CHAPTER XXII. The Savage Transformed. And, at last, one morning he surprised Beamish by showing more interest in his neck-scarf and general appearance, and, with an air of scrutiny and severe examination, strange and unusual, viewed himself in the mirror.

"Would you like another, my lord?" asked the faithful and discreet Beamish, inwardly marveling at his master's sudden interest in his appearance—"or another scarf?"

"No, no," said Percy, with a little irritation. "This—this—you know I am rather careless, Beamish—but this is the present fashion, I suppose."

Beamish looked horrified at the doubt. "My lord, the coat and vest came from Schultz last week, and are perfect; oh, quite perfect, my lord."

"All right, Beamish," laughed Percy, with something of his old light-heartedness. "I didn't mean to cast any aspersion on your artistic taste. That will do—give me my purse. No, I shall not want the brougham. I shall walk."

SUGGESTIONS TO SICK WOMEN

How Many Are Restored To Health. First.—Almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful periods, displacements, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

For forty years it has been making women strong and well, relieving backache, nervousness, ulceration and inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularity and periodic pains. It has also proved invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the Change of Life.

"Hush!" he said. "There should be no such word between us. And you have made friends, have formed attachments!"

"Yes," said Kyra, "all here are my friends,"—she said nothing of the first few weeks of trial and suffering—"and I have one great friend—Lady Mary Darlington."

"The world will soon rid her of that precious unconsciousness."

"Oh, no," she said; "never dull—" "I am glad of that," he said, "and I trust you will be beyond the reach of even the suspicion of dullness for the future. I have found a friend for you," he said, suddenly.

He turned to look at her. Across her face had come a strange, sudden wistfulness.

SUGGESTIONS TO SICK WOMEN

How Many Are Restored To Health. Second.—The medicine most successful in relieving female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates and strengthens the organism; it overcomes disease.

"I know her father and her people; yes, go on, and tell me anything—everything! You like the horse?"

"My dear! I cannot help it! You have charmed the heart out of me at first sight! Has Lord Vering told you how I long to be your friend?"

"Yes."

"Well, I love you already. You will try—you must love me!"

He looked on with a smile, but it was not wholly one of pleasure, for a sudden silence seemed to fall upon the two women, and strike a chill across his own heart.

He turned to look at her. Across her face had come a strange, sudden wistfulness.

Great Allies Offensive Due in Macedonia

Serbian 130,000 Strong Ready to Strike for Their Native Land—Immense Allied Army at Saloniki—Force Available Placed at 680,000—Enemy Forces Dwindling.

Saloniki, May 23.—The allied offensive in Macedonia, originally scheduled for mid-May and postponed on account of the condition of the Serbian army on its arrival at Corfu, is now confidently anticipated towards the end of June or at the latest early in July.

The activities of the Bulgarians east of the Struma in the past week, and a gradually increasing extension of artillery operations, have led to the assumption, from time to time, that General Sarrail's plans might be hastened, and the allied attack begun at once.

The outbreak of cholera among the Serbs on their arrival in Caru proved a mixed disadvantage. It made their transport to Saloniki in time to participate in an offensive in May impossible.

Moreover, it reduced their numbers very materially; a great many more Serbs died than will ever be known, not simply from cholera, but from gastritis, malnutrition and sheer exhaustion.

Reconstruction of Serbian Army. The Serbian army was in far worse shape than had been supposed. The entire force needed full re-equipment, and the recruits from Serbia and the volunteers from America required drilling.

Marshal Putnik was no longer physically able to command, and many of the leading officers were dead, or too worn out by their late hardships to continue active service and a new set of officers had to be chosen. All of this demanded time. The idea of any offensive from Saloniki in May was therefore given up, and the work of re-making the Serbian army was pushed as rapidly as possible.

This decision, however, entailed an alteration in the general plans of the allies. Instead of striking a first blow in the Balkans to draw off the German reserves from the west front, while a decisive action was being planned in France, it was decided to make the Macedonian offensive of the allies coincide with, instead of precede, the general allied offensive on all fronts, generally supposed to be scheduled for midsummer.

The Serbs are now safely in Macedonia. Already they have begun to take up their positions on the frontiers of their native land, from the Vardar west to Lake Prespa.

Allies Have Huge Army Ready.

There are now some 130,000 first-class Serbian troops in Macedonia. All the old and the unfit have been weeded out. What is left is an army tried and capable. Roughly, there are some 300,000 British and French in Saloniki to-day. The major portion are British. Now that the transportation of the Serbs has been completed, transports are beginning to arrive every day with new contingents of French troops—despite Verdun. General Mahon has gone to Egypt to superintend the selection and embarkment of the larger part of the British armies concentrated there when a German attack on Egypt was regarded as possible. According to experts estimate 200,000 men have been available from this quarter. Their transportation has already begun.

By mid-June there will be soon 650,000 men on the ground here ready for the Macedonian offensive. Experts estimate that there is 600,000 more than sufficient for every purpose of attack.

When the Macedonian offensive was first discussed it was assumed that a certain number of Turks would be available to assist the Bulgars. But since that time the Turks have accumulated troubles of their own at home, and have no stomach for widely extending their line. The Austrians need every possible man for the Russian and Italian fronts; there are no Austrians in front of Salonki. The Germans, little by little, have withdrawn their forces from Macedonia to fill in the gaps in the home lines made by the losses before Verdun.

Only four German divisions remain in the neighbourhood of Salonki. Even the Bulgars cannot give up their entire attention to General Sarrail's armies, as they have to keep a watchful eye on Rumania. They have, therefore, according to belief here, only some 300,000 men at most to be counted on, to repel an attack from the south, launched by the 650,000 Allies.

Mr. Gosling Replies

TO MR. JAMES'S CHARGES.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I saw in all the papers this evening an affidavit of Mr. M. J. James, stating that he had followed the night carts and had seen the men empty 65 pails into the hop-poppers, and accusing me of a falsehood. I immediately got in touch with Mr. Dwyer, and sent him to find which of the sanitary men had been guilty of disobedience in this matter.
The man Hutchings declares that he adhered strictly to instructions as described by me in the Evening Telegram of June 23rd inst. and in a public statement at the C. C. C. Hall on Thursday night, June 22nd inst.
I believe that this man Hutchings is speaking the truth, when he says that he did not deposit the contents of the pails, but strained off the liquid part on as he had been instructed, and as I minutely described.
Now, I call upon Mr. James to state accurately what he saw, and if it differs from the orders given, as detailed by me, I shall dismiss the men, and call upon Mr. James as a witness in support of my action.
If it proves to be in accordance with my description, Mr. James must apologise in Wednesday afternoon's papers, or I shall enter a libel suit against him on Thursday morning.
Yours truly,
W. G. GOSLING.

Mr. James Stands By His Statement

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In reference to Mr. Gosling's letter in this morning's News, I beg to state that I retract nothing from my affidavit of yesterday. It does not matter whether the night soil passed through a strainer or not; the fact remains that it went into the hoppers. Owing to your going to press early to-day I cannot deal fully with this matter as I would wish.
MICHAEL J. JAMES.

THE LAST ACT.

It is exceedingly to be regretted that the close of the contest for the Municipal offices should be marked by several features in which neither those responsible nor the city as a whole can take much pride. We endeavoured from the first to make such comment as the situation seemed to us to require, and we have supported Mr. Gosling and the Commission because we think the circumstances demand their recall, even if their own abilities and undoubted achievements do not. Unfortunately, Mr. Gosling's opponents have seen fit to import into their campaign a personal tone which never fails to appeal to the very lowest elements of any electorate nor to alienate the best.
The nature of the campaign, we do not say for Mr. Kelly or anyone else, but against the Commissioners, has in reality been the greatest tribute that has been offered to their merits. Wholly unable to find other weak spots in their armour, and proving thereby their own incompetence (for that there are no weak spots it would be foolish to pretend), their opponents have focussed almost the entire battery of their rhetoric upon one only of their reforms, those effected in the Sanitary system. They could not have chosen a worse point to attack. Our readers have only to consider two things—the actual installation in the past year of additional sewerage connections, and the undeniable improvement in the abominable state of things obtaining heretofore in our back streets—not merely to acquit the Commissioners of the absurd charges preferred against them but to entitle them to our gratitude for what they have done.
Mr. Gosling has taken the most direct and effective method of replying to the challenge contained in Mr. James' affidavit, which was published yesterday. Mr. James must either substantiate his statements fully or Commissioners Hold a Big Meeting.

Star Hall Filled With an Interested Audience—Sentiment of Meeting in Favour of Letting Gosling Finish His Work.

MR. WILLIAM LINEGAR, PRESIDENT COOPERS' UNION, PRESENT.

Last night the Star of the Sea Hall was filled to overflowing when Mr. Gosling and Commissioners McNamara, Bradshaw, Morris, Withers, McGrath and Ayre addressed the sturdy voters of St. John's.
Mr. William Linegar, President of the Coopers' Union, who for many years was closely associated with municipal affairs, in a few appropriate words reviewed the life of the Commission and pointed out the many good things they have done for the city. He then asked Mr. Gosling to address the meeting. On stepping to the front the Chairman of the Board was received with hearty applause and in an excellent speech he gave the experiences of the Commission for the past two years, and why they considered it their duty to the citizens of St. John's to offer again their services to the people. Notwithstanding, he spoke highly of his opponents and said that what ever the result may be harmony would at least preside in the conduct of the city affairs. He dealt largely on the water and sewerage, and pointed out the invaluable services to the Board rendered by the late Hon. John Harris. In referring to an affidavit which appeared during the day in the city papers, Mr. Gosling said he was not worrying about the matter, as it was signed by the alleged Secretary of an opposing element. In speaking of the unwarranted charges made against the Board relative to public health, he said they were nothing short of silly statements, and showed weakness on the part of the persons that made them. It was well known to all, that the death rate in St. John's last year was the smallest on record, and that the epidemic of measles was an occurrence over which only nature had control. Mr. Gosling concluded by asking the support of all present at the polls to-morrow, and on taking his seat he was loudly applauded.

The other Commissioners were given a like reception to Mr. Gosling. On the platform were pieces of corded water pipe, which were exhibited to the meeting by Mr. McNamara. The pipes showed a diameter of six inches but were so corroded that it was almost impossible for water to flow through them. "There, gentlemen," said Mr. McNamara, "were the conditions we were up against when we took over the affairs of the city."

Messrs. Bradshaw, Ayre, McGrath, Withers and Morris agreed with everything said by Mr. McNamara, and should we be up against a big fire with the conditions that existed two years ago there would be little hope for the city, and a repetition of the 1892 fire would surely follow. They discussed the housing problem to the satisfaction of all present. Electric lighting, reduction of taxation to the working man, and other civic improvements were discussed to the satisfaction of all present.
The meeting closed with ringing cheers for Mr. Gosling and the Commission.

Provision in Case Of Fire at Barracks

A new water system to cope with an outbreak of fire, should such a contingency arise, has been installed. Alarms and hydrants are conveniently situated and a special picket duty is constantly on watch in case of fire.
For the protection of the lives of the men sleeping at the Barracks provision is made for men sleeping nearest each window, the different exits and main doors, to open them and allow access to companies. By touching switches sentries can turn on the lights immediately. Doors and windows open outward. Yesterday fire drill was held and everything went without a hitch under the new arrangement. Over 700 men were in their bunks without tumbles on, when the alarm sounded and inside of thirty seconds all were outside, dressed and carrying their bed clothes with them. Major Montgomerie put the men through the fire drill and the conduct of the men was commendable.

Mr. W. A. O'D. Kelly, candidate for Mayor, held a most enthusiastic and successful open air meeting on the historic King's Beach last night in the presence of hundreds of citizens. Germany's Threat to Switzerland.

Berne, Switzerland, June 22.—Federal councillor Schultze announced in parliament to-day that Germany had made a demand that the Swiss government permit the exportation of cotton and foodstuffs collected in this country by German agents. If the demand is not complied with, Germany will prohibit the exportation to Switzerland of coal, iron and other materials, which would mean that Swiss industries would be brought to a standstill.

The Swiss federal authorities have asked for time to reply, and are sending a delegation to Paris to confer with representatives of the entente allies in regard to the situation.

Meteor Burns the Earth.

Plants Withered as Though by Intense Flame.
York, Pa., June 14.—A remarkable effect of the fall of a meteor, which exploded in the West End with a concussion that shook the city, has been noted at the home of Gustav R. Brostrum.

Over a radius of about thirty feet the lawn and shrubbery are withered and burned as though by intense flame, and the condition has gradually become more noticeable since the day of the fall of the meteor. It is attributed to intense heat produced from combustion of the gases of which it is supposed the meteor was composed. On a snowball bush unopened blossoms were burned to a crisp.

The Brostrums were awakened by a noise as though something had crashed on the roof. The only damage to the house was a broken window pane.

A Mother's Decoration.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Happier far than thou
With the laurel on thy brow,
She that makes the humblest hearth
Happy for but one on earth."

A friend of mine has received a decoration. Not an Iron Cross nor a V. C. A doctor conferred this honour. I call it a decoration, because she feels as if the very heart of her had been decorated, but it was not anything material, just a sentence of commendation.

day with a radiant face. "The doctor had written and asked me to bring Ruth in town," she said: "they want to show her to some of the people that don't believe the treatment will cure and won't stick to it. They say she's such a wonderful example that she'll give other folks courage. I little thought those days when I was hugging her in my arms that everything would come out so happy."

Ruth is a little girl. She had nip disease. For years her mother carried her (then a child of four) to the hospital in her arms, heavy brace and all, every week. To-day she is a perfectly healthy, normal child.

A light radiated from her mother's face. She too had been decorated.

What a Twelve-Year-Old Heroine Did.

In a certain school a medal is given each year for the most heroic deed done by any pupil. Last year it went to a little girl of twelve who, after the death of her father, kept the family from being sent to an asylum. A brother, slightly deaf, supplied the family income, and the girl managed the house, took care of the younger children and kept up with her studies.

She was greatly surprised at receiving the medal. She did not realize that she had done anything heroic. Most of them—his knees and her—of daily life—never do realize. Can't you just imagine how surprised they'll all be some day when the Great King says, "Well done," and they find themselves more honored than some of the great of the earth?

The neck of veal cooked until tender, then lifted from the stock, cut into pieces and flavored with allspice, ground cloves, cinnamon, pepper and salt, then mixed with the hot stock and packed in a square earthen or porcelain dish, will make a delicious cold meat for slicing.

a quarrel without the aid of profanity, but with its help anyone can cook up a fight in three minutes.

Profanity is not refined, and is regarded with horror by the best people, except when it is heard on the stage. If the hired girl were to say "damn" in the average family, she would be fired forthwith, but this word is always greeted with great applause in a play, and is a great boon to the weary author, who would otherwise have to think up something original at that point.

Profanity is not a hard art to acquire. It can be learned in the home with the aid of a telephone or a weak-chested furnace in a very few lessons.

Newfoundland Colleges to be Affiliated With Universities.

OF MARITIME PROVINCES.

Prof. Watson of Mount Allison University is in the city on his way to Grand Bank, Newfoundland, to attend the Methodist Conference which opens there next week.

Speaking at the war and its effect on the colleges and schools in Nova Scotia, Prof. Watson stated that in September, last, when Mount Allison opened for the fall term, there were over one hundred men registered, at Christmas there were sixty and in May when the college closed there were forty. Over 60 per cent of Mount Allison's students had enlisted. Normally the university had a registration list of 240 to 300. About 140 of these were men students. But although Mount Allison had lost approximately $14,000 they could not conscientiously remonstrate against the men enlisting.

There is to be an educational conference in Newfoundland also. And it is probable, says Prof. Watson, that the affiliation so long desired by Newfoundland and Nova Scotian colleges will be consummated at this conference.

There are three colleges in St. John's: The Bishop Field, St. Bonaventure's, and the Methodist, but no degrees can be granted by either of these. The highest grade of work in these schools corresponds with the second year work of Dalhousie, Mt. Allison or St. Francis Xavier. If the plans for affiliation are perfected, first year students can enter Mt. Allison on junior work.

Prof. Watson, who is the guest of Mr. J. C. Mills while here, attended the closing exercises at the Academy last evening and delivered an address to the pupils.—Sydney Record, June 28.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES CALLED IN COWS.

The Greatest Asset of Democracy.

New York Times — The greatest contribution (it says) that Great Britain has made to the war is not the number of men she has put in the field, or the munitions she has turned out, or the ships which have sailed the seas, but the unbroken front, solidarity, and stubborn tenacity of the nation as a whole. That is a true picture of the English which every one knows instinctively to be true. The confusion is in technique, and that is unimportant. There are nations that might run the war better, but there is not one that could be more trusted to win the war, and that, after all, is the thing that counts. To be sure of this you have only to consider what would happen to the Allies if England deserted them, and what England would do if the Allies deserted her. She would go on alone, as she has been known to do before. England denouncing herself as inefficient is yet the greatest moral asset of democracy in Europe.

Freedom of the Sea Causes U. S. President to Blunder Over Peace

Mr. Wilson made some general propositions which do not stand the test of analysis. When he speaks of the right of every people to choose the sovereignty under which they live, and in the next breath talks of the guaranteeing of the territorial integrity and political independence of existing nations, he submits two proposals which are incompatible. In the first he proposes to disintegrate the nations, and if this is so, where is the application of his second declaration?

But the weakest thing in this pronouncement is the talk of "guaranteeing the freedom of the seas." Does Mr. Wilson, or anybody else, suppose that, after the demonstration of its incalculable value Great Britain will ever surrender her sea power? She never used it in peace times to fetter the "freedom of the seas." Germany and ourselves enjoyed all the freedom we could possibly desire. Great Britain differs from us in her sea policy in the respect that she has no restrictive navigation laws. A German vessel could trade from one British port to another on exactly the same terms as a British vessel, and this was true of a British or American vessel trading from one German port to another. In fact, Great Britain had established real freedom of the seas.

There must be some Americans who feel that our virtuous offer to teach the rest of the world, that part of it outside the United States which Mr. Wilson describes as "humanity," how to conduct its business, is somewhat ridiculous. A sense of humor is a sense of proportion. No one could call our government efficient, and our conduct of foreign affairs, especially in relation to our near neighbors, is a poor example to the warring nations of Europe. By what right does Mr. Wilson assume that the world is waiting for us to lead it in the paths of righteousness?—Wall Street Journal.

Is Russian Drive First Blow in Great Allied Offensive

Military Critic Says Russians and British Must Now Win War—Germans Must Shorten Lines or Face Disaster—Political Effect of Russian Victories Soon Apparent.

An article entitled The First Blow in the Russian Offensive, appears in the recent issue of the New York Tribune by Frank H. Simon, the author of The Great War, which throws much light on the activities of the different warring nations in Europe.

The great Russian offensive, it says, is not generally appreciated in the outside world. They have up to June 13th captured some 115,000 prisoners and re-occupied Lutsk, Dniepro, Busaz and Czernowitz.

In places they have advanced 100 miles and have reached Ziota Lipa, one point. He continues:

"It can now be said that the Russians have won the greatest victory on the Allied side since the trench warfare began. It is the most considerable success on either side since the battle of the Dunaec, and it is a final demonstration that trench lines can be broken and the deadlock at least temporarily interrupted under certain circumstances. We had first to examine these circumstances and then to consider the possible consequences of the actual operation."

"It is fairly clear that the Russian attack was delivered at the weak point in the Austro-German line after there had been a large and patient advance stripping of this line for reasons that are clear. Away back at the beginning of the war we saw the Austrian armies were unable to stand up against Russian, when they were not supported and stiffened by German contingents. We saw the Russians consistently successful on the frontier to the edge of the Hungarian Plain and over a period of nearly nine months."

In regard to the Verdun offensive the Russians he says that there is little doubt but that the Germans, after reorganizing the Austrian armies, drew heavily upon them for this blow at the French troops. They did this on account of the roads, for they could not be assured that the Russians could not begin an offensive for at least three months.

Then the Germans persuaded the Austrians to draw more troops out of the east for an offensive against the Italians, which was at first locally successful but in the main proved a failure, and the gallant Italians held their lines against the Austrian onslaughts.

The Austrian lines in the east being thinly held when the Russian offensive began they crumpled and broke like tissue paper walls; the Russians rushed through and carried the day. It is also doubtful if the Austrians have been able to do what was left of their forces out of

Is Russian Drive First Blow in Great Allied Offensive?

Military Critic Says Russians and British Must Now Win War—Germans Must Shorten Lines or Face Disaster—Political Effect of Russian Victories Soon Apparent.

An article entitled 'The First Blow—The Russian Offensive,' appears in a recent issue of the New York Tribune by Frank H. Simond, the author of 'The Great War,' which throws much light on the activities of the different warring nations in Europe.

The great Russian offensive, he says, is not generally appreciated by the outside world. They have up until June 13th captured some 115,000 prisoners and re-occupied Lutsk, Dubno, Husatz and Czernowitz.

In places they have advanced 35 miles and have reached Ziota Lipa at one point. He continues:

In regard to the Verdun offensive of the Russians he says that there is little doubt but that the Germans, after reorganizing the Austrian armies, drew heavily upon them for this blow at the French troops. They did this on account of the roads, for they could rest assured that the Russians could not begin an offensive for at least three months.

Then the Germans persuaded the Austrians to draw more troops out of the east for an offensive against the Italians, which was at first locally successful but in the main proved a failure, and the gallant Italians held their lines against the Austrian onslaughts.

How You May Throw Away Your Glasses

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunate ones, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once! Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one Bon-Opto tablet in 1/4 glass of water. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind, who nearly so, or who wear glasses might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eye-glasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail. If your druggist cannot.

A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constant ingredients will help to correct eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations, I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

the wreck and re-establish the line. In any case it would be a very difficult task.

It is pointed out by the writer that because of these facts Lemberg is now in deadly peril and the conditions all are on the side of the Russians who are still rushing forward unchecked. If Lemberg falls Galicia will be reconquered and if the advance continues the armies will be standing on the old battle ground of September, 1914.

"If the Russian advance in Galicia reaches and passes Lemberg, then the effect upon the German lines to the north, from the Pripet marshes to the Gulf of Riga, will be unmistakable. Just as the Russian armies along the Carpathians were compelled to go back when the Dunaiej army collapsed; just as the Warsaw army had to retire when the Galician armies had been driven back upon Lublin, the German armies will have to retire from the Dvina to the Niemen, and conceivably to the Vistula to avoid being taken in the rear by the Russian armies, which are advancing in the south."

The German Map Destroyed.

"This retreat would mean the surrender of a clear half of all the territory now held by the Germans in the east; it would mean that a balance between Russian territory held by the Germans and Austrian territory held by the Russians would be almost struck and the German claim to make a 'victorious peace' on the basis of the map would be destroyed. In a word, the whole situation in the east would be changed, and changed in a wholly unexpected fashion."

"This, of course, is only on the political side. On the military side by retiring the Germans would shorten their lines very materially, and standing behind the Niemen and Vistula and the San, and along the Carpathians south of Przemyel, which could come back into the line, they would have an easier line to defend and one which would offer grave difficulties to the invader. There would be no immediate, perhaps no eventual, peril for the Germans of such an envelopment as threatened the Russians for so many weeks last summer."

The Political Peril.

"But for political reasons the Germans must desire to avoid this recoil in his last campaign in Germany; they are condemned to hold long and dangerous lines because of the political consequences of retreat and the surrender of conquered territory. Napoleon had to fear, what happened, the entrance of Austria; Germany has to fear a complete change in the Balkan situation, and the probable enlistment of Rumania, if she has to confess defeat by any considerable relinquishment of conquered territory."

"Before turning to examine the political consequences of continued Russian success, I desire to mention, very briefly the situation that seems to exist now. Bear in mind that henceforth the whole field of the war in Europe must be viewed as a unit. In the winter of 1915, Germany, having failed to break the Anglo-French lines and win the war, could go east and build up her campaign against Russia because she knew that the French and British would not be ready for many months to attack her. This explains her great drive into Russia, which had reached its maximum of success before the Allied drives in Champagne and Artois could be begun."

"But now if the Germans draw any considerable number of troops from the western to the eastern front it is certain that the British will attack from the Somme to the sea. They are now ready to make this attack. They have not less than 1,250,000 troops where they had little more than a fifth of this number a year ago; they have big guns and ammunition, and they have had a very long time to prepare. Nothing is more certain than that the withdrawal of any number of German divisions along the western front will be followed by a terrific British offensive, exactly like the present Russian drive, and delivered under conditions similar to those which made the Russian drive successful.

"On the other hand, if the Austrians draw back troops from the Italian front, as is reported to have been done, then the Italians are bound to attack, not in the Trentino, but along the Isonzo, where they have been preparing for more than a year. Even a slight advance at this point would take them to the rear of Trieste, and threaten the whole waterfront of Austria-Hungary."

"Finally, if the Central Powers draw any part of their slender forces out of the Balkans it is certain that the Allies in Salonica will attack the Bulgarians, and it is exceedingly likely that the Bulgarians will very quickly tire of fighting the British, French and Serbs, with a fair prospect of having the Greeks on their hands as well; for the first sign of collapse on the part of the Central Powers is bound to bring the Greeks in and King Constantine cannot prevail upon his people to remain neutral once the fortune of war begins to run markedly in favor of the Allies."

The "Big Push."

"It is clear, then, that this Russian offensive may well be the first step in the 'Big Push' that has been expected so long. The Austro-Germans are heavily outnumbered on all fronts now. They have weakened themselves on one front to deliver two blows on two other fronts. Both blows have been carried and neither has resulted in any military achievement of moment. While some ground was being won in France and along the Italian boundary at a high casualty cost, a disaster has come on the eastern front, and there has been a partial and possibly a permanent collapse on the part of several armies."

"The Allies have also maintained that at some time not later than this summer the Central Powers would have to shorten their lines or suffer disaster. It is too soon to say that the Galician fighting demonstrates that this was an accurate forecast or constitutes a great disaster. Certainly it is a tremendous defeat, but we shall not have to wait long to see whether the Allied prophets have at last been accurate."

"Accepting the Allied forecast for the moment, what should now happen is a withdrawal by the Germans either from France or from all the Russian territory which they now hold, save only Russian Poland. We may soon see the evacuation of France and even of Belgium or the retreat behind the Niemen and the Vistula."

Evacuation May Follow.

"But the first will be accepted as a tremendous moral defeat all over the world and will encourage France and Britain to go forward; the second will be a plain invitation to Rumania and Greece to come in on the winning side and a discouragement to Bulgaria and Turk, which may conceivably tempt one or both to anything they expected, and their hope of permanent profit is growing very dim."

"On the other hand, we may see that the Germans will be able to bring reserves into Galicia, restore the deadlock, standing behind the Bug and the Ziota Lipa and at the same time beat off any British attack in the west, an Italian offensive in the south or Allied operations in the Balkans. Yet even now it is not too soon to say that we are witnessing what is intended by the Allies to be the first move in the 'Big Push,' their supreme effort to win the war."

The Decisive Period.

"It is my own belief—and in this I found ample agreement in Europe—that the present summer will see the decisive phase of the present war. Unless one side or the other wins a substantial victory, unless the Germans are turned out of France and Belgium, or such a deliverance is well begun, I believe the winter will see the beginning of negotiations for peace on the basis of status quo ante. I do not believe that if the deadlock continues any belligerent will continue to desire war, provided no sacrifice of territory is asked of any nation. Nor do I believe that any such demand will be made if there is no change.

"But the eagerness of Germany to make peace before the summer campaign began, the refusal of the Allies and the astonishing success of the Russians in the first operation must combine to give new hope to the friends of the Allies and afford at least reasonable ground for believing, as the French and British do, that after Verdun the outcome of the war is assured."

The Meaning of Verdun.

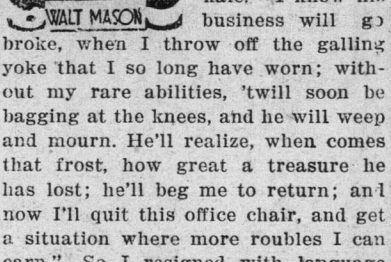

"We begin to see the meaning of Verdun more clearly now. France once more 'took on' the 'operative corner' of the fight. She accepted and fulfilled the mission of holding the final drive of the Germans to win a moral victory on the battlefield. By holding Verdun for nearly four months under terrific attack the French have succeeded in preventing the moral victory for Germany; their work is now about done. It must be for the British and the Russians to bear the cost in lives and to do the main work of the summer campaign. France has fought and won another Marne, even if the ruins of the old city of Verdun should ultimately fall to the Germans."

"Verdun may easily prove to be another Genoa and Petain may have rendered to the Allies exactly the service that Masena rendered to Napoleon when he held the Italian town until the victory of Marengo had been prepared. Genoa finally fell, but Marengo settled the war."

QUITTING A JOB.

I said, "My wages are too low; I've worked away, the best I know, since I was young and hale, and my employer never cries, 'Oh, James Adolphus, you're a prize, I'll see you draw more kale.' I know his business will go broke, when I throw off the galling yoke that I so long have worn; without my rare abilities, 'twill soon be bagging at the knees, and he will weep and mourn. He'll realize, when comes that frost, how great a treasure he has lost; he'll beg me to return; and now I'll quit this office chair, and get a situation where more roubles I can earn." So I resigned with language brief; my boss's face showed great relief, instead of pain and woe; he cried aloud, "Oh, happy day! It's long since you have earned your pay—I'm glad to see you go!" He's doing business as of yore; things boom in his department store, his goods are all the rage; while I plod on, with sigh and sob, and vainly try to get a job at half my former wage.

Splendid Way in Which England Gets Dollars.

This war is making new precedents of many kinds. The financial precedents are startling both in magnitude and in character. War debts and war cost have reached proportions away beyond human comprehension, but England's method of selling her own loans is not only a selling her own loans is not only comprehended but must be greatly admired. The United States will not buy enough French and English bonds to pay for the supplies which these countries purchased here. The United States will, however, buy an unlimited amount of the stocks and bonds of its own corporations which are owned in Europe. British brains evolved a way to buy these American supplies and to pay for them with American dollars.

Parliament has compelled British investors to turn over their American securities, taking new British loans in payment. These American securities are being sold as rapidly as possible in the United States, and the proceeds in dollars are used to pay for war supplies. Never before did any nation mobilize in this fashion the individually owned stocks and bonds of its people and compel them to exchange them for its own loans. It is good business for the British government, and it is also good business for the United States, which gets back its own securities at moderate prices with the proceeds or its unexchanged sales of materials at sky-high prices. But only time can tell if this is likewise a good thing for the individual British investor. At any rate, he has the satisfaction of knowing that when he sells his American stocks and bonds, he gets in exchange a lien upon his empire, for whose safety 5,000,000 men have shouldered arms.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

What They Cured Here's the remarkable experience of a Nova Scotian:

"I was once a terrible sufferer with kidney and bladder troubles, and at times I would lose the use of my legs, and could not go away from home without some one with me. I was treated by different doctors for 3 years, and only got temporary relief. My son advised me to take Gin Pills, and after taking the first 2 or 3 doses I got relief. I continued to take them until I got completely cured. I owe my life to Gin Pills. Yours very truly, F. M. KEMPSON, Port Medway, N. S. GIN PILLS are 50c. a box or 6 boxes for $2.50 at all druggists.
