

HOW DID IT GET HERE?

Much Mystery Surrounds Hon. Adam Beck's Letter.

Aldermen Were Prepared to Leave Council Chamber.

Thought Scheme Was on Foot After Mayor Left.

Much mystery surrounds the letter from Hon. Adam Beck read to the aldermen at the council meeting last night. Not the least mysterious feature of it is how it came to be placed on City Clerk Kent's desk after the office was closed at 5 o'clock.

Some of the aldermen who have had their eyes opened to the jockeying that has been going on, and whose suspicions were aroused by the mysterious way in which Mr. Beck's letter was delivered, came within an ace of walking out of the council chamber shortly after Mayor McLaren left last night.

The letter from Mr. Beck declaring that the Commission has at last taken a final stand and will go no further than permitting the amendment to clause 2 b. granting the city the right to take power from whatever source it sees fit, and considering Hamilton's distance from the Falls, is adjusting the annual cost, has the aldermen guessing. This is a direct right-about from the impression Mr. Beck left with the Mayor.

Mayor McLaren to-day characterized the statement that the Beach Park scheme was killed because the Government owns the 375 feet from the Freed property to the water's edge, as foolish. In fact, he says, it is a much better reason why the scheme should be proceeded with.

The executive committee of the Canadian Cement and Concrete Association met in Toronto last evening and appointed sub-committees in Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, Hamilton and Toronto, to consult with their boards of trade and civic authorities and learn the advantages and facilities they may offer for the next convention, which will be held about March 1.

The Police Commissioners will meet at noon to-morrow.

W. Holton secured a permit to-day for a brick house on Beulah avenue, south of South street, for Robert Weston, to cost $1,700.

J. H. Smith, Supreme Grand President, and other Grand Lodge officers of the Sons of England are in the city to-day to attend Acorn Lodge's semi-jubilant banquet to-night.

Big Oil Fire.

Beaumont, Texas, Nov. 9.—During rain and electrical storms yesterday lightning played havoc with oil property. Lightning set fire to the Gulf Refining Company's 55,000-barrel tank of naphtha at Port Arthur.

Cries Out For Pity But Got None From Judge.

Evidence of Experts That Favored Prisoner.

Paris, Nov. 9.—"Have pity on me: I am an unhappy woman who should not be tortured!" This cry came from Mme. Steinheil to-day during the testimony of the jewelers with reference to the changes of jewelry confided to them by the prisoner.

Mme. Steinheil is on trial for the murder of her husband and stepmother. She admitted anew that she had had certain jewels, the gifts of her admirers, melted, but maintained that this was done to keep them from the knowledge of her daughter.

YESTERDAY'S EVIDENCE. With the opening yesterday of the second trial of Mrs. Margherite Steinheil, who is accused of murdering her husband, Adolph Steinheil, and her stepmother, Mme. Japy, public interest in the remarkable case is higher than ever.

Dr. Archary testified that Adolphe Steinheil's death was due to asphyxiation after strangulation, and that Mme. Japy's death resulted from asphyxiation. The doctor offered the opinion that one person alone could not have committed the murders.

Dr. Balthazar, a poison expert, testified that he found no trace of a narcotic in the stomach of either M. Steinheil or Mme. Japy.

BEDFORD DENIES IT

Says There Was No Truth in Kinrade Murder Confession

London, Nov. 9.—Edward William Bedford, the Canadian who was arrested here last month, charged, on his own confession, with the murder of Ethel Kinrade, at Hamilton, Ont., has now admitted that there was no truth in his former statement.

On being brought up in the Bow street Police Court to-day, however, he was again remanded in order to allow the police to make more complete inquiries.

KING EDWARD'S BIRTHDAY, GOD SAVE THE KING!

HIS BRITANNIC MAJESTY KING EDWARD.

London, Nov. 9.—King Edward to-day celebrated his 68th birthday at Sandringham Palace, surrounded by most of the members of his family, and a few intimate friends. Telegrams of congratulation were received by His Majesty from all parts of the world.

King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of all the British dominions beyond the seas, Emperor of India. Born in Buckingham palace, London, Nov. 9, 1841.

In 1862 he made a trip to the Orient. Began public life in January, 1863, as a member of the House of Lords. He was married, March 10, 1863, to Princess Alexandra, eldest daughter of King Christian of Denmark.

The Man in Overalls. Are you interested in the San? A man is known by the company he keeps. Rev. Mr. Laneley was on the right track when he advised young men to pick decent companions.

The Horticultural Society is doing a good educational work, but we miss those fruit and flower shows. I must have a talk with some of the Big Push about this Liberal convention in Toronto next summer.

Moral: Don't walk on the track. I notice that the Gore Park fence is in no hurry to come down. Is there a nigger in the fence? Boys with air guns under the mountain are making themselves a nuisance to those on the top.

Time flies. Only six weeks to Christmas. Madame Steinheil seems to be the French female Thaw. But the courts shouldn't be expected to collect betting debts.

Mr. VanAllen's proposed Beach Park should be good enough for the city. No move so far to provide better accommodation on the market for the farmers. Meantime some of them are going elsewhere. When women have votes they will wear rats in their hair if they want to.

The report that the Labor men had asked for Lieutenant-Governor Gibson's resignation was a false alarm. I thought as much. I bet you can't guess where the grocers' picnic will be held next year? I don't hear of anybody leaving money to endow an Old Maids' Home.

Couldn't we work in another open-air band concert before the snow flies? "Everybody's Column" is open to everybody who may want to use it on Saturdays only.

Recess is just as important as fire drill! Let the little ones stretch their legs. See that the choir has all its Christmas needs. Don't stint it. I suppose the Globe will soon be making another appeal to us to help feed the starving people in Shacktown, just as if we didn't have enough to do with our own poor.

MORRIS LEVY CONVICTED.

Hamilton Man Gets Three Years From Toronto Magistrate.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—"Perjury is getting to be too common in our courts. It is especially so among people of your nationality, where the contradictions are so glaring that it is evident someone is telling untruths," said Judge Winchester to Morris Levy, of Hamilton, in the Court of General Sessions yesterday afternoon.

His Honor sentenced Levy to three years' imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary for subornation of perjury. There was a large audience present, composed mostly of Hebrews, who had watched the case with great interest during the four days' trial.

The prosecution of Levy followed the confession of Solomon Altman to the effect that he had been induced by Levy on the promise of $50 to give false evidence in a case before Mr. J. S. Cartwright. Altman said that Levy only paid him $20 and refused to pay any more. He himself was tried, convicted and sentenced to a term for perjury.

Grace Van Studdiford Gets a Divorce From Husband.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 8.—Grace Van Studdiford, comic opera star, was granted a divorce to-day from Charles Van Studdiford, member of an old St. Louis family. Mrs. Van Studdiford alleged non-support and desertion.

The career of the Van Studdifords has not been financially monotonous by any means. When Chas. Van Studdiford married beautiful Grace Quine, the singer, he had all kinds of money, being a wealthy real estate dealer in St. Louis.

Mrs. Van Studdiford returned to the stage, and the bank account once again assumed normal proportions. But fortune No. 2 followed in the wake of fortune No. 1—and the comic opera queen stayed on the stage.

Mrs. Van Studdiford filed suit for divorce last summer. The cynical Bachelor rises to remark that when a girl jilts one fellow and marries another the one who was jilted will probably get over it sooner.

RAZORS AT THIS DANCE.

Colored Man Frightfully Cut Up In the Row.

Fred Paterson Taken to Hospital; Charles Smith to Cells.

Latter Claims It Was a Case of Self Defence.

Covered with blood from head to foot, Fred Paterson, colored, was led into No. 3 Police Station about 12.30 last night by Sam Casey, also colored. Paterson was put into the ambulance and hustled off to the hospital, where it was learned he had been carved up with a razor by another colored man named Charles Smith.

Detective Sayers was in No. 3 station when the wounded man was taken in, and to him, Casey said: "Go to Ben Workman's, Charlie Smith has carved Paterson up with a razor."

The detective got Constables Duffy, Piggott and Reynolds and they, in company with Detective Sayers, hustled down to Workman's house, 15 Wood Market. On arrival there the place looked as if there had been a long and bloody fight, for the floor was covered with blood.

TAFTS' GOOD WISHES. Washington, Nov. 9.—This being the 68th birthday of King Edward, President Taft to-day sent him the following congratulatory telegram: "I warmly congratulate your majesty on your happy completion of another year and wish for you all health and happiness in long years to come."

COLORED SET HAD A GAME.

Terence Scott Will Get His Dose For It To-morrow.

Archie Olney Pleaded Guilty of Theft From Employers.

Martin Griffin Given Time to Get Out of City.

Things looked decidedly shady in the Police Court this morning, for fully two-thirds of those in the court room were colored people.

Terence Scott, 58 York street, a big, repulsive looking man of African descent, was found guilty of keeping a gambling house. He will come up to-morrow for sentence.

Edward Taylor, the complainant, colored, said he knew defendant; had known him for some time. "What does he do?" asked the Crown Attorney. "Nothing, but play cards."

"How long did you stay there?" "Five or six times in the last month." "What do you play?" "Poker." "Did anybody get a rake-off?" "Yes, sir; Scott did."

John Taylor said he had been playing cards for three or four years. "Have you been in Scott's?" "Yes; several times." "Playing what?" "Poker." "Did anybody get a rake-off?" "Yes; Scott did, by means of a jack-pot."

"How often does a jack pot happen?" "Each time everybody passes." "How much would Scott make like that?" "Six or seven dollars a night." Scott on his own behalf said he and Edward Taylor were playing cards yesterday, when they got into an argument, and Taylor flourished a knife, and he (defendant) intimidated having Taylor arrested, but Taylor went to the police first and laid the information that he was keeping a gambling house.

Last night he said he was not playing poker, but a game of seven up, for drinks. "Do you ever play for money?" "No, sir; just for fun and drinks." In answer to questions if he worked, Scott said: "Yes, sah."

"Last week at Grimley for a farmer." "What was the name of the farmer?" Then it was that Scott had a severe attack of mental aberration, for he did not remember that farmer's name, though he tapped his old knowledge box in the hope that the farmer's name would be recalled.

His worship told defendant that the young men had laid a charge of him keeping a gaming house, and "if you didn't go on ought to be able to prove it." Scott said he would like to get out on bail to get witnesses, but the magistrate would not grant that request.

"If he gives us the names we'll get them," said the chief. "There's the landlord," said Scott. "What is his name?" "I don't know; he's a Jew man; I could get him in five minutes." Later the landlord in question turned up, and when he had given his evidence it proved that Scott had kept a place that had caused him (the landlord) to reprimand Scott.

"You are a very good witness for the Crown," said the Magistrate to the landlord. "Are you married?" asked his worship. "Why, yes, sir; don't you remember when I was married a year ago last Friday?" Archie Olney stole $34 from Hendrie & Co. He frankly admitted it, though his eyes filled with tears when he did so. He will come up in a few days for sentence. Olney worked as a teamster, and the $34 he appropriated was money he collected, and instead of turning it in he spent most of it. He told the court he offered to turn it in last Wednesday.

Olney is not a citizen of here; his home is in Toronto, where a wife and (Continued on Page 10.) FROM A FALL. Arthur Hurd Died In City Hospital This Morning.

Arthur Alfred, only child of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hurd, 117 Charlton avenue east, passed away at the City Hospital early this morning, from concussion of the brain, the result of a fall from the steps at the portal of the T. H. & R. Railway tunnel at the corner of Hunter and Park streets, some days ago. He was 7 years of age. The funeral will take place from his parents' residence, to Hamilton cemetery, on Thursday at 2.30 p. m.

A Spanish Beauty

PART SECOND.
CHAPTER I.

It lay deep down in the green heart of the Devon wood, that stately Norman pile known as Royal Rest.

Long and many a day ago, Norman masons had reared its lofty turrets, its massive battlemented towers, its wondrous Gothic windows, its rich and rare carved stone work and buttresses, where the clustering ivy and wild dog-rose bloomed luxuriantly now—a noble and storeyed old mansion that had stood many a siege, where exiled king and hunted prince had sought and found shelter in the troubled days gone by.

Royal Rest had been the noblest possession of a great and noble house—the only reminder of a long beaurocracy of such possessions. It had been in the sanctuary of hunted Jacobite nobles; countless Tory plots had been hatched between its grand old walls. Cromwell's petrels had battered it in vain when Lord Dudley Trevanance held it with a handful of retainers, and lost his little and fair, broad hand in the "White Rose" and the long heads of hair.

A grand old place! In its deep, dark forest lands the rare red deer trooped in countless herds. In its woodland pools the wild fowl flocked in legions.

Its glancing river was famed far and wide for eels and trout and on its sedgy margins the water lilies waved, and the white swans floated double, swan and shadow.

Nowhere else in all sunny Devon abounded the partridges, the pheasants and the rabbits as they abounded here, nowhere else crowded the mallards and the golden grebes, as they crowded at Royal Rest—a terrestrial paradise, sloping down to the sunlit sea, covering leagues of country, of silvery beach, of stately deer forest, of gorge-grown heath, where myrtles blossomed and wild roses leaved—a grand old pile, with a charm of silver-tongued bells, the pride of the county.

The August sun, streaming through their quaint, ivied windows, with their rich heraldic blazons upon the panes, stained with the crest of the house of Trevanance—a wounded eagle rending a hawk, and the imperial motto, "Omnia mea cum tibi" fell warm and mellow on the head of the last lord of the Royal Rest.

It was past noon, and he sat with three other men at breakfast, and the lofty apartment was perfumed with cigar smoke, and the fragrant odor of Burgundies and claret, peaches and grapes, and the roses and clematis that surrounded the windows, and wafted their odorous breath into the room.

He sat at the head of the table, Vivian Victor Trevanance, the last of his name and race. Cornish by birth, as his name implied—for "by Tre, Pol, and Pen ye may know the Cornish men"—this fair inheritance of Royal Rest came to him by the direct side, falling heirs directly in the main line.

The old Cornish homestead had long ago gone to rack and ruin, through his father's reckless prodigality, and the elder Trevanance had resigned it utterly to the owls and bats.

Recklessness was a characteristic of the race—a race hot in love, hot in hate, fabled in the days of the Plantagenets, and Lancaster, and of York—yes, in the days when they had fought and bled at Ascalon.

They had lost a marquise and a princely inheritance, but they were reckless still, under the velvet mask of latter-day custom, with the same fiery old Norman blood leaping their veins.

He sat at the head of the breakfast-table, glancing over the letters the morning mail had brought him—a tall, finely formed man of thirty, with a fair frank, handsome face, large, lazy brown eyes, and a profusion of silky brown hair and moustache.

The large, brown eyes looked at you with a gentle, dreamy indifference; the voice that spoke was slow and soft; every lingering, leisurely movement bespoke the very essence of indolence, inborn and imbred. The cool Norman blood seemed to flow hotly and sluggishly enough in the last Lord of Royal Rest.

He peeled his apricots and sipped his claret, and opened his letters—rosescent, rose-hued, many of them, for the conqueror's myrtle leaves strewed the path of Vivian Trevanance, and the fair ones went down before his handsome brown eyes, his ancient name, and his noble rank.

And constancy had never been his strong point; he bowed lightly at each fair shrine, but he worshipped long at none.

"Fetters are fetters, though they be wreathed of rose-chains," he said, wearily; "and, like our wounded eagle, we of Trevanance triumph in death as in life. We live free, or we cease to live."

Glancing slightly over the fair, perfumed billets ere he threw them aside, he paid little heed to the talk of the men over their omelets and salmon cutlets, though that talk ran on a very interesting theme—the debut of a new beauty.

"Loveliest thing the sun shines on!" declared Lord Guy Rivers, enthusiastically. "Saw her presented—made the greatest sensation of the century—delicious as one of Greuze's beauties—not that style, though—reminds you of Joanna of Naples, you know, only good hair—too beautiful, by Jove! for—she's nice!"

"Ah, bah! ice, with all that Morisco blood in her veins! Stuff and nonsense!" retorted Major Langley, of the Guards. "Pure Castilian, old fellow; no taint of the Moor. D'Alvarez on the distaff side—grand old stock, with a dash of Irish blood. Large, honest, honest, stark mad over her wondrous loveliness, and the Earl of Greenruff laid his coronet at her feet the third time he met her. She looked down on him as an empress might, said no, and swept away. Greenruff's gone to Central Africa to forget the disdainful little beauty among the aborigines."

"They call her the Rose of Castile—pretty, eh? The laureate dubbed her. A certain prince of the blood royal was so struck with her at the drawing-room that he called her the Rose of Castile—pretty, eh? The laureate dubbed her. A certain prince of the blood royal was so struck with her at the drawing-room that he called her the Rose of Castile—pretty, eh? The laureate dubbed her."

"Ob, yes! heard that story," interrupted Lord Racer. "Got snubbed for his pains, didn't he? I met Clontarf, the Mediterranean, last year. Grumpy old fellow. Looks like Byron's Manfred or Eugene Aram—chronic gloom and all that sort of thing, as if he had a murder on his mind, you know. By the way, Clontarf got the title in rather a roundabout way, didn't he? Was nephew of the last earl, and stepped in the shoes of a dead son. How was it?"

"This way," said Guy Rivers, one of those men who know everything. "It happened twenty years ago, or thereabouts, but I recollect it perfectly. Lord Roderick Desmond, Clontarf—late earl, of course, Clontarf's only son—was accused of murdering a little peasant girl—horribly unlikely, you know, but he was—and found guilty, and sentenced to be hanged. Three days before the sentence was to be executed he made his escape, somehow, and never was heard of again. They found a body, some months later, washed ashore, and people supposed it to be his. Well, the earl, very naturally, never held up his head after. Very fine fellow Lord Roderick was, they say; and when he died, General Desmond, then a hard-working London barrister, stepped into the title. He did more—he married the Lady Inez d'Alvarez, the betrothed of his late cousin, and with the vast wealth she brought him built up the decayed fortunes of the Desmonds. He took her back to Castile, and there our radiant, peerless, proud Lady Evelyn first opened her violet eyes on this mortal life. Pass the Burgundy—I have spoken!"

"Like an oracle!" said his host, flinging aside his last letter and selecting a peach. "And now, what's it all about?"

"The Rose of Castile, of course—the subject of the day."

"Ah! and pray, what new horticultural wonder is your Rose de Castile?"

"Hear him!" said Lord Racer, impatiently. "You vandals! If you had not spent the last three years in the land of the Arab and the Mussulman, you would not need to ask that question. Why, Clontarf's peerless daughter, to be sure! Lovely as your dreams of the angels, and worth not only a Jew's eye, but the whole body and bones of an angel!"

"My dear fellow!" remonstrated Vivian Trevanance, plaintively, "don't gush! It's fatiguing in August, and bad taste at any time. Besides, I've seen her."

"Seen her? You? Where?"

"In a young lady's proper sphere—at home. It was seven years ago, and I was doing the dutiful—making a sacrifice on the altar, and that sort of thing. In other words, the governor and my lord of Clontarf are absurdly intimate—a modern case of Pyrales and Orestes. David and Jonathan, you know—and General Trevanance desired me to meet him in Castile, at the residence of his Pythias, Clontarf. Well, it is always less fatiguing to yield than to rebel, I yielded, and went with the Earl, and my lord of Clontarf gushingly calls 'Clontarf's peerless daughter.'"

"Well, and isn't she? You cold-blooded critic! What else can you call her?"

"It was seven years ago," answered Trevanance, gravely. "I saw a dark fairy of eleven summers (that's the style in novels, isn't it?) with a pair of wonderful, solemn, shining eyes, who danced the bolero for us by moonlight, under a Castilian chestnut tree. Damsels of eleven years, in the transition state, I don't, as a rule, admire; but this tiny lady had very little of the bread-and-butter miss about her. I must say, I rather think I thought her pretty. I must have, for I offered to kiss her, she swayed away, and came like a young queen. I remember distinctly two slim, arched feet—altogether Spanish—would have served Oliver Meredith for one of his idols—and a pair of tapering ankles. They sent her back in a week to her convent, and I have still another vivid impression that she declined kissing me again at parting. If she were a prude at eleven, what might she be at eighteen?"

"An icicle! A Venus Victrix done up in Parian marble—beautiful as a goddess, if you like, and with no more heart than Minerva herself."

"Well, take care of yourself, Guy," said his host. "I never yet knew a man begin by abusing a woman that he did not end by loving her head about her. And you're likely to see more of her; she's coming down to Waverick Hall tomorrow with the Lyde-mores."

"To Waverick Hall! Whew! Who says so, pray?"

"The governor," Trevanance answered, lazily. "says he's coming here himself. Clontarf goes with his priceless daughter, and the Duke of Amethyst, in his train. Commend me to a woman who can trample on strawberry leaves, and the gorgeous Damozel of Castile has refused him twice, and still his grace's motto is, 'Try, try again!' There must be something in her, after all."

"Ah! she can talk, when she chooses," Guy Rivers said, dreamily—"she and the premier—I heard 'em at it at Lady Rocksiver's one night. She was as brilliant as though she had been born ugly and a blue-stocking."

"All women can talk," remarked Major Langley, decidedly. "I believe with the Persians that ten measures of talk came down from heaven, and the women took nine."

"Yes, they all can talk," said Trevanance, in his soft, slow voice; "but they seldom say anything worth hearing. They will chatter for hours, and we like to hear 'em. Nonsense from rose-hued lips is ever so much nicer, now and then, than sense between beard and moustache, but not for a permanence. I hope your Castilian Rose isn't clever, Rivers. If there is one thing I do abhor and detest, it is a clever woman. They have always been my pet abomination since I was a boy, petitions, and had a strong-minded nurse for governess, who read Stuart Mill and Adam McCulloch."

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency of the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties - Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 30 acres, solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain conditions a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties - Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted the homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption right may purchase homestead in certain districts. Price $10.00 per acre. Duties - Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

TRANCE FADES INTO DEATH.

Professor of Hypnotism Fails to Recall Subject to Life.

Audience at Somerville, N. J., Sees Unlooked For Performance.

Was Hurried to Hospital, But Physicians Could Not Restore Him.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 8. - As the result of being hypnotized by Professor Arthur Everton, of Newark, in the Somerville Theatre here to-night, Robert Simpson has been pronounced dead by the staff of the Somerset Hospital.

Simpson was hurried to the hospital in an ambulance after Professor Everton had tried for more than an hour to bring him out of a cataleptic state.

Professor Everton was placed under arrest at the Hotel Waldorf by Chief of Police Bellis and taken before Justice William R. Stuppchen, who paroled him in custody in order that he might go to the Somerset Hospital in company with another hypnotist and make another effort to restore Simpson to consciousness.

County Prosecutor John Regel on information received from the hospital near midnight ordered a warrant issued for Professor Everton's arrest on a charge of manslaughter, and he will be placed in the county jail here to-morrow unless Simpson shows signs of life during the night, which the hospital physicians decide is impossible.

Professor Everton opened a week's engagement in the Somerville Theatre to-night. He brought Simpson and a sixteen-year-old boy here from Newark as his subjects. Professor Everton says he does not know Simpson's street address. In his examination before Justice Stuppchen at 11 o'clock to-night, he said that he had hired Simpson in Newark a week ago and had since used him continuously as a subject without any ill-effects.

Everton said that Simpson had been drinking during the early part of the evening and had, also, complained to a number of people about feeling ill before he went on the stage, but he was not aware of his condition when he put him into a hypnotic state.

The physicians in the Somerset Hospital pronounced Simpson dead at midnight, but Everton and a fellow hypnotist are still making an attempt to bring him to life.

The authorities later to-day granted Everton, the hypnotist, permission to call in another professional hypnotist from Newark to make a last effort to revive the young man.

A third hypnotist from New York was sent for to-day by the management of the theatre.

Everton was arraigned to-day and held on a charge of manslaughter to await the action of the grand jury.

THE HAMILTON TIMES

TUESDAY, NOV. 9, 1909.

JUSTIFIED BY RESULTS.

There seems to be very little doubt that if the malign underground influence that is being brought to bear upon the Hydro-Electric Commission...

They had miscalculated. The people of Hamilton were becoming aroused to the methods of the schemers; and to their surprise, a majority of the aldermen refused to betray the city...

Now the Commission, through Hon. Adam Beck, intimates its willingness to insert the clause exempting us from the monopoly provisions of the contract...

But it is necessary to keep the gun loaded and cocked yet a while. Although these clauses may be inserted, there still remain in the contract other clauses which directly conflict with them...

Last night the Council, by a vote of 9 to 12, decided to lay the matter over until a committee of the Council could interview the Commission and endeavor to have the matter staffed so clearly that there would be no risk of sacrificing the city's rights and interests in signing the contract.

It is very gratifying to find that the majority of the Council is alive to guarding the city in the matter, and is not to be wheeled or bluffed into a giving away which would be a gross betrayal of duty.

sanity is at hand. Of course such a delusion does not pass in a moment, and we shall continue for some time to hear much of the idolatry of municipalism; but the tide is ebbing, and intelligence and reflection are sufficient safeguards against its evils.

A reasonable interpretation of Mayor Johnson's defeat is that it indicates the final rejection of the municipal ownership bait that has long been dangled before the eyes of Cleveland voters.

It is a lesson that the public should heed. It appeals to all thinking business men. But municipal ownership fanatics are seldom found among those.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

King Edward is 68 years old to-day. May his years and usefulness be prolonged!

A $200 fine for recording $1 bets would appear to be discouraging to the business of handbook making.

A Scottish Company offers insurance to aviators. We should imagine that in the present condition of the art, the rates would have to be high.

The superintendent of Pittsburg Public Schools declares that football, as now played, is too dangerous a game. "I think," says he, "fighting is a better sport. Too many young men are killed and seriously injured in football, and the game should be done away with."

Defalcations which may amount to several million dollars have been discovered in the German navy yards. Sometimes graft, as well as patriotism, helps to account for the cry for huge naval expenditures.

We do not like the name, "The Southam Home for Incurable Consumptives." It is too long, for one thing; and it is objectionable from a sentimental point of view. Could it not be shaped so that the doom would be removed? It would be equally useful without that feature.

The $200,000 good roads by-law has been prepared and sent out to be submitted to the ratepayers. We are piling up a good large sum in debt, but it is, at least, satisfactory to know that we are getting some good permanent roadways therefor.

The House of Lords has rejected the London Elections Bill, the principal purposes of which were the fixing of the elections all on one day, and abolishing plural voting. Their action in throwing out the bill seems to have been purely obstructive.

The People's National Progressive Consolidated Club, of Birmingham, Ala., has forwarded a second $25 subscription to the United States Government to aid in building the Panama Canal. The donations have been accepted. The Canal Commission will probably feel renewed enthusiasm in its work.

Three disorderly students of the University of Toronto have been suspended for one year, one has been fined $50, while another has been ordered to pay for damage done to property of the Toronto Cricket Club. The loss of a year from their course is a severe punishment; but if it results in teaching the lesson that university students have no license to be roughs, it will serve a useful purpose.

They have a school strike in Cleveland, the pupils demanding shorter hours. They object to afternoon sessions. It is said that some of the parents support the children in their demands.

Toronto Controllers have appropriated $500 to get an estimate of a system of tube railways. But they don't expect to get it built for that. Controller Hocken has an idea of making the Hamilton Radial contribute to the scheme by charges for running rights.

The Fire and Water Committee has reduced by $1 the water rate charged for baths and closets. The reduction will meet with general approval. The varying rates per 1,000 gallons charged to citizens for metered supply, and the exorbitant figure charged to householders still remain to be dealt with.

Complaints are made in Nova Scotia that twenty, and more, young men have been brought from Scotland to take responsible positions on the staff of a leading bank in the Province. Not long ago a lot of young men from the old country were brought out by Ontario banks, it being said that properly educated youths were difficult to secure.

It was very funny to note in the Herald of last night, which paper has been ringing the changes on the assertion that the Mayor had prevented the commission from knowing what the Council desired, the story that he was "trying to make an appointment" to discuss the Hydro-Electric agreement with the Commission!

The local Hydro organ presents a case—we take its word for it—in which an electric power user is charged something like $70 a year for seven-tenths of a horse-power. We do not know anything about the circumstances; but if they are all given, it would appear that the rate is nearly as high as in Switzerland, where the much-touted Geneva publicly-owned and operated plant charges $18 to $24 a horse-power for 50 to 100 h.p., and $64 for one half horse-power.

The Toronto Telegram implores Whitney to speak out in opposition to the "Montreal-made" naval policy of R. L. Borden, and to hasten to the "defence of a policy of direct naval contributions to the defence of maritime freedom, to the safety of the British Empire."

And is the situation as desperate as all that? Does nothing stand between the British Empire and ruin but Sir James Whitney? And will one snarl from him, one dagger thrust at R. L. Borden, and one theatrical shake of his long, lean, forefinger dispel the threatening clouds which hang over the British world?

The Hydro-Manic organ purrs that the Hydro-Electric Commission, "especially with Hon. John S. Hendrie, one of Hamilton's representatives in the legislature, on it, would not do anything that was unfair to Hamilton, and if the commission did not do the fair thing, it was responsible, through the Government, to the people, who could turn it out of office."

The Herald yesterday resorted to the subterfuge of arguing that in the by-law authorizing the issue of debentures for a distribution plant the ratepayers voted for "a contract" to take power "exclusively" from the Hydro-Electric Commission. Of course the organ knows that they voted for no such "contract."

Mr. Henpeck had hesitated a long while about doing this bold thing, but he felt that now was the time or never. "Dear," he said, in a very timid voice, "I wish you wouldn't call me 'Leo' any more."

OR GUFF. (London Advertiser). "Just rot," is Sir Thomas Lipton's sentimental comment upon the Anglo-German war talk.

HOT CROSS BUNS. Toronto Globe.) The name "Red Cross" cannot be used except under authority of the Geneva Red Cross Society, but hot cross buns are still free from legal embargo.

THAT WILL BE NEVER. (Toronto News.) Certain deputations have asked Sir Wilfrid Laurier to fire Lieutenant-Governor Gibson. The thing will be done just as soon as D'Arcy Hinds forgets that he is Irish.

EXAMPLE AT HAND. (Chicago Tribune.) The Pastor (dining with the family)—Ah, yes, Brother Smithers, it is the little things of this life that count. Little Willie (in a loud whisper)—Maw, that's the sixth biscuit he's took.

THE ONLY ONE. (Louisville Courier-Journal.) "Who was this fellow Pepps, and what is his claim to fame?" "His claim to fame is well founded, my friend. He's the man who kept a diary for more than a year."

DRAWS TRADE. (Branford Examiner.) It is sometimes asked if a post office usually draws trade? It is generally considered that it does, and it is quite certain that a post office most frequently located in the centre of a great shopping district than a market is.

IMMANUEL FREE OF DEBT. Mortgage Burned While People Made Merry. An act of incendiarism was committed last night in Immanuel Congregational Church, Locke street south—wanton incendiarism, and the incendiary was His Worship Mayor McLaren.

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER.

The Secret of a Famous Healing-Balm. The rediscovery of a secret that has lain hidden in the dust of 20 centuries is an event full of fascinating interest, and the story of Zam-Buk, the world-famed first-aid and skin cure, will always enlist attention.

Zam-Buk has been welcomed in mansion and cottage, and the people of two hemispheres realized that they have been placed in possession of an absolutely unique cure for skin complaints.

Zam-Buk has an affinity for the human skin such an ordinary ointment or liniment can possibly possess. Besides soothing pain and allaying irritation, it possesses unique antiseptic and germicidal qualities which virtually chase disease germs out of their hiding places in the skin tissues.

Zam-Buk is daily needed in every household, and is sold by all druggists and stores at fifty cents a box. Refuse harmful and dangerous substitutes sometimes "pushed" as being "just as good."

FROM THE KING.

Birthday Honors Conferred on Several Persons. London, Nov. 8.—Admiral Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Edgar Speyer, the banker, and Col. Seely, Under-Secretary for the Colonies, are included in King Edward's birthday honors announced to-day.

London, Nov. 8.—Three Canadians are included in the list of birthday honors issued to-night. They are: W. W. Cory, Canadian deputy minister of the interior; Col. Seely, connected with the British Columbia office, and A. B. Perry. Mr. Cory and Mr. Perry are made commanders of the order of Michael and George (C.M.G.), and Mr. Seely is made a privy councillor.

GOT HONORS.

Three Canadians Remembered on King Edward's Birthday. The loss to the Big Four Railway through the defalcations of C. L. Warriner, local Treasurer of the road at Cincinnati, will ultimately amount to about $500,000, according to a statement issued in New York by Albert H. Harris, Vice-President of the New York Central line, including the Big Four.

GOOD SHORT STORIES "Yes, father, all but the one pastor had; it was in the kitchen." "Why did you not tell me?" asked the pastor. "Well," with childish frankness, "I didn't think you would take the biggest one on the dish!"—Delineator.

When the curtain of the Grand Opera House went up last evening there were disclosed to the audience twenty of Wales' sweetest singers, attired in varicolored skirts, red cloaks and the odd-looking high, conical hats, which are the exclusive property of Welsh ladies as head ornaments. It was a very pretty sight and the audience showed its appreciation by loud applause. In the second part they appeared in regulation white costumes. The party was the Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir, under the direction of Madam Hughes-Thomas, and brought here by the Hamilton Welsh Society. The Sons of Wales are not a numerous colony here, but they were there to a man. The general audience was not as large as the merits of the concert deserved, for Welsh vocalists have to travel far to hear anything to equal the little band of singers who charmed last evening's auditors.

The programme was blended sufficiently to please all tastes. Some of Wales' most striking parsons mingled with chorals numbers in English; while Irish, Scotch, burlesque Italian and American selections were added for good measure. Besides these there were several most melodious solos, and the whole made a concert that will long be remembered by those who were wise enough to attend it. The Welsh numbers included "Men of Harlech," "Yr Haf," "Y Deyra Pur" and "Cyhan Aberdyfi." The selection in English were "Andalucia Beloro," "Sweetest May," "Miserere Scene from 'Il Trovatore'" and a medley of American airs. The singing of the various numbers was a delight. Wales is noted the world over as a land of wondrous chorals singing—her sopranos and contraltos are brilliant, her tenors rich and her basses powerful—and the little choir that sang last evening was truly representative of the gentler half. The voices, in ensemble, were magnificent, the upper parts clear and ringing and the lower resonant and big in tone, with a balance and quality that made each number a gem. Madam Hughes-Thomas has her singers under complete control, it is all eyes on the conductor from the lift of the baton to the last note, and they respond to the quiet, unobtrusive heat with promptitude and accuracy. From the deep fervor displayed in the somewhat weird national songs to the melodious merriment of "Italian Salad," the ladies gave every evidence of high vocal attainment. Judging from standards set here in recent years, there was an absence of pianissimo, that produces such pleasing effects, and there was occasional exaggerated emphasis, but, altogether, the choir's work was of the highest. Madam Hughes-Thomas is a most successful conductor, and her skill as a trainer. The enthusiastic audience demanded encores over and over again in the last number bringing four with the insatiable encore fiend clamoring for more. Among the most effective English numbers were "Sweetest May," "The Miserere Scene," "Miserere" and "Langdon being splendid as the soloists, and the American medley.

The soloists made a strong impression. Miss Ethel Jakeman's "The Dear Homeland," Miss J. Emmanuel's "Killarney Home," Miss Davies' "Cymru Fydd," Miss Gwyneth Lewis' "Dear Wandering One," and a song by Miss Alice M. Lewis were all well sung and encores were demanded from all the soloists. Madam Hughes-Thomas accompanied them artistically.

The concert closed with the singing of the Welsh national hymn and "God Save the King" in Welsh and English.

During the evening a long list of carnations was brought on the stage by little Miss McDonald and presented to the talented conductor.

A return engagement of the choir has been arranged for Friday, December 3, in Association Hall.

THE WEEK AT BENNETT'S. A pleasing programme is offered at the Bennett Theatre this week, and large audiences yesterday afternoon and evening left the theatre well satisfied with the entertainment. Undoubtedly nothing to compare with Hassan Ben Ali's Arabs in their whirlwind gymnastic and pyramidal act, has been seen in this city. Their performance provoked the audience to rounds of enthusiastic applause, and their work certainly bordered on the sensational. As tumblers they stand prominent, and their pyramids are remarkable. The next big hit of the bill is the Scotch comedian and his bonnie lassie, Peter Donald and Meta Carson, presenting "Alex. McLean's Dream." This popular team was seen here last season, and was given a great reception when it appeared on the stage yesterday. Donald has deteriorated not a whit since his last appearance, and his Scotch stories and songs were great laugh producers. Horton and La Triska in "The Clown and the Human Doll" gave one of the funniest acts seen hereabouts for some time. The biggest hit of this act was sending the doll through the audience for examination. Wheeler Earl and Vera Curtis were good in a singing skit entitled "Much Ado About Nothing." The title was the only Shakespearean part of the number. The novel farce, "A Corner Hair," by Howard Truesdell and company, was irresistible, and the audience was kept in a continual roar of laughter during the twenty minutes it was on the stage. The remaining numbers and the moving pictures make up a programme as good as any seen here this season.

"SEPTIMIUS." A great dramatic treat is promised at the Grand to-morrow night in the appearance of George Arliss in "Septimus." Speaking of the performance the Toronto Star says: "A production unique in theme and portrayal is 'Septimus,' produced for the first time anywhere at the Royal Alexandra Theatre yesterday. It is a play founded upon W. J. Lockie's novel of the same name, dramatized by Philip Liffell, and presented by Harrison Grey Fiske, with George Arliss in the title role. Septimus Dix is an inventor, who lives in his own world. He is whimsical, quixotic, absent-minded, unconcerned with the ordinary things of life. His like, doubtless, does not exist, but George Arliss makes him a living, iden-

Strong Help For Weak Kidneys

"Fruit-a-tives" is the Best Kidney Medicine in the World.

If people only realized the danger of Weak Kidneys, and the value of "Fruit-a-tives," there would be practically no Kidney Disease in Canada. When the Kidneys become congested (too full of blood) or strained from overwork, they can quickly be made well and strong again by taking a box or two of "Fruit-a-tives." Pain in the back, frequent headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, coated tongue, constant desire to urinate—these are the common symptoms of congestion of the kidneys. The only possible way to relieve this congestion is to force the bowels and skin to rid the system of more waste matter and thus allow the inflamed kidneys to rest and grow strong again. "Fruit-a-tives," being fruit juices intensified, soothes and stimulates the kidneys, and at the same time rouses the bowels and skin to healthy action. "Fruit-a-tives," by their prompt action on bowels and skin, almost instantly relieves and cures pain in back and promptly take away every trace of Kidney Disease. If you are suffering with your kidneys, begin at once to take "Fruit-a-tives," and you will quickly realize the value of these tablets. At dealers—50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c—order from Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

ORGANIZED IN WARD 5.

Citizens' Campaign Had Enthusiastic Meeting Last Night.

Eric Bower Talks on Organization and Prospects.

Pastor Philpott Tells of Violations of the Law.

The temperance workers' meeting in Ward 5 for organization under the Citizens' Campaign Committee was held last night in Gospel Tabernacle, and was attended by enthusiastic workers.

William Yeates, President of the C. C. C., acted as chairman, and in opening the meeting called upon Eric Bower, secretary of the Central Executive, to explain the system of organization which proved so successful last year. Mr. Bower said the appointment of a chairman, a vice-chairman, a secretary, a treasurer and an Executive Committee, composed of two members from each church in the ward, had been demonstrated to be effective in the way of organization.

All present agreeing to this plan, the election of officers resulted as follows: A. Norman, chairman.

M. Dawson, vice-chairman. F. A. Elder, secretary. Charles Wilson, treasurer.

The different churches will be asked to furnish the officers with the names of workers who will act on the executive.

In continuing Mr. Bower outlined and explained the plans of the Citizens' Campaign Committee for the coming campaign, and said it would be necessary for the executive of the ward organization to keep in touch with the central office. In conclusion, he said the time had come when something had to be done in Ward 5 to aid in the reduction of licenses, there being 31 hotels to 3 churches in that ward.

Rev. P. W. Philpott, pastor of Gospel Tabernacle, was the next speaker, and pointed out the large extent of law-breaking being carried on by the saloons in the neighborhood of his church. He remarked that on one occasion he saw 27 men come out of a saloon on Sunday within ten minutes. He felt that the time had come when it was necessary to do something to prevent this, and he thought that it was through organization that it could be stopped.

J. M. Robinson, Vice-President of the C. C. C., spoke a few words on the success achieved last year, and on the high standing of the men endorsed by the campaign this year.

J. B. Williams spoke briefly on the system of canvassing which would be used this year.

It was left in the hands of the executive to interview possible candidates and to appoint a chairman for each polling division. A meeting will be called as soon as they are ready to report.

Society

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Sanford, the quarterly meeting of Hamilton Local Council of Women was held at Wesanford, yesterday afternoon, and combined business with pleasure.

Mrs. Sanford, president, was in the chair. Miss Wood, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting, Miss E. Harris, corresponding secretary, read letters relating to business of the Council. The report of the treasurer showed a balance of $88.89. The following ladies were received as individual members: Mesdames A. Elmore Richards, John G. Lavan, George Vallance, C. W. Graham, Frank Wanger, Gartshore, George F. Glasco, S. F. Lazier, Hardy, W. G. Hawkins, Overell, Drynan, Hugh G. Baker, Lucas, Ingersoll Olmsted, R. O. MacKay, Drummond, McGregor, Misses Tucker, Slater and L. G. Butler.

Lady Taylor, convenor of the finance committee of the Quinquennial Congress of Women, reported that $7,161.75 was raised for the expenses of the meeting in Toronto. Of this the 1869 local councils gave a total of $569. The Ontario Government gave $1,000, and the Ontario Government $700, Toronto City Council gave $200. Everything is not settled yet, but Lady Taylor hopes there will be a balance of at least $500, which will go to the National Council of Canada.

Lady Edgar, president of National Council, spoke of the value of the meetings, both in point of what those who attended them learned from the different speakers, and because it had been a grand advertisement for Canada. She read the letters from delegates, written from their homes in Sweden, Belgium, Austria and all expressing appreciation of the great hospitality received and their admiration for Canada. Some asked for photographs of Hamilton, Toronto, and other places they visited, and she is planning to give illustrated lectures on Canada and what they saw there.

Mrs. Lyle, in moving a vote of thanks to Lady Edgar, told of some of the interesting meetings of the Quinquennial. Mrs. D. Crerar, in one of her happy speeches, seconded the motion, which was heartily applauded.

Lady Edgar said she wanted to move a vote of thanks to Mrs. Sanford for her generous hospitality to the members of the Quinquennial. She read the letter in writing to her had spoken of their visit to Hamilton as one of their happiest memories, and she also entertained many of them in Muskoka. Lady Taylor, in seconding it, paved a high tribute to Mrs. Sanford also.

Mrs. Sanford read a letter from the honorary president, Mrs. J. M. Gibson, regretting she was unable to be present and expressing her good wishes for the success of the Hamilton local Council.

Mrs. Heurner Mullin and Mrs. George Allan sang "The Angelus." Miss Marjorie Trusdale being accompanied. Mrs. W. F. Brennan sang "The Birds That Came in Spring," and "Through the Forest." Mrs. Mullin being accompanied.

Afternoon tea was served in the dining room from a table decorated with white roses. Lady Taylor, Mrs. Lyle and Mrs. Langrill presided, assisted by Misses Dorothy Henderson, Violet Crerar, Ethel Calder, Strathmore Findlay, Alice Hope, Emma Vallance, Laura Harvey, Dorothy Gates, Constance Turnbull, Eleanor Lazier.

Mrs. Leggat moved a vote of thanks to the singers, which was seconded by Lady Taylor.

Lady Edgar complimented Hamilton Local Council on its excellent work and said it was an example and inspiration to other local councils.

About 200 ladies were present.

St. Elizabeth Chapter, I. O. D. E. will hold its meeting to-morrow, Wednesday, Nov. 10, at 10.30 a. m., in the Y. W. C. A. parlors. A large attendance is requested to welcome Mrs. B. B. Constantine, Turnhill council regent, to the chair for the remainder of the season. Mrs. W. R. Davis having resigned on account of living out of the city.

THE KESWICK CONVENTION.

Well Attended Meetings Held In Centenary Yesterday.

Walter Sloan Spoke on the Communion In Afternoon.

Rev. Geo. Litchfield on Sin In Light of Calvary.

The opening yesterday afternoon of the special services which are being held in Centenary Methodist Church this week was well attended. The speaker, Walter Sloan, of London, England, representative of the Keswick Convention, gave an inspiring address. He selected as his theme the word "Communion," and pointed out all it represented. He contrasted the two churches, the Philippian and that of Corinth. The word fellowship was what freely expressed the meaning of communion. The communion between the Philippian Church and Paul consisted of the church supplying the needs for Paul, for their part and on his part, the receiving of it. There was no such communion between the church of Corinth and the apostle. Communion was the act of giving on God's side and of receiving on man's side. God had given his only begotten Son for the sins of the world. Such being God's gift before the communion was complete, the acceptance by man was necessary. There could be no deepening of spiritual life until spiritual life existed, nor could there be a deepening of communion until it existed. Living in a world for which Christ had died on the cross to redeem it from the bondage of sin, the question which faced the non-believer was: "Has He redeemed you?" When there had been a transaction with God then a deepening of the spiritual life would be the result. After such transaction the heart that abides in Him was always giving, and thus direct communion was established with God. Christ referred to it when He said: "Abide in Me and I in you." One of the dangers confronting the Christian was that he might disregard the Bible, the best of books, and take a fonder liking for fiction.

In closing he referred to the most pressing needs being revival and a deeper sense of the need of Christianity.

In the evening Rev. George Litchfield preached a very interesting sermon on the revelation of personal sin in the light of Calvary. By his careful handling of the subject and clear expounding he was able to command the attention of the large audience from start to finish. He grouped the figures in the light of the cross, and spoke of the various parts they took. He spoke of Pilate, Herod and all types of individual sin. He said the reward of sin was eternal punishment, but the reward of the true faith, contrasted to his, was vastly different; for Christ had gone to die to prepare a mansion for His children.

In closing he directed all to follow the straight and narrow path, which led to eternal joy, and not forsake it for the wider and more easily traversed one which led to destruction.

FARMER RELEASED. Man Whose Wife Was Electrocuted Freed of Murder Charge.

Auburn, Nov. 9.—After spending a year without fifteen feet of the electric chair, from which he was saved by a decision of the Court of Appeals a few weeks ago, James D. Farmer to-day walked out of Auburn prison a free man, so far as a charge of murder is concerned. He was accompanied by his brother, John F. Farmer, of Watertown, and by Under Sheriff Charles Hosmer, of Jefferson County.

His release from condemned row was obtained on an order of Justice W. N. Rogers. He would not speak about his case, but between puffs of a cigar while waiting for the train said: "I do not know what they intend to do with me. At any rate, I am glad to get back to Watertown, because they will be able to bring Peter to see me. They wrote me often about him and he has grown to be quite a boy."

Peter Farmer is the child for whom Mary Farmer robbed and murdered aged Sarah Brennan.

Stanley Mills & Co., Limited Tuesday, Nov. 9th, 1909

This store practically introduced in Hamilton the feature of prompt exchange of goods and the return of money. True some merchants, much older in the business world than Stanley Mills & Co., have exchanged goods and even returned the purchase money, but there was not that promptness and good grace about it that has always been exhibited in return transactions at this store.

We look on the refund of money or exchange of goods as a customer's right—then why hesitate, why haggle over it? Goods purchased from us that are not satisfactory are (under nearly all conditions) returnable, such things as toilet goods, hair goods, patterns and a few other lines are exceptions, however. This is done simply as a protection to you, but feel safe that in buying at this store goods must prove satisfactory to you above all other considerations.

VALENS. Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cowie.

Robt. Valens and John Robson, former young men of this neighborhood, who are at present lying ill in the Melfort hospital, Saskatchewan, are in a fair way for recovery.

Miss Mary Campbell, of Lucknow, is visiting her cousin, Miss Agnes Cowie. Mrs. Coburn and Miss Sadie Coburn attended the marriage of Miss Gertrude Hannon, of Hannon, and Mrs. S. J. Anderson, of Bartonville, on Wednesday last week.

Mr. Robt. McQueen replied in an appropriate way. Addresses, violin and instrumental music, songs and recitations followed. Guests were present from Toronto, Galt, Lucknow, Glenora, Kirkwall and Grief.

FOUND DEAD. Mrs. Robert Daniels is under the doctor's care.

Mrs. John Valens has returned home after a pleasant two months' visit with her daughter and other friends.

Mr. Wm. Gilbert, of Hamilton, spent Thanksgiving with his parents here.

Mrs. Richard Telford, of Paris, visited last week at Mr. Robt. Telford's in the village.

An event of unusual interest took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cowie, Mellow Let farm, on Tuesday, Nov. 2, when about forty of their relatives and friends assembled to celebrate their golden wedding. At 4 o'clock a sumptuous wedding dinner was served, to which ample justice was done. A programme followed, during which Rev. Neil Lockie, of Kirkwall, acted as chairman and gave a fine address. Mr. and Mrs. Cowie were then asked to go forward, when a beautiful address was read by Mrs. Coburn, and Adam Valens, on behalf of those assembled, presented them with a purse of gold. Other beautiful presents were also given. Mr. Robt. McQueen replied in an appropriate way. Addresses, violin and instrumental music, songs and recitations followed. Guests were present from Toronto, Galt, Lucknow, Glenora, Kirkwall and Grief.

THE ADDRESS OF GOMPERS.

Great Labor Meeting in Toronto Yesterday.

President's Address to American Federation of Labor.

Four Hundred Delegates—Meetings Open to Public.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—"The attention of friends and foes is equally attracted to this convention. Let us bring hope, comfort and encouragement to the one, and disappointment and dismay to the other," said President Samuel Gompers in beginning his address to the assembled delegates of the American Federation of Labor yesterday. It was the 29th annual convention for the Federation, and the 27th Presidential address for Mr. Gompers. It was also the first convention of the organization held in Canada. The floor of Massey Hall was comfortably filled with the four hundred and fifty delegates, while the general public, wives and friends of the delegates filled the galleries. Here and there on the ground floor could be detected the waving millinery which betokened the presence of a lady delegate. Contrary to the prophecies of the anti-fraternalists, their presence was discouraging neither to themselves nor to their male associates. Far from detracting from the value of the assembly, it gave a suggestion of representativeness which a convention confined entirely to one sex or the other would have lacked.

CONVENTION AN OPEN ONE.

President Gompers took advantage of the presence of the public in the galleries to make a criticism of some other public bodies. "When the manufacturers' associations meet," he said, "they conduct their sessions in private. We, on the contrary, have nothing to hide. We chose a hall on purpose that the press and public might see and hear all that is done."

GOMPERS' ADDRESS.

The President's address took over three hours to deliver, and at its close he was cheered again and again. The address was chiefly remarkable for an attack he made upon Justice Wright of the District of Columbia, who a year ago passed sentences of imprisonment on President Gompers, Vice-President Mitchell, and Secretary Morrison for contempt of court, and for the support he gave to the proposal that the American Federation of Labor and the European Federation of Labor form an International Federation of Labor.

President Gompers, in acknowledging the welcome which had been extended to the members of the convention, said that, though this was the first time the convention had met in Canada, it was not strangers to Canada. Turning to the labor situation in Canada, to which President Gompers had referred, he deplored any effort to bring about a schism between the organizations of the workers of Canada. "I am the most ardent supporter of the union of all workers who may differ from me, but it is difficult to reconcile the attitude of these men with the conservation of the interests of the men of labor. I would not if I could, our movement would not if it could, and it could not if it were to betray the loyalty of Canada's workers to Canada. What may be in store for you or us on this side of the line or the other we do not know. We have our day dreams, and sometimes owing to our impatience we may run ahead of development.

"But whatever the future may have in store for us, we do know this: that while we hope to establish the best possible relations between men of all nations, there is one common destiny among the English-speaking people to that our battle for civilization and right. I venture to say that of the men called upon to officer the international trade unions of the American continent there is a greater percentage of Canadians in executive positions than members belonging to the United States. In the American trade unions we realize that the border line on the map does not interfere with the unity of the interests of the employed classes on both sides of the line." He appealed to the workers of Canada to make common cause with the Federation for war or for peace.

In presenting his report to the afternoon session, President Gompers gave a summary of the proceedings in the Bucks Store & Range Company's action against the Federation, which has resulted in himself, Vice-President John Mitchell and Secretary Frank Morrison being sentenced to prison, respectively, for one year, nine and six months for disobedience of an injunction issued by the Federal Court of Columbia. The injunction was to prohibit the publication of the company's name upon the "We Don't Buy" list of the American Federation of Labor. While an appeal on the original injunction was pending, Justice Wright passed the sentences for disobedience. Of this phase of the matter President Gompers said:

"An unprejudiced, impartial judge might well have deferred a decision in a contempt case alleging violation of an injunction while an appeal upon the validity of the injunction itself was pending, and was being considered for decision by a higher court.

"The language and manner of Justice Wright in delivering his opinion upon the guilt of the man charged with disobeying the terms of the injunction, the fact that he had given his opinion or permitted it to be given out in advance, the whole mockery and formality of asking us whether we had any reasons to assign why sentence should not be pronounced, when he had determined on the sentences in advance; all these, as well as the manner and manner of the arrangement for the scene and the delivery of the opinion and sentence, indicated the unfitness of the man to wear the judicial robe and occupy the judicial position."

President Gompers claimed that the sentences passed upon himself and his colleagues constituted an attack on the rights of free speech.

"Even if we had been guilty of unlawful conspiracy and coercion and intimidation—which we were not—surely there must be some more adequate punishment than by a process of injunction. In fact, existing laws provide greater punishments for these offences, and we respectfully submit that if we are guilty of them we should be tried by the due process of law before a jury of our peers and if found guilty punished as the law provides, rather than be subjected to the caprice of a judge who solely determines the sufficiency of the charge, the guilt of the defendant and who imposes punishment as his whim may prompt."

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION.

The president took up a considerable portion of his report with the details of his recent trip to Europe, when he visited the principal cities of Britain, France, Holland, Germany, Austria, Italy and Switzerland. Speaking of the proposed World's International Federation of Labor which he presented to the Conference of International Secretariats in Paris, he said: "The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor adopted two resolutions to be presented to the International Congress at Paris in the form of suggestions. They are as follows:

"The International Trade Union Congress recommends to the trade union centres (general federations or congresses) of all countries the discussion of the proposition of establishing an International Federation of Labor, the autonomy of the trade union movement of each country being ordained and guaranteed, the purpose of the federation being for the protection and the advancement of the rights, interests and justice of the wage-earners of all countries, and the establishment of international fraternity and solidarity."

It shall be the purpose of the labor movement of all countries to endeavor to the fullest extent to prevent the workers from one country being induced to emigrate to other countries during the periods of industrial depression. It shall be the duty of the recognized representatives of the labor movement of the country affected to notify the International Secretary, who in turn shall at once communicate the situation to the representative of the trade union movement of each country.

"These I submitted for such consideration as the conference could give, and I entered into a detailed statement in support of their favorable consideration. Of course, it was entirely out of the question for the conference to vote upon them, inasmuch as they were not in the agenda of business, and were not presented in the form of propositions by a duly accredited delegate, but the conference decided that both questions shall be printed upon the programme or agenda of the next International Conference, which is to be held at Budapest, August, 1911.

"On the whole, the conference served to clear the field for a possible deliberative international body, democratically organized, leaving to the labor movement in each country its autonomous rights, and solving questions not within the sphere of trade unionism.

"I am fully persuaded, and have no hesitancy in recommending, that, though the International Secretariat leaves much to be desired, yet the best interests of the workers of America will be served by our adherence thereto. Financially the cost would be but small, the substantial benefits would of necessity be exceedingly meagre, yet the spirit of international fraternity which it would foster would be immeasurable. I feel assured also that our adherence to the International Secretariat would hasten the establishment of an International Federation of Labor."

MUST RETAIN THE BOYCOTT.

"The fight must continue to uphold the right to boycott, not because the workers have any particular love for the boycott. Indeed, they have no more love for the boycott than for the strike. Both are extreme measures of defence forced upon the workers by unjust conditions. The workers fully realize that the boycott and the strike are means to be used to maintain their rights and promote their welfare when seriously threatened by hostile, greedy and unfair employers when no other remedy seems available. It is not the strike or the boycott itself which matters, so much as the recognition of the lawful right to employ either or both when necessary. With the boycott, cleared of wrongful charges and misapprehension and recognized as a lawful right, we will find its use diminished. It will be a power held in reserve and used only when no other remedy is adequate."

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.

"The American labor movement appreciates the fact that experience has shown that education industrially is but one phase of the growing recognition of labor's rights, and that in this respect it is closely related to all the general work of the trade union movement, the movement which has since its inception stood for constantly increasing better opportunities, better factory and labor conditions, better home life, and the protection of the young and the innocent child.

"Our movement in advocating industrial education protests most emphatically against the elimination from our Public School system of any line of learning now taught. Education, technically or industrially, must be supplementary to and in connection with our modern school system. That for which our movement stands will tend to make better workers of our future citizens, better citizens of our future workers."

At the conclusion of his address President Gompers received an ovation from Mr. Frank Morrison, the Secretary, then presented his report, which stated that there was $167,303 in the treasury, the balance of receipts over expenditures for the past year being $29,675. There had been 693 strikes during the year, and $2,068,276 had been expended to sustain them. Members of the Federation on strike.

FIGHT FOR FAIR DEAL ALREADY BEARS FRUIT.

Power Commission Grants Concession Which the Hydro Bunch Were Prepared to Sacrifice Only a Week Ago.

Adam Beck, as Usual, Writes Ambiguously—Warm Meeting of the Council—Vote 12 to 9 For Hamilton.

The city's action a week ago in calling the Hydro-Electric Commission's bluff has already forced that august body to come down a peg and partly meet the demand of a majority of the aldermen for a square deal for Hamilton.

At the Council meeting last night a letter was read from Hon. Adam Beck, in which he announced that the commission would agree to insert the amendment to clause 2b, which reads as follows:

"The corporation of the city of Hamilton shall not be bound to take power exclusively from the commission, and shall at all times be at liberty to take power from any other source, or generate power, and the power supplied by the commission may be used by the corporation of the city of Hamilton for any purpose, except as set forth in paragraph 11 hereof."

This is one concession that was well worth while fighting for, and if nothing else vindicates the aldermen who refused to be flustered by the commission when the Hydro clique insisted that it was useless to resume negotiations for terms.

Mr. Beck's letter, however, was ambiguous, for, while he agrees to insert the amendment to paragraph 2b, he announces that the commission will not eliminate other paragraphs to clause 10, which directly conflict with the concession made. In fact of this, and the fact that Hon. Adam Beck intimated to Mayor McLaren that the commission would meet a committee from the Council, nine aldermen voted last night to close a contract.

Twelve aldermen, however, insisted on protecting the city's rights, and the power question stands over until a small committee to be named by the Mayor talks the matter over with the commission.

MR. BECK'S LETTER.

Mr. Beck's letter was as follows: London, Nov. 6. "It appears that some uncertainty has arisen in the minds of some members of the City Council as to the position of the commission with respect to the terms of the contract to be entered into between the city and the commission upon an application by the city under paragraph 11 of the agreement of May 4, 1908.

"The commission had always desired as far as possible to meet the views of the Council so long as the other municipalities, original parties to the contract, were not prejudiced, and the terms of the letter of June 25 last from the solicitor were not varied.

"From newspaper reports of the meeting of the Council on Monday last the commission at its regular meeting on Thursday assumed that communications would be received from the city clerk, as to the amendment, in the resolution passed by the Council. Later members of the commission were to be out of town for some time, and the proposed amendments were considered.

"It appeared to the commission that the amendments are in part at least points of detail only, different in expression but the same in effect. The commission has not hesitated in any case to use any form of expression that does not change the intention, and as to paragraph 2b, the amendment suggested will be made. Also as to 10a, the following words might be added: "Ratably according to the distance from Niagara Falls and the amount of power supplied to the corporation of the city subject to the provisions of paragraphs 10 b and c."

"The commission cannot, however, strike out 10 b, c and d. Accurate figures for one thousand horse-power have been put in columns 6 and 7. I enclose that copy of contract in final form."

The letter was signed by Mr. Beck.

CLAUSES TO WHICH THE COMMISSION SAID THE WORDS "RATABLY," ETC., MIGHT BE ADDED.

"The commission shall at least annual adjust and apportion the amounts payable by municipal corporations for such power and such interest, sinking fund, line loss, and cost of operating, maintaining, repairing, renewing and insuring the line and works.

The paragraphs which it refuses to strike out provide distinctly that Hamilton shall not be entitled in respect to any reductions that may be due to increase in the power supplied by the commission to any other corporations or parties.

WANTED COPIES.

When the letter had been read, Ald. Jutten asked that the aldermen be furnished with typewritten copies.

"All right; there will be time for that," said the Mayor.

"I mean to-night," said Ald. Jutten. "Have the copies made now and we can consider it before it comes up in committee of the whole."

"If we do that we will be waiting every night for typewritten copies," argued the Mayor.

"Ald. Hopkins insisted that the aldermen should get copies at once.

"I don't think the matter should be dealt with summarily," protested Ald. Peregrine. "It has received easy and careful consideration, and we should not jump at conclusions now."

The Mayor pointed out the matter would come up in committee of the whole. He said he had not received the letter until 8 o'clock. "That is no time," he said, "for communications to be sent to the council for consideration."

"I particularly request that you order this done now," persisted Ald. Hopkins.

The Mayor, however, instructed the city clerk to proceed, and the matter dropped until the council sat in committee of the whole.

ALD. PEREGRINE'S MOTION.

When the power question came up in committee of the whole, where the council left it a week ago, Ald. Peregrine, seconded by Ald. Allan, promptly moved:

interview the commission at an early date."

Ald. Jutten, seconded by Ald. Cooper, immediately moved in amendment: "That the schedule of the power by-law be struck out and that the final form of contract submitted by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario of this date substituted in lieu thereof, and the by-law as amended be adopted."

THE MAYOR EXPLAINS.

The Mayor explained that when the aldermen were in Toronto on Tuesday, considering the matter on the way back talking it over with several members of the Council, they thought there would be less friction, if the matter was quietly threshed out with the commission. He felt very much like Hon. Adam Beck expressed himself in the letter, the commission meant about the same as the city, but the language was not quite clear.

While the Commission was willing to insert a clause that Hamilton would not be obliged to take power exclusively from the Commission, this clashed with the other clauses which the Commission was not willing to strike out.

"It seems possible to me," he said, "that we can see the Commission quietly. It seemed to me a little harsh to send a letter saying we would do this and would not do that. I thought if we got together and convinced them we were not asking for any more than we are entitled to, we would get results."

He related the conversation he had with Mr. Beck on Friday. His Worship credited all the aldermen with having a desire to get the best for Hamilton.

The bitterness in connection with the matter, he thought was exaggerated in the newspapers. The meaning of the letter was still ambiguous. There should be an understanding with the Commission and then everyone would know exactly where they stood.

"That is the way I feel about it," he said, "and I think if it is followed out a majority of the Council can get together on it."

ALD. MORRIS CRITICISES.

Ald. Morris—I think what you have said about the desire of a majority of the members of the Council to get the best terms is correct. At the last meeting Ald. Cooper's motion was that the power committee ascertain if the commission would enter into a contract as suggested, but apparently you were not in favor of it.

The Mayor—I thought perhaps it would be better if some of the aldermen who were not on the matter went down and talked the matter over with Ald. Morris.

Ald. Morris—If that was stated at the last meeting it would have avoided a lot of misunderstanding. What you said at the last meeting left the impression that you objected to anyone going down. You said you did not care if the matter remained in committee of the whole until the end of the year. We parted with the understanding that a committee would be sent down. It seems like an arbitrary action that the Council should be threatened in this way.

Ald. Morris also criticized his worship for not complying with Ald. Jutten's request that the aldermen be supplied with typewritten copies of Mr. Beck's letter.

The Mayor retorted that 8 o'clock was no hour for such communications to reach the Council.

"It would have been common courtesy to give us the information," continued Ald. Morris. "I believe you are as sincere as any member of this Council in your desire to get better terms. We simply look at it in a different light. I think if you took us into your confidence we would get along better. I understood at the last meeting that you objected to a committee. Now, I understand that you objected to some of the members on the committee."

"You don't express my opinions," said the Mayor. "I had no objection to any member of the committee. I thought from what Mr. Beck had said about now, argument that it would be well to have aldermen who were not prejudiced by the discussion to talk matters over with the Commission. If there is anything I can do to bring the Council together on this you can depend on me to do it."

Ald. Morris said the matter was undoubtedly of sufficient importance to be carefully dealt with.

SHARP REPARTEE.

Ald. Crerar said his impression was that the commission was to submit the same contract as was submitted to the other municipalities. His understanding of the Council's former decision was that the commission must either accept or reject the amended contract, as proposed by the city.

Ald. Cooper—Ald. Crerar must have been asleep.

Ald. Crerar—Why?

Ald. Cooper—Ald. Crerar says the commission has always wanted us to take the same contract as the other municipalities. Surely he must have been asleep. He attended one meeting of the committee.

Ald. Crerar—I did not.

Ald. Cooper—Yes you did.

Ald. Crerar—Merely as a spectator.

Ald. Cooper—You had a good deal to say.

Ald. Crerar—I said all I could, but I did not get much of a chance.

Ald. Cooper insisted that there could be no further reason for delay and that the matter should be cleaned up at once.

Ald. Jutten also urged that the matter be finally disposed of, as the people were thoroughly sick of it. The commission had submitted its final contract and was not like a private corporation, that could be handled about. "I don't want to be arbitrary," he declared, "but I am sick and tired of this, and I think every member of the Council is."

He urged them to vote on his amendment.

"That will settle the question," said Ald. Jutten. "It is a straight issue of whether we accept the final contract."

Ald. Allan declared there was no one more anxious than he was to settle the matter, but he was surprised to see any alderman, in face of the letter, make such an amendment as Ald. Jutten had. The cry at the last meeting was that the decision was final, and the commission had come down a little and said now the meaning was the same, but the language was different. If there was to be any fighting, it should be done before the agreement was accepted, and not after.

"It seems to be the case of swallow the whole thing even if you have indigestion after."

DR. HOPKINS ROASTS MAYOR.

"It is the same old argument," complained Ald. Hopkins, who immediately began to tell one of his famous stories. "Tell us about Jack and the Beanstalk," said Ald. Allan, jokingly.

Ald. Hopkins insisted the offer was really final this time, and he charged it was the same old story and delay. He reiterated his statements about the mandate from the people, and the aldermen and Mayor failing to carry it into effect.

The Mayor, he said, at the last meeting promised to have the matter settled at once.

"Instead," he charged, "he has led us into a wilderness of confusion. Whenever it comes time to consummate this contract there is always the cry of delay, and 'Wait until to-morrow.'"

If the matter was not settled up at once, he said, the Council would be no further ahead than it was two years ago.

JOSHED HIM.

"This discussion is all out of order," protested Ald. Crerar.

"Give the man a chance," laughed Ald. Allan. "He will tell another story in a minute."

Ald. Hopkins insisted that the Mayor had deserted the Hydro ranks.

"You not only deserted," he said, "but you asked all hands to desert and join the Cataract. You not only deserted, but you fought against us, Mr. Mayor. The people went to the polls in Cataract; rigs, though, and the by-law got a jolly good licking, and I think, Mr. Mayor, on the third of January you should get a jolly good licking, not only yourself, but your lieutenants. I don't want to hurt your feelings," observed His Worship cheerfully.

"But I insist we have a duty to the people to fulfill," he continued.

CONSIDERS HIM A JOKE.

"As far as hurting my feelings," explained the Mayor, "I only take it as a joke from you."

"Mr. Mayor, it's no joke for the city of Hamilton," retorted Ald. Hopkins. "You promised to support the Hydro-Electric and then you fought against it."

Reading from printed slips on the desks of the aldermen, Ald. Peregrine said that one who looked at the cost of transformers, transmission lines, etc., now named as $84,384 for Hamilton's share, and $3,620 for interest and sinking fund, instead of $8,520, would find two very good reasons why the Council should not close a contract before the matter was considered.

CHALLENGED THE STATEMENT.

Then half a dozen aldermen were on their feet at once.

Ald. Jutten—I take exception to that.

Ald. Peregrine—I have the floor.

Ald. Morris—Withdraw that.

Ald. Ellis—Yes, withdraw that remark.

Ald. Peregrine—I have the floor.

Ald. Peregrine insisted that the colic man, as he had stated, showed that the aldermen at the last meeting were prepared to vote for a contract which meant $31,266 for the city in the matter of transmission lines and $4,903 on interest and sinking fund. This was a matter surely worth while looking into. Yet ten aldermen were ready to overlook it.

Ald. Cooper insisted that the commission had at last made a final offer and the Council should deal with it without delay.

THE VOTE.

Ald. Jutten's amendment was voted down on the following division:

Yeas (9)—Jutten, Cooper, Ellis, Hopkins, Wright, Morris, Sweeney, Robson, Anderson.

Nays (12)—Applegarth, Gardner, Clark, Lees, Milne, Ryan, Fort, Farmer, Allan, Peregrine, Guy, Crerar.

Ald. Peregrine's motion to lay the matter over carried on the same division.

GOOD ROADS BY-LAW.

The good roads by-law, asking the people to vote $200,000 for permanent pavements, was given two readings and sent on to the ratepayers. Nearly every alderman around the board spoke in favor of it, although some of them were disappointed that streets from their wards were not included.

Ald. Milne was the only one to object to the schedule of streets, as recommended by the Board of Works. He thought that only the streets where tracks were to be laid should be re-paved, and placed himself on record to that effect.

Ald. Allan explained that the other streets to be macadamized would be done to protect the asphalt.

The street railway specifications, as approved of by the Board of Works, received the Council's sanction.

CONTROLLERS' BY-LAW.

Ald. Milne declared that the new Board of Control was largely an experiment.

ment. He had heard that Toronto was none too well pleased with it, although it had five times as much money as Hamilton, and paid only $2,500. He moved an amendment that the salaries here be fixed at $800, instead of $1,200, as recommended.

Ald. Peregrine pointed out that the act provided the salaries could not be less than $1,000 nor more than $1,500. "Surely you want the controllers to get more than ward foremen, who are paid $850," spoke up Ald. Jutten.

The salaries were fixed at $1,200 and the duties as defined by the committee, also the re-arrangement of committees was approved.

WATERWORKS BY-LAW.

Earlier in the day the Fire and Water Committee considered the new waterworks by-law, when Alderman Morris moved that the rate on baths and closets be reduced $1 each, making them $2 and $1 each. This was approved of by the committee, although Ald. Lees suggested taking $1 off the baths, leaving the rate for the first closet as at present, and reducing it for the second closet to $2.

Ald. Lees and Anderson wanted the rate for manufacturers fixed at ten cents a thousand gallons, but an amendment by Ald. Morris, seconded by Ald. Milne, that it be 12 cents, carried.

There will be a special rate of 7 1/2 cents a thousand gallons for manufacturers, steel and iron plants, wooden manufacturers, earthenware factories, textile manufacturers and handlers of fruit products. The by-law received one reading in the council, and remains in committee of the whole.

WANTED IT REFERRED BACK.

Ald. Ellis questioned the clause in the Finance Committee's report which recommended that the Cemetery Board be authorized to invest $50,000 perpetual care funds for five years at 5 per cent, with the Mercantile Trust Company. He demanded to know why the offer had been accepted in preference to offers of 5 1/2 per cent, from two other companies.

The Mayor explained that the board had carefully considered the matter, and that the other offers were for periods of one year each.

Ald. Ellis moved that the clauses be referred back, but this was voted down, the mover and Aldermen Ryan and Wright being the only ones to support it.

ODD ENDS.

The council approved of the laying of a cement walk on Barton street from near Sherman avenue to Lottridge street.

The Fire and Water Committee's recommendation that six-inch mains be laid in the new annex on Beechwood rd Rosemount avenues at an estimated cost of $700 each was adopted.

The by-law to reduce the number of aldermen from each ward to two and divide the city into eight wards was given two readings and sent on to the people.

HIS PAINS AND ACHES ALL GONE

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED CHAS. N. CYR'S RHEUMATISM.

Statement of a Man Who Suffered for a Year From Different Forms of Kidney Disease and Found a Speedy Cure.

New Richmond Station, Que., Nov. 8. (Special).—In these cold fall days when Rheumatism, Sciatica, Backache and other Kidney Diseases are working havoc in every corner of Canada, thousands will be interested in the statement of Mr. Chas. N. Cyr, the well-known barber of this place.

"I had been a sufferer from Rheumatism and Backache for a year. Mr. Cyr states, 'My head also troubled me and it was hard to collect my thoughts. I heard of cures made up of Dodd's Kidney Pills and made up my mind to try them. The marvelous effect of the first box on my system at once raised my hopes and by continuing to take them I am now a sound and well man. All my pains and aches are gone and I am able to do my work without pain.'"

Mr. Cyr is only one of thousands whom Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured of Rheumatism, Sciatica and Backache. For Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure sick or disordered kidneys. And if your kidneys are well you can't have Rheumatism, Sciatica or Backache.

THE SOUL.

Robt. McMurdo Spoke on Its Worth and Welfare.

"The Worth and Welfare of the Soul" was the subject of Mr. Robert McMurdo's address in Ebenezer Hall last evening. It was explained that the word soul in scripture often means man. Now man in creation was made a little lower than the angels, but was given dominion over the animal creation, so that he was, as it were, betwixt two worlds, being linked above by his spirit and linked below by his body—his soul being the connecting link.

The soul is that part of man in which his personality resides, and he has the liberty of choice to do the will of God or refuse to do it. With this liberty comes the possibility of falling. A look over the past would show that Satan had fallen, angels had fallen, and man had fallen, but though in heart man may be far from God, the fact remains that his soul is eternally lasting. The worth of a soul can best be proved by the value God put upon it, and by the cost price of its redemption. God values the soul at an enormous figure, saying "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? It takes a soul to redeem the soul. It took the soul of God's Son to redeem all the souls in the world. The welfare of the soul was a very important individual consideration. There were two examples given in the Scriptures, the one a marked contrast to the other, in regard to the interest in the welfare of the soul. The rich man in Luke xiii, cared more for his goods and barns than for his soul, so God said to him: "This night thy soul shall be required of thee." In the 116th Psalm is given the record of a man whose cry was, "Deliver my soul," and he was delivered, and his soul prospered.

In like manner should the soul of every Christian prosper and grow fat, but in order to accomplish this it must be fed on the Living Bread, the word of God. Prayer, too, is a great builder of spiritual prosperity. The speaker urged all Christians present to fatten their souls by pleasant food, well digested, and seasoned with prayer.

Popular, Indeed, Have Become The RIGHT HOUSE Morning Sales

Despite the weather, Monday morning saw our week of Morning Sales start off with a decided rush. We're glad of it. It means that those who can do so will shop here before 12 o'clock noon and thereby relieve the big crowds in the afternoon. These latter throngs had begun to get so thick that even with our additional help we could feel the strain of waiting upon every one as promptly as is our wont.

We are offering again to-day some remarkable inducements to visit The Right House to-morrow before 12 o'clock. Of course we have not mentioned all to-morrow morning's sales and we have practically ignored completely the great reductions which are the result of the Inauguration Sale. This latter and the annual Winter Coat and Fur Sale, too, by the way, are still attracting extensive patronage. So shop in the morning if you can—it's well worth your while—but if you can't the other three sales mean bargains for you at any hour.

ESTABLISHED 66 YEARS AGO THOMAS C. WATKINS HAMILTON, ONTARIO

SCORED BY JUDGE. False Charges of Graft Against St. Catharines Aldermen.

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 8.—The final chapter of the claims made in letters to the local press by Miles S. Plumley, was enacted to-night, when County Judge Carman, and his report on the evidence taken in the enquiry stated the Mayor and aldermen from all wrongdoing and severely denounced the action of Mr. Plumley in jumping at conclusions without taking time to determine the truth of his statements, which could have been verified. After reviewing the evidence, his Honor says: "The publication of such rash charges and innuendoes merit more than a severe condemnation in order to prevent a repetition of such an attempt to discredit public men in the discharge of public duties, which if allowed to pass would drive the best men out of public service. While proper and just criticism is often beneficial, void and baseless charges cannot accomplish any good, but only mislead the public and destroy all confidence in public men and public affairs. Miles S. Plumley is only a property owner through his wife."

TIGERS WILL HOLD PRACTICE THIS AFTERNOON.

Players, With One Exception, Are in Good Shape After Saturday's Strenuous Game—What Billy Hewitt Thought of the Game.

No regular practice was held yesterday, but the Jungle Terrors will be out in full strength at the Cricket Ground this afternoon for a work-out. Even after Saturday's strenuous struggle the players are in good shape, with the exception of Jack Gray, who is suffering from a twisted ankle. The injury is not a bad one, however, and he will be able to play next Saturday against the Argonauts. Ben Simpson is around as good as ever after the fearful mauling he got on Saturday, and seems to be very confident of the team's ability to land the Dominion championship. He says the boys were never in better condition, and thinks any defects in their play, such as tackling and following up, will be eliminated before the next big game.

Although Art Moore is to be married this month, he will be available for all the remaining big games. The famous half-back has been putting up a great game this year, and his absence from the team would be a big loss to the Tigers. Big Bill Burkholder will don his mole-skins once again and play with the intermediates next Saturday at Dundas. Bill is very anxious to get back in the game, and was out at the intermediate practice last night, working hard to get into condition.

There is some talk of Davey Topp playing in this game also as a sort of conditioner for the play-off with the Rough Riders. At a meeting of the Ottawa Football Club held last night it was decided to vote for a play-off in Montreal. The Rough Riders do not want to come so far west as Toronto, and think they would get better support in the eastern metropolis. The Tigers would be willing to play in Montreal if it was earlier in the year, but game two weeks from now would be on a frozen field, and probably in snow. If the matter comes to a vote Toronto will likely be chosen. A comparison of the style of football played by the Rough Riders and Montreal shows the difference between a dirty and a clean team. When the Tigers and Montreal line up they play straight hard football. The players are always on good terms and dirty inside football is absent. On the other hand, with Ottawa, it is a game of inside football all the way.

Billy Hewitt, sporting editor of the Toronto Star, who saw Saturday's game says: "It was a loosely played game on both sides, the mauling and fumbling being unpardonable in senior teams, while the tackling was both feeble and ineffective. The game developed considerable ill-feeling between the players, and the 'wicked game' which the Hamiltonians anticipated earlier in the week became a reality. There was an unusual amount of slugging and punching, and the officials had to penalize no less than eleven players for reprehensible tactics. It was evident that Ottawa started the trouble. When the tide turned against them, and defeat stared them plainly in the face, they roughed it up and endeavored to do as much damage as they could to their opponents.

A dead set was apparently made on Ben Simpson, and he got a tremendous grueling in the second half, but he was game to the core and finished on his own courage, though quite dazed all through the last quarter. Stronach threw him on the back of his head after Ben had kicked the ball. Kill and Ferguson punched him in the face quite openly, and Dr. Sheriff charged him as if he intended to get a victim for an inquest.

Meanwhile the Tigers got hot under the collar and started to hand it under the collar and hard. It was give and take on both sides, no quarter asked, and look out for the referee. It was a disgraceful ending to a match that gave such great promise in the opening stages. The officials, Dr. W. B. Hendry and H. C. Griffith, penalized all the offenders that appeared in the open, every scrimmage being a battle royal, with fists finding a resting place on the other fellow's jaw. It was a bare knuckle fight to the finish, no holds barred, and no chance for a break unless the referee blew his whistle. The score is usually a good indication of the play, but it hardly works out in regard to Saturday's game.

Each game of the tournament will be for 500 points, subject to the playing rules governing at present the 18.2 ball-line game. With half a dozen of the star billiard players in the world entered every theory indicates that the tournament will be one of the most successful ever held in this country. Interest in the game seems to have increased. The billiardists will strive for prize money to the amount of $5,000. In addition to the prize money the entrance fees and the net gate receipts will be divided among the players. The winner of the greatest number of games will receive 40 per cent of the money, thirty per cent will go to the second man, 20 per cent to the third, and 10 per cent to the fourth.

BILLIARDS

New York, Nov. 9.—Billiardists from New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and Paris will meet in the 18.2 ball-line billiard tournament in the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall in a series of games beginning Nov. 22, to decide the world's championship. George F. Slosson will represent New York, A. G. Cutler will represent Boston, and H. P. Cline will represent Philadelphia. Toronto will have one representative, George Sutton, and Chicago one, Calvin Demarest. Firmin Cassagnol will hold the billiard prestige of Paris.

COMMENT AND GOSSIP

Get together a bunch of last week's papers and scan the Ottawa clippings. They make funny reading now.

And, notwithstanding the fact that he is frequently arrested and is made the defendant in many damage suits, there are many colored men who would gladly exchange places with Jack Johnson.

Science in boxing, endurance and strength, wind, heart, and wisdom to go the full length; These are the attributes, not race or clan.

That make with the public the crack fighting man.

Poor old Chaucer Elliott! His only satisfaction will be that there is now nothing to prevent him coming up to the finals and seeing a football team play.

Someone who figures that Jeffries will clean up $150,000 during his second lease of pugilistic life.

"Get the dangerous man" is still the secret of correct football, and it is more dangerous to be a star half-back than a captain in Canada's coming navy.

Chicago is all puffed up over the announcement that Jack Johnson is to make that town his permanent home.

Those Williams' are a great football family, and the fact that each generally carries a limp shows they are recognized as such in the innermost football circles.

Frisco scribbles count Coffroth a 1 to 20 shot as far as securing the Johnson-Jeffries fight goes. They know Coffroth and his ability to put through deals.

Toronto Globe.—An injustice was done to Walter Marrett of the Hamilton Tigers in yesterday's report of the game with Ottawa, which this is the earliest opportunity to repair. It was stated that he had attacked an Ottawa player in the dressing-room after the match. As a matter of fact the Ottawa team did not return to the dressing-room after the game, and no encounter took place. Such a thing would have been quite out of keeping with Mr. Marriotti's record, too, as he has always played the game fairly, and has been ruled off only on one occasion in five years.

JEFF IS FAVORITE IN THE BETTING.

Johnson Will Not, However by a Longshot—Those Who Expect Big Odds on Negro Must Not Wait Too Long.

New York, Nov. 8.—Even with the proposed Jeffries-Johnson bout approximately eight months distant the question of betting on the result has already been taken up. The day the articles were signed the Johnson side refused to make the large side bet on the ground that "Jeffries will probably be a 2-to-1 favorite, and we want the ringside odds." Coming as it did from the Johnson side, that statement was undoubtedly inspired by two motives. One was the Johnson side didn't care to wager $2,000, and the other was to lead the public to believe that Jeffries would be a pronounced favorite in the betting. It was a subterfuge of the most shallow kind, and anyone who falls for it deserves to be stung. To start off with, Jeffries should not be a 2-to-1 favorite under any possible conditions in the world. There is, never was, never can be, and never should be one solitary reason why he should be such a favorite over Johnson, and here is to the hope that any person who is foolish enough to wager 2 to 1 that Jeffries will lose his money—every dollar he bets. He deserves it.

Why should Jeff be such a ridiculous favorite? Six years will have elapsed since he engaged in a battle. Such a period of good-natured illness does not improve a man's wind, vitality and general physical condition. Everybody knows that in his prime Jeff was unbeatable. Many believe he was the greatest fighter in ring history. He met and beat them all, some twice—Tom Sharkey, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Corbett, Joe Goddard, Peter Jackson, Gus Ruhling and Jack Monroe. But the question that troubles his friends is, "How good is Jeff to-day?" While the preliminary training he has indulged in the past few months may have encouraged him and his manager, Sam Berger, to believe he could "come back," it is entirely too early to tell much about it. Remember that, as a rule, they don't "come back" after a long period of illness, and many a star has tried it. Get this advice, Don't bet a dollar on the bout either way at this early date. No matter what price is quoted, the odds will be fictitious. It will be impossible to quote a sane price either way until it is known how good Jeffries can get. This cannot be found out until he has been in training several weeks.

There is no question but that Johnson really believes he can defeat Jeffries. Perhaps his confidence was shaken considerably the day the articles were signed by Jeff's fine physical appearance, his demand for the enormous side bet and his suggestion that "all go to the winner." The latter proposal was unlooked for and couldn't possibly have given the Johnson side any additional confidence. It really was the big note of the meeting, and was a source of much gratification to Jeffries' admirers. He wouldn't have asked the "winner to take all" clause unless he and Berger felt confident he could get into good enough shape to trim Johnson. Jeff's physical fitness is the principal condition on which the result of the battle will hinge. While he may have over-rated himself, the fact remains that, after trying himself out as far as circumstances would permit, Jeff was satisfied to wager a small fortune on the outcome of the bout and let the entire purse go to the victor. That was a word of encouragement to his friends. As the cards lay to-day, Johnson's chances for victory seem the better. It is up to Jeffries to change the aspect of things. Perhaps he will do this after he has been in training a while, but it is up to him to do it. The burden of proof lies on his shoulders. Again, he may have an ace in the hole as regards his condition. Maybe he has tried himself out more thoroughly than anyone imagines and has a really successful week in training. That would be in his favor. When he was fighting, he proved himself the wonder of the age. They all looked pretty much alike to him. No matter whether it was the ruggedness of Sharkey, the marvelous hitting power of Fitzsimmons, or the elusive, tantalizing cleverness of Corbett, the result was the same; a victory for Jeff. Having been a wonder in the fighting line, perhaps he can repeat, and, by reversing every known theory of the prize ring, return after a six-year lay-off, take up his work where he left off, and regain the championship mantle which he voluntarily cast aside.

When the suggestion is made that it would be better to hold off a while before laying any wagers, it is not meant to imply that Jeffries has a poor chance for victory. It may be that his chances improve a man's wind, vitality and general training over weeks. But wait and see. There is no urgent reason for being in such a hurry. A bet laid in four or six months from now will look as good as one laid to-day, perhaps better. So much depends upon Jeff's condition that it is like buying a cat in a bag to put up your money to-day. There may be a few tentative bets made, but the closer students of the game will prefer to hold off and therein they will show their wisdom. Keep your money in your pocket for the time being. Later, if a bet on Jeff looks good to you, unbuckle and make a bet. But under no condition give two to one. They are false odds and the known form of Johnson and the unknown form of Jeffries don't warrant the price. Public sentiment is with Jeff, but odds based on sentiment don't look good to the wise bettor, and they shouldn't.

The recent Johnson-Ketchel contest has brought about a discussion of the respective weights of Tom Sharkey and Ketchel. In some quarters it is claimed that the latter is as large as Sharkey. No more ridiculous argument ever was set forth. The sailor, when he was fighting at his best, was larger in every particular than Ketchel, and weighed many pounds more. Within the past two months Ketchel has made 160 pounds for Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and Williams, the greatest fight he ever put up in his way. He was weighing, in every particular, more than Ketchel, and his exact weight upon stepping into the ring is not known. It is the biggest cinch in the world that it was somewhere between 185 and 190, surely not lower than the former figure. Any way you figure him, Sharkey was 25 pounds heavier than Ketchel. There is no telling how heavy Ketchel may grow in the future, but taking Sharkey's fight with Jeffries and Ketchel's two tries with O'Brien, the difference in their respective weights was anywhere from 25 pounds up.

Toronto Star: From a six or seven-year experience with the Hamilton Club, it can be stated that they play clean Rugby unless the other fellow wants to mix it up. Then they can hold their own.

Lawson's eighty-yard run in the game with Queen's last Saturday was the longest that he has made this season.

Dundas defeated Argos II, by 23 to 1 in a game on Varsity campus Saturday in the Intermediate Interprovincial series for the intermediate championship. Joliffe, full-back for the Argos, was injured, and had to retire from the game.

Mert Kent was the star of the Argos team at Montreal. When Tommy Stinson retired in the first quarter Montreal had no back division player capable of kicking with Kent.

Montreal is offering odds of 3 to 1 that the Argos will not defeat the Tigers next Saturday.

There was much acrimonious discussion during the customary post-mortem after the Ottawa-Hamilton game.

GRIDIRON GOSSIP

He made a run around the end, was tackled from the rear. The right guard sat upon his neck. The fullback on his ear.

The centre sat upon his legs. Two ends sat on his chest. The quarter and the halfback then sat down on him to rest.

The left guard sat upon his head. A tackle on his face. The corner was next called in. To sit upon his case.

Toronto is going to get some Rugby in the next month. Next Saturday, Hamilton at Argonauts, Varsity at McGill, Peterboro' at Parkdale.

Nov. 20, Hamilton vs. Ottawa, at Rosedale, providing Tigers defeat Argos, Parkdale vs. T.A.A.C., providing Parkdale beats Peterboro'.

Nov. 27, Varsity vs. Big Four champions. Dec. 4, winners vs. O.R.F.U. champions.

Tune: "Little Annie Rooney." You're my target, You're my mark, Soon I'll rid you Of cares that cark. You'll be one o' them Little Doc Sherriff I'll get you.

—Wally Barron.

There would be a few surprises sprung on Saturday. Robbins and Hayes, of Hamilton, have been appointed the officials for the match.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 9.—The Ottawa Football Club held a meeting last evening and decided in favor of Montreal as the place for the saw-off with the Tigers for the Inter-provincial championship. The matter was threshed out at length and the officers were unanimously of the opinion that Montreal should be chosen, in view of the fact that the final with Varsity for the Dominion honors will also be held at Toronto. The Ottawas intend making a big fight against going to Toronto. When informed that President Seymour, of the Inter-provincial, had arranged for the Rosedale grounds for Nov. 20, President Nagle, of the Ottawas, remarked that the move was a little "too premium."

The Ottawas have arranged for three practices this week. The men will start every afternoon at 3.30, arrangements having been made to get them off work earlier than usual. Special attention will be paid to the back division, which is not believed to be the weak end of the team.

The Ottawa seconds, claimants of the Q.R.F.U. championship, intend to ignore the claim of the Grand Trunk team to the honor and have decided to challenge the Ottawas for the intermediate championship of Canada.

COLLEGE CHAMPIONS. 1888—University of Toronto. 1900—Queen's University. 1902—University of Toronto. 1903—University of Toronto. 1904—Queen's University. 1905—University of Toronto. 1906—McGill University. 1907—Ottawa College. 1908—University of Toronto. 1909—University of Toronto.

In 1898, first year of the Intercollegiate Union, championship was won by Toronto University, the other members being McGill, Montreal, and Queen's, Kingston. In 1899 Toronto University again won the championship. In 1900 Queen's University won, and in 1901 Toronto University won for the third time in four years. In 1902 McGill, Montreal, won. In 1903 Toronto University won. In 1904 Queen's and McGill tied, and in the deciding game at Ottawa Queen's won, 6-0. In 1905 Toronto University, with an unbeaten record. In 1906 McGill, Montreal, beat Toronto University in the deciding game, 17 to 16. Other scores in the deciding games were: In 1907 Ottawa College 12, McGill 9; In 1908 Varsity 12, Queen's 0.

Toronto Globe: Though Ottawa and Hamilton are discussing the ground on which they will play off their anticipated tie in the Interprovincial Union, it is quite possible that no such tie may eventuate. The Argonauts have been steadily improving, which is more than can be said of the other teams, and they outplayed Ottawa at their last meeting, though the Rough Riders totalled more points. Far more surprising things have happened in football than that Argonauts should win from Hamilton here on Saturday, and so extinguish the bright hopes of the Tigers.

The games between Ottawa and Hamilton have been characterized by a regrettable bit of feeling, the responsibility for which would be traceable to the abnormal betting on these matches. There has been too much "business" and too much of the win-at-any-price policy about them to confer any benefit on the sport of football, which does not call for any such concentration of energy as the Ottawa-Hamilton series has developed.

Toronto World: Hamilton and Varsity have the call for the Dominion semifinals, but the Tigers have two grueling hard games ahead of them. It will be no parlor game here on Saturday with Argos, and if the Tigers manage to pull out a victory, they will stack up against Ottawa a week from Saturday, in what will be the roughest game of the season, if the match at Hamilton can be taken as a criterion. In the meantime Varsity will only have one game, that at McGill next Saturday, and with a good two-week rest scheduled for next week, he will be found in the best possible condition, while if it's Hamilton, who are the opponents, several of the players may be found suffering from injuries.

Toronto Star: From a six or seven-year experience with the Hamilton Club, it can be stated that they play clean Rugby unless the other fellow wants to mix it up. Then they can hold their own.

Lawson's eighty-yard run in the game with Queen's last Saturday was the longest that he has made this season.

Dundas defeated Argos II, by 23 to 1 in a game on Varsity campus Saturday in the Intermediate Interprovincial series for the intermediate championship. Joliffe, full-back for the Argos, was injured, and had to retire from the game.

Mert Kent was the star of the Argos team at Montreal. When Tommy Stinson retired in the first quarter Montreal had no back division player capable of kicking with Kent.

Montreal is offering odds of 3 to 1 that the Argos will not defeat the Tigers next Saturday.

There was much acrimonious discussion during the customary post-mortem after the Ottawa-Hamilton game.

Eastern Racing Season Closes.

New York, Nov. 9.—Horse racing ended in the east yesterday, a week earlier than usual. Whether the curtailment is directly due to the hardships inflicted by the anti-betting laws in New York State is a matter of opinion.

The recent cancellation of the usual Fall meeting at the Empire City track in Yonkers, scheduled for this week, is met with a proposal to prolong the meeting at Aqueduct until Nov. 15th, the date to which the racing season usually continues, but because of the debilitated condition of the sport under the stringent law the Aqueduct authorities refused to accept the additional dates. A large crowd was on hand at the Aqueduct track to-day for the wind-up, and to see the last stake race of the season, which was the Belle Harbor, won easily by Ten Paces.

With the closing also at Fimlico today the movement of stables will seek winter racing in the west and south. Mexico has already begun, but stables are those of the smaller establishments, as most of the larger stables will go to winter quarters on the Long Island tracks, according to custom.

THE TORONTO PAPERS ON THE BIG GAME.

Telegram—It looked almost as though Hamilton were to be forced into deep mourning until half-time of their game against Ottawa over behind the mountains on Saturday, when Ottawa were in the lead with four points to Hamilton's three.

Poor Murphy, leader of the Rooters Club, had to make almost superhuman efforts to keep the official encouragers from falling down in their work. However, Murphy was not to be denied and well directed nags and an occasional insult managed to keep something close resembling noise coming from the chrysanthemum decorated ones in the stand.

However, when the Tigers had once tasted blood and got really going, the way they swept the Ottawas before them was a revelation, and Murphy and his merry men tore the air with their yells. After the Tigers were safely in the lead, a band joined the gallant rooters, and the combined bandlam was so effective that people within a radius of three miles knew that Hamilton must be putting the Indian sign on Ottawa's championship aspirations.

It was by long odds the fastest game played in the Interprovincial this fall, and Hamilton showed a decided improvement over the form they displayed against Montreal on Thanksgiving Day. This improvement was chiefly noticeable in the work of the back division, and as it stands now their back guard is very little inferior to Varsity's. The tackling of the wings has also improved slightly, but they have something to learn before they can be called first-class tacklers. Williams, the great Ottawa half-back, had Ben Simpson somewhat faddered during the first half. He out-punted Ben, and was always right there at the psychological moment. The way he backed up his mates and saved the situation time and again was really a wonderful exhibition.

Apparently the strain was too much however, as when Hamilton began to advance, he began to fade away. McCann divided the kicking honors in the latter stages.

Simpson, on the other hand, although roughly handled, came strong in the last period, and was given a flattering reception by the mob of devout worshippers in the stands.

The sensation of the day was the way which rooting "Dutch" Burton made good on the half line. His running and catching were of the very first class and he got over for two tries on brilliant runs. Moore was also much in the limelight.

The play throughout was open, and the game was a good one from a spectators' standpoint. Simpson and Williams kept the ball in the air for a great deal of the time, and when it was on the ground the man in possession had a broken field to run in, consequently sensational runs were the order of the day.

Williams started the scoring with a very pretty drop from the field for a goal. Ottawa had slightly the better of it for most of this period, and on an— (Continued on Page 9.)

FROM THE FOUL LINE TO HEAD PIN

The Hamilton Bowling Association, which controls the bowling at the H. B. & A. C., commenced the winter season last night. Vice-President McMahon, of the club, in a neat speech presented the use of the alleys to the Association.

President H. M. Sweeney, of the Association, in accepting the nomination upon the successful season enjoyed last year, the handsome prizes donated, and the great number of bowlers, and good ones, which the Association brought out during the season. He made mention of the many outside games in which the club will figure during the coming season, and predicted that credit would be brought to the club, and the city, both in national and international tournaments. He complimented the management of the club upon the efficient manner in which all affairs pertaining to the bowling game were handled, and solicited the hearty support of the citizens and bowlers in order to make the club and the Association the success it deserved. He claimed that the game in Hamilton had made even greater strides than in the United States, where it is the national winter game, and spoke of the pastime as the most healthful, fascinating and honest of all sports of all ages could enjoy.

Eight teams lined up for the league opening, two from each C Class section. Some close and very exciting games were played. Lumsden Brothers lost one of their games to the B. B. Bowlers, one to Y. C. No. 1 by one pin. All of the games were close enough to be in doubt until the last frame had been bowled, and great excitement prevailed throughout the evening. E. L. James was the best man of the evening with the best 215. The Terminale and R. H. Y. C. No. 1 were only divided by one pin on total score, and all of their games were close enough to be uncomfortable to both of the clubs.

"Six Shooter" Bill Setzer, the champion of the club last season, has donated a handsome clock for first prize in the individual tournament, to be held on Saturday night, 13th inst. The match will be a class handicap affair, such as was held last week, miss and out, and will be finished in one night.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mrs. Frank Roach After Long Illness.

Annie Graham, wife of Frank Roach, passed away last night at the residence of her parents, 63 Napier street, after an illness of two or three years. She was 24 years of age and leaves besides a husband, one child, five years of age. The funeral will take place from her parents' residence to Hamilton cemetery on Thursday at 3 p. m.

Walter Howard, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Hamburg, passed away yesterday at his parents' residence, 190 Simcoe street east. The date of the funeral, which will take place from the family residence to Hamilton cemetery on Thursday at 3 p. m.

Much sympathy will be extended to Arthur and Mrs. Hawkins, of West Flamboro, in the death of their little son, Roland, on Sunday, November 7th. The funeral took place yesterday at 2 p. m. from the residence of his parents to the Church of England burying grounds. Rev. S. Bennett officiated at the house and grave. The parents have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

The remains of the late Michael Laing, who died in Brantford on Saturday, arrived in the city yesterday on the 12.40 a. m. Grand Trunk train and were taken to the residence of his daughter, Mrs. J. Montgomery, 132 Market street. The funeral took place at 3.30 to Hamilton cemetery. Rev. A. H. Goring officiated. The pallbearers were six sons of the deceased, C. W. W. J. H. F. A. E. A. N. and N. S. Laing. The funeral was largely attended and numerous floral tributes were laid on the casket.

XIII PRIZES.

Presentation and Dance to be Held Next Friday.

On Friday evening next the annual presentation of prizes for rifle shooting and company competition will take place. Members of the regiment will attend in service uniform. Admission will be free to the men in uniform. Each member of the regiment is entitled to one ticket admitting a lady. Captain tickets are obtainable from the captains of the companies. As this is the first function of the kind in the new building, it is expected that there will be a large attendance and a very enjoyable time.

The arrangements are in the hands of a joint committee of the officers and sergeants. This committee will meet on Thursday evening at 9 o'clock. Special street car service has been arranged.

TWO HURT.

Geo. Pate Internally and Wm. Morrison's Wrists Broken.

A serious accident occurred at noon to-day, when William Morrison and Geo. Pate fell from the roof of a new house on which they were shingling, to the sidewalk, a distance of about 25 feet. A telephone message was sent for the ambulance, and they were rushed to the City Hospital, where it was found that Pate was suffering with internal injuries, while Morrison's shoulder and wrists, which were broken, were badly hurt. The house on which they were working was near the corner of Gilkinson and Niagara streets, and the accident, the police were informed, was attributed to the insufficient scaffolding.
