PEACE IS URGED IN RESOLUTION

Religious Society of Friends Holds Annual Session
in Toronto.

CADETS DISCUSSED

Urging world peace, a resolution similar to that recently adopted by the Men's Brotherhood Federations of this city, was passed unanimously
by the Religious Society of Friends at the Tuesday afternoon session of their annual convention in Toronto.

Professor A. G. Durand, one of those instrumental in presenting the peace movement in this city, was made clerk, or presiding officer, of the Canada Yearling Meeting of the Society of Friends, which was adjourned to meet in Toronto next year.

The resolution reads as follows:
"Believing that the golden rule grants no exceptions to nations, and is as binding on groups of people as on individuals, and that the continued recognition of war as a legal method of settling disputes between nations is a survival of barbarism, a travesty of justice, a negation of morality and religion, and a menace to the very existence of our Christian civilization:

"We support the participation of Canada in the League of Nations as a practical effort to substitute justice and law for violence and anarchy in international affairs.

"We pledge to the government of our country our unflinching support in all efforts to limit the creation of new means and materials for war, beyond the actual needs of a police force.

"We believe that all agencies of education should contribute to improving international understanding and should teach history in terms of human achievement rather than in terms of war.

"We feel that the time has come for all organizations, either religious or civil, existing in the interest of human welfare, to proclaim the outlawry of war as a method of settling international disputes."

A further resolution was also adopted, endorsing the policy of the government in subsidizing cadet training in the schools, and urging that the care and attention of the government should be given in an increasing degree to the protection among the young of the ideals of friendliness and goodwill, upon which the attainment of international peace must ultimately rest.

The second annual inspection of Cadet Corps, No. 1068, of the Highland and Manor Park school, took place Monday on the school campus.
The corps was inspected by Lieut.-
Col. F. E. Ware, D.S.O., of the district general staff.

Many interested citizens of the park witnessed the manoeuvres, which consisted of the different movements in company and platoon drill, and the physical training. At the conclusion of the inspection the corps was drawn up and addressed
by Rev. W. M. Shore and Trustee T.
Taylor.

Col. Ware then gave a convincing address on the cadet movement, showing that the boys were benefitted physically, mentally and morally from the training that they had received, and the value that such training would be to them after leaving school. He complimented the instructor and the cadets. He made special mention of the officers of the corps on their good work, the officers being: Capt. Fred Wakarrell, Lieut.
Morley, Ralph Murray and Harry Jones. No. 1 Platoon, commanded by Lieut. Edwards, won the highest honours by the Progressive Ratepayers Club of the Park. Chas. Selby performed the duties of junior captain and C. S. M. in an efficient manner.

In concluding his address Col.
Ware stated that much credit was due to the way the cadets were fitted out in such neat and serviceable uniforms. In this respect mention should be made of P. W. Murray, general merchant of Manor Park,
the school board and the cadets themselves.

HOSPITAL CRICKETERS FETE OXFORD TEAM

League Leaders Will Play Crucial Match on Home Grounds Saturday.

The 21st Ontario Hospital cricket team, champions of the South Western Ontario Cricket League, is entertaining the Oxford Cricket Club of Woodstock on the hospital grounds tomorrow. The hospital team has so far this season beaten all other teams in the league. It is facing the Oxford team for the first time, resulting in a very keen interest being taken in the forthcoming game.

The hospital authorities are inviting the public to see the match, which promises to be one of the best of the season. The hospital team has not yet been finally fixed, but it will be selected from the following players: Dr. Chalk, captain; J. May, Dr.
McMahon, J. Grantham, Hughson, Hemmings, Widmore, the Secretary, McKimley, Gillespie, Toomey, Parsons and Walker.

The game will start between 2:30 and 3 p.m. H. J. White is secretary of the hospital team, and available for any information for teams desiring friendly matches.

FICKLE PUPILS QUIT MOTHER COLLEGIATE

Tennis Rackets and Fishing Tackle Replace School Books.

HOLIDAYS ARE ON

"Tech" Is Also Deserted—Matriculation Exams Begin Next Week.

The tennis racket officially replaced the school book as an under-arm adornment for several hundred high school students today. Boys were free to go fishing, and girls to catch up on sleep or help mother with what was left of the spring cleaning. Copy books and text books were consigned to the attic or other convenient places. Mental effort sprang with elastic ease from Latin and French to baseball and swimming. The holidays are on.

Collegiate life this morning was warm, deserted, appearance, like a mother who has struggled an entire morning washing and dressing her children, ransacked the kitchen and broiled over a hot stove to cook a tasty lunch, heroically mustered them in line for Springfield Park, and once arrived there in the coolness of the morning, she found that they had found the zoo with the swiftness of bees to a honey-pot. Mother Collegiate has struggled a year for her children, but as the first opportunity they are glad enough to be rid of her and off to the holidays.

This afternoon the warm June air will lay over the corridors, and all else will be still. The last classes have been held, and the last lower school examinations written off.
There will be another brief spasm of life next week, when the matriculation examinations will be written off, and then the schools will close down in interest, left to the mercies of the janitors.

Classes were discontinued yesterday at the Technical School. Students this morning were conspicuous by their absence, the teachers only remaining to finish work on report cards. They are expected to have these ready as soon as possible.

CITY NORMAL SCHOOL CLOSES FOR SEASON

Three Hundred and Sixty Happy Students Leave
For Their Home.

The Normal School closed yesterday at noon, and 360 happy students left for their homes full of enthusiasm and hope for the immediate future. With a large number of the second-class students came all of the Middlesex, and counties south of it, but the first-class students come from a wider district, extending as far east as Oxford and north to Huron.
Bruce, Perth and Grey.

Owing to the standardization of the high school curriculum the majority of the Normal students are of the same age, between 19 and 20. A few, maybe a dozen or more, are of more mature age, teaching or returning to the profession after being engaged in other branches of work.

COMMITTEE TO PROBE INDIA ACT DEFECTS

Appointment Is Response to India's Demand for Round Table Conference.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, June 20.—The India Office has announced that the government of India, with the approval of the secretary for India, has decided to appoint a committee to inquire into the difficulties and defects in the working of the government of India act, and to determine the feasibility of obtaining remedies for such defects as are consistent with the structure, purposes and policies of the act.

The membership of the committee will be both Indian and British, under the chairmanship of Sir Alexander Maddison. It will hold its sessions at Simla, and report to the government.

The appointment of the committee is apparently the government's response to India's demand for a round table conference on question of Indian administration, which the Indian government could not meet because the India act provides that the question of revision cannot arise for a period of five years.

nesday and Thursday of next week.
On Tuesday the new supreme head office building, costing nearly $500,000, will be dedicated in the presence of many prominent men of the United States and Canada. The meeting will be addressed by Senator James E.
Watson, governor of Ohio; the mayor of Columbus and a leading Canadian citizen.

Mr. St. Lawrence will be presented at the supreme session with the Grand Council charter and the official seal for the grand jurisdiction of Ontario and Quebec.

In Canada's Parliament

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, June 20.—Today in Parliament—The Senate will sit.

The Commons will discuss government bills and estimates.
Yesterday in Parliament—In the Senate, Senator J. D. Reid moved a resolution asking that immediate action be taken by the government of Canada in its negotiations with the government of the United States for the development of the St. Lawrence waterways.

In the House of Commons, Hon.
Charles Stewart, acting postmaster-general, said regarding the postal strike: "The mail service of Canada must move. I am going to take, so far as I can, every legitimate means to move it."

Estimates for the department of trade and commerce occupied most of the day. There was bitter fighting over the appointment of W. W. R.
Preston to investigate ocean rates.
A conservative vote of censure was defeated 41 to 13.

PARTS OF HUMANS ARE DUPLICATED

Artificial Kidney Proves Successful When Placed in a Dog.

Powerless to inspire life, twentieth century scientists have yet gone a long way toward duplicating certain parts of the human anatomy. A recently made experiment at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, shows that Dr. John Jacob Abel, professor of pharmacology at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, has devised an artificial kidney which has successfully served its purpose when the experiment was made on a dog. Dr. Abel is not known to have tried his experiment on a human being.

Dr. Abel, whose reputation as a scientist is of a very high order, has issued no statements concerning his artificial organ. Report has it that the invention consists of a glass cylinder about the size of an ordinary tin can. Small tubes made of a special material called celloidion run from end to end of the cylinder on the inside.

The remaining space in the cylinder is filled with a solution of common salt in water, which duplicates in its chemical properties and otherwise the liquid part of the blood.
This salt solution is in constant circulation, running in at one of the upper ends of the cylinder and out
at one of the lower ends.

When the artificial kidney is functioning, one end of the series of small celloidion tubes is connected with the vein of the dog, exactly as a dog's just before the blood stream reaches the celloidion tubes, there is poured into it a small amount of extract of this substance, the purpose of which provides the explanation of why the further development of the artificial kidney has been delayed for several years.

Without the extract of leeches, the blood would quickly coagulate or solidify in the artificial kidney. The leech is a blood sucker, but before it starts to draw blood from anyone,
it injects into his veins a small amount of a secretion which makes the blood flow freely and prevents coagulation.

DATA OF FIRE DEPT. PREPARED BY CHIEF

Mayor Asks List of Ages, the Time of Service and Record of Promotions.

Fire Chief Aitken has drawn up a list of the ages and time of service of the men in his department for the mayor, showing the date of all promotions. The mayor asked for this in committee some time ago
so that he could follow the system of making promotions in the department.

The age limit as set by the fire bylaw beyond which a man cannot join the force used to be 28, and is now 35. There are some men who are getting on in years, but over this age, but the chief explains that this was due to the scarcity of men, and that there was no other means of getting men on the department.
The new men who have been taken on in the last few weeks since the council granted permission for the chief to increase his force by an annual pay roll of $10,000, are all under 25.

HURON AND ERIE PICNIC A "RIPPER"

Staffs Celebrate Diamond Jubilee With Outing at Port Stanley.

UNIQUE PROGRAM

The weather prophet was altogether ignored by the program committee when planning the program for the fourth annual picnic of the staffs of The Huron and Erie and The Canada Trust Companies, held yesterday afternoon at London's favorite water resort. The probabilities were announced before hand in this manner: "It's always fair weather when good fellows get together," and we were going to have a real picnic in spite of the weather prophet.

Over ninety members of the staffs and families journeyed to Port in a special car on the L. & P. S. at 2:20 p.m., to which was attached the regular express leaving at that time.
Thirty or more who remained behind to render the usual friendly service to customers during regular office hours went down on the 8:22 express.

E. V. Smith of Windsor branch, Everett W. Wright, temporarily relieving at Chatham branch, and A.
D. Ball and family, and the staff of the St. Thomas branch, joined with the other members of the Huron & Erie's Diamond Jubilee.

Baseball Games.
Everything on the program was carried out on schedule time. At 3:25
two games of soft ball were indulged in. As announced in the program,
hot dogs with mustard were taboo.
The picnicers were badly "rolled over" by the baseball diamond instead. The teams proved to be evenly matched,
as the Oranges defeated the Lemons by a score of 9 to 8, while the Bolsheviks trimmed the Sinn Feiners with the same score. In a special match, the regular Huron & Erie soft ball team were badly "rolled over" by the Oranges, the score being 16 to 6.

T. H. Haskett of the L. & P. S. refreshment department had the supper tables artistically and invitingly set for 125 persons on the hilltop. The menu was "top-hole," and words of praise for the exceptionally well-planned arrangements were heard on all sides. Following this attractive part of the program unique sport events were run off with more than customary enthusiasm.

OLD DOBBIN WILL SOON CEASE YEARS OF TOIL

Long years of service have gained a well-earned rest for Old Dobbin, chief means of propulsion for the lawn mowers at Springbank Park.
Dobbin's right to superannuation was brought before the public utilities commissioners at their session late yesterday.

He doesn't look much and his meat is pretty tough by now, but the old lawn nag has been useful. Now he will make way for a younger animal of more graceful lines.

Mayor George Venice promised the commission that a fire horse, which might have a few points on Externinor in an endurance contest, if not in a speed trial, would be secured.
"Better put Dobbin out on pasture for the rest of his days," was the solution of one commissioner to the question of disposition of the present steed.

Oklahoma City Man Elected President of International Rotary Organization

ROTARIANS ELECT HILL AS PRESIDENT

International Convention at Toronto Comes to Close This Evening.

DELEGATES LEAVING

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, June 20.—Everett Hill of Oklahoma City, Okla., was today elected president of Rotary International at the convention here. The place of next year's convention will be decided tomorrow, and the first, second and third vice-presidents of the organization also chosen. The directors were chosen as follows: J. R. Buckley, Cleveland, Ohio; T. D. Davis, Butte, Mont.; Donald A. Adams, New Haven, Conn.; Paul H. King, Detroit, Mich.; J. E. Norman, Huntington, W. Va.; Alexander MacFarlane of Vancouver, B. C., was chosen Canadian director, and J. E. Taylor of London, England, British director. Rufus F. Chapin was re-elected treasurer. The secretary will be chosen tomorrow. The address of Chesley R. Perry, who has been secretary since 1910, is expected.

"The Boy, a Community's Greatest Asset," was the subject of an eloquent address by Hart I. Seeley of Waverly, N. Y., chairman of the international committee on boys' work.

David I. McCall of Pittsburgh, Pa., in his address on "Locating Our Assets and Liabilities" approached boys work from a different side than that usually selected.

Convention Closes Tonight. "The privileged boy at the present time presents a far greater problem than that of the underprivileged boy," said Mr. McCall. "This is because he has not yet been recognized as a problem worthy of serious attention."

"The disparity between prices of the things the farmer has to sell and the prices of the things he must buy is the main cause of placing agriculture in the hardest times it has had in the present lifetime of the generation," said Hon. Frank O. Lowden, former governor of the state of Illinois, in his address on urban and rural co-operation.

During the afternoon reports from special assemblies were received and presentation of trophies made. Miscellaneous business and the installation of officers preceded the closing address by Rev. Canon Allan P. Shattford of Montreal.

The convention formally adjourned at 5 o'clock, and at 8 o'clock tonight the general farewell gathering will bring to a close the largest convention that Rotary International has ever held. Many of the visiting delegates are leaving for Montreal and the east, while the British delegates leave tomorrow for Niagara Falls on a sight-seeing expedition.

ANDY REMANDED TO JAIL FOR WEEK

Case of Mr. Thompson Presents Problem—Wife Wants a Separation.

DISORDERLY CHARGE

Andrew Thompson was remanded to jail for a week when he appeared before Magistrate Graydon this morning on a disorderly charge, and in that time he will have to think over the terms in which he will conclude a separation with his wife.

"Back to liquor I suppose," said the court when Andy bobbed up smiling.

"I'd like to see you privately in your room," said Andy. "I think I could tell you all about it privately. I would like to talk to Mr. Judd and tell him about it, too."

"I think I'd better remand you, you're not sober yet," opined Mr. Graydon.

Mrs. Thompson, who had arrived in court in the meantime, said her husband had been drinking for weeks and she couldn't live with him any longer.

"Do I do all the drinking, dearie?" demanded Thompson.

"When I came home from work yesterday the place was strewn with empty beer bottles and cigarette stubs," declared Mrs. Thompson, who admitted having a bottle of beer. She had also hidden one away from her husband.

"You didn't need to do that, there were three or four more in the cabinet," spoke up Thompson.

"You will have to be separated," decided the court. "You're not in it state to talk about it now. I'll remand you for a week."

"I'm willing," agreed the prisoner. "Remember, I pay the rent, my dear. It's necessary for me to be remanded."

"I'll send you down for thirty days if you like," pleasantly observed Mr. Graydon.

"No, I'd like to settle it now," replied Andy, backing away from any talk about a jail term.

Mrs. Thompson said the rent was not paid by her husband. His mother owned the house and would not take any rent from him, but would from her. She owned the house and wanted to take it and get away from her husband.

"I hate to lose her, but I can't stand it. She doesn't need any support, she gets lost."

"Are you satisfied to have her take her things and go away?" asked the magistrate.

"She doesn't need it. Some day I'll be gone and she will get it all," replied Thompson, waving his hand sadly.

"She will if you keep on drinking," predicted the court.

"Annie, ask them if I can't go home with you," appealed Thompson, gazing at his wife.

"I'll answer you away from him forever," answered Mrs. Thompson. "I'll remand you for a week, Andy, were the final words of the magistrate."

Andy walked away to the cells, giving several policemen friendly taps as he passed.

LAWYERS TOO NUMEROUS, AID. DOUGLASS THINKS

"There are altogether too many laws and bylaws nowadays," declared Chairman Douglass of the finance committee last night. "We are forbidden to do this and forbidden to do that and everywhere we turn we are counted by a law forbidding us to do it. It's unbearable. 'Verboten' is the prevailing cry of the times in municipal, provincial and federal governments. The whole aim of government today is to get satisfactory results with as little law as possible, and that's why we are here tonight trying to get this market by-law simplified."

BEAUTIFUL AMARYLLIS SHOWN AT LIBRARY

There is on display at the public library this week a magnificent spike of amaryllis, the species crenatus robustus, the stem of which is more than seven feet long with a thickness of nearly an inch.

The flowers of the spike are a delicate shell pink with yellow centers. The spike was grown in the garden of one of the members of the library staff to the north of the city. It is well worth a visit to the library to see it.

KIWANIS HEAR FINE BIRD TALK

Mr. Hobson, Well-Known Naturalist, Addresses Noon Luncheon.

HUMANS SUFFER OVER FIRE HOSE

Summer arrived officially at the Kiwanis Club today. Members proceeded through their lunch, minus coats, and thankful for electric fans. The program, however, was eminently suitable for a summer day. Mr. Hobson, well-known naturalist, was the speaker, giving an intimate account of Canadian bird life.

Birds, according to Mr. Hobson, can teach human beings more than is commonly thought. In the matter of preserving individuality the comparison between birds and humans is particularly hard on the latter.

Mr. Hobson agrees with the great Pirandello in saying that mediocrity and lack of individuality are the common failings of the inhabitants of this continent.

"If somebody sets a style for pointed toes," Mr. Hobson stated, "everybody has to wear them, and if the style is for square toes, then we all wear square toes. But there are 75 species of birds on this continent, and no two are alike. No two have the same coloring or markings, or no two species have the same calls or whistles, or build the same sort of nests. They are not like human beings, who are gradually losing more and more of their individuality because they have the common failing of wanting to do what the other fellow does."

Through the host today a new member was introduced to the Kiwanis "Mac" McDonald, new manager of the local branch of R. H. and Decker Co. Prizes were won by Kiwanians Jack Greer, Morris Abbott and Russell Wright. Following his boost, Mr. McDonald gave a most highly amusing interpretation of the how representative of various nationalities respond to the well-known query, "Have you any bananas today?"

The Kiwanis Club is arranging a joint meeting with the St. Thomas club for next Tuesday evening at St. Thomas, when the district governor of the Ontario-Quebec district, Edward Tanquary, of Quebec City, will be present.

Beautiful Handiwork IS NOW ON DISPLAY

Well Preserved Specimens of Eighteenth Century Shown At The Library.

Through the kindness of Miss Mary H. Connor, 417 Oxford street, there is on display at the public library this week some beautiful and particularly well preserved specimens of handiwork of the eighteenth century.

The first is a sampler worked by Miss Jean Merritt on September 26, 1747. Worked on the sampler are the alphabet in small and capital letters, the numerals up to ten and a verse of scripture. Just above her name, Miss Merritt, as was customary in the age in which the sampler was executed, wrote the name of her lover. His name was Duncan Lloyd Forbes.

The second piece is that of Castle Dalrymple, on the border of the Scottish Highlands. The piece is about 100 years old.

Added interest given the exhibit by the fact that Miss Merritt is a great great grandmother of Miss Connor's.

All kinds of roses are represented in his collection. He has them planted in a great Rotary Wheel formation thirty feet across and he vouches for their beauty when in bloom. In the center of the wheel is a solid bunch of rose bushes and the spokes of the wheel and the circumference are also made of different colored roses.

OFFICER PATROLS ROADS IN SEARCH OF "PETTERS"

High Constable Wharton was summoned to the Proof Line road last night by a rural resident, who stated that several petting parties were in the area. The high constable made a fast trip to the scene, but the "petters" had departed.

Mr. Wharton stated today that he had covered 80 miles of county and township roads last night, but failed to find even one auto parked on the side of the road with lights out, which would lead to the opinion that petters were holding hands at home in the parlor instead of an automobile in the country. The threatening weather might also have had something to do with the scarcity of lovers, in the opinion of the high constable.

THREE SWIMMING POOLS WILL OPEN TOMORROW

All three swimming pools in the city playgrounds will be opened tomorrow morning. They are: Thames Park, Birkett's Plate and Becher's Island. Fully capable swimmers have been placed in charge of the pools by the public utilities commission, and, judging by the weather, they are off to a good start for the swimming season.

Checking rooms have been established by the commission at every pool, and, as Jerry Goodman, the chief supervisor, says: "The water's fine. Come on in."

REPORTS WATCH STOLEN

Mrs. Brooks of Langarth street west reported to High Constable Wharton this morning that a most valuable gold watch and chain and a pearl sunburst had been stolen from her home. Thewatch is of hexagonal shape and 15-jewel movement.

FINANCE BOARD'S ACTION ASSAILED

Ignoring of Fire Chief's Views Scored by Smith and Anderson.

OVER FIRE HOSE

The action of the finance committee in forcing the fire chief to accept a brand of fire hose which he did not want is roundly condemned in no uncertain tone by the two members of the committee who opposed the deal.

—Ald. John Anderson and Edwin Smith—as very bad business principle, and not in the best interests of the city.

Some time ago, the city asked for tenders for a certain type of fire hose for the department and received several tenders. The tender of the Dunlop Rubber Company was accepted, and the hose delivered to the central fire hall. Here the fire chief subjected it to the water pressure test, and found that one of the sections burst at 300 pounds, where the contract called for four hundred. Another length stood the test, and he did not test any more. He told the committee that he thought the rest would not stand the test, and did not want to have a lot of burst hoses on his hands.

He asked that a representative of the company should attend the testing of the remainder.

A representative of the company attended the meeting last night and admitted that his articulator, sent from England had not come up to standard, that it had burst at less than the required pressure in their own laboratories, and offered to supply a stronger kind of hose at the same price to the city.

Agree to Suggestion.

Ald. Douglass and Drake agreed to this suggestion, and said it was the best thing to do under the circumstances, while Ald. Anderson and Smith fought strenuously for new tenders on the ground that it was not fair to allow a firm which had failed to deliver the required goods to substitute another brand, which was simply offered because the fire chief had tested the hose and found it better than the regular standard.

Fire Chief Aiken told the committee that the new hose which the company offered, though it was stronger and would stand any test as to strength, was heavier and more bulky, and that the fire trucks would have to carry 200 feet less than in the case of the hose that had been ordered at first.

Ald. Anderson says: "The way the tenders have been handled by the city is not business at all. Months is not business at all. Months wouldn't handle my business, they would refuse to accept a tender because they don't think the tenderer can make a profit on the price quoted."

In this matter of the fire hose the original contract was for 40,000 feet of hose, and the company whose tender was accepted lived up to it by the company. Now the city is allowed to give the city a different kind of hose that will not allow the trucks to carry as much by two hundred feet. It's a high price for business practice, and the citizens are getting the treatment that they deserve."

Takes Same View.

Ald. Smith takes the same view. "As I see it," he says, "the chairman did not rightly understand the representative of the city. This man distinctly said that he had found the hose which was not up to standard in specifications. He was not anxious to test out the remainder of the hose in the fire hall, but wanted to supply another kind of hose. He said that tenders should have been called for as Mr. Anderson suggested. That was the proper way of doing business."

In my opinion, as it is, the fire chief seems to carry weight whatever with some of the aldermen."

Both aldermen congratulate the chairman on making the matter, and on the other hand, agrees with the action of the committee, and believes that the right course was pursued.

LONDON STRIKERS Stayed Orderly

No Disturbance Noticed During Local Walkout.

During the brief time they were out on strike, the London P. D. workers remained orderly and offered no public demonstration of any sort. No signs of active belligerence were noticed, and it was noted that a condition was the object of much favorable comment by post office officials and citizens.

Strike organization was something entirely new to postal workers. Never before has there been a walkout of post office men here. There was no strike committee or strike fund here, ready for such an emergency.

GOOD SHIP "QUEEN BESS" HAS NOT YET ARRIVED

"Queen Bess" has not arrived yet. This is the name of the boat that has been ordered for the fire department should they be called on to rescue persons from the turbulent Thames. It is not known when the good ship will arrive, but as soon as it does arrangements will be made for the launching. The liquid that will be in the bottle, which is to be broken over the bow has not as yet been decided, but it will very likely be one that will not incur the wrath of the law.

MAKING OF SILK TOLD TO LIONS

Ralph Presgrave Gives Interesting Talk—Omaha Delegates Named.

An interesting and instructive address was given last night by Ralph Presgrave of the London Den of the Lions Club on the cultivation of the silk worm and the raising and manufacture of silk from the raw state to the finished article.

"From one ounce of eggs," he said, "representing the work of over a thousand moths, some 40,000 caterpillars are obtained, weighing about two-thirds of an ounce. These minute caterpillars in the brief lifetime of about 40 days, grow to ten thousand times their original weight, or about 400 pounds. In doing this, almost the entire mass of the caterpillar is summed, with the ultimate production of 140 pounds of raw silk yarn."

An interesting feature of the address was a microscope demonstration of the difference between a human hair and a single silk thread. The hair appeared as thick as a telephone wire, while the silk was no thicker than the wire.

POPULAR OFFICIAL TAKES OVER WORK

Appointment of M. J. May as District Postal Superintendent Confirmed.

SPLENDID RECORD

Confirmation of the report made some weeks ago in the Advertiser of the appointment of W. J. May as district postal superintendent was received here late yesterday. Mr. May had for some six months, since the death of the late superintendent D. J. McLean, been acting superintendent.

Promotion for Mr. May is highly popular here. He has been connected with the post office department, in a number of capacities, for more than 20 years. He had served as railway mail clerk, on the Buffalo and Goderich line of the Grand Trunk Railway and was later made Inspector of Railway Mail Clerks for the London division.

Outstanding proficiency has marked his career since joining the postal services and much favorable comment on his work from time to time.

During the postal strike of this week, Mr. May was on the job day and night and led a handful of officials in coping with the early emergencies created by the general walk-out of postal employees here. He saw little sleep for three days, and was in the van in emergency operations.

The confirmation of the announcement of promotion came as a pleasant surprise at a time when the strike situation had scarcely reached any degree of clarification. Mr. May appears to have the confidence of the men under him, over the entire district, and his promotion is popular in all circles.

LONDON LIFE OFFICIALS RETURN FROM TOUR

Valuable Deposit Near Arkona Believed More Than 10,000 Tons.

The discovery by means of drilling of a large and valuable deposit of pigment clay within the limits of Arkona village this week opens a field of possibilities which, at this date it is not possible to estimate.

The deposit discovered, believed to approximate 10,000 or more tons, is considered but the initial discovery to be made in the district. The clay is of that particularly valuable inorganic clay the group of hydrates and hydroxides, which includes yellow ochre, raw umber, raw sienna and cappan brown. The deposit, it is said, is unusually rich in brown pigment and is in a state ready for immediate crushing by large crushing machines.

A tremendous development in raw materials is made possible by the discovery, it is stated. Rev. R. D. McLaughlin, pastor of St. David's Anglican Church, and a member of the board of education, evidenced his interest in the discovery by paying a visit to Arkona during the past week.

CHICKENS IN DISTRICT TO BE GIVEN INSPECTION

"Chickens, what are chickens?" will be the rule in Middlesex county this fall, if the farmers take kindly to the poultry culling proceedings to be carried out by the Middlesex branch of the department of agriculture from July 14th to 24th under the supervision of H. Alp of the O.A.C.

R. A. Finn states that non-profitable in the business will call at any farm yard and at a reasonable cost of probably 2 cents a head, pick out the hens that are falling down on their job of egg production.

It is estimated that the work will mean a saving of $20,000 to farmers on the 10,000 flocks of poultry, this amount being arrived at on the basis of each hen coming through with an extra dozen eggs per year, as a sort of a thank offering at being saved from the axe.

Popular Actor Says Medicine Completely Overcome Stomach Trouble and Nervousness.

That Montreal play-goers are literally packing the Opéra Theatre at every performance is an honor to the high standard of the entertainment offered and to the finished artistry of the famous Duffy stock players, not the least popular of whom is Donald Kirke.

Mr. Kirke is not only a favorite on the legitimate stage but is a screen player of note, and it is a further tribute to his consummate acting that, even while tortured with stomach trouble, nervousness and other ills, he kept "on with the play" day in and day out until he found relief by taking TANLAC. As he says:

"My stomach had almost failed me and I wonder now how I ever kept up late so long. Nights I would toss and turn for hours in nervousness; piercing sick headaches made me suffer agony, and at times on the stage I was so nervous, weak and trembly that I could hardly remember my lines.

"I would have given a thousand dollars to get the relief Tanlac has given me for less than five dollars. My appetite was never better. I eat everything and have gained 12 pounds. I'm never a bit weak or nervous, never have a headache, and I feel fine and dandy. I will gladly confirm these facts by phone or letter.

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

"They were hired this morning at $5 a month," he said.

POLA NEGRI USES MEN CRUELLY

Star's Latest Success, "Men." Features the Program at Loew's.

LAVISH SETTINGS

The sterner gender fare miserably at the hands of Pola Negri in her latest picture, "Men." This disastrous onslaught on an important part of the race forms the feature of the program at Loew's for the remainder of the week. At the end of four or five reels, however, the star and the scenario writer allow the men a word in their own defence, a last chance to redeem their sex.

The "Cleo," played by Pola Negri, makes her debut in a Marseilles waterfront. As a matter of fact, the men don't treat her altogether harshly, and later as Cleo the Mag-nificent, the toasted beauty of all Paris, she avails herself of a splendid opportunity to have her revenge. Even bank presidents receive no mercy at her hands. "Men" produces Pola Negri under European direction with an adequate supporting cast, notably including Robert Edeson, Joseph Swickard and Roy A. Frazer. Night life in Paris is beautifully depicted with lavish interior settings, and there is a gorgeous reproduction of the night of the St. Louis Carnival. Kerr and Ensign provide the most successful of all the vaudeville features. There is comedy and dancing of a highly entertaining type. Sammy Duncan undoubtedly appealed to the Highlanders in the audience with his Scotch songs, making a decided hit in conclusion with a yodelling song. Dora, Corss and Renee are given first place on the bill with an acrobatic act, featuring a number of unusually skilled stunts.

WIT AND DRAMA SCORE SUCCESS

Light, Sparkling Entertainment by McGarry Players Adequate For Summer.

EXPERTLY BALANCED

The light, sparkling entertainment as much a necessity for a summer evening as a cool sparkling drink is adequately furnished at the Grand Theatre this week with the Garry McGarry Players in their production of "Six Cylinder Love."

The comedy-drama, famous after an unusually successful run in New York, is one of the most delightful plays that the company have yet accomplished. It is a comedy in which the drama is still new and zesty; its little touches of drama instantly appeal to the sympathies.

The whole play is one of the most expertly balanced compositions of light wit and earnest sincerity that one could well ask. As presented by the McGarry Players, "Six Cylinder Love" loses nothing of its original merit. They take the utmost from every situation, and there are many bits of fine acting, which enhance the innate cleverness of the lines themselves.

Mr. Roger Prior, as Gilbert Sterling, has adequate opportunity for the comedy at which he is so adept, and the more weighty acting, in which he shows such promise. As young Mrs. Sterling, Miss Roberta Lee Clarke has one of her most attractive roles; thus far, most, one might say, the best executed part in which she has appeared here. Miss Jessica Paige is not so prominent as in other plays, but her role, though brief, is splendidly done.

As the enterprising automobile salesman, Mr. Stanley Andrews has an outstanding role which he handles with extraordinary skill. The remainder of the company all contributed handsomely to the general success of the play, in which an important factor was the general excellence of stage settings and costumes.

BUY HOME TOMATOES AND CUCUMBERS NOW

How many housewives realize the advantage of purchasing home-grown in preference to imported vegetables? London greenhouse growers are opening a campaign to impress the point and educate the public to the advantage. Right now attention is being directed to home-grown tomatoes and cucumbers.

A statement issued yesterday points out that there is a great deal of difference between the home-grown and imported cucumber. The home product is grown off the ground, and is placed in local stores a few hours after being picked. The imported product is left to mature to a greater degree on the ground, and by the time it gets to London, the statement said, the cucumber is a week or more old. It may be distinguished from the home-grown product by white and yellow spots or a nonuniformity in color. The home product is a very rich green and is "edible, while the imported product is hardly fit to eat."

Practically the same thing holds true, the statement said, with regard to tomatoes. Home-grown brands are picked ripe and are really most delightful. The imported tomato is picked green and by the time it has come en route and in the stores a rot sets in, which soon destroys it. "Ask for home-grown vegetables," is the slogan of the London greenhouse growers.

Bee Hive Found in Brick House

Busy Workers Store Honey in Wheatley Residence.

Special to The Advertiser.

Wheatley, June 19.—For three summers a hive of bees has been storing honey in the home of Bilton Derbyshire, Talbot road. They crawl through a hole in the brick wall and deposit their honey under the floor of an upstairs room. They are left unmolested, but part of the flooring has been opened up, and in the fall the honey is taken out, just leaving sufficient for the bees.

Mr. Derbyshire noticed a bird, day after day, near where the bees went in, and found the wise bird would wait until the bees were returning with honey and then feed on them.

Picture thousands of portentous little rock-dotted rivers marked here and there with ambitious waterfalls, or myriads of fern-bordered, gurgling brooks on the banks of which is occasionally seen the white smoke from a camper's fire, languidly ascending through pine-scented air to the leaves canopyed overhead. OSTRICH DISPORTS HIMSELF EVEN ON MILADY'S SHOES

His Feathers Droop Over Hat Brims and Hang From Waistlines.

OSTRICH SHOES

They Are Made of Skin of Bird Tanned With the Feathers On It.

By AILEEN LAMONT. Special to The Advertiser.

New York, June 20.—The ostrich may have his head in the sand, but this season, at least, he has his wing and tail feathers prominently displayed on scores of articles of feminine adornment. The vogue for ostrich trimming on evening gowns and even on shoes, which has run riot in Paris and London, is just gaining full speed here.

Dozens of ostrich trimmed dresses have been on view at the recent functions in honor of June brides. Feathers of every possible hue are being worn wherever they can be advantageously placed. They droop over hat brims and over fair shoulders and hang in delicate fronds from waist lines.

But it is at the skirt hem that they find their fullest expression. Generally they form a solid band of dainty floating color from the knees to the skirt edge and in many cases form the sole decoration of the frock.

They are so used on a recent Paris importation just arrived here, made of white fulcrum tulle with the new wide V neck line and only a suggestion of a low waist line to break the silhouette until a 14-inch band of black ostrich plumes is reached, which float from the knee down.

Another French model made on similar slim, straight lines is of a sea green color with a wide band of white ostrich plumes on the left hip. From this ornament fronds of un-earled plumes, of the same color, widen down the left side of the skirt until they completely encircle the hem.

One of Redfern's late designs is a sea green of cold lace over coral tulle. A double fringe of coral colored plumes extends from the knees all around, to within eight inches of the floor, and is continued upward to the left hip.

The feather vogue has even spread to trape. One of the most attractive examples seen recently is a tulle georgette lined completely with short ostrich plumed dyed a delicate yellow.

One or two pairs of ostrich shoes have reached this side from London. These are made of the skin of the bird, tanned with the feathers on it. The straps are of the skin with the holes where the larger plumes stick through, enlarged into cutout designs. Occasionally small bands formed of bright colored feathers take the place of bracelets around the wrist, with feather trimmed evening gowns. The presentation of many Americans at the Court of St. James has given impetus to the wearing of white ostrich plumes as head ornaments with formal dress.

The Latest Bracelet. New York, June 19.—A single large jewel, preferably one of the transparent stones, decorates the latest bracelet worn here today. The bracelet itself is usually of silver or platinum, with the jewel mounted high, so that the light shines through it.

I.O.D.E. CARRIES ON INDIAN WORK

National Convener, Mrs. F. J. Greenaway, of This City, Appeals For Funds.

Mrs. F. J. Greenaway's report of the I. O. D. E. Indian work, given before the meeting of the National Chapter, I. O. D. E., held recently in Toronto, was one of the most interesting reports of the whole convention. Mrs. Greenaway is the national convener for India, and has been in communication with that country since she took over the office six months ago.

The I. O. D. E. Indian work is largely concerned with the raising of money for educational and medical work in that country and the organizing of I. O. D. E. Chapters there. There are now two Daughters of the Empire Chapters in India—one at Poona, known as the Kaisir-i-Hind Chapter, and the Princess Mary Chapter in Bombay.

Kaisir-i-Hind is the name of an Indian military decoration, somewhat similar to the V. C. and from it the chapter got its name. There are 70 members who represent eleven different nationalities and sects, even including Persians.

Mrs. Sorabji, the regent, was recently in New York and expects to visit Canada on her next visit to America. The secretary of this interesting chapter is a cousin of one of the important rulers of the land, the Aja-Khan.

The I. O. D. E. sent $1,455.65 from Canada to assist in the Indian work last year and Mrs. Greenaway and her committee are making an appeal to all of the Canadian chapters for at least $1 for Indian work next year. The money goes toward the Women's Training College for Teachers, directed by Miss L. E. Nixon in Bombay; to the Anasik Hospital, near Bombay, an entirely Canadian hospital, to which two Toronto nurses were sent last year; to the Zenana Bible and Medical Missions in India, and to the two I. O. D. E. Chapters in that country.

The committee is anxious that many more I. O. D. E. chapters be started in India, and is asking that the girls, all of whom are known women in India, qualify to form a chapter there. Mrs. Greenaway, with the Indian work convener, she will take the necessary steps to form new chapters.

Will Decorate Graves Missed C. E. F. Chapter Appeals to Public For Further Names.

The C. E. F. Returned Chapter, fearful that some soldiers' graves may have been overlooked in the ceremonies of Decoration Day, has planned to visit the cemeteries again and place flags on any graves which have not yet been decorated.

The members want the public to assist them in their undertaking by notifying Mrs. H. C. Tull, 474 Ridout street, of any graves that have been missed. Mrs. E. J. Dunlevy and the members of her chapter hope to visit such graves and complete the work of decoration.

The program was given by the following: Margaret Campbell, Adeline Mooney, Irene Sinclair, Amy Trevethick, Blanche Roberts, Myrtle Blythe, Edith Schroeder, Doris Jenkins, and Lorna Wilson.

LUCKY TWELVE CLUB. Mrs. H. C. Spencer, Edward street, entertained the members of the Lucky Twelve Club Wednesday afternoon in honor of her birthday. Euchre was enjoyed, and the prize for the highest score went to Mrs. Percy Ferguson and the lone hand prize was won by Mrs. T. Bailey. During the tea hour, instrumental music was presented by Miss Olive Egart with a handsome tablecloth from the members of the club. Mrs. Arthur Walder read a charming address, and the presentation was made by Mrs. A. E. Bailey. Yellow iris were used as decorations throughout this room.

SUNSHINE CLUB PICNIC. The Sunshine Club of Trinity Chapter, O. E. S., is arranging a picnic to be held at St. A. J. Taylor's cottage, Port Stanley, tomorrow.

PALESTINE SHRINE. Arrangements for a picnic to be held at Springbank on Wednesday, July 23, were made at last night's meeting of the Palestine Shrine. The picnic was planned by very little business, the putting on of the degree being practically the only item on the program.

ABERDEEN PUPILS PREPARE DINNER

London Businessmen Entertained at Thirty-Five Cents a Head.

Thirty-five cents a plate seems to be the rate set for the demonstration dinners which are being given in the various public schools of the city by the pupils. Again last night, when the girls of the domestic science department of the Aberdeen School entertained a number of prominent businessmen at the dinner hour, the price per head was announced to be 35 cents.

Kyerson and Riverview schools had already named that price for similar banquets. Guests on this occasion were Inspector V. K. Greer, A. E. O'Neill, principal of the East London College, A. R. Cairncross, Rev. R. D. Mess, Rev. John Garbutt, J. W. Cunningham, Ed. Reeve, Max Lerner, T. J. Willis, W. Fallamore, A. Dallam, William Parsons, Sydney Clarke and Jack Brooks.

Dinner, which had been prepared beautifully, was served at tables attractively centered with daisies and this. The girls, all of whom are efficient waitresses, after having marketed, prepared and cooked the food which resulted in the following appetizing menu: Clear tomato soup, roast beef, mashed potatoes, creamed beans, combination salad, strawberry shortcake, fancy cake, and coffee.

Following the dinner the guests inspected the exhibition of manual training and household science work of the pupils of the Simcoe and Aberdeen schools.

A quietly pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday, June 19, at Askin Street Methodist manse, when Peter Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. James of Kamoka, was married to George Melvin Van Horne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Van Horne of Sarnia. Rev. J. T. C. Morris officiated.

The bride wore a white silk canton crepe and a corsage bouquet of Opheelia roses and sweet peas. The bride and groom, who were united in marriage on a honeymoon trip by motor to Toronto, Niagara Falls and points east. The bride traveled in a gray crepe gown with a picture hat to match. Upon their return they will reside at 358 Wellington street, Sarnia, and will be at home to their friends after July 1.

HEATLY—HAMILTON.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place Saturday, June 14, at 3 p.m. when Verna Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton, Lambeth, was married to Earl G. Heatly, son of Mr. George Heatly, Delaware. Rev. J. F. Sutcliffe performed the ceremony. The bride looked charming in a handsome French gown of oak wood georgette headed in crystal, with French hat and shoes to match, and carrying a shower bouquet of Opheelia roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Gertrude Hamilton, as the bride's bridesmaid, looked pretty in a costume of turquoise green georgette with white hat and shoes, and carried an arm bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Mr. Heber Hamilton, brother of the bride, acted as best man. Later Mr. and Mrs. Heatly left on a trip to Hamilton, Niagara Falls and Buffalo. The bride traveled in a smart suit of French tricotine and a silver fox fur, the gift of the groom.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, among which were a number of substantial checks and a handsome silver tray from Sharon choir, of which she had been the organist for the past four years.

Jenny Wren Tells Peter Rabbit How Cobwebs May Be Used

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

You know how curious Peter Rabbit is. He is never satisfied until he has found out all about a thing, or at least until he has found out as much as he can. Mrs. Hummer had aroused Peter's curiosity when she told him that she was looking for cobwebs for her nest. Peter couldn't understand how any bird could possibly use cobwebs in building a nest. He waited and watched for Mrs. Hummer to come back so that he might ask her more questions. But she didn't come back. Then he said Jenny Wren.

"Oh, Jenny! Jenny Wren!" Peter called. "Well, well, what is it, Peter?" demanded Jenny, impatiently. "Mrs. Hummer the Hummingbird, said she was looking for cobwebs and wanted to know if I had seen any," said Peter.

"Tut, tut, tut, tut! What of it?" cried Jenny Wren. "What did she want of them?" asked Peter.

"To use in shingling her house. 'Now, have you any more foolish questions, Peter Rabbit?'"

"My questions are not foolish," retorted Peter, indignantly. "What do you mean when you say that Mrs. Hummer probably wanted those webs to use in shingling her home? How does she shingle a home?" Jenny Wren jerked her tail and cocked her head on one side as she looked down at Peter.

"What an astonishing thing it is how little some folks know," said she, apparently to no one in particular. "And how astonishing it is how much some folks have to work to get a little honest information," said Peter, apparently to no one in particular.

"Just for that," replied Peter, "I guess I'll have to tell you," said he. "Have you ever seen Mrs. Hummer's nest?"

"No," replied Peter. "I haven't," replied Jenny Wren. "Her nest is covered all over on the outside with tiny bits of lichen, just as Farmer Brown's house is shingled. She shingles her home with those tiny bits of green and gray lichens."

Peter scratched a long ear with a long hind foot.

"I—I guess I don't know what lichens are," he confessed.

"Tut, tut, tut, tut!" cried Jenny Wren. "The idea, when you see them every day of your life! Look at that trunk of that old stone you see that gray and green stuff growing on them that looks something like moss?"

Peter nodded.

"Well, those are lichens," said Jenny. "Those are what Mrs. Hummer uses."

"But what have cobwebs got to do with them?" demanded Peter.

"Why, she uses the cobwebs to fasten them to her nest, stupid," snapped Jenny. "When that nest is finished it looks for all the world like nothing more than a lichen-covered knot of the tree. Well, I can't stop gossiping. Be here any longer." Away Jenny flew before Peter could ask another question.

Discusses
All Kinds
Of Wives

A Wife Is the Perfect Alibi for Anything
a Man Does and Leaves Undone—In America She Plays First Fiddle.

Why is a wife?

A cynic says:
A wife is a hangover from a romantic jag. She is what's left in the cold, gray morning after, when the illusion has died out, and the rosy dreams are shattered, and the thrills have flattened out.

A wife is a daily visible reminder to a man that his judgment is fallible, and that his taste is in need of correcting. A wife is also a perfect alibi for everything a man does and leaves undone.

The first man who ever had a wife discovered that he could hide behind her skirts and blame her for all of his shortcomings, and every husband since has followed in his footsteps.

If a married man fails in business, he lays it on his wife's extravagance. If a lazy man sits down on the do-nothing stool, he excuses himself with the plea that his wife fails to inspire him with ambition. If a man is a drunkard, it is because he has to drown the memory of his wife's nagging in liquor. If a man buys a car that he can't afford, it is because his wife won't have it. If a man doesn't want to go anywhere, his wife is invariably smitten with a sudden illness.

As a standing excuse a wife has no equal, which is one of the chief reasons that many a man acquires one. Wives are also valuable as a kind of human safety valve to their husbands, for many a man would blow up and burst if he could not vent on his wife the temper and irritability and grouches that he dared not visit on his employees, or his clients, or customers.

A wife is a useful, in fact, almost a necessary household convenience. She is the only cook that can't give notice and quit, and the only laborer who is on her job twenty-four hours a day, and who never goes out on a strike or a lockout, and who never demands Sundays and holidays off. She is also cheap labor, being willing to work for her board and clothes, and humbly grateful for an occasional small tip.

Few men realize what an economic saving a wife is until they lose one. Then they have to hire about six other women to do the cooking, sewing, mending, cleaning, baby tending, etc., that one small, two-by-four wife did.

A wife is generally held to have a very uplifting influence on a man's character and to exert a reformatory influence over him. This is probably because after a man gets a wife he has no money to indulge himself in any other vice. It is a mistake, however, to believe that a wife is an antidote for that tired feeling, or a thirst for bootleg liquor, or a craving to see the ponies run. Even polygamy will not cure a rounder.

A wife is often called a helpmeet. This is on account of her being a first aid to her husband in either making or spending a fortune. Wives help their husbands in different ways. Sometimes a wife helps her husband by being a nickel nurse, by paring the potato skins, by the hand and beating down, and wearing hand-me-down clothes, and making her own hats until they pile up enough pennies to make a fortune.

And sometimes a wife helps her husband by blowing in so much money on imported frocks and frills, and running up such tremendous bills that he has to get out at night and be a go-getter to make the jack as fast as she spends it, and in so doing he becomes a millionaire.

There are a great many different varieties of wives. There is the domestic wife, who resembles the gas range and is most interesting at mealtime. There is the devoted wife, who sticks to her husband like a porous plaster, and is just as irritating. There is the fashion-plate wife, who keeps him in debt. There is the club wife and the bridge wife, who feed him out of paper bags. There is the henpecking wife. There is the baby-doll wife, who is beautiful but dumb. And there's the other man's wife, who is the most interesting of all.

Every man dreams of an ideal wife. She is a woman who never grows old, nor gets fat, nor grizzle-headed, but remains perpetually young and beautiful, and retains her girlish figure. She runs a house on air and sets before her husband wonderful meals that cost nothing, and she never, never, never asks for an allowance.

She is always beautifully dressed, and quiet, and calm, and serene, even after having been up half the night with a colicky baby, or after having stood hours over a hot stove cooking dinner. She is always ready either to go or stay, to talk or be silent, according to husband's moods, and she perpetually sits at his feet and burns incense. Needless to say, no man ever finds his ideal wife. There ain't no such animal.

The wife occupies a different status in different countries. In America, she plays first fiddle. In Europe, she is second fiddle, with most of the stops on. In the Orient, she is not heard of at all. Orientals take their wives in allopathic doses. Occidentals prefer to take theirs homeopathically. But the Orientals are more reasonable in their demands upon wives than the Occidentals are. They marry a whole harem to get the qualities they desire in a wife, while we expect one wife to bunch all varieties of charms and graces.

A strange thing about a wife is that no man knows how he happened to get the one he did. Only his wife knows that. And the strangest thing of all is that most men can neither get along with a wife nor without one.

L.O.D.E. CHAPTER PLANS FOR CAFETERIA AT FAIR

Campbell Becher Members Will Hold Corn Roast
on August 22.

A great amount of routine business was transacted at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Campbell Becher Chapter, L. O. D. E., the last meeting of the season, held at the home of Mrs. R. J. Winn, South London.

The chapter decided to donate a book to the Victoria Hospital library; appointed Mrs. Jack Murray to represent the chapter at the Dominion Day celebration in Victoria Park; made arrangements for a cafeteria to be held at the fair in the autumn; and Mrs. J. E. Stevenson as general convenor, planned to hold a booth at the Winter Garden during radio week, Aug. 11; arranged to hold a corn roast at Port Stanley on Aug. 22; decided to take over visiting at the Children's Hospital for July, and to look after the sale of tickets for the production of "The Camo Girl" in the autumn.

Mrs. F. J. Greenaway's report of the National Chapter meeting, held recently in Toronto, was a very interesting part of the meeting. Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Winn, Mrs. H. B. Elford and Mrs. J. McLeod. Mrs. E. L. Steele, the Ridgeway, will entertain the chapter at her home for the September meeting.

SENIOR PUPILS HEARD IN ENJOYABLE RECITAL

Fine Program of Vocal and Piano Numbers Given at First Church.

The intermediate and senior pupils of George Lethbridge were heard in a clever vocal and piano recital given in the First Presbyterian Church last night. The numbers, arranged as they were, formed an interesting selection and showed skill and brilliancy on the part of the pupils.

Mrs. V. C. Freeland opened the program with "Gipsy's Dream" from the great Wagner opera, Lohengrin. Other very fine vocal numbers were given from Hewitt and Damroch by Mrs. Ellis; "My Mother Bids Me Bind Me Hail," by "Charity" (Hagman), by Miss Elsie Crocker; "As When a Dove" (Hendel), by Mrs. Hunter; "God Shall Wipe Away All Tears" and "Comfort Ye" (Hendel) by Charles Burnett; "Rain" and "O Harp Immortal" (Gounod), by Miss Viola Williams; a group from Tintin and Curran by William Medlyn; and "Le Gondolier" (Halevy), by Miss Irene Brown.

The piano numbers were given with equal ability. Miss Mildred Oxley playing "Caprice Espagnol" from Moszkowski; George Smale being heard in Chopin's Etude on 10, No. 12; Miss Ruby Pick playing "Chopin Fantasia and waltz, and Herbert Bird in an impromptu from Reinhold and "Le Jongleur" from Moszkowski.

CHAPTER XXI. Companionship.

On the afternoon of the second day Wilson ran her to earth, alone by the old reservoir with the crocodile, an array of lesson books on the old oil press beside her.

He paused, watching her with eyes that held a stifled, worshipping gleam. "Do you know, Countess," he said, "that you've come to tell me what you want me to do?"

"You—you must do just what you like," she faltered.

"But it's what you like, Countess, not what I like. You're master here, not I!"

A faint blush came to Desree's face, but she made no reply. The next morning, since there was no sign of temptation, he sought for one of the moldering rooms upstairs, doing lessons with Miss Ryder.

He excused himself for intruding, but when he set out to do things he had to get on with it. He had the Countess's permission to go to Nice and get estimates for the builders?

It was more than two hours in getting to Nice, a journey a motor could have done in a quarter of the time, and the idea of the wasted hours irritated him, for he declared them all to spend in Desree's service.

The next day after lunch Desree would have escaped, as she always did, the moment the meal was over, but as he stood, holding the dining-room door open for her and Miss Ryder, he said:

"I think we'd better begin by buying a motor car. There's too much time wasted in jogging up and down to Nice in that mule cart."

"That would suit me all right," she said.

The matter being arranged, Desree would have slipped away there and then, but again his voice stopped her.

"When you have time I should like you to show me round the estate, so that I can get some idea how much there really is of it, and what should be done."

"I can come anytime," she said submissively.

"Then perhaps we can go now," he answered, delighted with himself at having enticed her out for a walk.

As they walked together, now in sunshine, now in shade, in a world full of flowers, and sweet with the scent of bloom, wild thyme, lavender and roses, for the nonce Wilson forgot they were mistress and servant. There was such a feeling of fellowship and equality, as if what was lacking in one was balanced by the other.

The girl was all eyes for the things around her. The most ordinary of birds and butterflies and flowers were a delight to her, something to which to call Wilson's attention. He always responded heartily, remembering she had only been able to see them for a few months.

And she admired her companion all the more.

He looked like a man who could tackle big things, and looked as if he enjoyed the prospect, instead of being scared out of his life at the mere idea as she would be. She could not even tackle her own household. There was a strike on there now.

Both Juliette and the cook had refused to have anything to do with the English breakfast which she had ordered for her hero, a breakfast of porridge and bacon and eggs, such as she had gathered from Mrs. Green all English people had.

Eggs, yes; both the cook and Juliette could understand a man having a boiled egg with his first dejeuner. But whoever heard of a civilized person eating pudding and meat at 8 o'clock in the morning?

"If this English monsieur is to have pudding and meat with his breakfast, then mademoiselle will have to cook them herself," the cook had declared. And Juliette had seconded this motion, for once siding with her rival.

If things went on like this the Countess would be expecting them to cook a dinner with seven or eight courses at eight o'clock in the morning! Any idea of the sort must be nipped in the bud.

Wilson breakfasted in the dining-room, in solitary state, in an English manner, on porridge and bacon and eggs. But he little knew who had cooked it. Desree with painful effort and burned fingers determined that her hero should be fed after the manner of his nation. She did for him what she would not have dared do for herself. She braved a couple of irate and refractory women who stood in the kitchen whilst she cooked his breakfast, sneering at her attempts, criticising her methods.

However she said nothing of this to Wilson. A man so capable would think her a poor creature since she could not exact obedience from her own menials.

She put the matter completely out of her mind, refusing to let the painful morning scene mar the happiness of the moment.

There was a brief silence during which cheerless and loquacious were demolished.

All at once Desree cast a quick glance at her companion. Then she averted her face so that he should not see the soft little smile that came to her lips, in spite of all efforts, the smile of a girl about to tease her lover.

"Mr. Wilson is your cousin anything like you?" a demure voice asked presently, with an undercurrent of mischief in it.

The question made Wilson wriggle uncomfortably, suddenly brought face to face with his own deception and the unflattering image of himself he always conjured up when thinking of himself in connection with Desree.

"He's a very ordinary sort," he answered, in as casual a tone as he could command at the moment.

Then his gaze went to the girl beside him, with her small hands full of red cherries, the big hat shading her perfect face.

"What do you imagine him to be like?" he asked, wanting to find out what her idea of him really was.

"He's not very tall," she answered gravely, "about as tall as you, I should say. And he's awfully good-looking; his face is so strong and firm and kind. He has a figure like Hercules, and such nice hands—the hands of a man who can do things."

And I know there's not a greater or more noble man on this earth than my Mr. Wilson," she finished earnestly.

Inwardly Wilson groaned. It was as he had always suspected and feared. In her mind she had some glorified, impossible hero masquerading as himself. More than ever was he glad he had come back as his cousin.

CHAPTER XXII. "My Mr. Wilson."

The next morning Wilson was up rather earlier than usual. There were one or two matters he wanted to go into before he took Desree to Nice in quest of a car. By now he knew every inch of the old chateau, and, as a short cut to his bedroom to wash his hands prior to breakfast, he passed in by the back premises, where he found Desree cooking his breakfast.

Are you having a cooking lesson, Countess? Wilson asked in English. "No, I'm showing Juliette and cook how to do eggs and bacon and make it up in the English manner," she answered bravely, terrified lest he should find out her incompetence and despise her.

"Well, Juliette and cook must be very slow in learning, if you still have to show them how to cook an English breakfast," he remarked in broken French.

His comment had the effect he intended. It made the two women bridle at each other now, not as rivals, but as heads of departments. Wilson left the kitchen. With fluttering heart and trembling hands Desree followed him, fearing he had found out her utter incapacity.

"Indeed you can't," Juliette cried. "Run along, ma petite," she finished, turning, all smiles, to Desree. "Old Juliette will do this for you every morning since you can't trust your new cook."

"Can't trust me, indeed!" the cook flared.

Helplessly Desree glanced at Wilson. It had come at last, what she had been dreading and dreading—a battle royal between her old servant and the new one.

"No, Juliette, it's not good enough for you," Wilson's voice broke in firmly and quietly, speaking rather slowly in broken French. "You don't suppose that, after all your years of faithful service, your mistress would be content to let you stay here still working? With your knowledge of poultry and cows, of butter and cheese making, you're to have charge of a model dairy the Countess is going to have built, with three dairy maids under you."

"And me, monsieur, shall I be expected to stay here and cook on bricks and sticks like a vagabond?" the cook asked. "I would have you know that I've cooked for ladies with higher titles and bigger incomes than mademoiselle la Countess."

"Your mistress is going to have an up-to-date kitchen built with a proper kitchen range, and you are to have a couple of kitchen maids. But we must all have patience. These things can't be done in five minutes."

The two women were down looking at each other now, not as rivals, but as heads of departments. Wilson left the kitchen. With fluttering heart and trembling hands Desree followed him, fearing he had found out her utter incapacity.

"If there's any trouble in the kitchen department again, Countess, tell me at once," he remarked, when they were out of earshot of the place.

Desree loved and admired her champion more than ever.

That same morning Wilson had breakfast on the terrace with Desree. The scent of flowers and dew came up from the tangled garden, where bees buzzed drowsily, as they had done four months before when she had given him shelter in the ruined castle. His employer had not much to say. She was thinking of all that had happened since then, and what her fate would have been if he had not come into her life.

When the meal was finished he said: "As soon as you're ready, Countess, we'll set out on the track of a car."

This time Wilson did not find the drive down to Nice at all long.

After lunch they went to one of the principal motor agencies in the town. Once in the showroom, Wilson did not trouble Desree about the matter. He looked at the various cars, examining their intricate parts, knowing exactly what type and style would be best suited to her purpose.

A car was finally decided on. There was a trial run and they arrived back at the chateau in great style.

Before a fortnight had passed he had men digging up the weed-grown terraces on the hillside and brick-layers and carpenters at work on the house. Twice a week he went down to Nice, to a college of agriculture, to learn how things were grown in that part of France, so that he could serve his princess better; to see plans connected with her house, and the home for blind babies that was to be built in the sweetest corner of her estate, and the facade of an evesore.

Occasionally, when he was in the midst of instructing an army of workmen a soft, excited voice would say: "Oh, Mr. Wilson, do come and see what I've found."

No matter how busy he might be, that request was a command.

But wonderful as were all the flowers and trees, the birds, beasts and fishes of Desree, there was nothing in the vast scheme of nature to compare with the man who had come into her darkness, bringing light.

When the sun set over the mountains, turning their hard gravities into velvet softness, it was wonderful, something to clasp hands in ecstasy over, to look at with marvellous eyes. But it was not so wonderful as "my Mr. Wilson," she would say.

His presence sent her singing through the old house, which, when he had first come there, had had nothing but draughty sighs and the splash of rain, like tears.

Very often, when her lessons were over, she would come straight out and look at him, as in white overalls, he superintended the renovations.

For a time, on the pretext of seeing how things were getting on, she would watch him as he gave a hand here, advice there, instructions about this, that, and the other thing, at everybody's beck and call, yet never out of temper, never flurried, su-premely master of himself and those around him.

"You work too hard," she would often say. "For a change, come and help me to gather fruit for lunch and dinner."

It was an invitation he could never refuse, to wander in the fruit-laden orchards with the princess, to stand with her under peach and apricot trees while she looked critically at the crop.

"That one is going to be for you, now," she would say, pointing at a particularly fine specimen.

And it would be eaten there and then, in company with Desree under the shade of a pine, or olive, or walnut tree. There was no sign of "the ice maiden" then, only a young girl, teasing and tender.

"I had cherries in my hat the first day I met my Mr. Wilson," she remarked one morning when they were feasting on the last of this crop.

It never dawned on him to think that Desree was favoring him, encouraging him, even; he never dreamed she had seen through his deception; he only saw himself privileged because of that impossible person—"my Mr. Wilson."

TRADES COUNCIL BACKS POSTMEN

London Postal Clerks and Carriers Determined To Stay Out.

BACKED BY COUNCIL

Postal clerks and letter carriers of London entered into the second day of the Dominion-wide strike at an early hour today, and there were no visible signs of the strike forces weakening.

Meetings yesterday afternoon and last night were reported to be all in favor of remaining out. The lump had been made and the strikers did not appear eager to try to get back across the breach, without further information from Toronto headquarters.

Dave Rehder, secretary for the letter carriers, was in Toronto yesterday afternoon and relayed information to the local forces from the Dominion executive's session there. In this way home and grim determination was maintained until a late hour last night.

Labor Supports.

"We have the support of the street allwaymen's union and the Trades and Labor Council," strike officials announced at midnight. The street railway union and the T. and L. Council at their regular sessions last night had passed resolutions supporting the postal strike. Financial assistance to the strikers was offered and copies of resolutions in support of the rejection of the postal wage scale were rushed by wire to the premier at Ottawa.

"We appreciate that support," declared one of the strikers. "What we want is to have the public posted on reasons for the strike. We aren't after an increase in pay. We would be satisfied with the 1923 maximum wage and bonus." If the public would only get clear of the fact that we aren't striking for more wages, but merely for the 1923 scale, we would feel sympathy was more easily obtainable.

It was nearly midnight when executives of the posties left their headquarters in the L. O. O. F. hall on Richmond street. A handful gathered at the custom house, a block distant, where the Railway Mail Clerks' Union of the London division went into session to take a strike vote at an early hour.

Rail Clerks Meet.

The railway postal men were some 50 in number, gathered from all the lines running out from London. They were off C. N. R. trains only, the C. P. R. men gathering at Toronto. They were all London men and for over two hours they sat in close discussion, with the doors guarded and not even a representative of other postal workers' unions being permitted to enter.

At the central postoffice new conditions were materializing last night. Under District Superintendent May and Postmaster Duncan, emergency organization was effected late yesterday. Strikebreakers, said to be about 50 in number, were ready to fill vacant positions at the postoffice. Deputy Postmaster Skinner stated that no more positions were available. Postmaster Duncan, after advertising for men yesterday afternoon, "look in his sign" at the tea hour. All day there had been a continual stream of applicants, men of all ages, types and abilities. Most of them had suffered unemployment, and welcomed the chance of an $85 a month job.

No mail had accumulated for any length of time during the first day of the strike, postal matter on hand when the strikers went out the night before was disposed of. Mails for outside points were sent out as well as possible, and incoming mail was treated with expediency. There was no congestion. Loading and unloading at trains was improved by the return to duty yesterday afternoon of some transfer men.

TWO STILL IN RACE FOR BIG MAJORITY

Cecil Kemp, of Knox, and Hartley Upshall, of Askin Street, Compete.

Interest continues to grow in the boys' election in connection with the C.S.E.T. program carried on by the Y.M.C.A. under the direction of the boys' work board. Hartley Upshall, Askin Street Methodist, and Cecil Kemp, Knox Presbyterian Church, are the only candidates for the mayoralty.

The published platform of Cecil Kemp is as follows:

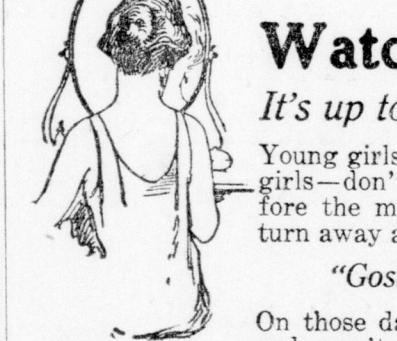

"First and foremost, the extension of Canadian standard efficiency throughout the city so that every boy may be assured of at least some of its benefits.

"Co-operation with the boys' work board composed of prominent men. More can be accomplished in his estimation, both by the men and boys, if a mutual goal is established and both bodies work untiringly to make this a year of achievement.

"Greater publicity for boys' work, such as the revival of a boys' paper. 'Cec' served on the former paper and believes some medium might be found this year to advertise and interest the people in the C.S.E.T. work.

"More group competition and a stimulation of community spirit between the different organizations. Consideration by the council of the problems confronting any one of the groups, and competent leadership introduced into the churches new not enjoying the results of C.S.E.T.

"A big C.S.E.T. social night for both Trail Rangers and Tuxis boys."

SYRIAN SKIRMISH RILES CITY COURT

Lizzie Matrone and Mrs. N. Abdullah Warned To Keep the Peace.

STONES THROWN

A war, declared in local Syria on June 17, was settled by the head of the local league of nations, otherwise known as Magistrate Graydon, in police court this morning. The legal representative of the warring parties, Messrs. Homer Neely and Gordon Tennent being told that their clients must conform to all provisions of a peace treaty, otherwise they would be brought to court and both fined. The court was cleared while the case was being fought out.

Lizzie Matrone, who lives on Talbot street, two doors from Mrs. Neely's, said Mrs. Abdullah had called her bad names, and threw a stone at her. The trouble started when she had asked Jack Erwin, working for Mrs. Abdullah, to lend her a screwdriver to fix her gate.

Cross-examined by Mr. Tennent, the plaintiff stated she hadn't spoken to the defendant for three years. She hadn't accused the defendant of anything, and the police who had made on her house. Witness declared throwing a stone back at Mrs. Abdullah at first, but later admitted she was a stone and threw it away, because she didn't want it in her yard.

Window Was Broken.

"A windowpane was broken in Mrs. Abdullah's house," suggested Mr. Tennent. "Did you break it?"

"She hit me first, and I had to defend myself," said Lizzie. "If I wasn't fast, I wouldn't you like that?" "I'm not expressing an opinion," retorted Mr. Tennent.

"I don't know how many stones were thrown," said Lizzie. "I'm not going to say anything more, that's enough," decided the plaintiff, glancing at counsel.

Mr. Neely said he was working for Mrs. Abdullah, who lives two doors from the plaintiff, and the latter had asked him to loan her a screwdriver. He went over and gave her one, and the two women started "jangling in their own language." They talked some in English, and Mrs. Abdullah called Mrs. Matrone some vile names. Two stones were thrown, witness thought, although he wasn't paying much attention to the row. He heard a stone crash through the Abdullah window.

Miss Susie Wells, whose house occupies "No Man's Land" between the opposing camps, was not any too pleased at making a court appearance. She heard the row in progress, shut the door, and stayed in the house. The language used was Syrian, she stated.

"What did you see?" asked Mr. Neely.

"I was in the house, and I can't see through a brick wall," I closed the door because I didn't want to get friends, and that's your business, not mine," said Miss Wells, whose evidence closed the case for the prosecution.

Mr. Neely submitted that all his client wanted was something to prevent another occurrence of the assault. Mrs. Matrone had been minding her own business.

"I don't think your client needs much prevention. Honors seem to be about even," observed Mr. Graydon, smiling.

"You will have to stop this thing," declared the court, addressing both plaintiff and defendant. "It won't be tolerated any longer. If it occurs again, you will all be fined on a charge of disorderly conduct. As it is, I will discharge you with a warning."

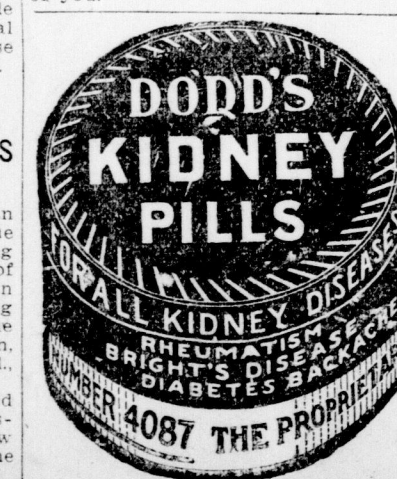

YOUTHS "PACKING" GUN REMANDED TO JAIL

Queen City Trio Caught Riding C. P. R. Flat Car in London Yards.

Three youths from Toronto, Chas. E. Murphy, 12 Peel street; John Carr, 58 Beaufield avenue, both 15, and Percy Johnston, 15, of 153 Ligon street, were caught riding a C. P. R. flat car in the local yards at 3:30 yesterday afternoon by C. P. R. Constable Frarey, and were remanded to jail for a week when they appeared before Magistrate Graydon this morning.

Murphy had a loaded revolver in his possession when arrested which was confiscated by the court. Questioned by the magistrate, he stated he had been trying to sell it. All three boys stated they had never been in police court before.

"You ought to be fined for trespassing on railway property and convicted of having a revolver," stated Mr. Graydon. "However, I will remand you to jail for a week and in the meantime you can get in touch with your parents. It is a dangerous thing to have young men like you travelling round on trains. I don't like this revolver at all, otherwise I would have a favorable impression of you."

STEAMER METAGAMA ARRIVES AT ST. JOHNS

C. P. O. S. Liner Is Forced To Beach as Result of Collision.

Canadian Press Despatch. St. Johns, Nfld., June 19.—Badly holed as a result of a collision with the Italian steamer Clara Camus off Cape Race today, the C. P. O. S. liner Metagama reached the port of St. Johns just before dusk. The big liner had a very heavy port to port as she came through the narrows, and showed every sign of being in great difficulty.

With the water entering her hold gaining on the pumps, the captain was forced to beach the vessel on a shoal near the drydock. A telegram to New York from Montreal stated that the ship was struck in a fog by the Camus at 8:45 a.m., and her bunkers were flooded. Seven hundred passengers were aboard.

CHILD IMPROVED.

George Burgess, 140 Regent street, who has been seriously ill in St. Joseph's Hospital following injuries received when struck by an auto last Thursday, is very much improved today.

Postal Strike Not Warranted.

Public sentiment toward the postal workers will combine sympathy and disapproval.

There will be, on the one hand, sympathy with the determination to correct injustices which may exist in the wage scale. And on the other hand will be sharp disapproval of the methods employed in precipitating the present strike.

It is possible to imagine circumstances in which a general strike of postal employees might be justifiable. If every attempt at negotiation failed, if flat refusal met each request for concession, if repeated warnings were answered only by indifference and discourtesy, then one might understand that the postal employees as a last and desperate resort would believe a strike to be the only course remaining. And one might admit that such strike, entered into with full realization of its grave consequences to the Canadian people, would be defensible.

But these circumstances do not exist. The government has invited and expected continuance of negotiation; concessions which leave the salary bonus temporarily unaltered have been offered; there has been neither indifference nor discourtesy; and there has been failure on the part of the strike leaders to give reasonable warning of the drastic step they have taken. The sudden strike order appears to be the result of hot-headed impulse in Toronto rather than of thoughtful judgment, and the best proof of that hot-headedness is the muddled state of affairs in which postal officials left their followers on Wednesday night. For twelve hours the great body of postal workers who are most vitally concerned in the dispute had no definite information of developments.

Notice of the intention to strike at 5 o'clock on June 18 was served in a letter addressed to the premier, and delivered just prior to the negotiations looking to a settlement of the trouble. It is hard to conceive that the workers themselves would sanction a course that would omit negotiation and conferences, even if they were protracted and unsatisfactory, in an effort to arrive at some decision that would make a strike unnecessary.

The conferences at Ottawa were making progress. There had been some concessions made. These were:

- (1) Where any postal employee under the new wage schedule will receive less than his present salary, plus the 1924-25 bonus, the bonus will be continued until the salary revision for the entire service has been consummated.
- (2) When the revision is complete, opportunity will be given to postal employees, or to employees in any other government department, to present their objections to the new schedule to a sub-committee of the government, and to discuss such matters of differences as fully as may be necessary to insure a thorough understanding.

Those offers represent progress; they show that none of the postal workers would suffer a decrease from what is at present being paid. After the whole salary schedule of the civil service had been revised, the door was still open for postal employees again to bring their case before a sub-committee of the government.

There is no desire on the part of the public to see any employee of the government working for a wage that is not a fair wage, and if there are men in the postoffice department who are not getting a fair day's pay for a fair day's work the public will be interested in seeing that they get adequate consideration. But the leaders of the present strike by their unreasonable impulsiveness have lost for postal workers the public sympathy which might have supported them.

Motor Accidents in London.

While attention is frequently drawn to the number of automobile accidents, and the seriousness of them, in outside points, it is well for London to look over its own record since the first of May. Police records show that there have been fifty-seven accidents reported to them in that time, and that does not by any means cover the entire list, for there are many cases of which the police never hear.

Serious injury has resulted in several of these cases, and deaths have resulted in two instances. A number of cases are recorded where children have run out on the road in the path of an approaching car. Parents have a duty in warning children and doing all in their power to keep them from the streets, but in spite of all this it remains a fact that children will continue to run out on the streets at the most unexpected times and places.

In trying to apportion blame between the child who runs on the road and the driver who runs into him, we have to deal with two different quantities, one of them a responsible adult and the other an unthinking child. The driver must assume a good deal of the responsibility of taking care of the child that is not old enough to take care of itself. It is a reasonable attitude for the driver to take.

London is not making a particularly good record in the matter of safe driving. There is still a decided indisposition on the part of many drivers to refuse to slow up at street intersections. Many of these are so constructed that it is impossible to see if another car is going to reach the crossing at the same time. If every car driver in the city would make it a set rule that he or she would play safe and eliminate the dangerous practice of taking a chance we would soon see a lowering in the number of accidents on the streets of London. Otherwise we will build up a record that will not be pleasant for anybody to look on.

A Voice Crying in the Wilderness.

Roch Lanctot (Liberal) suggested in the Commons that senators and members of the Commons might have their indemnities cut $1,500 a year to make possible more pay for the postal workers.

Not a single voice from any of the three parties in the House called out "Hear, hear." Nor was there any thumping on desks or singing "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

Investigation shows that the soundproof walls of the Senate kept the remark from penetrating to that chamber.

Nor can it be learned that representatives came trooping to the door of the members' room following the session to tell him he was on the right track and pledging support.

Mr. Lanctot's remark was as the seed, in the parable of the sower, which fell on stony ground.

A Start in the Right Direction.

London City Council is doing a good piece of work in improving the covered accommodation on the market. We want to let the people of the district know that Londoners want them to trade here, and one of the best means is to make conditions favorable for them carrying on their business of selling farm produce.

The idea of a rest room should not be allowed to lapse. It is a need now and it has been such for years.

As the development of better marketing facilities increases, an attack should be made on that old root cellar known as the butter and egg market, where ventilation is at a premium and conditions generally very undesirable.

It would be good business in every way for London to keep on with a definite policy of market improvement. It should be said of this city that it has the best, most commodious and cleanest market in Western Ontario. It is the place where city and country really meet, so let the meeting place be clean and wholesome, in keeping with the quality of the produce that comes from this district.

Give Them Real Run For Their Money

Hon. Charles McCrea, minister of mines, sets a big future for mineral production in Ontario. He has been in England, and is assured that British capital is available for the development of mining land in Northern Ontario.

The fact that the world's greatest gold mine is in our own province should be enough to convince prospectors, mining engineers and capitalists that there is more of the same ore in that country.

While the world decreased its production of gold 26 per cent since 1915, the increase in Ontario's output has been 156 per cent, and that increase is not only being maintained, but added to.

Despite all the mineral wealth that has been taken from the north, not 10 per cent of the area has even been carefully investigated, and much less than that thoroughly developed.

Residents of Western Ontario have often made the mistake of thinking that we are Ontario. We speak in terms of farming, dairying, manufacturing, and conclude that we have touched the high spots as far as our chief sources of wealth are concerned.

But when we come to mining, well, that is something that is being carried on away up in that land called Northern Ontario. Yet it is not dangerously prophetic to look forward to the time when that land, many times greater in area than the older section of the province, will be a source of wealth greater than anything we have experienced before.

There is nickel and copper, iron ore, silver, gold and cobalt. Of these there can be no doubt. It remains for development to show what else the country holds.

If British capital is to come in and develop the mineral wealth of Northern Ontario, the way must be cleared so that those putting up the capital can get a real run for their money, and it is in this particular that the government can use its offices to advantage. British investors know there is an element of speculation in mining development; they have been digging holes all over the world too long to be ignorant of that fact. When they are prepared to start work in Northern Ontario there should be no other unfavorable qualities added to that of fair speculation. The whole province is interested in the matter.

Note and Comment.

When a horse gets sick it stops eating. Hence that phrase, "horse sense."

When the king gets a look at the 135 Canadian editors now scouring his country he'll be convinced that the pen is mightier than the sword.

There have been a number of stories to the effect that 13 is not an unlucky number. Consider the case of an Advertiser man who speeded on the 13th of June and paid $13 for so doing.

Toronto dentist was fined $2,300 for the way he did some work. All of which goes to show that the dentist has got to have a care when he opens his mouth and puts his pick axe and derrick to work.

Listowel businessmen, as represented in their Chamber of Commerce, have been making a trip through the towns and cities of this section. It was a happy invasion that they conducted, coming as they did to see what other places were doing and in turn tell something of their own town. London was pleased to meet them, and did what it could to make them welcome. As a result Listowel knows a lot more about London, and Listowel thinks a good deal more of Listowel.

Word has reached London confirming the appointment of W. J. May as district superintendent of the postal service. Mr. May has been acting in this capacity for some weeks and his confirmation comes at a troubled time, when a man of his experience and resource is needed to keep the mail service moving. Along with other postal officials he has done creditable service in trying to serve the public at a time when service is needed.

Intimates You Have Never Met

There's the Pirate, for instance. Outside of a novel, not one in a million of you ever saw one. And we are familiar with many persons we never met, never will meet.

Showing how much of our life is literary, scenic and fanciful, and how little real.

Did you ever see a Miser? Honestly. A real Miser?

We all know just how he looks—his shabby coat, his claw-like fingers eager to grasp gold and handle money bags, his greedy eyes, his bent form.

But it's in books you saw him, or on the stage. You never saw him in flesh and blood.

Of course, Millionaires are thick—theoretically—with such a one; but not the average man.

And the King. He is as familiar as the grocer. You know him—crown, sceptre, robe, throne and all. If he were to walk into your room you would recognize him instantly. But you never saw one in your life.

And if you don't hurry you never will see one. They are thinning rapidly.

And the Millionaire.

Of course Millionaires are thick—theoretically. America is supposed to be full of them. They crowd the subway.

But as a matter of fact, and between us, and cross your heart, how many regular Millionaires do you know?

Of course they are plenty. But do you actually know one man who is worth a million dollars in real money?

You hate them naturally, these Millionaires. They are crowding us common folks off the earth. There ought to be a law against them, and all that.

Do you know one?

Then there's the Burglar. You know many Burglars, Gunmen and Desperadoes, but they are all in magazines and detective stories. Have you speaking acquaintance with just one regular Burglar that belongs to the Burglars' Union?

And the Poet. You know him—long hair—Windsor tie—vacant eyes—industrious mouth—and all that—but it is in print you know him.

Are you acquainted with one honest-to-goodness-meat Poet?

How many other of your intimates have you never met, or only once or twice in a lifetime?

There's the President, and the Vampire, and the Gambler, and the Society Leader, and the Beautiful Lady, and the Noted Author, and the Sea Captain, and the Esquimaux, and the Bolshevik, and the Pope, and the Notorious Criminal, and the Great Artist, and Bill Hart and Ethel Barrymore.

Of course, some of you may know some of them.

But isn't your world crowded with people you have never met?

Dan's Right of Way

Some people never seem to learn no matter how they get their bumps, that things won't always break their way in goodly portions or in lumps.

Here was Dan Grote, he drove a car of vintage of ten years ago, he used to jump upon the gas, he never thought of travelling slow.

Dan raced upon the village street, he turned the corner on one wheel, he skidded at each hitchin' post like steppin' on banana peel.

He was the most important cuss, he always had ten yards to say, as how he knew what he was doing and how he had the right-of-way.

One day Dan drove through Punkinville, his bus was rattlin' like the deuce, while Dan was poundin' straight ahead, his hoof pressed firmly on the juice.

About that time a five-ton truck was ridin' on the main street too, and at the corner where they turned Dan swore as how he'd turn there too, for "ordin' to the laws he knew he had the right-of-way for fair, he'd show that driver of the truck how he could out the village air.

They threw a pail of water then to see if Dan would breathe some more, they took a board and carted him unto the village druggist's store.

A sawbones came in on a rush, he had his tools wrapped in a sack, he stuck his fingers in Dan's eye and put a cleaver in his back. And then he turned to them around and drove 'em from the druggist's store, a-sayin' how he reckoned now that old Dan Grote won't drive no more.

He took ten splinters from his scalp, some glass he rescued from Dan's neck, he sawed a leg from off his frame, Dan was an awful lookin' wreck.

But after ten days' awful fight old Dan he blinked his eye once more, and asked just why he lay upon a bed back in the druggist's store.

They broke the news to Dan at once, just where he was and how he lay, and all Dan said was "Turn the luck, I'm sure I had the right-of-way."—ARK.

The Senate's Blunder

(From the Montreal Financial Times.)

The wisdom of the decision of the Senate at Ottawa to call Canadian Pacific Railway Company engineers as witnesses to advise it in regard to the construction of certain Canadian National Railway branch lines that will parallel C. P. R. lines already in existence may well be open to question. While it is only fair for the Senate to hear the C. P. R.'s side of the case, and while the House of Commons itself should have looked into this point before passing the branch lines, the Senate has given the impression, unfortunately, that it intends to place a good deal of emphasis, if not the weight of authority, on what the C. P. R. engineers will say. Considering the rivalry between the two systems this course has a little touch of the ridiculous, and would be paralleled by the Dominion Railway Board calling Canadian National engineers before it felt free to decide as to the merits of an application by the C. P. R. for leave to construct a branch line itself.

A WORTH-WHILE EDITORIAL

The following is an editorial from the New York World. It so forcefully takes a sordid crime story from the news columns, and makes of it a study of causes, and a challenge to people whom it holds responsible for conditions, that The Advertiser considers it worthy of publication in full.

CECELIA COONEY

FOR some months now we have been vastly entertained by the bobbed-haired bandit. Knowing nothing about her, we created a perfect story standardized according to the rules laid down by the movies and the short-story magazines. The story had, as the press agents say, everything. It had a flapper and a bandit who baffled the police; it had sex and money, crime and mystery. And then yesterday we read in the probation officer's report the story of Cecilia Cooney's life. It was not in the least entertaining. For there in the place of the dashing bandit was a pitiable girl; instead of an amusing tale, a dark and mean tragedy; instead of a lovely adventure, a terrible accusation.

In the twenty years she has lived in this city she has come at one time or another within reach of all the agencies of righteousness. Five years before she was born her father was summoned to court for drunkenness and neglect; the charities department recommended then that her older brother and sisters be committed to an institution. That did not prevent her parents bringing, with the full consent of the law, three or four more children into the world. Cecilia herself, the youngest of eight, came at four years of age into the custody of the Children's Society. Six months later, on the recommendation of the department of public charity, she was turned back to her mother, who promptly deserted her.

She was taken to Brooklyn by her aunt and for ten years or so attended parochial school. At the age of fourteen her mother brought her back to New York, took her to a furnished room, stole her clothes and deserted her. A year later, aged fifteen, Cecilia became a child-laborer in a brush factory in Brooklyn, and was associating at night with sailors picked up on the waterfront. At sixteen Cecilia was back in New York, living with her mother, working as laundress for a few months at a stretch in various hospitals. At twenty she was married, had borne a child, had committed a series of robberies, and is condemned to spend the rest of her youth in prison.

This is what twentieth-century civilization in New York achieved in the case of Cecilia Cooney. Fully warned by the behavior of her parents long before her birth, the law allowed her parents to reproduce their kind. Fully warned when she was still an infant, society allowed her to drift out of its hands into a life of dirt, neglect, dark basements, begging, stealing, ignorance, poor little tawdry excitements and twisted romance. The courts had their chance and they missed it. Charity had its chance and missed it. The church had its chance and missed it. The absent-minded routine of all that is well-meaning and respectable did not defect by an inch her inexorable progress from the basement where she was born to the jail where she will expiate her crimes and ours.

For her crimes are on our heads too. No record could be clearer or more eloquent. None could leave less room for doubt that Cecilia Cooney is a product of this city, of its neglect and its carelessness, of its indifference and its undercurrents of misery. We recommend her story to the pulpits of New York, to the school men of New York, to the law-makers of New York, to the social workers of New York, to those who are tempted to boast of its wealth, its magnificence and its power.

EXECUTIVE DETERMINED TO CONTINUE BIG STRIKE

Federation Officials Decide To Push Fight As Board Is Refused.

ONTARIO HOLDS OUT

Hamilton Back At Work,
But Other Places
Stand Firm.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, June 19.—Midnight found the executive members of the Canadian Federation of Postal Employees determined to continue the strike.

Long-distance telephone conversations with Hon. Charles Stewart, acting postmaster-general, convinced the strike leaders, they state, that there will be no speedy ending of the strike unless at terms the men here decline to accept. This is borne out by the despatches from Ottawa, that the government will not grant a board of arbitration.

Reports from Western Ontario indicate most of the strikers holding out, although Hamilton workers have decided to return, and Guelph decided not to strike. The railway mail clerks in Toronto have decided to strike, and reports from North Bay indicate the same determination.

RAILWAY CLERKS QUIET.

The railway mail clerks held a meeting in Toronto late tonight and decided to join the striking postal clerks and letter carriers at once. The meeting was attended by representatives from London district, who gave assurance that the men in London district would act in sympathy with the railway mail clerks of the Toronto district.

The headquarters of the strike committee received a phone message from the labor department at Ottawa late tonight confirming press messages to the effect that the government would not agree to the appointment of a board under the industrial disputes act to settle the dispute.
Strike officers expressed the conviction that the government's uncompromising attitude will have the effect of bringing out the staffs in the smaller towns who up to the present have remained at work.

Announcement was made at the Toronto postoffice tonight that 500
new men were taken on the staff to-

A mass meeting of postal workers

than 1,000 reaffirmed their decision to see the issue at hand through to the end in order to secure a living wage.

At a lengthy meeting of the executive committee of the Canadian Federation of Postal Employees yesterday afternoon, the following proposal was agreed upon: "In lieu of proposals of the government, received under date of June 18, 1924, to the secretary of the Canadian Federation of Postal Employees, and signed by Hon. Charles Stewart under instructions from the cabinet for the government, the postal employees ask that they be placed under the indusfar as salary schedules are concerned, and in the meantime are willing to accept the present salaries, with all benefits antedated to April 1,

Resolution Presented Before Commons Yesterday by J. F. White.

MOTHERS' CLUB ACTS

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, June 19.—A petition asking for the establishment of a central place of execution in Canada was introduced in the House of Commons this afternoon by J. F.
White, Conservative, London, on behalf of the Union Mothers' Club of that city.

Growing sentiment in favor of a central place for carrying out of death penalties has been crystallized
by the action of the London organization in bringing the matter to Parliament through Mr. White. Impetus was given the suggestion by the hanging here of the notorious Sid Murrell and Clarence Topping.

It is argued by those supporting the idea that morbid curiosity draws large numbers of people to see the death penalty carried out, and that ill effects are noticeable. It is also argued that with all executions carried out at a central point it will be possible to secure more privacy and that there will be less probability of accidents occurring in the carrying out of the order of the courts. Some contend that the erection of scaffolds and other preparations for executions have a bad effect upon inmates of jails, most of whom are incarcerated only for short terms. It is also argued that the execution in a community where an execution is to be carried out has a particularly bad effect on children.

Supporters of the centralization idea point to the fact that there has been a steadily increasing sentiment in favor of the plan, and that whenever executions have taken place in a peculiar manner, with comment unfavorable to capital punishment. It is also argued that in several of the states of the union, all death penalities are now carried out at a central point, and that the plan has met with approval very generally in each of the states where effective.

In presenting the petition for consideration of the plan, the London organization hopes to have the support of many organizations and individuals throughout the country, particularly in view of the fact that many jail officials have been open advocates of the centralization plan.

MOTOR CYCLIST HURT.

dian National Railway tracks at Jer-dan station last night, fracturing his

LEADERS IN POSTAL CRISIS.

Employees of the postal service at many points in Canada are pitting their strength against that of the Dominion government in a battle for higher wages. Under the leadership of Gordon S. Jackson of Toronto, shown on the left, head of the Canadian Postal Federation, the men have partially succeeded in crippling the postal service of Canada. On the right is shown Hon. Charles Stewart, acting postmaster-general, who is leading the government forces in a determined fight to break the strike and to keep the service intact.

FARMERS ENJOY HUNT CLUB PICNIC

Annual Event Given For Use of Land As Riding Grounds.

Farmers who gave the use of their land to the members of the Riding Club of the London Hunt and Country Club as a riding ground, were entertained at a picnic yesterday at the club. There were upwards of 500 people at the picnic which included a number of the club members.

The picnic is given each year by the riding club to show appreciation for the use of their ground. The program is arranged by the farmers and the prizes are donated by the club members. No one is allowed to win more than one prize.
There were many valuable prizes
this year including a carving set,
fishing rod, clock, vacuum bottles, china, tea set, pocket knives and baseballs.

The members of the committee
who were in charge of the picnic
are: Alex. May, Lew McCarty, Fred Gough, H. Ralph, W. Wilson, Chester Winters, John Guest, F. Malcolm, and L. Farncomb. Colonel Lawless acted as starter in all the races, and Gerald Pearson acted as judge at the finish line.

Race Results.

Hurdle race—S. Gardener, N.
Kennedy, Walter Day.
Chum race—Mr. and Mrs. Harold nearness of summer time that was called off after several innings were played.

SIX ARE KILLED WHEN INTERURBAN HITS CAR

Auto Speeding At Sixty Miles
An Hour Crashes Into Car.

Special to The Advertiser.
Toledo, O., June 19.—Six persons were instantly killed when the auto in which they were riding was hit by an interurban car bound to Detroit
this morning at Hickory Corners,
just outside of Genoa.

Two men, two women and two children were killed.
The dead are: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Peterson; Mrs. S. L. Hendrickson; Mrs. Emil Hendrickson and two small children, one aged two years, and the other an infant. All lived near Sandusky.

A witness said the automobile was being driven westbound at terrific speed. It suddenly turned into a side road at the Burkett farm.

The interurban motorist had no opportunity to stop. The heavy car crashed into the automobile, demolishing it. So great was the impact that the bodies of four of the victims were stripped of their clothing.

An eye witness, near whose home
the crash occurred, said the automobile was travelling at miles an hour when the accident occurred.
The interurban car crew, after seeing that the bodies were taken to the Genoa undertaker, proceeded into Toledo.

BRITISH COMMERCIAL CONDITIONS IMPROVED

Increase Shown in Import and Export of Raw Materials.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, June 19.—When introducing the board of trade estimates in the House of Commons today, Sidney Webb, president of the board of trade, said that trade conditions are considerably more promising than at the same date last year. There had been a wonderful increase of imports, mainly of the principal raw materials
on which British commerce depended.
Exports also had increased. Coal and steel production in Britain had reached pre-war figures.
Lloyd George expressed the opinion that prospects for a settlement of

MUNICIPAL FRUIT STORE SUGGESTED

Free Trade vs. Protection Argued Strenuously by Finance Committee.

SUBMIT TO COUNCIL

Free Trade versus Protection was argued just as strenuously last night by the finance committee on the question of allowing foreign fruit to be sold on the local market as was ever done by Ottawa statesmen. The market bylaw was under discussion by the committee and the merits of these two political gospels were analysed and dissected with the utmost care and the minutest detail.
Chairman Douglass took the role of Mackenzie King and voted for a measure of free trade so that the consumer, who in this case is the London taxpayer, might have cheaper fruit and therefore better health.
While Aldermen Drake and Smith, in the role of Meighens, argued in behalf of rigid protection for the London grocers.

No Foreign Fruit.
The Retail Grocers' Association of London sent a letter to the committee asking that no foreign fruit be sold on the market. Ald. Douglass, who has led through the question of the mar-

One Fish Caught Entices Another

Canadian Press Despatch.
Brandon, Man., June 19.—Some big fish are being caught in the Assiniboine River in this district.
Yesterday an angler caught a pickering and was in the act of hauling in his catch when a big muskallonge swallowed the pickering, hook and all, resulting in the angler getting two fish with one bait. The muskallonge, which is being mounted, is forty inches long, and weighed 17½ pounds.

ket bylaw, held to the slogan "what is best for the individual housewife is best for the city of London," declared that the more fruit that came into the market, the better for the citizen in the matter of price, and he was backed by a grocer, who added that last summer fine strawberries were brought into the market from the St. Catharines district, that were offered at about 18 cents a pound, at a time when the local berries were going at 30 cents, and that the local grocers had objected at that time.
Ald. Gordon Drake and Edwin Smith, on the other hand, held that the grocer was entitled to protection.

Douglass Finds Solution.
Finally Ald. Douglass suggested a solution of the difficulty in the formation of a municipal fruit store to operate on the market, just as there is already a municipal fish store. The matter will come up before the council, together with the other recommendations of the committee. The committee believed that no empty vehicles of any kind should be allowed to be parked on the market square at any time unless the owners are in charge of them, but, after some discussion, it was decided to let the matter rest in the hands of the market clerk. It was stated by several users of the market that the clerk always moved an empty vehicle away to make room for a loaded one, and this met the objections of the committee in this respect.

The city solicitor will be asked to word a clause in the bylaw which will allow no one except established grocers and butchers to buy on the open market for resale on the open market before 11 o'clock in the morning. This is a clause aimed at the huckster to prevent him buying for resale on the open market in direct competition with the housewife in the early forenoon.

The committee will attend a Saturday morning market soon to witness the antics of the auctioneers, who according to Alderman Edwin Smith "breach a regular sermon to attract the crowds before they start to sell, and they make the place a disgrace."

Tecs Exorcise Jinx Over Flint Vehics For 2-1 Victory In First of Series

ACHENBACH LAYS HOME LOT GHOST WITH 2 TO 1 VICTORY

Beattymen Cluster Three of Six Hits in Second To Win.

TIGHT MOUND DUEL

Lefty Achenbach broke his home lot jinx yesterday afternoon, beating the league leading Vehics 2 to 1 in a tight hurling duel with Eddie Mann, who with Laine of Bay City, shares the strike-out record of fourteen for this season. Not only did Achenbach chase his jinx, but he maintained the away the Londoners have held over the Vehics.

The game was billed as twilight, but it was something deeper than that—something like a rainy sunset. The Beattymen clustered three of their six knocks in the second inning. Nason doubled to start the ome, he stole third and came in on Tice's single to left. This upset Eddie Mann and he walked Naley. Gehring tapped a punt toward third. Morehart nipped a steal at the plate, but on Effert's choice Tice scored. Gehring being knocked off at second.

After this it developed into a game of squeezing a man to second, but they were either killed on choices or attempted steals until the sixth, when Gehring fooled Morehart's nipped ball. Morehart went through the needless performance of stealing second, for on a count of three and two, Regan tried to right. He succumbed there as Achenbach whiffed Laine the second of three times. The former Mint League leading slugger swung at nothing in particular.

In the eighth runner singled through the infield with two gone, but Achenbach, in the fast gathering darkness, whiffed Regan.

Tice, with one gone in the ninth, saved a hit with a brilliant catch of Dodson's drifting line, but John was out a moment later attempting a thrower.

With two gone on infield outs in the eighth, Beatty attempted to forestall possible danger by singling, but was out stealing.

Cut six slices of day-old bread half an inch thick and trim off the brown crust; toast a light brown on both sides. Beat three eggs with one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and slowly add two cupfuls of milk. Twenty minutes before serving strain the egg mixture in a shallow pan, lay in the slices of toast and turn often for ten minutes. Heat two tablespoonfuls of butter in an omelet pan and when hot lay in the pieces of toast; cook five minutes or until a nice brown underneath, and pour the balance of the egg mixture slowly over the slices of toast. Turn the toast and cook a nice brown underneath. Sprinkle with a few drops of lemon juice, place on a hot platter and place a spoonful of plum jam on each piece of toast.

Plum Jam.
Cut in halves and remove the pits from five pounds of damson plums; place in a preserving kettle, barely cover with water and simmer until the skins are broken; add five pounds of sugar and cook until thick. Pack in clean hot jars, seal and store in a cool, dry place.

Palace Grill Salad.
Cut celery hearts in match-shaped pieces; there should be three cupfuls; add to them half a cupful of chopped pimiento and half a cupful of mayonnaise, mix well, add four tablespoonfuls of salted whipped cream and mound on lettuce-covered plates; sprinkle with finely chopped green peppers and serve very cold.

The speculative side of the market was again for the high point, but retreated again before the close, which was 1/2¢ lower for July and October contracts. The lower price was not very much of an advance of 8 1/4¢ in Argentine wheat. Exports were reported also on a small scale only, and local traders have become somewhat nervous at the rapid advance in prices, but, with the uncertainty of the future, it is probable that it is felt that foreign purchases will develop on all recessions, and the situation warrants till higher levels. The market between Argentina and the oats and barley, with prices at 1 1/2¢ to 1 3/4¢ higher. Rye was quiet and unchanged.

July, 4c for October and 2½c for November.
There was practically nothing doing in cash wheat and the coarse grains.

CANADIANS BACK FROM THE STATES

Unemployment Sends Men Home From the American Side.

Special to The Advertiser.
 Sarnia, June 19.—A considerable number of Canadians are returning from the United States now on account of adverse employment conditions in that country. A number of these are Sarnians and former residents of this city. Employment Officer W. H. Lott stated today that they return at a bad time, as with 120 registered as unemployed here, the prospects of employment in the city are not bright.
 The death occurred at the family residence at Bridgetown yesterday of Mary Frances, wife of R. B. Brown, well-known Bridgetown storekeeper. Mrs. Brown had been ill for some time. The funeral will be held privately at the late residence of the family at 10 p.m. on Friday.
 A capacity crowd on the Northern Navigation Company steamer "Thousand Islands" took part in a moonlight excursion trip on the St. Clair River, receipts of which will be turned to the crippled children's fund. Those wishing to stop off at the village on July 3 to answer a charge of exceeding the speed limit. The charge is denied, and the Sarnia Auto Club has taken up the case and costs.

Detroit Man Spends 24 Hours in Jail With Injury.

Special to The Advertiser.
 Detroit, June 19.—Thomas Golding, 34, of 215 Winder street, passed 24 hours in jail on a drunk charge, although his left leg was broken.
 Judge Christopher E. Stein today ordered Police Lieutenant Thomas Lalley to investigate.
 Patrolman Charles Lane said when he arrested Golding he didn't know the prisoner's leg was broken. "I thought he was just drunk," the policeman told Judge Stein.
 Today, when Golding was called to go to court, he was unable to move. An investigation revealed the injury.

O. T. A. FINE

Special to The Advertiser.
 Blenheim, June 19.—Wm. Watt, a Detroit, halted in Blenheim on his way east in his auto, and gave evidence of the presence of liquor to Constable Walter Patten, who searched his car, finding a large bottle of Old Crow whiskey, which had the seal broken and part of the contents gone. A charge was laid in police court of having liquor in a public place.
 On hearing the defendant's story that his physician had directed the use of liquor, Crown Attorney H. D. Smith consented to an amended charge of having liquor, and the minimum fine was imposed by Magistrate John Whittington, with $22.

ALIBI IS OFFERED IN ROBBERY CASE

Two Swear That Lew Austin Was in States, Not in Mount Forest.

Special to The Advertiser.
 Guelph, June 19.—Counsel for the defence introduced two witnesses at the trial of Thomas Austin, charged with breaking and entering and the theft of $37,500 in bonds from the Royal Bank at Mount Forest on December 22, 1922.

Mrs. Minerva Jane Austin, the defendant's mother, swore that her son was at home on December 12, 1922, and Miss Fannie Calvert of Memphis, Tenn., swore that Austin was at the house of her sister in that city two days later, at the time the prosecution claimed he was in Mount Forest. At the afternoon session before Judge Spotton, three members of the bank staff, including the manager, Robert A. Powrie, were examined. Powrie identified the bonds, amounting to $37,500, found on Austin when he was arrested in New York, as being part of the stolen booty. Evidence to this effect was also given by Police Captain J. J. Gegan and Detective Jas. McCoy of New York, who effected the arrest.

Altogether 18 witnesses were examined, several of whom, although they thought Austin was the man they had seen in Mount Forest nine days before the robbery, would not swear to his identification.

Austin was arrested with a man named Nolan in New York on December 27, 1922, but was later permitted to go. He was extradited from Little Rock, Ark. in March, and has been confined in the county jail here ever since. The trial was adjourned at 5 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. W. S. Middleboro, K.C., M.P., Owen Sound, is prosecuting, associated with him being J. N. Kearns, crown attorney for Wellington County. Nicol Jeffery, K.C., is counsel for the defence.

been one of the stellar events of every season, are busy with their arrangements for their big excursion to be held at Port Stanley on July 16. The grocers are introducing numerous novel and humorous story events and in addition have a big free prize distribution that is certain to catch favor with their patrons. The grocers have already set aside groceries to the value of more than $50 to be apportioned in eight lots for as many lucky holders of tickets to be distributed free to all who join in the grocers' excursion. In order to avoid duplication in the distribution of tickets the grocers have arranged to have one free ticket given to every passenger carried to Port Stanley on the L. & P. S. trains that day. Each holder will write his name and address on the ticket and deposit it in a box for selected musicians will provide the program on Invererie Heights at 3:30 o'clock.

Excellent Concert.
 A concert of rare excellence is promised with vocal interludes by Keith McDonald, baritone, and Theodore Gray's quartet.

The great Masonic picnic to be held at Port Stanley on Wednesday next is already an assured success. The program developed by the Masons of St. Thomas and district, under whose auspices the picnic is being held, is a brilliant and novel and amusing events that are sure to provide a great day's fun for the thousands of visitors from all parts of the Middlesex and Elgin who are expected. The Masons of London and district are participating by special invitation of the St. Thomas lodges. All who are able to do so have been especially urged by the officers of the picnic to come to Port Stanley by train as it is feared that the large auto parking space will be overtaken by the influx from East and West Elgin.

The rules this season are substantially the same as those of last year. Classes are passed upon by the judges as in the ordinary way at other baby shows, and at the conclusion the spectators by their applause select the champion of the day, who receives a trophy or other valuable prize. But each of the first prize winners in all of the events is entitled by his victory to go through to the finals to be held on Labor Day. On that day all of the first prize winners in all of the events are entered in the big race for the Grand Championship of Western Ontario and the $500 capital prize to be awarded the baby adjudged by the public to be the best presented at Port Stanley this year.

WANT AD TIPS

"MAKE ME AN OFFER"

The etiquette of trade gives to the seller the first overture—the setting of a price on the offered article or service. This suits sellers in most, but not all situations. The best plan for the seller sometimes is to put in his Want Ad, instead of a price, the invitation, "Make me an offer." This will often produce a sale.

"Make me an offer" was the solution, for example, of the owner of a stock of second-hand lumber. He was going out of business, and wished to sell the entire lot. Buying the material, he planned to sell in small lots to farmers and others, and he proceeded along this line for several months, when circumstances compelled him to close out the enterprise.

A very little investigation sufficed to show that he had something to sell which it was difficult to sell in a hurry. A "special sale," through Want Ads, to retail customers, had reduced the stock, but left it still large. The retail market, the owner felt, temporarily, was saturated. Other buyers of a stock of second-hand lumber he could not find—until he used a "Make me an offer" Want Ad.

In the language of trade, "Make me an offer," usually means that the seller is anxious to sell, perhaps must sell, and will take the best that he can get. Three Want Ad readers sized the situation up thus: One was a retired farmer, intrigued by the thought of a little side speculation. Another was a blacksmith, who believed he was situated to sell the material out. A third was an auctioneer.

This general method is one to try after others have failed.

You have something which is difficult to sell quickly. Attempts to find a buyer have failed. Then you use a Want Ad containing the request, "Make me an offer." You find buyers you did not suspect existed.

The fact that they are keen for a bargain will not seriously disturb you, since you face an emergency.

Probably you're headed for the lakeside or country for the welcome week-end outing. Possibly vacation time is beginning with you and the most important things you must consider after locating your "perfect spot" are the clothes you will take with you.

Now Comes the Time for Beautiful White Silks for Cooler Wear

Most any silk in white has a charm while new, but what about the washing of it? Has it lost that charm of beauty and finish or retained it? Here are fashions newest for summer wear—white silks that, apart from newness of creation, are silks really made to withstand washing, entirely satisfactory to the wearer.

And others still lower in price.

BEAUTIFUL WHITE MATERIALS

For vacation wear, lovely are the dainty white fabrics, so varied in weave and texture, cool and inviting for pretty summer frocks. The materials shown for this season's white dress are so different, too; none of the stiff, starched feeling, but as pretty a drape you could wish in these Crepes, Voiles, Marocains, Ratines, Broadcloths, Linen, etc. Many have a mixture of "Rayon" (artificial silk) in stripe, or check, which adds to the smartness of the material.
