that citadel. It must have come as a surprise for the enemy that the French were able to carry out such a successful assault so soon after German reinforcements had come up and had begun to make counter-attacks, for, owing to the strength of these fortified lines developed by the labor and improvements of 20 months, an attack as a rule speedily loses its momentum as soon as it get beyond the zone cultivated by preparatory artillery erosion. Owing to the terrific nature of the allied bombardments the enemy has taken to holding his trenches with a comparatively few machine gunners and infantrymen, and to trusting to his ability to hurry up reinforcements in time to check any advance, but the French success in the latest attacks has

TOUR. -The High-Overseas the United aster, Glen The lead-Stormont, ll be visited

First of all, there is the creation for the trig little outline of Miss Ida white broadcloth, rose chiffon, and a lace and crepe pettiskirt festooned in silk-flower wreaths. Miss Stratham makes her first entrance in a buff coat and the oyster white gown. She wears also a broad throw of sable. The coat is made with a short, loose waist, and a narrow, rolling collar, and lapels of green and blue, and gold brocade done in minute design. The skirt of the gown is quite short, and edged with skunk. A small piece of the fur is tucked under the low Elizabethan collar of lace.

The most striking gown worn is study in lines and color, from which ladies of an ample girth as Miss St. Audrie might get valuable pointers. It is of deep orchid brocade shot with gold, and the skirt is an amazing thing in the art of cutting.

Buchannan wears a jersey topped in gray with a belt and a skirtlet of navy good. blue, and Miss Stuckey appears in a white skirt with a light silk jacket affair of spring green with bright yellow touches. Miss Buchannan's skirt is rough black and white check.

Three Evening Gowns. Then there are three evening gowns of Miss Stuckey, Miss Allen and Miss Buchannan, Miss Buchannan's delicate blue-flowered silk' with its overskirt, low bodice of lace and lavendered touched girdle, is built like the others in colonial fashion, but has a hoop to one side only. Reviewers have done their test and have invariably succeeded in build. ing a long line to the box office wherever "A Pair of Silk Stockings" has been fered. They have selected adjectives Tuesday, Sept. 12, 1916, Ida. Florence, that tell best of the sparkle and froth that so frailly but artistically leash the risque. And so this is about the beloved wife of Grenville Clark. Funeral Friday, Sept. 15, at 2.30 p.m., gowns, the Lucille fraction of the play from her late residence, 1405 Lansdowne at the Alexandra Theatre next week.

"A PAIR OF SILK STOCKINGS."

The dialog in "A Pair of Silk Stock-ings" is in the polite British vernueu-lar, three-fourths slang and one-fourth Addisonian Finglish. The line is particularly droll, and epigrams are uttered with unusual frequency by all the characters. This jovial talk, which evades the brazen glitter of smartness, and is witty without ostentation, is the chief charm of the piece. It is handled, moreover, by people who know how. 'The cast, one of unusual' merit, is an all-English one that gives comedy the added interest of being interpreted in the proper spirit of the author's intentions. Seats are now cn

GAYETY.

"Hot Dog," or "What Does the Pub-lic Want?" with George P. Murphy, Gertrude Hayes and Chester Nelson as the principal fun-makers, presented by Barney Gerard's "Foilies of the Day," which makes its annual appearance here at the Gayety Theatre, Monday, Sept. 18, is this season prepared to outshine its previous record, even in view of the fact that last season this offering was one of the most success-ful burlesque offerings ever presented. "Follies of the Day" this reason is composed almost entirely of stars as far as the principals are concerned; as to the chorus it sets a new standard of beauty of figure and face.

"LADY BUCCANEERS."

Laughter and delight are claimed to be the main features of the "Lady Buccaneers," one of the best liked buresque shows on the circuit, that is billed to appear at the Star Theatre next week, and those who like to see the lighter side of life portrayed by pretty women in fluffy gowns, will not be disappointed. The musical farce to be presented has been named "Spend-ing a Million." Mermaidia, the diving Venus, will dive from the steamshirt Dalhousie City, foot of Yonge street, Aonday, 12 o'clock noon.

Detroit's New Pitcher

Cobb Behind Record. In the National League Max Carey will win the honors for the third time in four seasons. Carey has already pass-ed his winning mark of last season-36, the lowest figure for a leader during the past sixteen years. But Carey will fin-ish below the average which Bob Bes-cher set up during the days when he was base-running king in the National League. The latest records, with only a little more than a month to go, give the fol-lowing figures in base stealing: National League-Glatins, 138; Rebins, 129; Cardinals, 125; Pirates, 118; Reds, 110; Phillies, 103; Braves, 97; Cubs, 94. American League-Browns, 173; Yanks, 153; Senators, 138; Tigers, 130; White Sox, 122; Indians, 114; Athletics, 113; Red Sox, 100.
