CHAPTER IV. A FRIEND FROM ITALY.

She noticed again that his hands were white and shapely; but it was not until he had taken up his spoon for his soup that she remarked their peculiar facility of expression. The long fingers seemed to have a voice, like so many tongues, and to be as expressive as another person's eyes.

Stern and grim, Godfrey Knighton sat at the head of the table; in solemn silence the butler and footman waited, but neither the stern taciturnity of his host, nor the magnificence of the surroundings, seemed to awe Signor Ricardo. As he partook of his soup he talked, now to Godfrey Knighton, and now to Iris.

"No pen can describe the horrors of your Channel, Miss Iris! Ah, hah! It was terrible! Nothing but the thought that I should soon meet my dear—my very dear old friend, your father, would have comforted me! I handed, I came off-light here, and here I am under the roof of my old friend, the—ah, what do you call it?—the squire of the Revels."

"Is this your first visit to England?" said Iris, feeling that she must say something.

"My first," he answered. "I have heard much of your charming country, Miss Iris, but, ah, no, this is not your country! Italy is your country."

"Take some wine," Godfrey Knighton broke in, in a stern voice.

"But I am English," said Iris, smilingly, "quite English!"

"Bah!" said the signor, and his fingers seemed to say "Bah!" too. "You are Italian—one-half of you, at any rate. Once an Italian, always an Italian. Is it not so, my friend?" and he appealed to Godfrey Knighton.

"My daughter is English in teaching, and training, and instinct," he said, sternly.

"That for your teaching and training," retorted the signor, and he snapped his fingers. "The signorina is Italian, I tell you. Ah! how the years roll on. But they roll very smoothly over you, Knighton. Yes, indeed, you seem no older than when I saw you in Florence."

"Try that salt," broke in Godfrey Knighton.

So the dinner progressed. Whenever the signor referred to Italy and the past, Godfrey Knighton interrupted him; and, at last, when the dessert made its appearance, Iris rose, and the signor, gliding from his chair, opened the door for her.

Be sure you get

land, we do not use knives, nor guns. Is it not so? Only—brains! Let us join your charming daughter; we can talk over our little business—morrows!"

"Stop!" said Godfrey Knighton, letting the knife fall with a clatter against his plate. "You are right; it is not with knife or revolver we must settle this."

"Santa Lucia! I should think not! No!" assented the signor, shrugging his shoulders.

"It is with you a question of money," continued the squire, wiping his face upon which great beads of sweat stood. "You can have no other motive, no other object. How much do you want? Take it, and for Heaven's sake begone and leave me in peace!"

The signor raised his glass, and sipped his wine with an enjoyment as rare as the wine itself.

"You are right," he said; "it is a question of money, but not money only. Oh, I am aware that whatever I ask you must pay. You must pay. For you wouldn't like me to go to that beautiful girl, your daughter, and say, 'Miss Iris, I can tell you the story of your mother!' No, you would not like that! Therefore, you are willing to pay anything—anything! But, my friend, my dear old friend, I have not yet made up my mind how much to ask! I have just arrived on your bleak shore. I find myself in comfortable quarters. I say to myself, 'Here are you, Babette, in the house of your friend; you may stay here and live like a prince.' And naturally, I decide to stay—for a while? Yes, is it not so?"

Godfrey Knighton sat with knitted brow and clenched teeth.

"Take care!" he said. "Do not push me too hard!"

"Push you too hard!" echoed the signor. "How do I push you too hard? I come as an old friend—your guest. I stay at your invitation! Is it not natural? And stay I shall, my friend, depend upon it!"

Godfrey Knighton leaned forward.

"Have you no pity, no mercy?" he asked, hoarsely. "You have seen her. You see how innocent she is, how trusting. Are you such a fiend that you can destroy her young and hopeful life?"

The signor interrupted him with a snap of his elastic and eloquent fingers.

"Bah, my friend! A man of the world thinks only of himself! I was young and innocent, and the wolves and the hawks they fed upon me! I am no longer young or innocent—and it is my turn. You talk—pardon me, my dear Knighton—like a character in a play! Here am I with a secret—your secret—top disclosed. I have a price—good! You are prepared to pay that price—good! But I am not yet ready to say what that price shall be! Meanwhile I remain the guest of my distinguished friend the squire of the Revels and—what is the place?—Beverley. Good again! And now let us go to your charming daughter."

Godfrey Knighton rose without another word, and they went into the drawing-room.

Iris was seated at the piano, but she rose as they entered.

"Do not rise, I beseech you," said the signor; "I am Italian, and therefore a slave to music! Play for us, Miss Iris; or, better still, sing!"

Iris looked at her father. He averted his face and stood with stern, bent brows, looking at the ground.

"You do sing!" said the signor, triumphantly. "I pray a song of you, Miss Iris."

Iris did not know what to do. She knew that her father did not like to hear her sing, and yet this visitor, this "old friend," demanded it of her.

"Sing, Iris," said Godfrey Knighton, in a strained voice.

Still hesitating and reluctant, she sat down to the piano, and turned over the music; then she chose a song, and commenced.

Silence reigned supreme until she had finished, then the signor clasped his hands.

"Bravo, bravissimo!" he said. "Miss Iris, you have a voice, one in a thousand! It is a voice which the crowd would gladly listen to! It is a fortune, is it not so, Knighton? Speak truly; is not her voice magnificent, splendid, overwhelming?"

Godfrey Knighton bowed his assent coldly, and the signor added, in an undertone:

"It is her mother's voice! Note for note! It is splendid!"

The signor then asked:

"Will you sing again, Miss Iris? I am an Italian, and I love music! It is the food of my nation! Truly yes!"

"Shall I?" she murmured to her father.

"Yes, if you like," he answered, and she sang again.

The signor's admiration seemed to know no bounds.

"It is splendid!" he said. "It is a voice which would move a crowded theatre to enthusiasm! Ah, but what a gift! And wasted, wasted!"

Coffee was brought in, and Iris gave him a cup, then took her fancy work, and drew away from them.

The squire stood and drank his coffee in silence. The footman came in with the bedroom candles.

"Is it 'Good-night?'" said the signor; "so soon! It has been a delightful evening. Good-night, Miss Iris! Your voice will linger in my ears through all my dreams. Good-night, my friend!" and he shook hands with the squire.

AT THE CORNERS.

I now recall, with deep dejection, the accident of yesterday; it happened at the intersection of Bunkum Road and Hayseed Way. Had I gone slowly, as my pastor had urged me to, a thousand times there would have been no fierce disaster to swell the list of auto crimes. But I was sending my tin Lizzie a gait no Lizzie ought to know, and I, alas, was far too busy to scan the landscape, to and fro. And so that bus of Hiram Horner's came scorching to me all unseeing, and we collided at the corners, and rolled in burning gasoline.

I'm full of tin and grease and gravel and as I sit here, sick and a-dour, I swear that I will never travel at more than seven miles an hour. Of course, I blame the other fellow, and say he should be pinched and tried; it is a habit, rather yellow, wherever motorists abide. And Hiram sits in silence solemn, and knows not I am telling fibs; the surgeon wired his spinal column, and put my washers on the ribs. The two poor Lizzies are so mingled, so void of a dividing line, the tinsmith says he will be jingled if he can tell me which is mine. And so, in gloomy retrospection, I think about that ghastly wreck, while surgeons make a close inspection of sundry fractures in my neck. The roads are strewn with wrecks unholly, their number never can be told; it seems that poppy won't drive slowly, however bitterly I scold.

Godfrey Knighton sat with knitted brow and clenched teeth.

"Take care!" he said. "Do not push me too hard!"

"Push you too hard!" echoed the signor. "How do I push you too hard? I come as an old friend—your guest. I stay at your invitation! Is it not natural? And stay I shall, my friend, depend upon it!"

Godfrey Knighton leaned forward.

"Have you no pity, no mercy?" he asked, hoarsely. "You have seen her. You see how innocent she is, how trusting. Are you such a fiend that you can destroy her young and hopeful life?"

Irish Representatives Leave for London.

Railway Strike Averted --- Dominions Will Have Three Delegates at Washington -- British Admiralty Help Provide Employment

THE IRISH DELEGATES.
DUBLIN, Oct. 8. A large crowd gave a hearty send off in Western Row Station here this morning to Sinn Fein delegates to the London conference. Although all the names have not been officially announced it is understood the delegates are Griffiths, Collins, Robert C. Barton, Eamonn J. Duggan and George Gavin Duffy. Others invited to assist the delegation, although not Sinn Feiners, are Dr. Geo. O'Brien, Historian and Economist, and George Russell of the "Irish Homestead," and former official of the British Local Government Board to handle the intricate questions of local Government. The chief risk to the settlement now is believed to be in Ireland, rather than in the Conference Chamber. Both sides allege that breaches of Truce have recently multiplied. Dublin Castle claims to have a list of 40 such breaches, while Sinn Fein officers have issued numerous instances of alleged aggression by police auxiliaries and soldiers. To carry arms is a breach of Truce, but to drill troops is not, neither is the transfer of troops, and each side has answered the other's complaint by saying that they were only training or moving troops.

PLENIPOTENTIARIES LEAVING.
LONDON, Oct. 8. Sinn Fein plenipotentiaries accompanied by Desmond Fitzgerald and four typists will leave Dublin tomorrow morning, it was announced here tonight, and they will be given accommodations at Chelsea while attending the conference. It was reported that final informal conversations were held in the Mansion House at Dublin to-day between Eamonn De Valera, members of the Dail Cabinet and Plenipotentiaries. It was understood the Irish delegates will maintain constant communication with Dublin Headquarters during the conference.

THREE DOMINION DELEGATES.
NEW YORK, Oct. 8. The announcement that three of the self-governing Dominions are to be directly represented in the Washington Conference is good news to the people of the United States, says the New York Tribune. Noting that Canada, Australia and South Africa are to name members thus giving the Dominion three voices to Britain's three, the paper continues, "Canada and Australia are Pacific powers. South Africa's interests are Eastern rather than Western. They all have come to view the Pacific problem much as United States does."

HUGHES' STATEMENT DENIED.
LONDON, Oct. 8. The London Times in an editorial to-day brands as an "entire misconception" Premier Hughes' alleged statement in the Australian House that efforts to secure Dominion representation at the Washington conference were stopped only when the "United States slammed the door in our face."

RAILWAY STRIKE AVERTED.
MONTREAL, Oct. 8. After ten days of argument and conference with the Commission of Conciliation and Investigation headed by Chairman Judge F. S. McLennan, representatives of the Brotherhoods and Railway managements came to a provisional agreement on Saturday evening, under which the men agree that the reduction in pay running from ten to twelve per cent put into force last July shall be continued tentatively.

ADMIRALTY PROVIDING WORK.
LONDON, Oct. 8. The Admiralty announced yesterday that in view of the unemployment situation it was prepared to sell a number of surplus obsolete warships at moderate prices for breaking up by firms which agreed to commence the work immediately and also complete so as to provide for increased employment.

UNEMPLOYMENT DEMONSTRATIONS.
LONDON, Oct. 8. Unemployment demonstrations were held in various parts of the country to-day. The Bishop of Winchester in a letter read at a demonstration in Farnham gave his commendation to the demonstrators telling them that the Government had been slow in taking up the matter and that the unemployed were right in pressing it for action.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM.
LONDON, Oct. 8. Pressure of the unemployment problem is steadily increasing and intense anxiety is manifested by labor organizations, manufacturers and the public, regarding the plan which the Government is formulating to deal with it. The joint conference of labor leaders yesterday accepted

"My only regret about Tanlac is that I didn't run across it sooner," said Giuseppe D. Benedetto, 153 Gratton Street, Halifax, N.S. "For over two years I hunted high and low for something to relieve my stomach trouble, as I used to suffer agony after every meal. I was almost a nervous wreck and would shake like a leaf at the slightest noise. I tried Tanlac and also the Laxative Tablets and they soon had me feeling like a different man. I can eat anything I want now, am completely free from constipation and I go to sleep almost as soon as my head touches the pillow. THE HULL DISASTER.
LONDON, Oct. 8. Design of the dirigible ZR-5 which came to grief over the Humber River in August, should have been examined and discussed by a competent official committee before actual construction was commenced, declared the report of the court of enquiry which investigated the disaster yesterday. The court finds the accident due to structural weakness.

Assumes Duties To-Day.

A new manager for the St. John's branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in the person of Mr. J. A. Young, assumed his duties to-day, succeeding Mr. G. G. Glennie, who has occupied the post for some years. Mr. Young is well known here, having been on the staff of the Bank's local branch from 1913 to 1917 when he left to join the Inspection staff. His last position before coming here was Manager of the Yarmouth, N.S. Branch. Mr. Young assumes his responsible post at a difficult time, but that he will meet with success in spite of the existent financial unrest is doubted by none.

THE RAILWAY QUESTION.

Mr. R. C. Morgan, who recently resigned the position of General Manager of the Railway, has returned to the city, and now the question arises, what is the reason for his second visit? The terms in which Mr. Morgan's resignation was worded, would suggest that he was through with our railway for all time and yet, a foreign despatch of a few days ago, stated that he had obtained six months' leave of absence for the purpose of returning to Newfoundland. It would be absurd to suggest that during his short stay here, Mr. Morgan developed such a love for us that he is unable to remain away. There must certainly be a more practical reason for his return. But the Prime Minister, when interviewed recently, would not admit that Mr. Morgan was coming to resume the position of General Manager of the Railway. All that Sir Richard would say was that whilst in the United States and Canada he had had several interviews with him. This, added to the fact that Mr. Morgan is once more in our midst, however, seems to point to a re-assumption of the post from which he made such an emphatic resignation. The reason for this remarkable volte face can only be conjectured. It has been rumored that despite what he stated in his resignation, Mr. Morgan was in favor of some drastic economies which would considerably reduce our railroad liabilities. If this be true, and if he can save any part of the $1,500,000 guarantee for the country, then it will be no small satisfaction to the electors of the colony to know that he will be given an opportunity to carry out his retrenchment policy.

The Price of Fish.

That a quantity of No. 1 Shore fish should have been sold at so high a price as $7.00 per quintal, seems to augur well for the success which may attend the marketing of our catch this year. That this price should have been paid is proof in itself that the demand for Shore fish is great, and whilst it may go no higher, at least, it seems fairly certain that existing prices will remain stationary. In fact, there appears to be good reason for the belief that, owing to the popularity of this sort of fish, and the comparatively small quantity which will be available, the demand will by far exceed the supply. Whilst there is not such a ready sale for Labrador fish, the catch is on the whole below the average, and with the embargo placed on Norwegian fish in some of our foreign markets, there should be very little difficulty experienced in disposing of it. The price of Labrador cure is still uncertain, but all things considered, it should remain stationary, and it is to be hoped that it will. A great deal of our fish is now in demand amongst American buyers, many of whom re-export from the States to the Italian and other markets, and the message from a Boston firm published in Saturday's Telegram, should do much to establish confidence amongst local buyers. The outlook at present is very hopeful and there seems good reason to believe that we are slowly but surely overcoming the financial depression which is bearing so heavily upon us.

Stole Orphanage Vegetables.

A man named Oltrev pleaded guilty at this morning's session of the Police Court, to stealing vegetables from the grounds of Belvidere Orphanage, but was remanded until others implicated with him in the robbery should be brought before court. Oltrev, with his accomplices, was caught by Constable Wade on Merrymount Road at 5 a.m. yesterday morning. He had with him a sack full of turnips and cabbage. Wade knew the other men and he took their names. Mr. Ayre, acting for the defence, said he had no intention of attempting to justify larceny from an orphanage but he explained that Oltrev's wife and family were practically starving. It was the man's first offence.

PRELIMINARY NOTICE.
The Annual Sale of Work of the Congregational Ladies' Aid Society will be held November 23rd-11

Sneak Thief Sentenced.

Three months' hard labour was the sentence imposed on the lad Hurley who pleaded guilty this morning in the Police Court to picking a woman's coat pocket. He got off with a purse, but a civilian named Hartery gave chase and captured Hurley. This is a new form of robbery here and strict measures are necessary when dealing with such cases. Hurley, though still young, is an incorrigible.

DANCING.—Miss Bremner has resumed her Evening Dancing Classes for ladies and gentlemen; also private lessons. For terms, etc., apply to 99 Military Road.—oct.9

C. L. B. Dance.

The dance which the Warrant and non-Commissioned Officers of the C. L. B. are holding to-night promises to be a great success. The C. L. B. Band will be present in full strength and will, no doubt, add to the reputation they made during the summer for the excellence of their dance music. The catering is in the hands of the Ladies Auxiliary and will therefore be of the very best. Many of the selections which the band will play to-night are quite new.

TO-NIGHT.—C. C. C. Promenade Band Concert, Prince's Rink at 8.30. Hear the new Novelty Waltz Song, "Wyoming Lullaby". Admission 20c.—oct.10,11

Schooners Discharge.

Quite a number of schooners which arrived in port during the past two weeks have now discharged and many of the mercantile premises are busy selling supplies in return for the catch. Schr. Kathleen, which came here a week ago from Flower's Cove with 1,000 quintals of fish, has discharged at Monroe's, and is now taking on provisions. A large influx of schooners from the northward is expected here during the next week.

McMurdo's Store News.

MONDAY, Oct. 10.
General pain remedies are numerous, and most of them are valuable for the purpose for which they are advertised. Most of them have considerably advanced in price during the last two years, and some sell at retail for twice their price five years ago. One striking exception to this general rule is in Red Cross Oil. Owing to economies in the cost of manufacture—the contents remaining always the same—it is still possible for us to retail Red Cross Oil for twenty-five cents a bottle, against the forty-five or fifty cents demanded for other remedies of this class of similar strength and sized bottles.

A Tough Customer.

A man who belonged to Change Is. was fined $2 or 7 days by Judge Morris this morning. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly. Constable Snelgrove said the defendant wanted to fight two other men, and when taken in charge said there were not enough men in the force to get him off the street. Asked if he had anything to say, the accused said he didn't think he was drunk.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

UNEMPLOYMENT TROUBLES KING.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—King George who had specially requested that no money be spent on decorations for his reception arrived at Manchester Saturday to open the new royal exchange. Replying to the address of welcome His Majesty said he was sorely troubled by the present wide spread of unemployment which had caused so much suffering and he hoped that the efforts of his ministers to alleviate the present situation and to prevent future unemployment may be successful.

PRESHING WILL NOT GO.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—General Preshing will not go to London to lay the Congressional Medal on the tomb of the British unknown sailor in Westminster Abbey and if the ceremony is held another officer will be designated to represent the United States.

CONSTITUTED GOVERNOR'S PROVINCE.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Canadian Press.—A Reuters cable from Simla says the Government of India has issued a notification that Burma is to be constituted a Governor's Province under the Government of India Act of 1919. Burma was expressly omitted from the operation of the Indian Reform Act when Act was framed in view of the difference between conditions in Burma and the Provinces of India.

SECURITY BEFORE DISARMAMENT.

ST. NAZAIRE, France, Oct. 10.—"France must remain armed so long as her security has not been assured," was the statement made yesterday by Aristide Briand, French Premier, in an address outlining the foreign policy of his Government. He continued, "My voice must carry high and far. To-morrow beyond the seas we are invited to examine into certain problems. I have had the honor to reply to that invitation. We shall go to Washington first in order to fulfill a duty of gratitude and to see into their homes those noble and brave soldiers whom we have seen in France. We will go also to accomplish a duty towards France. France has earned the right to reputation and security. At no time shall the French Government yield on these points."

Admitted to the Bar.

In the matter of the admission and enrolment of James O'Neil Conroy as a Solicitor of the Supreme Court, Mr. Finelon, Bencher of the Law Society, on the petition of James O'Neil Conroy for the admission and enrolment of the petitioner as a Solicitor of the Supreme Court, moved for the admission and enrolment of Mr. Conroy. Physical Development

And its Bearing on Health and Strength.

By GEE.

I am really glad to be back again, and am sorry that a break has been made in this series of articles. However, this was unavoidable and I trust will not occur again. There is one word before taking up this work and that is: "There is no place like home."

THE PASSIONS.

Their Influence on Health.—There is no more interesting study than that of the passions. Of nothing do we think we know so much while in reality we know so little. We love, we fear, we hate. We experience every passion and emotion. But have we ever stopped to think what are these passions that we are feeling every day?

The Influence of the Mind on the Body.—We not only feel our passions, we act them. Every emotion has its outward manifestation. A muscle may become stiff or lie limp. Our blood-vessels may constrict and make us pale or they may dilate and make us rodden. The heart often beats more quickly or more slowly. And sometimes even stops for a time. Our breathing may be short and quick or long drawn out with great pauses. The glands in the mouth may stop secreting and our mouth and throat become dry. The glands in the eye may secrete too much and the tears run down our cheeks.

Any time you've an appetite to trade for delight, just call for

Post Toasties
—best corn flakes

No need to search any but the best in corn flakes if you speak the name, "Post Toasties."

Different Manifestations in Different People.—The passions often act differently upon different people. Everyone of us, almost, has some peculiarity of expression. One person will laugh or act differently from another. He will redden or pale where others do not.

Anger.—Anger may throw one man in a violent passion, while it may make another merely frown and look stern. Joy may make one fairly intoxicated, while it may evoke almost no outward sign in another.

Love.—Love, the strongest passion of all, will make one person the gentlest of creatures. It will make him think more of others. He will do anything for his beloved. His all he is willing to risk, even his very life. Another will be made fierce by this same passion. Murderous thoughts will be aroused in his breast. He thinks of the welfare of no one, not even of the object of his love. He is willing to sacrifice the happiness, the honor, even the life of another.

Grief.—Grief will soften some people and harden others. Every emotion, however, is shown by some sign, generally by the same actions in all, but occasionally by different expressions.

Two Views in Regard to Passions.—There are two ways of looking at our emotions and their manifestations.

Emotion.—The view we naturally take of our passions is the following. We are made conscious of some fact. This knowledge excites in us a feeling called the emotion, and this state of mind causes all the actions and expressions that go with the passion. We lose a parent, are sorry and weep. We meet a wild animal, are frightened and run. We are insulted by a rival, are angry and strike.

Expression.—Another way of looking at the matter is this. What immediately follows the knowledge of the fact causing our emotions are the action and the expression. The passion is the feeling of the actions. The death of our mother makes us cry. We feel sorry because we cry. In like manner we are afraid because we tremble, and are angry because we strike. This latter view seems at first very foolish, but is held by a great many investigators.

The Bodily Feeling that Accompanies Every Passion.—Every one of the actions is felt the same moment the emotion occurs. If the reader has never paid any attention to the matter he will be both interested and astonished to learn how many different bodily feelings he can detect in himself as present with every passion. He will be surprised to find out how for each emotion there is a different action or expression. Of course a man can not stop in the middle of any passion to study what movements are taking place. But he can observe the more quiet states. When worried by any slight trouble one will usually find that his brows are knitted. When a person is embarrassed for the moment he feels something in his throat that makes him either swallow, clear his throat or give a slight cough. When anyone is very much amused he will find it almost impossible to keep his features straight.

Complaint From Harbor Deep.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Please allow me space through your esteemed paper to express the inconvenience caused through an irregular mail service on this coast. It has always been thought that Great Hr. Deep was a port of call for the S.S. "Prospero," therefore we are somewhat puzzled by the "Prospero" calling at Duggan's Cove. Instead, True the wind was blowing somewhat hard, but the fact remains that there was no wind to prevent the "Prospero" doing her work on this occasion, and taking us seven passengers who were waiting to go North. If the "Prospero" had waited long enough for us to walk from Hr. Deep to Duggan's Cove, a distance of one and half miles, it would not have greatly inconvenienced the present Government, whereas by the negligence of the "Prospero's" officials, we, the intended passengers, are thus delayed until the next trip, or have put us to the unnecessary expense of hiring a motor boat by which to go north. It cannot be said that the "Prospero" did not know that there were passengers at Hr. Deep to go north, as that information was given by a man from Duggan's Cove. You will see by this, Mr. Editor, that we the people of the French shore, do not get justice by the Government any more than in previous years. Much may be said in favour of the Coastal boats, but the fact remains that there is very little consideration given to those who in this case must sign their names.

Get a 10-cent box now. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil. Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach of sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from liver and carry out of the system all the constipated poison in the bowels. A Cascaret physic to-night will straighten you out by morning.

Pyorrhoea is so insidious that we want to repeat again and again our former warnings against it. It is not painful as a rule, and that very fact makes it all the more dangerous. Watch for those bleeding gums, they are your warnings. Do not give your body a chance to absorb poisons that come from bad teeth or diseased gums. Anything from a headache to a serious illness may result from your neglect. Pyorrhoea is a dreadful disease.

Guard Rail Needed.

The attention of the Minister of Public Works is again called to the dangerous condition of the road immediately above the old mill on the Annie's Mill Road. The guard fence has all but been destroyed and the remaining posts and rails will disappear in a short while if immediate attention is not given it. A rail in this vicinity is an absolute necessity as during winter time the place becomes coated with ice and it is only by such protection are teams prevented from being precipitated into the river about 50 or 100 feet below.

C. L. B. Church Parade.

Despite the wretched condition of the weather, nearly 250 all ranks of the C.L.B., including Old Comrades, attended yesterday's Church Parade at the C. of E. Cathedral. The service also marked the opening of the C.M.B.C. after the long vacation. His Lordship, Bishop White, officiated, assisted by Rev. J. Brinton. His Lordship preached a very timely sermon on Life's Vacation which deeply impressed all present. After the return to the Armoury, the parade was addressed by Lieut-Col. Goodridge who complimented the lads on their splendid turn-out and reminded them of the Big Brigade Week which was to be held in November. He then presented, on behalf of several gentlemen who had contributed towards it, a new instrument to Capt. Morris, of the Band, and two long service pendants were also presented to Lance-Corporals House and Bartlett. The parade was then dismissed.

Sachem to Boston, 320 quintals. Fresh Outports—By schr. Cyril T. Argenta, from P. J. Cashin, 2,389 qts. to Oporto; by schr. Edith M. Cavell, from T. Moulton, Ramea, 4,958 quintals to Lisbon; by s.s. Dictator, from Munn & Co., Battle Harbor, 10,815 quintals to Gibraltar for orders; by s.s. Teraskysa, from Munn & Co., Battle Harbor, 10,912 quintals to Gibraltar for orders; by schr. General Plummer, from Elliott & Co., Change Islands, 4,444 qts. to Malaga; by schr. Union Jack, from Strong & Murrell, Little Bay Islands, 5,500 qts. to Malaga; by schr. E. D. Bailey, from W. & J. Moores, Carbon-ear, 4,827 qts. to Alicante; by schr. Winifred Lee, from Messrs. Job Bros., Twillingate, 2,432 qts. to Alicante; by schr. Port Union, from The Union Trading Co., Port Union, 3,800 qts. to Halifax; by schr. Emera from Earle & Sons, Fogo, 4,301 qts. to Alicante. As foreshadowed by the Trade Review in September, there is a growing demand for good Shore fish, and the price is 60 cents a qtl. to-day better than it was in the beginning of September. The price is certain to hold all the fall, if not to further improve as it is realized that there will be a very limited quantity in the market in December as compared with other years.

Cod Oil—Only a quiet demand prevails here. The receipts have not been heavy and we find that prices have strengthened a little. The price at which good Cod Oil has been selling here has been altogether too low. Foreign buyers want a good article and are now beginning to see that values cannot go any lower. Tanked Cod Oil free from dregs is worth $120.00 per ton delivered for steamers. But when you come to pay the cost of tanking and removing the dregs and pay the Government export tax of over 45 per cent, it leaves nothing for the fishermen. This Government export tax is going to drive people mad one of these days, but they have themselves to blame for it.

Flour—There is no change whatever, and is wholly neglected. Flour—there has been a jump of about 20 cents per barrel in price of American flour during the past week. The rush of the new wheat is over in the United States and the mills are averaging up the cost and looking for a profit on their purchases. The Manitoba crop is the last to be harvested. The farmers acknowledge the yield to be normal, which in Western Canada probably can be safely reckoned as the biggest bumper crop on record. Heavy supplies of this wheat are now being marketed, and although the demand has been extra good, the weight of supplies has forced a decline in price. Buyers here are taking hold of good round-lots, as they believe that present conditions will not last long. The quality of the new wheat flour now arriving is said to be excellent, and it is very easy for all to judge for themselves, as considerable quantities of the high grade Manitoba Patent reached here by the steamer from Montreal last week. The imports this week amounted to 20,287 barrels.

Beef—The Beef market is very easy, and Importers seem to be waiting for bottom prices, and the end of the decline before ordering their Fall and Winter requirements. The imports to date are roundly 14,000, as compared with 20,000 barrels last year. Prices in the American market are expected to be more favorable to the purchaser.

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Kiever.

Vancouver, B.C.—"I am pleased to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me a lot of good. I can now walk about without the aid of a support and feel real strong again. A nurse advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and it certainly helped me. It seems like Heaven to be relieved after months of pain."—Mrs. E. W. Baker, 3374, 10th Ave. West, Vancouver, B.C.
 Albert Co., N.B.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines and they have done me a lot of good. Since then I have been able to do my house work and I have a lot of work to do as we live on a farm. Being your advertisement in the paper was what made me think of trying you. I hope this may help some one else."—Mrs. Wm. B. Laver, Upper New Horton, Albert Co., N.B.
 The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved.
 If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

chase by November, when the imports are likely to increase and go well ahead of last year's figures by the close of the year. Box Flank $25.00, Special Family $23.00, Boneless $21.00 for No. 1 and $20.00 for No. 2.
Perk—The imports this week amounted to 1,107 barrels. Stocks of Mess Pork in Chicago were exhausted last week, and sellers were unable to fill their contracts. Ham Butt is offering more freely and is now quoted at $37.50, Past Back $36.00, Short Cut $30.00 and Spare Ribs $27.00. The total imports to St. John's since January 1st. are roundly 16,000 barrels, as against 22,500 last year.
Molasses—The imports are short by about 1,000 puncheons, as compared with 1920, which was itself a short year. The limited quantity (Fancy) is being held at excessive prices. The general belief amongst dealers here is that good molasses will reach the dollar limit again before the new crop is available, and that the present month is a good time to buy. The quotations are 85 for Fancy and 80 for Choice wholesale. For tierces and barrels three and five cents respectively dearer.
Sugar—The price of Sugar declined still further this week, and it is now quoted at $11.00 per 100 lbs. for American White Granulated in the local market wholesale. The deadlock between the Cuban Planters and the United States Refiners is over, and the "raws" are moving forward at a rapid rate as the planters are anxious to reduce their large accumulations before the nod crop comes in. It seems to us that prices are now about down to the bottom, and this month is a favorable time to buy.
Potatoes—Quotations in from Canada this week are somewhat higher than anticipated last month. We still believe that the decline must come. The home-grown potatoes are now holding the St. John's market, selling at $3.50 to $4.00 per barrel, according to quality. The farmers began harvesting this week, and around St. John's and the adjacent outports the turn out is very good.
Apples—"Gravensteins" declined 50 cents a barrel this week. The shipment that came by the S.S. "Rosalind" Thursday, is probably the last big lot of this brand that will be sent here this season. Prices are now $4.50 for lowest grade to $5.50 per barrel for highest grade. "Kings" will be in the market next week, and being a long keeping apple will be probably $1.00 to $1.50 higher than "Gravensteins."
Oats—The market is weak. Prices in Canada declined three to four cents per bushel this week, and oats are now down to the lowest point for the past ten years. The local quotations to-day are: $3.40 to $3.60 per sack of four bushels for Mixed, and $3.50 to $3.80 for White. The imports by the S.S. "Manoa" this week were 2,053 sacks of four bushels each.
Hay—There is no change of any account in the Hay situation this week. The Canadian quotations are about the same as given last week, viz: $63 to $64 per ton, and a dollar higher for small quantities. The imports this week were 3,062 bales from Montreal by the S.S. "Manoa." The strong tendency to upward prices that are shown throughout September seems to have fallen away.

Golden Wedding.

(Saturday's Trade Review.)

A special celebration was held at the residence of Capt. Thos. Rumsey, on Thursday evening, 8th October, in honor of his Golden Wedding. His sons and daughters were there from Canada and the United States, and the house was filled with friends all extending their heartiest congratulations to the captain and his good wife, who are both hale and hearty and we hope may still weather many more winter gales. There were many telegrams and letters from foreign parts, but nothing could be nicer or more appropriate than the presentation of a little golden ship, rigged up with sovereigns from bowsprit to the top of each mast and then to the end of the main boom. The deck was also covered with sovereigns, and as a friend told him she was well covered for insurance. The following lyric from Mr. Monroe, in whose ships he sailed for many years, speaks in eloquent language the thoughts of all friends:—

As to-day you look back to your life on the sea,
 In the old "Nellie M." and the small "Stella B."
 You have reason to feel you well managed your ship
 In the interest of owners, wherever the trip.

But the trip you best managed was when you set sail
 With a clearance made out at the Church Altar Rail,
 And the girl of your choice shipped on as your mate
 For a voyage all through life, whatsoever the fate.

That voyage it has lasted for fifty long years,
 In fair winds, in foul winds, through joys and through tears;
 You have weathered all storms and brought the ship through,
 So we take off our hats to your good wife and you.
 —W. S. MONROE.

THE THINKER.

There's a fortune in store for the man who can think
 And glory to crown his endeavor;
 He can come to renown, who will often sit down
 Away from the wise men and clever;
 And with reason to guide him will map out a plan
 That is best for his country and best for the man.

The thoughtless are many, they swarm in a throng
 But the Thinkers are silently few,
 But the man at the top, is the man who will stop
 To ponder the course he'll pursue;
 And he never attacks any problem of doubt,
 Before he has carefully thought it all out.

Our country will honor the man who can think
 For the need of his wisdom is great;
 The man unskilled and not easily swayed
 Is the man who shall fashion our fate.
 For plausible folly the mob often moves,
 But the Thinker considers before he approves.

These are the days for the Thinker, there's much to be done,
 And many the dangers to face,
 And what seems to be good when it's all understood,
 May be ruin and shame and disgrace.
 Whenever arises a problem of doubt,
 For the good of our country let's reason it out.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON POKER CHIPS AND PAYING CASH.

Here is an interesting assertion I heard the other day. If poker players played poker with actual money they would not be able to play with good judgment because they would be too greatly affected by the sight of the money.

Immediately found myself thinking of some friends of mine. I bet because they play poker. I bet for this reason. They have recently made up their minds instead of having charge accounts or paying by check to go back to the ready money, cash payment.

You Feel Sure Your Bill Can't Run Over $10.
You have a very different feeling about what you really need when you are paying for it out of $10 laid aside for groceries for the week and rapidly dwindling, than you do when you are just saying "Charge it" and feeling sure in a vague way that your bill can't run over $10 this week.

Of course you see the connection now between poker players and my friends who do not play poker. It is the same psychology with both. And it is sound psychology.

When I opened a checking account I said that I was sure I would not spend any money that I should not spend if I paid in currency. I have proved myself a hopeless optimist again and again.

It is far less painful to write a few figures on a piece of paper than to hand over crisp delectable bills. I do hate to drop from one hundred into another, but even that is less painful than parting with real money.

What queer creatures we mortals are! To know the money is going out ought to be the same as seeing it go. But it isn't. At least not with us ordinary folks. I suppose there are super-folks who are above such psychology. But I'll bet they don't so far above it as they think they are!

Individual heads or families. The men are hunters, going out after game and fish. There is little cultivation of the soil. It is not necessary because of the richness of the vegetation.

Polygamy is practised, probably because of the war-like character of the men, who are headhunters and have thinned out the male population. There is a constant war-fare going on between groups for the sake of the women, who are taken captive and made members of the conqueror's collection. The children of the vanquished are adopted and reared in the family of the victor.

Stricter chastity is enforced upon the women, who, if not controlled, exhibit a tendency toward polyandry. The punishment for adultery is strict and violent, the penalty for the third offence being death.

The Jivros are not unique in their practice of retaining the heads of their vanquished enemies as souvenirs, but the custom of drying the head so that it preserves the aspect of a miniature and living decapitation, is not known in any other part of the uncivilized globe.

A Jivro huntsman has destroyed his victim by means of the blowpipe, the ten-foot tube holding the poisoned arrow. He cuts the head away from the body and returns home in gloe to his wives. The skull is removed from the skin after an incision has been made in the rear of the head. Hot stones are placed in the cavity and it is filled with hot sand and completely desiccated. The process is so skilful that the head retains its symmetry, and when all the operations have been accomplished it is about the size of a grapefruit, a dark tan in color, and the skin is leathery to the touch.

A month after the completion of the drying, a dance in celebration of the victory is held. After the dance the distinguished owner of the head is free to barter it, if he wishes, for anything he chooses. As a matter of history, these heads usually find their way to the coast, where they are in demand among the Europeans.

For two or three months after the victory the successful Jivro hunter does not eat meat, but confines himself to the vegetable products of the country, a custom handed down from generation to generation and is inviolable. It arises from the fear that the victor may be made heavy by meat and fall a victim to the relatives of the dead man, who are without doubt, on the vengeful warpath. And it is this continual feud that has depopulated the Jivros men.

Wedding Bells.

BASTOW-STAFFORD.
On Saturday morning, at the C. of E. Cathedral, Mr. Herbert J. Bastow, eldest son of Mr. M. A. Bastow, was united in the Holy bonds of Matrimony to Miss Amy Stafford, eldest daughter of the late Dr. Stafford.

The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Canon Jeeves, Rector of the Cathedral. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Hitchcock, to the strains of Hoffmann's Wedding Procession artistically played by Organist F. J. King. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. W. A. Bastow, whilst Miss Winette Reid and Miss Marjorie Bastow acceptably did the honour of bridesmaids. Mr. Hitchcock acted as father-in-law.

After the signing of the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March and motored to Donovan's for breakfast, at which the health of the happy couple was duly toasted. Following the wedding breakfast the party motored to the residence of the bride's parents, Allendale Road, where a most enjoyable time was spent. The bride and groom left by the S.S. Rosalind for New York, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride was the recipient of many useful and costly presents, testifying to the esteem of her many friends.

Our Book Review.

"Anthony Trent, Master Criminal," by Winham Martin. (Dicks & Co.)
"Anthony Trent, Master Criminal" is something entirely new in the world of fiction, and whilst in some respects it bears a marked similarity to "Raffles," a book with which most readers are familiar, it has, however, an originality in the working out of the plot which defies the accusation "copying" which some might be inclined to make against its author. Anthony Trent was a young writer of clever detective stories, but whilst his work was popular, the remuneration he received did not permit him to lead the luxurious life towards which he leaned. The idea struck him of putting himself in the place of the criminal hero of his stories, and he follows it up, using his knowledge of criminology and his imagination with such effect that he soon becomes the cleverest criminal of his day. It would be manifestly unfair to give away any more of the plot of the book, but one thing I will say, and that is that beyond the immortal Raffles there is no hero whose adventures I have followed with more interest than those of Anthony Trent.

"The Enchanted Pen," by Editha L. Binkley. (Dicks & Co.)
The publishers describe "The Enchanted Pen" as a Romance. I would prefer to call it a fantasy. When I say that it is a fairy tale I can imagine most people turning up their noses and saying "Fairy tale? Pooh! I finished with stories of that sort when I left the Kindergarten. They are all well enough for children, but for grown-ups, ridiculous!" But although "The Enchanted Pen" is a fairy story it is not one for children alone. It is a tale that even the most prosaic grown-up can read and receive a great deal of pleasure from. The ridiculous incongruity it presents of modern methods of living combined with the doublets and hose of three centuries ago is amusing, but there is something underneath the whole thing, something subtle which catches the readers' interest and keeps it to the very last chapter. It is a book that should be enjoyed by both young and old.

HAVE YOU READ "THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS?" Here's another great new novel by the same author.

"THE PRIDE OF PALOMAR"
Peter B. Kyne.

The novels of Peter B. Kyne are among the best loved and best selling novels of modern times. His latest work "The Pride of Palomar" is a story of the Great West with much to remind one of the old ranches, the days of guitars in the moonlight, the days of beautiful Spanish women and men gallant and brave.

Head Hunters of Ecuador.

Wonderful stories are brought from the members of the recently completed expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, who bring to them over 2,000 birds and 15,000 animal skins. The narrative of their life among the head-hunting Jivros Indians and the vanquished is no dull reading matter. The months ago the party set out from Ecuador, passed through the Panama Canal and landed at Guayaquil, premier port. Then by boat to the Gulf of Guayaquil, past the head of Puna, to Santa Rosa. A mile away with native drivers was cold, and the expedition proceeded to the Andes. In two days the Santa Rosa River, which in its conditions twists like tangled ribbon, forded eighteen times. The trail fair, the going not very difficult, miles miraculously sane. Zaruma, old mining camp opened in 1640 by the Spanish conquistadores, was where the men made their headquarters with the United States miners who are working the veins, newly uncovered. Anthony and Cherrie Zumara a convenient camping ground. There they made trips. The first toward the east, over the Andean range, some of which rise to the height of 12,000 feet. This trip had led to the country of the Jivros and of which the explorers had heard fantastic tales. From Loja, the town on the trail, they descended the eastern slope of the mountains. The trail was so narrow and dangerous that the load on the mules, usually 100 pounds, pack-saddle fashion, lightened to 100 pounds. Often with overhanging a drop of two or three feet. The soil, soft and precipitous, threatened to crumple under the adventures into safety. By grace of the mules the trip was made without accident. Among the Jivros. As you descend the mountain, and snow-topped at their pin-tops, vegetation grows more dense and green is more brilliant, until you strike the thick growth of vines hung with vines, and the mesh, rank and heavy, from which vines all day long. It is in this jungle that the Indians live. Their huts are made of poles interlaced with vines, thatched with large leaves. The Jivros are copper-skinned, short, stocky, men and women. Margin Opinion!

Studebaker around $70 is a good "buy" for a ten-point profit. Boston Montana is now pegged around $1.25. This should soon move several points. General Motors does not impress us favorably considering they have not earned their dividends, although paying them for the last quarter. Middle States up $1.00 to-day and good for some more. Nipissing up 60c.; Hollinger up 25c.; Allied back to 5c. The Board is full of bargain "buys" and we suggest immediate consideration.

Take advantage of our margin facilities.
