Klondikers Come Back With Pockets Empty.

Several Thousand Men on the Trail, Few of Whom It Is Said Will Reach Dawson.

[G. N. W. Special to The Advertiser.] Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 27.-Sixtyfive Klondikers were on the steamer Horsa when she put in here. The ma-Jority are "broke."

Among them were Wm. Sundstrom and another man from Chicago, who a year ago last August started for the north by the Edmonton route, and had been traveling ever since.

They say they were lost in the Rockies for several weeks. Several thousand men are on the trail, but only a few can reach Dawson. Arrivals by the Horsa say that the Skagway railway is now built for nearly twelve miles to the White Pass, Rails are laid six miles up the hills. Several accidents have recently occurred there. In one case two men were buried under a slide, and their bodies have not yet been recovered.

Help is wanted when the nerves become weak and the appetite falls. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives help by making the blood rich and pure.

Oil Preferable to Coal as a Fuel for Experiments On the Thames-Arrival of the U. S. Peace Commissioners at Paris.

London, Sept. 27.-The Daily News this morning announces the publication of a series of articles which it is alleged explain the Dreyfus affair. Today's article concerns the resignation of M. Casimer Perrier, of the French presidency, which is described as a strange, sad article. The article says: The persons in the secret are the kaiser, Count Von Munster, M. Dupuy, M. Hanotaux, Gen. Boisdefre, Col. Schwarsokoppen, Count Esterhazy, and the late Henry Sandherr. Besides the French ministry, others had the dessier in their hands. In December, 1894, a detailed report of the Dreyfus affair, which Count Von Munster sent by the usual courier to the kaiser, was interrupted and photographed at the French frontier. Yet it reached the emperor without delay a few days later. This fact became known to the information bureau at Berlin, and Germany ordered Count Von Munster to demand his passports, for the offense was REGARDED AS ROBBERY, and an offense to the emperor on the principle of extra territoriality.

When Count Von Munster made this demand at the palace of the Elysee, President Casimer Perrier was overwhelmed with the suddenness of the revolution. In an extraordinary scene he gave his word of honor repudiating all connection with or knowledge of the affair, and solemnly promised to prevent a repetition of it. Count Von Munster was satisfied, and sent a second report of this interview. This document was similarly intercepted and photographed, the negative arriving at the French foreign office within 48 hours. Some days later, on Jan. 12, 1895, Count Von Munster called at the palace of the Elysee and suddenly announced that Germany would mobilize her troops forthwith unless satisfaction was given for this

A DRAMATIC SCENE followed. Count Von Munster collapsed into a fauteuil, a prey to violent feelings, reproaching M. Casimer Perrier with having dishonored him in the eyes of the emperor.

M. Casimer Perrier was crushed and could not reply at first; but presently said: "Tell your emperor I myself will give him satisfaction. I do not want to sacrifice the country. I will leave the presidency. I pray his majesty to be satisfied.'

London, Sept. 27 .- The coal owners of Fife, fearing that there may be a strike in Scotland of similar bitterness to that in Wales, and feeling that the effects would be deplorable alike to workmen and employers, have agreed, in order to avert the calamity, to offer an advance in wages of 5 per cent.

BERESFORD'S ADVICE.

Singapore, Sept. 27. - Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, who is en route to China as the representative of the British Associated Chambers of Commerce, has arrived here. In a speech made by him before the Chamber of Commerce and the Straits Set-tlement Association, he urged that commercial treaties between Great Britain, Germany, the United States and Japan would insure peace. He declared that the waterways of China should be developed under the protection of military police, and then railroads would follow. In conclusion, Lord Charles urged Great Britain to take a firmer and more definite attitude in regard to

MADE A PEER. London, Sept. 27 .- Gen. Sir Herbert Kitchener has been elevated to the peerage.

This is in keeping with the practice when great victories have been won by British generals. Tel-el-Kebir made Sir Garnet Wolseley Viscount Wolseley, and a money grant of £25,000 was voted to him by the House of Commons. Lord Roberts' achievements in the Afghan war elevated him to the peerage, and the Abyssinian expedition of 1868 made General Napier Lord Napier of Mag-dala. The sirdar's title has not yet been announced,, but the precedents are in favor of his retaining the name by winds were ten degrees higher in temperature than the northerly winds. The Coal Owners of Fife Propose to place on the Thames, showed definitely that oil as a fuel on steamers was pre-ferable to coal. The vessel contains furnaces which are fitted with an arrangement for carrying refuse petroleum, though they are available for coal in the ordinary way. The bunk-ers can be used either for coal or oil. In the trial trip it was demonstrated that a given weight of oil will produce more heat than the same weight of coal. It was found that 2.27 pounds of ordinary coal were used for each indicated horse power per hour, as compared with 1.67 pounds of oil. In the case of the eastern trade, where inferior Japanese and Chinese coal is Steamers - Interesting Results of used, the comparison would be much more advantageous. Another advantage is the rate at which the fuel can be taken on board, seeing that only 60 or 80 tons of coal can be loaded in an hour, as against 400 tons of oil.

AFTER THE STORM

Reports From Niagara and Toronto.

Two More Persons Died From Their Injuries at Merritton-Havoc Among the Fruit Farms Near the Falls.

Merritton, Sept. 27 .- It is learned that in addition to the three deaths already noted as resulting from yester-day's tornado, Maud O'Neill, employed at Lincoln paper mills, died from her injuries; James McCarthy, employed at the Lincoln paper mills, also died from injuries.

AT NIAGARA. Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 27.-The wind and hailstorm which created such havoo and disaster in the Canadian towns along the frontier was about played out when it reached this city, and the damage here was small. glass in the hothouses of E. A. Butler, on Main street, and Fred Lauts, on South avenue, was broken, and the beautiful stained glass in the dome of the tabernacle in the Silberberg block was all pelted in and destroyed. The south end of the city escaped with lighter damage than the north end, for the storm came from the northeast. At Niagara Falls, Ont., its violence was terrible. Hallstones weighing over an ounce, and measuring nearly nine inches in circumference, fell The storm broke with great suddenness, and the horses in the streets were stung and frightened by the chunks of ice, and several runaways occurred. In the northern section of this state the hailstones that fell averaged five and one-half inches in circumference, and weighed about three-quarters of an ounce. The damage to the fruit crop in the fruit-growing district north of here is great. Apples were pounded from the trees as though with clubs, and the pears and plums fell in large quantities. From all the counties along the lake shore come reports of great damage. What fruit was not knocked off by the hail was whipped off by the wind. When the storm reached this city the wind had nearly

When the glass in the dome of the tabernacle was broken, the Jewish population of the city was holding services there in celebration of Yom Kippur, the day of atonement. The ladies were frightened, but the services were continued until the storm ceased.

IN TORONTO.

Toronto, Sept. 27.-The storm was less severe in Toronto than in the Niagara Peninsula, due to the fact that Toronto was just on the northern edge of the storm radius. The approach of the storm was heralded by heavy banks of clouds rolling up from the south and west, followed quickly by ominous peals of thunder. Soon the raindrops commenced to patter, slowly at first, but quickly gaining in intensity, till it came down in veritable blinding sheets. The crashes of thunder became more frequent and heavy and vivid flashes of lighting lit up the heavens. About 3 o'clock the storm took on a new phase. The rain ceased, and was succeeded by a tremendous hailstorm. The stones were unusually large, being about the size of small marbles. The cessation of the hailstorm was followed by another drenching downpour of rain. This lasted for a short time, and then a brief lull ensued, followed by another but milder shower, which ceased in about fifteen minutes. Then the sullen skies overhead were broken by rifts which disclosed glimpses of blue, and a few straggling rays of sunshine flashed over on the city.

ORIGIN OF THE STORM The officials at the Toronto observatory explain that the storm was due to a wind from the north meeting a wind from the south, the latter being ten degrees higher in temperature over the Niagara Peninsula.

A narrow trough of low pressure appeared over Illinois in the morning. On the north side of that trough there were northerly winds, and on the south

Discussed at the Health Officers' Meeting in Ottawa - Ald. Taylor Fuzzled.

At the thirteenth annual meeting of the Association of Executive Health Officers of Ontario, at Ottawa, yesterday, a paper was read by Mr. C. Horetzky, public works department of Ontario, on "Treatment of Sewage." He treated the subject in a very masterly way, and discussed the straining of sewage by coke layers as used in Reading, Pa., and proposed for London. In the discussion which followed Mr. Horetzky answered a number of questions bearing on the matter. and said that he considered this system far superior to that which he recommended to London three years ago. He did not recommend the used of coal, as in the case of Hamilton, and said that nothing better than coke could be utilized for the removal of sludge.

Dr. Van Buskerk, of Stratford, said that he considered the land system could not be beaten for the work, provided that suitable land could be obtained. He did not think that any set rule could be applied, as the different cities required different applications. There was another method of filtration which had not been mentione which had been in use in England for two years. By this system the sewage is run into a filter and kept there for a few hours before being run off. Ald. Taylor, of London, spoke of the matter as applied to London, and said that he was sorry to see Mr. Horetzky had changed his opinion in his recommendation of three years ago. A number of systems had been spoken of today, but all were put forward by rivals. He believed the McDougall system was an excellent one, but owing to the representations of a number of engineers they were now in a quandary as to the best to use. Dr. McKenzie and Dr. Bryce also spoke.

LIVES AND LOVES

Miss King Was Not Drowned But Fled From a Distasteful Suitor.

New York, Sept. 27 .- Miss Louise King, who so mysteriously disappeared from Coney Island two weeks ago, was not drowned in the surf as was supposed. STRONG PULPIT WORDS. Kingston, Sept. 27.-Rev. E. B. Lanceley, of Sydenham Street, Methodist Church, in his address Sunday night said: "I have contempt for the ministers who try to apologize for the liquor traffic, or are so cowardly to keep num about the evils in their pulpits. They either partake of the drink themselves or are afraid of the liquor men who may be members of their flock."

Toronto, Sept. 26.-The motormen and the conductors in the Toronto Street Railway Company's employ are a most intelligent, shrewd and respectable body of men. It is no easy task to impose upon them in any way.

A great many of them have been cured of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills, after all other medical efforts had failed. There is no wonder the boys pin their faith so firmly to "Dodd's."

2-(1). Immediately after the return by the assessor of the assessment roll to the clerk, and without waiting for the revision and correction thereof by the Court of Revision or the judge, the clerk shall make out a correct alphabetical list of all persons appearing by the assessment roll to be entitled to be voters in the city, prefixing to the name of each person his number upon the said roll as heretofore; and shall within 40 days after receiving the assessment roll cause 200 copies of the said list to be printed in pamphlet form, and the clerk, besides delivering conies mentioned that behalf in The Ontario Voters' List Act, shall deliver one copy to the assessment commissioner.

(2). A larger number of copies may be printed if the city council, by resolution or otherwise, so decide or authorize. 3. In its questionable wisdom the league allowed the first and last of the three games played last Saturday between Hamilton and London, thereby giving the pennant to Manager Stroud's aggregation. Such a flagrant exhibition of "lay-down," as it is termed, was never before seen on any field of sport, and the wonder is that the offenders were not subjected to a severe disciplining by the owners of the club. As it stands now, the St. Thomas people believe their team was robbed of the championship, and their view is shared by everybody acquainted with the facts. The most regrettable feature about the whole affair is the injurious effect it will have on professional basebal. That is the greatest of the many sins committed by the Canadian League in its brief existence.

A DRAW. Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 27.-The international cricket match, begun on Friday last, between the Philadelphia team of nineteen "colts" and Capt. Warner's English eleven, ended in a draw yesterday in consequence of a rainstorm. The colts' first inning had netted them 77 runs, and their grand total was 236. The Englishmen, in their first inning, had scored 133, and therefore require 104 to win. Burnup and Capt. Warner started the inning for the visitors. The batsmen steadily increased the score until the total of 330 was reached, when Burnup was caught. Play then stopped for lunch, and during the intermission a rainstorm began, which necessitated an abandonment of the match. It therefore officially goes on record as a draw.

Suffer From an Insufficiency of Rich, Nourishing Blood

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Remedy the Hvil by Insuring Perfect Digestion Plenty of Rich Blood and Good Health.

Why do women suffer more from nervous headache than men do? Because women's nervous system is more delicate, more sympathetic, more quickly responsive to every influence than man's. It is therefore necessary that her nervous system should be kept in perfect health and strength, in order that it shall be able to resist any and all evil influences. The nerves must be properly nourished, so that they may be strong. If they are kept strong and well nourished no headache will ever be felt. That they may be kept strong and well nourished, they must be constantly supplied with rich, pure blood. That plenty of rich, pure blood may be obtained, the food must be perfectly digested, for perfectly digested food

A DINNER PILL. - Many persons suffer excruciating agony after par-taking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment, it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and convey the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with indigestion.

LIFE SAVED.—Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good.

Deceased had been for a long time a leading figure in the parliamentary life of Canada. He came by his interest in public life along hereditary Imes, his father before him, the late Hon. Malcolm Cameron, having been also a strong force in politics and also a powerful speaker.

After a long and creditable parliamentary career, Mr. Cameron was appointed to the distinguished position he held at the time of his death. But It was fated that he should formally open but one session of the Northwest Legislature. He came eastward in quest of health, but full of interest in the development of the great territory in whose expanding future he had such unbounded faith. It is pathetic to recall one of his last conversations on public affairs, in which he spoke so interestedly of the time-alas! never to come-when he would again take up the thread of his official duties at

Pushing Up the Nile.

The British flag has been hoisted at Fashoda, and civilization has established another outpost in Darkest Africa.

The news from Fashoda is very reassuring to the British nation, as it disproves the report that thousands of Abyssinians had joined Marchand's little force, to aid in opposing the British advance, and in asserting French sovereignty in that region of the Upper Nile. Marchand's expedition in itself would be only a cobweb in the path, but in the Abyssinians, Kitchener's conquering heroes would find foemen more formidable than the Dervishes-a race of born fighters, brave, well-armed, and well-trained. It was feared their monarch, King Menelik, had been cajoled by French and Russian diplomats into taking a stand against the Anglo-Egyptians in Upper Nubia. That would be the only great obstacle in the way of the British from Cairo to the Cape, but evidently Menelik has wisely decided to mind his own business. The Sirdar's peremptory action in raising the British flag at Fashoda, in defiance of Marchand and his party, who had previously occupied the town, will wound French sensibilities, but France has only herself to blame. The British Government has publicly declared, time and again, that the Upper Nile is a British sphere of influence, and that any trespass by a foreign power will be construed as a casus belli. Several years ago it was rumored that a French force was heading for the Nile Valley, and the Rosebery Government, through Lord Kimberley, sounded the warning note. France will no doubt claim that Marchand's expedition was purely scientific or personal, and had no political significance. Great Britain may or may not believe this, but having gained her end, will accept the explanation. Marchand will get the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor or some other ribbon or star to console him for his vanished dream of empire. Major Macdonald, who is pushing northward from Uganda with another British force, will have clear right of way to Fashoda, where he is almost due. The line of communication between north and south will then have been established, and it will never be bro-

Mr. Larke's Lesson.

Mr. John S. Larke, the Canadian Commissioner in Australia, remarks in a recent report to the Dominion Government "that as Victoria is high tariff and New South Wales is free trade, Canada cannot hope to do so much with the former."

There is a good deal of irony in Mr. Larke's position. He was the sweet singer of the N. P. before the late Government commissioned him to go to Australia and employ his eloquence in talking up Canadian trade. But John S. Larke in Australia may well pray for a tariff policy very different from that to which John S. Larke in Canada sang praises. The N. P. was his idol here, but it is his hoodoo abroad. Circumstances have altered his political theories. In his present circumstances, Mr. Larke's interests lie In the promotion of trade; in his past circumstances, Mr. Larke's interests (a government berth) depended upon his zeal in preaching the discouragement of trade. He was a restrictionist here, he is an expansionist there. Protection in Victoria is his enemy; free trade in New South Wales is his friend. The tariff principles which were his step-could now see Canada embrace the creed of Cobden without a sigh. Free trade here, as well as there, would be a boon to him. It would open a larger market in Canada for Australian products, and Australia would take Canadian products in return. The trade commissioner would get much of the credit; his position would grow in importance. Already Mr. Larke is grateful for some of the breaches in our tariff wall-the wall which he used to mount to sound his bugle blasts against trade freedom. For instance, Mr. Larke reports that large shipments of Queensland sugar are being made to Canada. That is a result of our 25 per cent tariff preference accorded the colonial product. The commercial outlook is so promising that a new line of steamers between Canada and Queensland is proposed. There is great room for expansion of the Canadian-Australian trade. The Pacific cable, if established, would give it an impetus. No doubt Mr. Larke is laboring conscientiously for the same ends, while underestimate the value of the varied discussion provoked by the Plebiscite; but we cannot fail to note as one of the disadvantages of the present agitation the strained relations between the two sections of the temperance party-those who advocate moral suasion, and those who regard legislative enactment as the great panacea. It is idle to deny that there are many intelligent people, who in the real battle of life are constantly casting their influence on the side of temperance, who are at the same time deeply impressed with the danger of rushing into any restrictive legislation which is too far in advance of the general public. These are, of course, shut out from conventions which are called purely and simply for the purpose of promoting a drastic prohibitory measure, and also from "Plebiscite" meetings at which only enthusiastic prohibition speeches are expected; but they are not shut out from "temperance work" in the deepest sense. From many platforms during the past weeks the question has been asked, What anti-prohibitionists done for: temperance, and, in particular, what have Prof. Goldwin Smith and Principal Grant done? Does not the question put so emphatically proceed upon a narrow view of temperance work? Such work is not limited to attending conventions or speaking on temperance platforms. As for voting, it is very occasionally that men are called to vote directly on this question. Unless there is steady teaching in the home, and school, and faithful personal influence brought to bear on society, all our conventions and our voting will be a hollow, helpless thing. We claim the right to differ from the distinguished gentlemen whose names we have mentioned on many points, but we know that they are both independent, generous men, who speak always under a sense of duty and seek only the good of society. Such men, who teach the young and proclaim a noble ideal of life, are surely on the side of temperance. This particular vote will soon be over, and what its permanent influence on the settlement of the question will be we are not prepared to But the need for temperance work is likely to be here as long as humanity is here, and the coming winter will furnish new opportunities for its exercise. There is need for work among the young; for the union of men who are determined that the present laws shall in the meantime be loyally observed; for personal effort which is private and sacred. By all means let every man who is convinced that prohibition is the true and only remedy, vote for it; but in a question so large, let us beware of setting up a small standard of temperance "orthodoxy," and spending our shot against men who represent much of the country's noblest life, and are prepared to make great sacrifices for truth and freedom, as well as righteousness and tem-

"In all questions of imperial policy the Canadians ought to be regarded as our teachers," said Miss E. L. Farady, one of the most brilliant essayists at the recent meeting of the British Association in Bristol. And the audience said, "Hear, hear," which meant a good deal in a sober gathering of British scientists.

Some of our Liberal contemporaries are altogether too ready to lend countenance to stories that are set afloat by detractors of the Dominion Administration with the object of injuring the Government, and thereby promoting the fortunes of the Opposition. This is most unfair to the Ministers, who are thus misrepresented in the house of their friends, for it ought to be known that a false statement, or partial truth, cannot be given circulation and afterwards effectively overtaken. It is a safe rule to make full inquiry into any statement injurious to the Administration, which may be set on foot by its political opponents.

Pilgrims to Quebec may not generally know that there lies in that city the remains of a one-time well known brother of Sir Walter Scott, the famous Scottish novelist. A correspondent who has just returned from the ancient city informs us that in the graveyard attached to St. Matthew's Church there is to be seen a tombstone on which is an inscription, stating that Thomas Scott, paymaster of the Ninetieth Regiment, died Feb. 6, 1822, and his daughter Barbara, Oct. 30, 1821. As no reference to his grave is to be found in the guide books, our correspondent mentions its existence, so that pilgrims to the ancient city may be able to see it. Thomas Scott was Sir Walter's third and last surviving brother, and his career was a checkered one. At one time, he was supposed to be the author of the Waverley novels, before the mystery was cleared up. In Lockhart's "Life of Sir Walter Scott" are to be found some twenty letters which passed between the great novelist and his brother, who finds a sepulcher in this lonely Canadian graveyard. The letters are very touching and pathetic, and show the affectionate relations that existed between the two brothers.

Policies of the Former and Pres ent Administrations Contrasted

In Reference to the Crow's Nest Pass Railway-A Newspaper Quarrel -The Fall Fairs.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Sept. 26.-For the past two or three weeks a wordy warfare has been raging between the Globe and the Mail and Empire. For very many statements which the Mail and Empire has so persistently reiterated, not only with regard to the Globe, but in reference to anyone or anything that opposes its policy for the time being, are undoubtedly without substantial foundation.

TWO POLICIES COMPARED. Take, for example, the matter upon which the Mail and Empire has wasted more space recently than any other in federal politics, except, perhaps, its adulation of Sir Charles Tupper, and that ie, the Crow's Nest Pass Railway contract, and the Globe's alleged connection therewith. The scheme as at first elaborated, and accepted by Sir Chas. Tupper, and approved by the Mail and Empire, was to bonus the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to build the road at $5,000 a mile, with an additional loan of $20,000 a mile, which monetary considerations were estimated to be worth about $7,000,000 or over. In addition to this, the company has a monopoly of the running rights through the pass, and the control over freight rates, and the cost of coal and its transportation. The Mail and Empire had no policy whatever on the question before Sir Charles Tupper had indors ed the project as outlined above, when the Mail and Empire went into it blindly and enthusiastically. THE PRESENT CONTRACT. The contract, as finally completed, made a grant of $11,000 a mile out and out, instead of the $5,000 grant and $20,000 loan, which, if the past experience with government grants to rail-ways may be taken as a guide, would in the end have been a straight grant of $25,000 a mile. In return for that $11,000, the freight rates are being cut down, with the result that tens of thousands of dollars that previously went to the railways, are now being left with the farmers; the maximum price of coal has been fixed by law, and the possibility of a coal monopoly forever destroyed, while an invaluable been secured to the country in the free passage for all future competitors over this famous pass through the mountains. Such is the difference between the one scheme, accepted by Sir Charles Tupper, and the other, developed and put into operation by the present government.

ALTERNATIVE PROPOSALS. At the time this matter was first under discussion and occupying such a large amount of public attention there were alternative schemes discussed, one of which was the building of the railway by the government, and the other the granting of a charter to another company independent of the C. P. R. As to the first Canada's experience in railway building has not been sufficiently satisfactory to justify an extension of the experiment, and with regard to the second, the history of the past has been invariably that the lesser company would be swallowed up by the bigger competitor many moons had passed, and the public would suffer in proportion, so that the public opinion finally gave a unanimous support to the decision of the government and the necessary legislation was put through both Houses of Parliament without a dissenting voice-in fact, there were prominent members of the opposition who were fully as eager to complete the transaction as any supporter of the government.

AN EMPHATIC DENIAL. The private quarrel between the Globe and Mail and Empire as to whether the Globe or those closely associated with it benefited to the extent of $1,500,000 or 1,500,000 cents is not, under the circumstances, of interest, for while, on the one hand, the Liberal organ has emphatically, categorically and repeatedly denied the entire accusation, and has specifically stated what it claims to be the facts, the Mail and Empire has never produced one iota of proof or even attempted to impeach the truth of the Globe's statement, and it would therefore be the wisest course and in better taste if the matter was allowed to drop right

MISPLACED CONFIDENCE.

The veneration and confidence with which a section of Canada's press regard their contemporaries in the neighboring republic is surely a good sign of the progress of the Anglo-Saxon Al-Not a bit of sensational "news" from Dawson, not a charge against a government official, not a suggestion that American lumbermen are going to gain an advantage at Quebec, not an expression of hope that Canada will be worsted before the commission, not an article of any kind in fact that could prove embarrassing to the government and harmful to the country, but it is immediately quoted with good bold headings on the front page of one-half of the ultra-Conservative papers of Canada.

It is hard to understand how selfrespecting journals of any political stripe can thus belittle themselves in the estimation of their readers; but how the papers that such a short time ago claimed an absolute monopoly of loyalty, patriotism and everything in that line can now be doing everything that may reasonably be expected to hurt the country and her accredited governors is simply beyond ordinary comprehension. THE SUCCESS OF THE FALL FAIRS The general prosperity throughout the Dominion has been very fully reflected in the fall fairs that have been in full blast for the past two or three

A WISE DECISION.

The action of the Methodist General Conference in advising the abstinence in future from the pledging of political candidates to a support of prohibition or other special policy will be generally accepted by all careful students of politics as a wise and desirable step. As was clearly shown in the debate which preceded this decision, such pledges are always open to question, and often prove utterly valueless, and many a good man has been beaten by a worthless opponent because his strong conscientious convictions deterred him from glibly binding himself by an undertaking that he had no intention of carrying out.

Five Men Drowned in Waiskai Bay, Mich.

Then the Vessel Suddenly Sank to the Bottom.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept.27 .- The lighter Monitor, owned by the Soo River Lighter and Wrecking Company, went down suddenly in Waiskai Bay early Sunday morning, and five lives were snuffed out. The bodies of the unfortunate were recovered with the aid of a diver. All but one were residents of the Soo.

The Monitor had just finished light-ering about 350 tons of iron ore from the schooner Carrington, and was being towed to a sheltered position in the bay. Capt. W. R. Smith, the cap-tain of the doomed craft, was at the wheel, and with a watchman was on deck at the time of the disaster. Ten men of the crew were asleep below. A creaking noise was heard, and the ship began to settle at the bow. She went to the bottom so quickly that the captain only had time to kick in the windows of the cabin and knock upon it to arouse the sleeping men before the craft dived under. Five of the sleepers escaped from the cabin, the last one having to swim for his life.

The seven men succeeded in reaching the rigging and were safely taken off a few minutes afterward by her tug. The men had worked continuously from Friday morning until midnight Saturday, and were completely exhausted. Those who perished undoubtedly did not awaken until the water was upon them.

It is supposed that a body of the ore shifted and opened a big hole near the stern. The Monitor is said to have been a rotten old hull that had been used for years.

THE DEAD. The dead are Joseph Prior, Wm. Corbiere, John Robeare, Emmanuel Robeare, John Foley. All of the men are longshoremen. The first four named are residents of the Soo. John Foley lived at West Bay City.

At the Lake Shore Congregational Church on the evening of the 25th inst., Rev. E. C. W. McCall, B.A., preached a grand sermon founded on Psalm lxvii., emphasizing the connection existing between prayer and praise, no-ticing the fact that nearly every psalm is largely composed of prayer and praise, teaching that acceptable praise comes only from a prayerful heart. After the sermon the congregation was treated to a beautiful solo, sweetly sung by Miss Lena Shay, Miss Edith Hodgson ably presiding at the organ.

CORSET STEELS.

With dealers the buying of corsets is largely a matter of confidence, at least as far as the true quality of the boning is concerned.

In order that rusting may be guarded against each bone or steel should be covered before being placed and sewn in position in the corset. In ordinary corsets this is rarely done.

The best corsets are fully boned, the cheaper ones are only partly so. Ordinary corsets are almost invariably boned with cheap, poor quality steel and its cheapness manifests itself in brittleness. In first-class corsets specially tempered, high quality spring steel is used; the better the steel the lighter the corset, for in quality is strength. Never buy a light weight corset unless you buy the famous French, tailor-cut, handsewed corset, the nsurgents Destroy Property and Hemp Crops-Spain's Policy.

Manila. Sept. 27.-When the United States auxiliary cruiser McCulloch captured the insurgent steamer Abbey, formerly the Pasig, 60 miles south of Manila, the Abbey, it is believed, having landed 7,000 rifles, an insurgent gunboat followed the American vessel into Cavite, and now the Americans contemplate taking possession of the entire insurgent fleet, because the ves-sels are flying an unrecognized flag can cruisers have gone north, where the steamer Filipinas is landing troops.

The steamers which have just arrived here brought many Spanish official and refugees from the southwest of the Island of Luzon. They report that the insurgents are overrunning the country, destroying property and the hemp crops. Sanguinary conflicts have taken place at Cebu, and Iloilo.

SPAIN'S POLICY.

Madrid, Sept. 27.—The cabinet last Gen. Blanco's dispatch concerning the American claims in connection with the evacuation of Cuba, Duke Almedovar Rio, minister of foreign affairs, stated that the Spanish peace commis-sioners have been instructed to contend strongly for the integrity of Spanish sovereignty in the Philippines, on the ground that the protocol between Spain and the United States was signed be-fore Manila capitulated; and also to make a firm stand regarding the Cu-ban debt and the Philippines' loan of 1896, if Luzon is ceded to America. Should the United States prove less exacting than is expected, the commissioners have powers to make all possible concessions, political and commercial, compatible with the retention of Spanish sovereignty in the Philippines; but in the event of losing a portion of the islands, they are instructed to resist to the utmost an attempt of the United States to claim the right of preference over other pow-ers, should Spain desire to sell or cede the remainder of the islands. It is understood, however, that all instructions are only ad referendum. Most of the commissioners and attaches speak Indians Know Where His Body Is But Want $1,000-Said to Have Suicided.

Vancouver, Sept. 27 .- Those returning from the north by a Klondike steamer on Saturday with Klondikers from the Ashcroft trail, told a story to the effect that some Indians knew where the body of Sir Arthur Curtis, Bart., was lying on the trail, and wanted $1,000 for the body. Mr. A. Grey arrived from the Ashcroft route today, however, with a report that he had met and talked with one of the Curtis party, still in there, and who said that Sir Arthur, worn with hunger and the hardships of the trail, and much piqued and annoyed over a perwent into the mountains and drowned himself in a mountain stream. His coat and hat were found in the stream.

A BIRD HAT

Attacked by an Eagle-A Woman Suddenly Left Bareheaded.

Chicago, Sept. 27.-A large American eagle that has been the property of Company B, First Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, for several months, swooped down from its perch in the camp at Fort Sheridan one afternoon and attacked the stuffed bird which adorned the hat of a woman who was walking past. Beak and claws were sunk into the body of the poor stuffed bird. The eagle, not understanding the tenacity with which its victim olung to the hat finally carried hat, bird and all back to the roost. The woman screamed as she saw her millinery in the clutches of the eagle, She then began to be amused at the predicament in which she had been placed, and at last quietly left the camp without giving her name.

The big bird of prey in the meantime discovered the nature of its capture, and vented its disappointment and spite by viciously tearing the hat and trimmings to shreds.

The fireman on the engine was also positive a man had been run into, and even described him as wearing a light overcoat. A tramp, who was riding blind baggage, said he "heard the fellow holler." The Judge's Charge to the Grand Jury.

True Bill Found Against Geo. Donaghy -$450 Damages for Richard Gra-

THE JUDGE'S ADDRESS.

At 3 o'clock yesterday the grand jury assembled, and were addressed concerning their duties by Judge Meredith. Their first and most important duty, he said, was to investigate the charges preferred against prisoners, and to determine whether or not the accused person should be put upon his trial. The grand jury was to stand between the accused and accuser, and save the former from unjust or unwarrantable prosecution. Sometimesbut in this country and in these days very seldom-persons were wrongfully accused, either from spite or through ignorance, or by misdirected zeal. The law permitted the prosecutor to proceed with his case until he came before the grand jury, and not to go beyond that in any case unless the jury was satisfied the accused should be put upon his trial. While it was their duty to protect the accused from unjust and unwarrantable accusation and prosecution, it was also their duty to give their consent to every prosecution in which a prima facie case had been made out. Their finding of a "true bill," or "no bill," in no measure affected the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. Everyone was innocent until found guilty by a tribunal competent to deal with the question, and a jury's refusal or consent did not free the person accused from the charge. They might come before another grand jury, and a true bill be found, so that to an innocent man it might be preferable to have his case tried in open court. He knew of no surer preventive of crime than the certainty that no offense could be committed without detection, conviction and just punish-The jury and crown officers should take every precaution not to leave it open to be truly said of them that there had been looseness or undue severity in the discharge of their duty. Their duties in this respect, he was sorry to say. were likely at this session to be greater than usual.

He then referred to the number of cases they would have to pass upon, and said that a great saving to the country had been effected by the amended laws which permitted criminals to be tried by magistrates and county judges. Referring again to the list, he expressed his regret that two cases were of a very serious natureone of murder and the other for attempted indecent assault upon a young woman. A prisoner was charged with taking the life of his fellow man. When life was taken, a man committed the greatest of crimes, unless, indeed, he had justifiable ground. If done in selfdefense, it was justifiable, but it would not do for any man who took another's life to excuse himself on the ground that he was insulted or assulted by the man whose life he took. Every one unlawfully assaulted, not having provoked the assault, was justified in repelling force by force, if the force used was not meant to cause the loss of life or grievous bodily harm, and was not more than necessary for the purpose of defending one's self. man unlawfully assaulted was justified in occasioning death or bodily harm if this were the only means of selfpreservation. Seldom, it was, he said, that a man, on reasonable grounds, might consider his life in danger, and it would be outrageous for one to say

that he was reasonably apprehensive of death or serious injury because of having been struck in the face or as-The judge quoted the law to explain how modifications were admissible where the weight of evidence went to show that the wrongful act was sufficient to deprive the ordinary being of the power of self-control. A passing reference was made to the other four cases, after which the jury retired to deliberate upon the charge against George Donaghy, of assaulting and wounding P. C. Thomas

GRAHAM VS. GREENAWAY. Richard Graham vs. James and A. J. Greenaway, plumbers, occupied most of the afternoon. This is an action brought by plaintiff to recover $1,500 for injuries sustained by the explosion of an acetylene gas machine, in Cooper & Co.'s store, Richmond street, where Graham, then an employe of defendants, had been sent to make altera-tions. Plaintiff alleges that while thus engaged, Mr. Greenaway held a lighted candle over the gaspipe of the machine, and the explosion resulted from this alleged carelessness. Graham's sight was much impaired. The defendants alleged that Graham alone was responsible for the explosion, as held the candle.

TUESDAY.

The list of cases for hearing grew rapidly less as the day proceeded, and all but jury and non-jury cases likely have been disposed of before the criminal list is entered upon. Several of the witnesses in the Emerson manslaughter case arrived this morning. Among them were Mr. and Mrs.
Mack and Miss Robinson, of Chicago, who were members of the Wesley Opera Company playing at the Music Hall when the tragedy occurred. Another witness named Shunk, who was not called at the preliminary exami-nation or the coroner's inquest has arrived. Emerson appears very much depressed in spirit. His trial will likely take place on Thursday.

The first business of the court was the judge's address to the jury in the Graham-Greenaway case, which retired about ten o'clock to deliberate. They returned about one o'clock and awarded plaintiff $450. Judgment was en-lered for this amount with costs. Stuart for plaintiff; J. H. Flock, Q.C., for defendants.

Louisa Melmer vs. London Street Railway, was postponed until next as-sizes, an order being issued by the court for the examination of Harold Richardson, of New York, formerly of this city, by commission. This is an action for $10,000 damages against the company for injury which the plaintiff sustained in October last while alighting from a car at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets. D. Chellew carried on a business at Col-Chellew vs. Annie M. The action is to set aside this conveyance, on the ground that it was made with intent to defraud. Venue was changed from London to Barrie. Gibbons, Q.C., & Co. for plaintiffs; Bruce & Fair, Collingwood, for defense.

Mark Ashman vs. Wortman Manufacturing Company-Settled by consent. This was an old action brought against defendants for damages for infringement of patent, and for injunction restraining them from manufacturing the infringed article. Defendants agreed that judgment should be entered declaring validity of plaintiff's patent, they to contribute $100 towards the costs. Hellmuth for plaintiff; T. H. Purdom for defendants.

William Rowe vs. Robert Stephens-An action arising out of the warranty of a horse, was settled out of court. Meredith & Fisher for plaintiff; Moberly for defendant.

W. H. Butler vs. the London Street Railway Company is an action brought to recover $1,000 damages. On May 21 last plaintiff sustained injury by being jammed against a post at the corner of Adelaide and Dundas streets by a belt line car. Case in progress when the court adjourned for lunch.

Medical Aspect of Prohibition. To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I crave the indulgence of your journal and its readers for the consideration of the prohibition question as I The question to be placed on the ballot paper, in black and white, and unmistakable English, has to do with the absolute removal, by force of law, both in a public sense and in a private sense of all intoxicants, even to Hires' Root Beer, or elderberry wine; in other words, all alcoholic beverages. Now, we have no right, in my judgment, to question the wisdom or lack of wisdom, should there be any displayed in the wording or intention of the question at the present time. Our duty, it seems to me, is to decide whether we are in favor of legislation in accord with that proposed with the

In a certain sense, no one can tell how the conviction of conscience may direct up to the time of marking the slip.

The thought occurs to me. What part will the medical fraternity play in the drama, assuming that prohibi tion becomes law-since there might be some unscrupulous physicians? know that "doctors differ," and on no question more than on the use of alcoholics. Then, can we look to them to decide when a person is entitled to the moderate use of alcohol in some form on the score of health, by virtue of occupation, or other extenuating circumstance?

If you will please bear with personal reference: I claim to be engaged in what I consider reform in medicine and as a homoeopathic physician I do not see the propriety of administering alcohol or other stimulant, narcotic or sedative, once, where my allopathic brethren would see occasion hundreds of times, so that in the working out of the prohibition measure the medical aspect is one very important feature to be considered, having regard for its success. As a temperance man from heredity, early training, and, later, study, while considering this extreme proposition, I feel as if I would like to say "Yes" and "No." I feel like a hungry, carnivorous animal, who has fresh meat presented for eating, liberally sprinkled with cayenne pepper. I am hungry for the meat, but hesitate, while contemplating | friend? the pepper; therefore, I must vote in the Lamb—She told me to associate Office—Hiscox Building.

PEOPLE WONDERING

(Continued from page 2.) Railroad men are wondering what it is that keeps local rates in Ontario from being restored. The restored rates to the Pacific coast went into effect on Sunday, but no announcement has been made regarding local rates. The general impression is that there is a hitch in the negotiations between the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk for a renewal of the North Bay agreement. It was the Canadian Pacific that cut local rates, the object being to injure the revenue of the Grand Trunk in Ontario, on account of the part taken by the latter road in the Pacific coast rate war, and it was naturally expected that with the settlement of the original trouble, the Canadian Pacific would withdraw its cut rate tariff to local points. There is an idea, however, that the Canadian Pacific is holding back on the restoration of local rates till the Grand Trunk comes to its terms the North Bay agreement. When this is arranged satisfactorily local rates will be restored.

THE LASH

Delaware Sticks to Ancient Means of Punishment.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 27.-Delaware's ancient custom of punishing prisoners with the lash was brought into use again on Saturday at the Newcastle jail, when six culprits were whipped with the cat-o'-nine-tails in the hands of Sheriff William R. Finn. For the first time in many years there was no victim to stand in the pillory. A crowd of nearly 1,000 persons filled the jail yard, for the whippings are public, and many camera fiends were present to secure views of the squirming prisoners and Sheriff Finn.
A cool wind was blowing from the Delaware River, which caused the culprits, standing with bared backs, to shiver. The lashes were well laid on the skin, and long, red welts were generally raised. Theodore Carlin, Dennis Vaughn and Joseph Vaughn, who stole 144 cans of corn, got ten lashes each, and George Carney, a negro, who stole 50 cents from a friend, had ten lashes laid on his back, after which he was led to a cell, where he will serve a sentence of six months.

Lady Westbrook!"

Gerard rose up quickly; the hot blood rushed to his brain, then fiew like fire through his veins. Was this supportable? Surely, he was cruelly tied: For the moment he was so hurt as to be forgetful of the speaker, and in a cents of angry reproof, he exclaimed, Esmer-shame, shame upon you! How can you insult me thus? You-my

"Never mind," she rejoined, impetuously; "I care not what you think of me. I repeat, promise me this, Gerard; if you care for me at all—promise!" "Esmer, this is absurd," he protested, evasively now; for though there was no possibility of his and Lucille's ever coming together, he felt that promise could never pass his lips. "You will live long-longer than I. Who can count upon life," she broke in, with angry persistence. "Gerard, promise this—or—or—" She stopped. and pressed her hand to her forenead.

The earl was alarmed, and warning her of the danger she ran, tried to southe her; but she interrupted, excit-

The physician said little; but the expression of his counten-ance was such that, as the earl followed forth the marriage tables." Whispering him into the hansom, he asked anxas the physician hesitated. "No, no, not quite that, my lord; but dangerous—decidedly dangerous." In ellence, Gerard leaned back in the hansom. It was the abuse of sensitiveness; but he felt almost as if he were answerable for all this. Still, could he give that promise?

Frequently he heard his own name, as she called upon him; but, thank heaven, he never heard Lucille's. Once or twice they had come to fetch him to Esmer, his name being ever on her lipe; but she had not recognized

Dawn was just breaking in the east in cold, chill gray, when Dr. Culiam entered the apartment. "How is the countess—better?" inquired Gerard eagerly. "My lord, I fear not," was the reply, accompanied by a grave shake of the head. There is something evidently on her ladyship's mind. What it is I know not; but she incessantly entreats you to promise something. Whether you can do this I am unaware, only I think it right to inform you it is the sole chance of giving her rest-perhaps life. Her mind seems thoroughly imbued with it; she will listen to nothing else."

If this excitement is not allayed she has not long to live." Gerard's lips compressed until the color fied from them. His hands gripped each other tightly. There was a short, fierce struggle. No; he could not see her die-he could not be guilty

CHAPTER XXIX.

Fifteen months have elapsed since Esmer closed her eyes upon the world, with its pleasures and its pains. The victim of her own jealousy, she had lived to have her ambition realized. For a few brief days she had been Countess of Lethrington. In the family picture gallery her portrait would hold its place, and her history would be recited by future descendants. Next to hers—did Gerard wed again—must come another face. Whose? What mattered it now to her who slept in yonder quiet church, whose earthly bourne was marked by the marble morniment raised to the market. Counters monument raised to "Esmer, Countess of Lethrington, aged 19"? The very night succeeding the funeral found the earl a passenger in an express train traveling to Dover. His sorrow had been deep—sincere. Still, the first blow over, the peaceful earth covering the restless, self-tortured, spirit, did he not experience, despite himself, a sense of relief—of freedom?

Why hide it? We are writing of men and women, not angels. Yes, nevertheless he felt too much compassion for his young wife's memory not to respect it, and he fied temptation.

Self, perching on his shoulder, whispered warningly: "If you fly her presence, she will believe you have recalled your love, and, probably from very marked brusquely. "She has been excited, my lord."

he might not fail in fitting respect to Eamer. The idea never swayed his decision, that all society had its eyes upon him, curious, expectant; it never occurred to him until afterwards.

Already had Mrs. Grundy, over that winked sagaciously, and wondered how soon it would be before "the funeral also to her gossip that she would give something to witness the first meeting between Lady Westbrook and the earl.

"My dear"—sententiously—"we have long grown wise enough not to measure the heart's sorrow by the depths of the crape. Grief at times is all surface, even as the hatchment put up for public gaze. Mark my word, the earl will shut himself up in the hall for a month or so; then he'll return to town, and then—well, we shall see."

Consequently, Mrs. Grundy looked astonished and nonplussed when it was ascertained that Gerard had gone abroad, where his stay was indefinite. For nine days society canvassed the matter; then, save with his particular friends, the earl dropped out of thought, and for fifteen months no rumor ever occurred to recall him to mind. nwes reached England. He was as though he existed not.

Many men fool with sickness just as a bear fools around a trap. A man doesn't like to own up that he is ill. He says "O, it amounts to nothing. I shall be all right to morrow." But he isn't all right to morrow; nor the next day. Pretty soon the trap snaps to; and he has some serious disease fastened on him.
The only sensible course is to keep away from the trap, and not allow sickness to get any hold on you. It is a frightful mistake to trifle with indigestion and bilious troub-les in the belief that they will cure themselves. On the contrary they drag the whole system down with them.

When the appetite and digestion are irregular it shows that the machinery of the body is out of order and is not doing its proper work; the blood-circulation is po supplied and is being gradually debased by bilious poisons.

The proper alterative for this condition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It acts directly upon the digestive functions and the liver; and enables the blood-making giands to supply an abundance of pure blood, rich with the nutritions vital ele-ments which build up healthy flesh and enduring strength. In all impoverished and run-down conditions the "Discovery" is far better than malt "extracts" or nauscating "emulsions." It creates genuine permanent strength. It does not make flabby fat but solid muscle. It is a perfect tonic for cor-solid muscle. It is a perfect tonic for corpulent people.

A full account of its properties and marvelous effects in many so-called "hopeless" cases, verified by the patients' own signatures, is given in Dr. Pierce's thousand-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." This splendid volume will be sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of customs and mailting only. Address, Dr. R. V. Pierce, 63 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y. # JOLY'S SPEECH

A More Accurate Report of His Remarks on Prohibition.

Quebec, Sept. 25.—Sir Henry Joly de Lotbiniere addressed a meeting of his constituants at Cap Sante, Portenuf county, at the church, after high mass today. He discussed the approaching plebiscite, and stated his reasons for! being opposed to the principle of a prohibitory enactment. Sir Henri spoke

"Whenever I meet the electors of the county of Portneuf they speak to me of the vote which they are about to be asked to give on the question of prohibition, and they ask my advice. I should have preferred not to interfere, but to leave each free to vote as he thinks fit, but I cannot refuse to reply frankly to the electors of the county which I have the honor to represent, who testify their trust in me and seek my advice, that I am opposed to prohibition. I know that in making this declaration I shall displease friends to whose good opinion I attach great value and who believe in prohibition, but when an opportunity offered the other day I told them that I did not share their views, so that I do not now take them by surprise ALL SHOULD VOTE.

"The government fulfills its promise in giving to the people an opportunity of clearly declaring upon the question for or against prohibition. The plebisfor or against prohibition. The plebiscite vote will occasion a considerable expense, but, at least, let not the money be purely wasted. Every elector should straightforwardly declare himself, so that the country may know how popular sentiment stands upon the question. Those who refrain from yoting will incut a great responsibilvoting will incur a great responsibility for the future, a responsibility nuch more serious than many think. They will show themselves unworthy of the privilege of every free man, of taking a share in the government of the country by expressing his opinion by his vote. The question is clearly put: Are you in favor of prohibition or are you not? The government has not desired to embarrass the voters, nor to influence their vote, as the partisans of prohibition have seemed to fear, by asking them to declare at the same time if they would or would not be ready to take the consequences of a vote for prohibition, and undertake beforehand to support the burdens necessary to supply the deficit in our receipts of about eight million dollars annually, which would ineritably result from prohibition. The fact is, that every intelligent man who will give his vote in favor of prohibition must be fully alive to all the consequences of his condense. quences of his so doing.

COMPENSATION MUST BE MADE. "But it is not only this annual deficit of eight millions that we would be called upon to mest. Every honest man who has the smallest notions of justice and equity must understand that those who in good faith have invested their capital in an industry sanctioned and protected by law are entitled to compensation when that industry and the property which it represents are suddenly abolished, not because those who are engaged in this industry have committed any fault which would jistify the suppression of their industry, but through computsory expropriation, made in the public interest. Surely there can be no serious doubt upon that point, when Britmoned here ten minutes ago; I found her exceedingly restless. My efforts is sweet, but in the pure code of the sweet, but in the pure code of the sweet, but in the pure code of the religion of humanity, it is nobler to think rather of others, even of their memory."

The nurses sent for me," remarked the doctor less roughly, "as she says the code of the religion of humanity, it is nobler to think rather of others, even of their memory."

So Gerard fled from temptation, that he might not fail in fitting respect to the religion of humanity, it is nobler to the saw it coming on a quarter of an expression and have produced the religion of humanity, it is nobler to the saw it coming on a quarter of an expression and have produced the religion of humanity, it is nobler to the saw it coming on a quarter of an expression and have produced the religion of humanity, it is nobler to the saw it coming on a quarter of an expression and have produced the religion of humanity, it is nobler to the injustice that there would be in refusing this compensation. How many millions has not England paid to compensate slavery in her colonies? What will be the amount of this compensaproverbial cup of Bohea, nodded and tion? The report of the royal coinmission on the liquor traffic, page 27, mentions a sum of seventy-four million dollars as the probable amount of the claims; but though that amount must be exaggerated, let us admit only half, or even a quarter, and it is apparent that the country would have an en-ormous sum to pay if it desired to do simple justice to the interested parties, as it could not hesitate to do."

WILL PROHIBITION FINISH DRUNKENNESS?

"But in any event, could we seriously hope that prohibition would put an end to drunkenness? Would the effect of simply passing a prohibitory law be to reform drunkards? To hope for such a result would be to betray much ignorance of human nature. Those who unfortunately are addicted to drunkenness will find a way to satisfy their craving. Even today, when promibi-tion is not in force in Canada, are you aware of the quantity of liquor introduced by smuggling and man-ufactured by light distilling? And in what proportions would not these breaches of the law increase when the law would completely prohibit the use of intoxicating liquors? We can form an idea by observing the result of a slight increase in the liquor duties. What an army of officers will it not require to guard our three thousand miles of frontier, not to speak of the immense extent of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, to check smuggling from the States and illicit distilling in Canada? "Those who are in favor of prohibition rely upon the decrease of crime caused by drunkenness to reduce to a certain extent the expense of the administration of justice and of the support of jails and penitentiaries, and hope thus to reduce to a certain extent the annual deficit of eight millions. For that It would be necessary, first of all, that prohibition should suppress drunkenness, which I doubt, and, further, the additional expenses that would be necessary for the enforcement of prohibition should not greatly exceed the saving which the partisans of pro-hibition expect to result of necessity therefrom.

WHAT DOES TEMPERANCE MEAN? "I should like to know why the true friends of temperance (I speak not of the dreamers, with whom it is useless to argue), who for so many years have waged war upon drunkenness by means of appeals to reason and to the best sentiments of the human heart, should now seek to have recourse to prohibition - that is to say, to brute

"If they take the trouble to consult official reports (see page 16 of the com-mission's report) they will see that the consumption of whisky and other spirituous liquors in Canada, which amounted in 1871 to 1.246 gallons per head of the population, that is to say about a gallon and a quarter, ha undergone a gradual reduction since then, and that in 1893 (the last year mentioned in the report of the roya commission), it only reached .720, about three-quarters of a gallon. That is certainly a result which should encourage the true friends of temperance, the more as we must acknowledge that they have powerfully contributed to this success. It is true tributed to this success. It is tru that the consumption of beer has in creased during this period from tw gallons to three gallons and a half p head, but we ought not to regret see-ing the whisky replaced by beer. I city Ticket ( alluded a moment ago to the true friends of temperance, but we, who make moderate use of beer and liquors, and who set an example of moderation and show by our conduct that man ought to and can control himself in that as in all other things, are not we also friends of temperance? Do we deserve to be ranked with those who encourage d.unkenness?

"I now ask if it is fair to treat the Canadian people as a nation of drunk-ards? Canada, in spite of the great rigor of her climate, which tends naturally to encourage the use of strong drink, has the reputation of being one of the most sober countries in the world. I do not say the most sober, for on this point Turkey is ahead of Mahomet succeeded in establishing prohibition, it is true, by offering his disciples certain compensations. Are we prepared to adopt his religon? But I do not wish to jest on such a serious subject. "In concluson, as at the outset, I appeal to all who have a right to vote on this question of prohibition to vote according to their judgment and their conscience, but to vote. It is a solemn duty that they have to fulfil, and the day may come when those who have not fulfilled that duty will bitterly regret their indifference."

Wells & Richardson Co.: Gentlemen, - For the last twelve months I have been suffering with poor health. Meeting with serious financial loss, I began to feel nervous and exhausted, and my mind was so confused that I found it difficult to perform my routine duties in the customs service. I was obliged to stop work, and was granted a three months' leave of absence by the government. I consulted some of the best physicians in the country, but they did not agree about what ailed me, and I got but little relief. About three months ago a friend sent me three bottles of Paine's Celery Compound with the request that I take it. I am now taking the sixth bottle, and am doing my work regularly. I have gained several pounds in weight, my appetite has improved, and I am able to perform as difficult mental work as at any time in my life. I am confident that Paine's Celery Compound has been of great benefit to me. A. A. MOONEY,

FOR PROHIBITION

Good Gathering in Wellington Street Methodist Church.

Addresses by Organizer Marshall, Rev. T. S. Johnson, Rev. Jos. Edge and Ald. Winnett.

A successful prohibition rally was held in the Wellington Street Methodist Church last evening. There was a fair attendance, the major portion of it being comprised of ladies. Those present manifested great enthusiasm, and displayed keen interest, frequently applauding the speakers. Ald. Winnett occupied the chair, and Mr. Samuel Grigg led in prayer. After a few remarks on the question by Ald. Winnett, Miss Golding sang a solo in an effective manner.

Organizer Marshall, of Toronto, in his opening remarks, said he thought there was much need for active and earnest work. The opportunity of voting on this great question might never come about again. A defeat of prohibition at the present time would be a terrible thing, and perhaps mean a setback for a quarter of a century. People should and must stand by their noral convictions and principles, and in that case a glorious victory was certain. It only needed a few years of a prohibitory law here, and the peowould see its benefits and would never have any other law, no matter how many votes were taken on the issue. People say "Prohibition in-fringes on personal liberty." When When this law passes not one word will be in it to tell a man what he has to drink. "We are," said the speaker, "going to the root of the evil, in trying to put a stop to the manufacture and sale of the cause of so much waste and misery. This will inconvenience some men, but the majority of this country have to rule." Marshall here sharply criticised the anti-prohibition literature, and cited an instance where a card, given around by the antis, stated that if prohibition carried it would make many perjurers and spies. This, he stated, practically admitted that the liquor men would perjure themselves if the measure passed. "If they do," said the speak-er, "they will be landed where they ought to be-in the penitentiary." plause.) "Now these men," said he, are quoting Prof. Goldwin Smith and Prof. Grant, who are strong advocates of moral suasion. Well, God help the people of this country if they have to depend on moral suasion from Gold-

win Smith. Let them come forward and work, and not keep quiet until election time, and then raise a howl. If these men were honest they would practice what they preach, and if they can't do this, let them keep quiet. They are stumbling-blocks in the way of temperance advancement. If you show indifference and negligence in this matter, how can you face your God at the judgment? This is your opportunity of wiping out the most terrible of all blots on our fair land, and every true man should take advantage of it. If prohibition should be defeated on the 29th, let every man here tonight be able to say that he did his duty and that his hands are clean. 'Dare to be a Daniel,' and fight the battle of the people in the interests of humanity. Throw off your coat and get into the fight like men. It is a bad business, utterly bad, and we want it entirely wiped out. It retards our national progress at every step. Our opponents talk of direct taxation. No government is going to impose any such thing, for they would be turned out, and well they know this. You need have no fear from that direction, as our politicians of today are too clever to commit an act that would endanger themselves. This is the greatest moral question that has even been before the people of this Dominion, and 'Canada expects every man to do his duty' on the 29th day of September. Rouse up, every one of you to do your duty, and a glorious victory will reward us."

(Applause.) Rev. Thomas S. Johnson followed with a brief address. He was convinced that there was no man present that would not vote for prohibition; but they should go forth and influence others. What was wanted was that the convictions of the people be put in practice. He was praying that God would dispose man to vote for prohibition, and if so, a grand victory was assured. "God is giving us an opportunity for which we should be grateful," said the speaker. "I want prohibition to pass, so that the poor drunkard may have a chance to reform." He closed by calling upon every man to stand true and vote for prohibition on the 29th. Rev. Joseph Edge also made a few remarks. Mr. George gave a temperance recitation during the evening, which was much appreciated.

During the meeting Chairman Winnett said he was sorry to see so few men present, but hoped the ladies would influence those who had stopped away.

Mr. Daly's Reply.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: Mr. Haselgrove, a prominent cigar manufacturer, sees fit to criticise my letter in reference to Hon. Joseph Howe's great temperance (?) oration delivered 44 years ago in the Nova Scotia Legislature. In a vein of irony I said, "So well does it champion the cause of the poor drunkard and his wretched family" that it is now being used as a campaign sheet in the liquor interests. Mr. Haselgrove blandly writes, "I have personally read the speech referred to, and cannot find any such championship therein." Of course not! The poor drunkard and his family are the last persons Mr. Howe and men of that ilk think When we, therefore, point out that Mr. Howe's speech, and the letters of Dr. Grant and Mr. Goldwin Smith are not written in behalf of the victims of the traffic, but in the interests of the liquor dealers, and used as campaign sheets, we are called "cranks," "fan-atics" and "intolerant pleaders" for class legislation.

PROHIBITION IN KANSAS. Mr Haselgrove asserts that our circular, "Prohibition in Kansas," admits that only the open saloon has been abolished in that State. The following are a few verbatim quotations from the circular itself, and show how unfair the above statement is: 1. The law is efficiently and successfully enforced. 2. Not one-tenth of the amount of liquor is not used. 3. It has more than met the expectations of its warmest friends. 4 Fully nine-tenths of the drinking and drunkenness have been abolished.

CHRIST AND THE TRAFFIC. Now it is claimed by Mr. Haselgrove and others that our Lord was in favor of the unital that he participated in it. in favor of the drink traffic, in fact class tavern consisting chiefly of a reception-room, sitting-room and barroom combined. Across one end the bar, behind which are rows of bottles -rum, gin, beer, brandy and whisky A number of men lounging about; some drinking, some filling the room with smoke, others with curses; the floor decorated with large spittoons Over in stained with tobacco juice. one corner a couple of old scaks (the finished product), blear-eyed, disheveled hair and ragged garments; ever and anon uttering their incoherent ejaculations; a source amusement to the callous and indif-weep over. Now, can we imagine the One, "who was not willing that any should per-ish," looking upon such a scene with even the least degree of tolerance? Can we fancy him dealing out the ferent, but a spectacle for angels to poisonous stuff which transforms a boy (the joy of a mother's heart) into one of those drunken sots? Imagination revolts at the idea. In connection with the miracle at Cana, we would call Mr. Haselgrove's attention to the fact that there is now no question, amongst eminent scholars who have investigated the subject, but that in our Saviour's time there were two kinds of wine in common and unfermented. use-fermented While the Scripture record is silent on this point the whole character, life and mission of Jesus give the reverant Christian but one option. supposition that he deliberately manufactured intoxicating drink, to mar the festivities of a marriage ceremony, is intolerable, especially when we are told that the guests had already consumed large quantities of this liquid before the first supply was exhausted. Mr. Haselgrove argues that I hold the drinking of wine to be a "sin." I made no such assertion. Anyway, in passing a state prohibitory law we do not ask whether the drinking of wine is a sin, but whether the public traffic is a menace to the state. "Sin" is a violation of the divine law. Each man must settle that for himself. I judge no man. "To his own Master he standeth or falleth."

THE STATE AND THE TRAFFIC. Mr. Haselgrove thinks I admitted that drinking would not be interfered with, when I said that the law would deal with the public manufacture and sale and not with a man's private habits. I made no such admission. I was simply pointing out the rational basis upon which a prohibitory law would rest. The state does not deal directly with a man's private habits; it lays its hands upon a public traffic which is a menace to the state and a destructive force acting upon society, causing more orime and pauperism than pestilence, famine, and Fellow-electors, if the traffic is a good thing, then push it along, and use your vote and influence in its behalf; but if it is "a great evil," as 99 out of every 100 admit, then vote "Yes" on Thursday next.

F. W. DALY. London, Sept. 26, 1898.

AMUSÉMENTS

In "The Real Widow Brown," the attraction at the Grand tonight, not a moment is permitted to go by unenlivened by merriment, contagious humor and infectious song. By the plot a very attractive widow is represented as hideous by a masquerading young man in order to befog a rich old father and get into the good graces of his two lovely daughters, and song and dance incidentally afford entertainment of the rollicksome nature.

The early appearance here of the favorite comedian, Sol Smith Russell, has been announced. This is always an agreeable bit of news to the many friends and admirers of this wholesome actor. Mr. Russell's appearance will be doubly attractive this season for the reason that he will offer an entirely new play, in which he has an opportunity to display his quaint acting to better advantage than in anything he has been seen in for some time. This new play was written for Mr. Russell by Martha Morton, who also furnished him with "A Bachelor's Romance." Everybody who saw "A Bachelor's Romance" will, of course, want to see Miss Morton's latest effort. The new play has been christened "Uncle Dick."

Mis Dorothy Decker, the charming chausonette, who appears with the Gorman Bros, in their new version of "Mr. Beane from Boston" Grand on Saturday, matinee and night, will render several musical numbers written expressly for her, and entirely new to this city.

Ross O'Neal, who created the part of Lieutenant Cranbourne in the original production of "Humanity" in New York city, is still a member of the "Humanity" company, which comes to the Grand next Friday. The reserved seat sale opens tomorrow.

Effle Shannon, who appears at the Grand with Herbert Kelcey on Thursday evening, is said to be thoroughly versed in the significance of all the signs and omens attending brides and weddings. She was forced to learn them, so as to answer the various in-quiries while "The Moth and the Flame" was running at the Lyceum Theater, New York.
