Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER XVII.
"But I must, I could not bear that there should be any concealment between us; I could not bear that you should find out for yourself, perhaps months, years hence, that—that you were not the first whom I have promised to love."

The word almost dies on her lips, but she watches it, and his face goes pale for a moment, not at the first announcement, but at the recollection of that first love of hers.

"Well, Dulcie!" he says.

She pauses a moment, it is so hard to tell him, and yet he must be told.

"Archie," she says, "if I were to tell you that I did love—some one else, and loved him very dearly, that I am not sure, not quite sure, that I have even now forgotten him, what would you say?"

He takes her clasped hands in both his, and kisses them gently, then he looks up at her, all his heart in his eyes.

"I should say, Dulcie, that the man who was so lucky as to win your love and—lose it, did not deserve the gift the gods have given him, that he—be he who he may—was not worthy of your love."

She sighs gently, then she looks away.

"That is as regards him, and—now for me?"

"As regards yourself, darling," he says, "I say that you are not the girl to think long of a man who had let you go, even in the face of all sorts of obstacles, and that I am content to wait until you have forgotten him. Content! nay, more than content, for see, darling, am I not the gainer by his folly?"

The tears came into Dulcie's eyes at the tender response.

How delicately he had assumed that the blame was on Hugh's side and none on hers.

"You are very good to me," she says, with a tearful smile.

"Am I?" and he laughs softly.

"Well, don't tell me any more, darling; perhaps, and he looks away from her, "perhaps I know or can guess what it was."

She starts slightly.

"You know?"

"I know or can guess," he says, in a low voice; "and I don't want to know any more, darling! Let the past bury its past; you and I have nothing to do with it. All I want is your love, if not in the present, in the future! Give me that, Dulcie, only give me that, and I shall be content, content! The happiest man alive!"

And he holds out his arms.

She looks at him for a moment in silent wonder at his great love; then she lays her head upon his shoulder, and with a little sob in her voice, murmurs:

"Archie! the woman who couldn't love you must—must be made of stone!"

"And if you were made of stone," he murmurs back, "my love should warm you into life, like that statue of Galatea, which grew into a woman under the sculptor's love! No, darling, I am not fearful of the future. Trust to me, and I will win your love, ay, in spite even of the past!"

Then the door opens, and Lady Brookley, coughing warningly, enters. Dulcie has barely time to struggle out of Archie's long arms before the old lady is in the room.

As for him he does not attempt to rise, but looks up with an impudent smile, as the old lady declares afterward.

"Well, I'm sure!" she says, with much indignation; while her kindly old eyes are twinkling with tearful satisfaction. "This is very pretty! How dare you be so familiar with my companion, Sir Archibald Hope? On your knees, and in my drawing-room, too."

And she stoops and kisses Dulcie, who bends her head for a moment against her bosom.

"Aunt, I'm the happiest man in England!" says Archie, searching for Dulcie's hand, and after some difficulty obtaining it.

"You are the most impudent, I know!" retorts the old lady, her eyes sparkling, her face all dimples.

"She has promised to be my wife!" said Archie, trying to speak calmly, his eyes devouring Dulcie's downcast face.

"Oh! And by 'she' I suppose you mean my companion, Miss Dorriemore?" says Lady Brookley.

"Well, let me tell you, sir, that while the young lady is under my roof, she is, so to speak, under my protection, and that I shall consider whether I shall give my consent or not."

Archie laughs defiantly, and stands upon the hearth-rug, his hands behind his back, his handsome face full of almost boyish happiness.

"And there's Lord Edward, too," goes on the old lady, her hand carressing Dulcie's neck.

"We've got to ask him, sir, you impudent, audacious boy, do you suppose you are going to ride rough shod over us all? What do you think, Edward?" she goes on, turning to the earl, who comes in puffing and blowing.

"Here is a pretty state of things," the boy, if you please, has been abusing our hospitality and persuading this poor, innocent girl that he's in love with her! As if such a thing were possible! I call upon you to assert your authority and put a stop to it!"

"Eh! What?" roars the earl, as if he were shouting from the quarter-deck, and staring at the downcast Dulcie and the triumphant figure on the hearth-rug.

"What?" and he breaks into a fit of laughter, and comes and pats Dulcie on the back as if she were a child and needed encouragement.

"Is that what's in the wind, eh? Well, you're a sly dog, Master Archie! What, come into a man's house and steal the best thing he's got! But, begad!"—with a snort and a shake of the head—"I can't blame you—it's just what I'd have done myself. There's only one thing though, by Jupiter! You aren't half good enough for her!" and he pats Dulcie on the back again.

Archie laughs and looks at Dulcie.

"Didn't I tell you that was what he would say? But it's quite true, sir! There isn't a man born who's half good enough for her. But we have your good wishes, uncle?"

"You have, my boy, you have!" roars the old man. "By Jove, but you're a lucky young dog! You don't deserve it. You're only a hanger-on about town, a club lounge like the rest of 'em! She deserved something better than that. By Jupiter! a girl like Dulcie ought—ought!—with a burst and a solemn shake of the head—"ought to have married a sailor."

There is a general peal of laughter, in which Dulcie's silvery strain chimes in, and in the midst of it she gets up, and followed by Lady Brookley, runs out of the room.

Then Archie explains as much as he thinks needful, and the old earl is soon in a state of excitement and enthusiasm.

"A wonderful girl, my boy," he said, rubbing his hands together, and rolling his eyes—"a perfectly wonderful girl. I give you my word, my dear boy, a room doesn't seem furnished if she isn't in it. She's the only girl I know who can talk without being tiresome, and laugh without making you think of cats! My boy, you are a lucky fellow! And you were sweet on her ever so long, eh? And didn't know she was here? Now, that's what I call Providence, Archie; Providence, my boy! Lor', to think of it! That other fellow might have snapped her up, right from under your nose! Of course you'll have the wedding here, my boy? And look here, by Jupiter! I'll give her away. I don't believe the poor girl has a relative in the world. George, your aunt and I feel like a mother and father to her, and I'll give her away."

Archie shakes the old man's hand gratefully.

"That's just like you, uncle," he says; "but as to a wedding, I am afraid," and he moans; "I dare not say a word to Dulcie about it, just yet. She—she, you see—she might take fright."

"Oh, nonsense!" retorts the earl, sticking his thumbs in his waistcoat pocket. "When a ship's launched, the sooner she sails the better. Take my advice, my boy, and get her to name the happy day. By Jupiter! that's what I did with your aunt; besides, my boy, we're rather anxious you know. I'm not a young man, and I should like to see a youngster to inherit the title. Think it over, Archie, and tell her you can't and won't wait. Nothing like being firm with a woman. That's what I was with your aunt, my boy, and with a bright and jolly laugh, the earl rings the bell for the evening toddy.

"We'll drink her health, Archie," he says, smacking Archie on the back.

"Gad, my boy, we'll have a bowl of punch."

All this is very well, and better still when Dulcie and Lady Brookley come in again, and Archie is allowed to sit on a low chair beside her, while the earl recounts his love adventures, which appear to have been numerous, but which, happily for him, resulted in Lady Brookley as the climax.

It is still better when, the old couple having retired to rest, Archie gets a few minutes with Dulcie as he lights her candle.

"You are not sorry, Dulcie?" he asks, with a smile, anxious and eager.

"You are not regretting what you have done?"

She looks up at him with an answering smile that has no touch of regret in it.

"No," she replies, in a low voice.

"I am not sorry—I do not regret. The only thing I regret is that—that you should have cared for me so long, and that I—"

She stops, but he finishes the sentence for her.

"That you should have been so hard-hearted as to have thought me only half serious. Is that it? Think no more of that, my darling. I would have willingly waited for years to have won you at last. And I have won you, Dulcie, have I not?"

And she lifts her eyes to his.

"Yes," she says—"yes."

And he bends and kisses her.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

As Lady Falconer still goes about the house in Park Lane with her head wrapped in a worsted shawl, and declares that it is quite impossible to go out with "the dear girls," Hugh has to go upon what he calls "duty," and generally drops in at luncheon-time to see if he can do anything in the way of chaperoning them; and he never fails to procure tickets for a concert or a box for the theater.

"Poor Hugh!" says Edie, nestling up to him, "he makes himself a martyr for us girls. He would rather be at that odious club, or riding in the row. Now, wouldn't you, Hugh?"

But Hugh smiles in his grim way, and declares that he is only too pleased to be useful; and after a time he gets accustomed to dropping in, and feels that his life is rather a lonely one.

"Gretnam seems to be getting quite a swell," he says, in his indolent fashion, one afternoon, when the duke had just taken his departure.

"A swell," repeats Lady Falconer, who always manages to find strength to come down to the drawing-room when the duke is announced. "I don't quite understand you, Hugh."

Hugh laughs, and glances at Lucy, who smiles back at him softly.

FOUR DOCTORS DISAGREED

Pains Disappeared After Use of Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wilmington, Del.—"I was suffering from a terrible backache and pains in my side, with bearing down pains and was very nervous. I was always tired, always drowsy, never could get enough sleep and could not eat. I had four doctors and each told me something different. I read of Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I got good results and I now feel better than I have felt for years and I am gaining in weight. I can gladly recommend it to all women."—Mrs. GEORGE W. SEBOLD, 1611 West 4th Street, Wilmington, Del.

Backache and bearing down pains are danger signals which every woman should heed. Remove the cause of these aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound, that good old root and herb medicine. Thousands of women have testified to its virtues. For forty years it has been making women strong, curing backache, nervousness, ulceration and inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularity and periodic pain.

If you want special advice write Lydia E. Finkham Medicine Co. confidential, Lynn, Mass.

Lady Falconer suggests that he should come and live with them, and reminds him that there is one spare room which he could have—it is his own house, by the way—but Hugh declines.

"I should only be a nuisance," he says—"I'm better away. I should want to smoke, and there's no room in this nutshell that I could puff a cigar which wouldn't go all over the house. No, I'll just drop in."

And so he goes on just dropping in, and—perhaps it is by accident that he often finds the girls out, and Lucy Fairfax left in charge, as it were, for Lady Falconer is still too much of an invalid to put in an appearance.

At such times, Lucy Fairfax receives him with a sympathetic smile and her soft eyes, and a little gentle impressiveness that touches him.

Very often at five o'clock he finds himself seated in the coziest chair, with her fairy-like form established at the tea-table; and at those times he feels—well, if not quite happy, at least at peace; for this girl possesses the great charm of adapting herself to the mood of the person in whose company she may be; and her voice, soft and low, falls on Hugh's ear like some subtle music, soothing and flattering. But for that sweet, short dream—that delirium, as he deems it—in which his soul was snared by the heartless Dulcie, he could wish that Lucy Fairfax could always sit beside him there.

Sometimes he resolves that he will forget that short delirious dream, and go back to the time before he fell under its spell—that he will ask Lucy Fairfax to be his wife, and let the past bury its dead; but he cannot bring himself to it yet—not yet.

Very often, before he has quite finished his tea, there comes a ring at the bell, and the servant announces the duke, who also appears to have a liking for the cup which cheers when it is filled by the fair hand of Lucy Fairfax.

It is wonderful how often the great duke drops in at the little house at Park Lane, and Hugh, who is slow to observe such matters, at last notices that his grace looks much younger than of yore; and that he evidently pays more attention to his personal appearance.

"Gretnam seems to be getting quite a swell," he says, in his indolent fashion, one afternoon, when the duke had just taken his departure.

"A swell," repeats Lady Falconer, who always manages to find strength to come down to the drawing-room when the duke is announced. "I don't quite understand you, Hugh."

Hugh laughs, and glances at Lucy, who smiles back at him softly.

LADIES' and MISSES' Winter COATS.

These Coats are all this season's styles and all British made. This means that they are made of woollen materials, which signifies more warmth, and that they will hold their colour better than American made Coats, which as a rule are made of at least 75 per cent. cotton, but which are now being introduced on this market owing to the difficulty of getting British made goods.

However, we have been fortunate in getting a big stock of British Coats, but owing to their late arrival and our being very much pressed for room, we have decided to offer them

NOTHING FROM RUSSIA
LONDON, Nov. 14.—No official report was received from the Russian headquarters today.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—The Inter-Allied War Council was characterized as a "gossiping Council" in a declaration of Premier Painleve to both the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate. He said that the Council, whose troops have been fighting upon this front, have not adhered to this Council, and that negotiations concerning the Russian Council is not directed by the military operations. A general war policy and plans for the allies, and their disposal so as to attain the strongest result possible. The council comprises two representatives from each government. It meets in France at least once a week. It rests upon the inter-allied permanent staff which forms a permanent central organ of information and its technical advisers. The decisions of such Council are of no effect by any particularism. They will have to be made by the respective Governments. It has already heard the objection that it is a unique command. It is open to criticism and from saying that the step was taken is the last in progress.

NOTHING FROM RUSSIA.
LONDON, Nov. 13. No official report was received from the Russian headquarters to-day.

FOR EFFECTIVE WORK.

PARIS, Nov. 13. The Inter-Allied War Committee was characterized as a superior War Council in a declaration read by Premier Painleve to both Senate and Chamber of Deputies to-day. We do not doubt that the United States whose troops have been summoned to fight upon this front will give their adhesion to this Council, said he. Negotiations concerning other fronts will ultimately be carried on with Russia and Japan. The object of the Council is not to direct the details of the military operations but define a general war policy and general plans for the allies, and adapting them to the resources and means at their disposal so as to assure the strongest result possible. The Council comprises two representatives of each government. Normally it will meet in France at least once a month. It rests upon the inter-allied permanent staff which forms at the same time its central organ of information and its technical adviser. The decisions of such Council are not tainted by any particularism as they embrace the battlefields as a whole. They will have to be ratified by the respective Governments. We have already heard the objection that this is a unique command. We don't need a consultation committee. All plans are open to criticism and I am far from saying that the step we have taken is the last in progress to be accomplished, but it is wise to bring into being what is possible instead of waiting for months to obtain something better. M. Painleve said that if a single supreme command some day were possible it would have the need of precisely such an Inter-Allied staff as now would be created by the Superior War Council. Possibly the Superior War Council might fulfill its functions so that it would in fact arrive at unity of command. It would be better to have a thing than a name. The Premier said the British and French Commanders in Chief had come to an arrangement for the extension of the British front at an early date, which it would be injudicious to mention exactly. He referred to the necessity of systematic and complete economic bombardment of resources of the Allies. Britain and France, he concluded, had reached a complete agreement respecting the provisioning of countries which would be put into immediate execution. After a heated discussion on various interpellations, Premier Painleve put the question bluntly: "Has the present Government the confidence of the Chamber? Has it the necessary authority to represent France at the coming Allied conference?" The Government then received a vote of confidence by 250 to 192, a majority of 58, but about 100 members abstained from voting.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Nov. 13. A British official issued to-day says: Belgian troops carried out a successful raid yesterday morning against a hostile post southeast of Neuport. A number of Germans were killed and several were taken prisoners. The entire raiding party returned. Last night the enemy attacked one of our posts northeast to Armentieres, but was repulsed by rifle and machine gun fire. The hostile artillery developed great activity early this morning northeast of Ypres.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Nov. 13. The war office communication to-night reads: Enemy artillery vigorously counter-shelled by us, bombarded our first lines in Champagne in the region of Mortz and at several points of our front in Argonne. Eastern Theatre: Artillery activity was particularly spirited at Cerna bend and west of Lake Ochrida. Rather feeble on the rest of the front. At the Cerna bend and Hill 1060 the artillery action was followed by an enemy attack, which was repulsed by the Italian troops.

ITALIAN OFFICIAL.

ROME, Nov. 13. During the night of Sunday the enemy with renewed greater efforts attempted to attack Mount Gallio, Lorgara, Meletta, Di Gallo front, on Assago Plateau. During the counter-attack following a desperate struggle the enemy was repulsed and suffered serious losses. Well supported by artillery of all calibres, the Ninth Infantry Regiment of the Regia Brigade, and a Vernon Alps battalion distinguished themselves by their bravery. During yesterday afternoon intensive enemy movements, which were the prelude to a new attack, were thwarted effectually and stopped by our artillery. Near Canov, west of Asiago, our 16th storming detachment attacked an enemy detachment and through its capture released some of our men who had been made prisoners during previous actions. From Brenta to the Lower Piave enemy armies which in past days had only been hindered on their advance by rearguard actions and stopped by interruptions on highways have occupied the territory evacuated by us and are now in contact with our line. With the aid of large boats enemy groups succeeded at dawn at Monte San Dona Di Piave, about 23 miles northeast of Venice, in crossing the west bank of the river, at Zenson, and in establishing a "bridgehead. Promptly faced by our troops they were counter attacked and repulsed toward the river bank. During yesterday, despite unfavorable atmospheric conditions, a large number of our aviators bombarded enemy bivouacs on the left bank of the Piave and turned machine gun fire at low altitude on troops marching along a road on the bank of the river.

CORRESPONDENTS RECEIVED.

Headquarters of the Italian Army, Nov. 13. (By Associated Press).—General Diaz, new chief of the general staff, a man of sturdy build, and manner vibrating with energy and reserve force, to-night received the correspondents attached to headquarters. Referring to the presence of those representing the press of Italy and Allied countries, the General said he felt sure of their co-operation at the present solemn moment, adding, "I don't doubt that all will aid in the common end of elucidating and elevating the public mind, so that all may be united towards that victorious end to which our country looks forward even in the difficult and terrific experiences of the present day."

CENTRAL POWERS UNITED.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 13. According to the Koelnische Volks Zeitung, Emperor Charles of Austria referring to the Austro-German alliance declared that the Central Powers were enabled to defeat the efforts of the world in arms during thirty-nine months of war because they were united. Several times during the war, said he, French and British statesmen offered Austria handsome compensations if she would make a separate peace. The Emperor asserted these efforts undoubtedly had considerable effect upon certain nationalities and parties in Austria-Hungary; but, he added, the Hapsburg and Hohenzollern houses were more closely united than ever and the Venetian offensive offered a good lesson as to what their peace policy should be.

CHARGE DENIED.

LONDON, Nov. 13. Reuter's limited is officially authorized to issue a categorical denial, that British statesmen approached Austria with promise of compensations if she would make a separate peace.

THE JEWS IN PALESTINE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. Britain's declaration in favor of the Zionist movement to establish a state for Jews in Palestine, carried with it a proviso that the movement shall not in any way conflict with the rights of the non-Jewish communities now existing in Palestine, it was announced here to-night by the Provisional Zionist Committee. The full text of Britain's proposal as cabled to the committee follows: "His Majesty's Government views with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use its best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing or non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or of rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country."

A BIPLANE FEAT.

NEWPORT NEWS, Pa., Nov. 13. Lieut. Reanati, of the Italian army, in his big Caproni biplane, carrying nine passengers, arrived at Langley field, near Hampton, Va., at 2:43 p.m. covering a distance of 222 miles from Mineola, N.Y., in four hours and two minutes.

WOULD HANG TRAITORS.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 13. The time for the repentance of disloyal and pro-German sympathizers has passed, and the day is at hand when we must decide whether he is for or against America, declared James W. Gerard, American Ambassador to Germany in an address at a Good Conservation mass meeting to-day. Americans are to be congratulated on their efforts to induce the Germans in this country to be loyal but there are still many under the protection of the American flag who are snakes in the grass, said the former Ambassador. The time has come, however, when they must say straightforward whether they are for or against America. We should hang

Life is Scarcely Worth While When the Liver Goes Wrong

It may be putting it too strongly to say that "everything depends on the liver." And yet this is not far astray when you consider what a host of human ills have their beginning in a sluggish, torpid condition of this filtering organ.

You arising in the morning with the tongue coated, a bitter taste in the mouth, and the head aching. You find that you have dizzy spells and are bilious, with looseness and constipation of the bowels alternating.

Your appetite becomes fickle and what you do eat does not digest properly, and you suffer accordingly. Gases from the fermenting food crowd about the heart, and cause smothering feelings and blinding spells.

As the biliousness hangs on the complexion becomes sallow and

Clergyman Had Bilious Attacks for Four Years Now Entirely Cured

Rev. George Alton, Gananoque, Ont. writes: "I had been suffering from bilious attacks for four years. I was very weak, had headaches, and my stomach was so bad that I could hardly eat anything without being troubled by it. I had tried many cures, herbs, pills and salts, and was under the doctor's care for some time, but instead of getting better I seemed to get weaker. I was unable to follow my appointments on Sabbath, and had to secure help. I used to take dizzy spells and could not walk across the floor straight. I had almost given up all hope, and my wife said that if I did not get better, we would have to quit the work of the ministry. However, in looking over 'The British Whiz,' the well-known Kingston paper, I saw Dr. Chase's advertisements in it, and read how Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills had helped others who were troubled as I was. I resolved to give these Pills a trial, and to my surprise, after a short time I obtained relief. I continued taking them for some time, and now I am able to resume my work again. From the benefit I have obtained from these pills, I would recommend them to all who suffer as I did."
—Rev. C. Cunningham, 124 First Avenue, Toronto: "This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Rev. George Alton of Gananoque, and believe his statement with reference to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to be true and correct."

muddy, and dark rings form around the eyes. The whole system is poisoned, the kidneys are overworked in an effort to cleanse the blood, and when they fail such ailments as rheumatism, dropsical swellings and Bright's disease have their beginning.

To prevent this chain of troubles it is necessary to keep the liver active by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The phenomenal success of this medicine is due to the unique combined action which it exerts on the liver, kidneys and bowels.

The liver is aroused, the kidneys are invigorated, the bowels are regulated, and the whole filtering and excretory system is thoroughly cleansed. Pains and aches disappear with the poisons. Digestion improves, and you soon find yourself feeling fine. This letter from Rev. George Alton will interest you.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. President Wilson's speech to the American Federation of Labor is to be printed in various languages and distributed throughout Europe.

DUTCH STEAMER HELD UP.
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Nov. 13. The Dutch steamer, on which Count Von Luxburg, former German Minister to the Argentine, has engaged passage back to Europe, was stopped on the voyage between Rio Janeiro and Montevideo by a British warship. British sailors went aboard the vessel and after examining the documents found there seized some of them.

THE U.S. LOANS.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. A loan of $210,000,000 to France to cover expenditures in this country during November and December was made to-day by the Treasury. This makes the total credits extended to France $1,130,000,000, and the total credits to all the Allies, $3,876,400,000.

MINISTERS RELEASED.
PETROGRAD, Nov. 13. Most of the Ministers of the Kerensky Cabinet who were captured after the eight-hour battle at the Winter Palace last Wednesday night, have been released from the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul. M. Tretychenko and M. Kenavloff are still behind prison walls, as are the military cadets captured in the battle for the telephone exchange on Sunday. The agents of the Committee of Public Safety are gone to Gatchino in an effort to effect a compromise with Premier Kerensky in an All Socialist Conference.

CONVEYANCE FOR LUXBERG.
Buenos Aires, Argentine, Nov. 13.—The Argentine Government has sent a torpedo boat destroyer to the island of Martin Garcia, to bring to this port Count Von Luxberg, expelled German Minister to Argentina, so that he may embark on the Dutch steamer for Amsterdam.

WILSON'S PLEA TAKING EFFECT.
SPEECH.
BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 13. President Wilson's plea to labor to maintain unshaken all processes of labor until Germany had been beaten, received its first answer to-day when the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor ordered a discontinuance of all strikes on the Government work under its jurisdiction. This action was taken after arrangements had been made for the committee of general presidents of building trades to meet here, and confer with President Wilson and other Government officials for the adjustment of existing differences.

While the immediate result of the department's movements will affect only strikes on buildings that are being erected for shipbuilding or manufacture of munitions, it was regarded as a precedent for the adjustment of all differences that might delay the prosecution of the Government's war plans.

ARGENTINA TO GIVE MILITARY AID

BUENOS AIRES, To-day.
It is announced that the Argentine Congress will grant the authorization at an early date to the Government to arrange for a military mission to France and a naval mission to England or the United States. The newspapers comment favorably on the proposal.

WHAT IS WANTED.

LONDON, To-day.
The Russian charge d'affaires made the announcement in an interview yesterday afternoon. "The Russian Embassy and all Russian officials in London wish it known that they do not recognize the authority of the band of traitors who have temporarily gained the upper hand in the capital and call themselves the Russian Government."

RAILWAYS EMPLOYEES TO ASK FOR HIGHER WAGES.

NEW YORK, To-day.
Demands for wage increases averaging 42 per cent. are involved in the secret vote being taken this week by the conductors and brakemen on all railroads in the United States.

NOW WE SHALL WIN THE WAR.

LONDON, To-day.
The Daily Graphic prints the following: "The Duke of Marlborough is 46 to-day. Both he and his Duchess are at Blenheim Palace. In view of the fact that the Duke and the Duchess, who was formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt of New York, have been separated for a number of years, the children spending part of the time with their mother and part with their father, this announcement is causing great interest in social circles."

ITALIAN PRIDE TOUCHED.

ROME, To-day.
The spirit of the Italian people appears to be stiffening daily. The pride of the people have been deeply touched by recent events. There have been many callers at the American Embassy to salute Ambassador Page that the nation will resist to the utmost. "We have never made peace, explained one prominent editor. We may become homeless, we may starve like the Belgians, but never peace."

PRaise LLOYD GEORGE.

PARIS, To-day.
French newspapers praise the speech made here on Monday by Lloyd George. The Temps approves of the British Premier's frankness and says it took courage to acknowledge the Italian disaster and to admit the loss of two hundred thousand prisoners and two thousand five hundred guns.

FALL OF FRENCH MINISTRY.

PARIS, To-day.
The Painleve Ministry was defeated by a direct vote in the Deputies to-day and later resigned. This is the first time such action had been taken by the Chamber since the beginning of the war, as up to the present it has been a point of honor with many Deputies not to vote against Government but to express criticism by abstaining from recording their vote. Strong dissatisfaction with the Government's handling of the Bolo Panhs affair is believed to be the motive which changed passive discontent to active opposition. Two other things thought to have had part in the downfall of the Cabinet were the Premier's statement exonerating M. Malvy, former Minister of the Interior and the fiasco attending the prosecution of Lactin Francaise. The ministerial crisis comes on the eve of the Inter-Allied Conference and every effort will be made to settle it quickly. President Poincare will begin consultations with the political leaders to-morrow morning.

TIMES CRITICISES COUNCIL PLAN

LONDON, To-day.
In a review of the proposed War Council, the military correspondent of the Times says that the desirability for the closest co-operation is self-evident and has already been recognized by the Allies. But he is not enthusiastic for the plan as explained at present. Among other points he contends that the purview of the Council should embrace all of the fronts, not only the western. He says that the advisory committee must contain naval as well as military representatives. The writer maintains that the commanders in the field will disapprove of attempts by the committee to interfere with their plans and believe that if their opinions regarding the Council could be made known they would be wholly unfavourable.

STOCKHOLM, To-day.
Kerensky has returned to Petrograd, according to a despatch received from a correspondent of the Swedish News Agency at Haparanda on the Russian border.

SAYS CANNOT SEND JAP TROOPS

TOKIO, To-day.
The Minister of War informs the Japanese newspapers that the despatch of troops to Europe is an absolute impossibility, owing to tremendous cost and lack of tonnage. The Minister of Finance in a lengthy article in the newspapers declared that the Japanese army is deficient in ordnance.

GERMAN HYPOCHRISY.

BERLIN, To-day.
The Berlin press generally gives a friendly reception to the peace manifesto of the Russian Maximilists. The Vorwarts, a Socialist organ, and the Germania, a Catholic organ, both raise the question as to whether the Bolshevik will retain power in Russia. The question as to whether the belaguerants are ready for a three months' armistice for the purpose of discussing peace, the Vorwarts says, can only be answered by the German Government affirmatively, declaring at the same time it does not intend to annex or consent to annexation of Germany's cost. "Whatever Germany has to say concerning annexation, it adds, is contained in the Reichstag resolution of July 19 and in the German reply to the Pope."

ANGLO-AMERICAN COMMISSION DOING WELL.

LONDON, To-day.
Col. House, head of the American Mission, called the members to conference yesterday and received reports on the progress of their deliberations with their British colleagues. He expressed himself pleased with the splendid spirit of co-operation manifested. The reports showed the discussions had accomplished much.

THE BATTLE OF THE PIAVE.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, Nov. 13th.—The Piave line still holds in the main against heavy and continuous artillery fire from the eastern bank and efforts of the Austro-Germans to cross the stream. These efforts have not taken the proportions of a general movement but several battalions crossed the river on pontoons near Zenon. The Italian artillery concentrated its fire on the raiding parties, either destroying them in midstream or pushing them back on the river bank. Fighting here was desperate and sanguinary. Men who have returned from the batteries along the Piave say the German fire is extremely heavy but from middle calibre guns. Chief attention is now directed toward (unfinished).

McMurdo's Store News

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 14, '17.
We are greatly pleased to be able to announce the arrival of a full stock of our famous Cod Liver Oil Emulsion. This emulsion is prepared for us by one of the most reliable firms of operative chemists in England and is in every way worthy of its origin and of our name. Containing a liberal proportion of pure, fresh cod liver oil, it is perfectly emulsified and is as palatable as raw cream, and no child, however fastidious, will refuse to take it. In addition to the oil, the emulsion contains the hypophosphites, which are tonic and nerve building in action. And it is in addition the lowest priced Cod Liver Emulsion in the market, a ten ounce bottle retailing for 70 cents.

The Clyde left Moreton's Hr. at 11.25 a.m. yesterday.
The Dundee left Bonavista at 4 p.m. yesterday, outward.
The Erie left Brig Bay at 2.40 p.m. yesterday, going north.
The Glenora arrived at St. John's at 4.10 a.m. to-day.
The Home left Pilley's Island at 10.25 a.m. yesterday, outward.
The Wren not reported since leaving Clarenville.
The Diana arrived at Cartwright yesterday, coming south.

Ferrets for the Front.

The little consequences of the war are numberless and often inexplicable. This country, before the war, bred ferrets for the world, and then the world forgot it wanted them. Now they are being rapidly mobilized. At Mr. Hamlyn's place by the London Docks the writer recently watched hundreds of these lithe, active, and vicious creatures being packed by men wearing stout leather gauntlets. They were going to France. Many of them were destined for the Somme, and to a village there no longer on the map.

Anyone who knows the old battleground of the Somme will guess the reason for the ferrets. They are to fight the rats. The west side of that area swarms with rats—as big as rabbits—which flourish in the endless galleries in the chalk hills left by the Germans.

They have become so impudent that the big ones will dispute a narrow alley when approached. A systematic attempt is being made to reduce them. Another curious result of the war is that numbers of parrots have been made homeless. Their owners have been called up and have been forced to send them to the wild-beast dealer as the only known address. The grey African parrot in bulk was nothing new before the war, when steamers came in from the Gulf of Guinea. But it is entirely strange to find a large congress of acclimatized birds conversing with a combined vocabulary that would make the interruptions at a peace meeting sound like a dead silence.—Tit-Bits.

AT THE CRESCENT.

A great four reel Vitagraph Broadway Star feature, entitled "On Her Wedding Night," is the headliner at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. All the prominent Broadway stars, including Edith Story, Louise Baudet, Antonia Moreno and Carolyn Birch are featured in this great social drama. Kate Price, supported by an all star comedy cast, is presented in "The Patent Food Conveyor," a unique and lively comedy. The musical programme is a feature of this great mid-week show. Don't miss seeing it.

Thirteen—Lucky No.

All patriotic Americans ought to share President Wilson's belief that thirteen is the lucky number of the United States. The Union originally consisted of thirteen States, the Declaration of Independence was signed by thirteen men, and there were thirteen stars in the original flag under which the Colonists fought their successful revolt.

There is a Thirteen Club which meets in Room 13 at the Holborn Restaurant, sets thirteen tables, and sits thirteen at a table, if possible, and always has its knives set crosswise; but America has a Friday-Thirteenth Club, which meets whenever Friday falls on the thirteenth of the month.

Its president considers himself the luckiest of men. He was born on Friday, 13th, graduated on Friday, 13th, met his fiancée on Friday, 13th, and got married on the same day and date a little later on.

The late Pierpont Morgan used to defy Fate by housing his art treasures, which were priceless, at 13, Prince's Gate. But it is a fact that a tenth of the London streets are minus this number. There is no thirteen in the Strand, Holborn, Westbourne Grove, the Haymarket, St. James's St., Lowndes Square, Park Lane, Threadneedle Street, Tokenhouse Yard, or London Street.—Tit-Bits.

Becoming Clothes for Men!

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Do men, as a rule, I wonder pick out their clothes with any definite effort to get something becoming? Or do they look upon clothes as something required by law and the climate and not worth spending any thought upon?

When one sees a man who seems to have considered the question of becomingness in picking out clothes he stands out so distinctly from the rest, that I suspect the latter is the case.

I know that some of my masculine readers are backing away from the very idea of picking out clothes to become them. They are stigmatizing it as foppish and unmasculine.

Not Against Nature

I don't think that it is necessarily so, by any means.

Nor against nature. The male bird, remember, has the brighter plumage. Of course I should not like to see a man who put so much stress on clothes that he neglected his business for them, or starve himself for the sake of fine things to wear.

But I do not see why an intelligent selection of those clothes which by their color and fit bring out his best points and his worst, is anything a man should be ashamed of.

Why Not Harmonious Clothes?

I like to see a man whose clothes have some distinct relation to his personal appearance. For instance, take a man with iron grey hair. Put him in a brown suit and a blue necktie, say. He has no distinction. Put him in a suit just the right shade of grey, and either a grey or black tie (or a tie of some vivid unusual color to contrast), a white, grey or black and white shirt, silver or gun metal cuff links and a scarf pin (if he wears any) that carries out the same color scheme, and he gratifies the eye.

Some men I know will laugh at my mention of these smaller details but I like to see things match. Of course I don't mean the colored handkerchief, tie and socks kind of matching. That's too obvious, too bought by the box. I mean some deliberate selection from his wardrobe as I have mentioned.

Most Men Look Well in Dark Blue

Some men are wonderful in the right shade of brown (not too pronounced a brown); some men look their best in dark blue and almost all men look well in it (just as a plain dark blue suit is the safest choice for the average woman). Out, too, makes a whole lot of difference with men. I don't know much about the subject but I do know that short men and especially short men with an inclination toward being fatter than they once were, ought to be very careful what cut they wear. Belted, skimpy coats for instance are fatal to them. Tall men can be more reckless.

No, I wouldn't give two pence for a man whose mind was always on his clothes, any more than you would, reader friend, but I don't see why a man shouldn't show his taste, if he has any selecting becoming instead of unbecoming things to wear, and in combining the different parts of his wardrobe harmoniously.

THE POSTOFFICE ELECTION

The postoffice election is a successful method of inciting a peaceful, law-abiding community to riot and bloodshed. It is seldom resorted to except by congressmen who do not expect to be re-elected, and who therefore would just as soon see the people rule as not.

There are only two ways in which a vacancy can be created in a postoffice that pays over $80 a year, and that is by death or removal, as postmasters never resign except at the urgent request of some United States marshal. But when a vacancy does occur, a new postmaster can be made out of the raw material in the community before the other candidates have time to reach Washington. Sometimes the material used is so raw that a protest goes into postoffice department and is at once placed on file until the judgment day.

When there are six candidates for the postoffice, all of whom can deliver more votes than a two-ton truck, the congressman looks the field over and decides that he believes in popular government. He then calls an election and retires to the storm cellar equipped with a life belt and gas respirator, leaving the result in the hands of Providence and the country central committee.

A postoffice election is always accompanied by acrimonious charges and counter charges, and by the time the polls have closed every candidate stands before the community in his true light, ready to be indicted by the grand jury for nameless crimes which he thought had been forgotten when he joined the church. Many a man with fine family connections and a spotless name has emerged from a postoffice election with a criminal record longer than a missionary sermon, and has been obliged to resign from the board of deacons on account of ill health. Every candidate who is defeated lies low until the fall elections, when he loads up a seven-passenger touring car with aggrieved relatives and posts them at the polls with split ballots and a vindictive spirit. As a result, the congressman who calls several postoffice elections in rapid succession, stands about as much show as a Percheron draft horse with the spring half in a hurdle race. The postoffice election is a good thing when it happens in some other town.

LOOKING FOR PEACE.

WALT MASON

I'm longing for the boon of peace, that's been for weary years mislaid; I yearn to see the struggle cease, and captains seeks some milder trade. Who is not weary of the strife, of war with greedy, reckless jaws? Methinks the whole world and his wife would hail such boon with glad hurrahs. The world is dark without this boon, the large smooth boon of which I write; at noon I croon a yearning tune, I sigh for it at morn and night. But when the boon at last appears, it ought to bear the guarantee that nevermore in coming years will war lords wield the snickershee. I would not give a rusty prune, I would not give a rind of cheese, for any tinhorn, misfit boon that's bound to bag around the knees. I hear some fellows boasting peace, regardless of the brand on tap; but as I've said to Jane, my niece, this has to be the last big scrap. Until the captains are agreed, and make their vow, so help them, John, that armaments must go to seed, oh, let the dreary fight drag on! Still sound the drum and loud bassoon, still ply the claymore and the gun, until we have an all-wool boon, that will not ravel, rip or run!

Fads and Fashions.

Suits trimmed with buttons covered with the same material.

Sleeves are short for day wear and often long on evening gowns.

Wolf fur is so beautifully treated this year as to be almost like fox.

There are Chinese tunics of gorgeous silk. They open on the side.

Jersey cloth is still important material in fashionable dressmaking.

Some coats have the body made entirely of fur, with a full skirt of satin.

White satin and white buttons make a chic trimming for a black velvet dress.

Prospero Back From North.

The s.s. Prospero, Capt. A. Kean, returned from the northward last night, bringing a full freight, principally codfish and cod oil, and the following passengers: H. Maddock, L. Hoyle, T. Bussey, H. Heiler, E. Andrews, H. Dean, L. Reid, L. Rolf, W. Wicks, F. Ropson, C. Hynes, W. Hewlett, S. Compton, T. Hewlett, W. Hewlett, H. Pierce, W. Locke, H. Cooper, A. Butler, P. Sullivan, F. Hynes, C. The ship made the round trip in the excellent time of twelve days, though occasional bad weather was experienced, and all ports of call were made going and returning from Quirpon.

Capt. Kean reports a good sign of fish along the coast, but very little was caught, owing to continuous stormy weather. The weather was very frosty when the Prospero was coming south.

The outlook for a big herring voyage in Green Bay is exceedingly bright from present indications, we learn. Those engaged are well supplied with gear and with the fish plentiful a record catch is expected.

The Prospero carried an unusually large number of passengers during the round trip, and being well satisfied with the efforts of Chief Steward Miller and staff.

Two patients, one for the Hospital and the other for the Lunatic Asylum, came along on the ship.

Prisoner of War Writes Home.

The following is the first letter received by Mrs. Earles, 28 Cabot street from her son Pte. James Earles, since he was taken prisoner on April 14th: July 17, 1917.

Dear Mother,—Just a few lines to let you know I am well, hoping you are the same. I was captured the 14th of April and am getting treated very good. I would like a parcel of food from you. The last letter I got from you was some time in March. Remember me to all the people. Tell them I wish to be remembered to them. Ned Martin is a prisoner of war; he is wounded in the leg, he was wounded alongside of me. I don't know when he will be out of hospital. Stan Halfyard wishes to be remembered to Charlie Noseworthy. Whatever you do don't forget to send me some cigarettes and matches; when you write to me tell me all the news. I must close my letter by wishing you good-bye. From your loving son,
J. J. EARLES.

Hr. Grace Notes.

We are having our first touch of winter weather to-day, a sort of introduction to the weather the young people as a rule are so pleased with.

Mr. Albert Rogers left on Saturday evening's train for St. John's, en route to Catalina (Port Union) where he will represent Harbor Grace Council, F. P. U. at the convention now being held there.

It is a pity the Reid Company cannot see some better way to accommodate the travelling public than at present. The train that left here at 5.30 on Saturday evening pulled up at the station in St. John's early on Sunday morning. There are many instances of such weary drives.

Mrs. Robert Donnelly of Riverhead died suddenly on Sunday morning. The funeral took place this forenoon and was largely attended.

Mr. George Stewart of Bell Island came here in his motor boat on Saturday evening, and returned to the Island again on Sunday evening.

The Shipbuilding Company took on a number of men on Monday in addition to those already employed. The Company is continually increasing its staff. Quite a number of outport families have settled down in this town since the Company commenced work.

THE MODERN FIGURE.

The modern corset for the beauty figure is a bit higher busted, and curves in a way bit more at the waist than they have for a decade past; but the finished effect is one of suppleness and natural curves. Anything like rigidity or the stiffness caused by tight lacing is avoided and the new corset is quite as comfortable as the almost boneless model, reaching just above the waistline, which the "natural figure" demanded. Figures are better taken care of by the corset, which offers a little support to the bust and rises just high enough above the waistline not to cut into the flesh when they wear bends or sits, as the very low-girdle corset was apt to do. This support of the bust is essential in the new basque frocks or the snug-fitting girde dividing bodice and skirt. If they are fitted over a low-bust corset, the unsupported bust bulges over the upper edge and gives a bad line.

The brassiere is an important adjunct to the modern figure, for the new corset cover of net and chiffon are soft and transparent and something must be worn to hide the corset and break the top line. If outer blouse is not of transparent stuff, brassiers and corset cover may be combined in one garment. The material must be firm enough to hold the figure, but under the lace blouse or chiffon bodice, which demands an equally flimsy corset cover, must be worn a little brassiere of one sort or another.

Velvet is used for afternoon gowns as frequently as satin. Golden otter is a rare and beautiful fur for the new collars.

Everyday Etiquette.

"When meeting a servant in the household of one of my friends on the street, is it proper for me to speak to them?" asked Maud.

"It would show ill breeding for one not to speak to any respectable people that you know when meeting them on the street. It is, however, the servant's place to speak first. In such case you should acknowledge the greeting," said her mother.

Fads and Fashions.

The blue serge frock is essential to the finished wardrobe.

The ring watch has taken the place of the wrist watch.

Some most becoming evening gowns are made of velvet.

Bloomers are inspired by the mandarin garb of China.

Duchesse and Valenciennes laces are combined on fingerie.

Swagger caps for young girls are very much like aviation caps.

LLOYD GEORGE BACK.
LONDON, To-day.
David Lloyd George, British Premier, returned to-day from the continent, where he has been in attendance upon the Inter-Allied Conference. The Premier was accompanied by Eltherton Venizelos, the Greek Premier. They were met at the station by A. J. Balfour, British Secretary for foreign affairs.

GERMAN ARTILLERY ACTIVE.
LONDON, To-day.
An announcement by the War Office to-night on the campaign says: During the day enemy artillery has shown increased activity at a number of points on the Ypres battle front. Hostile shelling has been particularly heavy throughout the day against our positions in the neighbourhood of Passchendaele.

BERLIN REPORT.
BERLIN, To-day.
A supplementary report this evening reads: In the west, the east and Macedonia nothing special has occurred. South of Sngana Valley on the Italian front further high positions have been captured.

WAR SUMMARY.
The Italians apparently are holding the Teutonic Allies fast along the greater part of the curving battle front extending from Lake Garda, south of the Trentino region, to the Adriatic Sea. Small gains have been reported for the Teutons on the northern front, and at one point along the southern reaches of the Piave River

NAVAL AERIAL REPORT.
LONDON, To-day.
An Admiralty statement dealing with aerial activity of the British naval forces on Monday says: On the afternoon of November 12th naval aircraft carried out a bombing raid on Vissegheem (Belgium) airdromes; several bombs were dropped on the objectives. Visibility was only fair owing to a haze. During patrols which have been carried out several engagements with enemy aircraft have taken place, in one of which a hostile scout was shot down in flames. All of our machines returned safely.

WE LEAVE THIS TO OUR READERS.
PARIS, To-day.
The resignation of the ministry followed its defeat in the Chamber of Deputies by a vote of 277 to 186. Professor Paul Painleve organized the Cabinet on September 14th and succeeded Alexandre Ribot as Premier, whose ministry resigned on September 7th. The new Cabinet, which consisted of fifteen ministers, four ministers of state and eleven under secretaries, came immediately under fire of the Socialists, who were opposed to Ribot as Foreign Minister. The Cabinet resigned on Oct. 22nd, but President Poincare refused to accept the resignation on the ground that the Chamber had voted confidence in the Ministry. Ribot was then eliminated from the Cabinet, being succeeded by J. Louis Barthou as head of the foreign office. The re-constituted Government received a vote of confidence of 228 to 137; the opposition votes were partly from the Socialists, partly from the Radical Socialists. The vote seemed to indicate hesitation on the part of the Chamber to defeat the Ministry by a direct vote during the war. After reading his declaration, Premier Painleve said he accepted discussion of the Government's diplomatic and military, but not interior policy. The question of current scandals being thus barred, Abel Ferry condemned the new war council as merely an Inter-Allied Secretariat Bureau. Deputy Millerand advocated the appointment of a Generalissimo for the Allies. The Premier replied: that even if we could have such a Generalissimo disposing of all the Allied troops to his fancy he would need a permanent Inter-Allied general staff. Why demand the impossible and not accept the possible? M. Renaudel said the Socialists refused to vote confidence in the Government; this accounts virtually for all the abstentions.

CADORNA REFUSES TO ACT ON COMMITTEE.
PARIS, To-day.
The Temps correspondent on the Italian frontier says that General Cadorna, former Commander-in-Chief, has declined the offer to represent Italy on the Inter-Allied Military Committee.

The "Boston" BARGAIN HOUSE

Let the Representatives of the People

Visit Their Constituencies in an Effort to Stimulate Recruiting.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—People can see through the game of the cute politicians who fear to raise their voices in their constituencies in an effort to stimulate recruiting. They are running with the hare and hunting with the hound, they are pretending to be loyal to the Crown while at the same time they shrink from the possibility of arousing any ill feeling in the minds of their constituents because of an appeal to the young men to rally to the recruiting station. Do those putty hearted individuals think for a moment that they are fooling any one by such miserably weak tactics, do they imagine that the people are so blind as not to see through their game? Pro-Germans, what other name do they deserve; are they aiding the enemy when they refuse to help their country in its hour of need? They as representatives of the people are or should be powerful enough to arouse the indifferent ones amongst their constituents into a realization of what it means to be a slacker at this critical period of the war. But instead of doing their duty like public men should do, we find them enjoying life, living luxuriously and going their round of pleasure day by day as if a terrible war never existed. The general public surely cannot be blamed if they hang back and show war weariness, indifference, or don't-give-a-hang-about-h-o-w-it-goes when they see the men who should be taking the matter seriously doing nothing outside of adding to their riches. Some people will tell you that our Patriotic Committees have done wonders, but I fall to see it. What would be considered wonders in the patriotic line in an ordinary war count but little in this inferno that threatens to sweep over the world and make us slaves instead of free men. Do not let us console ourselves with the false consolation that we have or are doing anything wonderful. Much more, infinitely more will have to be done before we will find ourselves breathing the air of freedom. We are not breathing it today. We only persuade ourselves we are. Sir Edward Morris should be here stampeding the country in an effort to convince the thoughtless of the danger that is coming our way if the Germans win the war. Sir Robert Bond should drop any personal feelings that he may be nursing of the treatment that has been handed out to him and show his loyalty by forgetting the past and coming into the fight to help to win it by using his oratory in boosting recruiting. This is no time for taking it easy, this is no time for nursing old sores. This is a time when all must push and work together. And until our men who are recognized leaders of the people go into the work, not in playing acting style but with true, honest sincerity we will not have the hearts of the people stirred.

There is too much hypocrisy in evidence, the people know of it and they want the programme changed. This is plain talk and some people may be silly enough to think it better unsaid. But let those who think that way go more about among the masses and they will discover that nothing can be published that the people are not conversant with already. The public are not fools, you cannot win the war by simply telling the people that we must win. There has been too much sunshine talk in this country and now it is difficult to arouse people to a true realization of the situation. Let there be no more codology. Let every member of the Assembly show that he is in earnest by immediately going into his district and telling the people the truth. The truth may be bitter, it will mean that hardships and privations must be faced, it will mean that the young men must enlist, it will mean that we must quit playing with war and realize that if we would continue to live as freemen we must make sacrifices. Any representative of the people who shirks his duty at a time like this is not fit to sit in the Assembly. He is a coward, he is worse—he is a traitor to the country that has honoured him with a position of trust.

Yours truly,
WATCHMAN,
St. John's, November 13th, 1917.

Stafford's Prescription "A"
Cure for diseases of the Stomach: Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Gastritis and Nervous Dyspepsia.—nov6,tf

Lieut. Tom Commors.
Writing to a friend in the city, Lieutenant Tom Commors, who left here with the "blue puttees" and was later transferred to H. M. Navy, states that he has been doing duty the past fifteen months in the Mediterranean, having resigned from the Trawler on which he was first appointed, when volunteers were called for the work in which he is now engaged. He is enjoying good health and life in the navy. He said he had not met a Newfoundlander for more than a year and for a similar period had not heard anything about the doings of our Regiment. He received very few letters and only a couple of papers. He had the pleasure of meeting in Portsmouth some time ago, he adds, Mr. Hirst, a former teacher of Bishop Feild College, and both spent an enjoyable day. Lieut. Commors expects to be home on a visit next year.

Our Volunteers.
The following young men offered at the recruiting stations for the Regiment yesterday:
W. H. Mackay, Channel.
J. Fyampton, Burin.
W. R. Taylor, Burin.
G. Moores, Broad Cove, B.D.V.
A. Lush, St. John's.
W. Hiscock, Winterton, T.B.
L. St. George, St. John's.
W. Wells, Salvage, B.B.

Home From Labrador.
The vessels Jessie J. with 640 qtls. of fish; the L. and S. with 500 qtls. and the Rowena with 216 qtls, have arrived at Carbonear from the Labrador. The schooners Kestrel and Eclipse have returned to Harbor Grace from the Labrador with 1,180 and 190 qtls. of fish, respectively.

True Bill Against Robert Strickland.
After hearing the evidence of the Crown in the charge of manslaughter against Robert Strickland, master of a schooner which collided with a fishing boat, killing the occupant, an elderly man named William Ingram, on Sept. 13th, the Grand Jury brought in a True Bill. Strickland, at the time of the accident was proceeding from Isle au Moris to Port aux Basques and, it is claimed, failed to keep a lookout. The weather at the time was clear and the water smooth.

Now Total Wreck.
The American schooner James Rothwell, which ran ashore in St. Mary's Bay a short while ago, is now a total wreck, there being only a small portion of her hull left. Her cargo of lubricating oil, which she was taking to France, has been drifting around the bay in all directions. Several hundred casks have been picked up by the fishermen, about 300 of which have already been shipped to St. John's.

Can You Beat This?
A robe of snow is seen to-day on "Dear Old Southside Hill," and in another week or two we soon will have our fill. The roads around St. John's will be composed of slush and sleet, and then you'll need the best of boots to wear upon your feet. So "put your little hand in mine" and I will make a bet, that from the Cleland Rubber Co. the very best you'll get. So let you come along with me, and buy a pair to-day, the well established Buddys', and their color now is grey. These boots were never equalled in the present or the past; Saint Crispin never took a pair to beat them from his last; all over Newfoundland they wear the Buddy boots, we're sure; folks write and say they never wore the like of them before. We wouldn't be surprised to hear that when the Allies win, that Buddy boots "Our Boys" may wear when marching to Berlin; although we don't indulge in bets, yet we'll bet three to one, that the fishermen of Newfoundland the most boots they put on are Buddy boots; and everywhere that you may stray from Cape St. Francis all along the coast up to Cape Ray, the Buddy boots you'll surely find in every place for sure, the same boots from Conception Bay right down to Labrador. So now before we'll have the frost the slush, the snow and sleet, go down and buy a pair to wear upon your tender feet. There's thousands as we told you, say these boots they "beat the band," we've Buddy boots for men and youths the best in Newfoundland. nov14,11

Lieut. Tom Commors.

Writing to a friend in the city, Lieutenant Tom Commors, who left here with the "blue puttees" and was later transferred to H. M. Navy, states that he has been doing duty the past fifteen months in the Mediterranean, having resigned from the Trawler on which he was first appointed, when volunteers were called for the work in which he is now engaged. He is enjoying good health and life in the navy. He said he had not met a Newfoundlander for more than a year and for a similar period had not heard anything about the doings of our Regiment. He received very few letters and only a couple of papers. He had the pleasure of meeting in Portsmouth some time ago, he adds, Mr. Hirst, a former teacher of Bishop Feild College, and both spent an enjoyable day. Lieut. Commors expects to be home on a visit next year.

Our Volunteers.

The following young men offered at the recruiting stations for the Regiment yesterday:
W. H. Mackay, Channel.
J. Fyampton, Burin.
W. R. Taylor, Burin.
G. Moores, Broad Cove, B.D.V.
A. Lush, St. John's.
W. Hiscock, Winterton, T.B.
L. St. George, St. John's.
W. Wells, Salvage, B.B.

Home From Labrador.

The vessels Jessie J. with 640 qtls. of fish; the L. and S. with 500 qtls. and the Rowena with 216 qtls, have arrived at Carbonear from the Labrador. The schooners Kestrel and Eclipse have returned to Harbor Grace from the Labrador with 1,180 and 190 qtls. of fish, respectively.

True Bill Against Robert Strickland.

After hearing the evidence of the Crown in the charge of manslaughter against Robert Strickland, master of a schooner which collided with a fishing boat, killing the occupant, an elderly man named William Ingram, on Sept. 13th, the Grand Jury brought in a True Bill. Strickland, at the time of the accident was proceeding from Isle au Moris to Port aux Basques and, it is claimed, failed to keep a lookout. The weather at the time was clear and the water smooth.

Now Total Wreck.

The American schooner James Rothwell, which ran ashore in St. Mary's Bay a short while ago, is now a total wreck, there being only a small portion of her hull left. Her cargo of lubricating oil, which she was taking to France, has been drifting around the bay in all directions. Several hundred casks have been picked up by the fishermen, about 300 of which have already been shipped to St. John's.

Can You Beat This?

A robe of snow is seen to-day on "Dear Old Southside Hill," and in another week or two we soon will have our fill. The roads around St. John's will be composed of slush and sleet, and then you'll need the best of boots to wear upon your feet. So "put your little hand in mine" and I will make a bet, that from the Cleland Rubber Co. the very best you'll get. So let you come along with me, and buy a pair to-day, the well established Buddys', and their color now is grey. These boots were never equalled in the present or the past; Saint Crispin never took a pair to beat them from his last; all over Newfoundland they wear the Buddy boots, we're sure; folks write and say they never wore the like of them before. We wouldn't be surprised to hear that when the Allies win, that Buddy boots "Our Boys" may wear when marching to Berlin; although we don't indulge in bets, yet we'll bet three to one, that the fishermen of Newfoundland the most boots they put on are Buddy boots; and everywhere that you may stray from Cape St. Francis all along the coast up to Cape Ray, the Buddy boots you'll surely find in every place for sure, the same boots from Conception Bay right down to Labrador. So now before we'll have the frost the slush, the snow and sleet, go down and buy a pair to wear upon your tender feet. There's thousands as we told you, say these boots they "beat the band," we've Buddy boots for men and youths the best in Newfoundland. nov14,11

REX vs. STRICKLAND.—In this trial, which is set for to-morrow, the jury has been summoned for ten o'clock instead of eleven, the usual hour.

"What's flour gluten, Bud?"
"It's what makes your dough rise, Rose."
"Yes"—she encouraged.
Added Bud very sagely:
"Makes it rise in the mixer and expand in the oven. It's the elastic part of flour—absorbs all the water and milk—and things."
Rose grew interested.
"FIVE ROSES, said Bud, is exceedingly rich in gluten. I s'pose because it's all made from Manitoba wheat. Takes up a lot more water—makes those fat loaves—lasts longer too."
"Saves money, doesn't it?" asked Rose.
Bud in a big voice:
"The fat loaf makes the fat pocketbook."
Use FIVE ROSES always.
And Rose said YES.

Cleanliness is one of the foundation stones on which is reared the beautiful structure of the baby's good health and good temper. When it is neglected all sorts of weaknesses, discomforts and irritations creep in. Uncleanliness invites disease and furnishes a lodging place for germs. Moreover, the baby who starts off in life being comfortable, forms of life habits which it never quite forgets. Preparations for keeping the baby clean start before he is born. In a drawer or basket covered from dust, should be placed a number of old, soft clean towels, a thoroughly washed and dried piece of soft woolen flannel, a roll of sterilized gauze at least half a pound in quantity, the same of sterilized cotton, a bottle of olive oil, cotton seed oil or sweet oil, a small package of boric acid, some white or the best castile soap and a box of talcum powder.
