch above the elbow. Drs. Lapp and Wilkins reduced the fracture and attended the young patient. The plaintiff charged negligence, as the little boy has lost the use of his forearm and hand. A great deal of medical testimony was heard on both sides and the suit was most rigorously contested. Drs. Yeomans and Gibson of Belleville and Dr. Geddes of Verona gave evidence for the plaintiff giving it their opinion that the fracture was too tightly bandaged, causing destruction of the muscles of the forearm for want of nourishment, and thereby causing Volkman's contracture. They, however, had not had experience with similar cases. The parents of the boy, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard gave evidence as to the way the arm was bandaged and Mr. M. E. Hall was also called by the prosecution.

For the defence, Dr. W. E. Gallie, consulting surgeon of the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto; Dr. Edmund King, Senior Surgeon of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, and Dr. Geo. H. Field were called. Their evidence went to show that Volkman's contracture might or might not be a result of tight bandaging. The latter could produce it, but it might also be the result of injury to the blood vessels at time of the accident. Dr. Gallie of the Sick Children's Hospital said he had known of a number of cases where this had occurred, and of three individual cases where no bandaging had been done. Drs. Lapp and Wilkins, both, gave very clear, straight forward evidence as to the course which they had pursued in treating the injured arm. The fracture was a very serious one and in a network of blood vessels.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Logie, in summing up the evidence expressed much sympathy with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard and of admiration for their sunny, bright little boy. In a way he regretted the changing of the Act which had taken cases similar to this away from a jury, owing to the probability of sympathy from local men, interfering with their being able to arrive at a verdict comparable with the real evidence submitted, and placing it in the hands of a Judge. He, however, assumed the responsibility placed upon him. Personally his sympathy was with the little boy, but in weighing the evidence he could not see that it had been shown that practitioners had succeeded in rebelling on the 9th of October. With the aid of Gen. Simon Bolivar, the great Venezuelan emancipator, and of his compatriot, Gen. Antonio Jose Sucre, the Ecuadoreans after many bloody battles succeeded in completely annihilating the Spanish forces and established freedom in Ecuador for ever. Therefore it is that the Ecuadoreans celebrate two "Independence days," the 10th of August and the 9th of October.

15. The only possible way for workers to secure a substantial increase in wages without a corresponding increase in cost of living is by increasing output.

TWO GREAT DAYS.

Ecuador Twice a Year Celebrates
Freedom From the Spaniard.

The Republic of Ecuador celebrates two national holidays, and, strange to say, both are "Independence days." Both are observed with the same enthusiastic and patriotic fervor that is displayed in the United States on the anniversary of the adoption of the immortal declaration, according to the Pan-American Union.

The liberty-loving patriots had to shoot two bolts at Spanish domination before they succeeded in gaining permanent independence. The first time they had a quiet but determined revolution in Quito, the present capital of the republic, the patriots assembling at the house of Manuela Cantales, a brave and beautiful woman, on August 5, 1809, when they prepared their declaration of independence and chose the officials who were to compose the provisional government. That night the conspirators gathered their forces in different parts of the city, and Captain Salinas, who commanded the two companies of regular troops and guarded the city, sent to their barracks, read to them the declaration and won them over to the cause of the patriots. They overpowered the bodyguard of Ruiz de Castilla, the Spanish governor, early on the morning of August 10th and thus established the first republic without shedding a drop of blood. It lasted only about a year, when Castilla succeeded in over-throwing the patriotic government and again brought the country under Spanish dominion.

The first of liberty had been kindled, however, and the Ecuadoreans kept up their heroic struggle, notwithstanding many reverses, until in 1820 the people of Guayaquil, the leading seaport of the country, succeeded in rebelling on the 9th of October. With the aid of Gen. Simon Bolivar, the great Venezuelan emancipator, and of his compatriot, Gen. Antonio Jose Sucre, the Ecuadoreans after many bloody battles succeeded in completely annihilating the Spanish forces and established freedom in Ecuador for ever. Therefore it is that the Ecuadoreans celebrate two "Independence days," the 10th of August and the 9th of October.

was not properly set resulting in a withering of the boy's hand, which rendered it useless and caused it to be deformed. Judgement was given for the defence without costs.

Old timber men interviewed regarding the pulp situation aver that there is over fifteen years' supply of pulpwood adjacent to Calabogie. A pulp mill is the logical thing, and while any industry would be good for Calabogie, the building of a pulp mill would be the very best industry at the present time. It would bring workmen and their families and increase the population of the village. In addition to creating more business for the merchants and greater general prosperity for the surrounding countryside.

The Deseronto Post, has at their office a very fine specimen of the skin of the water snake which is so common in the waters of the Bay of Quinte. This complete skin measures four feet one inch. It is four inches around in its biggest part. For the enlightenment of some of our readers we may say that a snake sheds its skin in early summer. The water snake is dark, almost black above, and light in color below. It is a wonderful swimmer, is strong and powerful and will bite if cornered. But—its bite is non-poisonous.

Mr. Charles Deyell of South Ops, met with a painful accident Thursday while sharpening a mower knife. The grinding stone which is driven by a powerful gasoline motor broke and threw the knife with great force against Mr. Deyell's right arm. Two very ugly gashes were inflicted on the forearm. Dr. White was summoned and dressed the wounds.

The unfortunate accident caused considerable pain and Mr. Deyell will be on the casualty list for a couple of weeks.

Old timber men interviewed regarding the pulp situation aver that there is over fifteen years' supply of pulpwood adjacent to Calabogie. A pulp mill is the logical thing, and while any industry would be good for Calabogie, the building of a pulp mill would be the very best industry at the present time. It would bring workmen and their families and increase the population of the village. In addition to creating more business for the merchants and greater general prosperity for the surrounding countryside.

Talk of the Town and of the Country

Mr. James Sheppard, late of Pictou Market, now resident on the Robert Hughes farm, Black River Bridge, met with a serious accident on Monday afternoon last. In company with some neighbouring farmers he was engaged in digging a grave at the local cemetery, where in the remains of Mrs. Samuel Jarvis were to be laid to rest that afternoon. Although aware of the precarious foundation of the tombstone, just a minute or two before the operations would have been completed, it collapsed and toppled over against Mr. Sheppard before he had time to get out. He was taken to his home and Dr. Pablow summoned. The injuries received are most serious but recent advice gives hopes of recovery. Mr. Sheppard also suffered the dislocation of one of his fingers and facial abrasions. Great concern and sympathy is held by all in the community to which Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard are new comers this spring.

Prof. G. W. Morden, who during the war period and since has been in charge of the extensive plant of the British Cellulose and Chemical Co., at Derby, England, is now taking charge of this company's big plant at Cumberland, Maryland, U.S.A. and is sailing from Southampton to New York by S.S. Olympic on June 25th. He expects to visit Prince Edward county in the near future.

Mrs. Cecilia Martin, Amelia street, Pictou, has received from the Militia Department a cross commemorating the part taken by her husband, Private S. A. Martin. The cross was accompanied by a card on which was inscribed, "This cross is presented to you in memory of one who in the Great War died for King and Country."

Mr. J. D. Cumming, Campbellford, has disposed of the pure bred Holstein cow, Lady Pearl Hengervold, also her two-year-old daughter and her twin calves to Mr. Carman Baker, of Brighton. As a junior three-year old this cow gave 3,000 lbs. of milk in seven weeks, testing 3.7 per cent. fat which is equivalent to 138 lbs. of butter. She was bred by G. A. Kingston. Mr. Baker sold two cows this year for $14,100.

Ex-Reeve James R. Davidson of Beachburg passed away as the result of a terrible accident in a saw mill there last week. In some unaccountable manner he was thrown on a revolving saw and one of his legs was completely severed and the other was badly mangled. Fellow workmen rendered first aid as quickly as possible and he was hurried to the Pembroke hospital but medical aid was unable to overcome the shock. He was aged 69 years and a prominent resident.

How the crops will be improved and increased by an alliance between the tractor plough, which, by the way, can do the work of five ploughs and five teams, and the kindly microbes of the earth, is explained as follows by an expert:

It has been discovered that the microbes of the soil, notably those which make it fertile, are found to be much more active in autumn than at any other time of the year. The discovery of this fact will mean a large permanent increase to the fertility of our acres.

Now that the tractor is in good use, fields are ploughed as soon as they are cut. On one farm, where the employment and production figures of the microbes were carefully studied, the tractors got to work on the fields in the trail of the cutters, all the fields being ploughed within a day or two.

The advantages claimed for this method are that the ploughing is easier because the ground is soft under the standing corn; a seed bed is prepared early so that sowing can follow at any desired moment, while the microbes are now much more active in reducing the stubble and old roots into manure than they are at any other season.

The home of Mark Twain, at Hartford, Conn., where "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" were written, was recently sold to a Hartford real estate firm. Until not long ago the building had been used as a private school. Built by Mark Twain in 1870, up to the time of his death the big house was a magnet that drew to Hartford the great of the land among statesmen and writers. Here Mark Twain held forth in his billiard room until all hours of the night, smoking, talking and playing; and here he read the chapters of "Tom Sawyer" and "Huck Finn" to his wife and children, gathered around the fireside at night.

The calls lily, which was cultivated on a large scale in Egypt, and probably in Palestine thousands of years ago, was and is, grown as a food plant. It develops underground, fleshy tubers that some what resembled potatoes, though more elongated in shape. With preliminary boiling they may be cooked for the table by frying, baking or in any other way that potatoes are cooked. Large acres are nowadays devoted in Florida to the culture of the calla for its tubers. It grows admirably in swamp lands that are useless for other purposes, the yield of a single moist acre being enormous. In olden times, in Egypt, calla tubers were one of the most important food crops. They were grown over extensive areas in each annual season of the Nile's over flow.

Friday night the Lindsay Council fixed the rate at 38 mills, as compared with 41 mills last year. The rate could have been fixed at 37.6 mills, but the Councilors wished to stretch the rate to 38 mills in order to take care of any unforeseen, but necessary, expenditures; and also to allow the making of a grant of $200 to the war veterans, which was carried unanimously. In making the rate 38 mills the Town of Lindsay became the first in Canada to reduce the rate this year. Many other towns are increasing the rate to as high as 45 and 50 mills. Newmarket is the only village to reduce its rate. Not only are the citizens to be congratulated, but the Town Council. To make the rate 38 mills it was necessary to exercise the greatest economy and do business in a businesslike manner.

It is quite true the assessment was raised 20 per cent., but with a rate of 38 mills, this only means an actual increase of 10 per cent. in assessment, or general taxes, which is considered a remarkably good showing when it is remembered that the Town as a municipality has been hard hit by the high cost of living, the same as any other business institution. Higher salaries have to be paid, big prices have to be paid for general equipment for fuel, for supplies, grants, etc. Further more the rate of 38 mills gives the Lindsay Council a chance to clean up all back deficits.

WOODEN SPOIL

"I'll give you five minutes to get on the St. Boniface territory into the Ste. Marie limits, the other side of Kocky river," Hilary said. He turned to the spectators. "I'll thrash every man not employed by the who comes upon my land," he announced.

Whether they understood the meaning of the words or not, they realized the significance of the gesture. Black Pierre, among his companions at the edge of the clearing, stopped his retreat. He meant at least to save his face by threats. But Hilary had liberally turned his back on him and without apparent fear of danger, was examining the stacks, and poking the moss out of the interstices between the logs with a forked stick. When he turned the last of the Ste. Marie men was disappearing out of the clearing down the road. He waited long enough for them to reach the fork, before re-entering the buggy.

He was thoughtful on the drive homeward. He knew that it was only the unexpected nature of his action which had cleared the concession. That had been a paramount duty; at any cost he must preserve the integrity of his land. But, given Rousseau's leadership and active hostility, they could put up a fight which would render him impotent. Physical force could bring him nowhere in the end.

It took about an hour for the embelished story to filter through to the mill. Before work was knocked off that afternoon Hilary became conscious of a new deference in his hands' manner of gaping looks that followed him when he went from office to mill, or back. For the first time St. Boniface began to believe that the Morris regime had really passed.

"We've still got Rousseau, though," said Hilary to Lefe. "When do you suppose he's going to declare himself?" "Soon," said Lefe. "You've seen to that, Mr. Askew."

"Well," answered Hilary cheerfully, "we'll meet that trouble when it comes. Meanwhile, don't spare the teams in breaking up those piles and sending them through the mill. I've got to get out a record load next month, and I'm going to credit all the wood that goes through the mill to the St. Boniface tract and let Rousseau take any action he likes about it."

Rousseau was not long in declaring war. On the following afternoon, as he sat in his office, Hilary, looking through the window, saw Madeleine Rosny driving a rig along the road toward the mill. Beside her sat a man whom he had never seen before. He surmised at once that it was Rousseau, but he hardly expected that the girl was bringing him to the office.

Such proved to be the case. The rig stopped at the door and Hilary had a glimpse of Madeleine's averted, scornful face as she sat waiting, as Hilary was beneath her pride, as if to stop there was no more than to stop an laborer's shack. His companion leaped out and came briskly to the door.

He was a man of something more than forty, but active and young-looking. He came into the office and glared down at Hilary, who sat at once rose and faced him.

"I'm Mr. Rousseau," said the visitor. "I've heard of you," said Hilary. "You'll hear more of me. You assaulted one of my men yesterday. Do you think you can come into this country and knock my men about like that for doing their duty?"

"He was on the Rosny registry, and cutting my timber."

"He was on the west side of Riviere Rocheuse," snarled Rousseau. "The Riviere Rocheuse has never been surveyed. What you call the creek is the upper part of Riviere Rocheuse. Leblanc had permission to cut that tract for Mr. Morris because our two companies worked hand in hand. It is not my way to make explanations, Monsieur Askew, but take that for what it is worth."

"I do so, and it is worth nothing," Hilary answered. "What is your proposition?" "You assaulted my man. He started it, and he needed it. If I find him on my limits I'll assault him again. You haven't come here to complain about that, Monsieur Rousseau. What have you come for?"

Rousseau advanced and banged his fist on the desk. "I've come here to tell you that you're a fool, young man," he answered. "My word goes in this part of the country, and you can't come in here and fight me."

"Your proposal, please," said Hilary quietly. "Now you're talking sense. This ain't the United States, where you rich men can come into a territory and grab it away from the people under their noses. You'll put Mr. Morris back as manager and go home, or else you'll sell out to me."

"Yes, it does come in about the same thing," said Hilary. "Why don't you ask me to make you a free gift of the concession?"

Saskatchewan Man, With His Rheumatism and Backache Gone, is Telling His Neighbors of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lac Pelletier, Sask., June 28. (Special).—Stating that he has been relieved of rheumatism and backache by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Mr. Alphonse Blais, a well known and highly respected resident here, is singing the praises of the old reliable Canadian kidney remedy.

500 Machines and 200 Different Processes Used in Manufacture of Footwear

Shoes for the feet we took for granted until their higher prices made them weigh heavily on our minds.

A study of its making transforms the humble shoe into an epic of ingenuity and skill, according to William Joseph Showalter, who writes to the National Geographic Society as follows:

"There are four general types of footwear, according to the manner in which the soles are attached to the uppers. The leading type is the welt. It has a small strip of leather sewed fast, first to the upper and then to the sole, so that upper and sole are not joined directly. Welt soles are used mainly in higher grade men's and boys' shoes and in women's walking shoes.

"The McKay sewed shoe is the second type. In it the sole is sewed directly to the upper. The cheaper grades of stiff-soled sewed shoes are made by this method.

"The turned shoe is the third type. In it the sole is joined to the upper with the whole shoe inside out, then turned. Women's pliable-soled shoes are made in this fashion.

"The nailed, pegged, or screwed on sole represents the fourth type and goes with cheaper grades of shoes.

Fifty Machines Used

"As uppers leather comes into the factory it has the irregular outlines of a hide or skin, as indented as the coast of Maine, and by hand could be measured only by a master of trigonometry, through a long process of calculations, but a machine has been invented that can calculate more areas in half a minute than a mathematician could in half a day.

"Fifty machines, 100 people, and 200 processes are employed in the making of a pair of shoes.

"In the linings department are big machines that cut uppers cloth 20 to 40 thicknesses at a clip, as easily as a cake-cutter cuts dough.

"Beyond is the uppers leather department. Here a trained man, with stubby-bladed, razor-edge knife takes the skin, lays it on his cutting board and, running his knife around several aluminum patterns, cuts out vamp and quarter and toe piece with accomplished art in getting the maximum of pieces out of the minimum of skins. When he has finished with a skin it looks like shapeless strings bordering a series of irregular holes.

"In cheaper grades of shoes the leather also is cut by 'dinking' machines—mechanical cake-cutters applied to shoe making. Only one ply is cut at a time, but there are series of dies for the different parts.

Leather is "Skived"

"After the quarters, vamps, toe caps, etc., have been cut, the leather must be "skived" so as to prevent any raw edges showing in the finished shoe. The edges are fed through a machine that shaves the unfinished side down to a level. This is then covered with cement and the thin edges folded over, much as a seamstress lays a hem.

"The linings go from the assembly room to be transferred from the individual pieces into the canvas counterpane of the leather upper. The quarters are joined at the back and stayed with a reinforcement. The vamps are cemented into shape ready for inclusion in the finished upper.

"The tips go to the toe-cap room where they are perforated at the edge to give them a pleasing appearance on the foot of the wearer. Fourteen different processes are required to transform a piece of tip leather into a finished cap, with its box to hold the shape of the shoe and canvas lining to protect the nose of the wearer.

"The joining of the quarters and vamp must be done with great care, so that there is neither unevenness nor roughness. It is the most difficult task in the making of the upper of a shoe. Judgment and care are required and much strength of hand.

Laced by a Machine

"Other minor processes follow, and presently the finished upper goes forth to meet the sole-mate in the making department. Before it goes, if it be a laced upper, a girl puts it through a machine that laces it up and ties it in the twinkling of an eye—a machine that would be a glorious aid to a fat man.

"Preparatory to its alliance with the sole the upper is lasted. The insole has been tacked on the last, and the upper is now pulled tightly over it through a machine that puts in pinners which act like human fingers. They draw the whole upper in tightly over the last, so that there is not a wrinkle left, and take it down on the bottom. The toe and heel require a little extra attention, and are held down by a piece of fine wire.

"The lasted shoe next goes through a trimming machine that removes all surplus leather, while a mechanical hammer pounds the leather smooth. Then it goes to another machine, making the shoe ready for wetting.

Cover With Cement

"The welt is so prepared that it can be sewed to the insole and the upper in one sewing, and later have the out-sole sewed to it. After the joining of insole and upper to the welt the shoe is passed through the insole trimming machine.

"Next it goes to a machine where a small hammer gives the welt a terrific beating. The insole and welt are then covered with rubber cement as is the walking sole. When this has dried slightly the sole is laid on and the shoe is put into a pressing machine, where the cement dries.

"Next it goes to the rough rounding-machine, which rounds sole and welt, allowing them to extend out from the upper at all points. Looking at the shoe on your foot you will see that this extension is less at the shank than at the ball, and less on the outer side than on the inner side of the foot.

The rough rounding-machine also cuts a little groove around the bottom of the sole for the purpose of receiving and covering the stitching to follow. The welt extends back only to the heel. The latter has no welt, but is stitched directly and has its own special treatment.

"One shoe factory in Massachusetts has a daily output of 14,000 pairs, each pair marching through the factory in 14 days in ordinary times.

Malcolm McAllister's Experience on the Farm

Roderick McAllister's oldest boy, Malcolm, came home last week. He'd been away for five years, in the city some where, and been to college, and knows quite a lot. I suppose I don't think his folks missed him very much, for they weren't anyone to meet him. Rastus was over to the Beaver Bridge to get his horses shod and saw him get off the train and gave him a ride home. He brought two trunks with him and intends to stay all summer and help his father on the farm.

Well, he thought he pretty nearly knew it all, but he found out there was things to learn yet. He went to help his father milk the other night, and Roderick told him not to touch old Dinah, for she'd kick him, sure.

Well, he'd like to see the cow he could not milk; so he got his pall and stool and said "So, boss! So, Dinah, nice old bossy!" and went to set down, but his stool went out from under him and his pall flew over his head and she landed several lightning-like strokes on various parts of his anatomy.

He picked up his pall and stool and tried again, but she kicked her foot into the pall and bent it nearly double. He picked up his stool and whacked her over the joints, but her eyes flashed fire and she just kept on a-kickin' till Roderick took the pall and milked her, and Malcolm went to feed the calf.

Well, some calves are easy to feed and some are stubborn, and that calf was stubborn. Malcolm got the pall down but that calf would not see it. He tried to put its head in the pall, but it held its nose straight up till Malcolm, by main force, pressed its head down into the pall, but it bunted and snorted and would not drink.

Malcolm tried again, and it gave one tremendous bunt, running its head out between his feet and lifted him on its back and made a dash through the door, and landed Malcolm on his back in a pool of muddy water, and ran round and round the yard as though it was paid for going.

He got up and shook himself and tried to put the calf in again. His brother Peter came out and helped him and they caught it and pushed it back in the barn.

A few mornings after this he went to get the cows and found a small black and white animal in the woods, and thought it was a pup. "Come puppy, nice doggie; come, nice little puppy." Just then old Rover came along and started to bark at "nice little puppy", who, by the way, did not come to Malcolm, but left his compliments instead in the form of a shower of the vilest perfume he had ever met with. He got it fair in the face, and it made him so deathly sick he had no appetite for breakfast. The girls all ask where he buys the perfume he uses.

Next day he was goin' across the fields to Silas Jefferson's. There was a big black and white goat in the field, and he was very ugly. Some folks say he is the same goat the Orangemen use in their meetings, and that they get Silas Jefferson to pasture him, but I don't know. He might be, though, for he is very ugly and could give them the Royal Bumper as well as any goat I ever saw.

Malcolm did not know he was there, but he soon made Billy's acquaintance. Before he had gone more than twenty rods he suddenly went up in the air, and as he had no parachute he naturally came down quick and heavy. Before he had time to look where he was hurt he went up again. This time he landed about fifteen feet farther on, and before he had time to realize whether he had been hit by a tornado or caught in an earthquake, Billy gave him another fer fallin'.

How long this would have lasted I don't know, if Silas Jefferson hadn't seen his perdiclerment, and came and led the goat away. Silas is master of the lodge, and I guess the goat knows him, or maybe he just worked some secret spell on the goat; but they do say that goat will mind every time he speaks.

Poor Malcolm was badly knocked out. He wears a bandage on his head and one arm, and has a porous plaster on his back, and he walks very lame, and when he sits down he has to have a cushion.

He sez he'd rather be run over by an automobile in the city than meet another goat in the country. Marthy Melkiojohn.

New Flags Made by World War

Never has there been such a fluttering of new flags as at the present time, and as "Peace" and other celebrations have revived much interest recently in national emblems, an account of their varied colors and designs may be timely.

It must be admitted that in most cases a great opportunity has been missed, and not much originality or imagination shown, for certainly none of the newcomers can challenge comparison with our own splendid Union Jack, the Stars and Stripes of the United States, or the effective Sunburst of Japan.

One of the most successful is the new flag of Poland, consisting of white and red horizontal stripes, with a red shield appearing in the centre of the upper half, upon which is emblazoned the white eagle of Poland, curiously enough (seeing that it is the flag of a republic) still wearing a crown!

There has been a great mouthing of "eagles" recently in European heraldry, but the bird of war flags its wings and again raises its (double) head as the emblem of rockbound Albania. Incidentally, in this flag is committed what might almost be called the heraldic "crime" of emblazoning "color on color"—that is black or red. If one had been a "metal" (yellow or white) it would have made all the difference.

The flag of Ukraine, modest in its design of blue over yellow, horizontally arranged, aims at least at being symbolic, the official description explaining that it represents the blue sky over the golden wheatfields of Europe's richest granary.

The new flag of Czechoslovakia incorporates the colors of Bohemia, white over red, with a triangular patch of blue in at the "hoist" end, emblematic of the blue hills of the Carpathians.

The flag of Latvia (otherwise Lettland or Lettonia), one of the new Baltic states carved from the side of Russia, is red, white, red, horizontally, the two red stripes being each double the width of the central white. As an instance of the persistence of warlike realism, it may be added that the red is officially described as the "color of coagulated blood."

Two other states that have broken away from Russia have chosen horizontal stripes, but in these cases tri-colors of equal width, Estonia flying blue, black and white, and Lithuania

Says He Grew Tired Fighting the Boss

OTTAWA, June 26—"I am going back to my office in Cleveland, Ohio," said James Murdock, who resigned from the Board of Commerce of Canada, in protest against the Government's failure to appoint commissioners to the board to replace those resigned, and to give Mr. Murdock an opportunity of carrying on the board in the way he wished to do. Mr. Murdock left for Cleveland last night.

"I am still Vice-President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen of America. I resigned from that post when Labor appointed me its representative on the Board of Commerce. My lodge preferred to give me indefinite leave of absence, in case I did not like this job. Well, I do not like it. I'm going to go to a job where I shall not need to fight the boss. I prefer to fight for the boss.

"As Labor's representative I insist that direct action is what the people want, and direct action is the thing we could not get. To-day we sought to make the board's order respecting unfair profits taken by a Toronto shoe firm an order of the Superior Court of Ontario, in order to get action through that court against the firm. But the act provides that such notice to the Provincial court must be signed by the Chief Commissioner. There is no Chief Commissioner—three months after the resignation of the last incumbent of that post.

"Because the Government has failed to appoint a new Chief Commissioner the board has been unable to institute definite action against any combine, because the act distinctly provides that only the Chief Commissioner can fix the time and place of the investigation, and otherwise conduct the preliminary action: "I do not care to remain a party to this practical joke at the expense of the public."

Mr. Murdock's salary as a commissioner was $3,000 a year.

Textile Concerns Need Further Investigation

OTTAWA, June 25—An interim decision of the Board of Commerce concerning operation of the textile manufacturing concerns in Canada, issued today, expresses the opinion that investigation should be carried through to a completion in the interests of the public. The Board has found much that is irregular and susceptible to enquiry. Some difficulty has been experienced but board is in possession of figures showing exactly what profits made in the past ten years. Stress is laid on the over-capitalization of some of the cotton companies.

Premier May Resign Early Next Week

OTTAWA, June 25—Rumor is current in political circles that Sir Robert Borden will resign the premiership immediately after the prorogation of Parliament. The rumor lacks confirmation by any responsible parties. It takes the form of a belief that Sir Robert will submit his resignation to a caucus of Unionists which will be held early next week. It is believed that a number of Unionists, though perhaps not a majority of the party would be not adverse to accepting it. As a successor, Hon. Arthur Meighen is spoken of in the same rumor.

Every promise is built upon four pillars: God's justice and holiness, which we will not suffer Him to deceive; His grace and holiness, which will not suffer him to forget; His truth, which will not suffer him to change; His power which makes Him able to accomplish.—H. G. Salter.

Prof. William Henry Schofield, A.M., Ph.D., occupies the chair of Comparative Literature at Harvard University and who originated the Harvard Studies in Comparative Literature, has written in the fifth volume of the series, recently issued from the Harvard University Press, of Mythical Bards and the Life of William Wallace, over whose authorship there has been much speculation and which has finally taken its place as a bit of political propaganda written when England and Scotland were at war. Professor Schofield's conclusions are said to be of deep interest to students of history and of literature.

AN EVERYDAY RELIGION — WHAT IS NEEDED

Sermon on a Timely Topic by Rev. J. A. Chapman, an Old Plainfield Boy, Now of Middway, Ont.

We have the pleasure of favoring our readers with a sermon lately preached at Middway by the Rev. J. A. Chapman.

Mr. Chapman is a native of Thurlow township. In the early days of his ministry he filled charges at Frankford, Northport, Demorestville, Wellington and Shannonville.

Text—1. Tim., 4. Chap., the 7th and 8th verses. "Exercise thyself rather unto godliness, for bodily exercise profiteth little, but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come." The text is of special value to young people, for the earlier in life we realize its truth the greater the benefit we will derive from it. We see that there is something to be added to frugality, to industry, to moral qualities in order to attain the best success, and that something is godliness. Some place a high value on a religion of a death bed, but what is needed is a religion of the factory and of the mart, for a religion that will not do for the one will not do for the other. Some think that religion is good for Sunday religious services, but should be left out of worldly affairs. They claim that it makes the conscience too sensitive. Instead of this, they insist that the conscience in business concerns should be elastic enough to get even with people who take advantage of their necessity or their ignorance in a business deal; that is, in worldly matters they must "fight fire with fire." But the apostle believed that godliness was profitable in all things, and we believe he is right and it is our purpose to make this plain. He sustains his position by affirming that godliness "gives promise of the life that now is." Let us get the meaning of godliness. It evidently means god-likeness in heart and in life. A friend once told me that he was a party man through and through. Godliness means that one is godly through and through. He lives in harmony with God's laws, both moral and spiritual. He possesses a godliness that has come to him through the forgiveness of sin and the consecration of his life to God. Such a god-likeness contributes to business success. It makes health a matter of conscience and therefore avoids practices and indulgences that would imperil it, and good health is a great aid in securing business success. Godliness also prevents us from spending our money foolishly, wastefully and in extravagant living and thereby enables us to have the balance on the right side of the ledger at the close of the financial year. Godliness insists that it is a talent entrusted to us by the Lord and therefore is not to be squandered or put to sinful uses. It also insists that we should be diligent in business serving the Lord. There is no place for idlers in God's vineyard. We are to work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work. A good motto should be acted on, "Better wear out than rust out." A person may sleep on a bed of roses, ride in an aeroplane, live in a palace, and preside at a table laden with luxuries, yet he will need the exhilarating influence of work in order to obtain the greater effectiveness in a business life. Godliness implies an integrity of character that inspires confidence in the business world. If a man deals with you unfaithfully in a financial matter you do not feel like giving him another chance, but if he did not take the chance when he had it within his reach you feel like giving him your support. Godliness aids us in winning our way to the esteem and good will of others by our kindness of manner and our generous support of needy causes, and all this will contribute to our happiness. With good health, a good conscience and the good will of others we should be the happiest people in the world. Happiness does not consist in what we possess, but in what we are. A man may be a king, or a millionaire and still be the unhappiest of men. Or he may have but his two hands for his support, but with Christ in his heart and the hopes of glory in his soul he may be supremely happy. Without godliness, however, happiness will be as elusive as a will-o'-wisp, an ignis fatuus. You clutch after it, you open your hand and it is not there, and you die a disappointed man. Better a hovel with one's substance on a single shelf and the hope of heaven in the soul than live an ungodly life with a palace for a residence and the delights of earth within reach but no hope in death, money in the pocket and hell in the heart.

Godliness gives promise of the life which it to come. Our stay here is but transient. It seems but a little time ago when the oldest amongst us were children playing with dolls and marbles, and what will matter when the end comes whether in our lives sorrow has been mingled with our joys and defeat with our successes, provided we have our lamps trimmed and burning and oil in our vessels, waiting to be admitted into the house not made with hands eternal in the heavens. But godliness is not to be sought merely for the material advantages it will secure for us. We do not admire a young man who marries the fortune and has the girl thrown in to bind the contract, but rather we admire him who marries the girl because he loves her and sees in her virtues that gold could not buy. So godliness is to be sought because it brings us into fellowship with Christ and love becomes the hand that binds the contract. It is love only that will stand the strain of possible misfortune and loss, and secure the happiness of the home. So it is love, a love that will cement the tie between Christ and his people that the ups and downs of human life will not be able to sever.

The text therefore exhorts us to exercise ourselves unto godliness by cultivating habits of prayer, by attendance on the means of grace, by estimating the things of earth at their true value and by fixing our affections on things above.

Canning Fruits Without Sugar

Much of the Small Fruit Crop
May Be Conserved by This Method

Due to the scarcity and high price of sugar the possibility of much of the coming crop of small fruits going to waste is greatly increased. There is a method of canning without sugar, and to secure the best information available on the subject, The Commission of Conservation invited Miss Jenette Bab, Instructor of Household Science at Macdonald College, to prepare a short paper. Miss Bab especially emphasizes the caution that in sugarless canning the utmost care must be observed, and every rule strictly followed, otherwise loss of fruit and wasted effort may result.

"Fermentation and decay are caused by the bacteria, yeasts and moulds, which are ever present in the air, coming in contact with fruit. We must, therefore, destroy these forms of life present in fruit and in the containers and prevent their further entrance into the containers, by sealing and sterilizing or boiling. This is what is termed canning.

"There are many reasons why we cannot goods spoil. Some of these are: Because of imperfect jars; use of old or poor rubbers; use of stale products; being too slow; filling too many jars at once; inaccuracy in time of boiling; failing to test jars after sterilizing, and careless storage.

"The equipment necessary for canning is as follows: Wash boiler, or large kettle, with an air-tight cover; fitted rack for bottom of boiler; good jars and covers properly sterilized; good rubbers; long-handled spoon or silver knife, strainer or clean cheesecloth for washing fruit, blanching and cold-dipping; boiling water, and clean towels, all of which should be sterile.

"To prepare jars, test them first for leakage, by filling with water, fitting on rubber, sealing tightly and inverting on a dry table. If no moisture is seen on the table the jar is safe. Sterilize the jars and covers by placing on rack in boiler, cover with cold water, bring water to boiling point, and boil for fifteen minutes. Sterilize the rubbers in a shallow dish of boiling water for five minutes.

"In the cold pack method the importance of the two terms blanching and cold-dipping, should be emphasized. Blanching is to dip in boiling water for from a few seconds to five minutes, according as to whether the fruit is of the soft or hard variety. Cold-dipping means the immediate plunging into cold boiled water, to set the coloring matter, to aid in keeping the fruit whole and to make it easy to handle.

Preparation of Fruit
1. Select when it is at its best—thoroughly sound, ripe, but firm and free from bruises.

2. Grade as to size and quality for sake of uniformity.
3. Can the day it is picked, and as soon as possible after picking, especially where no sugar is used.
4. Clean fruit and prepare as for table use.
5. Blanch in case of hard fruits.
6. Cold-dip.
7. Pack products quickly into jars, which have just been removed one at a time from the boiler, using a sterile knife or spoon handle for packing.
8. Fill with boiling water, insert knife to let out air and fill again to top with water running over jar.
9. Put on sterilized rubber, cover, and partially seal at once.
10. When all jars are ready, place on rack in boiler and cover with water of the same temperature as jars, keeping the jars separated.
11. Cover boiler, bring to the boiling point and boil until the fruit is cooked.
- (a) Soft fruits require from 10 to 15 minutes where sugar is used. When no sugar is used we add 15 minutes more to the required length of time with sugar.
- (b) Hard fruits with sugar require from 30 minutes to one hour plus 20 minutes without sugar.
12. Uncover boiler at end of time for sterilizing or boiling, allow steam to escape and seal jars tightly immediately upon removal from boiler. Invert until cool.
13. When cool screw tight again, wash outside of jars, label and put away in a cool, dry, dark place.

Note—In sugarless canning the utmost care must be observed, and every rule strictly followed.—Jenette Bab, Instructor Household Science, Macdonald College.

SPIRITISM

Editor Ontario:—
Mr. A. Robinson, in a recent issue of The Ontario, returns to the discussion of the above subject with another of his long drawn out articles discussing almost everything except the matter before us. In this reply to his effort I shall very briefly refer to the Scriptural argument, as it is manifestly drifting farther and farther from the point we started in to discuss, viz., "Spiritism," and shall devote some time to ascertaining what science has to offer on the subject.

But first let me correct an erroneous impression which Mr. Robinson conveys when he states that Mr. Bice's quotations have a strong tendency towards the destruction of the authenticity of the whole Bible as we have it. No quotations are pointed out, but just the ipse dixit of Mr. Robinson. In fact, I have made no quotations from any author or that would justify the charge. I gave a summary of the "higher criticism," so called, for the purpose of showing the danger of forsaking the King James version, and taking up with some other of later date (as Mr. Robinson did) who has a dogma to maintain, but I expressly repudiated the higher criticism.

Mr. Robinson now claims that Luke 23:43 is changed in the Revised Version, and that his selected and adorable author, Mr. Rotherham's version of this passage is correct.

I have the American Revised Version, but it makes no change, whatever, from the old edition, either in punctuation or in the collection of the words in the sentence, while Rotherham's version changes both.

The query arises, why should Jesus say to the thief, "this day," thus emphasizing the time of the saying instead of the time they should meet in paradise? What was there in the circumstances that made it necessary to particularize the time of the speech when everybody there including the thief addressed, already knew the day the utterance was made?

Mr. Robinson's version of this text is wholly without point, or even meaning, unless accompanied by a change in the collection of the words in the text, for which there is offered no justification. The futility of quoting individual authors who have an object in their rendering, is vividly illustrated in the quotation made by Mr. Robinson from Mr. Moffat's translation of the New Testament in relation to Christ's preaching to the spirits in prison, wherein he says it was "Enoch" who appears as the one who preached instead of Christ. Mr. Robinson challenges me to name the text where it is said Christ preached to the spirits in prison. He will find it in I. Peter, chap. 3:19, in both the old or the Revised editions.

The rest of my friend's article pertains to a discussion of the condition of the wicked in the next world and is not germane to the subject before us, hence we pass it by.

What Has Science to Say on the Subject

In deference to Lord Bacon's opening sentence in his Novum Organum, let us try by induction to find what psychology has to say on the subject of immortality, or the future life. A psychic fact is just as much a fact as any other in nature.

Man is endowed with a dual mind, or mind and spirit, and he possesses two distinct phases of mental activity, or states of consciousness, each distinguished by phenomena peculiar to itself. This statement can be easily proved, but as it is generally conceded by philosophers, we will omit the proofs, or rather we will trust to the endorsement of the faculties of the two minds as proof of the statement. Everything about the mind happens just as if the above statement were true, and that is all any student can expect as a working hypothesis.

Now each of these minds is capable of independent as well as synchronous action, but they possess independent powers and functions—the faculties of the one (the mind) pertain wholly to this life, while those of the other (the soul) are specially adapted to a higher plane of existence. We may distinguish them by designating the one the Objective Mind, and the other as the Subjective Mind. The first is the mind of ordinary waking consciousness, having the five physical senses as its media of cognition, and is designed and adapted to deal with the physical environment. It is the function of the brain and ceases with death.

The subjective mind is that intelligence which is manifested when the brain is asleep, or its action is inhibited, as in dreams, or trance states, as in hypnotism.

The subjective mind is constantly amenable to control by suggestion, and the corollary of this is also true, that is, it is wholly incapable of inductive reasoning. It also has the power of transmitting intelligence to other subjective minds otherwise than through the ordinary sensory channels, or by what is termed telepathy. It is to hypnotism that we are indebted for the verification of most of what has been said concerning the quality of mind, for in that state the brain is asleep, as in natural sleep, including the inhibition of the senses. The power of telepathy belongs exclusively to the subjective mind.

A classification of the faculties of the two minds in strict accordance with the facts of experimental psychology as developed by the Society of Psychological Research since 1882, as well as by many independent investigators, is as follows: The objective mind alone possesses the power of inductive reasoning, and has very imperfect power of deductive reasoning. It has also imperfect power of recollection, and normal brain memories of emotional experiences.

The subjective mind has instinct or intuition and is controlled by suggestion. It has perfect deductive reasoning and perfect memory and is the sole seat of the emotions. It also has telepathic powers and kinetic energy.

It is impossible to make a complete analysis of the faculties of the subjective mind without being compelled to consider them with reference to a future life, because they are, many of them at least, wholly useless in this life, but are perfectly adapted to the uses of the disembodied soul. The powers of the subjective mind are limited, as long as the soul inhabits the body, to control by suggestion from the objective mind, and it is so constituted that it accepts every suggestion imparted to it.

The brain is the sole organ of the objective mind, but not of the subjective mind.

In the lowest order of animal life is found the promise and potency of a human soul. The accepted theory is that man is descended from the lower animals. Man begins with a unicellular organism—microscopic in size, composed of protoplasm—"the physical basis of life," says Huxley. Of the protozoa there is a group called the Monerozoa—the lowest form of life—without nuclei, and hence without visible organs, a simple mass of plasmion, and yet it is endowed with a mind, a conscious intelligence as evidenced by the functions it performs—the adaptation of means to ends, which is a mental process. A living creature is a mind organism, for mind alone distinguishes the animate from the inanimate. It is instinct which enables the monerozoa to do this, and instinct in the lower animals is the same as intuition in man, the latter being merely a higher and more complex development of the former, but differing only in degree.

The subjective mind controls the involuntary functions of the body. The objective mind cannot control one involuntary muscle. We cannot control the beating of the heart, etc. The soul is immanent, and not inherent, in the body. We have not space to elaborate these statements, but we know that the objective mind, as death approaches, ceases to perform its functions in perfection, while the subjective mind becomes more pronounced as death approaches and the body grows weak; and its strongest manifestations are at the very hour of dissolution. These facts are attested by the records of the Society for Psychological Research and by our own observations which give us the assurance that the death of the body is but the birth of the soul into a more perfect life.

Now, it is axiomatic, because self-evident, that there can exist no faculty of the human mind without a use or a function to perform somewhere, or at some time in the life of the individual. If, then, we find that man has faculties of mind that perform no normal function in this life, but which would be adapted, and essential, to the life in the future world, it follows that there must be such a life awaiting the soul of man after bodily death. It can be shown that those faculties and functions are not adapted to the normal uses of this life, but are obviously adapted to a disembodied existence, the inference of the future life is irresistible. God does not create anything in vain or without a purpose.

If man is to survive the death of the body and live an immortal life, one of the essentials is personal identity, for without this he might as well be annihilated, and the one indispensable faculty for this purpose is perfect memory, which the subjective mind alone possesses, and which has no function to perform in this life. Another essential is a perfect means of communication between spirits, and this is afforded by the power of telepathy which has no use in this life and which the subjective mind alone possesses. The power of perfect deductive reasoning possessed alone by the subjective mind not only differentiates it from the objective mind, but assimilates the soul to the omnipotent and omniscient Being. Without irreverence we may say that God is incapable of inductive reasoning, which requires a collection of facts and experiment from which to infer a greater law. He does not have to examine isolated facts or perform experiments from which to deduce a general law for He not only comprehends all the facts, but all law. Man in this life has constant and varied uses for the inductive process of reasoning and could not get along without it. In the future life he will not have need for any such power, but will have use for the power of deductive reasoning, hence he is provided with this power as one of the foremost in the subjective mind.

Space will not permit the elaboration of these propositions, but to some extent this is not necessary, as they are mostly self-evident. In conclusion, and to put the argument in concise and purely syllogistic form, it stands thus: Every faculty of the human mind has a normal function to perform either in this life or in a future life. Some faculties of the human mind perform no normal functions in this life. Therefore some faculties of the human mind are destined to perform their functions in a future life. Quod est demonstrandum.

Worms in children work havoc. These pests attack the tender lining of the intestines, and, if left to pursue their ravages undisturbed, will ultimately perforate the wall, because these worms are of the hook variety that cling to and feed upon interior surfaces. SOME IDIOSYNCRACIES OF THE THOROUGHBRED HORSE IN CANADA

One Little Understood Fact That Sheds a Light on All These Questions is That Thoroughbred Horses are as Unlike as Human Beings—They Have Their Temperaments, Physical and Moral Qualities.

With the prospect that horse racing, under the stimulus of race track betting will be revived this summer, the thoroughbred horse will become more than ever a subject of interest to many thousands of Canadians. It is true that the ordinary or average bettor would hardly know a thoroughbred from a Clyde, except for the difference in bulk and the feather on the fetlock, but it is also true that many keen followers of boxing would not know a photograph of Jimmy Wilde from a photograph of Fred Fulton. In other words, lack of knowledge does not forbid enthusiasm. But there are some things that the most ignorant of betting men are interested in. One thing, for instance, that is likely to call up all their mental resources to master, is why they lose. Why is form reversed? Why do they carefully calculate the proved merits of all the horses in a race, pick out the one that will certainly win and find him unable to raise a gallop? Why will a dub horse set a world's record, and why is it that some of the greatest horses in the history of races have never run as fast as some very ordinary horse? The suggested course of study may not be without interest to people who never placed a bet in their lives.

Horse Temperament.

One little understood fact that sheds a light on all these questions is that thoroughbred horses are as unlike as human beings. They have their physical and also their moral qualities, and the moral slants are as likely to decide a race as their physical characteristics. If horses were as much alike as automobiles or motor boats the system of handicapping would eliminate all speculation. All the horses would finish in a line, for the horses of higher quality would be slowed up by added weight so scientifically that the fastest horse would finish a mile in precisely the same time as the slowest. Indeed, it might strike even racing men as curious that the object of handicapping is to make the horses finish in a dead heat. That dead heats so rarely occur is not due to the inefficiency of the handicappers who are probably as scientific in their methods as life insurance actuaries, but to the equine equation, to the moral and mental differences in race horses.

The Great Horse

Some illustrations of this fact are given by Henry V. King in the Sun and New York Herald. He notes that now and then, perhaps once in every ten years, there arises a truly great horse. Since one might figure a horse's generation at three years, it would appear that a truly great horse appears relatively as often as a truly great man. The great horse will beat the next best at a hundred yards, and at a hundred miles. He will run well in the spring and in the fall. He will run well on fast tracks or heavy tracks. He will run from behind or in front. If he has a heavy weight he will run as gallantly as though he were as lightly weighted as the rival that is far in the lead at the moment of writing. He will run day in and day out. He is never sick, never sorry. He will run his race without intimations from the jockey. The two-year-old champion of last year on the American turf, Man o'War, fulfilled these conditions as a juvenile; if he continues to race as well as a three-year-old he will be entitled to be called great. Another horse of this class, perhaps the greatest that ever raced on this continent, was Keene's Synobly. But great horses are not, as a rule, the backbone of the turf because they do not encourage speculation. Synobly used to start in races in which a bettor would have to offer twenty dollars in the hope of winning one.

Morning Glories

There is a fine steeplechaser called Bet, owned by W. R. Coe. As the result of a fall she will not jump a fence now unless another horse is at her side. She has speed and stamina, but her nervousness renders her an extremely dubious betting proposition if no other is there to chaperon her over the rails. Compadre, another fast horse, will never run a good trial. Spur and whip are unavailing to make him show more than a carthorse in trials of exercises. When he gets to the real race he will run his best, and is reckoned the fastest starter in the United States. On the other hand there are scores of horses that have been called "morning glories" because when they are asked to race early in the morning against time, they show a glorious performance, but when forced to compete with other horses in a race they just naturally curl up and refuse to try. There is a horse called Fairy Wand, a fine looking racer and very fast. It is almost impossible to get a saddle on her. She will kick and bite any man, horse or dog that is in her vicinity. When she is racing she is an entirely different animal. She is lamblike, and the finest boy can handle her as well as the stiffest man.

Sulkers and Cowards

A high class horse, is Joseph E. Widener's Naturalist. He has the speed and stamina to make him one of the best handicap horses on the turf. Like Compadre he will not run in trials, and in his races he is uncertain. As long as another horse is running beside him he will go as fast and as far as necessary; but if another horse gets the lead he will quit. He has been known to stop dead on the track and decline to make an effort. The great granddam of Purchase, one of the stars of the turf last year, was Cherry Lass. She was kind and gentle in training and ought to have been a good racer, but when a saddle was put on her and an attempt made to lead her to the starter she would throw herself on the ground and kick until the saddle was taken off and she was led away. Other horses form attachments for a particular jockey or groom or for a dog or cat, and will worry themselves out of condition if a pet goat is removed from their stalls. Some horses will put up an exceptionally fine race if they are given a stimulant before a race; but doping a horse will not make him outdo himself. It will merely make him forget his troubles and give his best.

Electric Development at Ranney's Falls

Two 5,000-H.P. Units to Operate Under 47-Ft. Net Head Between Upper and Lower Reaches of Trent Canal Near Campbellford—Conditions Almost Ideal—Another Generating Station for Hydro-Electric Power Commission's Central Ontario System.

(From The Canadian Engineer.)

Plans and specifications have been prepared by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario for the construction of another water power development on the Trent Canal. At present the commission operates eight plants on the Trent Canal system, six of which are on the Trent division of the canal and are supplied with water from the Trent River, and two of which are on the Severn division and are supplied from the Severn River. The proposed ninth plant is to be on the Trent division, at Ranney's Falls, between present Campbellford and Frankford plants, or about one mile below the town of Campbellford and about two miles above lock No. 11.

When the Trent Canal was constructed by the Dominion government, a dam was built a short distance above Ranney's Falls to maintain the level in the upper reach, and an artificial waterway was constructed through a part of the town of Campbellford, terminating in locks numbers 11 and 12, by means of which the boats obtain access to the lower reach of the canal. It was then planned to take advantage at some future time of the difference in level between the two reaches which is available at this point, and as a part of the wall on the river side of the canal there was installed a reinforced concrete sluiceway with five overflow sections, each 20 ft. long. The concrete deck of the sluiceway serves as a bridge to carry a main highway across the proposed forebay.

The total length of the sluiceway, including the four piers, is 116 ft. and the height is 15 ft., the deck being at elevation 480 and the foundation at elevation 465. The regulated water level in the upper reach of the canal is at elevation 477.2, and in the lower level of the canal, 429.2, so that the difference in elevation, or gross head, is 48 ft. Allowing 1 ft. for losses through the plant, the net head on the plant will be about 47 ft.

The plant has been tentatively designed for a flow of approximately 2,300 cu. ft. per second, which in this particular section of the canal means a velocity of about 1 1/2 ft. per second. In winter the water level in the lower reach of the canal is generally dropped about 7 ft. in order to avoid damage by flooding in case of ice-jams, so the head will then be approximately 54 ft. and the capacity of the plant thereby increased. The draft tubes will be carried low enough to be sealed at the lower elevation of the tail water. Under normal conditions, with 47 ft. head, the capacity will be about 9000 k.v.a. at 80% power factor, current lagging.

From the outside walls of the sluiceway, gravity retaining walls, approximately 120 ft. long and averaging 20 ft. in height, will extend to the gate-house, which will house the racks and head gates and which will adjoin the power-house proper. The gate-house and power-house will be of reinforced concrete construction. Provision will be made in the headworks for an ice chute for handling any ice which may find its way into the forebay. The power-house floor will be at elevation 455 and the generator coupling about 4 ft. lower.

There will be two units, and for each unit there will be provided two head gates of the Stoney sluice type, from which the water will be carried to the turbine casings through reinforced concrete supply pipes approximately 53 ft. long. The turbine casings will be of the scroll type, molded in concrete. The hydraulic turbines will be of the single runner vertical type, direct connected to generators. The turbines will have a capacity of 5,000 h.p. under 47 ft. net head when operating at 120 r.p.m. The generators will be 3-phase, 60-cycle, 6,600 volts, each of 4,500 k.v.a. capacity at 80 per cent. power factor, capable of operating continuously at an overload of 5,300 k.v.a. The maximum efficiency of the turbines will be at approximately 90 per cent. full load, and they will normally operate between 70 per cent. and 90 per cent. of full load. The scroll cases will be about 30 ft. in inside diameter, as the physical dimensions of the units will be large, the capacity being large in proportion to the relatively low head.

The turbine runners will be about 8 ft. in diameter. An exciter will be mounted directly on top of each generator and will be direct connected to the main generator shaft. The governors will be of the oil pressure type.

The tailrace will be approximately 250 ft. long, extending from the power-house to the lower level of the Trent River, and a certain amount of dredging will be required in the Trent River at the tailrace outlet. Other than this, all work will be in the dry, as the small amount of spill and leakage from the sluiceway can be readily piped away. A siding from the G.T.R. will be built directly to the site of the work.

The rock, which is exposed over practically the whole site, is a good grade of limestone, and no construction difficulties are expected. In fact, the whole layout is very simple, the site being almost ideal, no head dam being required, headrace and tailrace both being short, the forebay conditions ideal, no rapids immediately above the plant to cause frost, all ice troubles being at a minimum, and there being no runoff or storage problems requiring solution.

Two additional smaller generating plants in the immediate vicinity of Ranney's Falls are contemplated, and when built they will be connected to the low-tension bus in the Ranney's Falls generating station. The operation of the Trent Canal is in the hands of the Dominion government, and the plant necessarily will have to operate with whatever water the government operation permits, but, as above stated, it has been designed for a flow of about 2,300 c.f.s.

Like many other power sites on the Trent Canal, this site was formerly leased by the Dominion government to the Seymour Power Co. When the Ontario government purchased the Seymour Power Co. a few years ago, the rights to this site and others were acquired.

The other developments on the Trent division of the canal which are now operated by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario are as follows:—Healy Falls, six miles above Campbellford, 16,800 h.p. capacity, Trenton (Dam No. 2), 5,600 h.p.; Campbellford, (development about one mile above the town), 5,000 h.p.; Frankford (Dam No. 5), 4,800 h.p.; Auburn, 2,850 h.p.; Fenelon Falls, 1,000 h.p. The total capacity of these six plants is 36,050 h.p. and with the 10,000 h.p. which will be developed by the Ranney's Falls plants, there will be a total of over 46,000 h.p. developed by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission on this division of the Trent Canal. There are several other sites yet to be developed on this division, including Burleigh Falls and Dams Nos. 8 and 9.

1182 Boxes of Cheese Sold on the Board

The Price Was 28 7-16 for the Entire Offering

Peterboro, June 24.—James Cook of W. S. Cook & Son, Belleville, bought up the Peterboro Cheese Board at 28 7-16 cents Wednesday morning. The board was a small one but there were eight buyers in attendance. The bidding was slow and careful.

The following was the cheese boarded: Westminster, 95; Selwyn, 96; Villiers, 100; Warsaw, 145; Westwood, 80; Ormiston, 215; Young's Point, 90; Lang, 52; North Dummer, 50; Stoney Lake, 30; Norwood, 194; Killarney, 75.

The eight buyers were G. A. Gillespie of the Peterboro Milk Products Co., James Cook of W. S. Cook & Son, Belleville; G. A. Kerr of the James Alexander Co., Montreal; T. Thompson of the A. A. Ayres Co., Montreal; W. H. Morton of the Lonsdale, Christmas Co., Montreal; W. Flaville of Flaville's, Lindsay; Wm. Weir of Otonabee for the Ingersoll Packing Co., Ingersoll; H. R. Free of Belleville for the Harris Abattoir, Toronto.

Before the bidding opened H. B. Cowan's Co-operative Co. was discussed and disparaged by the buyers. How the cheesemen were going to benefit after paying freight and handling the cheese puzzled the buyers, and the downfall of the scheme was predicted. James Cook, of Belleville, offered ¼ cent less than the price Mr. Cowan's cheese would bring in Montreal on Friday. As it is stated that factories that ship to Montreal have to pay ¼ of a cent for freight and handling, Mr. Cook's offer amounted to ½ cent more than what they would get in the Montreal market. His offer was acknowledged fair but was not taken up by any of the factories.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie opened the bidding at 27 cents. Mr. Morton raised him 1-16. Flaville bid 27 1-8, and J. Cook went to 27 1-4. The bidding opened merrily, then slowed down when Gillespie bid 28 3/4. Kerr put it up a notch to 28 3/8. Cook bid another 1-16. Both Cook and Kerr raised to 28 5-16, but Cook was given the bid. The bidding dragged. Flaville bid 28 3/4 and the board went to Cook for 28 7-16.

The Belleville buyer's offer was accepted by all the factories. The price two weeks ago was 28 3-16 for 569 cheese boarded, and 422 went for 29 1/4. On June 18, 1919, 1888 cheese were boarded and brought 30 5-16 cents.

Talk of the Town and of the Country

Blasting on provincial highway construction three miles east of Prescott caused a break in the Hydro Electric service Wednesday morning, with the result that Brockville is now receiving power from its steam auxiliary plant. The power line was broken by the blasting. The discontinuation of the power caused a vacuum to occur in the air pipes at the gas plant and the pipes collapsed. Service from the gas plant was restored at 12 o'clock.

Mr. J. W. Sanders, town clerk of Port Hope, received word Wednesday morning that a large German gun had arrived at the G. T. R. for the municipality of Port Hope.

The Heel Fly, which has been causing some concern to cattle owners in various parts of the country up west, seems to emanate, as far as can be learned, from frothy white substance to be found in the grass. A representative of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review while in Tavistock a few days ago, observed this frothy substance in the grass at the side of the lane, and upon asking the farmer as to what it was, gleaned upon the information that "those blotches of white contain bugs." It has since been learned from reports sent out from other districts that this is the origin of the pest, and no doubt there are many farms in the nearby vicinity which harbor these harmless looking balls or blotches of white. This may or may not be correct, but nevertheless, there is the coincidence for guidance, and the word of an authority published in outside papers as to the origin of the insect.

Indignant because of the continued drawing of water from the Rideau in spite of protest entered last year, the Smith's Falls town council has decided to serve an injunction upon the Federal Department of Railways and Canals to restrain the Department from further unnecessary raising of stop-logs to the disadvantage of navigation and the crippling of the town's supply. The council indulged in strong criticism of Hon. Dr. D. Reid, Minister of Railways and Canals, for his inaction in the matter.

Propagation of the black bass at the government fish hatchery at Cape Vincent, N. Y. is to be undertaken upon the completion of extensions to the plant now under preparation. The raising of black bass cannot be successfully conducted in a closed hatchery, open pools having to be provided for the young fish, a condition that requires additional land and considerable new construction. The raising of bass in captivity is, in fact, a matter of more or less experiment, at least in that part of the country.

A four-acre tract of land has already been acquired for the hatchery in Lake street, one block away from the fish station, and negotiations are in progress for the purchase of three acres more on the opposite side of Lake street, extending through to Joseph street. Upon these seven acres it is proposed to construct deep pools, with as nearly natural conditions as possible, and provided with fresh running water, where the raising of the black bass will be attempted.

Should the attempted propagation prove successful under government jurisdiction it will be not only an innovation at the river but will prove of great value to fishermen in the stocking of the streams and lakes. An attempt was made some years ago to raise bass in captivity by the Wykoffs on Carleton Island, a short distance below the village, but the experiment did not meet with the desired success.

A concrete base has been put down in front of the hatchery for the erection of a large water tank which will permit the government to handle its own water supply for the hatchery, independent of the village system. The hatchery is fully equipped with pumps and heaters to keep the water circulating through the fish troughs at any temperature required, and these pumps will be utilized in supplying water from the St. Lawrence for the tank.

The mechanician who rides furiously paced miles in his little seat at the side of a race driver gets little or no recognition and is scarcely noticed by the thousands of persons who see the fast field of drivers. Yet he plays a very important part.

It is his duty to keep a close watch on the tires, check each layer as it succumbs to the friction caused by rapidly moving wheels on rough brick pavement, and to signal the pits when he is about to make a change so that everything will be ready when they roll in for a sojourn of seconds.

He must keep a close watch on other cars in the race, particularly the driver if one of the cars is about to pass. It is an unwritten law of drivers that all passing be negotiated on the right side. In case of a mechanical breakdown he is the only one who is permitted to assist the driver in making repairs.

He sits in the car without any protection—he might be bounced off any number of times. His only chance is to brace his feet on the floor. There is no steering wheel to help hold him in the car. Most any time during the race he can be seen furiously pumping oil with a small hand pump.

The thrills of the driver are his thrills—but the world never knows. It is the driver who gets all the honor and glory in victory.

He has one consolation—twenty per cent of the net winnings usually find a way into his pockets.

A young man named Henry Girard, a French Canadian, who is reported to have escaped from the Cobourg Military Hospital, was brought in by a constable from a neighboring village, to Walkerton, on Friday night on a charge of being insane. Girard was a patient at the Cobourg Military Hospital where men suffering from nervous trouble, shell shock, etc., are treated. He is reported to have joined the army at Edmonton, but was sent home from England as unfit. He worked as an attendant at the Cobourg institution and became infatuated with a young lady from this district who was serving as a V.A.D. When she returned to her old home he came after her, followed her again on a visit to Toronto and after her return from the city Friday night put in an appearance again. Thinking these strange actions had been gone on long enough and not knowing what would be the next development, the girl's parents got in touch with the authorities and had the young fellow locked up. Girard was examined by Drs. Stalker and Farwell, who did not find the evidence sufficient to commit him to goal for insanity, although he appeared to be suffering from a delusion. Girard was remanded to goal by Magistrate Tolton on information that he had escaped from the Cobourg institution, and he is being held in Walkerton awaiting the arrival of officers to take him back.

Progress on Provincial Highway

The Work is Progressing Well Between Kingston and Toronto—Spotters to Catch the Speeders.

Citizens driving over the new provincial highway which is under construction at the present time between Toronto and Kingston are delighted with the progress which is being made. Although the men have only been engaged in the work for about a year they have in many places made an excellent roadway. People who live in Belleville and have not been on the highway from Toronto as far as Oshawa have not the slightest idea of the good road bed which has been constructed. It is smooth, and the road has sufficient crown to allow motor vehicles as well as horses to travel along without the slightest difficulty. Steep grades on many of the hills which have been a great hindrance to the travelling public have been reduced.

It is stated that one of the most difficult grades met with is at Roblin's hill on the outskirts of Napanee. For years this hill has been considered one of the most tedious on the whole road, not only on account of the steepness but also on account of the rough surface. It was impossible to keep any gravel on places as heavy rains would wash it down the hill. Last winter the work of cutting this solid rock bed was commenced and it is expected that it will be completed next winter. In places the rock has been cut down to the depth of about twenty-five feet. It was thought that the work of digging the rock out could be done in the winter while it would be impossible to work on the road, so no work is being done on the cut this summer. While this work is underway a temporary road has been built along the side of the cut.

On two of three hills en route to Toronto, a great deal of excavation work has been done. In one place a steam shovel was used for months in reducing the high grade. It is safe to say that when the work is completed on the hills, automobiles will not have any difficulty in making them on high speed.

People who have followed road building for years are of the opinion that the policy of the highway commission in letting contracts for short distances of road to private companies has resulted in getting the work done in quick time.

A great quantity of money has been spent in draining and also putting in a large number of concrete culverts. While the work of constructing the culverts was underway the contractors were compelled to build a suitable road for vehicles.

At places where the work was proceeding large notices were posted notifying the general public that the roadway was closed to public traffic and people who used the road did so at their own risk.

It is not known what the policy of the government commission is, but it is thought that after the macadam gets some of the asphalt surface will be placed on top.

Mr. Halton Spencer is planning the erection of a new drive shed this summer.

At the present time, men are busy oiling the portions of road which have been completed. Before any oiling is done a drag is placed on the road and all stones and dust removed.

It is very interesting to watch the work on the highway near Kingston. Commencing at the junction of the Bath and Front roads, the work is completed and the road will be oil and open to the public in the very near future. Those who have driven over the old roadway will remember the high crown. On slippery days it was very difficult to drive over it. This crown has been greatly reduced. At the present time a number of men are busy building a new culvert on the road very close to the Grand Trunk Railroad tracks. For years the road has been flooded in the spring. While this work is underway those travelling in and out of Kingston have to use the Bath or back roads.

Those who are interested in the safety of the travelling public are of the opinion that when the road is opened, the Grand Trunk railroad company should be asked to place some safety device at the Cataract crossing. In the western part of the province where crossings are not nearly as exposed as the Cataract one there is always a man on duty.

The work on the highway from Napanee to Belleville is not nearly as far advanced as some of the other pieces but it is expected it will be rushed along. The piece of road from Roblin's to Morven is as good as any place on the entire road.

The highway commission calls for the fences to be so far apart, and in many places they are too close, so the government purchased a certain number of feet from property owners and are moving back the fences. Hundreds of trees which interfere with the road have been cut down. In some sections a number of fruit trees were interfering, so the commission allowed the owners $10 for each tree.

The commission realizes that with a new highway there will be a lot of speeding, so it has arranged to have "spotters" who will patrol the road and catch the speeders. The speed limit in the country is twenty-five miles an hour.

Must Not Wear War Button

The Soldier's Service Memento is Protected by Clause in Penal Code

FINE OF FIVE HUNDRED

OTTAWA, June 24.—In the Commons yesterday afternoon, Col. Cooper, of Vancouver, enquired of the ministry as to what steps were being taken to prevent the unauthorized wearing of returned soldiers' buttons, prevalent at the present time.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Militia, stated that the unauthorized use of soldiers' buttons had been prohibited by order-in-council as of April, 1919. A fine of $500 or six months in jail had been provided as a penalty. With the lapse of the War Measures Act, however, the penal clause of the order had also lapsed, and from January 1st there had been no penalties for the offence.

A bill was now before the House, however, including the unauthorized wearing or use of such button among the offences of the criminal code. When the bill was passed, the penalty provided would become effective.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, in moving the second reading of the act to amend the Militia Penalties Act, explained that by an amendment last session a person entitled to a pension under the Militia Penalties Act, was also entitled to a pension, gratuity, or allowance under any other act, such persons, or in the case of dependents shall elect which to accept, but nobody would receive two pensions, gratuities or allowances. The pension committee which had recently devoted a great deal of attention to the whole question and had recommended the amendment passed last session, be repealed. The effect would be to restore section 25 of the militia pensions act.

Wedding Bells

MITCHELL—DONALDSON
A quiet wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Donaldson, 2nd Con. of Thurlow, on Monday, June 21st, when their daughter, Bessie May, was united in marriage to Mr. Fred Garfield Mitchell, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Mitchell of the same place. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. W. W. Jones of Shannonville. Miss Lulu Mitchell, sister of the groom, acted well her part as ring bearer and flower girl. The wedding march was played by Miss Margery Grills.

Many beautiful presents showed the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held in the community.

The young couple left on the afternoon train for Toronto, St. Catharines and other western points. Both were very popular in social and religious functions in the community and we all join in wishing them a long life and every happiness and prosperity.

Hugh Guthrie, in moving the second reading of the act to amend the Militia Penalties Act, explained that by an amendment last session a person entitled to a pension under the Militia Penalties Act, was also entitled to a pension, gratuity, or allowance under any other act, such persons, or in the case of dependents shall elect which to accept, but nobody would receive two pensions, gratuities or allowances. MAIMED, SICK AND BLIND WAIT UPON FAITH HEALER

Hundreds Crowd Around and Into St. James' Cathedral, Where J. M. Hickson Lays on Hands and Prays for Their Recovery.

TORONTO, June 25.—The maimed, the blind, the lame, the halt, some on crutches, some on stretchers, some wheeled in on invalid chairs, crowded into St. James' Cathedral yesterday morning, hoping that Jas. Moore Hickson, the English spiritual healer, might do something to relieve their suffering and restore to them the use of limbs and senses that disease had destroyed.

Mr. Hickson had told them not to expect immediate cures. He had exhorted them to keep up their faith in the Lord, and all would be well with them. Many of the sick present expressed themselves as feeling better immediately. One man, evidently a paralytic case, who had with difficulty struggled up the steps to the altar, supported on either side, walked back down the aisle unsupported save for his cane, with a firmer and more certain tread.

St. James' Cathedral could not accommodate the tremendous number of people who came to be cured. Before 9.30 crowds had gathered outside the main entrance. For three solid hours the faith healer laid his hands on persons of all ages and sex, and it was after 1 o'clock before the last of the vast assemblage was finally treated.

The whole service was, perhaps the most pathetic and the most impressive held for years in the city. All through the laying-on of hands the organ played softly and the dim interior of the old cathedral seemed far removed from the bustling heart of the city.

Rock of Ages Cleft for Me, sung by the whole assemblage, opened the service. Then, after a prayer from Canon Plumtree, James Moore Hickson was introduced to the expectant audience.

There is nothing of the mystic in the appearance of the faith healer. He is a man of powerful physique, heavily built, with dark features and dark, penetrating eyes.

He spoke of the motive and meaning of faith healing and by the time he had closed his address with a short prayer he had the whole audience completely with him.

He asked for silence during his ministrations, and, stepping down from the pulpit, moved to the chancel of the church, where were the stretcher cases.

Our Lord, be pleased to bless this child of Thine and destroy the life of the disease which is afflicting her; make her pure and clean—followed by other brief words.

Mr. Hickson moved quickly from one stretcher case to another, and then to the sufferers on the wheel chairs. Then to the children, one by one, were led up to the sanctuary, where he laid his hands on them, and after the children, the men and women in the audience who were able to walk. Wide Variety of Cases. Victims of nearly every kind of known disease were there: Blind children, blind soldiers from Pearson Hall, tubercular patients on stretchers, children with tubercular hips, paralytic cases of all kinds, and deaf men and women by scores.

Then W. Bro. McClung took charge of a program in which lively after-dinner orations, apt anecdotes and songs brought the evening to a most pleasant and profitable close.

In his response to the formal toast, "The Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge Officers," D.D.G.M. Symons simply sustained the high reputation he had previously won throughout the district as an effective post-prandial speaker and disseminator of Masonic inspiration.

The toast to the "Visiting Brethren," found eloquent and witty exponents in R. W. Bro. H. P. Ketcheson, Bellefille and W. Bro. Clem.

Ketcheson and Wright of Frankford, Frankford. The D.D.G.M. then proposed a toast to "Trent Lodge" and W. Bro. McClung, Little and Potts made happy replies.

Eminent Scientists Visit Belleville

Final arrangements for the meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers in Belleville on Dominion Day are being made, and it is assured that at least 150 will arrive on the special train on the evening of June 30th.

Among the members of the Institute who will be in Belleville are many of the leading Chemical Engineers of the United States, including Dr. Takamine from Japan, who is considered an authority on the manufacture of synthetic persulfate; Prof. Charles Baskerville of the University of New York, who has made a special study of the rare earth metals, Mr. A. H. Hooker, the inventor of the Hooker Electrolytic Process; Dr. J. C. Olson of the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute; Dr. F. W. Freilichs of St. Louis, Mo.; Prof. W. L. Badger of the University of Michigan; Mr. Earl Durfee, of the Continental Sugar Co. of Toledo, Ohio; Dr. B. F. Haanel, Director Bureau of Mines, Ottawa.

An inspection of some of the chemical industrial works in Hastings County will be made and it is expected that at least fifty motor cars will be in line for the tour which has been arranged.

On Saturday afternoon Peterboro plays a Central Ontario League game at Victoria Park Cobourg. Peterboro, Oshawa and Belleville have a slight edge on the other teams in the league standing so far, and Cobourg with two losses and one win, is fourth in the standing.

Men are going through the country purchasing hay, basing it on the premises and shipping to outside points. For weeks farmers around Port Hope have been drawing in baled hay and loading it in cars on Barrett's siding.

That part of the river, between Rockport and Piddler's Elbow, is now known as the Canadian Palisades. The shore line is closely followed by the many motor boats of the jittney fleet, as the scenic beauty is acknowledged as the best on the St. Lawrence.

Two prominent Chinamen of Victoria, B.C., Prof. C. K. Wong and Mr. Mar Chan, were in Kingston this week in the interests of the Chinese college at Shenking city, China. Tuesday evening they addressed a large number of the Chinese of that city in the latter's club rooms at 30 Montreal street.

There was a time of waiting for further light, but I trusted faithfully for it. "One night about the middle of March last, I was feeling stronger than usual and felt as though I could get up. I continued to get stronger and by the first of May the pains in my back, from which I had suffered for twenty-one years had almost gone.

At the Sunday School anniversary services held in Bowmanville Sunday and Monday Miss Jessie Tufts, of this City, took part in Monday evening's programme and the Bowmanville Statesman has this to say of her accomplishments: The entertainer for the evening was Mrs. Jessie Tufts, Teacher of Education, Albert College, Belleville. This was her first appearance here about and we have every reason to believe it will not by any means be the last.

A Lake of Soda

There is a lake in British East Africa, Lake Magado, that is famous for its vast deposits of soda. Until within recent years few people knew of this lake, for it lies in the midst of a barren and waterless waste; but the railway that was started some time ago by an English company to transport the soda to the coast is now finished, thus opening a way to this curious natural phenomenon.

Ordinarily the lake looks as if it were frozen and covered with a coating of snow partially thawed and then frozen again. The temperature gives the lie to this appearance of roughened ice, for the heat is extreme, and at midday almost unbearable. The soda burns one's feet, even through his shoes, and the sharp frosty spikes will pierce any except the thickest sole.

According to the report of the inspector during the year 1919, there were 101 teachers employed. Of these 95 were women and 6 men; forty-one of these came from out of the inspectorate. Of these teachers, forty held first or second class certificates, twenty-five third class, twelve district certificates and twenty-four temporary certificates.

Dealing with the salaries paid, Mr. Truscott states that second class teachers received as high as $800 a year; first class $625; or an average for this class of $575. This is an increase of $27 over 1918. The average paid to second class teachers was $664, or an increase of $30. The average for third class teachers was $553, or an increase of $27.

It is true that there has been some increase, but the salaries now paid are not sufficient to meet the high cost of living is what the teachers say.

Seeking information regarding steps to be taken to locate her only son, John, missing from his boarding house in Detroit, Mich., for the last six weeks, Mrs. John Bare, of Cardinal, was in Ogdensburg Tuesday. Bare left Cardinal last fall and secured employment in the Hupmobile works in Detroit. Six weeks ago, according to word received from his landlady, Mrs. Ethel Geunwaldt, 862 Spingle avenue, he went to Duluth to witness boat races and has not returned. The Detroit police are investigating.

Unless the teachers in the schools of the County of Frontenac are paid more money, it will only be a short time until many schools are without a teacher, is the general opinion of those who have studied the situation carefully.

S. A. Truscott, school inspector, for Frontenac South, in making his report to the County Council, makes it clear that if more money is not paid, conditions may become serious. He claims that on account of the small sums paid, many young men and women who figured on going through for school teachers have decided to follow a different profession in which they can make a living wage.

After coaling up the tug pulled the barge off, and they continued on their way east.

Miss Lily Guess, of Sydenham, who for twenty-one years was confined to her bed, walked to the door on Tuesday afternoon with a Whig reporter who went to the village to interview her. Although her step was somewhat slow, that was certainly to be expected as one considers that for all these years her feet had never touched the floor.

When asked to what she attributed her recovery she stated that she did not think it was due to an operation which she underwent in the Kingston General Hospital about four years ago; but it was God's will that she should get up from her bed and walk. VATICAN'S CONCILIATORY POLICY

A series of events recently have brought religion to the forefront in European policies. The canonization of Joan of Arc marked the end of a conflict which for more than thirty years had embittered relations between France and the Vatican. France's exile of the Jesuits and other orders, arrest and expulsion of the Vatican's envoy, and seizure of church property appears to have been forgiven and a new era of friendly relations has begun. Differences between Spain and Italy have been put on the way towards adjustment by the Vatican's decision that it will no longer object to rulers and others who call on it to pay similar visits to the King of Italy. The King of Spain, who has long refused to go to the Vatican because of this rule, will now make his call. The Italian king, who long has been compelled to hold the Catholics at a distance because of the attitude of the Pope, is now able to give them a larger voice in his Government and rely on them as against the Bolsheviks and the anarchists who are trying to turn him out. In Austria, Hungary and Southern Germany the Catholics are working in co-operation with the French toward the formation of a federation of Danube states to take the place of the old Austrian Empire. Poland and Czechoslovakia, which had come almost to war over the Tscheng coal fields, have been prevailed upon to let France and the Catholic king of the Belgians arbitrate their differences instead of relying on the council of the League of Nations. Finally the Pope has shown a lively interest in the troubles of Ireland, and the London Government has taken the remarkable step of sending Mr. Balfour to Rome to make clear to the Vatican what is the cabinet's attitude in regard to the Irish.

A report made by a Commission of scientists and clinicians for the German Government in 1919 contains some interesting conclusions on temperance, which are the subject of an interesting article in The Journal of the American Medical Association. The Commission found that as a result of restricted drinking in Germany there was an extraordinary decrease of chronic alcoholism and the mental disorders accompanying it. Maladies of the body were also greatly reduced. The German Commission did not consider that the use of morphine and cocaine had any connection with the restrictions on drinking. This is a conclusion of importance, for some defenders of alcohol have claimed that prohibition has promoted the use of drugs, a view which has no definite medical authority.

It is reported that the reason the Republican convention at Chicago agreed on a compromise candidate was fear of the effect of the revelations regarding the large sums spent to secure the selection of Wood or Lowden. Gen. Wood professed innocence of the money, or its sources which were being used to forward his campaign, but this seems to have aroused the skepticism of even old campaigners. As for Governor Lowden it was shown that he had contributed $379,000 of expenditures on his behalf amounting to $415,000 which did not show an advertising account or other expenses of the usual kind. Some excitement was evidently caused when Mayor Thompson of Chicago threatened to attack Lowden's campaign expenses and switched the whole city delegation.

The Ontario Historical Society, which has been meeting at Owen Sound this year, is an organization that is doing valuable work in conserving the earlier record of this province. Under the able leadership of Dr. George H. Locke, public librarian of Toronto, the society has closed an active year and the programme that was presented at Owen Sound will probably add another to the growing number of county historical societies that are affiliated with the provincial body.

The Ontario Historical Society has published more than a dozen volumes of papers and proceedings, placing in permanent form records that would otherwise have been in danger of disappearing. The publications of the county societies, which take their stimulus in part from the central body, now make up a small library of Ontario historical material that grows increasingly valuable. The London and Middlesex Historical Society has published ten numbers of its proceedings and thus brought together the earlier story of London in a way that will be of constant interest and value to all who take pride in the city.

It is the practice of the Ontario Historical Society to meet in alternate years in Western Ontario. It is some years now since the society met in London and if two years hence the Western University had its main building erected it would be in order to have the Ontario Historical Society meet at the University. London and Western University would have much in the way of attraction for the society and it would fittingly inaugurate the work of the history faculty in their new quarters.—London Advertiser.

With somewhat alarming frequency the fearful evil of the lynch law is making its appearance in the Northern States of the Republic. Three negroes, charged with an offence against a young woman, were lynched almost within the shadow of the police station at Duluth last week, and the memory of similar happenings at Chicago, St. Louis and even in Washington itself has not yet passed. All of these outrages are probably connected more or less with the migration of colored folks from the South that began during the war and that is still in full swing as a result of the demand for labor in the Northern cities and particularly in certain industries. Race usually enters into a lynching in the United States, and it would appear to have been the chief influence at Duluth, as it was at Chicago and in Washington last summer.

While the Canadian Navy League is urging the provision of training for naval officers in Great Britain the Naval authorities are busy devising schemes to induce officers to retire from the service. One step towards the reduction of the list has been to offer parents an opportunity withdrawing their cadet sons with a gratuity, in order that they may train before it is too late for another profession. Those who have reached the rank of lieutenant and Lieutenant Commander are also to receive special encouragement to retire, and the senior ranks are to be given special retired pay.

The British Navy estimates for the current year provide for 136,000 officers and men and an expenditure of 84 million pounds. As this is a reduction of 73 millions from the preceding estimates it would indicate that the Admiralty has taken to heart the call for national economy more than some other Government departments.

ON FARNHAM ROAD

The level fields of Farnham road are mummured with trees,
 I hear the gray horse stamp a hoof and snuffle in the bin,
 The birches gleam like silver rods all tremulous with leaves;
 The little airs that come and go are very pale and thin
 Upon the path to Farnham town,
 The russet path to Farnham town;
 For autumn's in the shadows and night is flowing in,
 And I can see the candle gleam beyond the dreaming spire,
 Putting its rosy fingers out from many a window blind,
 And in my heart I find the cheer of many a cottage fire,
 Striding along the Farnham path with darkness close behind;
 The prattling paths to Farnham town
 Winding a-down to Farnham town,
 Echoing little laughter through the mazes of the mind,
 Strong from the corners of the world we ride the driving reel,
 And wide-eyed greet the stranger roads in places overseas,
 But the pretty path to Farnham town is soft against the heel,
 And the pretty path to Farnham town is very dear to me;
 The path that trips to Farnham town
 Dancing a-down to Farnham town
 To the music of the wheat field and the murmur of the tree,
 Oh, sweet the walling white sea-waves that seek the shores of home,
 And land the granite roads of trade with many a noisy cart,
 Yet I shall hear the Farnham path wherever I may roam,
 Above the tumult of the wave, the teeming of the mart;
 The dear we path to Farnham town
 Singing a-down to Farnham town
 The gentle path to Farnham town that winds about the heart!

OTHER EDITORS' OPINIONS

OBSERVING THE SABBATH

It was good to hear Bishop Fallon impressing the value of the Ten Commandments as the soundest basis in settling the basis of reconstruction, and it was all the more important to hear them brought forward, because it is to be feared that in these days we are getting very far indeed from either observing or remembering some of the laws that were laid down on Mount Sinai for the government of mankind for all generations.

One has only to look about one to see that on all sides very little attention is being paid to at least some of these grand and divine rules for human guidance. Take the third commandment, for instance: How many people today are observing the commandment to keep the Sabbath holy in its entirety? The very Sunday that his lordship advocated the observance of these laws so impressively, what did Observer run across with no effort of his own, but just in the ordinary course of going to and from church. Early in the morning one man was observed at work in his garden, wedding and planting. Not far off was a man wheeling in sand—probably he was at work putting down a cement floor, that's what it looked like. Further along there were several lines of washing out, so that the housekeeper must have been doing the family washing on the Christian Sabbath. It is not at all strange nowadays to see workmen going home with blackened hands and face, so that it is apparent that labor does not always pause on the Lord's day, as it used to do. It isn't necessary to say anything to draw attention to the hundreds of pleasure-seekers on Sunday, who start out early in the morning, turning their backs on the house of God, to have a day's outing, which would not be so bad if it was only once in a while, but the fact is that it is repeated Sunday after Sunday, so that the Lord's day is never holy day to them, but simply a day of pleasure and merry-making. Nor need one say anything about the golfers who use the Sabbath for their recreation that they could very well confine to the six days of the week, nor of the young men who get away to some quiet place and indulge in a game of ball. They are but emulating others.

Later on in the evening of last Sunday I was coming home from church and in at least one home it was easy to see from the raised blinds on the windows that the family were having a game of cards, an occupation which it is whispered more than one Guelph home spends a great deal of Sunday doing. True, there may be no harm in a game of cards, but is it a Sunday occupation? Is it keeping the Lord's day holy as He would wish it to be kept? I am no crazy Sabbatarian, but one cannot help thinking that there is another awakening coming if this sort of looseness continues, for God will not tolerate this sort of denial of Him always, and when He does punish it will be a fearful punishment.

The pulpit has a great mission to perform in this respect, and it should not be afraid to speak out strongly. The worst of it is that the chief offenders are never there to hear what is said and have the facts brought home to them, so I often wonder what the end of it all is going to be. Is a fate such as overcame ancient Rome, Nineveh, Sodom and Gomorrah to be ours? We continue to pursue our own inclinations and refuse to follow the ways set by the Lord Almighty? It isn't enough to obey the commandments covering our relations to our fellow men, if we disregard those which concern and refer to our duty to God.—Guelph Herald.

LACK OF RESPECT

No one who has had any proper bringing up can fail to notice the lack of respect which so often prevails both in private and public. Whenever there is anything of a public character, particularly in this noticeable. Let the National Anthem or Canada's national song be played and you will notice in the case of probably fifty per cent. of those assembled at any gathering, an indifference or actual disrespect that is most marked, and you will only need to attend the next Decoration Day at the Guelph or any other cemetery to see how this apparently habitual indifference to sacred things predominates amongst a large section of those assembled. Why people of this character attend such affairs is hard to say.

What is it that has brought about this deplorable evidence of ill-breeding? It has reached a stage where it is fitting that the question of responsibility should be discussed. Is it lack of proper training in the school too? It ought to be the first half-baked manhood, loose in the world? If the former, would it not be possible to put conduct and morals at the very top of the public school curriculum—and the high school too? It ought to be the first purpose of education to refine the character, bring out that which is good and eliminate that which is bad. An educated community is a respectful community, and youth's and men who can look on at impressive functions with a vapid stare and are apparently total indifferent when their national sense is being appealed to are certainly not educated in the real sense of the word.—Guelph Herald.

Talk of the Town and of the Country

There is a great programme of baseball for Peterboro fans on July 1st and lovers of the game will not have to do any worrying about how to spend Dominion Day.

In the morning at Riverside Park the Petes will clash with Belleville in the biggest Central League game of the season, the fixture upon which the championship of the League practically depends. The Petes will have to beat Freddy Goyer and company on this occasion or give up all hope of the honours, for Belleville has the edge on them by winning the first game and a Peterboro victory is necessary on July 1st to ensure a tie.

In the afternoon the famous Hill-crests leaders of the Toronto Western City League, winners of the Ontario title two years ago and one of the strongest teams this year will meet the Petes at Riverside Park. Cannon ball Scott who couldn't beat the Petes in three tries last year pitching for Lindsay and Port Hope will try to turn the trick on this occasion with his old outfit the Hill-crests. The fans will thus have the unique opportunity of seeing Peterboro in action against two Ontario championship winners in one day.

The claim of Mrs. Peter A. Brabant, Clayton, N.Y., against the Inland Steamship Company, for the death of her husband, who was drowned from the steamship N. F. Leopold in Lake Michigan, Aug. 5th, 1918, has been satisfactorily adjusted, and a draft received by her. The widow brought suit against the steamship company on the grounds of negligence.

"We never throw a newspaper away in China, for we think they are too valuable and they are read and re-read, until they are worn out," said Yates M. Wang, young Chinese editor, who has been a visitor to New York, en route to South America. And while he was much too polite to say so, Mr. Wang must have marvelled at the newspaper waste in America.

"My paper," he said, "the Shun Pao of Shanghai, for instance, is 90 cents per month, and as soon as it is published it goes to the first subscriber, who reads it as quickly as possible. He then returns it to the newsdealer, who sends it to the next customer, who pays a little less, and so on it goes down the line. Thus, while the actual circulation is 90,000 the Shun Pao is read by many thousands more throughout China, who are not on record as subscribers."

Mr. Wang's paper, which will soon reach the half-century mark, is the oldest and largest daily published in China. According to Mr. Wang, the editor of a newspaper in his country is a great power in the community, in fact, such a power that it is the custom, after 5 years of newspaper work, to call him to a government position. The present editor, L. Chen, however, has no political aspirations and has been with the paper over seventeen years.

In the 33 years since he opened his eyes to the light of day in Sao-Chow, Mr. Wang has had a varied newspaper career, serving as editor of the Mung-ho News in 1909, and of the Great Republican in 1911-12. He was late associate professor of literature at the National University of Peking and occupied the same position on the faculty of the Chinese Government College. In addition to his newspaper activities, Mr. Wang was for several years attached to the Chinese Legation at Washington, and as a result of his impressions there, and in his travels in America, which have been extensive, he is the author of a book "The United States as Seen by the Chinese." When he came to the United States

Mr. Wang was accompanied by his wife, a young Chinese girl, who died in the United States during the influenza epidemic.

Rev. J. R. Routledge, former pastor of the Wicklow and Colborne Baptist churches, who went overseas with the 139th (Northumberland) Battalion as a sergeant, and who has since his discharge been supplying work in the Pittsburgh, Pa., Baptist Association, has accepted an unanimous call to the pastorate of the Midway Baptist Church, Washington county, Pa.

Every veil and wasteful habit draws upon our strength and resources without making any proper return. On the other hand, every task faithfully borne, every responsibility manfully borne in the path of duty, steadies us, like well-bestowed ballast. There are loads that help as well as loads that hinder. These we should cheerfully take up, and those resolutely cast off. Friendship rings truest in adversity.

Masonic Brethren Say Farewell to Dr. Scott

Eureka Lodge Paid Tribute to Departing Chaplain—Deputy Grand Master Present.

At the meeting of Eureka Lodge No. 283 A.F. & A.M. last night, the brethren joined at the "Fourth" degree in expressing regret at the removal from the city and from his office in the lodge, Rev. Bro. Dr. C. T. Scott. For the past two years Dr. Scott has been filling the office of chaplain and during the present year that of district chaplain. The toast to Dr. Scott was fittingly proposed by his life-long friend, Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, principal of Albert College. Dr. Scott and Dr. Baker grew up as boys together in the same town and they were initiated into Eureka lodge on the same night.

Dr. Scott received a rousing cheer when he arose to respond. He modestly disclaimed being worthy of all the kind sentiment that had been expressed in regard to himself. His association with Masons had been to him a great satisfaction and his only regret was that he had not been a more frequent attendant at the meetings. He was going to a different field of labor at Toronto but Belleville would always have a foremost place in his affections.

R. W. Bro. Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton deputy grand master was present, and, in response to the toast, "The Visiting Brethren" that was eloquently proposed by R. W. Bro. C. J. Symons, D.D.G.M., Col. Ponton gave in such chaste and beautiful language as only he can employ, a splendid tribute to Dr. Scott.

R. W. Bro. F. Davey Diamond and W. Bro. R. McCrudden also expressed their appreciation of the work and influence of Dr. Scott. During the evening Bro. Harry Mackay sang most expressively, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" and was compelled to respond to a vigorous demand for an encore.

The gathering closed with the singing of a verse of "Blest be the Tie that Binds" and "Auld Lang Syne."

The possibilities of conversation and reforestation are indicated by pine timber now being cut in the Ottawa Valley district. One of the busiest lumbermen in the valley states that much of the present cut is second growth timber, and some of it is two feet in diameter. Questioned as to the time elapsed since first cut, he said it was sixty or seventy years ago. This timber has grown without any assistance or planting and gives an idea what can be expected if orderly reforestation is carried out.

Word was received in Kingston on Monday afternoon to the effect that Sapper W. D. Smith, husband of the late Mrs. Gladys Pollitt Smith, who died at her mother's home, Charles street of that city, on May 28th, was a prisoner of war in Russia. According to the contents of the letter, Sapper Smith was captured by the Russian revolutionary party about fifteen months ago and had been kept a prisoner of war since that time. He was suffering great hardship on account of lack of food and clothing.

Sapper Smith is not aware of the death of his wife. In his letter he enquires as to the condition of his wife and child. The letter was written from Irkutsk on April 20th. Sapper Smith was evidently able to get the letter into the hands of an officer who was coming to Canada as it was posted from Vancouver, B.C.

Sapper Smith enlisted in Canada in 1916 with the 5th Company, Canadian Engineers, went to Brockville and later to Ottawa, where he transferred to the Canadian Signalers, Expeditionary Force where he remained with that unit until it was withdrawn. He then transferred to the British Railroad Mission, with which he was serving when captured with the rest of the train by Bolshevik troops.

Of the half million dollar issue of debentures, the sale of which is approved by the Finance committee, $260,000 is for the Hunter street bridge and $240,000 for the Prince of Wales' Public school. This is the biggest block of debentures ever offered the market by that city. The next largest issued, according to City Treasurer Adams, of Peterboro, was the $230,000 debentures with which the waterworks were purchased by the municipality eighteen years ago. The bridge and school debentures for a thirty year term yield 6.29 per cent as compared with 6.20 per cent borne by the Ontario Government's ten year bonds issued a few weeks ago to the amount of three million dollars.

Tuesday morning the discovery was made that some party had entered the car and pilfered 6 bags. The sugar was apparently loaded in an automobile, or truck. Mellor, late of "The Guards," and said to be the son of Sir John Mellor, Bart., of London, and that no inducement was sufficiently strong to compel her to stick to her original intention. Immigration officials intervened, and after numerous conferences, decided that the only solution was to order the deportation of Miss Butler. This did not suit Capt. Kitchen, who thereupon paid the return passage of his former fiancée, and the boat proceeded to New York, where it is understood Capt. Mellor proposes to stage another attempt to wed the lady with the aid, he intimates, of the British Ambassador.

A fine old Rugieri violin on which Johann Strauss, the waltz king played in Vienna, when that city was the gayest in Europe, was sold recently to provide food for the population there. Vienna now is a city of want and starvation.

Miss Andrea Proudfoot, daughter of a Chicago attorney, heard of the great need in the capital where she had spent most of her childhood and parted with the dainty Italian model. The proceeds of the sale were turned over to the Vienna relief committee. The Rugieri was brought to Austria from Italy more than a century ago and came into the possession of Frantz Wendlik, concert master in the court of Prince Leichenstein in Vienna. It was in the extravagant and pleasure-loving period following Napoleon's regime, and Leichenstein was the gayest court in Europe. The courtiers danced to the music of Johann Strauss' new waltzes and Strauss himself played with the court orchestra at times, using the Rugieri violin.

The frequent rains have caused a luxuriant growth of green throughout the country, and weeds as well as useful plants are standing sturdy and strong. The cultivator and the hoe will soon be called into requisition, and the rust they have accumulated in times of idleness will soon be erased.

THE WILD ROSE.
Far from the city's dust and din,
Far from the busy, noisy street,
Where wild June roses bloom again
We sense a subtle fragrance sweet.

They bloom again at His behest,
And teach the lesson, year by year,
That lowly duties are the best.

EMINENT NEW YORK EXPERT SUPPORTS HYDRO RADIALS

Mr. W. S. Murray Makes Report to Hydro Power Commission

COMPLETE ENDORSATION Toronto-Hamilton Service Contrasted With That Between Washington and Baltimore

WHO IS MR. MURRAY? Chairman Super-Power Committee, U.S. Engineering Council. Engineer who electrified the New York, New Haven and Hartford. Past President and Fellow American Institute Electrical Engineers. Author of several technical books and of important magazine articles. One of the heads of his profession.

In the opinion of one of the most eminent consulting engineers in the United States, Mr. W. S. Murray of New York, the Hydro-Electric Power Commission is fully justified in urging the immediate acquisition from the Federal Government of the Toronto & Eastern Railway, the Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto Railway, and the Toronto Suburban.

Mr. Murray came to Toronto some weeks ago at the invitation of the Commission. He was given access to all the plans for construction and operation prepared by the "Hydro" and he inspected a large portion of the plant to be served, and checked in detail the Commission's estimates of capital cost and of probable revenue. In this part of the work he had the co-operation of Mr. J. K. Penderford, Vice-President of the Connecticut Company of New Haven.

The finding which has just been published, is a complete vindication of the position taken by the Commission with respect to the railway projects in question. Mr. Murray, with the assistance of Mr. Penderford, reports that the estimates of the "Hydro" engineers are careful and conservative. He finds the proposed lines admirably located, and does not believe that any charge of duplication with respect to existing railways can be made against them. Then follows this paragraph:—

"I consider it most important, however, that the Commission proceed with the development of its full plans regarding financing as well as construction in order that it may be in a position to acquire such existing radials and property as may be economically purchased, and which have not been parts of the completed systems."

Mr. Murray comments on the great advantage of the proposed radial entrance to Toronto by a right-of-way over the Harbor Commission's property, since a high-speed schedule can be maintained all the way to the foot of Yonge Street. Thus there may be a sharp demarcation between interurban traffic and the ordinary car service through the city streets. Reports elsewhere have shown the desirability of such demarcation.

Then the report approaches the question of "duplication," first by showing the distinctness between the equipment for local and for through traffic. Here he quotes utterances by Mr. D. B. Hanna and other steam railway officials and counsel, admitting that suburban service is the natural duty of radial electric lines.

A review of the actual railway conditions between Toronto and Hamilton is made—a two-track railway line, three-quarters of a mile from the center of population on the lake shore, with an infrequent service; and a slow-time, ordinary highway electric line, which runs from Port Credit to Sunnyside. This "lay-out" is to serve an intermediate population of 25,000, and a total population of 610,000.

Mr. Murray then cites the case of Washington and Baltimore, forty miles apart. The two cities, with a total population of 1,000,000, are connected by the four-track line of the Pennsylvania System, and the double-track of the Baltimore & Ohio. On these steam roads trains are fast and frequent. In addition there is a double-track electric road, running north of Baltimore and south of Washington, but against that, Mr. Murray sets another important fact; that only two tracks are receiving at the Niagara frontier all the Canadian traffic of seven or eight American railways, while at Hamilton the Western traffic also comes from the West.

These and other reasons clearly set forth, Mr. Murray reaches the conclusion that the district Hydro Radials are planned to serve is being throttled for lack of adequate and modern transportation. Considering also the eagerness of the people affected to get the service, Mr. Murray believes that the expenditure necessary for acquiring the Toronto and Eastern and other lines mentioned is justified, even at present prices. He has revised the figures of the Commission, and even after allowing for $850,000 beyond the estimate for equipment, he still believes that the proposed purchase will be economically feasible.

UNCOMMON HONESTY. Something That is Not Often Found Nowadays.

In these days of profiteering, price raising and claims of an absence of business propriety on the part of many of the selling public, a little story of the other kind may point a moral.

Eighteen years ago a little, old and grey-haired Irish lady walked into the office of Mr. Sheriff Hall, at the Courthouse in Peterboro, and said: "Mr. Hall, I'm Mrs. Michael Hennessey, of Druro."

The sheriff said: "That's a matter of forty-two to forty-five years ago. Surely there's nothing in those books that would interest you or me at this date." "Sure it's meself as knows that of which I'm speakin'. Fetch the book."

Going to the old vault, the sheriff investigated. There he has kept the books of his father's business for many years. Why, he could hardly tell. His father, in the early forties, opened business as a general merchant, afterwards engaged in the manufacture of leather, was appointed to public office, resigned and was elected local representative to the Upper Canada House of Assembly. At the close of his term he was appointed sheriff, his son being his successor.

Mr. Hall found the book corresponding with the year indicated. "The account is here, Mrs. Hennessey, but it is balanced off all right in my father's own handwriting. Give yourself no further concern."

She protested the old lady, "Look again, Mr. Hall, be careful and see if there be not some small balance." The sheriff added up the column of figures (it was in old pounds, shillings and pence) and presently said that there seemed to be a balance of three shillings, but the account was marked settled at the time when his father went out of business.

Said the old lady, "Indade, 'tis as I would expect, for I've had it in mind too long to be mistaken in it. Now I'll tell you all the circumstances."

"We always traded at y'r father's store, me and my husband. And one day me husband brought in a load of grain an' sold it for twenty pounds, and took the money to y'r father thinkin' it would square the account. But 'twas not so, entirely, for I had unbeknownst to him gotten a few things, an' a balance of three shillings."

"Said my husband, 'I will presently bring to you, Mr. Hall, that three shillings.' But, int said y'r father, 'what is three shillings between old friends and man and customer?' Think no more of it. 'Tis settled, so it is."

"But, Mr. Hall," said my husband, 'I will pay my honest debts.' And y'r father said, right off, to please the old man, 'any time you have three shillings to spare, Mr. Hennessey, you may, if you care so to do, bring it in.' And they parted good friends as always. D'ye know, from that day to the day my husband died, what with the burnin' down of the barn, an' the loss of many cattle, and the mendin' of the fences, an' another, we never really knew the day that we had three shillings to spare. An' after me husband's death good man, a diligent provider, I had to manage things as best I might, I never seemed to have three shillings that I could spare. But I'd not forgotten it. But now, praise be, my son, who lives in Michigan, writes that his wife is frail, and he asks will I come and live with them and help take care of the children an' he sends fifty dollars for my expenses, and I could not go away and live in a strange land, knowin' that three shillings was unpaid. Here, take the money, give me a receipt."

And the sheriff, moved beyond measure, wrote the receipt, thanked the caller, saw her to the door, gravely shook hands, wished her a safe journey and returning to his desk dropped seventy-five cents into a corner of a drawer, where it reposed until handed to the Children's Aid Society, as being too sacred for other uses.

Tuxis Boys AND TRAIL RANGERS

Our local athletic meet for Trail Rangers and Tuxis Boys was held the last week of April. Every boy in each group was supposed to compete and the group having the highest average is decided the winners. The results for the three city groups was John St. Trail Rangers, 29.2. This average is higher than any group in the provinces of Quebec, British Columbia and Alberta and is only a few points below the highest in Nova Scotia. When we consider that this group has only been following the C.S.E.T. program for a few months, the results are most gratifying. The four groups that have higher averages than our boys, can look for our dust next season. The average for Hamilton Bulldogs was 48.8. This average would indicate that they held their meet on the mountain.

The Y.M.C.A. Tuxis group had an average of 29.4. Bridge St. Tuxis boys, 29.0, both of these groups had a higher average than any group in Nova Scotia or British Columbia and are within a few points of Manitoba and Alberta. With three new groups coming along for next year, which will mean more competition and higher averages, this will mean they will have to get some new blood in New Brunswick and there won't be any echoes in "Echo Bay" next spring and there will be a bunch of Trallars in Quebec.

Tuxis Boys, Trail Rangers, Boy Scouts, Employed Boys and Sunday School Classes that are not organized into groups remember the dates of the Belleville Boys' Camp at Madoc, first period, July 12th to 25th, second period, July 26, 27th, third period, August 9th to 21st. Cost for any two-week period, $6.00. Come and have an outing with a real bunch of boys, under competent leadership. The committee could use a few more leaders. If you would like to spend a week in this splendid work of helping the boys, communicate with the secretary of the Advisory Committee, A. Buchanan, Y.M.C.A.

CANADIAN BOYS IN NATIONAL WIDE ATHLETIC MEETS

Complete results have just been compiled and announced for the C.S.E.T. National Athletic Meets in which boys from all parts of Canada competed during the last week in April. As these athletic meets were all held in the local communities the results had to be sent in to a central committee by which the awards were made. Over three thousand boys competed in the five events which were held in two sections, for Trail Rangers, boys 12 to 14 years of age and for Tuxis Boys, from 15 to 17 years.

The Dominion championship for the Trail Rangers goes to the "Bulldogs," of Charlton Methodist Church, Hamilton, Ontario, while the Methodist Tuxis Square from Hampton, N.B., carries off the honors for the Tuxis Boys.

The list of winners is as follows: Trail Rangers champions in the Dominion: 1st, Bulldogs, Hamilton, 44.8; 2nd, Pottawatamies, Winnipeg, 37.4; 3rd, Rothessay Pioneers, St. John, 34.4.

Two Claims of Healing From Hickson Ministrations

That the visit of James Moore Hickson, faith healer, was inspired by a Toronto lady who had benefited from his ministrations, was made known today.

Mrs. Lawrence Bogert, niece of the Rev. R. J. Moore, rector of St. George's Church, was suffering from a cataract. Journeying to New York a few months ago she underwent the laying on of hands during one of Mr. Hickson's missions, and her sight is now perfectly restored. Mrs. Bogert, on returning, informed her uncle, who was greatly impressed. So convinced was Mrs. Bogert herself of the effectiveness of her cure that, to a large degree, she has been responsible for Mr. Hickson's visit.

Given Power to Walk.

Yesterday afternoon during a special service conducted at St. Mark's Church, Parkdale, while the congregation were waiting for the appearance of Mr. Hickson, a lady was carried in by her brother and friend. Her lower limbs were stiff and she was unable to take a step. She was placed in a front seat.

An eye-witness assures The Telegram that when the faith healer laid his hands upon her, she straightened up and in a moment stood upon her feet. Then, slightly leaning upon her brother-in-law's arm, she walked out.

"Oh, see what the Lord has done for me," exclaimed the invalid. The brother-in-law said, "It was a case of rheumatism of the joints, and for three years my sister-in-law has not been able to walk. She was ill some time before the rheumatism affected the muscles of her jaw, but doctor's treatment had so far helped her that she was able to talk. The family had come to the city from Palmerston, Ontario."

Will Investigate Later

To obtain any definite information from any of the clergy associated with the mission is an impossibility. With the hundreds of patients on their hands, they are too busy to issue any statement. Rev. C. E. B. Doherty, who is in charge of the mission, said that his knowledge of no case of instantaneous healing, nor had he heard anyone had benefited. "As soon as this is over, we are going to follow up the cases very carefully," he said, "but at present, as you see we are all too rushed to make any investigations and I would not care to pay any attention to rumors I have heard."

"We are not looking for instantaneous cures. Make that clear to the public," said another clergyman. Repetition of Yesterday.

The crowds at St. James' today were as large as ever. The cripples, with dragging feet, felt their way cautiously out of the edifice, while many were carried to their wheel chairs. As Mr. Hickson has explained, the healing is a gradual process, and it is apparently too soon to look for results. Yesterday one man, who occasionally attended Pearson Hall for treatment of his eyes, claimed that his sight had been so much improved that he could see the sidewalk when he came out. The Pearson Hall officials, however, will say little about the matter, one saying that the man claimed his sight was improved, but was not certain, and another that the story was "absurd."

Many From Outside Points. A number of invalids from outside places have come to the city hoping to be cured. One lame woman, accompanied by her husband, tried unsuccessfully to enter St. James' Cathedral yesterday. They had missed Mr. Hickson when he went to St. Louis, and had tried again to see him when he was in Chicago. One Newfoundland man who was suffering from an advanced stage of tuberculosis, immediately after receiving the laying on of hands, started on his homeward journey.

Thank Offering Taken. It was announced at St. James' that Mr. Hickson is not being paid for his services, as they are a "labor of love." Boxes, however, has been placed at the door for a "thank offering" and as the invalids passed out their friends usually inserted a bill in the box.
