FOLLOWED A BURGLAR.

T. W. Sheffield Gave Chase in Bare Feet and Pajamas.

Found the Burglar in His Cellar Early This Morning.

Intruder Had Packed Up a Lot of Silverware.

T. W. Sheffield, the well known swimmer of this city, who lives at 413 Aberdeen avenue, gave the police this morning the straight story of the robbery at his place early this morning, as reported in the "extras." Mr. Sheffield had been out for the evening, and returned home rather late. He went to bed at once, and about an hour and a half after he retired his wife awoke him and told him that there was some one in the house. He listened for a while, and told her she was mistaken, and advised her to go to sleep and let him do so, as he was tired. A few minutes later his wife again aroused him to tell him that there were burglars in the house, and a couple of minutes after that did so the third time. Mr. Sheffield decided to investigate, and went down stairs in his bare feet. As he reached the foot of the stairs he heard some person moving in the cellar, and heard a heavy object fall. He made a run for the cellar, and going down stepped on a bag full of silver cups, medals and other prizes he had won in swimming events. One of the cups was crushed by the owner's weight. He was just in time to see a man disappearing through the window above the coal bin. Mr. Sheffield grabbed a big rake from beside the furnace, and started after the man. He got out the window after him, and still in his bare feet, gave chase through the snow along Aberdeen avenue towards Locke street. The man was a good runner and soon managed to leave the champion swimmer behind. Mr. Sheffield called for the police office, but the line was busy, and some minutes were lost in that way. When he got the line the patrol responded promptly, seven men going out, but they could get no trace of the thief. The only thing the burglar got away with was an old-fashioned English silver snuff box. Mr. Sheffield is of the opinion that the man was in the house for some time, as the sideboard, piano and several shelves were stripped bare of their silverware and ornaments. Mr. Sheffield was rather annoyed at the report that he had got the burglar's leg, but could not hold him. He noticed that the man was of a heavy build, and would be a good bet in sprints. It is hardly likely that the man who shot Smith would go so soon to another house and enter it. Descriptions of the burglars of last night are varied and none distinctive.

HUM AT THE SOO.

Power People Will Spend Million—More Industries.

Detroit, Mich., March 5.—As the result of the settlement of the Soo River water power question by the passing of the rivers and harbors bill, the Lake Superior power people will spend over $1,000,000 to put their plant in shape for full development, while the Government will build a new ship canal, which will be accompanied by a new lock, the work costing altogether over $6,000,000.

The Canadian Soo also is forcing a revival if the drydock by law carries next Monday, which it probably will. This will insure a drydock and ship-building plant, while capitalists announce they will establish cement works there, and several iron and steel industries, allied with the marine trade, will follow. This will be outside of extensive improvements planned by the Lake Superior corporation on the Canadian side.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES

To rent at $2 a year upwards, for the storing of deeds, bonds, stocks, wills, silver and other valuables. TRADERS BANK OF CANADA.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Morris, foot of Westworth street, will regret the serious illness of their little daughter Aedine, aged two years. She was taken to the City Hospital this morning, having contracted diphtheria.

CAUGHT IN ACT; SHOT POLICEMAN.

Desperate Burglar Fired Three Times Wounding P. C. Harry Smith and James Hanley.

Made His Escape by Vaulting Fences—Smith Suffering Much—Operation This Afternoon.

That there are desperate men roaming around Hamilton, ready to commit murder or any other crime, was proven again last night, when one of Hamilton's guardians of the peace, P. C. Harry Smith, and a citizen, James Hanley, who went to Smith's assistance, were shot by a burglar who had been found in the home of Mr. Edward Kappel, 24 Ray street north, last night shortly after 9 o'clock. The shooting was most deliberate. Constable Smith had cornered the burglar as he was pushing a bag of stolen stuff out of the cellar window, and the moment the officer ordered "Hands up!" he received a reply a shot from the burglar's revolver—then another and later a third was fired.

SMITH DISCOVERS BURGLAR. The scene of the shooting was a side entrance, at the home of Edward W. Kappel, 24 Ray street north, a large brick house which has been closed up for some time. This house is on the regular visiting list of the police, and is on beat No. 8. Constable Smith was covering his beat, having gone on duty with the 6.50 squad in the evening. It was on his first round that the crime took place. He started north on Ray street from King and went down the east side to visit the Kappel house.

Hanley, and the pair cautiously advanced to the space that separates the Kappel house from the one south of it. This place is about two and a half feet wide, and the officer was in the lead. There is a cellar window at the extreme west end of this place. The officer and Hanley had scarcely exposed themselves to view when Smith saw a man on his hands and knees, crawling out of the cellar window and shoving a white canvas bag in front of him.

Looking around the house the officer went up to the front door to see if it was secure, and just as he was on the steps he heard some person shuffling around in the cellar. He looked at once towards the front cellar window and saw a dim light flickering and dancing which looked as if some person was moving around the cellar with it. The officer quickly decided there was cause for action, and he went to the home of W. Venator, 229 Market street, which is the first house around the corner from the Kappel home. The officer knocked at the door and told Mr. Venator there were robbers in Kappel's house. He asked for assistance in rounding them up. Mr. Venator and his son Charles at once offered to go with him, and the three started out around the corner. On the street they met James Hanley, son of Mrs. M. A. Hanley, 14 Ray street north, and two boys, James McCrae, 60 Chatham street, and Letellus Garrick, 38 Ray street north. They were pressed into service and the house quickly surrounded. McCrae, Garrick and Charlie Venator went to the front of the house. They were told to keep their eyes open and nab any person that came out of the place.

Mr. Venator, senior, was stationed at the gate to the yard on Market street, which is about half way down the fence, between his house and Kappel's. The officer thus covered every means of exit, and he and Hanley went into the yard by the Market street gate. Smith drew his revolver and gave his baton to the burglar coolly waiting in the spot where he fired the shots until sure the coast was clear, and vaulted over a fence. When Hanley jumped over the fence on to Market street blood was streaming from his face, and he presented a pitiable spectacle. He had a cut, starting over his left eye, taking a downward course on his nose and extending for over an inch under his right eye. It seems likely that a bullet struck his cheek and nose, and he must have cut himself as well getting over the fence.

Following so closely on the heels of the shocking Kinrade murder mystery, which has Hamilton and the surrounding country in a fever of excitement, the shooting affray last night caused a big sensation when the news spread. The first reports were most alarming. They declared that Constable Smith was fatally wounded, and that Hanley was in a serious condition. By a peculiar incident it was just a week ago yesterday that Ethel Kinrade was murdered in her own home in the heart of the city's fashionable residential district by someone the police have as yet been unable to discover. While there is no connection between the two crimes, in the opinion of the police, yet the fact that they occurred so closely together has created tremendous interest.

Smith did not know whether he was hurt or not, and seemed to be bothered more about how his wife would take the news, as he begged that she be not told of the affair.

HOW HE ESCAPED. The burglar coolly waiting in the spot where he fired the shots until sure the coast was clear, and vaulted over a fence. When Hanley jumped over the fence on to Market street blood was streaming from his face, and he presented a pitiable spectacle. He had a cut, starting over his left eye, taking a downward course on his nose and extending for over an inch under his right eye. It seems likely that a bullet struck his cheek and nose, and he must have cut himself as well getting over the fence.

POLICE CONSTABLE HARRY SMITH.

This brave young officer was fired upon and wounded by a burglar last night. He is now in the City Hospital and the authorities there describe his condition as "pretty bad." By that they do not imply that his life is in danger, but he suffers terribly. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the X-ray was used in an effort to ascertain the position of the bullet, which the doctors desire to remove as quickly as possible.

NOT A THEFT

Is the Defence of Hamilton Man in Toronto.

Wm. H. Woods, a young salesman of this city, who was arrested in Toronto about two weeks ago, was committed for trial at the sessions at the Police Court here yesterday on a charge of stealing a Persian lamb coat and ruff from his employers, the Sellers-Tough Company. The goods were sold by Woods to a Mrs. Andrews, of Wilton avenue, but were entered in the firm's books as in stock and were only missed when the stock-taking occurred. The defence says there was no theft, but a transgression of the firm's rules relating to sales. This point the jury will have to decide.

DECLARES FOR ROUND-UP

Mayor McLaren Says it Must be Made at Once.

He is in Favor of Revolver Practice For Men.

Police Will Likely be Equipped With Modern Electric Lanterns.

Last night's double shooting in which Police Constable Smith and James Hanley narrowly escaped being murdered by a desperate burglar and the panic the city has been through on the heels of the Kinrade murder, was about the only topic discussed in civic circles this morning. The affair last night was of additional interest to the civic employees because one of them, Charles Venator of the city engineer's staff, figured prominently in it. When the reporters called on Mayor McLaren this morning his Worship jocularly remarked that he found his rifle in very good working order last night. There is an unpleasant surprise in store for the man who tackles the mayor's house. His Worship produced a rifle cartridge guaranteed to kill at a thousand yards. Speaking seriously the mayor declared that there must be a round-up of all suspicious characters in Hamilton at once. It is not improbable that there will be an investigation to see how efficient a system the police have for keeping tabs on suspicious characters.

HEAD CRUSHED.

Engineer Leaned Out of His Cab to Inspect the Air Pump.

Fireman Brought Train to a Stop and Body to Buffalo.

Buffalo, March 5.—When an engineer makes the same run every day of his life it loses something of its variety. The regular Lake Shore freight from Collingwood, O., to Buffalo, was near Lake View yesterday, with nothing out of the ordinary, when Engineer F. L. Hollingshead found that the airbrakes did not act properly. After the first and second trial of the air lever he climbed off the seat and swung himself down to the step of the engine to see what could be wrong with the pump. In his preoccupation he took no note of the fact that his train was slipping rapidly into the yards. J. J. Reedy, the fireman, who had taken the engineer's seat in the cab, shouted down to him, but it was too late. The arm of a draw switch caught him against the side of the head and he fell to the railroad tracks. The fireman brought the train to a stop and ran back along the cars. Hollingshead was dead, with his skull crushed in. The train crew brought the body to Buffalo in the caboose. Dr. Danson, the medical examiner, turned it over to an undertaker. The dead man was 37 years old and lived at Collingwood.

JOHN SMITH DEAD.

Ex-M. P. P. For Peel County Dies of Pneumonia.

Brampton, Ont., March 5.—John Smith, ex-M. P. P. for Peel county, died at his home here this morning, pneumonia being the cause of death. Mr. Smith, who was an auctioneer, was taken ill at Meadowvale on Monday last. He was brought home but grew gradually worse, his advanced age, 73 years, telling against him. Mr. Smith was one of Peel County's oldest and best known residents. He represented the County in the legislature for 16 years, holding the seat through five successive contests. He was Liberal in politics. Mr. Smith leaves a widow and three daughters.

JACK THE HUGGER.

Essex, Ont., March 5.—Otto Guy, sentenced to six months in Toronto Prison for having played the part of a "Jack the Hugger" here, may be deported as an undesirable, instead of being sent to jail. A strong recommendation to that effect has been made by the Essex Magistrate.

MINERS MEET.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 5.—The anthracite district officers of the United Mine Workers of America are in session here to-day with Thomas L. Lewis, the National President, and about half of the forty National Organizers now in the hard coal fields, going over their demands and arranging to submit them to the operators.

KILLED MOTHER.

Confesses He Murdered Her With a Hatchet While She Slept.

Holland, Mich., March 5.—Elton Baldwin confessed to-day to the prosecuting attorney that he killed his aged mother, who yesterday was found dead in her farmhouse, two miles from Sanguett. He said that he was afraid she would charge him with having burned their barn, and therefore he killed her with a hatchet while she was asleep.

THE DETECTIVES ARE NOW IN OLD VIRGINIA

No Developments in Kinrade Case—Doubt as to Time of Shooting—Provincial Detective Greer Here.

Although interest in the sensational Kinrade murder mystery, which has been at fever heat for a week, was overshadowed for the time being by the double shooting in the west end last night, the police have not for a minute halted in their investigation of this shocking tragedy. Provincial Detective Miller and the officers who are working with him on the case were out the first thing this morning working on the information in their possession in an effort to establish a connecting link. From an authoritative source the Times learns that no new developments are expected before next week, probably not before the inquest, which will be resumed on Wednesday night, when it is expected that Florence Kinrade and her mother will have sufficiently recovered to permit them to go on the witness stand and tell their story. While the police yesterday had reason to believe they could show that the shooting was done shortly after 3 o'clock and not just before 4 o'clock, as they understood by the first reports, it looks as if they have been misinformed. This is considered one of the most important points in the case and the Times yesterday undertook to run down the time on which the authorities based their belief. It indicates that Mrs. C. N. Shafer, who was said to have heard three shots fired, while she was passing the Kinrade house shortly after 3 o'clock never made a statement, even if she did, wishing to avoid publicity, the people who talked about it are trying to cover it up. Driving twenty miles or more over drifted roads and snow banked fields with a howling western wind blowing clouds of snow in one's face and the thermometer below zero, stopping at every other house to run down murder clues, is no holiday trip. A Times reporter and a Toronto newspaper correspondent started out yesterday afternoon and scoured the country around Mount Hope thoroughly in the hope of getting something definite to show that Mrs. Shafer really heard the shots fired and particularly to discover if possible how she fixed the time. Not since the sensational Barton murder mystery, when an unknown woman was found murdered in the fall of 1905 in a hickory grove back of Marshall's lime kilns, off the James street road, has there been a crime in which that section of the country has been so greatly interested. The excitement is being as intense as in Hamilton. The farmers read the papers eagerly every night, theorize and gossip about the probabilities of developments, and are anxious to hear the views of everyone who comes along. Many of them have formed set opinions from what they have read from the newspapers, and nearly all of them wind up with the declaration, "It's another Barton murder mystery. They will never get at the bottom of it." When the reporters reached Glanford station they discovered that Mrs. C. N. Shafer, her husband and father, had moved to Eden Centre, a small place near Buffalo, in New York State. They went there last Monday, taking their furniture with them. Mrs. Shafer, before her marriage about Christmas time, was Miss Gretta Armstrong. She has been arranging for some weeks to move across the border. The first place the reporters called the people freely discussed the story as they had heard. "Mr. Shafer was in (Continued on Page 8)

THE MAN IN OVERALLS

Councillor Hill has perhaps noticed that the grand jury has been talking more "drivel" about the need of a poorhouse for the county. Now, if John Patterson would begin to build his road we would have something else to talk about. If you want a situation, say so in the Times. It won't cost you anything. Observing Lent, I trust. The Government, I see, has issued an anti-spitting order to the railways. How is our by-law observed? I never hear of anybody being rushed to the cooler for expectorating. That was pretty strong language Judge Latchford used about the lack of a county poorhouse. There was not much "drivel" about it. But I am waiting for the other side's story. I had a good word to say for the House of Refuge Committee yesterday, and the grand jury had a good word for the Refuge. This is an institution we never need to kick about. That reminds me that the kickers' column will be open to-morrow for those who feel like kicking. The poor we have always with us, but it is not necessary that we should put them in jail. Things are said to look bright for a busy season. Let us hope that the expectation will be realized. The Senate discussed the level crossing bill the other night. I gathered from the discussion that a person should have a level head when crossing a level crossing. What has become of Mr. Hendrie's Big Stick railway bill that was to disfranchise all the Provincial roads that dared to go to Ottawa for a charter? Perhaps it might be as well after all to wait until the inquest at least before finding anybody guilty. Then there's the "Kickers' Column." Anything to please and amuse. Except during Exhibition week it is hard for Toronto to get up any exciting ment. That's why the Carman-Jackson disagreement was magnified into a first-class sensation. You are lucky if you have so far escaped the grip. (Kerebow.) No signs of a 1909 overdraft, I hope. When all the cheap lodging houses are closed, where will the unemployed put up for the night? At No. 3? Better leave theories alone and talk about something else for a change. We are having lovely weather, aren't we? President Taft came in like a lion. Wonder how he will go out. In looking for bargains don't forget to look in the Times advertising columns. What's become of all our theological disputants? The question, "What Is Life?" has not yet been solved by them. At least, I haven't noticed it. Some day the County Councillors will get mad enough to put up two or three poorhouses. Put Hamilton first when you vote on the power-by-law. Don't vote to get even with somebody. Vote for what will be best for the city and for your

The Earl's Mistake

Half an hour later he took his leave. "Good-bye, my lord," she said, slowly, as he held her hand, cool and soft as satin, within his burning one. "You will come again, and soon. Remember, we are friends now—is it not so?"—and that friends are rare in Lincolnshire. Next time, I hope you will see my mother. Poor woman! she is an invalid, and confined to her room at present. Good-night!—ah, yes, that is better than good-bye."

Mr. Moore made his adieu at the same time. He was staying at the Hotel de l'Europe, and was therefore going Lord Neville's way.

It never occurred to Lord Neville that it was rather undutiful of a daughter to leave an invalid mother alone all the evening, while she, the dutiful daughter, entertained two gentlemen. He had completely lost his wits, his judgment, his mental equilibrium. All that was absorbed in this new and strange feeling, half-ecstatic, half-exquisite pain.

When he got out into the open air, he paused and drew a long breath, and looked round him like one who had awakened from a beautiful, too beautiful dream.

Mr. Moore thought that he had stepped because he was tired, and paused. "Found Zenobia's rooms rather hot, I'm afraid, Neville, didn't you?" he said.

"No, no," said Lord Neville, hurrying on, and ashamed of displaying his emotion. "It was very pleasant. I suppose Miss de Norvan and you?"

"No, no," said Lord Neville, hurrying on, and ashamed of displaying his emotion. "It was very pleasant. I suppose Miss de Norvan and you?"

The young fellow shrugged his shoulders—a trick he had caught from her, no doubt—and pursed up his lips.

"No, no, not very long."

Lord Neville looked surprised, and a spasm of jealousy shot through him. Jealousy already!

"I thought it must be so, as you called her by her Christian name—Zenobia."

"Oh, ah, yes," he said, lightly. "Everybody calls her Zenobia. You'll find yourself calling her so if you see much of her. The other name is so awkward, you see, and Zenobia is so pretty."

Lord Neville knit his brows.

"Besides, foreigners are not like English, not so stiff and proud. Anyhow, she doesn't mind it."

"What is Miss de Norvan?" asked Lord Neville.

Again Gerald Moore shrugged his shoulders.

"Pon my word, I scarcely know. I think I'm not sure, mind, but I've an impression she is a Russian or a Pole, and yet she speaks Italian. Really, Neville, I don't know. I'll ask her if you like."

"Not on my account," says Lord Neville hastily, and flushing.

"I fancy she is Russian; at any rate she speaks of Russia as if she knew it; but so she does of all other places. I've an idea that she was mixed up, at some time or the other, in some secret society. I can't tell you that it is so, mind. At any rate, she is very handsome, isn't she?"

"She is lovely," assented Lord Neville, under his breath.

"And plays and sings in first rate style."

Lord Neville smiled with scorn at this commonplace description.

"Miss de Norvan is a musician," he said.

"Ah, I dare say," rejoined Gerald Moore. "By the way, that is what she said of you, Neville."

A thrill of pleasure ran through Lord Neville's veins.

"In fact, I don't want to make you vain, but Zenobia seemed to take to you immensely."

Lord Neville's eyes flashed, and he drew a long breath of fierce joy.

They had reached the hotel by this time, and Lord Neville asked Gerald Moore to go in, but he declined, made an appointment for the following day and went off.

Lord Neville entered the hotel and went up to the suite of rooms which had been engaged and set apart for his friend and himself—it was the finest suite in this magnificent hotel, and was rented as high as a mansion in Park Lane—and found Mr. Forsyth reclining on the sofa of the smoking-room, with his bottle of wine and cigars at his elbow.

He rose as Lord Neville entered.

"My dear fellow," he said, sleepily, "where have you been? I was half thinking of dragging the lake"—then he stopped and stared with unconcealed amazement. "Why, what is the matter?" he demanded, and not unnaturally, for the Lord Neville whom he had left on the seat by the quay, and this Lord Neville, with the sparkling eye and flushed cheek, were two different beings.

Lord Neville flung his soft wide-awake on to the satin couch, and thrust his white hand through his hair, and laughed softly.

"What's the matter?" demanded Mr. Forsyth, still staring at him.

"Nothing!" said Lord Neville, but he laughed again and fell to pacing the room.

"Where have you been? You look as if you had either seen a vision, or pray excuse the vulgarly—been drinking," and, indeed, Lord Neville's appearance was somewhat that of a man who had been worshipping too ardently at the shrine of Bacchus.

"No, I have not been drinking, Forsyth; but I have seen a vision."

"Pray describe it," said Mr. Forsyth, "and let me share it, if only second hand."

But Lord Neville shook his head with an absent laugh, and continued his pacing over the Turkey carpet.

Mr. Forsyth was rather alarmed. He knew only too well the excitable nature of his young companion, and he was anxious.

"Well, if you won't unhook yourself, pray sit down and smoke a cigar. I have seen no vision, and am rather bored."

Lord Neville sat down and smoked a cigar, and drank a glass of Mr. Forsyth's wine; but he would say no more, and soon went to bed, to dream of the lovely face and graceful form of Zenobia; to hear the music of her voice ringing in his ears and echoing in his heart.

The next morning he rose, pale still, but with a new fire in his eyes, a new life running through his veins. Before many hours had passed he made some excuse for leaving his companion, and started his way to the villa.

With a throbbing heart he asked if

Miss de Norvan was in, and the servant answering in the affirmative, showed him upstairs into the room which had haunted him all through the night. The faint perfume of Gerald Moore's cigar, but he did not notice the latter, and presently the door opened and Zenobia, clad in a morning robe of charming simplicity, glided into the room.

Lord Neville faltered an apology for calling so early, but she met it with the most perfect and graceful ease and frankness, and he spent one, two hours of exquisite bliss. Sometimes they went out on the balcony and lean over the rail, she with a huge fan in her white hand, and once she sat down and played to him.

"I was going out," she said, "but it is too hot for walking and the carriages are dreadfully dirty and stuffy—are they not?"

Lord Neville tore himself away at last, and when he had done so, went straight to the railway station, and telegraphed to Paris for a pair of you and a lady's phaeton to match. The phaeton, he added, could be procured at short notice, and at any cost. He also telegraphed to Howell & James to send a suite of rubies and pearls; there was to be no delay and no question of cost in this case.

Not a day passed without his going to the villa and spending a few precious hours with his enchantress, and each time he returned to the "Hotel Nationale," and his companion, Mr. Forsyth, noticed that his manner was marked with excitement and feverish interest.

Mr. Forsyth was a clergyman and a gentleman, and would not condescend to spy upon his charge's movements; but he grew uneasy, and proposed that they should leave Lucerne.

Lord Neville laughed the suggestion to scorn.

"Leave Lucerne!" he said. "Not if my life depended upon it."

"Perhaps you'll tell me what great thing depends upon your remaining?"

"For me! Ah!" she said, clasping her white hands. "Ah, how good of you! What little beauties! And the carriage. It is all fit for a princess!"

"And if you are not a princess you look like a—like a queen," he murmured. He would have added, "my queen," but had not come to that pitch of courage yet.

That same morning Lucerne was astonished and amazed beyond hearing almost by the sight of the beautiful little phaeton bowing along the quay, and the lovely Zenobia holding the reins, and the handsome "Inglesse milord" seated by her side. Not only all Lucerne, but Mr. Forsyth also, for he met the equipage as it pulled up before a shop door, and stood thunder-struck.

He understood it all in a moment, and as Lord Neville, without a blush, but with a sparkle in his eyes, presented him, he acknowledged to himself that the young man had some excuse for his infatuation. Dressed to perfection, with a delicate glow of pleasure in her cheeks and a light of happiness and gratification in her eyes Zenobia looked the incarnation of loveliness.

Mr. Forsyth welcomed the clergyman with in-faible grace and frankness, and begged that Lord Neville would bring his friend to see her.

Mr. Forsyth went home, after the ponies had dashed down the quay, in a state of bewilderment and perplexity. It was evident now what was the matter with Lord Neville. The young nobleman was in love; and with this lovely young creature whose eyes made even Mr. Forsyth's heart beat with subdued admiration! What was to be done?

"Well," he said, as Lord Neville came in an hour afterward, came in with flushed face and glittering eyes; just like a man in a fever. "The cat is out of the bag, my friend! The mystery is explained without any trouble on your part. I can understand now why it was so impossible that we should leave Lucerne."

Lord Neville smiled.

"I meant to tell you to-day," he said. "Tell me what?" asked Mr. Forsyth.

"That I intend to ask Miss De Norvan, the lady whom you saw to-day, to be my wife," said Lord Neville, calmly, too calmly.

Mr. Forsyth pursed his lips.

"Isn't it—excuse me, my dear Neville—rather sudden?" he said.

"Yes, you could only have met her a week ago, my dear fellow. Love at first sight, I suppose. Never mind, I suppose I must congratulate you. She is very beautiful!"

"She is as angelic in temper and soul as she is beautiful," said Lord Neville, and his handsome face flushed.

"I am sure you think that," said Mr. Forsyth, guardedly. "And her friends—who are they—who is she?"

Lord Neville began to pace the room.

"Wait until you have seen her in her own home, before you ask any more questions," he said. "Come with me to-night."

Mr. Forsyth did so. They spent the evening at the villa. She sang to them, played to them, talked in her sweet accented voice to Mr. Forsyth, and accompanied to Mr. Forsyth, and would have charmed the heart out of his body if he had not been in such fearful anxiety about Lord Neville.

Mrs. De Norvan this evening also put in an appearance. She might have been a dummy, seeing that she scarcely spoke, and spent the evening knit-

STORES ROBBED.

Charge Against Radcliffe, of St. Thomas, Caught at Listowel.

St. Thomas, March 4.—Chief of Police Armstrong this afternoon received word that John Radcliffe, who is wanted here on a charge of robbing several business houses and five concert theatres, has been arrested near Listowel. Radcliffe was employed as window and office cleaner in a number of stores, and it is claimed, robbed his employers right and left. His wife was seen in the opera house wearing furs and a coat stolen from Misses McDonald and Pincombe's store, and the goods were recovered, but he left town before the police were notified. He shipped other stolen goods in a big red trunk, and by tracing this Radcliffe was located. He will be brought here for trial.

SCOTLAND'S SEE-SAW

This Time It Is a Liberal Victory in South Edinburgh.

London, March 4.—The see-saw in Scotland's miniature general election continues. South Edinburgh to-day went Liberal by a majority of 1,221. Mr. Andrew Dewar, the new Solicitor-General for Scotland, receiving 8,185 votes to the 6,964 polled for Mr. Harold R. Cox, the Unionist candidate. The election, which was rendered necessary by Mr. Dewar's appointment to the Ministry, was fought out on short notice. Mr. Dewar's appointment was only gazetted on the 18th and the writ issued a few days later. South Edinburgh has a rather curious political history. Until to-day contest it had changed its complexion at every election and by-election since 1892. In 1892 it went Liberal by a majority of 191. In 1895 Mr. Robert Cox, father of the candidate who was defeated to-day, secured a majority of 94. Mr. Cox died in 1899, and Mr. Dewar carried the riding at the by-election. At the general election in 1900 Mr. Dewar was left at home, but he had his revenge in 1906, when he pulled up a majority of 2,960. Of the two by-elections yet to come in Scotland, Hawick is expected to go Liberal and West Edinburgh Unionist.

THE HAMILTON TIMES

FRIDAY MARCH 5, 1909.

LAST NIGHT'S CRIME.

That there was not a murder on Ray street last night was not the fault of the burglar who fired three shots at Policeman Smith and James Hanley when he was discovered in the act of looting Mr. E. W. Kappel's home.

Two facts are emphasized by the crime: Hamilton needs more police protection; and a more vigorous and effective method of dealing with tramps and vagrants should be adopted.

JUSTICE SHOULD BE CHEAP.

According to a contemporary, a well-known local lawyer presents an argument against extending the jurisdiction of the County Court and thereby "cheapening litigation."

OUR RAILWAYS.

There is a great deal of interesting information contained in the railway statistics presented to Parliament the other day by Hon. Mr. Graham, Minister of Railways.

Briefly stated the Canadian steam railway mileage in 1908 was 22,966, an increase in the year of 514.

Ontario steam railway mileage was 7,932, a gain of 294 miles.

The capital invested in the privately owned roads totals $1,239,295,913; in the Government roads, $925,345,031; grand total, $1,564,640,944.

A few of the results of the operation of the roads may be tabulated: Passengers carried, 34,044,992; Average receipts per passenger, 1.92 cent.

"CAPACITY TO SERVE."

Some people seem to view the fixing by local companies of a minimum charge of 75 cents a month for light as an imposition, and some queries have reached the Times regarding it.

The case seems to be analogous to the supplying of water by the city. We need not now consider the question of high or low price of the water actually consumed by any citizen.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Has Allan Studholme been "ringed"? Why this ethereal mildness?

Roosevelt may be a has-been to-day, but he is rid of a load of care.

The garden tools need not be taken out of the woodshed yet. Don't trust March!

So "Big Bill Taft" came in like a March lion, a blizzard ushering him in to the Presidency. And he is a mild-mannered man too.

When a man resorts to burglary, it is pretty safe guessing that he is prepared to resort to murder if surprised in his crime in order to escape.

Sothman comes high—at least the Fire and Water Committee think so. His little bill of $100 for two days' witness fees was paid, however.

The town seems to be overrun with amateur sleuths, eager for that $2,000 reward. And their fecundity in "theories" and "facts" is bewildering.

The Laurier Government still goes about its business of governing the country. What has happened to the programme of T. J. Stewart, M. P.?

Hon. Mr. Foy's law reform bill does not appear to sanction lawyers taking cases "on spec." And it is suspected that a certain class of lawyers do a good deal of that sort of thing.

Some ugly charges are made against the municipal government of Montreal, and the Legislature will probably furnish means to investigate them.

Notwithstanding that the Provincial revenue exceeded eight and a half millions last year, Treasurer Matheson warns the Legislature of the necessity for the closest economy.

The Liberals won South Edinburgh yesterday against a Unionist "tariff reform" candidate by a majority of 1,221. The constituency has changed its political complexion at every election since 1892, and the Unionists had great hopes of winning it this time.

BABY BOY HAD ITCHING HUMOR Which Broke out in Different Places—Nothing Would Help Him—Mother Almost in Despair—Skin Quickly Healed Without a Scar and Trouble Has Never Returned

"Several months ago, my little boy, now two and a half years old, began to break out with itching sores, I began to doctor him, and as soon as I got him healed up he had another outbreak. I was almost in despair. I could not get anything to help him. One evening I read a testimonial from a lady who had cured her little boy with Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and using them three times, the sores commenced to heal. He is now well, and not a scar is left on his body. They have never returned nor left him with bad blood, as one would think. Cuticura Remedies are the best I have ever tried, and they are surely great. I shall always have them in the house, handy, and shall highly recommend them to any one who is suffering likewise. I cannot give them too much praise. Mrs. William Geeding, 102 Washington St., Attica, Ind., July 22, 1907."

ITCHING TORMENTS From little patches of eczema, better, itching, sores, etc., on the skin, scalp, or hands of infants, children, or adults are instantly relieved and speedily cured, in the majority of cases, by warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings with Cuticura Ointment, the great Skin Cure, assisted, when necessary, by mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent. Cuticura Remedies are guaranteed absolutely pure.

CAUGHT IN ACT; SHOT POLICEMAN.

WORKED LIKE A "VET."

Although an examination of the house showed that the burglar worked like an experienced crook, the police were surprised to find the sort of swag he was trying to make off with.

For a house breaker to go out at the early hour of 9 o'clock to play his trade one week after the Kinnear murder, knowing that the police were doing extra duty, and keyed up to a pitch of energy by the terrible tragedy of a week ago, is something the police never expected.

The man was handy with his revolver, too. To be able to fire a shot while on his knees in a narrow and dark entrance, and to fire so accurately that he hit the officer close to a vulnerable spot on his head, shows that he had a steady hand.

RANSACKED HOUSE.

A look into the interior of the house strengthened the belief that the man was not a common tramp looking for easy money. He had entered by the cellar window, through which he was getting out when the officer spotted him.

He had pried open the door at the head of the cellar stairs leading into the hallway. The man was apparently acquainted with the fact that the house was unoccupied at the time, and it was no easy task to open this door. The thief went at once to the front and back doors, and cutting chunks off a large cork, ransacked them into keyholes of the doors leading to the street and yard, to prevent any person putting in a key and getting in without warning him.

The downstairs portion of the house was ransacked rather thoroughly, but upstairs it was much worse. The office of Mr. Kappelle is upstairs, and it had been turned topsy-turvy with a thoroughness that must have taken some time. A large desk was forced open and clipped were a jimmie had been used to force it. A house variety was smashed to pieces, and papers were scattered about the room promiscuously. Cabinets were broken open and their contents mixed and scattered. The bedrooms had all been ransacked pretty thoroughly, and bureau drawers opened and searched. In a front room, which was fitted up as a gymnasium, a large knife was found on the floor. It was a sailor's clasp knife with the large blade, four inches in length, opened. A piece of cork was lying there, and it was from this piece and with the knife that the material to plug the keyholes had been obtained. Not least in the many precautions taken was cutting the telephone wires which led into the house.

THE SWAG.

The swag gathered by the man was varied and of a distinctly valueless kind. The bag, which he shoved out of the cellar window ahead of him, was found by the police where the thief had left it after making his escape. It was a canvas bag, two feet high and had a round bottom sewed in it. It was strongly made and clean and looked like a military man's dunnage bag, and was almost new. A dark lantern was found inside it, and a few feet away a two-inch chisel was found. In the bag were two undershirts, one top shirt, collars and cuffs, several sets of fishing tackle and piles of fish hooks. A pair of white duck pants were the most valuable things the man got. The shirts were all old ones. A box of visiting cards and a child's bank with some small change in it and a pair of decidedly old boots completed the collection.

This is hardly consistent with the work of the man. That a burglar so inexperienced would have taken such valueless stuff and left other and better material untouched seems most remarkable. The police think that the man may have heard Smith scouting around the place before the alarm was raised, and thinking the house was empty, made a quick run back upstairs, and examined the oldest stuff he could get into the bag that had at first been filled with better articles. This would probably help him, being found with only cheap goods on him, and would tend to make the constable believe he was a new man at the work. This seems the most plausible explanation, in view of the fact that the burglar had his work done to a science from the appearance of the place.

The bag which was used to cart the stuff away is thought to have belonged to the house which was robbed. A peculiar feature of it was that inside it was covered with feathers. Whether it was taken there by the thief, who used it as a pillow for chicken stealing is a thing the police deem quite likely.

POLICE ON THE JOB.

Detective Campbell was despatched to the scene in the patrol when the alarm of the shooting was received at No. 3 Police Station, which was at 9:06 p. m.

Constable James Clark was there soon after the attempt was made to break in on his brother officer, and he was followed by Constables Ince, Brannon and Lowrey. Clark found Smith's revolver where the wounded man dropped it as soon as he was shot. In the search of the house Constable Brannon found the big knife, and then the officers were sent out to search for the desperado.

SMITH INTERVIEWED.

When Smith was taken to the City Hospital Deskman Steward was waiting for him and helped the men in with the stretcher.

"Hello, Tom," Smith said, with an attempt at a smile. "It was pretty close this time."

When he was being carried in he complained that his eyes were dimmed and that he could see nothing at all. It was thought at first, from this, that the optic nerve had been injured, but later the injured policeman was able to see plainly.

Smith told a well-connected story of the affair to Steward at the hospital, and it did not differ from the general report published. He said he had no idea that there would be a man in the house who called headquarters for assistance.

Inspector McMahon and Chief Smith were at the City Hospital late last night taking his statement, for fear of serious developments.

THE VENATORS INTERVIEWED.

The shooting and the escape of the burglar was being eagerly discussed in the Venator home at 229 Market street, the first house east of the Kappelle residence, when a Times reporter called there. Charles Venator, a draughtsman in the City Engineer's office, and his father, W. L. Venator, talked freely of the matter to the newspaper.

your hat and coat on quick. There is a burglar in the corner house, and we want to get him. Come with me. There was another man with the officer, and two or three people standing outside. My father accompanied us. Father said: 'Don't you think we had better get a revolver or a couple of sticks?' The officer said: 'Never mind, I have my gun. I will go in. Here is my baton.' And he handed it to Hanley. The two went in the back gate to enter the house. I stood in the front of the house with two boys. My father was on Market street near the gate that leads into the yard. We heard three shots and the constable staggered out of the yard, crying, 'I am shot, I am shot.' He seemed dazed and unsteady on his feet. Hanley jumped the fence on to Market street, I ran from the corner, and with my father assisted the policeman into our house, followed by Hanley. We had no revolvers, and did not care to go looking for the burglar after the officer was shot. We immediately telephoned for the police and the patrol and waited for them for about ten minutes. The officer and Mr. Hanley were hustled off to the hospital."

Mr. W. L. Venator told practically the same story as his son and said he suggested getting revolvers or sticks, but the constable thought it was sufficient to be armed and without hesitating marched into the yard.

"DON'T TELL MY WIFE."

The injured constable, while he lay on a couch in the Venator home, with blood streaming from the wound in his face, seemed to think only of his wife, who was waiting for him in their home, 188 Front street. He said to the officers: "Don't tell my wife," were his first words when he recovered himself sufficiently to talk. "It would set her crazy if she knew of it. I don't know whether I am badly hurt or not, but I don't think I am," he added.

ONE WOMAN FAINTED.

The shooting created a sensation in the neighborhood. People stood at their doors to gather the particulars, and many timid people, who had gone to bed, when they heard the disturbance dressed and illuminated their houses.

Mrs. J. F. Greenway, 230 Market street, just across the road from Mr. Venator's house, told what she heard, what had occurred. She was alone at the time. A doctor was called and she was removed to Mr. Venator's home until she recovered.

HANLEY DESCRIBES SHOOTING.

James Hanley, who followed the officer in when he went between the Kappelle and Henson houses to round up the burglar, returned to the scene of the shooting shortly after 11 o'clock, and explained to the police and newspaper men how the burglar crouched in the shadows, fired on them and made his escape.

"Well, is there anything new?" was his cheerful inquiry, as he walked in the yard of the Kappelle house and into the rear kitchen, where Constable Clark was standing guard.

"I was just left my house at 14 Ray street, shortly before 9 o'clock," he said, "and was walking towards Market street when I met the officer, who informed me that there was a burglar in the cellar of the Kappelle house. We hustled around to Market street and the officer went to Venator's door and summoned assistance. He had already called upon two boys, who happened to be in the neighborhood. Mr. Venator and his son and the boys were stationed around the Market and Ray street side of the house with instructions to get the burglar if he came out. Smith gave me his baton and I followed him into the yard. He had drawn his revolver. We walked over to the space dividing the two houses and had hardly stepped into view before there was a commotion. Throw up your hands," followed by three shots in rapid succession. The man was crouching on his knees when we saw him first, and he stood up as he fired. The officer dropped his revolver and staggered back."

Mr. Hanley's account of what happened after that is not quite clear. He says he saw the fellow jump the fence. He is confident that he was shot, the bullet cutting a wound across his forehead and leaving his left eye badly blackened and swollen, indicating that the man either struck him with the butt of the gun or that he fell, probably as he was getting over the fence.

While he was explaining to the reporters how the shot were fired his father called through the fence to tell him his folks at the house were worried about him.

"Jim," said the brother, "the people at the house are very anxious to see you."

Mr. Hanley hustled home, followed by the newspapermen. They desired to question him further, but were met at the door by his relatives, who said that he was not in condition to be further interviewed.

MRS. PUMFREY SAW HIM.

One of the neighbors, who saw the burglar at close range and had rather a startling experience with him was Mrs. T. Pumfrey, who lives in the second house south of where robbery took place. When interviewed by a Times reporter last night Mrs. Pumfrey related her experience as follows:

"I was sitting in the parlor, reading the paper, when I was suddenly startled by hearing three shots in quick succession. I got up from my chair and walked to the front window, but not seeing anything on Ray street, I ran to the back of the house and opened the door. A man was peeping over the fence and I called to him and asked him what he was doing in my yard. He did not answer and quickly disappeared over the fence into the yard to the south. I then locked the door and went inside."

When asked if she could describe the man, Mrs. Pumfrey replied that she was so excited at the time that she did not take any particular notice of him, beyond the fact that he was a big man.

SHE DESCRIBES HIM.

The best description the police were able to secure of the burglar was from Mrs. Mary Mcague, 386 King street west, who saw him as he was passing through her back yard. She heard the three shots but did not attach much significance to them and did not bother to investigate. A few minutes later she heard a noise as though some one was trying to get into her place by the back door and going to the back window she raised the blind and was just in time to see a man climbing over the fence at the east side of her lot into the front lawn of Bishop Dowling's residence. She had but a fleeting glance of him and according to her description he was a large man, about 5 feet 11 inches in height. He wore a short overcoat and cap, and seemed to be running lightly without any encumbrance such as a bag or parcel.

A BRAVE OFFICER.

Police Constable Henry Smith (No. 46) has been a member of the Hamilton police force for six years, and is about 33 years of age. He is married and has a small family. Smith has twice threatened to resign over different matters, but he is considered an efficient and fearless officer, and has not a bad mark of any kind against him. He has never hesitated for a minute when in a tight position, and has more than once distinguished himself.

About two years ago, late one night, he saw two men acting suspiciously outside Horey's drug store, at the corner of Hess and York streets. He pretended he did not see them and secreted himself in the shadows of adjoining buildings, watched them lift the grating and enter the cellar. P. C. English was passing along and Smith informed him of what had occurred without letting the men know. English stood over the grating and, revolver in hand, Smith entered the place. One of the men rushed past him and Smith fired a shot to scare him. English grabbed the fellow, and Smith got the other man himself. They were preparing to leave with several bottles of perfume.

It is not more than three weeks ago since he figured in a sensational chase after a man who was trying to sell heavily to a Barton street junk dealer. Smith arrested the man, who was jumping fences and dodged behind obstacles to elude him. In the yard of the Hamilton Bridge Works the officer tripped over a pipe and was laid out for a few minutes, but he resumed the chase and his 230 o'clock yesterday afternoon one of the maids at Bishop Dowling's saw a man come in the front gate on King street, and after taking a careful survey of the property walk out the back gate into Market street. He went away on Market street south on Ray street and disappeared down King street.

SEEN IN AFTERNOON.

The burglar had apparently counted upon such a contingency as being discovered and spent the afternoon before the burglary in looking over the ground and mapping out an avenue of escape through the back yards of the neighbors. About 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon one of the maids at Bishop Dowling's saw a man come in the front gate on King street, and after taking a careful survey of the property walk out the back gate into Market street. He went away on Market street south on Ray street and disappeared down King street.

ABOUT THREE HOURS later he again went into the Bishop's yard and accosted the coachman. He was carrying an empty canvas bag under his arm and asked Lynch if the reward was any old rubbish when Lynch asked him what kind of rubbish he wanted, the man replied: "Old iron, or something I can sell."

Lynch told him that there was nothing for him around, and the man went out the Market street gate.

BURGLAR'S DESCRIPTION.

Lynch gives the following description: "He is about 35 years of age, 5'8" in height, and was clean shaven. He wore a short, dark overcoat, grey pants, and a small cap. He was a fairly big man for his height, and would weigh about 135 or 140 pounds. He was a strong, healthy looking fellow, and would not look like a Jew. I was surprised that he should be picking rags. I think I would recognize him again."

into the house one day when I was alone and asked for something to eat. He looked at me so suspiciously after I had furnished him with food that I was really alarmed. I went into the next room and pretended to talk to some one. When I returned to the kitchen the fellow drank the tea, and said that as he was more thirsty than hungry he would leave without taking anything.

REJOICED OVER ESCAPE.

The reporters called at the home of Mr. Hanley, 14 Ray street, before he had arrived there from the hospital. His mother and sisters were standing on the veranda anxiously awaiting his arrival. They were greatly excited over the affair and worrying over Mr. Hanley. "We have been told that he is not badly hurt and has left the hospital," said one of the relatives. "It is funny that he is not here before now. He would come up on the car, and it should not take more than fifteen minutes. Are you ever troubled much here?" "Very little," was the reply, "although we have an occasional beggar call."

There was great rejoicing in the house when Mr. Hanley arrived shortly after, and his people found that he was not seriously hurt.

NO ACTION.

Citizens' League Complained to School Trustees.

There was little business before the Internal Management Committee of the Board of Education last night, and the meeting did not last very long. A letter was read from Sir Thomas Taylor, the chairman of the executive of the Citizens' League, commenting on the way the various officials were receiving, but none provoked comment.

Inspector Ballard's report for February showed the average attendance at the city schools to be as follows: General, 1,229; Ryerson, 700; Hess, 1,255; Cannon, 1,229; Victoria, 1,993; Queen, 921; Homes, 115, a total of 7,171, as compared with 6,872 for the corresponding month a year ago. TAFT ON THE JOB.

Crowds Leave Washington—Much Music and Noise.

Washington, March 5.—William H. Taft took his place at his desk at the executive offices as President of the United States at 9:30 this morning. Just as he entered the office from the residence of the White House, Philander C. Knox came in. The nomination of Mr. Knox as Secretary of State completes the cabinet.

The White House grounds were besieged by out-of-town callers early today. Creeping along at a snail's pace, heavily laden trains today slowly bore the inaugural crowds away from the capital. Immense crowds flocked to the Union Station and military and civic organizations vied with one another in their display as they departed or waited to depart.

All through the day the crowd at the station was aroused now and then by some enthusiastic organization marching round and round through the vast concourse in the station with a band in the lead. One organization had three bands leading it, alternating with each other in furnishing music.

THE TRUTH VICTORIOUS.

Second Day of Mr. Philip Mauro's Fine Addresses.

New Theology of New England Dealt With Last Night.

The Gospel of Jesus the Only Thing That Saves.

The largest audience that has yet attended any one of the series of addresses now being given in Goshel Tabernacle by Mr. Philip Mauro, of New York, on "The Truth, Living and Victorious," was that present yesterday afternoon. The subject taken up by Mr. Mauro was "The New Theology of New England," as seen by Rev. George A. Gordon, pastor of the Old South Church in Boston. The speaker showed the discrepancies of this religion when compared with the old gospel, and pointed out what he considered the untruthfulness of its doctrines. Gordon in a article on this New Theology in the Harvard Theological Review, tells of the collapse of the old New England Theology and tries to explain this collapse. What brought it about? What is the old New England theology that has collapsed, but in fact the doctrine of Christ? Produced this collapse? How is it that the doctrines of the old theology so long held dominion over the people of New England, if they were not truth? Mr. Gordon charged the New England divines with unbounded reverence to the Bible. "They are slaves of a book," he says. "They do not use their intellects so as to pass judgment on the word of God. It is not the old gospel of New England that has collapsed, said Mr. Mauro, but their faith in the word of God that has collapsed. Gordon claims that the doctrines of Christ have been outgrown in this age. He says that man is the unchangeable son of God. What has taken the place of the old gospel? Gordon says that man's essential nature is love, and that if God does not answer to man here he falls below the work of his own hand. The New Theology claims that it knows the greatest work known because it covers the phenomenal world of man. Let us then, says Gordon, hold to the reality and worth of man's world and use it as our surest instrument in our endeavor to ascertain the character of the eternal.

Miss Netta Stewart Writes Another Book on Nursing.

The Invergardian Times of a recent date has a reference to Miss Netta Stewart, and her work, which will interest that young lady's friends here. Miss Stewart is a daughter of the late Mr. James H. F. Stewart, and two of her brothers lived here, the late James Stewart, traveler for the wholesale firm of Macpherson & Glasco, who was drowned some years ago, and John Stewart, who was with Thomas C. Watkins, Miss Stewart is a trained nurse and author of works on nursing, as the following from the Invergardian Times will show: "Practical Gynaecology. This is a manual for nurses and students, by Netta Stewart, sister in the Gynaecological Ward, Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh, and James Young, M. R. C. F. R. C. S. E. (being a second and enlarged edition of "Gynaecological Nursing," by Netta Stewart). In the preface it is stated that the aim which the authors have kept continually before them in the preparation of this book is to provide a short manual of the methods of examination and treatment adopted in gynaecological practice. In a book of this nature it was deemed inadvisable to go into any length into the details of the operative procedures. This arrangement has permitted of greater space being devoted to the methods of preparation for, and after-treatment of, the different operations. The non-operative measures, such as Douching, the Vaginal Tampon, etc., which occupy so important a position in practical gynaecology, have been described in some detail. The authors venture to think that, by adopting this plan, they have described the common ground of gynaecological practice on which the nurse and student meet. Whilst primarily intended for nurses engaged in gynaecological work, and for students preparing for examinations, it is hoped that the book may be found serviceable to a wider circle of readers. Miss Stewart's previous work have been most popular and have been in great demand. There is every prospect that the present edition will have a large sale at home and abroad.

TELL-TALE MARKS.

Midland Man Charged With Attempting to Blow Up Boilers.

Midland, Ont., March 4.—Patrick Shanahan was committed for trial to appear on a charge of having attempted to blow up the boilers of the Canada Iron Corporation Smelter. Arthur G. Riddell, chief engineer, testified that Shanahan had been employed at the smelter since November, 1907, and had charge of the main boiler rooms. His duty consisted of maintaining the water levels of the latter of six boilers. On Tuesday morning it was discovered that the supply valves had been closed. Had the discovery been delayed the boilers would have blown up and considerable loss of life resulted. Witness traced footprints in the snow from the boiler house to Shanahan's home. Dr. Hood, veterinary surgeon, testified that he drove prisoner, who had been drinking to the neighborhood of the company's plant at 11:30 Monday night. Charles Martin, fireman, who was in charge of the night shift, swore that the supply valves had been closed some time between 11:15 and 11:30 a. m. He and Shanahan had quarreled some time ago, and Shanahan had struck him once. Chief of Police Bell produced a pair of rubbers, admitted to be the prisoner's, which the chief swore fitted the tracks from the smelter to Shanahan's house. The Magistrate, in committing Shanahan for trial, said, as the accused was in the vicinity of the works at the time and knew all about the workings of the boilers, a prima facie case had been made out.

LIBRARY.

Board Did Little Business Transaction Yesterday Afternoon.

Little business of importance was transacted at the regular meeting of the Public Library Board yesterday afternoon. The Library Committee was authorized to purchase a new typewriter at a cost of $120, and the Building Committee was empowered to buy a new tug. Dr. Woolverton, Chairman of the Library Committee, said accounts amounting to $122.06 had been ordered, and that 250 books had been ordered, at a cost of $425.

Mr. J. M. Brown, of the Finance Committee, reported that the disbursements were $720.02. Of this amount $50.95 was for the East End Branch. Librarian Hunter reported as follows: Number of books purchased during February, 226; added by donation, 240; new cards issued for the month, 189; cash received for fines, etc., $81.78. In the Barton street branch 98 books were added and 69 borrowers' cards were issued. The number of cards in use there now is 629. During the past month 2,999 books were circulated. Mr. A. E. McKins, engineer for the Boiler Insurance Company, reported that he had examined the boilers in the Library and found them in good condition.

ADVOCATED A COMMISSION

To Promote the Internal Trade of the Dominion.

H. C. Beckett's Address Before the Retail Grocers.

Division Court, Dead Beats and Other Subjects.

A large and representative gathering attended the monthly meeting of the Retail Merchants Association in the Board of Trade rooms last evening. The President, Mr. John Forth, acted as chairman, and some new members were received. The Division Court Act was discussed, with a view to impressing upon the Provincial Legislature the necessity for reform. It was suggested that the work be taken up by the Court, as the expenses are at present high. Mr. J. A. McIntosh in this connection stated that the grocers should do away with the credit system so far as possible. He thought it would be a good idea to have representatives from different associations confer with each other to discuss this law reform. A committee appointed to take up the matter consisted of Messrs. J. Kirkpatrick, John O. Carpenter, J. A. McIntosh, Geo. Chan, J. M. Semmens, John Forth and Mr. R. Hill.

AT THE SAVOY.

The long looked for production of Sherlock Holmes, in "The Sign of the Savoy" is promised next week at the Savoy Theatre. Ever since the arrival of the Selman Stock Company hundreds of requests have poured into the office requesting that this play, said to be the most interesting of the Sherlock Holmes series, and will undoubtedly serve as the most attractive offering of the stock season. Miss Pettes is cast as Mary Marston, the young heiress, whose life and fortune are saved by the detective. She should make a captivating heroine. The drama this week, "Northern Lights" is one of the most elaborate and costly plays presented at the Savoy this season.

AT BENNETT'S THEATRE.

Among the many good attractions at Bennett's next week is noted the name of Irene Hobson, assisted by Charles DeLair. Miss Hobson is said to be a relative of Holborn, the hero of the Maine, and is a noted beauty of the stage. She has a glorious stage presence and a delightful comedy method. For a year she was a musical comedy favorite on the Pacific coast, and came East to replace Mabel Fenton in "The York Whirl" at the Casino Theatre, New York City. The artists of the metropolis faved about her, and she was engaged for "The Education of Mr. Pipp" Augustus Thomas dramatization of the Gobson story. Miss Hobson has an unusual offering, and has been well received on the vaudeville stage.

HOLLAND'S PLAN.

How the Little Country Schemes to Stop Drinking.

London, March 5.—They have a strange way of combating the evils of alcoholism in Holland; in fact, the methods of the Anti-alcoholic League would suggest at first sight that they rather encourage drinking than otherwise. The league undertakes for certain fixed fees to look after the safety of those who have imbibed not wisely but too well, thus no doubt making considerable revenue from a falling woe. Eradication is supposed to be the sole object of its existence.

Mr. VanWyck and Mr. Widdup contributed to the musical portion of the programme. Mr. Souter was the chairman.

NEAR DEATH.

A Toronto Architect Caught Between Street Cars.

Toronto, March 5.—Crushed between two moving cars a moment after jumping from the fender of one of them on which he had been caught up, Mr. Walter R. Strickland, architect, had a most remarkable escape from death on King street yesterday afternoon. Mr. Strickland is lying at his home at 286 Haron street, suffering severely from bruises and shock, and it will be several days before he will be able to be about again. The accident occurred just east of Yonge street. Mr. Strickland had come down Toronto street and was crossing the tracks to catch an east-bound car when a car running west, behind him, the fender striking his leg. Mr. Strickland was swung around suddenly, jumping as he did so. He landed on the fender, and not seeing the car coming from the east, jumped back on the "devil strip." Before he had time to step away he was caught between two cars.

STORY IS DENIED.

No Cemetery Full of Victims of Railway Accidents at Goose Lake.

Winnipeg, March 4.—Absolute denial is given the story of John Munroe, published yesterday, in which Munroe said that while he was superintending the erection of a mill on Goose Lake, on the Lake Superior branch of the N. T. R. this winter, he found forty-one nameless graves in an improvised cemetery near there, where the victims of railway construction fatalities were buried. "The report is unqualifiedly false," said Chief Engineer Poulin of district F this morning. "Our records are on file here, and they show beyond question that but seven men who died or were killed during the construction of our road were interred at Goose Lake. That record is correct, and it covers territory for from seven to ten miles in any direction from Goose Lake." Denial was also given Mr. Munroe's alleged statement in other quarters. Mr. James Thom has been appointed Canadian manager of the new Canada Line, composed of the Hamburg-American Line, North German Lloyd and Holland-America.

to the Mendelssohn Choir by sincere appreciation shown in the audience at Orchestra Hall on the second night of their notable performance. Seats had been sold out days in advance, but crowds of disappointed music lovers were blocking the sidewalk in vain hopes of buying tickets. Those lucky enough to be inside listened to rare renderings of favorite classics and joined in when the National Hymn was sung in honor of the new President. The company is particularly pleased with the reception that attended them in Chicago, and greatly lauded Chicago's appreciation of their talents. That Chicago was as sincerely responsive in music and art was accredited by the choir's director, A. S. Vogt, who spoke as follows: "We feel highly complimented for the invitation of the Thomas Orchestra to sing before its local patrons, and more sing feel honored by the cordial manner in which we have been received. The Thomas Orchestra is, of course, one of the greatest instrumental musical organizations in the world, and it stands not only among Chicago's remarkable musical institutions, among others that excel, I should mention as famous throughout the musical world for their high standard the Apollo Musical Club and the Musical Art Society. This city is representative of the country, and this concert is as great in musical matters as any other country. As countries develop enormous wealth, art and music follow in their wake. Canada is developing her enormous resource for wealth and keeping in step with its commercial progress in music. So it is in this country, with large resources and great commercial activity. Music abolishes war and all that is inferior and detrimental to society." All musical Chicago was yesterday talking of the tremendous triumph won Wednesday night by the Mendelssohn Choir. The evening papers are fully as laudatory of their singing as are the morning dailies. E. M. Latimer, of The Journal, says: "Their singing is the perfection of choral art. The writer has never heard anything like it, and has never considered such a thing possible. The manipulation of dynamics is marvellous. There are a hundred gradations of tone between a pianissimo and a fortissimo." The Daily News says: "The Mendelssohn Choir sing as well as the Theodore Thomas Orchestra plays. The singers from over the border are entitled to the highest respect and are worthy of all honor." The Evening Post says: "It may be said without any reservation that the best of many things to learn from the Canadian organization. It is without doubt the finest chorus in the world."

CUTTING THE BADDELEY CAKE.

Annual Custom of a London Theatre—A Comedian's Bequest.

Twelfth Night was celebrated, in accordance with annual custom, at Drury Lane Theatre, by the cutting of the Baddeley cake in the foyer on the conclusion of the performance of "Dick Whittington."

In the year 1794 one Robert Baddeley, a comedian of that theatre, who was one of the original founders of Drury Lane and the original Moses in the "School for Scandal," purchased £100 worth of stock in the shape of consols which he gave over to a Drury Lane fund and which was to be his almoner to provide every Twelfth Night cake and wine to the principal members of the company, not so much to perpetuate his memory as to further cause the loyal and friendly feeling and reciprocal good will among them.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Feeling Better.

"Senator" asked the reporter, "what do any more benevolent assimilating for now?" "Well, young man," said Senator Kieffer, brightening up, "don't think we'll do any more benevolent assimilating for a few years, at all events. With the retirement of Mr. Bonaparte will go the last vestige of imperialism in our Government."

THE BANKING COMMITTEE.

Amendments to Dominion Insurance Act to be Made.

Several Companies' Bills For Incorporations Passed.

Hon. Mr. Fielding on Chartering Canadian Banks.

(Special Despatch to the Times.)

Ottawa, Ont., March 5.—There was a meeting of the Banking Committee this morning, at which Hon. Mr. Fielding stated that the Government would, on Monday next, introduce its amendments to the Dominion Insurance Act, which have been promised for some time. Bills were approved of to incorporate the London & Lancashire Plate Glass & Indemnity Company of Canada, with headquarters at Toronto; to incorporate the Royal Casualty & Security Company, with head office in Montreal, and to incorporate the Western Canadian Life Assurance Company, with headquarters in Vancouver.

A bill was presented to extend the time by two years for the organization of the Bank of Vancouver. Hon. Mr. Fielding raised a rather important question of policy in regard to this bill. He said that when a bank was organized and was granted a charter it was supposed to have ready the capital necessary to comply with the conditions of the Banking Act, and take the full responsibility from the Department of Finance within a reasonably short time. There was a question as to the advisability of extending the time of banks which failed to qualify unless very special circumstances could be shown.

Mr. Cowan, of British Columbia, said that the Hamilton newspaper had said and able, if they were hit by the stringency in the money market for a time. Hon. Mr. Fielding said that the explanation was satisfactory to him, and the bill was reported.

LOOKS BAD.

Bill to Override Action of Provincial Auditor.

"Clipping Mr. Clancy's Wings," Is the Way It Is Put.

(Special Despatch to the Times.)

Toronto, March 5.—Important amendments to the Audit Act are being introduced this session by the Government. The outstanding feature of these amendments is the manner in which they block the refusal of the auditor to sanction certain expenditures and thus give the government increased freedom of action. In this respect much of the auditor's power is taken away and given to the Treasury Board, composed of certain members of the Cabinet. Clause 17 (a) of the new bill says: "Where the account of any official for transportation, travelling and incidental expenses do not exceed the amount of the audited dollars, such account may be certified by the Minister, or acting Minister, to whose department such belongs, and when so certified shall be sufficient authority for the issuing of a cheque by the Treasurer of the Province for the amount thereof and the auditor shall countersign such cheque and shall also countersign all cheques issued under the authority of section 17 of this act."

The significance of this amendment is apparent, and it removes the check hitherto imposed by the Auditor, in addition to the Act provides that the Treasury Board may direct in what manner and in what detail public accounts or statements therein are to be prepared, and may make regulations in regard thereto for the guidance of the Auditor, who shall carry out the same.

A great deal of space in the last issue of the Public Accounts was taken up with correspondence between the Auditor and Mr. Clancy, and the former's comments were first not sanctioned by Mr. Clancy, whose authority under the present Act is evidently to be somewhat curtailed. "Clipping Mr. Clancy's wing" is the way the Act was referred to this morning.

GAMEY HAPPY.

Lt.-Gov. Gibson Invites Him to Government House.

(Special Despatch to the Times.)

Toronto, March 5.—The new Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. Mr. Gibson, has taken a big step towards bridging over a long standing Conservative grievance. R. R. Gamey, M. P., has been invited to Government House to the first Lieutenant-Governor's dinner on Thursday night next. This is the first time since 1902 that Mr. Gamey's name has been included in the list of invited guests. During the whole of Sir Mortimer Clark's tenure of office he was carefully overlooked and Conservative members became so indignant over it that many of them decided to boycott the annual dinner. The result was a very small attendance, and some prominent Conservatives are very much pleased over His Honor's action in inviting Mr. Gamey.

Big Caribou Herd.

A herd of 500,000 caribou is beyond Sixty Mile River, and the vast band is travelling toward the Tanana River. News was brought to Dawson by Chris Williams, who says that last year and during the summer the herd tramped down forests and went to the White River slope.

Later it turned back and passed across upper Sixty Mile and then seemed to turn westward toward the head of the Tanana slopes. They are travelling in a procession twenty miles wide. All that are left in the vicinity of Dawson are some straggling bands. Indians have followed the band are bringing the meat to Dawson, but on the whole the herd is getting too far away to get carcases back to Dawson with any profit.—Dawson correspondence Noms News.

DETECTIVES ARE IN OLD VIRGINIA.

Hamilton the day of the murder. She was going up to see a friend on Herkimer street during the afternoon, and rode past the Kinrade house on a street car. No one was exactly sure what time, but Mrs. Shafer was reported to have stated to someone in the village that she heard the shots.

"It can't be so," said one farmer, who seems to know something about city life. "There must be some mistake. Imagine anyone hearing three shots while riding on a Hamilton street car."

The reporters next called at a house where the Sraferers were well known. They had heard the story there, too, but could not give anything definite. They referred the newspapermen further down the line.

The village grocery store was the next place visited. "This is a very important point in the case," the woman was told. "If it is true it may mean much to the police in their investigation."

"Oh, that story about Mrs. Shafer hearing the shots has been taken back," said the woman. "They say it was a mistake and they don't want to get any publicity."

When further pressed for information this informant admitted that the story had been freely circulated around the village. "But we understand Mrs. Shafer was walking along the street and heard the shots," she said. "Her people were going to the Court House Hotel, where they put up their rig, and she was walking up to a friend's on Herkimer street."

This put the case in a new light. If it was someone walking along the street they could not very well be mistaken about hearing the shots.

A relative of the Shafer's, Orville Armstrong, was next contacted. He has two little children listened with open mouths while they heard the tragedy being discussed.

"That is the first I have heard of it," said Mrs. Armstrong, when informed that the Hamilton papers had a story about Mrs. C. N. Shafer having heard the shots.

The home of Richard Carver and his wife, east of the main road, was the next place of call. The reporters were assured that they would definitely get the information they wanted there. But they did not. They were referred from there to the home of Mr. C. N. Shafer's parents, over a mile west of this.

Miss Louise Shafer, a sister-in-law of Mrs. C. N. Shafer, talked about the matter at her parents' home. She did not think it could be true.

"The night of the murder," she said, "we were at Seth Jerome's talking about it. Mrs. Shafer had been to the city, and saw the patrol and came to the city when she was passing the house. We were talking about the murder, and surely if she had heard the shots she would have mentioned it there. I think a probable explanation of the matter is that Mrs. Shafer's father, Mr. Armstrong, is a little hard of hearing. He heard us discussing the tragedy and must have misunderstood what was said, and then talked about Mrs. Shafer hearing the shots. I don't think there is anything in it."

That was as much information on the point as it was possible to obtain in the neighborhood of Glanford. What reason the police have for believing that Mrs. Shafer did hear the shots, they are not taking the word of neighbors and relatives for it that she did not.

This morning they secured the address of Mrs. Shafer in New York State, and an officer will be sent to get her story first hand. They attach much importance to this point, and if possible will clear it up.

The fact that before the Kinrade murder a man supposed to be a tramp, was seen hanging around there, tried to break in and otherwise annoyed the occupants, started a story last night, and this morning the police were trying to make a connection between this tragedy and the shooting of Constable Smith. The fellow who did this is also said to have hung around the Kappelle house, permitting himself to be seen in daylight. The story of Mrs. Guy Munson, who lives next door to the Kappelle house, and tells about a tramp who came here before the murder, was also being investigated by the police. They are also being investigated by the police.

The seven or eight newspaper men standing at the police headquarters at the City Hall this afternoon at 2 o'clock were cheered up by a sight of Detective Miller to-day.

"Anything new?" he was asked. "I can't tell you a thing," he said. "Asked if he was nearer a solution of the tragedy than he was yesterday, the Provincial officer smiled, but did not answer. Five minutes later a sensation was caused when Provincial Detective Greer, who had charge of the Barton murder, walked into the City Hall.

"Are you here on the Kinrade mystery or the shooting of the policeman last night?" he was asked. "Neither," he replied. "Are you here on the Barton murder?" "No."

"Well, why are you here?" he was asked, but Mr. Greer refused to tell.

DETECTIVES IN NORFOLK. A special despatch to the Times from Norfolk, Va., says that two Provincial officers are there, investigating the reports in connection with the Kinrade murder. They are endeavoring to get information as to any men who are said to have been in Norfolk following the reports in connection with the Kinrade murder. Reckless Shooting in France. The shooting season which has just come to an end in the Department of the Seine is by universal consent considered to have been far below the average. Migrating game is on the decrease, and indigenous preserved fur and feather are rapidly disappearing in all but the largest and most plentifully stocked shooting-places.

The blame is laid indifferently on poachers and venin, but few have the courage to attribute to its real cause the deterioration of sport. This is nothing else than the enormous increase in the numbers of sportsmen and the insufficiency of preserved lands in France. Not so long ago the number of licensed guns was only 50,000, whereas it is now 600,000. Half of the country is at their mercy, and they shoot without thought or pity.—London Evening Standard.

Plot for Poe.

"The Colonel" in Toronto Saturday Night writes: A murder mystery, which contains elements of romance, appeals to a people as few things do. High and low, big and small, everyone is carrying around under their hats the only true solution of the Hamilton murder case. There are almost as many theories as there are people. In the Kinrade case are the elements of a plot such as would have appealed to Edgar Allan Poe. The question is, can the detective department unfold the mystery as did our old friend Mr. Sherlock Holmes. Some day the solution of this case may make an interesting reading as did the "Sign of the Four."

FOR SIX CLUB LEAGUE.

Proposition of Hamilton and Toronto Men.

Division of "Lucky" Baldwin's Estate.

There is a movement on foot to organize a semi-professional baseball league in these parts, and the details of it are being worked out by the promoters, Hamilton and Toronto men.

If the plans mature a meeting will be held in Hamilton or Brantford in the course of two or three weeks.

Until a constitution is adopted Messrs. Kossell, of Pontiac; Trombley, of Mount Clemens; Bennett, of Windsor; and the late Mr. Chatham, are the committee placed in charge of the league's financial affairs and other matters.

The new league will work in harmony with the South Michigan, and should prove a valuable ally of that organization. The project is approved of by all parties of the South Michigan clubs.

Officers of the new league have not been decided on, but will be free from affiliation with any club ownership. The Toronto team tried Fricke and the Secondaries Dave Adams, who was relieved in the third inning by his substitute, the second game went thirteen innings.

The lineup in the first game was as follows:—Sainits (11)—Padden, Sheridan, Casey, McEne, Nixon, Smith, Barber, Carey and Terry.

Canadians Had Fine Trip and Record.

Fully one thousand people were gathered at Deepwater terminus to greet the champions on their return, and the first greeting that they got as the big liner slowly poked her nose through the thick fog was the stirring strains of "Macgregor's Gathering" from the pipe band of the 63rd Rifles, stationed on the pier-head.

ARE OUTHOUSE CURLERS.

Although experts at the game as they proved themselves to be at West Culls, few, if any, of the Canadians had been "made" curlers in the orthodox Scotch fashion, and when it was suggested by a few local enthusiasts that the men from the Dominion should submit themselves as candidates for initiation, the idea was taken up with an enthusiasm which left nothing to be desired.

AFTER WHITNEY.

Dominion Alliance Delegates Use Strong Words.

Important Resolutions Are Carried Unanimously.

Toronto, March 5.—At the Dominion Alliance business meetings yesterday the Provincial Government was vigorously assailed first in the morning meeting for its attitude on the three-fifths clause and for its references to United States legislation, and then at the afternoon session, amid the cheers of the large convention, the Hon. Seaborne Wright, of Georgia, poked fun at the Premier's apparent ignorance of the fact that local self-government is of British origin, and that this three-fifths majority clause is opposed to the very basis of popular government.

Mr. Joseph Gibson, the President, in opening the morning session resented the slander on the United States local Government, as such a slander was on the motherland also, the parent of self-government. Any one who was glib enough to believe that the three-fifths clause was an issue at the last election was too far gone for any logic to reach him.

Rev. Dr. Carman also adversely criticised the attitude of the Provincial Government on the three-fifths clause.

Rev. Dr. Shearer said he felt convinced Sir James Whitney was in earnest when he said he had gone as far in temperance legislation as the country desired and would support the Government in going. There were loud cries of protest at this.

Mr. F. S. Spence could not agree with the idea that Sir James Whitney should infer that the people endorsed the Provincial Government's liquor legislation.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED. The Committee on Resolutions submitted a series of resolutions which were all adopted unanimously. The chief of these were:

That the number of licenses in any locality be not in excess of that provided for in the new law based on population.

That club licenses be subject to the same regulations as hotel licenses.

That liquor be not allowed to be imported into local option municipalities, and that the Government be asked to appoint a commission to see that brewers and distillers do not ship liquor to such municipalities.

That the Executive join with the Sons of Temperance in the effort to prevent the importation of liquor into Prince Edward Island.

That steps be taken to prevent the issuance of club licenses in local option municipalities.

That brewers and distillers be only allowed to sell liquor to holders of licenses and not to private parties.

That the Government license and inspect all hotels, whether these have liquor licenses or not.

The meeting, by unanimous vote, declared its desire for the reform which the ladies asked for.

THE THREE-FIFTHS CLAUSE. "That this convention deeply regrets the failure of the Government in replying to our deputation to give an account of the intention to abandon the three-fifths requirements, which has been fully shown to be entirely unnecessary to secure either through enforcement or permanence of local option by-law, and this convention calls upon the members of the Legislature to return to our cause to take steps to secure either through enforcement or permanence of local option by-law, and this convention calls upon the members of the Legislature friendly to our cause to take steps to secure the introduction and adoption of a bill repealing that measure, which is contrary to principles of justice and equality, and unfairly advantageous to the liquor traffic."

The foregoing resolution submitted to the convention at its afternoon session was enthusiastically and unanimously adopted.

Mr. Alexander Mills presided at the election of officers, the following being the unanimous choice of the convention: F. S. Spence, Hon. President; Joseph Gibson, Treasurer; Rev. B. Spence, Secretary, with about eighty members to form, with the officers, the Executive Council.

ONTARIO LABOR BUREAU.

Secretary Armstrong's Report—Public Utilities in the Province.

The ninth report of the Ontario Bureau of Labor was issued yesterday. (Cities to the number of 19 report a capitalization of public utilities of $20,498,938; 83 towns, $8,134,742; 36 incorporated villages, $888,908, and one township $4,500. A further table gives a classification of the public utilities owned by municipalities as follows: Waterworks, $24,472,250; electric lighting, $3,358,697; gas works, $233,133; street railways, $546,314; power plants, $683,227; telephone systems, $140,697, being a total of $29,434,138.

Returns to the schedules sent to manufacturers have increased, being 592 as compared with 427 for 1906. Of these returns 56 were incomplete, leaving 536 establishments, employing 42,636 persons, to be tabulated. The average proportion of wages to profit was 25.31 per cent., as compared with 19.06 in 1906 and 23.33 in 1905. The average increase in product was 14.30 per cent., while 26 establishments reported an unspecified increase and 127 the same output as before. The increase in wages was 8.77 per cent., affecting 22,294 workers, and 33 establishments reported unspecified increases, and 241 the same wage rate as the previous year.

TORY CHIEF BANQUETED.

Followers in the House Honor Mr. Borden.

Causes to Which He Attributes His Defeat.

That Unhappy Pamphlet and Enmity of Great Railway Corporation.

Ottawa, March 4.—The Conservative members of the House of Commons and Senate tendered a banquet to their leader, Mr. R. L. Borden, in the restaurant of the Commons to-night, the function being designed as a mark of the party's confidence in his chief and its appreciation of his work during the election campaign. The speeches were all in the most laudatory vein, and the speakers solaced themselves with the comforting view that they had been beaten by unfair means, and that the outlook for success in the next contest was exceedingly rosy.

Mr. Borden's speech was in the nature of a general review of the political situation. He thanked his supporters for their generous display of confidence in him, despite the failure at the polls, a failure which he explained as being in part due to the influence of a great railway corporation, and the evil use of patronage, campaign funds and newspaper misrepresentation by the Government. He took consolation from the fact that the Conservative party came back to Parliament stronger than at any time since 1896, and he hoped the onus of having to meet falling revenues, increasing debts and a bad financial outlook, He dealt at considerable length with the present fiscal condition of the country, noting the increase in the debt during the past twelve months, aggregating for the millions, and the appalling obligations entered into by the Government in respect to the National Transcontinental Railway. The increase in debt, he said, meant an annual interest charge of nearly two million dollars upon the people of Canada forever.

Turning to the opportunities and duties of the Opposition, he noted with pride that it had been able to impose its policies upon the Government of the day to a greater extent than ever before in Canada. In this connection he instanced civil service reform, more rigid inspection of immigrants, abolition of the immigration bonus system, free rural mail delivery, reorganization of the Railway Commission as a public utilities board, and improvement of the laws to prevent electoral corruption.

"For the future," he said, "much remained to be done." The large questions looming in public life included the conservation of the natural resources, the development and improvement of waterways, the preservation of water powers for the general benefit of the people, transportation, cold storage, the equipment of national ports and the thorough control of great public franchises.

"I do not minimize the efforts of a great corporation directed against the laws to prevent electoral corruption," he said, "but I believe that the Conservative party with unsparring hostility during the latter part of the campaign. There was no occasion or provocation for the animus thus displayed. The Conservative party desire no feud and seek no alliances with any of the great railway corporations of the country. If, however, the management of any great railway company insists upon projecting its open and powerful antagonism into every political contest, the directors of that corporation, and those who elect the directors as well, should understand that the page of battle thus thrown down may some day be taken up, and that those who have given the challenge will also be responsible for what may ensue."

In connection with the policy of the Opposition in dealing with the control of public franchises, Mr. Borden made the following qualifying remark: "We shall do well to remember that no steps should be taken which might in any way impair our national credit or arouse the apprehension among those to whom we must look in the future for capital to be employed in the development of this country. Not only must we consider the necessities of the State in respect of borrowing, but also the necessities of vast undertakings already existing, or which must be engaged in without delay, for the advantage and benefit of the people. Not for purposes of government alone, but for those committed to private enterprises as well, Canada must be a borrower in the markets of the world for many years to come."

TO SERVE SENTENCE.

Ex-Chief of Police Malone Goes to Kingston.

Toronto, March 5.—"I am facing my sentence without fear, because I am confident that the truth will come out and the real guilty man will be brought to justice," were among the last words spoken by ex-Chief Alexander Malone, of Simcoe, before the train steamed out of the Union Station at 1:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon, conveying him to Kingston Penitentiary to serve the life sentence imposed upon him by Chief Justice Mulock two weeks ago for the attempted murder of his assistant, William Wilkins.

The confident, almost cheerful bearing of the convicted man bore out the impression his words were intended to convey.

Of his family affairs the prisoner maintained the same confident manner. "I have arranged my affairs, and my wife and children will not wait while I am away from them," he said. The Kingston correspondent telegraphed: Ex-Chief Malone, Simcoe, arrived at the penitentiary to-night. He was handcuffed and made the trip from Toronto in a smoking car and appeared to be in good spirits. He was quite talkative, but would not talk on the case. He intimated that he believed he would gain his freedom in fifteen years.

BEATEN BY A GANG.

Lindsay Constable Lies in Hospital in Serious Condition.

Lindsay, Ont., March 4.—At 1 o'clock this morning Constable John Short was beaten most unmercifully by a gang of five men, and as a result is now in Ross Memorial Hospital. Foremost among his assailants was the notorious Michael Carlin, who has already served terms in Kingston Penitentiary and Sing Sing prison. The order was given by the officer to move, when Carlin, it is alleged, proceeded to attack the constable, assisted by his pals. The officer had only his baton. The men left him, as they thought, in a state of insensibility, but he managed to give the alarm. None of the gang has been captured.

TICKERS DEAD.

A Brother of H. P. Dwight—Other a Colleague in the Fifties.

Toronto, March 5.—Mr. Lyman Dwight, brother of Mr. H. P. Dwight, President of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company, and one of the oldest and most experienced operators in the country, died of pneumonia at noon yesterday at his home in Detroit.

A remarkable coincidence in connection with Mr. Dwight's death was the death yesterday morning of Mr. George Burnett, manager of the old Montreal Telegraph Company at Buffalo. Mr. Burnett succeeded Mr. Lyman Dwight at Buffalo in 1868, and had remained in charge at that place until his death.

These well-known telegraphers were of nearly the same age. Mr. Dwight being seventy-two and Mr. Burnett seventy-one years old.

Fire Underwriters. Toronto, March 5.—A resolution instructing the new Executive Committee to oppose the legislation making insurance companies liable for explosions of gas was unanimously passed yesterday morning at the closing session of Mutual Fire Underwriters of Ontario. The members feel that while they would be held responsible for any fire which may follow such explosions, the liability for the explosion itself should be cast upon other corporations.

SENATE REFORM.

Make House Two-Thirds Elective by Popular Vote.

Evil of Disparity in Party Representation Would be Done Away With.

Ottawa, March 4.—In the Senate to-day Hon. R. W. Scott launched his scheme of Senate reform, moving his resolution endorsing the principle of making the Upper House two-thirds elective by popular vote and one-third appointive by the Crown, with an eight-year tenure of office in each case. The venerable ex-Secretary of State, speaking with the authority of thirty-five years' experience in the Senate, made out a strong case for the need of reform along the lines he suggested. The debate on Senator Scott's resolution will be resumed by Hon. Geo. W. Ross on Tuesday next.

Hon. Mr. Scott moved that in the opinion of the Senate the time has arrived for so amending the constitution of the Senate as to bring the mode of selecting Senators more into harmony with public opinion. In support of the motion Hon. Mr. Scott selected the following points to be considered: That if it is desirable to amend the constitution of the Senate the present is an opportune time. He said the political atmosphere was now calm, and, though the Conservative party had not in the past joined in the demand for Senate reform, that party was, however, committed to private enterprises as well, Canada must be a borrower in the markets of the world for many years to come."

As a Liberal Government in Great Britain is now in conflict with the Lords, and the latter body is prepared to yield its vested rights to public opinion, the support of the Imperial Government could be counted on for the amendments to the British North America Act which would be necessary to change the manner of selecting Canadian Senators. There were now sixty-nine Liberals and only twenty-six Conservative Senators. He thought that the Conservative party should support the change in the selection of Senators which he proposed, as the Conservative voters in the west are now inadequately represented in the Senate, and because the Liberal party, in a change of Government, the Liberals were bound to continue in the majority in the Senate for one and possibly two Parliaments.

Speaking on the proposal that the introduction of an elected element of approximately two-thirds of the total number of Senators would bring the Senate more into harmony with the principle of popular government than the present system of appointing the entire Senate by the Crown for life, Hon. Mr. Scott said that for the ten years preceding confederation the upper chamber had consisted of life-appointed members and elected members. He declared that the infusion of fresh blood from time to time gave vigor to the body and independence to the spirit of the Senate.

Hon. Mr. Scott said that when the present Canadian Government took office they had eleven supporters only in the Senate, and there were sixty-nine Senators who had been appointed by the Conservative Government. When the present Government got out of office he predicted that the conditions would be reversed and that from five or six Conservatives there would be a single Conservative Senator. He stated that if the plan he proposed were adopted this great disparity could not occur. He analyzed the eight Senatorial appointments which have been made since the last change of Government, taking them up by Provinces. He estimated that if his plan had been in operation for a one-third appointed and a two-thirds elected Senate, there would have been nineteen of the new Senators appointed and thirty-nine elected. He calculated that the returns of the general elections that the Senate, under this plan, would now be composed of forty-six Liberals and forty-one Conservatives. If the present Government should go out of office in five years they would, according to his calculation, leave a Liberal majority of twelve in the Senate. The incoming Government could at once appoint nine Senators to serve for a time. This would cut down the Liberal majority to three, and it would soon disappear altogether, leaving the Government with a majority in both Chambers.

SPOKEN FROM EXPERIENCE.

A private company can get better results than can be obtained out of a municipal plant. It is not bound down by any such restrictions as the eight-hour law, the officials of the company see to it that there is no waste or loafing, because it is a commercial project there is more efficiency, and as a result any of the lighting companies of this city can sell us light cheaper than we can make it. There is proof in my own office here that it costs the city more to do its business than if it were a private concern. If the finance department was a commercial house, as it really ought to be, and was under the system which prevails in large financial houses the department would cost the city just about half what it costs now."—Comptroller Metz, of New York.

HOME FURNISHINGS

IF there is one thing more than anything else we wish to emphasize, it's the reliability of the goods you buy here. Quality enters first into every purchase we make. That was one of the strong points of the man who started this business seventy-five years ago and is the foundation of the great success of the store now. Sometimes mistakes may creep in, but you've got this guarantee that if anything is not right, we will make it so. That's worth a good deal to the man who invests quite a sum in the furnishings of a home.

And Furnishing homes with Carpets and Furniture is our business, not a side issue. But the one thing we study year after year is to make home life pleasant with suitable furnishings for the thousands who entrust us with the work. May we do it for you?

Nor do we forget that most people count the cost and that price has a great influence. But if you come here, you'll find that good Carpets and good Furniture just as cheap as the poor quality you get elsewhere. We are determined never to be undersold, if you pay less you get less, that's all.

DISGRACE ON GOOD FAMILY.

Lad of 17 Went to Y. M. C. A. and Stole.

Percy Doan Sent to Higher Court For Trial.

John Campbell, Laundry Wagon Driver, Also Committed.

George Wright, a mere boy, was arrested last night by Constable Springer on a charge of stealing a gold watch and a scarf pin from C. D. Jones, King street east shoe dealer. W. A. Logie appeared for Wright and pleaded guilty. He elected to have his client tried by Magistrate Jells.

The police stated to the court that Wright attended a Y. M. C. A. class on Wednesday night, and while there took the complainant's jewelry out of his pockets. The property was found hidden in his bedroom.

Col. Logie made a strong plea for Wright, who is only 17 years of age. He said he was the son of respectable parents, and that justice would be served if he was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Chief Smith volunteered the information that the police had nothing against Wright prior to this case.

"I'll give you this chance, and I don't suppose I will be doing anything wrong in doing so," said Magistrate Jells. "You have brought disgrace upon your parents, and if you feel how you have disgraced them in that respect and disgraced yourself I think you are punished enough."

The prisoner stood in the dock with hanging head and tears streaming down his face during his hearing, and made himself scarce as soon as he heard he was getting another chance.

Pauline Spayer vs. Thornton & Douglas, a suit for $3 wages, was referred to the Division Court, as the money claimed was in lieu of a week's notice. The complainant is the girl who charged the above firm's foreman, Louis Nymann, with assaulting her a week ago.

Samuel Deppen, a foreigner, 192 Princess street, charged with trespassing in the Hamilton Steel & Iron Co's. plant, was allowed to go. He said he was looking for work, and that it was an accident that he fell asleep at the furnace last night.

Percy Doan, charged with seducing Amy Hands, a sixteen-year-old girl, was committed for trial. George S. Kerr, K. C., pleaded not guilty in his behalf and declined to elect. The evidence was of a revolting nature, and the court was cleared.

John Campbell, 96 Wentworth street north, arrested last Tuesday for breaking into and stealing from the residence of J. R. Stewart, 107 MacNab street south, and Archie Martin, 225 Mary street north, was committed for trial on both charges at this morning's Police Court. George S. Kerr, K. C., appeared for Campbell, and, pleading not guilty, declined to elect.

The evidence was similar to the story already published; that he went to Martin's house last Monday and told Mrs. Martin that he was bringing back some stolen property he got at the house a week ago to-morrow night. He admitted the theft all through. Mr. Martin swore. The Stewart charge was founded on the finding of some of his stuff among the articles taken back to Martin. The prisoner did not wish to say anything, and was committed for trial on both charges.

John McDonald, no address, was fined $2 for applying for lodgings while drunk.

GET BUSY.

To the Editor of the Times: Sir,—In view of the recent seething exposure of the tramp nuisance in our city, followed by the dastardly shooting of a police officer, and another attempted burglary on Aberdeen avenue last night, is it not about time that the Rip Van Winkle at the head of the police force waked up, or must we experience a few more shooting affairs to convince him that the city is overrun with thieves and thugs?

He has had a whole week to round up the tramps and other suspicious characters, but with a few exceptions these worthies are still in the city. Such a condition of affairs was unknown in Hamilton during the late A. D. Stewart's and Hugh McKinnon's time, and, from the general talk among the citizens, I venture the opinion that the City Engineer's department is not the only one in the City Hall that needs a general overhauling and reorganization. There is no possible excuse for such indifference or apathy, and the time has certainly arrived when some action should be taken to remedy the present unbearable situation.

Mayor McLaren should get busy and start an investigation at once. Yours, Citizen.

TIGERS WANT CIVIC GRANT.

Application Will be Further Considered by Committee.

Ten Open Air Band Concerts For the Summer.

Will Apply For Legislation re Board of Control.

When the Finance Committee yesterday afternoon was considering the applications of the different military bodies for grants Ald. Lees caused a stir by asking this question, "Isn't all this money spent in booze?"

Mayor McLaren, who is senior major in the Ninety-First Highlanders, strongly defended the soldiers. The regiments, he declared, were a credit to the city and the means of keeping a lot of young fellows off the streets. The money spent by them on company dinners came out of their pay. Ald. Lees agreed that Hamilton had reason to be proud of the regiments, but still he doubted the advisability of making the grants.

The committee recommended the council to make the following grants: Thirtieth Regiment, $250. Ninety-First Regiment, $250. Army Service Corps, $50. Army Medical Corps, $50. Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, $400. Children's Aid Society, $300. Veteran Firemen's Association, $50. Hamilton Poultry Association, $50. Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, $250 for their convention.

Y.W.C.A. building fund, $300. The committee could not see its way clear to increase the grant to the Army Medical Corps, which received $50 last year. Col. Rennie asked for $100 on the ground that the corps was shortly to have its strength increased from 92 to 194, which with the band will make a total establishment of 225.

The Thirtieth and Ninety-First bands will be engaged to give five concerts each at a cost of $22.50 a concert during the summer months. The parks where the concerts are to be given will be decided upon later. The Hamilton Art School for the past two years has received a grant of $3,000. The board asked that the same grant be made this year and the aldermen appointed a committee to inspect the institution and see how much attention is paid to technical education.

Ald. Lees opposed a grant to the champion Tigers. Dr. Thompson and Harold Glazier made the application on behalf of the club. They were willing to accept $300 for the permanent grounds or $340 for sheds, to cost $20 each. The aldermen deferred action, although they seemed to favor the idea of contributing to the fund for the grounds.

The committee refused to grant the application made by Detective Campbell and Constable Gibbs on behalf of the police force for a grant to the Police Benefit Fund.

The request of the Board of Health for a by-law compelling citizens to cover all garbage receptacles during the summer months was laid over.

The aldermen declined to press for legislation permitting the city to elect a board of control and reduce the number of aldermen. The solicitor was instructed to take action along this line. Some of the aldermen thought two controllers would be enough, but the Mayor favored four.

The Mayor pointed out that Secretary James' office, in the City Hall, was badly situated, as no one could get in to see him without going through the tax office. No action was taken.

An account from J. C. Hellmuth, of Toronto, for $250 for interpreting Justice Anglin's decision will be paid.

MARRIED IN POLICE STATION

Brantford Chinese Weds a Wayward Irish Girl.

Young Man Broke His Leg Kicking an Electric Light.

Brantford Golf Club—Heirs Turning Up.

(Special Despatch to the Times.)

Brantford, March 5.—An interesting ceremony took place in the Brantford police station at 6.30 last evening, when Harry Chong, the proprietor of the Market street Chinese restaurant, and Norah O'Loughlin, a winsome Irish lassie, aged 19 years, fresh from Dublin, were united in the bonds of holy matrimony by Rev. H. R. McCracken, pastor of Alexandra Presbyterian Church. The ceremony was the culmination of the girl's arrest as a vagrant by the police, to which charge she pleaded guilty at the police court yesterday morning.

Magistrate Livingstone gave the girl the option of going to jail or joining the Salvation Army. She decided on the army, but in the meantime Harry Chong had heard tell of her predicament, pitied her, and went to his lawyer, A. L. Baird, with the offer to marry Norah, whom he had previously seen but twice. The girl was happy to learn of the offer and consented to the marriage, which was immediately arranged. The witnesses were Police Magistrate Livingstone, Chief Slemin, the lawyer, and a couple of police.

The happy couple returned to the restaurant. Chong is not a naturalized Canadian, but he is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

HEALTH RESORTS.

Practically, however, the majority of health resorts will continue to be in southern latitudes, for two reasons: One, that a healthy, agreeable atmosphere can be had almost anywhere within the temperate zone in summer time. Hence the great majority of invalids scarcely think of formally "going away" for their health "except in the winter time. And, secondly, that when this seasonal limitation, viz., that they must be available in the winter time, has been imposed, those that present the greatest number of inducements to live and sleep in the open air, are those which will give the best results. We are, however, rapidly widening our range in this particular, as we are finding that, except for the most delicate and sensitive constitutions, a visit to the woods, to the mountains, to the sea coast in winter time, will, for those who have the courage to take it and to expose themselves heavily to the weather, be as beneficial as a trip to the blue skies and languorous airs of the South. In fact, in the majority of cases, more benefit will be obtained in a shorter time in one of these Northern resorts than in many Southern ones. Physicians are coming more and more to recommend their health-seeking patient to the Adirondacks in the winter time, the Canadian Highlands, the Maine woods and lakes, such bracing coast climates as the mountains of Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia, where "the chill is off" the air, but it is still bracing and keen.

This explains why the frontier has always had a reputation as a health resort. Most of us can remember how in our younger days health seekers of all sorts, asthmatics, rheumatics, and above all, consumptives, were sent out to the banks of the St. Lawrence, to the virgin forests of Michigan, or to the prairies of Iowa, Minnesota, Dakota, to the Canadian Northwest, to the plains of Nebraska, Wyoming, and Kansas, and while accurate data are of course lacking, it would be safe to say that at least 50 per cent. more of these recovered than of those who simply drifted south like wildfowl before the winter storms. The reason, in a nutshell, was that life in the open was the only life which was possible on the frontier, and is practically yet. The consumptive's greatest enemy, the house was conspicuous by its absence; such imperfect substitutes for it as existed, were really so loosely built as to be self-ventilating and to allow the winds of heaven free access at all hours and seasons, or so uncomfortable and unattractive, that the sufferer could not "den up" in them with any sort of comfort, and was obliged to turn for enjoyment to the open air in self defence.

LAWYER WON THIS CASE.

Mr. McClelland Sustained by the Courts This Morning.

The Outcome of a Bitter Dispute Between Two Neighbors.

Justice Latchford Comments on Howell vs. Patterson.

At the Assizes yesterday His Lordship Justice Latchford, heard the action of William Howell, of Ancaster, against George R. Patterson, of Jerseyville. The statement of claim alleged that under a lease of agreement the defendant, Patterson, took possession of a farm of 143 acres of the plaintiff, and agreed to pay $400 a year. The lease was dated April 1st, 1907. The defendant occupied the farm until April 1st, 1908, when he terminated the lease. The plaintiff claimed $500 for unpaid rent, etc. The defendant claimed that it was understood that the house on the farm was to be shingled and sided, and other work done in the nature of improvements, which were not done. The defendant also put in a counter claim for damages and for services rendered. S. C. Biggs, Toronto, appeared for the plaintiff and W. M. McClelland for the defendant.

In reserving judgment until this morning, His Lordship had a few remarks to make about people who are not qualified to draw up deeds and other legal instruments. He said that from the evidence in this case there was no doubt that "it was the outcome of cheap conveyancing, by men who do not know their business." The lease or agreement which had been drawn up was full of errors and inconsistencies. The conveyancing was not done by either of the lawyers in the case.

This morning judgment was given for the plaintiff for $155, with an allowance of $25 to the defendant for material not delivered. Costs were allowed to the plaintiff on the County Court scale, with no order for costs to the defendant on his allowance. The Judge took occasion to remark that it was a pity that such a case should have been allowed to take up the time of the Assize Court. The jury in the action of Baldwin vs. Soule, for damages for injury, brought in a verdict for $100 for the plaintiff. His Lordship directed that the costs on the High Court scale be granted to the defendant and County Court costs to the plaintiff. G. L. Staunton appeared for the plaintiff and J. L. Scheller for the defense.

The action of Brown vs. McClelland was tried this morning, and after hearing the evidence of several witnesses for the plaintiff and one for the defendant, was dismissed with costs. Martin Malone appeared for Brown, and A. M. Lewis for Mr. W. M. McClelland. The action arose over alleged negligence of Mr. McClelland, who some time ago acted as solicitor for Brown in the transfer of some property which he had purchased in September of 1905. Mr. McClelland was employed to investigate the title to the land, which he did. At the time the deed was drawn, there was a shed on the plaintiff's property, which extended over the next lot, owned by a man named Harper. This shed was not included in the deed. When Brown took possession of the land he found that Harper had cut a hole in the end of the shed and was using it to Brown raised an objection to Harper's use of the shed, and raising it on jacks he moved the whole shed on his property. In consequence of this Harper entered a suit in the county court against Brown, and obtained an injunction and later was given a judgment by the court for $249 against Brown. Mr. Malone alleged that Mr. McClelland had been negligent in the drawing up of the deed. His Lordship found otherwise, said there was nothing to support that contention, and dismissed the action with full costs against the plaintiff.

The next action taken up was that of William Reid against the P. L. Robertson Manufacturing Company, of Milton, for wages and damages for wrongful dismissal. S. F. Washington, K. C., appeared for the plaintiff, and George T. Blackstock, K. C., for the defense. The statement of claim sets out that the plaintiff is a broker and a traveller. On Dec. 7, 1907, he was appointed secretary of the company, but the amount of "wages" was not agreed upon. On March 17, 1908, he was dismissed. He claims $500 for the time he was thrown out of employment and $733 for damages for wrongful dismissal. The defense alleged that on Jan. 19, 1908, the plaintiff tendered his resignation as secretary, and that on no time was he called on to perform any services to the company other than the selling of stock for which he was paid in commission.

ART EXHIBIT.

Some of Mr. G. A. Reid's Fine Pictures Are Here.

Mr. G. A. Reid, president of the Royal Canadian Academy of Painters, member of the Ontario Society of Artists, and one of the most prominent painters of this country, will have a representative exhibition of his work placed upon view, which will be formally opened at the municipal art gallery to-night at 8 o'clock. Mr. Reid's work is quite in contrast with the exhibition of the works of Childe Hassam, which has just closed. Mr. Reid carefully chooses his subjects, and paints historical and sentimental subjects which are of course of more interest to the public, as is shown in his very large and beautiful painting called "The Homeseekers," now on view at the galleries of the Ontario Society of Artists. Mr. Reid's modern "Madonna," which was painted some time ago, and has been reproduced in nearly all of the magazines in this country and abroad, is another of his typical subjects.

Mr. Reid is to be represented by several large and important canvases at the municipal art gallery, and every one who has a spark of love for art of any description should see this exhibition.

Belleville, Ont., March 5.—E. H. O'Donnell, a Chicago lawyer, claims he has been here and found evidence that Ella Gingles, formerly of this city, who says she was assaulted in Chicago, was one of many young Irish girls who were brought to this country under a system of peonage, with the object of making them victims of the "white slave" traffic. The case is said to be taking on sensational aspects in Chicago.

Latest Samples From the Bartlett, Cow Ganda.

We have just received notice of a new lot of nuggets of silver taken from about a twenty-foot level on this wonderful property, which will be at this office on Monday and Tuesday of next week. These new samples, it is understood, far outclass anything that has been taken from the mines to date, and far in advance of the fine samples shown in Hamilton last week.

Mr. J. W. Bartlett, of the firm of F. R. Bartlett & Co., Limited, Toronto, will be here to give any information relative to the recent discoveries on these properties. The Hamilton office is 303, Bank of Hamilton building, E. B. Arthur, representative.

THE RANGERS.

Had Fine Banquet at Y.M.C.A. Last Night.

The Rangers' Basketball team held their first annual banquet last evening, 16 members, ex-members and officials being present. The banquet featured the club by the manager, T. F. Best. After ample justice had been done the good things provided, a brief programme was enjoyed. Professor F. H. Burt, of Toronto, was the soloist, and his efforts were well received. Bronze watch fobs mounted on black ribbon, with gold-plated attachments were presented to the winners of the four team league, who were Messrs. Geo. Turnbull, T. Marshall, C. Athawes, R. Eccleston, C. Prosser and J. McCulloch. Short speeches were made by each of the winners and by J. McCulloch, a popular referee.

The Rangers were organized four years ago, when an eighth team was needed to compete the basketball league, they were the last to be selected, but they won. They have participated in all league games, winning either first or second place. At the basketball tournament held last fall they won first place. Three of their number have been promoted to places on the first team now playing independent ball, and it is likely the representative team for the Canadian League will be selected from their number.

Fearing that trouble would follow, two supposed ringleaders were arrested.
