DEARTH OF NECESSARIES OF LIFE IN CONSTANTINOPLE IS VERY ALARMING

Sugar Five Shillings, and Coffee Six Shillings, a Pound—No Chocolate, Kerosene, Cheese, Rice, or Beef—New Balkan Express Impresses and Alarms the Turks—Their Motto Now is "On to Egypt."

By Special Wire to the Courier.
London, Jan. 27.—Under the heading "Starving Constantinople" the Daily Mail's correspondent who is just returned from a trip through the Balkans on the new Balkan Express, describes the conditions in the Turkish capital.

"In Constantinople," says the correspondent, "one realizes the war pressure more than in any great capital in the war zone. Had been here a few months ago, but today things are much worse. The dearth of the necessities of life is now of an alarming nature. The condition of affairs approaches famine. The price of sugar is five shillings a pound and coffee is six shillings a pound."

CIGARETTES VERY DEAR.
"Cigarettes are forty per cent dearer, which is a great hardship to the Turks, who smoke almost constantly. There is no chocolate, kerosene, cheese, rice, or beef in the city. Mutton is forty per cent dearer, and very scarce. Fish is plentiful. The electric and street car systems have virtually ceased."

NEW BALKAN EXPRESS.
The correspondent declares that the new Balkan express is the handsomest and finest train in the world.

"It impresses and alarms the Turks," the correspondent continues, "as proof of German efficiency. It impresses and delights the Germans, Austrians, Hungarians and Bulgarians, who see it twice weekly on its journey."

GERMAN "KULTUR" IN EAST.
The correspondent interviewed Hail Bey, president of the council and Enver Pasha, minister of war. Hail Bey paid an enthusiastic tribute to the work the Germans are doing in the Near East. "We Turks," Hail Bey is quoted as saying, "need the German business initiative. Look at what Germany is doing for Roumania which is now rich and prosperous and full of business enterprise as a result of Germany's teachings. So the Germans will help us to become a healthy nation. See what they are doing in Anatolia, where they have 200 officers teaching our farmers modern methods."

"ON TO EGYPT."
Enver Pasha is reported to have said concerning the Gallipoli campaign:

"If the English had only had the courage to rush more ships through the Dardanelles they could have got to Constantinople but their delay enabled us to thoroughly fortify the peninsula. We had our plans all laid for our line of action if the allies occupied Constantinople but their delay pursued the war from them. We knew they would not destroy the city so the result simply would have been an impasse. Now with German help we are ready to strike at Britain through the Suez canal. Our motto is "On to Egypt!"

ZEPP RAIDS COMING

London, Jan. 27.—That the authorities expect a speedy resumption of Zeppelin raids on London and that the danger to which the populace will be exposed on such occasions is greater than ever, is indicated by the publication of a police warning which reads:

"The increase in offensive protection against hostile aircraft recently provided in the Metropolitan district makes it more necessary to draw the public on the occasion of air raids take cover, so as to be sheltered from falling fragments of shells."

SIR SAM HUGHES TELLS ABOUT WORK OF SHELL COMMITTEE

Placed in Canada Orders Amounting to 350 Millions and Had Shipped 22 Million Shells Abroad and Forwarding Over One Million Monthly.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—By an exhaustive account of what was accomplished by the former Imperial Shell Committee from its organization in August, 1914, until the time when it had placed in Canada orders for projectiles to the value of $350,000,000 to England, and was forwarding 1,100,000 others monthly. Major-General Sir Sam Hughes replied in the House yesterday to Opposition attacks upon the body of which Sir Alexander Bannerman was chairman. Sir Sam freely admitted that he was the "father of the Shell Committee," but he also declared that "neither directly nor indirectly had the Militia Department, or he, as Minister of Militia, ever interfered with the letting of contracts or the fixing of prices."

Prices, he said, had been fixed by the British Government. The Shell Committee, he pointed out, had its origin when the British Government requested the Canadian Government to place orders for 200,000 shells in the United States, and, feeling that the work could be done in the Dominion, called a meeting of Canadian manufacturers to get their views. He told what he had done to convince the British authorities that shells could be made in Canada, and of the difficulty experienced in inducing Canadian manufacturers to engage in the business of shell production. From the very outset Canadian firms, although they did not receive large advances like corporations in the United States, made the projectiles at a lower price than did the companies in the neighboring country.

Sir Sam Hughes affirmed that on every order, with two exceptions, Canadian prices for shells were lower than those charged by makers in the United States and even in Great Britain itself. He asserted that no orders were given without an inspection of the plant in which the shells were to be turned out, and he quoted Lord Kitchener's cablegram of April 25 last, thanking "Gen. Hughes, the Canadian Shell Committee and the Canadian manufacturers for the satisfactory delivery of shells."

In short, he asserted the Shell Committee had led the way in prompt deliveries, in the quantity and quality of the output, in prices and in driving force. It had brought about the establishment of a shell industry in Canada which had meant the training of 90,000 mechanics to make munitions for the Empire and its allies. As a result of its work more basic steel of the kind used in projectiles was being made in Canada, zinc was being refined, and copper was to be refined for the first time in the Dominion.

Gen. Hughes replied vigorously to the suggestion that party politicians had played a part in the awarding of contracts for war supplies or in the selection of officers for positions in the overseas forces. Referring to complaints that Ross rifles in the hands of Canadian soldiers had jammed when used for rapid fire at the front, the Minister of Militia read reports showing that this was due to defective British ammunition. He announced that the chamber of the Ross rifle had been slightly enlarged with such good results that a similar improvement had been made in the new Lee-Enfield by the British authorities. Both weapons were now giving perfect satisfaction. Gen. Hughes spoke with characteristic force and good humor and was frequently cheered and applauded.

COUNTY COUNCIL ASKED TO GIVE FIELD KITCHEN MOUNTED REGIMENT AT HAMILTON NEEDS THEM VERY BADLY.

Many Communications of Minor Nature Dealt With.

A short, but very busy session of the County Council was held yesterday in the Court House. It was adjourned at twelve o'clock until today.

Colonel W. Brooks and Capt. Benham of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, Hamilton, were invited to be present this morning. The Colonel made a short, appropriate address, in which he stated the absolute need of five field kitchens for his Regiment. As the C. M. R.'s were largely made up of Brant County men, he thought the Council might deem it wise to make a contribution either for a field kitchen or towards the purchasing of one. This question will be later dealt with.

DAILY MAIL IS VERY BLUNT

North of England Paper Urges an Actual Blockade.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
London, Jan. 27.—The editorial comment on Sir Edward Grey's speech delivered yesterday in the House of Commons on blockade policy varies widely. Newspapers which have been supporting the government such as the Daily Telegraph, the Daily Chronicle, and the Daily News are enthusiastic over the Foreign Minister's "masterly vindication," but the Times, the Morning Post, and the Daily Mail show no signs of relenting in their attacks and repeat their former assertions that the economic pressure on Germany has been ineffective, that far too much leakage has been getting through to Germany and that means for tightening of the economic pressure on Germany must be devised even though neutral countries should suffer.

GOES INTO OPPOSITION.
The Daily Graphic, which heretofore has occupied a middle ground midway between the two groups of newspapers, is not at all satisfied with Sir Edward Grey's attitude.

"Sir Edward Grey's speech," says the newspaper, "is with the gravest disappointment. The country had hoped the government was preparing for a new departure in the treatment of enemy trade. All we learn is that the foreign office is pleased with what it already has done and does not propose to do anything more. Sir Edward Grey acts as if the maintenance of neutral trading is more important than the ending of the war."

The Times says the government's decision not to establish a regular blockade "will be a disappointment to our friends in America and to President Wilson's government."

CUT OFF ENEMY'S FOOD.
"All these official statements as to the difficulty of dealing with the questions under discussion," says the Daily Mail "go to show that Sir Edward Grey is aware that the situation is not what it should be. Neither he nor Lord Lansdowne, in his speech, tell us they are doing their best. What the country demands is that the supply of food materials shall be cut off from the Germans. The harping upon the difficulties by ministers is not a good sign."

"Wars are not won by men whose minds are occupied with such qualms. Wars are won by men who refuse to be bound by judicial niceties—who are determined to stick at nothing to win."

ANSWERED CRITICS.
The Daily Chronicle assumes a different attitude.

"Sir Edward Grey," says the Daily Chronicle, "completed the demolition of the mare's nest and destroyed the mischievous and disgraceful legend that the foreign office was hampering the navy's work. The recent malicious attacks on the foreign office represent a policy of flogging our own nest which will cost us very dearly if it is persisted in."

ADDRESS TO NEUTRAL WORLD
The Daily News says in a similar vein: "Sir Edward Grey's reply to his attackers was final and crushing. The latter part of his speech took the form of a great and impressive address to the neutral world, justifying our blockade by the laws of war and precedents past, and all precedents established by the United States."

"Against the protest of our legitimate exercise of our seapower, Sir Edward Grey set before the neutral world the dark story of German murder and piracy. Will the neutral world see the difference between German murder and commercial inconvenience? We hope the answer will put human life above the calculations of

BRITISH NATIONAL LABOR PARTY WILL OPPOSE THE NEW CONSCRIPTION BILL

By Almost 6 to 1 Vote Passed Resolution Protesting Against Adoption of Conscription in Any Form—Fighting Very Active Along Entire Western Front--Berlin Claims British Reverse in Asia.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
Bristol, Jan. 27.—A resolution protesting in the name of the National Labor party against the adoption of conscription in any form was passed by the Labor Congress by a card vote of 1,796,000, against 219,000.

The resolution follows: "Resolved, that this National Labor party protests emphatically against the adoption of conscription in any form as it is against the spirit of British democracy and full of danger to the liberties of the people."

When the delegates assembled today for the second day's session they found this resolution on their tables and also one on the military service bill which were designed to take the place of the numerous proposals which have been made on this subject. The other resolution placed before congress follows:

"The conference declares its opposition to the military service bill and in the event of its becoming law besides to agitate for its repeal."

ACTIVE IN WEST.
Berlin, Jan. 27.—Reports from France and Flanders say that a favorable turn in the weather has been done effective work against trenches on the western front. Along nearly the whole line the roar of artillery is heard but the heaviest fighting has been in the vicinity of Neuport, to the north of Ypres and in the Argonne.

German patrolling parties brought back word that German artillery had done effective work against trenches of the allies near Neuport. The British artillery, it is said, was less active than that of the Germans. On one of the sections of the front, the British fired 1,700 shrapnel shells, and 700 high explosive shells and about the same number of bombs within a period of 24 hours. The mine explosions mentioned in Tuesday's official bulletin of the German headquarters staff were four in number. The Germans immediately occupied the craters caused by the explosions.

In another section near Neuville, the Germans announced that they captured three successive line of French trenches and held them against eight counter attacks and it is affirmed that these trenches are still in German hands, although the fighting for possession of them has assumed the character of hand to hand encounter. The Germans also claim good progress to the south of Arras through the work of the sappers and miners.

SURROUNDED IN ADEN?
London—From German sources comes the reports that British troops protecting the Suez canal route at its southern end have been attacked by large bodies of Arabs and Turks. The British have been driven from all the territory they held in southwestern Arabia, according to these advices and have suffered extremely heavy losses in the fighting, the figures being given at 15,000 killed and 20,000 wounded.

The implication from the Berlin despatch carrying these reports is that the British army of 20,000 men is now virtually cooped up in Aden, near the entrance to the Red Sea which must be held if the southern approach to the Suez Canal is to be protected.

A situation quite similar to this was reported through German agencies several weeks ago, but then London announced that the British had taken the Suez Canal and that zone.

TWO GERMANS ARRESTED ON AMERICAN TUG AT ST. JOHN

One Admitted He Was Glad He Had Been Arrested and Gave Harrowing Account of How War Had Affected His Family.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
St. John, N.B., Jan. 27.—Herman Fulkandert and William Warraz were taken from St. John to the internment camp at Amherst yesterday. They are Germans who were employed as stewards on the American ocean going tug Ramos, formerly the Tanager, of New York. When it was learned that they were Germans, the officer in charge of the duty arrested them. The tug captain at once objected to the effect that his vessel was an American vessel and the men could not be taken off. It was shown that the Ramos had sailed from Ferdinand to Portland, Me., with barges of hard pine, and at Portland had picked up another barge to be taken to St. John. From here she was to go to Spencer's Island, N.S., so as she had entered at one Canadian port and cleared for another, it was held the men could be taken.

Fulkandert said he was glad to be arrested, and would much sooner remain in prison in Canada until after the war than return to Germany. He said he came from a village in Saxony and his father and three brothers had already been killed. Out of the population of his village every man between eighteen and forty-five years of age had been called for. Warren had little to say except that he felt sure Germany would win. Nothing was found on the men.

NET IMPORTS TO HOLLAND SHOW DECLINE

Dutch Minister of Agriculture Says No Leakage to Germany.

AMERICA ONLY SOURCE OF SUPPLY

Increase of Number of Cattle Caused Jump in Feeding Stuffs.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
The Hague, Jan. 26.—The Dutch minister of agriculture, industry and commerce has authorized the publication through the Associated Press, of the following statement which constitutes the officers' defense of the Netherlands against certain British newspaper accusations that cereals from the United States have been reaching Germany through neutral countries, including Holland, this deduction being made from the large increase in American exports:

OTHER SOURCES CLOSED.
Whereas only 22 per cent of the total Dutch imports the most important cereals and fodder articles came from America in 1912, 38 per cent in 1913, 37 per cent in 1914, the British India, Australia and other countries, in 1915 ninety two per cent originated in America, namely 2,129,084 tons out of total imports of 2,313,648 tons, this being due to the closing of the Dardanelles and other war causes, when the quite natural swellings of the imports of Dutch cereals and fodder from American and the conclusion by superficial observers that this meant re-exportation to Germany, a quite erroneous assumption.

NET IMPORTS DECREASED.
"Not only have the net imports to Holland during the war not increased, but they show a considerable decline. Of the total imports of the above mentioned articles in 1915, namely 2,313,648 tons, 73,735 were re-exported, of which 72,171 went to Belgium for the relief commission, thus leaving 2,239,913 tons for Dutch home consumption. It is true that American exports to Holland show a high total, but evidently they include shipments of corn, which comprise over a million tons of these articles.

1914 NO CRITERION
"The total mentioned for home consumption compares with 1,879,791 tons in the year 1914, with 2,231,631 in 1913 and with 2,111,891 tons in 1912. The extremely low figures for the year 1914 cannot serve as a proper basis of comparison, because the sudden outbreak of the war upset the regular relations of Dutch importers with foreign exporters, and months were required before the shifting of commercial relations, largely to America, enabled the importers to secure the necessary supplies."

NO FOOD STUFFS EXPORTED.
"The exportation of cereals and feeding stuffs is strictly forbidden and the exportation of 1,236 tons of cereals into Germany in 1915 merely represents grain grown by German land proprietors on Dutch soil, near the frontiers permitted to leave in exchange for like facilities granted to Dutch proprietors in similar conditions."

The statement further points out that the number in population and in head of cattle increased in Holland 73.9 per cent, for cattle and 1.1 per cent for pigs, comparing the year 1915 with 1913, and this produced a corresponding demand for feeding stuffs and disposed of the "fabulous tales" of Holland depleting her cattle stock. The statement concludes:

JUST ROMANTIC TALES.
"Neither here nor in any other country can illegitimate trade be absolutely suppressed, but tales of smuggling are more romantic in reading than important in the value of merchandise received. The latest government measure embodied in a special bill just passed by both chambers will further contribute to the strict observance of the prohibition decrees."

Bernardo and Frederico Duran, the Mexican cat of thieves, who killed Bert Akers at San Lorenzo, a few miles below the international boundary, on Friday, were executed.

Mr. H. Stikeman, for many years general manager of the Bank of British North America, has just died at his home in Montreal, aged sixty-four. He was born in England, educated in that country and obtained his first banking experience in the London office of the Bank of British North America. Mr. Stikeman came to Canada in 1874, where he continued as an official of the bank. He was sent as the Bank's agent to New York City, where he remained several years, returning to Montreal in 1894 as general manager, a position he retained until 1912, when he resigned. The late Mr. Stikeman was keenly interested in hospital work, being for many years president of the Montreal General Hospital and was also a director of the London and Lancashire Life Assurance Company. As a young man he took a prominent part in athletics. His only son, Capt. H. F. C. is going overseas with the 148th Battalion now being organized in Montreal.

ENJOYABLE TIME HELD BY PRINTERS LAST EVENING

First "Get-Together Meeting" of Season Fine Success.

BANQUET AND GOOD PROGRAM

Ald. George Ward Gives Account of Trip to I.T.U. Convention.

A most enjoyable time was spent by the members of Brantford Typographical Union No. 378, when they held their regular monthly meeting in their hall, Heyd Block. Besides conducting the regular routine of business, they had previously made arrangements to hold "get-together" or social evening, the first of a series of three to be given during the winter. To say that it was a pronounced success would be only telling half the truth, for the printers do start out to accomplish anything, no matter in what direction it may be, they generally manage to get there with both feet.

The regular business part of the evening opened promptly at 8 o'clock with President E. E. Reynolds in the chair and a large attendance of the members. Good progress was made in disposing of this part of the work, and at 9:30 those present sat down to a sumptuous repast which had been prepared and laid out on tables in the centre of the room, which were very prettily decorated with flowers, etc. The way those printers tackled the bountiful things provided, demonstrated the fact that they can eat up everything they set as "pie," "copy" or those things called "scoops," which sometimes occur now and then. Even the "devil," who is always present at these functions, seemed to enjoy himself.

After full justice had been done to the inner man, the chairman of the evening, President Reynolds, called the gathering to order, and in a few well chosen words of appreciation and welcome, introduced a short program as follows, which was immensely enjoyed by all.

"The King" was honored by the singing of the God Save the King. "Reminiscences of Old Times," was then proposed, coupled with the name of Bro. Geo. M. Crooks, who made a characteristic reply, relating many amusing as well as interesting tales of the trials and tribulations of the printers of days gone by but not forgotten.

"Keep the Home Fires Burning," was then rendered and well received. Song—"It's nice to Get Up in the Mornin'," a selection by Harry Luder on the phonograph. This piece was very much enjoyed by all.

"Impressions of my Trip to Los Angeles and the I. T. U. Convention" was then proposed, coupled with the name of Bro. Ald. George Ward, Mr. Ward gave a most delightful and entertaining account of some of the places he had visited and the sights he had seen while travelling with the printer's of the "Sixteen" Chicago special. The address proved most entertaining in every way.

Piano Solo—Bro. E. Harris. This number was heartily enjoyed, as Mr. Harris showed he was a pianist of no mean ability.

"Our Honorary Members" was then proposed, and responded to by Bro. "Joe" Powell in a very happy manner, relating many peculiar things he had observed in his experience while connected with the printing trade.

"Our International Union" brought forth a response from "Colonel" W. H. Johnson, ex-delegate to the I. T. U. Mr. Johnson's remarks proved most entertaining.

"The British Army Landing in France," was a most descriptive piece splendidly rendered on the phonograph, and was very much appreciated.

The toast of "Our Secretary," was then proposed, coupled with the name of Ira D. Scruton, who responded in a modest but effective way, expressive of his enjoyment of the evening's festivities.

"Our Officers" was looked after by Bro. "Bill" Reeves in a humorous speech, and was well received.

In responding to the toast of "The Ladies," it fell to the lot of Bro. E. Heatley, who made a splendid reply in their defence.

The program came to a conclusion and with it the happy social function, by the singing of the National Anthem. The committee are to be congratulated on the splendid evening's entertainment provided. They were Ald. Geo. Ward, (chairman), Geo. M. Crooks, E. Heatley and Geo. A. Moore.

Caterer Crumback had charge of the banquet, and he was warmly commended for his part of the program.

Members of Parliament both in Federal and Provincial Houses are setting a good example in enlisting for overseas service. Two recent examples have just come to light. Evan Fraser, former member of the Ontario Legislature and more recently nominated as Conservative candidate from Welland for the Federal House, has joined the overseas battalion. Fraser, who is over six feet tall and weighs 250 lbs., will be second in command. Another more striking example is that furnished by Frank Walker, member of the Alberta Legislature and Chief Whip of the Liberal party who has enlisted as a private in one of the Western battalions.

Music and Drama

"The Gentleman from Indiana," which stars the celebrated American actor, Dustin Farnum, is the first of the eagerly awaited Fallas pictures, and will be shown at the Brant Theatre for three days beginning to-day. Among the features of this memorable production are a monster circus parade, remarkably genuine with its elephant, lady bareback riders and all a whirlwind political campaign with stump speeches as only Indiana can seem them stumped, together with an amazing torchlight processions a la the early eighties; a thrilling rain storm at night with buildings rocking in the wind and sheets of water washing down the window panes of the Main street stores; the same rain storm in a desolate grove of cedars where is enacted the famous Booth Tarkington "lightning flash" when Harkless is captured by the White-caps; and a trossand and one effective details. Dustin Farnum does the best work of his career in this powerful drama, and makes the "Gentleman from Indiana" indubitably one of the big things of the motion picture year.

HERE IS THE MUSIC OF THE BIRTH OF A NATION.

During the previous engagement of the Birth of a Nation at the Grand Opera House, a great number of patrons were curious to know what selections the orchestra played during the presentation of the picture. Manager J. T. Whittaker, wrote musical director Mr. Geo. H. Wiseman and has received word that the following selections are included in the orchestration which is used for the "Birth of a Nation": "Swanee River," "Seeing Nellie Home," "In the Gloaming," "Dixie," "Turkey in the Straw," "Doo Dah," "The Girl I Left Behind Me," "Home Sweet Home," "Good Night Ladies," "The Mocking Bird," "Hail to the Chief," "The Star Spangled Banner," "My Country 'Tis of Thee," "Selections from The Peer Gynt Suite," "Zampa," "Freichutz" "The Ride of the Valkyries," "Liz's Second Hungarian Rhapsody."

Unusual interest is manifest in the forthcoming return of this wonderful attraction for two matinees and two nights, commencing January 28.

Most of these selections are carried by the local music houses.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS OFFICE NOT DOING WORK OF BRITISH NAVY CLAIMS SIR E. GREY

Britain Not Likely to Resort to Absolute Blockade of Germany—Figures Given by Press of Amount of Trade Passing Into Germany Ridiculous.

London, Jan. 27.—The opening phases of the speeches of Sir E.
Grey, Foreign Secretary in the House of Commons and the Marquis of Lansdowne, Minister without portfolio, in the House of Lords yesterday, gave the impression that the British government is not likely to resort to an absolute blockade of Germany.

Foreign Secretary Grey opened his speech in the Commons by saying it was a difficult and complicated subject which the House had under consideration. He had gathered from the debate that there was a real misapprehension concerning the amount of trade passing into Germany and regarding what this government was doing to stop that trade. The figures given in the press had created a grotesque impression in regard to the amount of leakage, and would not bear investigation. He asserted that the attack founded on these figures did great injustice to the government for these figures did not take into consideration the fact that in many cases exports from the United States had merely made good supplies which were formerly drawn from Germany. The figures given for exports dealt only with goods which left the United States and gave no information concerning their arrival.

DOING ALL POSSIBLE.
Sir Edward referred to an example, to the case of meat cargoes consigned to neutral countries and now before British Prize Courts. He proceeded to analyze some of the published figures.

Sir Edward said that the Government was doing what the supporters of the blockade policy demanded.

"We cannot do more than we are already doing," he said. With regard to wheat the Foreign Secretary, showed that so far from Scandinavia and Holland having sent 31,000,000 bushels into Germany, those countries had not imported more than their normal requirements, and he emphasized that under any system, whether there was a blockade or not, there must be some leakage. That leakage, however, had been less than might have been expected.

NOT HAMPERING NAVY.
Sir Edward warmly repudiated the suggestion that the Foreign Office was hampering the navy, and he explained at length the method of dealing with cargoes brought into British ports.

The Contraband committee, which includes two representatives of the Admiralty, he said, had done its work admirably and during the last year there were only three cases in which the committee was consulted.

Sir Edward said it was time these attacks ceased for they must have a dispiriting effect on the navy, because they led the navy to suppose its work was being undone by another department.

Continuing Sir Edward said:
"The task of the Foreign Office is a burdensome one. It must retain the good-will of neutrals and secure that the source of certain supplies for our allies and our allies be not cut off.
At the same time, it has to explain, justify and defend our interference with neutral trade. If we are to establish a line of blockade we must do it consistently with the rights of neutrals, and we must let through bona fide vessels for neutral ports. That is the intention of the supporters of the blockade resolution, and that is what is actually being done. We are unable to do more than attempt to stop all goods entering or leaving Germany and that is being done.

CONTINUOUS VOYAGE.
"We are applying the doctrine of continuous voyage," Sir Edward said.
"We quite agree that we want community with our allies, and that is what we had with France when the order in Council was issued."
"We are going to answer the last United States note, but in the first instance in consultation with the French Government. That consultation is now taking place. With regard to neutrals, the Government is perfectly ready to examine any other method of carrying out our policy of stopping enemy trade, but the one now adopted, which might be more convenient and more agreeable in practice so long as

GUARD NEUTRAL RIGHTS.
"You have no right to make neutrals suffer," he declared.
He contended that it would be impossible to establish an effective line of blockade and forbid all ships to go through, adding:
"Neither could we put every cargo into Prize Court. If we had done that the war might possibly have been over by now. Only the whole world would have been against us, and we and our allies would have collapsed under the general resentment of the whole world. Therefore, such lines are established, we must allow ships for neutral ports with bona fide cargoes to go through."

"What I understand is meant when you say 'blockade' is that you are going to discriminate, and that is exactly what is being done now."

OPOSSES TECHNICAL BLOCK-ADE.
The secretary repudiated the idea that a technical blockade would be more palatable to neutral countries,
and said:
"If anybody wishes to realize the justification of our present policy he has only to read the correspondence with the United States. If he wishes to read the objections taken to it—objections which any sort of policy might meet with—he can read the American notes to Great Britain, especially the last note, which has not yet been answered."

In this connection Sir Edward said that consultation with France was with a view to pursuing, not merely the same policy but to justify it by the same arguments and put the same case before the world.
On the general question, he said that the Government was trying to avoid friction with the neutrals by securing agreements, not with the Governments, but with the traders, to facilitate discrimination between general and special goods. He laid stress upon the fact that Great Britain had a duty towards the allies in this matter, although, he added, had Great Britain had no such duty, she would have done precisely the same thing.

SAVE YOUR HAIR!
25 CENT BOTTLE
STOPS DANDRUFF

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is sure evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.
There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Dandruff to-night—now—any time—will surely
save your hair.
Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandruff from a drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few week's use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

The Situation.

Sir Edward Grey, Britain's Foreign Secretary, is not a man who indulges in pyrotechnics, such for instance as Winston Churchill did when he boasted in such a light way of the quick job which would be made of the Dardanelles. As becomes his important position, Sir Edward has the gift of tolerance of speech and utterances which he may make, always carry with them the impress of deep thought and due consideration. In his speech in the British House yesterday, he deplored the attempt which had been made to cause the Navy to believe that their splendid work in the matter of blocking goods to and from Germany had been nullified by the Foreign Office, and was able to contend that such had not been the case. He further dwelt upon the unoubted fact that his department had a most delicate duty to perform in dictating with regard to such goods, and at the same time avoiding unnecessary offense to neutrals. The whole tone of his address was to the effect that all was being accomplished which could reasonably be achieved.

Rumors have been persistent that the Hun navy has been kept bottled up in the Kiel Canal for the reason that the enemy is developing a 17-inch gun, which would outmatch the British 15 ditto. The old time method of vessels grappling with each other at sea in close quarters, has long since passed away. It is now solely a question of range. If a warship possesses a gun which can do effective work at even a few feet further than the other fellow, then if the distance is maintained, the craft with the weapon of shorter carrying power is helpless. It is reassuring to notice that Mr. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Admiralty, expresses the opinion that the 17-inch gun story is not based on facts, and without doubt he has special sources of information in this regard.

The Germans are still very active on the Western front, and have, among other things, exploded many mines, while it has been proved that the Turkish reports were correct when they claimed that the relief army for Kut-el-Amara had been halted 23 miles from there, instead of 7 miles as reported. The position of affairs at this point is still far from reassuring, for the Turks have had plenty of time for entrenchments.

Sir Sam's Speech.

It has been an unfortunate, and an unseemly, thing in connection with Canada's part in the war, that certain Grit speakers and Grit papers have sought every opportunity to try and make political capital against the Borden Government and to yell graft on every possible occasion.

There have been notable exceptions—for instance, the Ottawa Free Press. This staunch Liberal sheet recently criticized Hon. Mr. Pugsley for throwing out wholesale charges at a time like the present, and when called to book by some members of the party replied that at the commencement of the war it had decided to cut out politics for the duration of the same and intended to stick to that resolve. Good for the Free Press.

The Dominion, like John Bull and the rest of the Empire, was suddenly thrown into the need for preparedness, and the man would be a fool who under such circumstances would imagine that some undesirable features would not crop up. They would do so no matter which side had control. No one doubts that from Sir Robert Borden down the main desire has been an honest intent and purpose to have valiant and promptness of hand in hand.

Men of the calibre of Mr. Carvell, M.P., for instance, can see nothing but rottenness and connivance and dubious contracts, if charged in the House that there was political pull and rake-off with regard to shell orders. Brantfordites know full well by local observation the falsity of such a charge. It so happens that concerns in this city dominated by Liberals (the Waterous Engine Works and Gould, Shapley & Muir Company, for instance) are among those securing shell orders, and a like thing is true all over. The political complexion of any firm at this time does not matter a button. The only question to be faced is can this, that, or any other firm deliver the goods, for in this struggle we are all one and party divisions ought not to obtrude themselves for an instant.

Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, took up the matter yesterday in the House in his usual direct way. Taking up the charge that the Shell Committee was a political body he said: "Generals Bertram and Benson, of that committee, were Conservatives; Col. Cantley was a supporter of Mr. E. M. Macdonald, and had probably voted both ways; Col. Lafferty was a Liberal; Mr. George Watts was a Liberal; Messrs E. and D. Carnegie were Liberals; Mr. J. W. Borden, accountant and paymaster-general of the Militia Department, and a member of the committee, had the misfortune to belong to the Liberal branch of the Borden family."

Sir Sam reported that he had investigated more than one yarn regarding said Committee and "did not find a solitary instance where there were any facts therein."

Men and papers which are seeking to conduct a sniping warfare on the administration at this time and to create public distrust, need not make any mistake about the fact that the general public are sizing them up for just what they are.

The War Call.

When the great European war first started, Canadians, as a whole, were very prone to look upon it as a spectacle detached very much from their own lives and interests.

Thrillingly interesting, of course, to read about on the bulletin boards and in the newspapers, but still very much of a moving picture of events, with the people of this Dominion as an audience rather than participants.

Those who jumped to the ranks in response to the first call—mostly Old Countrymen, as the records show—had a better idea of the crucial test by which the Empire was faced, and that recognition, among all classes, has become clearer and clearer as the days have passed. It has not fallen to us to hear one gun fired, or to witness one scene of brutal and devilish devastation, but that has been merely a piece of geographical luck; the rapine and the murder, and the incendiarism, and the despoiling of the lives of young girls, and all the rest of the bestial orgies, would have been our portion, just as surely as it has proved that of the Belgians and other victims, had the Huns managed to secure a foothold in this fair land. They have been suffered by others on behalf of the great cause of the Allies, as much for us and our future liberties as for those of the lands which have been called upon to make the awful sacrifice, and in every respect the fact must be borne home and acted upon that it is our struggle, just as much as that of Belgium and Serbia, and France and Russia and Italy and Great Britain.

Canada has done well, but she must be prepared to do a whole lot more, in men, in money, in service and in every direction which will aid in the ultimate overthrow of that relentless monster known as Prussianism. The plain duty is at hand, and it must be met without stint and without delay.

The people of Brantford and Brant county have a splendid record to date, but they must do much more, and so must every community from Halifax to Victoria.

Just now locally the call is to complete the Brant Battalion, and it must and will be done. Men are needed of course on the farm and in the factories for necessary work, but there are many positions which can be filled just as well by women (as they are doing in France and England), in order to let fit men take their place in the fighting line. In Toronto, for instance, they are securing a largely signed list of the fair sex who are willing to serve—not women and girls already at work, but a class who by fortune's favor have never yet had to work—and the example is one which will undoubtedly have to be recognized and followed elsewhere.

Once more, we must all get together. There must be no holding back, but the unflinching determination to foregather in a united effort on behalf of a common and an Empire and a liberty-loving cause.

Dangers and losses and self-sacrifice there will be, but what are they compared with the chance of Hun domination and the imposition of a degrading and soul-blasting Kultur?

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Britain's Foreign Secretary may have a Grey vision, but he presents a rosy outlook when he says that Great Britain will win.

Montreal and Toronto are setting splendid examples in the matter of giving. The former city has raised $1,127,789 in three days for patriotic purposes, and the latter $1,500,000 with two days yet to go to attain the object aimed at—$2,000,000.

"If you see a Tory head, hit it, and if it is a Grit head which is in your way hit that also," seems to be the motto of certain Liberals hereabouts.

The Toronto Globe is one of the papers which takes any and every charge which may be levelled at the Dominion Government during this war time as gospel. The spectacle is enough to make George Brown turn in his grave.

Everybody realizes the vital part which women play in connection with the war, and for this cause everything which extols their privileges and duties should be of special interest to them. For this reason, there should be a very large attendance of the fair sex from the city and county in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Tuesday afternoon next at three o'clock, when Major Williams gives his address, "Woman's Work in War Time."

To The Editor

FURLoughs FOR CANADIANS.

Editor The Courier: The Brantford lady who commended my effort to obtain short furloughs for the native-born Canadians in our first contingent, will be interested to know that Col. Winter, military Secretary to Major-Gen. Sir Sam Hughes, sends thanks for the suggestion, which is to be seriously considered. Parents who have not seen their heroes for a year and a half, and desire to do so, should express their desires at once to the Militia Council, Ottawa. To those who may not understand why this movement was started, I would say that a high Canadian officer at the front expressed the opinion that, as the Britishers in our first contingent could easily visit their homes in Great Britain and Ireland when granted a week's leave, the Canadian born men should be granted sufficient extra time to enable them to visit their parents in Canada. Our boys have been on the battle-line for a year, and deserve a few weeks' leave, particularly as there are plenty of other men to relieve them now. They have to be fed, clothed and lodged wherever they are waiting for the final advance, so they should be let home for a brief furlough.

Besides pleasing the parents, who were so willing to let their boys go at the first call to arms, a well-deserved compliment would be paid the heroes, real heroes, who fought and suffered in many battles. We want them home. We should be granted our desire. Forty-five transports are available to carry them. But, over and above the justice of the act, it must be plain to high and low, that nothing would do more to aid recruiting for our new army more than the presence of several hundred of Canada's worthy soldiers in our midst. We will have many contingents, but all will agree that none have done more for Canada and freedom than the First Contingent.

The assistance of influential persons to this appeal is earnestly desired. I have received several letters from soldiers' mothers, to whom I can only say: cheer up!

Garrett O'Connor, Bridgeburg, Ont., Jan 25, 1916.

STREET CAR MEN AND THE WAR.

Dear Sir,—Wonder has consumed the writer for the past ten days as to who "Observer" is, and on reading his last letter appearing in last night's issue, he determined to try and have "Observer" come from under cover, if he has the nerve. The writer holds no brief for the street car men, in fact is on speaking terms with only one. That one being unfit for military services owing to the fact that some years ago an arch in one of his feet was broken. This fact "Observer" is probably not familiar with. This time last year the writer was on friendly terms with three or four of the men on the cars, but owing to the war "Observer" will not see them for some time, they being either at the front or in England.

Now, sir, as said above, the writer holds no brief for the street car men, but in fairness to them he thinks "Observer" should have the courage to make his sneers openly, as the public will agree with me that it is as cowardly a trick to belittle a body of men under a non de plume as it is to hide behind a woman's skirt. The public also will be interested to learn if "Observer" is part 44 years of age, or has he been refused by the examining officer, or if he is an aged gentleman has he any members of his immediate family at the front or getting ready for there. Or are they too pursuing a policy of watchful waiting.

To prevent a come back on the part of "Observer," and not in any spirit of boastfulness, the writer could state that he has been refused on two different occasions for military service.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, Yours truly, FRANK STERN.

REVIVAL SERVICES

Another good meeting at the Riverside Baptist Church was held last night and augurs well for a full church to-night. The singing of the books of the bible was a special feature of the song service, and will be repeated to-night. Evangelist Torrie's subject was "Judah and Jesus." Judah was sacrilegious, shameless, and snared. To fully appreciate his fall, we must think of what he was, what he might have been and what Satan made him. Over against the character of Judah was placed the character of Jesus, with his calmness, courage, power to chastise and charity. It was a strong, virile appeal, at the close of which Mrs. Torrie sang very tenderly the sacred solo, "Come Home."

G. PENNINGTON GETS COMMISSION IN BRITISH ARMY

Has Already Been to the Front With Canadians.

Mr. E. Roberts, local engineer of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, received a telegram to-day stating that Mr. G. Pennington had been appointed as Lieutenant in the Imperial Army, B.E.F.

Mr. Pennington, previous to the outbreak of the war, had been an assistant of Mr. Roberts for over two years. He is only 21 years of age, but had already been to the front as a private; and was unfortunate enough to have his feet frozen in the winter campaign "Somewhere in France."

Mr. Pennington will leave the city to-night and will immediately on arrival at Montreal or Quebec. He is the kind of a man who deserves an appointment and he will certainly be an asset to the King's commission.

FREDERICK W. PALMER

"But when they stood up so splendidly against that first great gas attack—the most terrible attack ever made upon a body of men—there was no after that any question of the Canadians not being able to compete with the European troops," said Mr. Palmer.

TRENCH BUILDING EXPERTS.

That the Canadians had proved experts in trench building and that their trenches were magnificent was another point brought out by Mr. Palmer. Once he came on a dugout so perfectly constructed that he inquired if it had been made by a pioneer from the Yukon, and he was surprised to learn that it was made by a clerk from Montreal.

"In putting your blood and treasure over there you are building up a splendid tradition in Canada," the great war correspondent went on. There were many things animating the Canadian troops as well as the British. There was the tie of blood and the knowledge that the struggle was one for freedom and liberty. But there was also the feeling that the Germans should never put their system over on us, Germany thought it was entitled to the rest of the world by imposing its system of Kultur on all mankind, but Britons had gone along in their own way and were determined to continue to do so, but were quite ready to leave the Germans to do the same so long as they did not interfere with others. "The Canadians who are falling at the front are falling in the finest causes that men have fought for in modern time," the lecturer added.

PREDICTS MOVE IN SPRING.

Mr. Palmer is not in the least depressed about the allies' chances. Ever since the Battle of the Marne he had felt convinced that victory must ultimately be theirs. The days of needless sacrifice of life because of shortage of artillery were gone forever. The allies now had plenty of shells, and would have more and more as time went on. During his last visit to the British front he saw standing at one isolated spot no less than 130 three-ton motor trucks with shells. He described how some months ago he had seen some 500 British guns concentrated on 1,000 yards of German trenches, the entanglements of which were destroyed by this terrible bombardment, after which the trenches were easily taken by the British. He also described how the French prepared for their great advance in the Champagne last September, when they captured 25,000 prisoners and 150 guns by a bombardment lasting 72 hours. He believed that in the spring the British would be prepared to treat the enemy to a bombardment just as terrible but lasting not merely 72 hours, but three weeks.

BRANTFORD LOST TO HAMILTON

Are Now Out of the Running For Group Honors.

40TH BATTERY BEAT ARGOS Soldiers, However, Can Play No More Because of Other Duties.

Hamilton, Jan. 27.—Canadian Mounted Rifles registered their first victory in Group 6, intermediate O. H. A. here last night by defeating Brantford by a score of 5 to 4. Hamilton had the better of the play throughout, but Brantford came strong in the final period and tied the score with two minutes to go. The Soldiers were equal to the occasion, however, and Smith netted the winning point just before the final bell sounded. Smith, Scanlon, Grisdale and Minnock started for Hamilton, while Freeman, Slemin and Summerhayes played well for the visitors. The teams:

Referee: Moxon, Toronto.

ANOTHER ONE GOAL LOSS.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—Though the Toronto gave the Ottawa a great game at the Arena last evening, the champions won out by two to one, and thus established themselves as factors in the championship race of the N. H. A. Jack Darragh scored two goals for the Ottawa in the first period, one from a scramble and the other after getting a rebound off Lejeune's pads. Toronto's goal came as a gift on the part of Clint Benedict. After eighteen minutes play in the second session, Benedict made a stop off Keats, and turned to throw the puck away. He miscalculated his position, and hurled the rubber in the top

CANADIENS 5, WANDERERS 4.
Montreal, Jan. 27.—Bottled up in the first game in the senior O.H.A. series, the Canadiens scored two goals in the final twenty minutes. Wanderers were defeated in their scheduled game with Canadiens last night by 5 to 4. Wanderers were weakened through the absence of Sprague Cleghorn, who was injured two weeks ago, and could not manage a strong defence against the Canadiens' fast offensive play.

Canadiens tallied two goals in the first period against the Wanderers' zero. In the second Wanderers speeded up and the period ended with a three to three tie. In the last period Canadiens scored two more, while Wanderers managed but one.

Hyland, a Wanderer substitute was given the second match foul of the season for throwing his stick to prevent scoring. This penalty, under a recent new rule carries, besides banishment for the game, a $15 fine.

ARGOS TRIMMED.

Toronto, Jan. 27.—Playing their second game in the senior O.H.A. series, the Argonauts were defeated by the Arena administered a decisive beating to the Argonauts, when they won by the score of 9 to 3. The winners were even better than the Canadiens, and all through had the best of the play, with the exception of the last five or ten minutes, when the Argos threw every man up on the line. Nearly 6,400 witnessed the contest, with some of the spectators even hanging on the rafters, but none of the large assembly present figured that the ultimate winners would have such a large margin at the finish.

It was Battery first and all the time, as they showed in the first half of the game, and led at quarter time by 5 to 1, while at the end of the second period the count stood 7 to 2, showing that the soldiers outscored the Scullers in both periods. In the closing twenty minutes each team tallied a goal. For the opportunities the winners had close in they should have had more counters than they did, but then the score shows they were a real good team last night, while on the other hand the Argos defence, which has been the mainstay of the team, did not play their usually strong game, and the Battery had little trouble in getting inside, with Butterfield showing some rare stickhandling and being an extremely hard player for either Knight or Laflamme to figure out. This clever centre player got more goals than the whole Argonaut team.

Owing to their military duties preventing the 40th Battery from remaining in the O.H.A. series after the week, the O.H.A. sub-committee have transferred the game between Riversides and T.R. and A.A. for Saturday night until a later date, and have scheduled Riversides and Battery to meet Saturday afternoon. This was done so that Battery will be able to meet both Argos and Riversides three times, and thus give either of the local clubs an equal chance for the group.

The attendance last night was 6,373, which is a record for the local Arena for mid-season or group games. The receipts were $2,790, and as it was the Battery gate they draw down $1,106.

FEEL FINE! TAKE "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER, BOWELS

Enjoy life! Remove the liver and bowel poison which is keeping your head dizzy, your tongue coated, breath offensive and stomach sour. Don't stay bilious, sick, headachy, constipated and full of cold. Why don't you get a box of Cascarets from the drug store and eat one or two tonight and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. You will wake up feeling fit and fine. Cascarets never gripe or sicken like salts, pills and calomel. They act so gently that you hardly realize that you have taken a cathartic. Mothers should give cross, sick, bilious or feverish children a whole Cascaret any time—they act thoroughly and are harmless.

Report shows a great gain in the number of workers employed and wages paid in the factories of New York State.

TOLD OF JUVENILE COURT WORK IN MONTREAL CITY

Interesting Address by Mrs. Henderson at Children's Shelter.

METHODS OF THIS TRIBUNAL

Cause of Crime More Important Than the Result of It.

A most interesting address was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Henderson in the home of the Children's Aid Society, on the juvenile court. Mrs. Henderson is from Montreal, where she has been closely in touch with the work of the court for six years. She is chief probation officer of the juvenile court, under the jurisdiction of Judge Choquette. She has had previous experience in England and the United States.

Judge Hardy occupied the chair yesterday, and heartily thanked Mrs. Henderson for coming to the city. It was through the good work of Mrs. Kerr that the arrangements were made. There was nothing more important than the relief work. When the new court was established here, this would be more easily attended to. The Judge stated that he had been given supervision of the court by the Ontario Government, but that the Dominion Government would have to issue a proclamation before the court could be established.

MRS. HENDERSON.

The most important child-saving organization is the children's court, said Mrs. Henderson. There was no department of school, church or playground, where the child life was taken more to heart than in this court. This court could be a place for tyranny, a place of mistakes and an expense to the state, as well as the resuscitation of many children's and parents' lives.

Great care had to be taken in establishing it. Because a new court was to be formed here, Mrs. Henderson said she would deal only with necessary precautions in the organization of the court. She could tell hundreds of pathetic and many humorous stories connected with her experiences, but it would take too long. The officials never knew the City of Montreal until the court was founded there. In the first year, 2,000 cases passed through their hands. Of this number only 60 were repeaters. This proved that child life wasn't being taken care of previously. Such a court was a wonderful asset to the community.

The Juvenile Court was an absolute out-and-out profession and like other professions must be gone about carefully. When other trades were blunderingly done, it meant only a material loss, but this profession must be gone about carefully because the material dealt with was children's lives and careers and also parents' lives.

Mrs. Henderson related very graphically the struggle Montreal had had in establishing its court. She told that the first judge was absolutely non-partisan and received no salary, money or reward of any description. This left the judge absolutely free, to act in the cases unprejudiced and for the best interests of the children involved. The court must stand for justice and the truth before everything else.

Then she told how Judge Choquette and herself had acted in strict confidence with the people. The Probation Officer must act as an officer, but must treat the people confidentially, with whom he has to deal. This officer fills out a very complete report on the home environment, physical and mental condition, etc. of the offending children. Before the trial, this report was carefully considered with the judge. The cause was more important than the result in this court. And so the Probation Officer must have had great experience and insight into this work, and must preferably be a woman. Lady officers could often secure the sympathy of their clients when men would be absolutely useless.

It was the duty of the court to guide children through the age of mistakes when the parents fail. Every boy was first cousin to the Indian and savage at a certain period of his life, and must have guidance, asserted Mrs. Henderson.

of extinguishing feeble-mindedness, and smoking methods. She advised that a Board of Censors be appointed to make the motion pictures in the city as moral and instructive as possible.

After her address, Judge Hardy stated that it would be of inestimable value in the future. He had fully realized the responsibility placed on his shoulders when he had been given the supervision of the new court, but was anxious to start the good work, which would mean so much to the city. A vote of thanks was made by Mr. M. Kelly and seconded by Rev. A. E. Levell. Both gentlemen made very appropriate addresses.

Growing weaker hourly under the insidious assaults of the sleeping sickness, Dr. Albert C. Perveil, of Brooklyn, lay in his bed yesterday for the first time unable even to turn.

Baron Chelmsford, former Governor of Queensland and of New South Wales, has been appointed Viceroy of India in succession to Baron Hardinge. The new Viceroy, who is the third Baron Chelmsford, was born in England in 1868, and educated at Oxford, graduating as a lawyer. For some years he was a member of the London School Board and also an alderman of the city.

PROHIBITION Weighed in the Balance and found Wanting

The Citizens' Committee of One Hundred would have Ontario depart from the policy of the late Sir James Whitney on this question of Sale of Liquors.

The Citizens' Committee of One Hundred is demanding Prohibition—Is it economically sound?

Here are a few among the majority of examples from States in the American Union where Prohibition has had a long trial.

The average Savings in ten Prohibition States is $23,898.

The average Savings in ten Licensed States is $520.70.

The per capita Valuation of Property for Prohibition States.	The per capita Valuation of Property for Licensed States.
Maine .. .. . $550.03	Ohio .. .. . $300.00
W. Virginia .. .. . 894.11	New Hampshire .. .. . 300.00
North Carolina .. .. . 323.90	Massachusetts .. .. . 2,000.00
Georgia .. .. . 307.80	Rhode Island .. .. . 2,000.00
Tennessee .. .. . 279.56	New York .. .. . 2,100.00
Alabama .. .. . 253.20	Wisconsin .. .. . 1,019.30
Oklahoma .. .. . 615.68	Wyoming .. .. . 1,106.00

Is there any reason for believing that Ontario under Prohibition would fare better than Prohibition States across the Line?

Alabama's Experience

In 1907 Alabama came under Prohibition with $1,900,000 in the State Treasury and all outstanding obligations paid. Four years later the surplus had disappeared and in its place a deficit of over $1,000,000. Governor Henderson says Prohibition cannot last through another legislature.

Do We Want These Conditions Repeated in Ontario?

Prohibition is Economically Unsound.

What is the record as to the enforcement of Prohibition in those States of the Union which have gone dry?

JUST LOOK!

In the last four years in the prohibition states of Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Florida and Kentucky, 10,000 illicit distilleries have been seized.

In the United States in 1907 the per capita consumption of liquor was a little over 23 gallons. In 1914 with 23,000,000 people living under "dry" laws, the consumption of liquor per person was 23 gallons.

The Chief Police of Topeka, Kansas, where Prohibition originated, reports 2,000 arrests of 1914 out of a population of 45,000. Over 30% were fined for drunkenness. Yet Kansas has Prohibition State.

The same judgment of the people of Ontario is against Prohibition. It was in June, 1912. It is now.

The present License System in Ontario is far superior to Prohibition. change is not in the interest of the Province.

ERTY LEAGUE OF ONTARIO.

Gordon Barclay's servants had orders to admit no one without orders. The city was in a turmoil. With each fresh edition of the newspapers the situation of the conspirators became more serious. In the public parks figures of them were hanged or burned. It became necessary to keep a cordon of police about Barclay's house. In Semmes' house and Sturtevant's no window remained whole. For twenty hours these two men had been Barclay's guests.

Gunsdorf's great hour had come—that hour for which he had plotted all his life, and lied for and schemed for. He had been the leading figure in the mob that had tried to lynch the triumvirate in the first burst of rage. Through a man friendly to him and deep in Gunsdorf's councils, Tommy learned that the life of the man who had adopted him and been good to him was in danger. His house was to be stormed over the heads of the police, and himself hanged or torn to pieces, as might happen.

Tommy hurried to the old familiar house and was presently admitted, when he told Barclay what Gunsdorf was planning for that very day. Gordon Barclay was a broken and disappointed man. Still he clung warmly to that remnant of life which remained to him. "We'll go to Gull Island," he said simply, "till this thing has blown over. I suppose you are not unhappy about what has happened. It's a pity she came back. Tommy, when we quarrelled I was ambitious for power only. Later I began to think that Celestia was a real panacea for a sick world. So that if I had been destined to rule, I would have ruled for the good of the people. I want you to know that what began in cynicism ended in faith and honesty. I have put you back in my will for practically everything. I possess, Carlton Fitch has turned knave. Mary, if she marries him, will be worthy of him."

"You will need somebody to keep house for you at Gull Island," said Tommy. He was too moved to refer to what he had just learned. "I'll get Celestia there as quickly as I can." They shook hands and parted, never to meet in this life again. Late that night Tommy and Celestia and Freddie the Ferret caught the last boat for Bartell's, on Bartell's Island, from which Gull's Island may be reached in an hour in a fast launch. Gull Island resembles a loaf of bread that has risen too much. A rounded hillowing, top is set upon high, almost a cone. There is only one landing place and from this the habitable portions of the island are reached by a steep and narrow path. A determined man with a pile of cobblestones could stand off an army.

Soon after Tommy's departure and before the triumvirate could complete their arrangements for the retreat to Gull's Island the streets connecting to Gordon Barclay's house and the streets in the neighborhood began to fill with men and women. There was no actual violence until Gunsdorf arrived. He, high above the crowd on an improvised rostrum, roared for blood and vengeance. Then the police tried to disperse the mob and after hard fighting and the breaking of many heads, were overpowered, passed over and swept aside. Then the crowd began to swarm over the tall iron gates and the spiked iron fence. After battering down the solid heavy front door, the leaders rushed in, and for a moment were halted by the uncompromising dignity and grandeur of the hall. Facing them was a flight of marble steps. At the top of these stood Gordon Barclay. When the crowd recognized him they yelled like a pack of wolves. The corners of his mouth twitched with a kind of glassy contempt. He turned slowly and passed through a doorway that was just behind him, slammed the door shut and locked it. Not till then did he show a sign of fear or haste. Now, however, he ran swiftly through the library out at the other end, and down a back stair to the service courtyard. Here stood a powerful limousine car. In the body of the car sat Semmes and Sturtevant.

The first man to enter the long, rich library was Gunsdorf. He gave only a glance at the open panel which disclosed the inviting interior of a safe, or at the greenbacks and yellowbacks of all denominations which about the room, on tables, on chairs, on the floor—such things were for children. Raging for his comrades to follow him, Gunsdorf rushed the length of the room, found the back stair down which Barclay had retreated, and came in less time than it takes to tell it to the service court at the back of the house.

But nobody followed Gunsdorf. The open safe, the scattered files, stopped men as a solid cliff might have done. Vengeance was forgotten, and the crowd began to loot. When Gunsdorf reached the courtyard the gates were half open. On strong steel brackets fixed to the back of the car were two spare rims, with inflated tires. These formed a resting place for Gunsdorf's feet and a grip for his hands.

Through Central Park, out Seventh avenue, across McComb's Dam bridge to Jerome avenue, through Fordham to the Pelham Parkway, into New Rochelle, and out through Mamaroneck, Rye, Portchester, the car flew. And like grim death, his purpose never swerving, Gunsdorf clung to the spare tires. The old fishing town of Giddings was dark as sin.

The car ran half way through the little town, descended to the wharves, and stopped. Gunsdorf was the first to alight; he slipped into the shelter of a shed that smelt of fish and flung himself to the ground. Lying there, writhing with pain and exhaustion, he began to recover a little by little from the ordeal through which he had passed, and he was able to keep an eye on the men who were swarming about him. He hated, and to listen to what they had to say to each other and to the fisherman whom they routed from his bed, and who finally, for a prodigious sum of money consented to venture out in the easterly storm that was brewing and carry them and their luggage to Gull Island.

The Mary Nye lay in the lee of the long wharf near the end. Amidships was a hold, formerly used as a container for codfish. The hatchway giving access to this hold was open, and into it Gunsdorf descended. The little cabin aft was cleaner. It would be the choice of the triumvirate for their own quarters. Gunsdorf was half crazy with fatigue. In a far corner of the hold he found a pile of sacking and flung himself down on them. But there was something hard among them that hurt him. He groped for this, and found that it was a powerful, two-handed augur, fixed with an inch and a half bit.

He pushed it to one side and in a moment was sound asleep. Barclay was restless; the cabin was stuffy and verminous; he preferred the deck and the open air. So it happened that in passing the main hatch in a lull of the wind, he heard a sound as of a man snoring. He had left Semmes and Sturtevant commanding the discomfited of the two men and the boy forward. Gradually it dawned upon Barclay that the presence on the schooner of a man unknown and uninvited was not pleasant. So he descended into the hold, struck a match, and had a look at the sleeper's face. Then very softly he returned to the deck, half closed the hatch, and thrusting his head through the opening that remained, he called loudly, "Wake up, the reef!"

"The snores ceased and were followed by a kind of sleepy groaning. "Gunsdorf," called Barclay in a sharp, incisive voice, "can you hear me?" "I hear you." "What are you doing on this boat?" "No answer." "Well, you'll not be able to do any mischief. You seem to like it down here. I am going to close this hatch so that you can't open it. You will not get out until the boat is back in an undertone. The captain is a safe man. You will not find out from him where I have been set ashore. So good-night to you."

Gunsdorf's answer was to fire two wild shots from his automatic. Barclay slammed the hatch to and succeeded in fastening it so that it could not be opened from below. Then he went once more to the captain and talked to him for some time in an undertone. After that he awoke Sturtevant and Semmes to tell them what had happened. "He's been insane for some time," said Sturtevant. "He wouldn't stop at anything. I hope you caught a stick of dynamite with him. He'd think nothing of blowing himself to pieces if we went too. Gunsdorf had never swerved from his goal. He had only an automatic with a few cartridges in the magazine, and an insane, murderous rage and hatred in his breast. So they'd land somewhere, would they? He'd be carried back to the starting point, would he? Not if he knew it. His ride on the back of the automobile was all in vain, was it? He'd show 'em—d—'em!"

And his hands, their strength refreshed by having there, when he was dreading, sought and bore a hole through the bottom of the schooner. He would drown, but so would they! After a time the edge of the hole he was boring became damp, water began to trickle from the bit, then to drip, and finally, when the bit went clean through, and withdrew, it was spouted upward as from a garden hose. Gunsdorf laughed aloud and at once began to bore a hole. When he had nearly finished a third the bit broke short off, and Gunsdorf cursed. But the Mary Nye was taking in a good deal of water, and the failure of the bit only seemed to have postponed the time when the sea should close over her. But in the book of fate the Mary Nye was not destined to perish by water alone. Among her heterogeneous cargo which had not been unloaded from the small hold back of the main hold were two sacks of unslacked lime. After a time a trickle of water found its way to these, and they began to smoke. The first person to be aware of the smoke was Gunsdorf. When he smelled it his heart almost stopped beating. He was so frightened. Water and dynamite had no terror for him, but death by fire had always been his nightmare. He was like a man waking after a great drunkenness, during which he has committed some crime which, to his frenzied brain at the time of its commission had seemed a reasonable and even a meritorious thing to do, but the memory of which makes the same brain, the fumes of alcohol gone, a prey to the most awful terror and remorse. What madness to suppose that such a man as Barclay would stay by the Mary Nye till she went down? She carried a boat for just such an emergency. But he (Gunsdorf) while the others rowed merrily off, would be left to drown in the dark. From the eastern cliffs, which received the onslaught of the open sea, Tommy and Celestia walked to those lower western cliffs and seated themselves, ostensibly to admire the view, but really to admire each other. The view consisted of grey water, a vast expanse of it, in commotion, and of a vast expanse of sullen grey sky; and, many miles distant, some small schooner beating slowly up to the island. "They must be cooking a bonny breakfast," said Tommy, "judging from the smoke." "Judging by the smoke," said Celestia, "they've got more than one stove."

By George, you are right!" said Tommy. Then, a moment later, with excitement: "She's on fire. That's why the davis are swung outboard. They are waiting till the last moment to lower a boat. Thank the Lord they've got one! I suppose they want to get into the lee of the island. It must be pretty rough out there for a skiff. They're not making much headway, though. She looks very low in the water. Probably leaks like a sieve, and the fire keeps them from getting to the pumps. "Can we do anything to help?" "Not unless the launch has come back from Martells. She went over early for newspapers and supplies. Let's go see."

So they raced off to the landing. The launch had not yet returned, and there was neither sight nor sound of her. "We can't do any good," said Tommy, with a great deal of regret in his voice. "Let's hurry back and see the end of it."

In his explorations of the night before Gunsdorf had noticed the sacks of lime raised from the floor of the hold to keep them from any chance water. Now it dawned upon him it was his own fault that they had gotten wet and generated enough heat to set the ship on fire.

Through what remained of the night and through all the long, anxious morning, Captain Nye and his two men came by Barclay, Semmes, and Sturtevant, had fought like heroes against the fire and water. Captain Nye had suggested bringing the deck and putting him to work, and the effort had been made. The man was disarmed as he came up, wet to the knees and choking with smothered smoke. But at the sight of Barclay all his hate returned. He would not work; they couldn't make him.

"What shall I do?" "When I took the trouble to bore the holes that are sinking her and to start the fire that's burning her?" "All regarded the man with a horror that was akin to awe. Anger succeeded this. "Is that the truth?" asked Captain Nye.

"Yes." Captain Nye motioned to his two men. They seized Gunsdorf, and after a short struggle cast him back into the prison and battered down the hatch. "There's no room for him in the small boat," said Captain Nye; "and there's no more mischief he can do down below."

It was only the fatigue of those who were trying to save her that eventually settled the fate of the Mary Nye. Her captain called the party together. "Thanks all hands" he said. "You've done all men could do. We'll need what strength we've got left to get to shore. So let her burn."

As they were about to step into the boat that bumped alongside but little below the level of the sinking deck, Gunsdorf said curiously, "I can't leave Gunsdorf to die like that." He himself unfastened the hatch. Gunsdorf had climbed upon the ladder to keep out water as long as possible. He saw Barclay slip and he tried to lift him into the boat.

She rode very low in the water and rolled precariously when she had to get to shore. So let her burn. They had to lift him into the boat. She rode very low in the water and rolled precariously when she had to get to shore. So let her burn. They had to lift him into the boat.

The shock of the cold water revived Gunsdorf so that he did not at once drown. He succeeded in getting hold of the boat and keeping his head out of the water. Over the inverted bows Barclay crawled out of the water and lay sprawling on the arched slippery bottom of the boat. From this advantageous position he looked about eagerly to see whom he could help. Of that whole party only Barclay and the boy could swim. Sturtevant and Semmes, if they ever came to the surface, were never seen again by mortal eyes. The boy swam to the boat and climbed up on it with Barclay's help.

Then, for the first time, Barclay saw a recognized face of Gunsdorf. The man's grip was failing, and he knew it. At a little distance Captain Nye floated back downward. His two men came to the surface, came together, clinched and died, each trying to use the other as a ladder by which to climb out of the water. Barclay looked for awhile coldly into Gunsdorf's face, and then looked away.

"For God's sake help me!" Barclay's expression did not change. He did not look at Gunsdorf. "For Christ's sake!" Then the little boy, his teeth chattering, said: "It's pretty to see men drown" and began to blubber. With an oath Barclay reached for Gunsdorf and tried to draw him out of the water. It was a difficult operation. "Steady! Don't get rattled," said Barclay. "You, boy, steady her as much as you can."

And Barclay worked with all his strength to save the wretched man's life. There was a strange look on Gunsdorf's face. It was no longer hatred. There was hope in it; but, more, than that, there was something that was akin to love. A miracle had been wrought in the evil man's heart. Barclay trying to save him! "You're a good man," he said. "I thought you were the devil."

"My man," said Barclay, "I can't get you up here. I'm sorry. My strength has petered out. If it's any comfort to you, I forgive you for what you have done. You've done plenty of evil, too. I guess we both thought we were trying to do good. We looked at life from different angles. You didn't believe that men like me were human beings; I had the same feeling about men like you. I guess that's mostly what's the matter with this world anyway." Holding tightly to Gunsdorf's hand he still managed to keep his head out of water. All this Tommy and Celestia saw from the top of the cliffs. They had recognized the two chief actors in the drama, and Tommy's suspense over the fate of the man who had been good to him was awful to see. It was that quiet suspense that transcends all other and lamentation. "Gunsdorf," said Barclay, "I'm slipping; I can't hold you any longer. I'm sorry."

Toronto, Jan. 27—A moderate disturbance has developed to the westward of great lakes and high pressure with very cold weather covers the Maritime provinces, but continues mild over the greater part of Ontario.

FORECAST—Easterly and southerly winds with occasional rain. Friday, strong south-westerly and westerly winds, clearing, cold; by night.

Ashmead Bartlett, the brilliant war correspondent who has taken issue with Sir Ian Hamilton over the Dardanelles operations, is one of the youngest but best known military writers in the world. He is only 24 years of age, but half of that period has been spent with armies in the field, either as a participant of the fighting or as a war correspondent. As a correspondent he later served through the Boer war as an officer in the British army, went through the Russo-Japanese war as a correspondent, and also saw service in Egypt, the Balkans, and in brief, wherever there has been a war in the last few years Bartlett was on hand. He was on the Majestic when she sank, and while in the trenches had a narrow escape from being blown to pieces by a huge shell. He is lecturing in the United States and in his lectures and interviews stated that certain lots in the world could have forced the Dardanelles, the position being impregnable.

M'UTCHEON BROS GOT $10,000 FROM LOCAL SYNDICATE

Toronto, Jan. 27—At yesterday afternoon's sitting of the McCutcheon trial the dealings of Brantford Investors, Limited, were taken up. Mr. L. W. Whitaker, manufacturer, of that city, who formed the syndicate under the auspices of McCutcheon Bros., being the witness examined. He said the Brantford Investors had put $10,000 into the Braemar property, and that $4,000 had been put into it by Western investors. He himself put $3,000 cash into the Mount Pleasant subdivision at Prince Albert, and got $2,000 stock as commission. He received back $2,000 cash. Fifty of the Mt. Pleasant lots were sold through his office at Brantford. The lots were guaranteed high and dry, but some of the investors complained later that certain lots were flooded, and that the plan was not correct. On this account some of the lots could not be delivered.

Regarding the Weyburn, Sask., lots, Mr. Whitaker said that all the money he received for these was still in the bank, less commissions. In this case also there were complaints, and two or three people were given their money back. The investors had only made their first payment on these lots. They bought the property at the rate of $450 an acre. He identified a letter dated Jan. 8th, 1913, from G. D. McCutcheon, which stated that these lots were being put on the market at the rate of $125 each for inside lots and $150 for corner lots, but that after May 1st, 1913, the price would be increased to $150 for inside and $175 for corner lots. Out of that a commission of $25 a lot was being allowed to the Brantford office, leaving it was intimated a profit of 25 per cent. to the company. The letter concluded with the statement that the shareholders would receive more than 300 per cent. on their money invested.
