The Heir to Beecham Park

CHAPTER II

"This is Thursday, the twenty-second of July, Stuart," observed Mrs. Crosbie, putting down her pen and looking fixedly at her son. "And this afternoon your Aunt Clara and Cousin Vane will arrive, and you are expected to meet them at Chesterham station."

"By Jove," exclaimed Stuart, with a soft whistle, "I had clean forgotten them!" He pushed his hands into his tennis-coat pockets and regarded his shoes with almost a real pucker on his brow. "What time are they due?" he asked, after a brief silence.

Mrs. Crosbie took up a letter and read aloud:

"We shall arrive at Chesterham by the twelve express from Euston, reaching the junction about six-thirty. Pray let somebody meet us."

"I call that cool," observed the young man shortly. "But I suppose Aunt Clara cannot do a thing for herself. However, it need not entail my going; she only says 'somebody,' and I am nobody."

"Your father will expect his sister to be treated with respect," was his mother's icy reply.

"And I trust he will not be disappointed," responded Stuart; "but to trudge to Chesterham in this heat will be enough to roast a fellow."

"I have ordered the barouche," Mrs. Crosbie told him. "Vane must lean back comfortably—she is so delicate."

Stuart Crosbie buried his toe in the well-kept lawn and made no answer to this. His mother watched him keenly, though he was unaware of her scrutiny.

"Well!" she said at last.

"Well!" he replied, looking up.

"Stuart, I do not often express my wishes, but to-day I particularly desire you should go to Chesterham and meet your aunt and cousin."

Stuart removed his felt tennis-hat and bowed low.

"My lady-mother," he said lightly, "your wishes shall be obeyed."

fashion for some time, he looked up and found himself almost opposite to the window—though at a distance from which he had started. His mother's head was clearly discernible bent over her writing, and, waking suddenly from his dreams, he left the law, betook himself to a path, and made for a gate at the end. The lodgekeeper's wife was seated at her door, having brought her work into the air for coolness. She rose hurriedly as she perceived the young squire striding down the path and opened the gate.

"Why did you trouble, Mrs. Clark?" said Mr. Crosbie, courteously. "I could have managed that myself."

"Law sakes, Master Stuart, my good man would be main angry if he thought I'd let you do such a thing!" "Jim must be taught manners," Stuart laughed lightly.

"How do you like this weather?" Mrs. Clark mopped her brow with her apron.

"It's fair killing, sir," she answered, "I never remind me of such a summer. But folks is never content. Mayhap what tries me is good for these—your young lady cousin, for one, sir. Mrs. Martha tells me she is very weakly like. She be coming to-day."

"I have vivid recollections of Vane as a child," Stuart remarked, more to himself than to the woman; "and certainly I can testify to her strength then, for she boxed my ears soundly."

"Laws, Master Stuart!" ejaculated Mrs. Clark. "What a little vixen!"

"But these are tales out of school," laughed the young man; "and I fancy I tormented her pretty freely in those days. To-day, Mrs. Clark! Go back and have a nap—sleep is the best way to pass these hot days."

"Now, if he ain't the best and kindest-hearted boy in the whole world!" mused Mrs. Clark, watching him as he strode along the lane. "Just like his father, poor gentleman!"

Mr. Crosbie went along the road at a fast pace, and did not slacken his speed till he sighted a few cottages that denoted a village. Then he moderated his pace, and sauntered into the one street, hot and parched with thirst.

"Phew!" he exclaimed to himself taking off his hat and waving it to and fro vigorously. "I must have something to drink. I wonder if Judy keeps soda-water?"

"Judy" was the owner of a small shop, the one window of which displayed a heterogeneous mass of articles—comestibles, wearing apparel, tops, and scissors. It did not look very inviting, but thrust must be queched, and better things might be in store behind the counter. So Stuart raised the latch and entered the cottage.

"I was Greatly Distressed With Pains in the Back"

Mr. Alfred McNeill, Chapel Rock, Alta., writes:

"During the winter of 1920-21, I was greatly distressed with pains in my back and felt tired and depressed most of the time. Particularly during the night I was troubled with frequent urination, some nights having to rise almost every hour. I tried several different treatments without success, until finally I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they relieved my condition before I had finished the first box. I am feeling better this summer than I have for years, and although in my 67th year, can work all day without any undue fatigue."

"Soda-water, Master Stuart?" repeated Mrs. Judy, in amazement. "I scarce count on what you mean. There's pump-water, if you like, or may be a glass of milk."

Mr. Crosbie hesitated for a moment, then decided, for the latter.

"It is a long time since I drank so innocent a beverage, Judy," he observed, putting down the glass with a slight shudder.

"Ay, there ain't never 'arm in milk," responded Judy. "But, laws, Master Stuart, you do look warm! Will you 'ave a chair and set in the doorway to cool a bit? There's a little bit of wind springing up."

Mr. Crosbie shook his head.

"No, thanks, Judy; I must get on. There"—throwing a shilling upon the small counter—"take that for your kindness."

"Eh, but, Master Stuart, I'd like you for a customer every day!" exclaimed the woman; and with a smile and a nod Mr. Crosbie strode away.

He passed through the narrow street, deserted now—for the sound of the children's voice was wafted from the village school—and turned into a wide country-lane that led to the cottages. After sauntering a few yards, he came in sight of a wood enclosed by a high wall, while through the branches of the trees glimpses of a gray-stone house was visible.

Mr. Crosbie's steps grew slower and slower as he approached this wall, and he walked past it in a very desultory fashion. Presently he reached a large iron gate through which a wide open drive was seen. Evidently Mr. Crosbie had no acquaintance with this drive, for he passed on, still down hill, till he came to a tiny spring trickling and babbling by the side of the road; and here he paused. He was out of the sun's glare now, and felt almost cool; to his right hand stretched the path he had just traversed, to his left lay two lanes, one leading through the distant fields, the other turning abruptly. He thought for an instant, then turned in the direction of the latter, and just before him stood three cottages at equal distances from each other. He passed the first, and with a quick nervous hand unlatched the gate of the second and went up the sweet-smelling garden.

The door was ajar, and as he knocked a faint, weak voice answered: "Come in."

Stuart Crosbie pushed open the door and entered the cottage. A woman was lying on a sofa, propped up with pillows, the whiteness of which rivalled her face in purity. She had a woollen shawl round her shoulders, although the heat was so oppressive, and looked very ill.

Stuart bent over her.

"How are you to-day, Mrs. Morris?" he asked gently.

"Much about the same, thank you, Mr. Stuart. Were you wanting Reuben, sir?"

"Yes, I did rather want to see him," replied the young man a little hesitatingly. "I am anxious to hear about that poaching affair the other night."

"It weren't nothing at all, sir," Mrs. Morris said, in her low, weak voice. Reuben was out nigh most of the night, but couldn't see a soul."

"Well, I'm glad of it," observed Mr. Crosbie warmly, "for between ourselves, Mrs. Morris, I confess my sympathies go entirely with the poachers."

Mrs. Morris smiled faintly.

"Ah, you ain't Sir Hubert, sir! He don't hold them views. You would give the whole village welcome to the birds, but he's different."

FULL OF AGES AND PAINS

Toronto Mother Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ontario.—"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a splendid medicine to take before and after confinement. A small book was put in my door one day advertising Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, and as I did not feel at all well at the time I went and got a bottle of Vegetable Compound right off my shelf. I soon began to notice a difference in my general health. I was full of aches and pains at the time and thought I had every complaint going, but can truthfully say your medicine certainly did me good. I can and will speak highly of it, and I know it will do other women good who are sick and ailing if they will only give it a fair trial. Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills are splendid for constipation. You are welcome to use my letter to show how it will help any one."—Mrs. HARRY WESTWOOD, 543 Quebec Street, Toronto, Ontario.

The expectant mother is wise if she considers carefully this statement of Mrs. Westwood. It is but one of a great many, all telling the same story—beneficial results.

White Indians Two Centuries Ago

The so-called "White Indians" of Central America are apparently no new discovery, as they are minutely described in a book published by Lionel Water, a ship's doctor, in 1899. Clarence Quinn, of San Francisco, who calls attention to this in science (New York), tells us that Water fell into the hands of the Darien Indians on the 6th of May, 1831. These were copper-colored natives of the coast, but while a captive among them he had frequent opportunities to observe other Indians of another complexion. He has this to say about the White Indians:

"There is one Complexion so singular, among a sort of People of this Country, that I never saw nor heard of any like them in any part of the world. They are White, and there are of them of both Sexes; yet there are but few of them in comparison of the Copper-colour'd, possibly but one to two or three hundred. Their Skins are not of such a White as those of fair People among Europeans, with some tincture of a Blush or Sanguine Complexion; neither yet is their Complexion like that of our paler People, but 'tis rather a Milk-white, lighter than the Colour of any Europeans, and much like that of a White Horse."

"For there is this further remarkable in them, that their bodies are beset all over, more or less, with a fine short Milk-white Down, which adds to the whiteness of their Skins: For they are not so thick set with this Down, especially on the Cheeks and Forehead, but that the Skin appears distinct from it. Their Eyebrows are Milk-white also, and so is the Hair of their Heads."

"They are not so big as the other Indians; and their Evidels bend and open in an oblong Pleure, nointing downward at the Corners. They see not very well in the Sun, poring in the clearest Day; their Eyes being too weak, and running with Water if the Sun shine towards them; so that in the Day-time they are not to go abroad, unless it be a cloudy dark Day. But notwithstanding their being sluggish and dull and festive in the Day-time, yet when Moon-shine nights come, they are all Life and Activity, skipping about like Wild-Bucks."

"The Copper-colour'd Indians seem not to respect these so much as those of their own Complexion, looking on them as somewhat monstrous. They are not a distinct Race by themselves, but are a mixture of the two."

"Laocenta (an Indian chief) gave me this as his Conjecture how these came to be White. That 'twas through the force of the Mother's Imagination, looking on the Moon at the time of Conception; but this I leave others to judge of. He told me withal, that they were but short-lived."

but now and then one is bred of a Copper-coloured Father and Mother; and I have seen a Child of less than a year old of this sort. Some would be apt to suspect they might be the Offspring of some European Father: But besides that the Europeans come little here, and have little Commerce with the Indian-people when they do come, these white People are as different from the Europeans in some respects, as from the Copper-colour'd Indians in others.

"Laocenta (an Indian chief) gave me this as his Conjecture how these came to be White. That 'twas through the force of the Mother's Imagination, looking on the Moon at the time of Conception; but this I leave others to judge of. He told me withal, that they were but short-lived."

OLD AND YOUNG

The young are mostly well and strong, their lives are like a grand sweet song, they're right side up, there's nothing wrong with them, seldom sick or sore; and so the grand-children in his chair, who talks of corns and falling hair, and aches and pains beyond compare, becomes to them a bore. Youth has no patience with the wails of those who have ingrowing nails, who soak their feet in steaming pails, rheumatics to ally; youth wears of the mournful woe of ancient men with spavined knees who talk forever of disease, from dawn till close of day. And so too often granddads feel, as he rubs mustard on his heels, that there'll be glad and joyous spels when he is dead and gone; he thinks the children wildly yearn to see his ashes in an urn, or see him planted by the burn that babies past the lawn. The children are not so unkind, but for their laughter were designed; his old ice cream, and none of them their nerves, 'tis true; they would not have him bump the bumps, but wish he'd quit discussing mumps and wens and other grievous lumps, and pains I'm loaded down, they jar me up from feet to crown, but when my nephews come to town I talk not of my woes; I gossip on some of my sprightly theme, drink soda pop and accept of ice cream, and none of them would ever dream that children rack my toes.

Does bobbing strengthen the hair? When fair hair is shed does it grow dark? When the head is shaved, does straight hair grow curly? If hair shaved on the cross will it curl? The next generation of women, bald? These were some of the questions asked at the London College of Physiology when Mr. H. J. Hays Roberts lectured on "Bobbing and Shingling." He answered them all the negative. He admitted that sometimes, when all the hair has been moved, it is curly when it grows again. Most of the audience were men, and most of them were bobbers. He told them that bobbing dates from the Stone Age, and had always been a sign of social inferiority, a badge of servitude, a mark of servility. "However," he remarked scathingly, "it is one of the signs of the emancipation of women, part of her reluctance to conform to conventional standards."

I. T. U. Acquire New Headquarters

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 14. — Stately halls and spacious drawing rooms, wont to witness the swank and magnificence of Hoosierdom's most exclusive society affairs soon will resound to the clatter of typewriters and adding machines grinding out the business of a leading trade union. It was announced here to-day that the palatial Murdock home in the fashionable North Meridian Street district will become headquarters of the International Typographical Union, April 1. Purchase of the home, made famous locally by its occupation at different times by two of Indiana's richest families, was effected recently by the Union. It was sold by heirs of the late Samuel T. Murdock, multi-millionaire interurban magnate and manufacturer.

The purchase price was not made public, but it was said the building could not be duplicated on land of such value at a total cost of less than $500,000. Built by Frank Van Camp, of the wealthy canning industry family, in 1906, the home has since been included in all sight-seeing tours of Indianapolis as one of the city's most beautiful estates. It is surrounded by landscaped grounds, comprising four and one-half acres and including a sunken garden. The district in which it is located recently was designated for business purposes by the city planning commission.

The building is of limestone with massive walls and a wide uncovered stone veranda in the Italian style.

reaches along two sides. The solid mahogany woodwork of the interior was carved by artists from Switzerland, imported by Mr. Van Camp to do the work to his liking. The great center hall of the home will be used by the union as its reception room. More than thirty-five rooms will be included in the plans for altering the residence for business use.

Officials of the Union said they were compelled to seek new quarters by the expansion of the organization's business and the high rental rates prevailing in the business district. The new headquarters will afford greater room at less cost and also offers a sound investment, they said. Members of the Union's Executive Council, who consummated the purchase, were: James M. Lynch, President; J. W. Hays, Secy.-Treasurer; Seth R. Brown, 1st Vice-President; Austin Hewson, 2nd Vice-President; Charles N. Smith and Hugo Miller.

The Typographical Union is one of the wealthiest trade unions and has about $5,000,000 of its funds invested in bonds. It also has a $3,500,000 investment in the Union Printers' Home in Colorado Springs, Colo., to which an extensive addition was made last year.

"It has ever been a policy of the Typographical Union to be very conservative in the investment of union funds," said Mr. Lynch. "For that reason the organization has confined itself to purchase of government and municipal bonds in the past. In this case, however, it became necessary to acquire our own headquarters property or suffer a loss through exorbitant rent. We bought at a bargain and I am reliably advised that our new investment will prove one of the most profitable we have ever had. The investment can be reduced to a comparatively small sum at any time by sale of surplus land."

Beside its trade regulation activities and the Union Printers' Home, the Union maintains an old-age pension system, mortuary benefits and a department of apprentice education, all of which are administered at headquarters.

A library of books on printing and related subjects will be accumulated after the new headquarters are opened.

The International Typographical Union, officials say, is the development of an organization idea, itself, which was formed by the early printers of the 15th Century and similar societies have existed practically continuously since, each having for its smallest unit, the "chapel" of each printing shop. The National Typographical Union was organized at a convention in Cincinnati, O., in 1852, and the name was changed to International Typographical Union of North America, in 1868. Headquarters have been maintained in Indianapolis since 1888.

New Wireless Value

Better Signals and an Accumulator—Impossible to Burn It Out.

An invention of great importance to wireless amateurs is a new valve which has been made by Dr. Leonard Levy and Mr. West. By a curious coincidence another wireless engineer, Mr. A. C. Hyde, has made the same discovery, and the three inventors have collaborated and have succeeded in making a dull emitter valve which entirely does away with the necessity of the accumulator—that bugbear of the listener-in.

The valve used in wireless depends on the stream of electrons which produces this stream of electrons when made merely red hot with the use of an ordinary cell or two, but they have disadvantages.

The secret of these dull emitter valves, as they are called, is that the tungsten filaments are coated with thorium, but powerful microphotographs have revealed the fact that the thorium has been present only in the form of minute globules of metal on the tungsten wire.

The discovery has been made that if the thorium is deposited upon a wire made of the metal molybdenum, the molybdenum wire becomes completely coated with thorium, and the new valve is therefore made with molybdenum which is coated with thorium.

A great advantage of the valve is that it can be overrun with electricity without any fear, while the present dull emitter valve is easily ruined by such a procedure. In fact, a valve has been discovered which can be run from a small and inexpensive dry battery which gives greatly superior signals without any fear of damage by inexperienced handling, and the accumulator will become a thing of the past.

Match-Making is Mothers Job

The match-making mother is one of those people whom we often meet in novels and in the cinema. We often see her in real life, because such odium is attached to the match-making mother that most women steer clear of the role. They wash their hands of all responsibility and leave their daughters to shift for themselves about getting husbands.

This is wrong. Between the scheming mother who disposes of her daughter in marriage as if she were a slave on the auction-block, and the mother who leaves her daughter's matrimonial fate entirely to chance, there is a wide field in which it is not only the province but the duty of a good mother to forward her child's happiness and well-being.

Every Woman's Wish.
It is strange that so many mothers do not realize this, for nearly all women, even when they have not been happily married themselves, believe in marriage. They recognize it as woman's predestined place in life, the career in which she is most likely to find peace and contentment. Every woman wants her daughters to marry. She never feels safe about them until they are married, and the first breath of relief that a mother draws from the time her baby girl is born is when she sees her walking out of the church door on the arm of her husband.

This being the case, why is getting her daughter married not a legitimate occupation for the mother? It should not be a mother who her wisdom and experience in trying to secure a good husband for her child? No mother has a right to use her influence to make her daughter marry any particular man just because he is a "good catch." But she should use her own matrimonial experience and her own knowledge of men to guide her girl in making the right choice of a husband.

Every woman knows that in affairs of the heart an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. There is no use in arguing with a girl in love. She is temporarily incapable of seeing anything in its true light. She is deaf to all reason. Girls marry the men with whom they are thrown in contact. Hence it is the mother's duty to see that the men with whom her daughters associate with are the kind she would welcome as her sons-in-law.

The sensible mother does not take into her family a handsome young relative and throw him into daily association with her daughter, and then howl with horror when she finds they have fallen in love with each other and want to get married. Nor does she give the run of her house to some fascinating ne'er-do-well and then weep with despair when her daughter announces her intention of marrying him despite all the warnings that are held up before her as to how such a marriage is sure to turn out.

So would you be a "Convert for Life"

—if this simple food had done as much for you

THESE REMARKABLE REPORTS are typical of thousands of similar tributes to Fleischmann's Yeast.

There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low so that skin, stomach and general health are affected—this simple, natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—inactivating the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active. Health is yours once more.

Dissolve one cake in a glass of water (just hot enough to drink)—before breakfast and at bedtime. Fleischmann's Yeast, when taken this way, is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation. Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain.

Write us for further information, or let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health.

Address: Health Research Department, The Fleischmann Company, 201 Duckworth St., St. John's, N.F.

"Constipation and blood impurities became first an annoyance; then a menace, and finally a chronic disability. My nerves were 'on edge'; I became moody, irritable, and subject to intense depression. One day I heard two chance acquaintances praising the merits of Fleischmann's Yeast. They spoke with enthusiasm, but it was their appearance, even more than their words, which decided me. . . . The age of miracles is still here. Inside of a fortnight, I noticed a distinct improvement in my health; in a month I was literally a new man. Within a year my nerves had steadied and my appetite came back. I am today in the pink of condition and a convert for life to Fleischmann's Yeast."
(Mr. Ellery A. Clark, Boston, Mass.)

"I am a traveling man. Indigestion is a dreaded foe of my fraternity, but I boasted that I had abused my stomach for years. Then indigestion landed a knockout! . . . I grew moody, discouraged, and my work suffered. . . . When a friend spoke to me of Yeast, I had no faith in it. But its effect was rapid, and one day I ordered a big steak, and potatoes, and coffee—a wonderful meal, and no bad after-effects! I again eat anything at any time and any place!"
(Extract from a letter of Mr. W. L. McGahan of Dallas, Texas)

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST FOR HEALTH comes only in the tinfoil package—it can not be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Start eating it today! You can order several cakes at a time, for Yeast will keep fresh in a cool, dry place for two or three days.

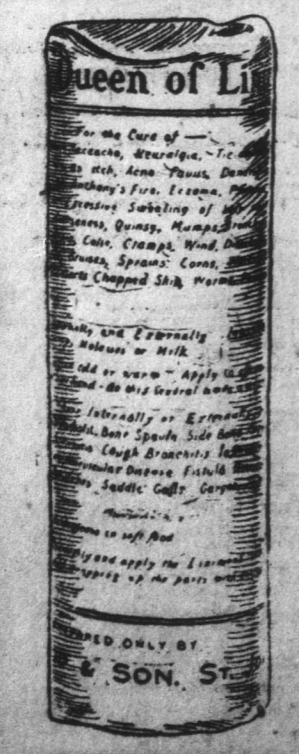

"A sedentary life leads to torpidity of the liver and kidneys, to constipation, and to the misery of acute indigestion. No man in such a condition can feel bright and competent to face the duties of the day. He wakes in the morning with a bad taste in his mouth and a dull feeling in his head. Not only Monday but every day is painted a depressing blue. His life is threatened with failure. It was while feeling thus that I determined to investigate Fleischmann's Yeast. Today constipation, indigestion and all their attendant ills have gone—like evil geni before a magic wand. Arabian Nights contain nothing more wonderful."
(A letter from Rev. James E. W. Cook of Wilmington, N. C.)

"My face was so covered with pimples that I could scarcely touch it without an exclamation of pain, and I was so unsightly that I was ashamed to go out. There a skin specialist advised me to eat two cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every day, saying that my bodily resistance was low, and that there was not enough white corpuscles in my blood. I took the yeast regularly in a little orange juice, and now my face has changed so that my friends don't recognize me."
(Extract from a letter from Miss Olive Kraser Keatin of N. Sacramento Blvd., Chicago, Ill.)

"Struggling with my dead husband's business I found each day exacting more energy than I could generate. The end seemed inevitable—breakdown for myself and institutional care for my boys and girls. I heard someone joking another about eating Fleischmann's Yeast. I tried it. To my surprise I soon felt a sustaining strength which increased as I used the yeast regularly. With better digestion came improved assimilation resulting in added strength. Every time I buy Fleischmann's Yeast I feel positively ashamed of the trifling price I pay for each of these potent cakes."
(A letter from Mrs. A. C. Cowling, an Oklahoman)

The Turncoat Stoa

In Winter he Wears White and Becomes an Ermine.

With the coming of the cold weather the stoat has turned ermine, and has been changing his dark summer coat for a winter one of white.

In the Highlands he acquires a whole coat of white to match the snowdrifts; but in low-lying country, even in mid-winter, you may sometimes see a plebeian stoat, who seems to have been uncertain whether there would be enough snow to warrant an unbroken coat of white.

The stoat's black tail tip, however, remains the same colour all the year round, says H. Mortimer Batten, F.Z.S., in his book, "British Wild Animals"; and it is this which gives the black stripes to the ermine robes of royalty.

It is the stoat's nature to live by murderous ways. One of his methods of hunting consists of so completely raising the curiosity of his intended quarry that it makes no effort to escape him.

The waeast of all wild beasts have learnt a way to distrust what they do not understand, and the most foolish and demurest cat will walk right up to any strange object in wide-eyed inquiry.

If you were to lie down in a field and wave your legs vigorously in the air you would soon have all the cattle in the pasture around you, half wild with curiosity.

The stoat knows this, and one of his methods of approaching to within springing distance of his victim is to perform the wildest contortionist feats imaginable. He leaps into the air, turns back somersaults, stands on his nose—all with such bewildering quickness of movement that it dazzles the eyes of those who watch him.

But ever bound and turn is taking him nearer to his intended victim, which meanwhile is strolling obligingly toward him, so overcome with curiosity that it seems unable to guess the distance between itself and the wily hunter.

Canada's Heads Flight to Pole

As planned at present the expedition will make a for Spitzbergen, proceed northward as far as the ice will permit and establish the base some-

Little Jack Rabbit

By DAVID COBY.

Now let me think what happened as I finished yesterday's story. You now I remember. The Policeman Dog had told the Big Brown Bear the telephone that Mr. Wicked Wolf's front lawn was strewn with lollypop sticks, tell-tale proof that the old wolf must have stolen the barrel of lollypopa from the Big Brown Bear's Cozy Cave House.

"Well, what shall we do?" asked the Policeman Dog. "Shall I meet you somewhere?"

"Wait a minute till I think of a plan," answered the careful Policeman Dog scratching his ear with his hind foot, only of course the Big Brown Bear couldn't see him over the top of the blind leg as it bumped on the floor. "Meet me under Squirrel Nutsacker's Tree," answered the Policeman Dog all of a sudden. "We'll meet there and then proceed," (which was to go ahead, Little Reader).

"Right away!" asked the impatient bear quick as a wink, so anxious to get back his barrel of lollypopa.

"The quicker the better," replied the Policeman Dog.

"Do you want to come along?" asked the Big Brown Bear, hanging on the telephone and turling to the Policeman Dog. "Maybe you'd better hop on to Mother. This is no easy job."

"I'd like to come," answered the little rabbit, brave as a lion—a little of course, not a great big one.

"All right. Get on your coat," said the Big Brown Bear, taking his cap off the wooden peg behind the door and putting on his big fur mittens. Then he picked up his big club, he and the boys set out for the Chestnut Nutsacker's Tree, where the Policeman Dog had built a comfortable little igloo.

The storm was over and Mr. Happy was shining down on the great

On reaching the little rocky house in which Mr. Wicked Wolf lived, they paused at the gate for a moment, then tip-toeing around to the back door, the Policeman Dog motioned to the Big Brown Bear to wait at the front porch. The next minute the Policeman Dog shouted: "Here it is in the woodshed!"

"How will we get it back to my cave?" asked the Big Brown Bear.

"Here's an old sled. We'll drag it back," laughed the Policeman Dog. And in the next story

Historical Records

THE HIPPISEY AND TRAPNELL FAMILIES.

Article XX.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

I have been taken to task by some very close connections of the Hippisey family that my reference to James Hippisey taking part at important meetings at Harbor Grace in 1832, could not be correct, as he was only two years old at that time.

I cleared my skirts as usual by showing my old friend that the Hippiseys were in this country at a much earlier date than he was aware of, and that it was a later generation that he referred to. Both James and George Hippisey were prominent men in Harbor Grace in 1832. When the great firm of Danson failed in 1832, James Hippisey was appointed the sole executor of that estate. I have already mentioned that Hugh William Danson was Mayor of Bristol, and it is said that his extravagance in this connection, and also the stud of racing horses that he kept up, brought the firm down, notwithstanding the business-like manner in which it was managed by Rory Campbell, in this country. It shows what confidence the creditors in Bristol had in James Hippisey to give him complete control to wind up such a large estate, but it has always been the same with members of this family as they are most trustworthy in every detail.

I well remember hearing about the life size oil paintings that the Hippiseys lost in the fire when their premises were burnt down in 1870 in Harbor Grace. These oil paintings were the ancestors of the Bristol family, and showed them in knee-breeches, silver buckles on their shoes, and frills round their necks in great style.

The Hippisey family are closely related to the Horner family, which are still a very important firm in the old city of Bristol. Every one has heard the rhyme:

"Little Jack Horner sat in a corner
Eating his Christmas pie—
He put in his thumb, and pulled out
A plum.
And said, 'what a good boy am I.'"

My friend, already referred to, knows that this old nursery rhyme has been handed down from time immemorial in the Horner and Hippisey family, but I can tell him something more about it. The little Jack Horner was a reality, and this nursery rhyme was originally a skit that caught the popular fancy, and will probably be perpetuated as long as there are children to repeat the song.

The King of England (but who that King was, I do not know, as it goes back to the mists of antiquity) claimed a piece of land belonging to the Horners in the ancient city of Bristol, and John Horner defended his case before the tribunal, as the Court was called in those days. The case was tried, probably about Christmas time, as the song suggests, and at the last moment, to the surprise of every one, John Horner presented unquestionable deeds, showing his undoubted right to the property. "Little Jack Horner put in his thumb and he pulled out a plum"—these were the deeds of the property, and well he could say "what a good boy am I," as he won his case against the King and all his fine men in a way that could not be disputed.

THE TRAPNELL FAMILY.

This is another very old Bristol family, who came to England with William the Conqueror, and whose name appears in the Doomsday Book, as one of the largest landowners in England. The family still show their coat of arms (the Griffin Rampant) granted to them at that time.

The Trapnells were among the first sufferers at Harbor Grace in 1832, but were residents there long before that date. The Bristol branch of the family still correspond with relatives here, and quite recently the death of Cabel Trapnell was reported in Bristol, a prominent designer and jeweller, who manufactured a jewel case presented to the Queen Mother Alexandra, at the time of her marriage, and which she still uses as her favorite watch-box.

Among the records of 1832, I see a notice of Mrs. Trapnell announcing to her friends that they will now find her in the house lately occupied by Mr. Joseph Peters (the grandfather of our new controller). This Mrs. Trapnell had six children, four of whom are still alive—the eldest, Mr. Jacob Trapnell, 86 years of age, resides in Montreal, and visited St. John's and Harbor Grace last year. The youngest, Mr. John Trapnell, is hale and hearty, and is the respected Deputy Sheriff, also Recording Steward of the Methodist Church at Harbor Grace. He and I were school-fellows at the famous Grammar School, under the illustrious teacher, Mr. Roddick. Every one was pleased when he received the Imperial Service Order from His Majesty King George a few years ago.

Two sisters, Mrs. Worrall, of St. John's, and Mrs. Spence, of British Columbia, are expected to visit Harbor Grace next year. The other two brothers were Captains, in the foreign trade, and both lost their lives in that service. Mrs. Donald Morrison and Mr. R. H. Trapnell, (watchmaker and jeweller), at present in California, are descended from Capt. Robert Trapnell, who was lost in the barque, Lord Raglan, of 2,000 tons, when trading to Australia. Captain William Trapnell was lost in his own brigantine, Reformer, which he built on the site, where now is erected the splendid Marine Docks, at Harbor Grace.

I am now preparing the records of the first elections, in 1832, which were most exciting. The personal abuse, which is so prevalent with us to-day, was absent at that time, but they hit straight from the shoulder when they saw the weak spot. The Returning Officer seems to have run the whole election—they had to wait for him to come to record their votes, but I must not go too fast, as there are several interesting items to deal with before I come to that.

For Baby's Cold Take Barnes' Road Mother's Advice

"Little Jack Horner sat in a corner
Eating his Christmas pie—
He put in his thumb, and pulled out
A plum.
And said, 'what a good boy am I.'"

Mrs. A. J. Symonds of No. 102 Barnes' Road, St. John's, is another mother who has learned that it is no longer necessary to "dose" children who have colds. She says: "Since trying a sample of Vicks I have been a constant user and find it a wonderful remedy. My four months old baby had a bad head and chest cold and, after three applications, he was completely cured."

"Vicks is just the right home remedy. I cannot say too much in favor of it and will advise everyone to use it."

A Boon to Mothers.

Millions of modern mothers now treat all cold troubles "externally" with Vicks Vapo-Rub. In the States, where Vicks originated, over 37 million jars are now used annually. For a head cold you just melt a little Vicks in a spoon or tin cup and inhale the penetrating vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Thyme, Eucalyptus, etc. Also a little may be snuffed up each nostril.

For deep chest colds, croup or bronchitis, Vicks is rubbed over throat and chest and covered with warm flannel. When so applied it has a two-fold action, both direct: It is absorbed like a liniment and, at the same time, inhaled as a vapor.

Another German Monarchist Plot

Berlin, Jan. 9.—The Hohenzollerns and other Royalists recently agreed upon a plan for starting an active nation-wide monarchist movement in Germany, according to information obtained by the United States News correspondent. The movement is to have its beginning in Bavaria.

Under the plan, Prince Rupprecht would become the Regent Governor, after the manner of Admiral Horthy in Hungary. Upon the completion of this first step, all types of Monarchists are to unite and return in force with the aim of re-establishing the Monarchy on a permanent basis.

Fads and Fashions

Picoated petals trim a child's party frock of rose taffeta. The French jabot is a feature of the frocks for southern wear. The kinds of buttons and the ways of using them are varied.

Softer hues are used for sports clothes than in the past season. For any kind of sports outfit leather is a very chic trimming. One notes a great many more capes than coats in the evening. A gathered apron tunic may give the desired fullness in front.

A smart choker is of large pearls and gold beads, alternately placed. One notes that all fullness in the new frocks is drawn to the front. The sports frock are often simple two-piece affairs of jersey or flannel. On many frocks one notes epaulet shoulders and sleeves in one.

When a skirt is worn for sports, it buttons at one side over breeches. White, natural, amber, rouge and scarab green are good for resort wear. The correct blouse for sports travel is very like the shirt.

Revelation Opens at the Nickel Monday

SCIENTIFIC FILM WITH COLORFUL ATMOSPHERE AND SETTINGS.

The Nickel Theatre presents on Monday one of the season's greatest masterpieces, "Revelation." George Baker has directed this picture with good judgment and colorful effect. No expense has been spared in filming the production, which abounds with ornate settings, and from an artistic and entertainment standpoint leaves nothing to be desired.

The scenes depicting the life of the intimate are vividly impressive and the brilliant contrast is obtained between the various stages of heroine Joline's career, her first appearance as a farm girl, her evolution as a dramatic model, and the period of repentance, followed by reformation and domestic bliss.

That the feature possesses the power to fascinate admirers of this type of picture was clearly proved by the enthusiastic reception accorded it recently at the Capitol Theatre, New York.

Vola Dana is a bewitching figure as the vivacious, merry idol of the art colony. In her pose of the Madonna she is quite convincing. The picture is seen to good advantage in situations capitalizing her cuteness and pretty mannerisms, and when called upon to put over the "heavy" emotional stuff, she does not fail. Her performance on the whole is excellent.

(Potatoes! Allumettes they were called by Monsieur Filippini, the former chef of Delmonico's, from whose same cook book this recipe is reprinted.)

Peel and wash three good-sized, sound, raw potatoes and carefully cut them into match-like strips. Wash again, drain well, then place in a wire frying basket and fry them in hot Crisco for five minutes, or until they attain a golden color. Lift them up, drain thoroughly, sprinkle over them a teaspoonful salt and serve on a hot dish.

Thames Whitebait

NOTHING BUT TINY HERRING.

That whitebait is nothing more nor less than herring fry is not generally known. The fact is brought out in a report just issued by the Ministry of Agriculture on "Young Herring in the Southern North Sea and English Channel."

The report is the first contribution by English scientists to the solution of problems of the younger stage of herring, and among other matters it deals with the movements of the fry until they come finally "to various in-shore waters where they appear as 'whitebait.'"

It has been found that the shoals of "whitebait" herring of the Thames estuary and Ostend harbour consist of autumn-spawned fry from the North Sea as well as winter-spawned fry from the English Channel.

Ease of Control

THE switchboard is the nerve center of the entire electrical equipment.

It required years of extended experiment to obtain the present perfection of switch-gear, with its accuracy, safety and nicety of control which acts as an important factor of economy by being always at one's finger tip. In buying Westinghouse switch-gear, one obtains all the result of accumulated experience plus the safety that is incorporated in all Westinghouse apparatus.

Curing Baldness in the Clouds!

EXPERIENCES THAT WERE REALLY HAIR-RAISING.

An unexpected result of the recent flight round the world was that one of the aviators, who was bald when he started, returned with quite a luxuriant growth of hair. On the other hand, a fellow-aviator began to go bald during the journey.

Many a man has resigned himself to baldness only to find that some queer experience has resulted in giving him a new crop of hair.

A young Scottish minister was experimenting with a magic lantern when the cylinder, containing coal-gas for lighting, exploded, and his face was badly scorched. Before the accident he was quite bald on the front of his head, but after the explosion a new growth of hair appeared.

The Carrot Cure.

A miner who was blown up also found that the shock produced a vigorous crop of hair on his formerly bald pate.

Everybody knows that cutting the hair frequently strengthens it and induces new growth, but few are aware that shaving the scalp will sometimes cause a meagre covering of "fluff" to develop into a sturdy crop.

A man who joined the Army late in life was in the same company as a very fussy officer. The private was nearly bald and trained his few strands of hair across his head to hide the deficiency as much as possible.

This did not suit the officer, who insisted upon everybody having their hair close-cropped. In his annoyance, the private persuaded a comrade to shave his head absolutely bare. Within a week or two he found that new hair was growing all over his scalp. He continued with the shaving and left the Army with a fairly good crop.

Medical men are constantly experimenting with new cures for baldness. The fact that a diet of carrots is known to improve a horse's coat gave a doctor a clue on which to work.

After a series of experiments, he now announces that bald people should eat plenty of root crops. Turnips, carrots, radishes, and onions, he says, all contain the salts required to stimulate the latent hair on bald heads.

Hair, like ordinary field crops, fails to grow when the source of nourishment gives out. That happens when, through old age or illness, the supply of blood to the scalp decreases and the hair roots cannot extract their food from it.

An old-fashioned remedy, an extract containing cantharides or blister flies, is effective because it raises little blisters of blood under the scalp, which give extra nourishment to the hair.

A "Bald Head" Club has now been formed. Its aim is to knit into a worldwide brotherhood men "whose domes of thought protrude through and tower above the foliage that merely affords shade and adornment."

The club's articles state that "hair is not essential to make a man either happy or handsome, else the Wild Man of Borneo would be the envy of the human race!"

"The Merry Cobbler"

The Holy Cross Dramatic Troupe, under the leadership of Percie Jardine, are busy preparing for their annual entertainment. With their usual enthusiasm and thoroughness they are leaving nothing undone to ensure for the 1925 programme an even greater success than that of previous years. Mr. Jardine will be in the leading role of "Cobbler," while Misses Molly Horan and Winona McDonald, who scored such wonderful successes in "Rose O' My Heart," will be the leading ladies. "The Merry Cobbler" is one of the cleanest and daintiest plays in the whole repertoire of the stage. Its mirth provoking comedy, romantic story and great plot are sure to captivate the many patrons who will attend. The entertainment opens on the first general holiday.

Tests on Students

INFLUENCE OF PHYSIQUE ON DIGESTION.

Eighty Guy's Hospital students are voluntarily undergoing experiments in the physiological laboratory of the hospital's Medical School to test the influence of physique and exercise on digestion.

"It is not pleasant for the subjects," said one of the three physiologists conducting the investigation, explaining that rubber tubes are passed into the stomach and into the intestines in the course of the experiments.

"We have already established some very interesting facts," he said. "All sorts of variations which used to be regarded as signs of disease have been found in these healthy students."

"One fact demonstrated is that a low degree of acidity occurs more frequently in men leading a sedentary life and below the average as regards fitness. In men leading an active life more than the usual amount of acidity has often been found."

"In broad-chested men the stomach is high and in narrow-chested men it is lower than usual. There is no doubt of the connection of the amount of acid and the position of the stomach with physique and fitness. A tendency to develop certain gastric disorders is probably due to these anatomical and physiological variations."

Man Found

Work was received in the city yesterday that the body of the man Newman who left his home at Norman's Point, T.R., about two weeks ago, had been found by a search party about the east of Tickle Harbor. The fortunate man was last seen at Tickle Cove, where he had set out at about 10 o'clock in the afternoon to make a return journey in the height of a storm. As he was not properly clothed to withstand the cold and fury of the storm, it is evident he fell a victim to the elements.

Placentia Galena Deposits

Work on the galena deposit discovered last year at Sparrow's Meadow on the railway station at Placentia has been continued through the winter. So far three mineral veins have been discovered on the property. The first was the third vein which was recently being forwarded to the assay office for analysis. It shows every sign of being rich in silver content. They bear a marked resemblance to samples from Silver Mines from which they are probably distinguishable when placed side by side. A cross cutting from a depth of 20 feet is now being made in the third vein. It is a fact to be noted that thousands of dollars are being shipped away to help enrich the lands whilst our own resources lie dormant. There is no doubt but that the country offers as promising a field for investment as any other under the sun, but for one reason or another it is difficult to interest capital, and the resources try to develop a mining property often have to be abandoned in sight of the goal. It must be remembered that mines are not found, and money is not made to make them.

C. T. A. Meeting

The ninth annual meeting of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Newfoundland, was held at the Board of Trade rooms last night, a large number of travellers being present. The reports of the Secretary-Treasurer showed the Association to be in a healthy condition. A particularly interesting report from the insurance fund was presented, showing the department to be in a strong financial position. The following officers were elected for 1925:—

President—E. A. Crowther.
Vice-President—W. T. Lever.
Secretary-Treasurer—J. A. Carshaw; with M. Parsons, T. W. Stokes, H. J. Howlett and A. E. Owen, as Board of Management. A special committee was appointed to meet after the social side of the Association. The retiring Secretary, A. Chown, was made an honorary member for the valued services rendered during the past nine years. A sum of $500 was voted for the Permanent Disaster Fund. Under the executive a very bright year is being lived.

THE OIL SITUATION.

Improvement Becoming More Widespread—Speculatively Less Indication Of Wortham Becoming Unfavorable Factor.

NEW YORK.—With the new Wortham, Texas, oil pool producing 1,115,000 barrels a day, within six weeks after discovery, that field will become more prominent the next several weeks while running up to its peak. Its high point is estimated at 175,000 to 200,000 barrels a day, to be reached in February.

Speculatively there is less indication of Wortham being an unfavorable factor. The probable extent is pretty well known, and the industry is in a position to absorb such production of this field without difficulty.

Improvement in oil is becoming more widespread, and while the situation is strongest in Pennsylvania, there is a much firmer tone on the Gulf coast. An advance in prices in the last-named territory is looked for shortly, and an increase is also expected in Pennsylvania.

While Wortham may prevent any advance in midcontinent crude for the time being, premiums are being paid for certain grades there.

Once the peak of production in Wortham has been passed it is believed there will be a substantial falling off in production in this country, as there is no area in sight at present to replace it. Several of the older pools in Oklahoma are declining, and the outlook after peak of Wortham has been passed in regarded by oil men as unusually favorable. This drop in older fields is shown in current statistics, and daily production is now down to the lowest in a year, total in this country being placed at 1,911,000 barrels, against 2,000,000 a year ago.

Latest available figures on consumption of crude oil showed we used 2,140,000 barrels daily in November, a new record. That is 230,000 barrels a day more than domestic production. This deficiency is met almost fully by imports, which averaged 220,000 barrels a day during November. The quality of the oil coming from Mexico, however, is poorer than formerly. #### NEW OGLIVIE ON $5 DIVIDEND BASIS.

At a meeting held in Montreal this week, shareholders of Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, Limited, ratified the proposal to issue new no-par-value common stock on the basis of three shares for each one share of old stock presently held. C. R. Hosmer, president of the company, told the shareholders that a dividend of $1.25 could be expected to be declared, payable April 1, 1925. This would place the new stock on a $5 per share dividend basis. As the present Ogilvie stock pays 12 per cent. annual dividends, this new basis will represent an improvement of 3 per cent. in the dividend rate.

Mr. Hosmer intimated that it would continue to be the policy of the company to declare annual bonus payments, and that one such could be looked for at the end of the year. It will be remembered that for last year the company paid 13 per cent. as a bonus, making the total dividend for the year 25 per cent. Generous action has been the rule in other years.

The old Ogilvie stock is presently selling around $70 a share. This indicates a price of slightly below $125 per share for the new stock. Undoubtedly this level is in discount of a substantial bonus payment, and the view has already been expressed that a $5 bonus, bringing the total disbursement to the equivalent of 30 per cent. on the old shares, would not be surprising.

Announcement will be made shortly by the company outlining the terms and dates under which the old stock may be transferred for the new. Although transfer books have now been closed except for the new shares, it is believed that shareholders will be given some little time to take up the offer, in view of the large overseas interest in the company.

3. The overwhelming and amazing evidence of actual sufferers who in their own homes have been suffering from health troubles they believed chronic and incurable, and who have found Treatment by Electricity completely successful in restoring permanent health.

FACTS FOR THE NERVE-WEAK

Surely any alluring reader who studies the facts given here (which can all be vouched for and verified) must realize that it is a personal duty to oneself to investigate further the remarkable claims that are undoubtedly made for Electric Treatment. Therefore in addition to the statements made here, every reader of the St. John's Evening Telegram who will send the form is invited to accept free of cost a remarkable book which more fully, carefully and intimately deals with each particular class of ailment, and shows by scientific facts and patients' own reports that Electricity does banish weakness and ill-health, and restores manly vigour, perfect mental balance, and a fund of splendid vitality and strength.

This free book is of special and vital importance to those whose vitality, health and strength is being sapped by the modern scourge of Neurasthenia.

Page by page in intimate and confidential manner this book explains why this dreaded trouble is undermining your whole system, and what is more important, why thousands of people have found in natural Electricity the only permanent means of cure.

Naturally, Treatment at a hospital must interfere with business and social routine, but, as will be seen below, you can enjoy the best of Electric Treatment in your own home.

Now think of the great host of scientists who, like Doctor Crile, the world-famous savant, have come forward, and in the public Press emphasized their belief in the fact that in electricity alone lies the keynote of conquering health troubles and re-feeding the system with vitality and strength.

But important as this scientific evidence really is, to the thousands of people who suffer from neurasthenia, nerve weakness, loss of vitality, insomnia,

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHEN THE SHOP WAKES UP.

Don't you love to go into a big department store in the early morning just at the opening hour?

Not only because you can accomplish just what you want, but also because the clerks are fresh and you're not fagged yourself, and there is no crowd to bother, but also because the atmosphere of the shop has a certain fascination when the big mechanism is just getting under way.

In the first place the clerks haven't yet slipped on their professional manner and become clerks, they are still people. You can feel the sense of their individuality, and their personal lives, as they exchange greetings with each other and pass along the gossip of the night before.

"Good show at C's," calls the girl at the perfume counter to Face Creams across the way. "Ribbons? Yes, Madame, the other aisle to the right. Who took me? Who do you suppose?"

Says Silk Underwear to Silk Stockings. "Good looking wave you got last night," says Silk Underwear to Silk Stockings. "Where did you get it? That new place? Only 50 cents! Honest! I'm going to try it myself. Only my hair burns so easy I have to be careful. All right, I'll tell them you sent me."

The girl at the scarf counter is five minutes late. As she slips into place giving her hair that preening she did not have time to give it in the dressing room, the girl at Ribbons calls across: "How's your mother, Jane?"

"Oh, she's quite a little better," says Jane. "The doctor thinks she's going to be all right."

"I'm so glad," cries Ribbons and the girl at gloves who has overheard the good news, nods and smiles her pleasure over a customer's shoulder.

The Window Dresser's Armful.

The good looking young window dresser goes down the aisle with a very much underdressed lady who has evidently been taken from her window to be reappareled. He has a look on his boyish face that defies anyone to say anything about his embarrassing armful and none of the women do, but Tony who has strayed over from the shoe shining department cannot resist a jibe that makes the good looking young window draper blush to the tips of his ears.

This is A Club.

This isn't just merely a shop for our convenience. It's a club of young people, and of mighty smart, well dressed young people at that. Black (in this particular shop) is the only color they are allowed to wear, but how smart they look in their well cut dark frocks, with perhaps a string of imitation pearls to set them off, and their hair smartly coiffed, and their nails perfectly tended. They would scarcely need to dress better for a dance or the theatre, and what fun it must be for them to be looking their best all the time!

Don't you hate the type of woman

Hendren Again

UNUSUAL INCIDENTS IN M.C.C. MATCH AT BRISBANE.

One of the features of the drawn match between the M.C.C. and an Australian XI, at Brisbane was the batting of Hendren, who followed up his record score of 188 on the same ground against Queensland with another splendid century. The Middlesex player gave a sterling display of defensive cricket. Playing with admirable steadiness he helped to get his side out of a very tight corner. Altogether he was at the wicket for three hours and a half without giving the semblance of a chance. His chief scoring strokes were drives and hooks, and he hit a 6 and ten 4's. Hendren has an average of over 80 for the tour. Another feature was a brilliant

Our Dumb Animals.

Report Of Chief Agent For Week Ending Jan. 16th, 1925.

Received two letters from Hampden, White Bay, complaining of the terrible condition of dumb animals in that locality; horses and cattle are said to be exposed to all weather. The writer has strongly requested that a police officer or some one in authority should be stationed there. I have placed the matter in the hands of the directors who are attending to it. I also have a report from Lewisport, of a horse that has been ill-used, the owner having lent it to another man, and had it returned in a lame and disabled condition. The Secretary, Mr. W. J. Brown, B.A., will give them instructions with regards as to what proceedings to take. This has been a busy week, trying to get the

Natural History in Postage Stamps

London.—The appearance of the lion on the British Empire Exhibition stamps, writes B. S. H. Grant in the Daily Mail, reminds us that much interesting information of a zoological nature may be gleaned from the postage stamps of the world. Quite a large number contain pictures of birds, animals and fishes. Philately is thus a valuable aid in promoting knowledge of zoology by association of the animals portrayed with the countries picturing them. Elephants and tigers appear most frequently. Tigers form the principal subjects for the low values of the Federated Malay States and elephants on the higher, while elephants are also prominent on many of the stamps of the Belgian Congo, Sirmoor and Liberia. Camels or dromedaries are depicted on the stamps of French Somaliland, Obock, Nyassa, Iraq and the Sudan, while giraffes form the subject matter of a number of interesting labels of Abyssinia, Tanganyika and Portuguese Nyassa. Abyssinia also has stamps showing the rhinoceros, ostrich and stag. One is not surprised to find the llama in evidence on the Peruvian stamps and the eagle on those of Mexico. The

What is Stock Size

Shopkeepers in the North Work to a Larger Measure Than Those Further South.

"We do not stock many articles in such a small size," said a saleswoman in a drapery store, when a very little woman went in to buy a certain piece of clothing. "There is not much demand round here for little things. You see, most of the people in this district are on the big side."

The would-be customer showed surprise. She had not realized that while most places contain an assortment of men and women of varying sizes, many districts also show a distinct preponderance of some particular type. Tall people are in the majority here; the lead is taken by short folk there.

People who deal in the things which we wear know all about it, and the business books of wholesale

Where Width is Wanted.

The people of the North are bigger in most ways than people of the South, and this to men, women and children, broad way, too, it is reckoned, country folk are made on a scale than townfolk.

London dwellers mostly fall three classes—average, slenderly, portly, while small sizes are very considerably in the South, towns, and particularly in the shire, Yorkshire, Lancashire and Five Towns take a huge supply of outside clothes, but it is in the lands where the demand for garments to fit portly persons run to width and depth rather than height—is biggest. Scotland, on the other hand, wants a lot of made to fit the person who is tall and not over-fat.

It most cases, the people of the South wear larger hats than people of the North, while the generally have larger heads than country dwellers.

What is Stock Size

Shopkeepers in the North Work to a Larger Measure Than Those Further South.

"We do not stock many articles in such a small size," said a saleswoman in a drapery store, when a very little woman went in to buy a certain piece of clothing. "There is not much demand round here for little things. You see, most of the people in this district are on the big side."

The would-be customer showed surprise. She had not realized that while most places contain an assortment of men and women of varying sizes, many districts also show a distinct preponderance of some particular type. Tall people are in the majority here; the lead is taken by short folk there.

From Our Own Correspondent

FIRST INDIAN MEMBER FOR QUEBEC HOUSE.

Mr. LeGardier, the newly-elected Opposition member for Quebec, has the honor of being the first Indian to sit in the Quebec Legislature. The Quebec Conservatives opened in force at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, and tendered Mr. Basque a banquet and a royal welcome to the party. The new Indian member is a large business concern in the city, is extremely popular, and it is his great popularity that President Taschereau attributed Mr. Basque's success in defeating one of the candidates in the by-election. His advent to the Lower House is not only interesting in the fact of being the first Indian to enter the Provincial Parliament, but also, as a small boy, he was page to Sir John A. Macdonald, then Speaker of the Legislative Assembly. He will have a companion from the recent by-election, Armand Crepeau who won the Quebec seat rendered vacant by the death of M. O'Brady. It will be recalled that Mr. O'Brady never took his seat in the House, as he took ill a few days after his election, and died a few days later.

THOSE WHO SHIRK RESPONSIBILITY.

Who have the gift of ability to discharge public duties and who do so are falling to carry out their duty of citizenship. Pierre Casgrain, M.P., for Charlevoix-Montmorency, gave in an address on public life the headquarters of the Loyal Order of the Moose recently. Mr. Casgrain held the opinion that the democratic institutions of this country stand the test of time in spite of developments abroad. A man who has his country in time of peace and in time of war. Mr. Casgrain hardly thought it possible that politicians could be degraded here of the calibre they had in Great Britain, because men here do not devote most of their time to politics, to earning a living for themselves and their families, and could give more than a part of their time to politics. In Great Britain there were whole families whose members all devoted themselves generally after generation to the service of the state, in the navy, the army, and so on.

CHRISTMAS FESTIVITIES CANCELLED AT THE ORPHANAGE.

Due to four cases of scarletina at St. Patrick's Orphanage, Outremont, the Christmas Tree celebration to be cancelled. The city health authorities could not grant permission for the celebration on account of the illness of the children. Rev. Martin Reid, chaplain, Rev. Martin Reid, was compelled to announce, with regret, to the many friends and members of the institution.

LARGEST CHRISTMAS MAIL ON RECORD.

The biggest mail, which broke all previous records, was handled at the Post Office on Christmas eve. A half a million of letters were mailed at the Post Office alone in about twelve hours. Add to this another half a million from the postal stations and outlying districts in the same period, and the Post Office staff had to be handled accordingly at the head office, 80,000 letters passing through the stamping machine. It took over 1200 bags to pack the letters and parcels from the postal stations and letter boxes. A hundred men worked all night packing the letters and parcels. An increase of 25 per cent in parcel post was announced. The public was well served with the service, and parcels were sent from foreign countries were good condition.

SIXTY FEET TO HIS DEATH.

Thomas Morton, 40 years of age, a man of the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Company Consolidated, while repairing a line, opposite the La Salle Gas Works, missed his footing and fell sixty feet to the ground. He was rushed to the Western Hospital where he died an hour afterwards, with his wife and child at his side.

THIEF CARRIED OFF HIS WAD.

When Nathan Adler, of 359 Colonial Street, went to bed recently he was the possessor of a bank-roll amounting to $70. It reposed in the pocket of his pants and his pants hung over the back of a chair near the open window.

WAKES UP IN THE MORNING TO FIND HIS RAIMENT ALL PRESENT, BUT HIS IMPORTANT PANTS MISSING.

When the search failed to find them in any corner of the room, he looked out the window and viewed the street. He was not alone in the yard, but the worst was yet to come. The pants were there, but not the $70. The resourceful individual had slipped his hand through the open window.

DEATH OF THE OLDEST RELIGIOUS IN CANADA.

After sixty years spent in religious life and fifty as Superioress, forty-five of them at St. Patrick's Academy, and for the past six years at St. Anthony's Academy, Rev. Mother St. Aloysia, a well-known member of the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame, passed away at the ripe age of 80 years. She was probably the oldest religious in Canada. Up to five weeks ago, she had enjoyed good health.

In secular life, Rev. Mother St. Aloysia, was Sarah Donnelly, and was born in Canada, of North of Ireland stock. Her father died of ship's fever, and her mother succumbed soon afterwards. She and her two sisters were then adopted by Mgr. Bolduc, of Quebec, in which city the family had settled.

JUDGE MOTT ON THE TRAINING OF THE CHILD.

Judge H. S. Mott, of the Juvenile Court, of Toronto, speaking before the Young Men's Canadian Club at a dinner at the Windsor Hotel on the subject of the training of the child, gave some valuable information on that great problem. Here are a few practical points of his address:

"The understanding and training of children is a bigger and more important task than the development and conservation of the other great resources of our country."

A sympathetic understanding and attention to children in the home was one of the greatest influences, according to the speaker, in the development of character in a child.

"People are continually urging their children," he said, "don't do this, don't do that, in such a manner that natural instinct is repressed and thus a reaction in the normal development of the child brought about."

Emphasizing the gang instinct in the development and growth of children, he declared that if this spirit was properly fostered it would go a long way toward helping to solve the delinquent problem in children.

bore ample testimony of the great popularity of the deceased sister, and her worth as a noble champion in the cause of secular and religious education. A sterling character, a noble soul, a true religious, and a cheerful and winning disposition, she has left the impress of her kindly acts and deeds, during her long educational career, with the thousands that came in contact with her. She was a great power for good, and she wielded it to the best advantage. Duty, stern duty was her watchword to the end. In the words of the Apostle, "Those that instruct others to justice shall shine as the stars in the firmament." "After life's fitful fever she sleeps well." In the crypt at Villa Marie her body is placed, near hundreds of others, who repose in peace after spending their lives in the great work of Christian education.

WAR WAGED AGAINST POISONED FOODS.

Under the heading of "Poisoned Food Again," the Star says, editorially: Following the exposures made in The Star there was a perceptible improvement in the meat and milk supply of the city, but it is still decidedly unsatisfactory.

A large percentage of the meat consumed here evades inspection and a large part of it is diseased. Purveyors aiming only at profit are not interested in the question of purity.

Unwholesome meat and milk can be sold in competition with supplies that are clean because the consumer does not see the evidence of impurity and, having no means of protecting himself, goes on eating and drinking these poisoned foods. It is a crying shame that the citizens are denied protection against such an iniquity.

The Health League recently formed is engaged in investigations that may lead to improvement. The Provincial and Civic authorities are warned against the wholly indefensible crime of participating in the fiendish work of poisoning the people by permitting the sale of poisoned food and the official toleration of the wickedness is a shameful scandal.

The sale of poisoned food must be stopped.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO PRACTISE.

Dear readers--There are three things in life which are necessary for our success in business, our peace of mind, and our happiness. They are Honesty, Earnestness and Charity. The "Christian Herald" says about Honesty: There is, in every branch of human activity, a demand for young people of sterling character--honest, truthful and reliable.

There are no substantial openings ever offered to the trifler, the mere pleasure-seekers, the youth who knows more about gambling and dancing than he does about business. Honest worth, no matter how humble, cannot be kept down. Character is the test--Christian character--and it invariably finds recognition, and in course of time, brings its reward. "Blest thou a man diligent in his business," says the Bible proverb. "He shall not stand before mean men. He shall stand before kings." A writer on Earnestness says: My work is honest because I am honest at the back of it. I myself am harmed by doing less than my best. The standard of others is nothing to me, I do my utmost. I am keen to make myself a master of my own subject. I am interested in my own work and enjoy it.

The present is a stepping-stone to higher things. My life's purpose is Progress. A good yesterday a fine to-day, but a finer to-morrow. I take light things lightly and serious things seriously. I can do no more than my best. I will do no less.

THE LONDON MORNING POST ON CHARITY SAYS.

There is something in the best of us that grudges success to others. It is annoying to see someone pass us in the race, someone who is young, while we are getting old, someone who is greeted with smiles and applause, while we with wry face take our seat some feet away from the high table. We talk about our own bad luck, and if we must attribute human causes to human success, well, then, we hint airily about "consummate cheek" or "family influence" or the "passport of good looks." The philosophy that can steel us against our own mediocrity and save us from condemning our neighbors is difficult to find in these days. The result is that envy, the curse of modern civilization, stalks the land. - R. J. LOUIS CUDDIHY.

CURRENT RADIO

This department is conducted by special arrangement between The Evening Telegram and the American Radio Relay League, Inc., the national organization of radio operators and experimenters.

How to Connect a Potentiometer as a "Stabilizer"

It is a great deal of propaganda to use the use of a potentiometer as a stabilizer in radio-frequency amplifiers is still very common. Since there are two ways of connecting this instrument—one good and one bad—it would seem advisable to know which of the two methods is the better and why.

The first radio frequency amplifier that came out on the market was the potentiometer connection shown in Fig. 1. Here we connect the ends of the potentiometer resistors across the "A" battery, and the wiper is used as the connection for the return of the secondary circuit. This method was obtained by placing the position of the arm at the end of the resistance, a negative charge was placed on the grid tube; with the arm at the opposite end of the resistance, a positive charge was impressed on the grid. Very gradual variations between the two extremes were possible.

This system is not a particularly stable one, due to the fact that it is to run down the "B" battery rapidly than the battery would normally discharge. With the majority of r.f. amplifiers, it is necessary to place a positive charge on the grid to keep the tube from oscillating. A "positive" grid draws more than the normal flow of current from the "B" battery. If this increased current flow were useful, it might be tolerated, but it is not. It is simply wasting "B" battery to no good end whatever.

There is another potentiometer connection that is just as effective as a method of oscillation control, however, which does not affect the "B" battery consumption in the slightest. This is shown in Fig. 2. Here we use only two of the three connections on the potentiometer: A connection to the arm, and a connection to either one of the two ends of the resistance. This method accomplishes oscillation control by simply changing the amount of resistance in the grid circuit. With a large amount of resistance, oscillation will be avoided; with little or no resistance in the circuit, oscillation will be obtained. The slight negative charge which would normally exist on the grid is not affected in the slightest.

The potentiometer may be either 200, 300 or 400 ohms. Note especially that no condenser is used around the potentiometer in Fig. 2. Condenser "C" in Fig. 1 is desirable, but a similar condenser in the circuit of Fig. 2 would defeat the purpose of the circuit. Therefore, don't use it.

What Is Engineering?

THE public is buying Buick performance in constantly increasing volume. In creating this performance, Buick engineering has set itself apart.

Therefore the story of Buick engineering is well worth telling.

Buick maintains the largest staff of engineers now engaged in the service of any automobile manufacturer. Buick believes that engineering worthy of its name must be the product of many minds of long experience.

Buick engineering holds an open mind for new ideas. Nothing is condemned untried. But Buick engineering has consistently refused to depart from known, sound principles of design for untried but spectacular features which might momentarily capture public fancy.

Proof and plenty of it is required by Buick. Buick's engineers study materials and parts, often through years; always through hundreds of thousands of miles, before accepting or rejecting.

There are eleven divisions of Buick's engineering staff, each concentrating on a different major unit of Buick design. One group centers its skill on axles, another on engines, still another on metals, and so on.

In Buick's metallurgical division alone, around a hundred men are constantly experimenting to be sure that Buick parts are built of the best materials to be found in the world.

The hands of Buick engineers are never tied by price limitations. They are free to select that which is best for Buick regardless of cost. And because of Buick's vast purchasing volume, that which is best for Buick almost invariably costs less than inferior products purchased in smaller quantities.

So, Buick engineering builds for permanence of Buick; giving infinite care to infinite detail; guarding against mistakes.

And because Buick engineering does these things, there is world-wide confidence in the Buick name. The Buick Motor Car has become a standard of comparison. Upwards of 900,000 Buicks are in daily use. And Buick, for the seventh consecutive year, has won first place at the National Automobile Shows for its leadership in volume of sales.

Notes on Votes

According to Bombay information, Mrs. Shirley, Maureen Hodgkinson has been appointed Honorary Presidency Magistrate, and is the first woman to hold such an appointment in Bombay. A few months ago Mrs. Hodgkinson, together with a Hindu, a Parsee, and a Mohammedan, lady, was made a Justice of the Peace. It was the first time this honour had been bestowed on a woman in Bombay. Mrs. Hodgkinson has been a member of the Bombay Municipal Corporation for the last two years, being elected by an overwhelming majority for the fort ward. She has shown conspicuous ability as a member.

Quite a number of women have recently been appointed to important posts in Holland, among them Miss J. M. J. A. Meyer, M.P., as a member of the Rotterdam prisons; Miss A. M. D. Lange, an engineer, has become an examiner for the State University for Technical Science at Delft; and Mrs. Serrant Israels, (daughter of the famous painter) and Mrs. Bergama have taken their seats on the county councils of South Holland and Zeeland.

So it goes on all over the world! Woman Suffrage in all progressive and civilized countries—indeed, the voting woman is a progressive force towards further civilization! No sooner does woman acquire the vote than she brings all her energy to bear on improvements in the cause of humanity. She becomes alive to the fact that no really effective and lasting welfare work can be accomplished unless backed by legislation of humanitarian lines. The voting woman all over the world is using her vote as a means of help for the helpless, as a means of self-protection, as an influence for the better education of her children, and in the cause of morality.

Samuel Gompers

(An Interpretation)
The public quickly forgets the faults of men who were really great. Death burns away the dross and leaves only the pure metal. In his lifetime Samuel Gompers exhibited many of the weaknesses and foibles that afflict humanity. He was prone to pose, possessed and stressed the dramatic quality, and perhaps the most regrettable of all was his strong addiction to vanity. He invited criticism and attack largely because of these frailties. But he repelled the slanders and the aspersions of small minds and great with a courage and an intellect so conspicuous that they were universally acknowledged by the analysts and the thinkers.

Samuel Gompers was a valiant knight in the cause to which he dedicated his life. He met all opponents and his blows left many scars. He was not overnice at times in the weapons with which he fought, but he knew that he was the leader of a mass struggle, and that in their initial stages these conflicts are necessarily rough. He was the proponent of the doctrine that the toiler was entitled to a greater and yet greater share of the wealth he produced. Those who were the losers in the application of this philosophy fought back with tooth and claw; they are still fighting with the same ferocity. The struggle is and will continue to be rough so long as the wage system endures.

Samuel Gompers did indeed keep the faith. He fought a good fight. He never asked for quarter. He was thrice armed for the combat. Always watchful, he won by his very aggression. In whatever company, at whatever place, his voice could be heard in defense and in advocacy of the people who in the sweat of their brows earn their bread. He never shirked in the combat; his armor flashed in the van of the battle. He always led his hosts in the great adventure.

Many disagreed with him, among them those whose captain he was. His critics were of selfish purpose and entrenched privilege; those inspired by envy and by different ideals, and those with vicious propensities and indifferent intellect. There were men who would use him, there were few if any who succeeded. His sword was always keen of edge, and it flamed forth at the first note of challenge.

And after all, the world loves a fighter. This was demonstrated as the body of this doughty warrior moved from San Antonio to New York. Many thousands at each station where a stop was made viewed the body with reverent eyes, and at other points stood with bared heads as the train moved through. The funeral services in New York were attended by the great and the lowly, and both paid high respect. All in all, this wonderful tribute to the dead giant was an indication that men and women who fight in such a cause, who battle for the House of Want, are better appreciated than the lack of testimonial in their lives would indicate, and that cruel and merciless criticism does not affirm.

The earthly abode of Samuel Gompers is at rest. The flaming spirit of the man will never die. The cause still lives.

THE KING TAKES A DAY OFF.

Once there was a king and he met a little boy and said: "Get up here and ride with me, Freckled-faced and towed head! You and I will ride away From the cares of state to-day."

Then he spurred his horse and they galloped down the dusty lane. And the people watched all day For their king to come again. And they murmured: "Why should kings Do so many foolish things?"

No one knew where they had gone. But a peasant far away Said his king he'd looked upon With a little boy and play. But the neighbors smiled and said That the sun had touched his head.

"Mother," said the boy at night. "I've been playing with our king. And I let him fly my kite. And I showed him everything— Showed him where the robins nest And the blue jills bite the best."

"And the king, when dusk came down, Sadly smiled at me and said: 'When you're old and go to town, Just remember, towed head, You can do so many things Which the world denies to kings.'"

"Then he turned and rode away. But a tear was in his eye. And he seemed so glad to play 'That I stood and wondered why.' Said the mother, as she smiled: 'You are such a dreamer, child.'"

Harbor Grace Notes

Wednesday's snow storm of last week was the first for the winter, and continued part of the following day, resulting in many high snow drifts being formed along the different streets. Yesterday, (Tuesday) there was quite a drop in the temperature, and the heavy rain has cut down the snowbanks a considerable amount, as well as made walking conditions a bit uncomfortable.

The many friends here of the late Rev. T. W. Atkinson, regret to learn of his passing, which occurred at St. John's a few days ago. Some thirty eight years ago, he was Pastor of the Methodist Church in this town, and has been much service in the Master's Vineyard in different fields since that time. His is the reward of faithful stewardship below, and as "Viator" in his Obituary in the Daily News writes: "Thus passes another Veteran of the Church Militant." The old Parishioners and friends of the late Rev. gentleman extends deepest sympathy to the relatives in their bereavement.

The funeral of the late Mr. Richard Walsh, a resident of the Riverhead, who passed away on Sunday, took place from there on Tuesday morning to the Cathedral, and interment was made in the R.C. Cemetery. Mr. Thomas Walsh of the Riverhead is a brother of the deceased. To the bereaved family we offer condolence.

Mr. Walter Yetman, son of Mr. Joseph Yetman, Marine Dock Foreman, who has been for the last two years working at Boston, Mass., returned home on Friday afternoon last, on a visit to his parents. It is good to see our young people returning again. We wish our young townsmen a pleasant stay.

Mr. Ronald Hanrahan, son of Mrs. T. Hanrahan, arrived from New York Friday afternoon's train on a visit to his mother and sister, Mrs. (Capt.) Anonson. His many friends are pleased to see him in the home town again, and we trust his visit will be an enjoyable one.

Miss Ida McRae left town on Monday, and took passage from St. John's by the S.S. Rosalind yesterday. We understand that Miss McRae intends visiting a warmer climate, and will be absent from town for some months. Her many friends here extend best wishes for a most enjoyable sojourn and safe return.

Mr. Sam Bailey of St. John's was in town during last week auditing the books of the Thomson Leather Co. Sam's old friends were glad to have him here again for a short while.

Mr. John Davis, Jr., left here last week for St. John's to enter the Normal School, and we hope he will meet with success.

Miss Mabel Young, daughter of Mr. M. M. Young, Spaniard's Bay, is at present in town on a visit to friends.

Mr. W. Telford, of H. M. Customs, who has been ill, is now able to be about again, and has returned to duty at the Custom House.

Schooner Admiral Drake, Capt. Benson, which was here with a load of coal to Messrs. R. D. McRae & Sons, sailed for St. John's on Tuesday, having discharged her cargo. Mrs. Benson and child were in town during the Captain's stay in port, and are at present the guests of Rev. and Mrs. W. Harris at the Parsonage.

COMING--JOHN BARRYMORE in "BEAU BRUMMEL," a Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen.

The real disparity between the intensity of full daylight and artificial light has been properly understood. Some remarkable results were recorded by M. Camille Flammarion, who attempted the culture of the sensitive mimosa plant under light of different colours. Plants placed in blue light scarcely gained in growth, and also appeared to be in a comatose state, showing none of the sensibility to touch characteristic of the mimosa. Plants grown under red light were, on the other hand, four times as big as those grown under white light, developed well-marked flower balls, and were in an extremely sensitive state.

From these and other experiments the conclusion has been drawn that red, orange and yellow rays, by building up complex organic chains of molecules, stimulate plant life, whereas blue rays have an arresting effect. Ultra-violet rays, when present in excess, may have a prejudicial effect, causing shrivelling of the leaves and ultimately the death of the plant.

(From the Macoon News.)
A group of negroes were at the terminal station bidding a few departing brethren good-bye. A trainman noticed one negro looking on nonchalantly, and inquired: "Sam, are you going north?"
"No sah," said the negro addressed. "Use a class B nigger."
"What do you mean by class 'B' nigger?" asked the trainman.
"Well," said Sam, "I B's here when dey leave, and I B's here when dey come back."
