Tuxes and Tails Plea For Formal

The Social Committee is endeavouring to bring even greater sophistication to the "Conversazione" next week with a plea to students to shed their UNB jackets for formal dances.

Miss Carol Ann Brewer, Committee chairman has issued an appeal to "all the guys to send home for all their tuxes, tails, dark suits or other such formal attire." Miss Brewer made it clear that no one would be refused admission to the dance owing to attire, but it is understood that corduroys are undesirable.

The Con, to be held on March 18, is traditionally the last big fling of the year. The Committee have also asked for volunteers to help with the decorations. Those interested should stop in at the gym any evening between now and the dance.

Open House Policy Success At Aitken

Unlike Jones House, the authorities at Aitken House decided to leave all the doors open on all the rooms. Result — the best dance to date in the Spring Term. Music supplied by the "Swingin' Mayor of Milltown", Buffy Egan and his Legionaires, a production of a sound so big that if you shut your eyes its—yes, it's Goodman. And for the intermission show, they had no dancing girls, but entertainment that was so lively, nobody cared about dancing girls. Entertainment featuring Alden Appleby with his guitar and voice, the Aitken Trio, whose voices seemed better than ever, and yes—the hit of the show, UNB's own Colin B. Mackay presenting David (Fluster) Folster with a dead horse in honour of his ill-fated sleigh ride. The decorations—the Mardi Gras Theme complete with tunnel of love. To summarize: music splendid—entertainment sizzling—decorations superb—the whole dance:—
WOW.

CANE CUTTERS— NOT PROFS.

"These" are a couple of sugar cane cutters fresh from the tropics—not two professors from the University," is what one of the actresses says about the two roughnecks in Summer of the Seventeenth Doll. This is the Drama Society play which has its first night this Saturday in Memorial Hall and will be seen again on Monday and Tuesday.

"It's just an ordinary little room that's a hell of a lot worse for wear." Already the stage of Mem Hall has been transformed into a scene of a room in a small Australian town. This weekend the hall which usually echoes with a lecture in first year biology will sound instead with the noise of drunken argument.

The story revolves around two cane-cutters (Walt Learning and Mike Gordon) who come out of the bush to spend their summer with two women (Sandie Kilburn and Anneke Deichmann). Also involved are the elderly Emma (Joyce Campion) and the girl next door (Wendy Tidmarsh). The part of the young upstart Dowd who shows the other two men they "ain't seventeen any more", is played by Jerry Scarfe. The show is directed by Professor Alvin Shaw. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

The Summer of the Seventeenth Doll will be produced in Moncton following its run on campus. If it is as successful as a couple of recent UNB plays, it will be the third in a trio which have been performed in the Dominion Drama Festival, being held this year in Vancouver, B.C.

CORNER STONE LAYING MARKS FOUNDER'S DAY

by GORDON HOWSE

Premier Hugh John Flemming laid the cornerstone of the New Arts Building during Founder's Day ceremonies. Premier Fleming and Louis J. Robichaud, Leader of the Opposition addressed the crowd gathered for the memorable event.

Dr. Colin B. Mackay speaking prior to the cornerstone laying announced that this would be one of six buildings to be completed in the next two years.

The primary Founder's Day proceedings took place later in the evening at Memorial Hall. The Academic Procession preceded introductory remarks by Dr. Mackay and payment of the Quit Rent.

The chair was taken by the Honourable J. Leonard O'Brien, Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick and Visitor to the University on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen.

The Founder's Day address was delivered by Mr. Grattan O'Leary, President of the Ottawa Journal. Mr. O'Leary was introduced by Dr. Desmond Pacey, Chairman of the Founder's Day Committee.

Mr. O'Leary, in his thought provoking speech claimed that basic education in Canada was weak and that education was not teaching us enough about life.

Mr. O'Leary charged that many Canadian newspapers, while better than their predecessors were being published only for entertainment, "the circus mind", that these papers were less concerned with the anatomy of politics than the anatomy of Brigitte Bardot.

Striking further at newspapers, the former New Brunswick paperman claimed that many papers were "confusing neutrality with independence". They were not taking sides on issues that were vitally important to the public.

Mr. O'Leary then touched on the topic of Maritime representation in Parliament. He said, "it is not strong enough and is not being heard in the House of Commons the way it should be". Stronger voices that were listened to could be one of the cures for the economic troubles that plague this region.

The speaker was thanked by Ted Boswell, retiring president of the Students' Representative Council.

Sir James Dunn Foundation Establishes Law Scholarship

The Sir James Dunn Foundation has established scholarships in law at the University of New Brunswick. This benefaction was announced by the Senate of the University following its mid-winter meeting Wednesday. The first scholarships will be awarded by the Foundation for the 1960-61 academic year. The amount of each scholarship is to be $1,500 and the maximum number to be awarded in any one academic year is seven. Each scholarship may be renewed for the second and third year of the course in law.

The Sir James Dunn Law Scholarships are open to any qualifying student in Canada who is in a position to study law at the University of New Brunswick. Applications are to be filed with the dean of the faculty of law prior to May 1, 1960.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Ivan C. Rand, a former member of the Supreme Court of Canada and now dean of the faculty of law at the University of Western Ontario, has consented to act as chairman of the UNB selection committee. Acting with Mr. Justice Rand will be Hon. J. B. McNair and Hon. J. E. Michaud, both Chief Justices of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick; Hon. R. G. L. Fairweather, Q.C., Attorney-General of New Brunswick; Prof. W. F. Ryan, Q.C., dean of the University of New Brunswick faculty of law; and Kenneth C. Irving of Saint John. Prof. G. V. LaForest will act as secretary to the committee.

The President of the University, Dr. Colin B. Mackay, speaking on behalf of the Senate, said: "This magnificent gift will enable the University of New Brunswick to offer scholarships in law as fine as those presently existing at any Canadian university. It will enable us to attract outstanding students to our campus in Fredericton, and will assist very materially in strengthening this important faculty of the University. I am confident that this gift will mark a significant turning-point in the development of legal education in New Brunswick."

Panel Discussion

Highlighting the Founder's Day program was a panel discussion involving several prominent individuals who presented their views on "The Maritimes in Confederation."

Panelists were Grattan O'Leary, President of the Ottawa Journal; Brigadier Michael Wardell, editor and publisher of the Fredericton Daily Gleaner and Atlantic Advocate; the Honourable Gordon Fairweather, Attorney General of New Brunswick; David M. Dickson, Secretary of the New Brunswick Liberal Association; and David Fairbairn, Brunswickian columnist and senior Arts student.

Professor W. S. MacNutt of the Department of History acted as moderator for the lively, informal session.

Each panelist presented his personal collection of causes and cures of Maritime economic ills, seemingly dependent upon his political leanings or how much of an argument he wished to create.

An example of this situation occurred when Mr. O'Leary, delving into the history of Confederation described it as a "minor miracle", Mr. Fairweather called it a "major miracle", and "Hotbed" author Dave Fairbairn delegated Confederation to the "major sin" class.

The main discussion centred around the economics of the Maritimes. Brigadier Wardell strongly advocated that: "the economy of the Maritimes should emphatically be on the same level as the rest of Canada." Speaking later, Wardell re-emphasized parity with at least all the provinces except Ontario and British Columbia.

Mr. O'Leary disagreed profoundly with the Fredericton publisher, saying that it was not possible geographically to achieve parity. He stated further that, "If I were the Premier of New Brunswick, I would demand a larger share of the tax rentals."

Dave Fairbairn expounding on his claim that Confederation was a "major sin" for the Maritimes stated that Upper Canada was taking advantage of the Maritimes and any other alternative to the present situation would be better. He suggested that if the four Atlantic provinces joined with the U.S. then they would be better off.

Mr. O'Leary described Fairbairn's statements as "monstrous nonsense" and felt that the Maritimes could not exist as a separate state.

O'Leary touched on two problems that are probably at the very crux of the matter. The Dean of the Ottawa Press Gallery claimed that the Maritimes are not sending representatives to Ottawa that are being "heard", and secondly, "There is too much inclination by Maritimers to let others do something for you."

"Hill billy"

Two events occurred on the UNB campus last week which may prove to have long range influence upon student activity and expression. The first occurred last Wednesday evening when outgoing SRC President, Ted Boswell, handed over the reins of office to his newly elected successor, Steve Hart. The second was the address by Mr. Grattan O'Leary, noted Canadian journalist and special speaker at the annual Founder's Day ceremonies.

In delivering his summation of the year's undergraduate activity to the outgoing body, President Boswell stated that the current council was one which had carried out a programme of reform. He called attention to many student organizations who had performed a fine task and had "done much to leave apathy behind". Projecting into the rapidly expanding period of growth for UNB of the near future, Mr. Boswell predicted the development of an increased atmosphere of impersonality and a coming change in the structure of student affairs. Such a change would lead to the establishment of an executive council on campus, a nucleus composed of leaders representing the various student organizations, to formulate a composite outlook and plan of student administration.

Speaking during the Founder's Day events, Grattan O'Leary, in presenting his views on the controversial subject of Maritime rights, stated that he felt the Maritime Provinces must fight for Maritime rights, but in the proper perspective. "The view of the Maritimes in the Canadian Parliament is not strong enough," he stated, "for the voters must pick people who will fight for Maritime rights on a reasonable basis, and concentrate on getting the best brains in Parliament to present practical opinions and to act on them, or else remain a brand of 'hill-billy' looking with envy upon his neighbours". "For the cause to be heeded", he warned, "people of character, a conscience, and ability must be chosen within the existing framework of government".

There is a striking parallel between the situation existing within the student body of UNB, the most rapidly expanding university in the Maritimes, and upon the adventurous plan upon which this political area of Canada is embarking. Like the cause for Maritime rights, are the students of UNB eager to set out on an intelligent and necessary path of adjustment within the student administration, an adjustment essential with the present University expansion programme, or are we to remain proverbial "hill billys"?

The achievements and constitutional reform of the SRC during recent years have indeed boosted student interest concerning events outside the lecture hall. The results are to be seen today reflected in the retiring council. But, the situation cannot and will not remain static. An aggressive plan to establish a smoothly functioning body of student executives is called for now. The responsibility for such a body rests with the present student population "up the hill". It is futile to complacently wait until the situation is out of hand before action is taken. The establishment of such a council is needed soon. It is the obligation and duty of the present council to choose people of character, conscience and ability to see that this is done.

Mr. Michael T. Nyenhuis
UNB Chairman
World Refugee Year Committee

Dear Mr. Nyenhuis:

I would like to commend the several student organizations which this year have banded together to focus attention on WORLD REFUGEE YEAR.

We all know of the tragic conditions under which many of the world refugees have been forced to live for a number of years and it is my hope that the members of this University will give their good support to the student organizations on our campus which are co-operating in this international project.

Yours most sincerely,

Colin B. Mackay

'Man Shall Live By Bread Alone'

The Atlantic Regional Conference of WUS held at Mount Allison University, agreed that Maritime universities should compete to raise the most "per capita" for the World Refugee Year: Canadian University Campaign.

The amount for each university will be obtained by dividing the total amount it has raised up to 10 pm on Friday, March 18, by the number of full time students and faculty members of that university.

The local committee for World Refugee Year has decided to accept the challenge, and hopes that all students will uphold the honour of UNB. All donations from UNB students will go towards the work of clearing Refugee camps in Europe; none will go to the student refugees in Algeria, Hong Kong and Korea as previously reported in the Brunswickan.

On Wednesday there will be placed in the Arts, Chemistry and Engineering Buildings and the Student Centre, collection boxes into which students wishing to make donations to World Refugee Year can put their money. On Wednesday at noon the cafeteria will serve a Refugee meal consisting of soup and black bread which will be sold to students at nominal cost. Students are asked to put the difference between the amount of money that their meal regularly costs and the amount that they will pay for the Refugee Meal, in a donations box to be placed on a table in the cafeteria.

Seat For Student

VANCOUVER (CUP)—Out of the series of soap box speeches sponsored by the Student Christian Movement has come a proposal that UBC should be represented in the provincial legislature by a student.

The suggestion arose from growing discontent among students who feel that the university is not adequately represented by Provincial Attorney Robert Bonar, the present MLA for its constituency.

Allan Rimmer, initiator of the movement, lashed out against the Social Credit government claiming that it had failed to keep its

The time to seek summer employment has come again and we are proud to announce that a humanitarian fourth year forester has once more consented (reluctantly—since the last one was a complete dud) to employ an engineering student as lackey for the summer. (Artsmen are too talkative and phys.-eds too delicate).

Qualifications: Strong grounding in mathematics necessary; only oral English required. Must be tent-broken.

Duties: Bearer (of both baggage and boss), insect swatting, depth appraisal of streams (wading method), trail breaking (through wet brush), removal of kinks from chain, pencil sharpening, opening of cans (a major duty), patching of clothes and laundering of same.

Equipment Needed: Swatters of assorted sizes for mosquitoes, blackflies and no-see-ums, with club for deer flies, bottle of insect repellent (for use by forester). For everyday use bring white shirts, sports jacket, dress slacks and comfortable dress shoes for long hikes (formal attire required for evenings in camp). Must bring own detergent, laundry starch and shoe polish.

Wages: Straight commission based on insect mortality count, plus bonuses for geometricity in patching and trail swamping, and for analytical and constructive general attitude, particularly such as pencil sharpening.

DOLL IS FREE!

Six Weeks to exams! Last fling for some will be the Con. But before that there is a fling which costs students nothing at all. By agreement with the SRC all UNB students will be admitted free of charge to The Summer of the Seventeenth Doll this weekend. Showing Saturday, Monday and Tuesday at 8.15 in Memorial Hall, this play deals with guys from the Australian bush and dolls from an Aussie town. Its backyard stuff, it pulls no punches and it should be another top-notch Drama Society Production.

Last spring an Engineer wrote after A View From the Bridge that he'd been missing good stuff by not going to these plays before. Last fall there was a full house for the first night of The Mousetrap. So it will be a case of first come, first served, as far as seats go. And unlike the horses you can't lose any money on it—you don't have to pay to get in!

For Hire Now A Normal Girl

HAMILTON (CUP) — After the beatnik-for-hire craze at the University of Toronto, a McMaster co-ed inserted the following ad in the Silhouette, the campus newspaper:

"RENT A NORMAL GIRL!" Completely equipped with flats, saddle-shoes, head band, white blouses, cardigans (pink or baby blue). She giggles, blushes, says "golly" and "gee willikers". ADD ZEST TO YOUR BEATNIK PARTIES! Provides a topic of conversation and ridicule. A real square! Reasonable rates. (Chaperone must be hired as well). Decide requirements and phone — JA 7-5138 between 12-1 pm, Mondays through Fridays.

When interviewed by Silhouette reporters, Miss Jones said. "I've been thinking about this for a long time, and honestly, I don't see why this venture shouldn't be a success. For a reasonable rate, I'm willing to be embarrassed at beatnik parties".

"Of course, my chaperone must accompany me," she hastened to add. "It was really his idea in the first place. When we saw how successful the beatnik-for-hire fad was at Toronto, we decided that a similar venture in reverse might prove popular at McMaster".

The chaperone in question is Felix Barthody, third year economics, who echoed Miss Jones' initial enthusiasm.

"I think it's a great idea", he emphasized. "From what I've seen here, there is a crying need for a normal girl at McMaster. This could very well fill the gap."

"And Felicity is just the girl", he went on. "She giggles, blushes and above all is enthusiastic."

"Our prices are quite reasonable, too," the chaperone pointed out. "Five dollars hires both Felicity and myself, as chaperone for one party. This is considerably cheaper than the Toronto venture."

"Beatniks are so poor!" chimed in Miss Jones.

"So McMaster bohemians need no longer be bored, thanks to the ingenuity of a pretty freshette."

As Miss Jones said while she headed for the Buttery, "I'm available . . . for a price."

By the way, for the normal-gal-for-hire at UNB, phone 5-9061 and ask for "Chastity".

Publish and Be Damned

Sanity will return to the UNB campus next year. Fred is coming back after plaguing the Scots for a year. If you are a freshman and don't know who Fred is, you soon will. A recent yearbook published his picture with the caption: Wanted — for corrupting the freshman class.

Fred is Dr. Cogswell, an associate professor of English on campus. He is distinguished by his fiddlesticks attitude to organized learning and by his learned attitude to Fiddlehead, a poetry magazine published at UNB. He is distinguishable by his fur hat, his drooping pipe, and a long striding walk. Don't try and fool him. He will have read any book you have. He will also tell you anything you want to know about any athletic team on campus or any baseball score since Confederation.

Dr. Cogswell, a New Brunswicker from East Centreville, graduated from UNB, fought a war, joined the Dept. of English here and has had no fights since then. At present he is doing a year of research at Edinburgh University on John Galt, a nineteenth century Scottish novelist.

Dr. Cogswell has a great deal of fun fishing. Phoney Upper Canadian critics are the fish who

Loyalty Loans Rile Americans

PHILADELPHIA (UPS) — Canadian students sometimes feel they must answer unnecessary questions to obtain financial aid, but their American counterparts are now engrossed in a battle over the necessity of taking a loyalty oath and a disclaimer affidavit as a prerequisite for a loan.

One university has withdrawn from the national program and many others are criticizing the system which calls for the oath and the affidavit for eligibility of loans granted under the National Defense Education Act.

The majority of protests have been aimed at the affidavit. The Board of Trustees at the University of Chicago stated, "the clear, and simple oath of allegiance lies within the American tradition. The affidavit does not. It could lead to starting chamber investigations into a man's belief, and to government interference in the conduct of universities."

On the other side of the fence the president of St. Mary's College defended the oath and the affidavit, and said she was proud of her students who take the same oath that every American service man takes.

At Michigan State University a majority of students indicated they have no objection to the oath requirement. But the University of Minnesota student association last week approved a resolution calling for the repeal of the oath, and the affidavit.

promise of matching dollar for dollar, to a total of $10,000,000, any contribution made by the public to the UBC development fund. Rimmer stated that the government owes UBC $7,500,000 in matching grants.

To correct this Rimmer's UBC Voting Association suggested that students should nominate one of their number to run as an independent candidate having no political affiliation, who could give the university direct representation in the house, as well as draw attention to the needs of the university in a dramatic way.

Columbia have both declared that these schools should withdraw unless the affidavit is repealed by Congress.

THE HOTBED

So quit complaining coppers, quit complaining. The student drivers aren't bad at all. So quit complaining.

If you really want the town to be safer, why not put up a few stop signs at the so-called "Courtesy (Crash-Smash) Corners". How many accidents could have been prevented at the corner of Church and Charlotte, if the city had the presence of mind to put up a stop sign. Really boys, a stop sign doesn't really cost much, in fact you could almost do it free. How, you ask?

Well there must be lots of wood from all those elms you cut down a couple of years ago. Just think, Fredericton could change from the "City of Stately Elms" to the "City of Stately Chopped Down Elms" to the "City of Erected Stop Signs". The odd stop signs could easily save a guy's life, if you are interested in that, or perhaps his car, if you are more interested in that.

By the way boys, just where did all the wood from the "Stately Chopped Down Elms" disappear to? Surely you don't have to cut down Fredericton trees. Our lumber industry isn't in that bad shape fellas.

A real Winter Works Program. Take note our fair City Papas. Instead of just talking about winter works, here's a big chance to create some employment. And as a second consideration, it may even save a life.

And to all the advocates of calling Fredericton "the City of the Stately Stumps", Hotbed demands that it be called the "City of the Hole-y Roads" or the "City of the Stately Pot-Holes". All very nice to dig up the road so that Fredericton garages will sell a bunch of new shock absorbers, springs, tires, tubes, and hub-caps, but couldn't you think of a more subtle way. As well as this Fredericton could well be called the "City of Slippery Side-walks" or the "City Sans Sand" (Note the Alliteration and the use of a French word on that one, boys). Slogans like that would really be dynamic indicators of the elevated status of our town . . .

And we have other things that should be advertised to promote our city. For instance, Fredericton has the longest stop light in the country, under the University Street underpass. It does manage to snarl up traffic so that visitors can see a few of the elms that are still standing . . . And the "maintainers of law" that direct traffic at the Queen Street - Carleton Street corner surely must be the 14th wonder of the world, ranking just behind the ruts on the Carleton Street bridge. Thus another city slogan could be the "City of Confused Cops" . . . Other things we can use . . . courteous cops . . . bars . . . progressive council . . . tux at the Spring Formal (there is still time to send home for one) . . . easy exams.

CAN 'X' BE AXED BY 5?

Tomorrow Will Tell

All those who believe in superstition are invited to a gathering at the Lady Beaverbrook Rink tomorrow night to see if they can persuade the ol' crystal ball into pulling through for the Red Devils hockey team. Last Saturday night the Devils travelled to Antigonish seeking their lucky seventh straight win in Intercollegiate competition by battling the squad from St. Francis Xavier University who are seeking their unlucky thirteenth (?) Maritime Championship. Lady Luck just didn't show up, whether it was due to the hazardous travelling conditions or not, and the Devils went down to a 6-2 defeat at the hands of the X-men.

The boys in red started the game off on the right foot however when Henri Girard clicked on a passing play with Don Morrow and Ron Andrea but then St. F.X. began to roll. First Sheriff beat Read and it appeared as if the period would end in a deadlock but at 19:57 mark Neville Hicks pulled through for the home town crowd to put his X-men ahead 2-1 at the whistle.

The only scoring in the second period came at the 13:40 mark when Girard nailed down his second goal of the night to tie up the game 2-2.

The third and final stanza was all St. F.X. as they pumped home four unanswered goals, making the margin stand for the rest of the game and giving them a four goal lead going into the second game of the two game total goals to count series.

Of the twelve penalties called throughout the game, the Devils picked up five, but an aggressive St. F.X. squad took every advantage of the extra man.

Despite the four goal margin which UNB will have to overcome, the Devils will feel they may have gotten a bad game out of their systems and will be all out to make up for it Wednesday night.

SIDELIGHTS

Henri Girard, the man who played for St. F.X. two years ago, and by the way really bungled up the works for the Devils in the Maritime Playdowns, took no mercy on his former team-mates as he played spectacular hockey and scored UNB's only two goals.

Car Rally Big Success

On Saturday, March 5th, fifteen cars entered the 1st Winter Rally organized by the newly formed UNB Sports Car Club. The sport of rallying is extremely popular in Europe with big events like the Monte Carlo Rally and the Alpine Rally, and is becoming increasingly so in Canada and the United States; but as far as we know this is the first event of the kind to be organized in New Brunswick. Judging from the success of this rally, it won't be the last.

Cars, containing a team of driver and navigator, left the start at the University at two minute intervals, to drive over a route laid out on highways and country roads in the Keswick Ridge - Millville area. Conditions on Saturday afternoon were good despite warnings of heavy snowfall. Drivers experienced a little snow and the country roads were often very icy, but the rally scheduled was fairly easy and nobody had any difficulty in maintaining the averages. On one stage a signpost they were looking for was hidden by a snow bank and all 15 cars found themselves in a deserted lumber yard, but otherwise the event went without mishap. The rally was notable for keenness and good humour among the competitors.

Cars were required to maintain a certain average speed, with four controls and three secret checks spaced out along the route to check the timekeeping. Cars arriving at a control or check early or late lost points, one per minute, and the car finishing the rally with the least penalty was therefore the winner — in this case two cars shared the honour. Scoring on this basis, rewards teams that drive the route accurately and on schedule. The competition was keen and the results were therefore very close; although it was a relatively easy rally it still required some skill to drive it properly and even the winning team lost some points. The results showed that it was the teams themselves that decided the result, and not the cars, as the winners were a sports car and a small family car. Both winning teams were presented with a silver cup as a trophy.

The UNB Sports Car Club will be organizing more rallies late in the year, as well as other driving events if a suitable course can be found.

Curlers Take Third Place

Last week the UNB varsity curling team placed third in the Maritime Intercollegiate Curling Championships held in Sydney, N.S.

Dalhousie University again proved to be the powerhouse in college curling circles as they took the top spot for the third consecutive year. Acadia University gained the runner-up position losing only to the defending champions. UNB followed Acadia in the final standings of the eight team round-robin play.

In the first round of the bonspiel, UNB romped over St. Mary's University 10-3 to appear as a strong contender for the championship trophy. The picture soon became hazy as the red and black team dropped the remaining three games of the first day. Two of these losses were by only one rock while the third was a decisive victory for Dal after they had gained a commanding early lead in the game.

The UNB team highlighted the second day's play as they came back strong, winning all of their remaining matches to hold down third spot in the final standings.

The members of the UNB team are Fred Fowler, skip; Eric Jamieson, mate; Peter Kilburn, second; Doug McKinley, lead; and Bob Nelson, spare.

Summary of UNB scores — UNB 10, St. Mary's 3; St. FX 7, UNB 6; Dalhousie 11, UNB 3; Acadia 8, UNB 7; UNB 12; Mt. A. 5; UNB 4, King's 3, UNB 8, N.S. Tech 5.
