 REID this and smile and grin.

This is the year of VICTORY.
 We are COAKERS to finish a fight;
 KNOWING the cause is just, boys,
 This is the year of our WRIGHT.

With a BISHOP to bless our cause
 There is nothing to BARR our way,
 Especially as WINTER is over,
 The sun will shine next day.

BOWRING the way to Berlin,
 Are soldiers not fat but thin;
 It GREAVES the Kaiser to see them,
 And he knows he cannot win.

This is the year of VICTORY,
 This is the flour of fame;
 We have BAIRD our brawley arm,
 And we can do so again and again.

Pull on the oar of VICTORY,
 MONROE, and we'll get there quick;

Arter th Ball,

The Mystery Solved at Last.

CHAPTER XXX.
The Agony of Love.

One o'clock, and the ball is in full swing, the room one flash of brilliant light and color, the air laden with perfume, and thick with the delicious strains of a fashionable band.

The "Lancers" have just been gone through. Couples are gliding off to the cool conservatories and in search of ices and frozen wines.

Mammals with marriageable daughters are on the tip-toe of anxiety, respecting their charges.

Politicians are discussing, in little knots, in corners and alcoves.

A group of assiduous courtiers crowd around the royal personage, who lights up the illustrious assemblage with the sunlight of his presence, and the countess is gliding to and fro, with her lovely face all in a sweet and pleasant smile, forgetting no one, neglecting nothing of the duty that falls upon the shoulders of the hostess.

"The countess is looking grand to-night," remarked Lord Hawthorn to his friend, the Marquis of Hawtry, with whom he was drinking some champagne in a cool recess.

"Magnificent!" assented the marquis. "Can't make that woman out, though, I believe," and his voice here sank to a whisper, "that there's something wrong—or will be if Crownbrilliant doesn't look sharp."

"Eh? What, my young chit—"

"Hush! No names!" interrupted the marquis, cautiously, looking around as he spoke. "You never can tell who's on the other side of a shrubbery."

"But you don't mean—" asked Lord Hawthorn, aghast.

"In other words, yes—afraid so. Crownbrilliant regularly cut him out, overbid him, you know. It's always the way—always. Look at the Countess Flinart, Lady Markington, and, oh, a host of others. It's a dreadful thing, but, mind, I feel for her more than I do for Crownbrilliant. He's gone all wrong lately. Getting turfy, and drinks—when—like a fish. He was always fond of the bottle, you know, but kept it quiet until after his marriage. Now he's let the painter go, and is as far adrift as a man can be without going down, all hands aboard. Hush! There they go. That's he whose arm she's leaning on. Handsome fellow, and making his way in the House. It's a deuced bad job!"

Chudleigh had arrived, and the marquis was quite right when he said he saw the countess leaning on his arm.

"You are tired," she said, as they strolled through the cool, refreshing world of flowers and ferns. "Rest here a while."

Indigestion Resulted From an Inactive Liver

The Bowels Become Constipated and the Whole Digestive System Upset.

With many people constipation becomes a habit. At first it is a dangerous habit which is cured sooner or later to cause serious disease.

"Daily movement of the bowels" is the first and most important rule of health. When the liver becomes torpid the flow of bile into the intestines is stopped, and the bowels become constipated. But you can readily overcome this condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment obtainable which so promptly awakens the activity of the liver and bowels and thereby corrects derangements of the digestive system.

Mrs. Elizabeth Doherty of Beaver Brook, Albert Co., N.B., writes: "I can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a great medicine for constipation. I have suffered from constipation ever since I can remember, but got to using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was so benefited that I began to study this remedy. I found that the indigestion resulted from a bad case of inactive liver, and as soon as I got the liver working right I didn't have any stomach trouble or indigestion. I can't praise this medicine too highly, and would advise anyone suffering from indigestion or constipation to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. My husband also claims that these pills have done him more good than any medicine he ever used. You are at liberty to use this letter."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively relieve and cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, indigestion, backache and kidney disease. Put it to the test. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edman-son, Estes & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

She sank into the little nook he pointed out to her, and leaned against the rock beside her, his dark, earnest eyes fastened upon her sad, lovely face.

"Shall I get you anything?" he whispered.

She shook her head.

"No, I want nothing but a little rest. Oh, Chudleigh, Chudleigh, if you knew how weary I am, how weary! Would to Heaven I were dead!"

He was on his knee beside her, his face white, his lips working.

"Hush, hush, my darling. You will kill me! Dead! Think what should I do if you were. Ah!" and he shuddered. "I cannot speak the word. Oh, Carlotta, Carlotta, my darling! I am going mad! I am dying with the daily longing, the daily despair! Oh, my love, my love, what is to be done? What—Carlotta!" he broke off with a sudden gasp. "Carlotta, there is one thing left. We cannot endure it longer. It kills me to think that you are around to him! Oh, Heaven! I shall go mad, my darling! Fly from him! Fly—"

She started to her feet, with a shudder and a suppressed scream.

"Go, go, go!" she breathed. "Take me to Maud—gentle Maud—or I am lost!"

He arose, and she grasped his arm. He trembled and grew pale.

The mere mention of his sister's name had shown him the deadliness of his temptation, and caused a revulsion of feeling.

"Come," he said, and led her into the conservatory and into the room again, her face still a little pale, though the smile had returned to it.

In a quiet, cool corner they found Maud, attended by a gray-haired colonel, whose voice and hands were soft and tender as a woman's, notwithstanding he had assisted to carry the heaviest and most frightful redbouts on the dread Balaklava.

Maud was very little better for her Christmas in town, though it was far in May.

Sir Fielding had still remained in London, for the doctors had assured him that there was nothing physically wrong with his dearly beloved daughter, and the gentle girl's ailment was mental, though in what shape they did not—perhaps because they would not say.

In compliance with their advice, Sir Fielding had plunged into gaiety and fashion, hoping that every ball and every opera would serve to dispel the unwonted sadness and paleness that had visited Maud.

She made room for Carlotta beside her, with a sweet smile that same at once as balm and additional force to the countess's troubled soul, and Chudleigh, bowing, strode off to get the cool night air upon his brow from one of the terraces.

"Well, dear Carlotta, have you been dancing much?" she asked, taking her hand, but adding, before Carlotta could answer: "How hot your hand is! It burns like fire. Are you not well?"

"Yes, yes, my dear!" replied Carlotta; "the room is hot, and I am rather tired. Are you not warm?"

"Yes, but not like this," said Maud, gently lifting the hand and laying it against her cheek. "It is like a coal. Are you ill?"

"No, no," replied Carlotta, wearily, "not ill, Maudie, only tired—only tired."

"Can we not go on the terrace a little while?" Maud asked of the colonel.

"Will you let me take you?" he

Prepare This for a Bad Cough—It's Pinex

Cheerily and Peacefully, but Loosely the Neck Quickly.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy—costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations—can easily be made up at home. The way it takes hold and cures distressing coughs, throat and chest colds will really make you enthusiastic about it. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 1-pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 25 cents and gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of a most effective, pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dried cough will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with glycerol and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

said, with delighted gallantry.

Taking the two on his arm, he led them to the terrace.

"It is cool here," said Maud.

"I will get you an iced," said the colonel, hurrying away.

"Now, Carlotta, dear," said Maud, putting her arm around her waist and drawing the unhappy woman to her soft, gentle bosom, "tell me, really and truthfully, are you not ill?"

Carlotta covered her eyes with her hands for a moment; then, in her turn, drew Maud toward her, and looking into her pure, gentle eyes, said, almost hoarsely:

"Ill? Ill? Are we not both ill, child, with the same disease—love?"

As Maud shrank from her grasp, with a crimson blush, she glided into the room again, leaving Maud panting and breathless, face to face with her own heart on the terrace.

What did Carlotta mean? Was it possible that she had read her secret—looked into her heart, and seen the image of the being enshrined there?

Her secret! Hers no longer, since another shared it. Then she wept, but fell to trembling as she thought of Carlotta herself, and half annoyed, half frightened, closed her eyes and shut from her heart the fearful thoughts and dread that had just entered it, murmuring:

"No, no; Chudleigh is too good—too good."

Then, hearing the footsteps of the colonel approaching, she withdrew to another portion of the balcony, for her heart was too full to bear any one near her.

So, leaning against the marble balustrade, she stayed for nearly an hour, looking into the world of stars, and thinking of that other starlit, moonlight night, when the heavens had seemed glorious to her, with a fresh glory born of the sound of one sweet, grave voice, and the touch of his strong yet gentle arms, and listening to the bursts of music that came through the window into the night air.

Suddenly a nameless yet distinct commotion in the room behind her aroused her, and, rising with a sigh, she walked silently toward one of the windows.

When she reached it, she could see that a waltz had just been finished, and the hot and flushed dancers, instead of walking to and fro, and struggling into the terraces or into the conservatory, were standing looking at a group of persons, among them Lord and Lady Crownbrilliant and her aunt, collected around a tall figure, whose head arose above the surrounding ones.

She recognized the grand face instantly, notwithstanding a certain strange change about it, and her heart gave a strange leap that made her turn faint and cling to the pillar of the window for support.

In the giddy ringing in her ears she heard some one near her say:

"Look, that is he—that is Lucian, the greatest painter and musician and the most marvelous man of the age. I think. See what a grand head—it's like a Roman emperor's. Mistaken! Not I, Maurice Durant, a country clergyman? Not a bit of it. I tell you it is Lucian, the painter. I have seen him scores of times in Venice and Rome—Talk about romance!"

Maud heard no more, for she moved to the terrace, and turned her face to the stars.

Was she asleep or dreaming? The buzzing increased—came near. She could hear his voice. It was changed; its sternness had gone; there was a light, musical ring, a certain joyous freedom about it that made her weep—she could not tell why.

She would not faint, though at every word of the ringing voice her soul seemed growing larger, and her senses less distinct.

The music bursting out drowned the voice.

A footstep—his—sounded behind her. She turned, caught one glimpse of his grand, splendid face, lit up with a glorious smile, heard her name breathed in a voice of heavenly beauty, felt his arms cling around her falling form—his kisses on her brow—then swooned of pure delight and excess of joy.

"Am I dreaming? Am I dead?" she breathed, opening her eyes and turning them to his, that looked down into them.

"Not dreaming or dead, my darling, but mine—mine!"

And he drew her closer to him.

She breathed a sigh, and sank upon his breast.

He shook with delight, and his voice, quivering like a leaf, whispered in her ear:

"Do not speak, my beloved; rest—rest. I am thine—thou art mine. When thou wakest I will tell thee all. Sleep—sleep."

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment. A 25-cent bottle will double the beauty of your hair.

The Tyrant Defied.

"Get off the sea," shouted the Kaiser to Woodrow Wilson, "and keep off it until I let you know. If you don't obey orders I'll sink your ship; and crews on sight. You can send one ship a week across to England, but no more." "That's an insult to the greatest nation on earth," says Woodrow Wilson. "You are defied! One ship a week! We will not send one ship a week. All our ships will remain proudly in harbour until Britain makes the seas safe once more. So tyrant do your worst!"—Toronto Globe.

A silver grape vine is seen on a veil covering a high straw toque.

The separate coat of the spring will not reach the bottom of the skirt it is worn over.

Flattering to the Original

But Imitations Only Disappoint. There are many imitations of this great treatment for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and whooping cough. They usually have some sale on the merits of the original, but it should be remembered that they are like it in name only.

Cody Enterprise—Before the coming of spring our armies will be marching across flaming Europe, to lend their aid in the name of justice along the French frontier, in the hell of hate where millions struggle now. Over the scarred and hideous battlefields, in silny trenches, on blood-stained plains and lofty mountain heights the Stars and Stripes will float to cheer us on to victory, and cast its peaceful shadow on the unknown graves in that foreign land where many of our countrymen will rest. BOMBS FOUND IN HOTEL.

HOBOKEN, N.J., March 5.—An alleged plot against the President Wilson has been uncovered here, according to detectives, who yesterday arrested Fritz Kibb, a German deserter from Mexico. In the hotel where Kibb had engaged a room they found two bombs which the detectives say were to have been sent to the President. Kibb, when questioned at police headquarters, is said to have confessed that he had conspired against the President's life and that he took part in the Black Tom and Kingsland explosions. According to members of the New York bomb squad, the two bombs were of height of ingenuity. One is a time bomb, the other fitted to explode on an ignition fuse. The explosives contained in the tubing were wrapped around with copper wire. Upon information declared to have been given by Kibb, the detectives arrested two other men, one here and one in Jersey City, and brought them to police headquarters as alleged accomplices. The hotel where Kibb was arrested is the same one in which Lieut. Robert Fay, formerly of the German Army, and Hans Schiller, two roomers prior to their arrest nearly a year ago charged with conspiracy to destroy British merchant ships by placing bombs in them before their departure from American harbors. Two bombs completed with nitroglycerine and picric acid were found in Kibb's room, according to the police whose inquiry was based on information reaching them several weeks back. The officers of the New York City police and the bomb squad were at police headquarters when Kibb's examination began after the arrest. Kibb said he was 36 years old and had no occupation. The papers found in his room were seized.

BOMBS FOUND IN HOTEL.

HOBOKEN, N.J., March 5.

An alleged plot against the life of President Wilson has been uncovered here, according to detectives, who today arrested Fritz Kibb, a German re-servist from Mexico. In the hotel where Kibb had engaged a room they found two bombs which the detectives say were to have been sent to-night to the President. Kibb, when questioned at police headquarters, is said to have confessed that he had conspired against the President's life, and that he took part in the Black Tom and Kingsland explosions. According to members of the New York bomb squad, the two bombs were the height of ingenuity. One is a time-bomb, the other fitted to explode by an ignition fuse. The explosives contained in the tubing were wrapped around with copper wire. Upon information declared to have been given by Kibb, the detectives arrested two other men, one here and one in Jersey City, and brought them to police headquarters as alleged accomplices. Two bombs completed with nitroglycerine and picric acid were found in Kibb's room, according to the police whose inquiry was based on information reaching them several weeks back. POTATO SHORTAGE ATTRACTS ATTENTION.

LONDON, March 5.

Increase in the enemy's resistance of the British pressure in the vicinity of Bapaume leads experts here to believe that Bapaume ridge is the limit of his voluntary retirement, and that it is his intention to cling to the line of Arras-Bapaume-Peronne, while launching an attack elsewhere. Lovat Fraser suggests that General Hindenburg, who knows the Russian front better than the West, believes the war can be won in the East by shortening the front opposite the British and obtaining a stronger line for purely defensive warfare against General Haig's attacks. When the ground becomes fit the German leader may hope to release a useful number of divisions and a fresh offensive against Russia, where internal dissensions may turn to his advantage. This possibility is not to be lightly dismissed. In open fighting the Germans would have a better chance against Russia than in France, where the Allies would welcome war manoeuvres at any moment. The official statement that owing to world-wide shortage, the British people may have to do without potatoes in the late spring or early summer, attracts more attention than the situation on the Ancre. The result is that everyone is digging preparative potato plots on an unprecedented scale. Capt. Bathurst, the Food Controller's spokesman in the House of Commons, predicted in reply to questions to-day, that everyone would have to go without potatoes in the late spring and early summer. He said there was an unprecedented shortage not only

Official figures from the British Admiralty, made public here to-day at the office of the Consul-General for Britain, show that during February 94 British merchant ships were destroyed by mines or submarines. Of this number 61 were ships of 1,600 tons or over and 33 under 1,600 tons. In addition to the merchant ships 29 fishing vessels of British register were sunk. It is also reported that during the month sixty-seven British merchant vessels were unsuccessfully attacked by submarines, as shown by reports on file with the Admiralty. Up to and including March 4 the number of merchant vessels of all nationalities over 100 tons, exclusive of local or fishing craft which arrived at and departed from British ports were as follows: Vessels arrived, 9,463; vessels sailed, 9,134; total, 18,597. The foregoing figures do not include the losses of ships by Britain's Allies or those neutral nations which the Admiralty stated are not available. The number of German submarines captured or sunk, the Admiralty says, will not be made public. As indicative of the activity of Britain in replacing the losses it was officially stated that at the present time more than 2,000,000 tons of shipping are on the stocks at various shipyards, all more or less in advanced stages of construction. The general situation, the Admiralty announced, is considered quite satisfactory.

ENEMY ATTACK AND ARE REPULSED.

LONDON, March 5.

The official report from the British headquarters in France to-night reads: This morning the enemy attacked the position east of Bouchavesnes gained by us yesterday, but was repulsed with losses, leaving some prisoners in our hands. East of Gommecourt we have improved and strengthened the positions gained by us yesterday. This morning we carried out a successful raid southeast and northeast of the Arras region, and minor casualties were inflicted on the enemy; 42 prisoners and one machine gun were captured. We also entered the trenches southeast of Ginchy and took prisoners. In every case our trenches were light. East of Ypres the enemy exploded a mine. No damage was done our trenches. Yesterday there was considerable activity in the air, and many combats took place. In the course of the day six hostile machines were brought down, two falling in our lines, and eight were driven down damaged. Two of ours were brought down and five missing. Useful artillery reconnaissance work was carried out and many places of military importance were attacked with bombs.

CHURCHILL IN THE HOUSE.

LONDON, March 5.

Col. Churchill, former First Lord of the Admiralty, said in the House of Commons to-day, from the moment Bulgaria entered the war Germany obtained a through route to Constantinople. It ought to have been obvious that the size of the armies needed at Salonika to achieve decisive results exceeded the carrying power at the disposal of Britain. He added that British honor was not involved, however the question was exceedingly complex.

NO INTENTION OF WITHDRAWING TROOPS FROM SALONIKA.

LONDON, March 5.

In the House of Commons, replying to Churchill and other critics of the Salonika expedition, including John Dillon, who asserted that Roumania had been forced into the war by Britain against her will and against the advice of General Sarrail, the French commander and Russian Generals, Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, while refusing to reveal anything that Germany would likely know, intimated that the Government had no intention of withdrawing troops from Salonika. He said Britain would not act independently, but would consult with her Allies. If the expedition were withdrawn, Greece would be open and the whole Balkan Peninsula would be in the hands of the Entente enemies. With regard to a secret session of Parliament to discuss the matter, Bonar Law declared the Government could not frankly discuss the expedition even in secret session. The Allies now had a common policy, the main object of which was to insure that if their enemy advanced against them the Entente should not run the risk of a few months ago and be attacked from behind. No threats he asserted were used to induce Roumania into the war.

The Potato Shortage

The statement of responsible British officials that everyone in the United Kingdom would have to go without potatoes by early summer gives point to the local campaign for the growing of this necessary vegetable. We may dispute as much as we like over the causes of food prices, but there can be but one result of a general shortage of supply. We will inevitably feel it as well as Britain, for the cause is plainly stated to be, not transportation difficulties, but an actual lack of the potatoes themselves. The movement now on foot here has not come a moment too soon. If the shortage will make itself felt as early as the beginning of the summer we are certain not to escape at least some of the consequences of high prices, if it be nothing worse. Now, while the frost is still in the ground, is the time to make plans, and for the Government and agricultural societies to take stock of seeds, and to import in time sufficient quantities of these and of the right fertilizers to make practicable the cultivation of every possible acre. The advertisement of the Newfoundland Agricultural Board puts the matter well and should be studied. Not only is the potato considered indispensable everywhere, but a surplus above the ordinary supply is the best possible insurance against a shortage of flour, which seems only too likely to materialize. It would be a good thing in other ways as well, for there is no doubt that too much flour and too much salt meat is consumed here. There should be an intensive cultivation not only of potatoes but of cabbages, turnips, carrots, peas and beans, in fact, all the green vegetables. They can all be grown here, and what is more, an excellent flavour can justly be claimed for them which is not found in many foreign vegetables, and which compensates our short season. The conventional dietary of the island, particularly in the outports, is very lacking in variety, so essential to health, and absurdly conservative. If we had the appreciation of vegetables that other countries have we would grow far more of them. The same may be said with even more force of fruits. We may hope some day for an enlightened policy which will remove the prohibitive duties from fruit which have made what should be regarded as a necessity into an extravagant luxury. In the meantime, however, the potato question is a real and present one, and too much effort cannot be made towards its solution.

High Food Prices.

Wasters of every degree are the worst enemies of the poor. They buy the goods which the hungry lack, and thoughtlessly pay whatever is asked. It is every one's duty to buy closely and object to extortion even when it is necessary to submit to it. When farmers are asking $4 for potatoes and are storing them by the ton for higher prices they may be within their rights, but they do not go beyond the reach of public opinion. The lesson for those who can afford to buy freely is that they should take advantage of the many opportunities to economize. By so doing they would release commodities for the poor and aid directly in doing away with the conditions against which the present demonstrations are directed.—N. Y. Times.

life, liberate and quicken the processes of our national genius and energy, and lift our politics to a broader view of the people's essential interests. It is a record of singular variety and singular destination, but I shall not attempt to review it; it speaks for itself, and will be of increasing influence as the years go by. This is not the time for retrospect, it is the time rather to speak our thoughts and purposes concerning the present and the immediate future. Although we have centred our counsel and action with such an unusual concentration and success upon the great problem of domestic legislation to which we addressed ourselves four years ago, other matters have more and more forced themselves upon our attention, matters lying outside our own life as a nation and over which we had no control, but which, despite our wish to keep free of them, have drawn us more and more irresistibly into their own current and influence. It has been impossible to avoid them. They have affected the life of the whole world, they have shaken men everywhere with a passion and an apprehension that we are a composite and cosmopolitan people. We are of the blood of all nations that are at war. The currents of our thoughts as well as of our national emotions are quick at all seasons back and forth between us and them. The war inevitably sets its mark alike upon our minds, our industries, our commerce, our politics, our social actions. To be indifferent to it or independent of it was out of the question, and yet all the while we have been conscious that we were not part of it, that our consciousness despite many divisions we have drawn closer together. We have been deeply wronged upon the seas, but we have not desisted; we have retained throughout the consciousness of standing in some sort apart intent upon an interest that transcended the immediate issues of the war itself. As some of the injuries done us have become intolerable we have still been clear that we wished nothing for ourselves, that we were not ready to demand for all mankind fair dealing, justice, the freedom to live and be at ease against organized wrong. It is in this spirit, and with this, that we have grown more and more aware, more and more certain that the part we wish to play was the part of those who mean to vindicate and fortify peace. We have been obliged to arm ourselves to make good our claim to a certain measure of right and of freedom of action. We stand firm in armed neutrality since it seems that in no other way we can demonstrate what we insist upon and cannot forego. We may even be drawn on by circumstances, not by our own purpose or desire, to more active assertion of our rights as we see them, and a more immediate associating with the great struggle itself, but nothing will alter our thoughts of our purpose. They are too clear to be obscured, they are too deeply rooted in the principles of our national life to be altered. We desire neither conquest nor advantage. We wish nothing that can be had only at the cost of another people. We always professed unselfish purpose and we covet opportunity to prove that our professions are sincere. The tragical events of the last thirty months of turmoil through which we have just passed, have made us citizens of the world; there can be no turning back. Our own fortunes as well as a nation are involved, whether we would have it or not, and yet we are not the less Americans on that account. We shall stand for the more American if we remain true to the principles in which we have been brought up. They are not the principles of a province or of a single continent. We have known and boasted all along that they were the principles of a liberal mankind. These, therefore, are the things we shall stand for, whether in war or in peace: that all nations are equally interested in the peace of the world and in the political stability of free peoples and equal responsibility for their maintenance; that the essential principles of peace is the actual equality of nations in all matters of right or privilege; that peace cannot be securely or justly rest upon an armed balance of power; that Governments derive all their just powers from the consent of the governed; and that other powers should be supported by the common thought, purpose or power of the family of nations; that the seas should be equally free and cannot be used by one people to the detriment of another; that national armaments will be limited to the necessities of national order and domestic safety; that the community of interest and of power upon which peace must henceforth depend imposes upon each nation the duty of seeing to it that all influences proceeding from its own citizens should be such as to promote peace; that the common thought, purpose or power of the family of nations; that the seas should be equally free and cannot be used by one people to the detriment of another; that national armaments will be limited to the necessities of national order and domestic safety; that the community of interest and of power upon which peace must henceforth depend imposes upon each nation the duty of seeing to it that all influences proceeding from its own citizens should be such as to promote peace; WAR BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. Except for the front in France where the British and French are opposing the Germans, there have been only the usual outposts, engagements and bombardments. Around Arras near Ghinchy British troops carried out successful raids against the German positions, according to London. In the vicinity of Arras King George's men struck in two places and inflicted many casualties on the Germans, made 42 of these prisoners and captured a machine gun. Prisoners were also taken near Ghinchy. Near Bouchavesnes the Germans endeavored to wrest from the British the positions captured on Sunday, but met with a repulse. French counter attacks north of Bois Courieres, where the Germans made a gain at one point in an attack delivered over a front of 3 1/4 miles, regained a part of the captured elements, a French official statement says. Elsewhere the Bois Courieres the Germans were repulsed with heavy losses in their Sunday attack. The weather on the Russian front has again turned bitterly cold impeding operations there. Scouting parties continue active in Roumania and here and there artillery duels are in progress. There has been no change in the situation in the Austro-Italian Macedonian theatres. The repulse of a small Turkish attack near Kalkinli, in Turkish Armenia, is reported by Petrograd.

FILIBUSTERS CONDEMNED AS TREASONABLE.

NEW YORK, To-day. Resolutions condemning as the short of reasonable the action of the Senators who prevented the armed neutrality measure from coming to a vote, were passed at a mass meeting held here last night under the auspices of the American Rights League. President Wilson was urged to exercise his constitutional authority for arming American ships passing through the barred zone insolently established by the German Government decree. The Resolutions declared the Senators who opposed the neutrality bill had done what they could in the present crisis to weaken the hands of the American people and to strengthen the hands of Germany. The sinking of the Laconia, and the alleged plotting against the national safety were characterized as crowning infamies of two years' continuous warfare against the American people. Letters and telegrams were read from many prominent persons, including former President Roosevelt, Governor Whitman and bodies of citizens in Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities.

INTERNATIONAL LAW ACCORDING TO AUSTRIA.

LONDON, To-day. The American Ambassador at Vienna has handed the reply of the Austrian Government to the American note, inquiring as to the position of the Austrian Government in regard to unrestricted submarine warfare, according to the Vienna despatch by way of Amsterdam. The reply declares that neutrals are responsible for the losses they suffer by entering territory where warlike operations are taking place. The American note, which was despatched to Vienna on February 18th, asked specifically whether the Austrian assurances given following the sinking of the Anconia and Persia had been nullified. The reply says that whatever attitude the Washington Cabinet may take as to the individual questions raised here the Austro-Hungarian Government is essentially in accordance with the American Government in regard to the protection of neutrals against endangering their loss. The memorandum then maintains that neutral subjects have to bear themselves all losses they suffer by entering territory where warlike operations are taking place. After a lengthy discussion of the British blockade, which it declares is illegal, the memorandum continues, "the principle that neutrals should enjoy in war times the advantages of the freedom of the seas refers only to neutral vessels and not to neutral persons aboard enemy vessels." The reply further contends that belligerents are entitled to decide for themselves what measures should be taken against an enemy in sea traffic and concludes that in such cases neutrals have no other legitimate interests and therefore no other legal claim than that a belligerent should inform them in time of a prohibition directed to an enemy, so that they can avoid trusting their lives and their goods to enemy vessels.

BREACH OF NEUTRALITY IN U.S.A.

NEW YORK, To-day. Dr. C. Hanador Chaklberty, a Hindu physician, and Dr. Ernest Schkuner, 34, described as a German, were arrested to-day on a charge of conspiring to set up a military expedition against a Foreign Country in friendly relations with the United States: The police say the men confessed that they had plotted under the direction of Wolf Von Igel to invade India by way of China.

BERNSTORFF GETTING HOME.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. Von Bernstorff and his party will not leave the Frederick to-night at a Norwegian port, but will remain on board until the liner arrives at Copenhagen. They will stay here for a day or two before proceeding to Berlin.

POVERTY IN AUSTRIA.

LONDON, To-day. The situation among the poor classes of Austria is extremely serious, according to comments in the Austrian newspapers on Premier Martinico's announcement that the Government has appropriated millions of kronen for the purchase of food for the destitute.

A Rotterdam despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that the Austrian press declares that the poverty is so great that the gravest events are expected unless immediate help is given.

BRITAIN'S GREAT COMMERCE.

NEW YORK, To-day. The London correspondent of the Sun cables his paper this morning as follows: As an answer to Germany's contention that her submarines are starving Great Britain, the Government took a party of neutral correspondents on a three days' tour of the greatest mercantile shipping centres of the Kingdom, Liverpool, Manchester and London. The correspondents were permitted to see everything. Miles of docks were filled with shipping unloading from all quarters of the world or loading for outward voyages. Nowhere was there any evidence that the submarines are keeping ships in port. Hundreds of vessels were seen constantly coming and going, deeply laden with the necessities of war and life. Immense warehouses in Liverpool, Manchester and London were inspected in details, showing unbelievable stores of meat, grain and cotton. The most impressive feature was the complete frankness marking the experience. Nothing was concealed. There were no restricted zones; all questions were answered.

Not So Fond of Ottawa.

Despatches from Newfoundland indicate the existence among the people there of no eagerness to grant the desire of the British Government that they give up their status of independent colony, and join their fortunes with those of the Dominion of Canada. Indeed, they seem distinctly unwilling to make this change, and the chances are that a lot of argument will be required to make them do it. In Newfoundland, even more than in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, there is a tendency to speak unlovingly of what they usually call "Ottawa," and the common feeling is that the interests of the maritime region are not as carefully considered and guarded as they should be by the rulers of the Dominion.

What a Gas Range Means for You, Mrs. Housekeeper.

The gas range is a muscle saver and a step saver. Think of the many tons of coal you used in that coal range, and how you have had to handle it all twice; first, carrying it up out of the cellar; then, from the kitchen to the ash barrel. No more soot to wipe away; no more ashes to cart away; no more wood to fetch; no more coal dust; no more smoke and no more reason why the kitchen cannot be kept as clean and as orderly as the parlor. The gas range means just this. Saves 50 Per Cent. of Kitchen Care. Half of the labor in the house is caused by dust from the coal range. Every time it smokes, no matter how good the draught may be, clouds of soot rise and settle on the furniture. It Eliminates Hard Work. Use a gas range and you will live better, you will pay better, and you will work better because the use of the gas range eliminates the drudgery of carrying coal, ashes and the chopping of kindling, as well as the drudgery of cleaning up a lot of dirt, and, best of all, for the cook it makes it unnecessary for her to stand over a hot stove from two to three hours a day.

Prohibition Cases.

"WRIT OF PROHIBITION" ASKED FOR BY LIQUOR INTERESTS.

The outstanding Prohibition cases, which have been the chief theme of discussion for some time, came up for hearing in both Courts this morning, and considerable interest was evinced in them. Judge Penny, of Carboneau, presided. The first charge read was Wm. Grimes, Supt. of Police, vs. P. J. Shen, charged with a breach of Section 4 of the Prohibition Act. Mr. L. E. Emerson, representing the defendant, asked for a postponement, mentioning the fact that Mr. Howley, K. C. who also was acting for the liquor interests, was then making application to the Supreme Court for an order nisi or what is now more commonly known amongst the legal fraternity as a "writ of prohibition." Pending the result of this order, Judge Penny granted the postponement. A similar charge preferred against Edward Sinnott by Const. Edward Whelan was then called. Mr. McNelly objected to Judge Penny hearing the case on the ground that he had no jurisdiction to hear it. He pointed out that the Crown or Executive Government had no right or authority to appoint a Stipendiary Magistrate, adding that no such provision had been made in the Supply Act for 1916.

The order nisi was then heard before the full Bench in the Supreme Court, setting forth legal objections to Judge Penny trying the cases. Howley, K. C., stated that Judge Penny had been a Stipendiary Magistrate over Carboneau but in order to enable him to hear the Prohibition cases was given a new commission of Stipendiary Magistrate of Newfoundland. This, Mr. Howley, contended, the Government had no authority to do. Messrs. Dunfield and Hunt argued for the defence. At 1 p.m. an adjournment was taken until Friday next.

Second Lieut. H. Outerbridge Improving

CONDITION SATISFACTORY. Many in the city will be pleased to learn that Mr. P. E. Outerbridge has received a cable from his brother, Major Leonard Outerbridge, informing him that the condition of 2nd Lieut. Herbert Outerbridge is satisfactory. Lieut. Outerbridge was reported on Saturday to be dangerously ill, with a fractured skull, and there has been much anxiety on his account. The message should go far to relieve it, and it will be the general hope that the danger is now past. Lieut. Outerbridge gave an instance of his patriotism in enlisting last summer, with his brother Norman, and has been most popular with his men from the beginning, as well as a most efficient officer. It is improbable that he will be able to return to active service, and the loss to the Regiment is a heavy one.

SOCIABLE.—The event of the season will be the Sociable held in George St. Basement tomorrow (Wednesday) evening, the 7th inst. A real good programme has been arranged, in which the following will take part: Misses Christian (2), A. Pike, Curtis, Hanlan, Oakley, Langmead, Hill and Egan; Messrs. P. Cowan, C. Trapnell, J. A. Young, Foster, Demarest, J. A. Young, Christian, Wheeler, (Ventriloquist) and Sergt. Edwards. Part proceeds will be devoted to the Red Cross Fund. SO COME. Admission only 30c. In aid of the W. P. A. Fund, the Victoria and a team of ex-League players will try conclusions on Thursday evening next at the Prince's Rink. For the same worthy object a series of games are being arranged for next week between the three League teams. Would it not be a capital idea to have the champions of both Leagues meet?

The Waist Pattern is in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It is nice for voile, Georgette crepe, lawn, batiste, taffeta and flannel. It will require 2 1/2 yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size. The Skirt is in 7 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. It is good for serge, broadcloth, gabardine, mixed suiting, taffeta, satin and velvet. Size 24 will require 4 1/2 yards of 36-inch material. The skirt measures about 3 1/2 yards at the foot.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to you each on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern, in silver or stamps.

Not Eavesdropping.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON.

There are few things I enjoy more in the line of entertainment than listening to a conversation on a trolley car. I love those little authentic glimpses into people's lives, these little visits behind the scenes. They interest me more than the magazine that lies unopened on my lap. I suppose that will seem a startling statement to some people. They will say, "What terribly bad taste to eavesdrop like that and then to tell about it so frankly as if it were nothing to be ashamed of."

I've Had It Out With Myself.

That's just why I tell about it frankly because I don't think it is anything to blush for. I've had it out with myself and I think it is permissible to listen to what people say in perfectly audible tones in public places.

It's just like glancing in a window as you pass by when the curtains have been left up in the evening.

Of course if you went up to that window and peered in, that would be unforgivable. And so it would be unforgivable. And so it would if you eavesdropped to conversations. But listening to a conversation carried on in a public place is not eavesdropping to my way of thinking.

And Mr. Webster Agrees With Me.

Nor to the thinking of so distinguished a person as Mr. Webster. "To eavesdrop," he says, "means to lurk under the eaves of a house near a window, or door, to overhear private conversation, hence to listen secretly."

Now people must know they can be overheard on the cars and accept that risk.

And such interesting things as they do say!

One day I heard a conversation between two girls that gave me almost as splendid thrills as any fine deed on the stage. One told the other about a third girl who worked where she did, and how this girl took care of her mother nights through a siege of pneumonia and came to work days and was so cheerful and bright that no one ever knew anything was the matter until it came out sometime afterwards. Talk about consuming your own smoke. Was ever a finer example?

Then I particularly love to hear the young folks at the everlasting game. And just the other day two boys began a most tedious ride for me by discussing the propriety of dancing.

Actually there have been times when I have been almost willing to ride past my stop to hear the end of some particularly interesting conversation.

Perhaps I am lacking in some sense of shame I ought to have. I wonder.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Is it proper to put black bands on selves out of respect to a member of the family who has died?" asked Frank.

"This practice is a relic of the days when servants were made to wear bands on their sleeves out of respect to the death of any one in the family in which they were employed. If one cannot afford to wear black garments it is best to refrain from wearing the band," replied his uncle.

Soper & Moore,

U.S. to Use Lighter Ships First in War.

New York, Feb. 21.—The battleships in the United States navy in the event of war will likely get little or no opportunity to show their qualities at first, and would most probably remain safe in harbor being protected mine fields, awaiting an emergency demanding their presence on the high seas, according to an editorial in the Army and Navy Journal.

What our navy will be called upon to meet in case of war, the Journal holds, "will be the submarine menace to our shipping at sea and along our coasts. This work will require many fast torpedo destroyers and submarine chasers well armed, for it may be safely assumed that the Germans will put heavy guns on the new craft. To protect our commerce on the high seas will be the role of our cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers."

The Journal says editorially: "Some of our submarines, with the skill and daring for which our men and officers are noted, may make their mark, and some of the light ships would help in patrol work. If convoy is necessary it will be done with our lighter craft. We therefore see no role for the battleship, except as a reserve force to meet the German high sea fleet in case that fleet ever gains the high seas, or perhaps in bombarding some naval base, which seems unlikely."

"While German seamen are well acquainted with our important submarine base at Newport, our torpedo station at Newport, the Norfolk and Philadelphia yards, our mines should form adequate protection against submarines that would try to venture into harbors to destroy shipping. Suitable patrol boats will certainly be on hand to guard against any submarine that might find its way in."

THE HAIR PIN.

The hair pin is an almost human device which, when properly attached to the graceful, sloping head of women, give it a knobby and determined aspect and prevents the hair from coming off until it is time to go to bed.

In olden times woman wore their own hair to quite a large extent, and allowed it to flow down the back without building a dam at any point. For thousands of years woman never thought of twisting up her hair into the form of an ice cream cone and thrusting long, nervous hairpins through it, where they could work loose and drop on the floor or deposit themselves in an incriminating position on the back seat of an automobile. In those days women did not have to put in a full hour before going down town in doing up their hair and then wonder if it would stay on until they got back.

As the world progressed in civilization, however, and natural hair became scarcer, the present method of wearing the hair in a loose, unconcerned way sprang into popularity.

This made it necessary to secure a prop which would hold the hair in a rigid, upright attitude, so somebody invented the slim, two-legged hair pin with a curvature of the spine. As a result, no woman ventures out nowadays without carrying enough concealed and semi-concealed hair pins to fill a two-quart pail.

The hair pin is produced in large quantities and bought in the same manner, the result being that all over the house are to be found their lithe, lissom forms. When a husband begins to hunt for some useful article, like a corkscrew, he will encounter the neglected remains of shiny hair pins in every drawer he pulls open. The life of a well-made hair pin has never been determined because, like a poker-playing bank cashier, it is cast off as soon as it becomes crooked.

VACATIONS.

"The tiler needs a good vacation, a time of rest and recreation," we hear the sages say; "for work without an intermission, without a fortnight off for fishin', will make him old and gray." This year I shut down on my labors, and, emulating sportive neighbors, I toured, on pleasure bent; I basked beside some golden fountains, and climbed a bunch of snow-capped mountains, and slumbered in a tent. I thought that, to my work returning, my bosom would with zeal be burning, and I would cut much grass; refreshed by fourteen days of resting, I'd sail into my labors, jesting and make things come to pass. Alas, the grind seems twice as dreary, and I am twenty times as weary as when I went away; the task ahead seems harder, bigger, and, wanting all my old time vigor, I sigh, "Alackaday!" I do not care for more vacations; I'll stick to work and earn my rations, if I'm alive next year; of course, they are a thing of beauty, but they unfit a man for duty, and put him out of gear.

ST. BON'S CHAMPIONS.
A fast and most exciting hockey match between the Felldians and St. Bon's closed the Inter-Collegiate series at the Prince's Rink last evening. The St. Bon's won by 15 goals to 3. The attendance of spectators was very large and a brilliant sheet of ice offered.

The game opened at a pace that would be, at least, too fast for our senior League teams. Ewing inside of five minutes scored the first goal for his side, followed by their more formidable opponents scoring four times in quick succession.

During the second period of the game the Felldians fell to pieces, being unable to stand the strong attacks made by St. Bon's. Mr. J. Tobin refereed and the players were:—

A Mysterious Worm

Comes to Surface of Sea Twice a Year.

A mysterious species of worm inhabits the Pacific Ocean in the neighbourhood of Fiji. The balolo worm, as the natives call it, lives at the bottom of the sea, but twice a year millions of them rise to the surface and remain there for a short time.

The worm is very thin, and measures from an inch to a foot long. It has a tiny pointed head, even under the microscope no nerve or brain can be seen, and it has thousands of little legs.

When two masses of these worms meet they always pass each other to the left.

The rising of the balolo, which falls in October and November, is an occasion of great feasting for the natives of the islands, as the worms make a tasty dish, and are prepared in a variety of ways. The natives go out in their light canoes and catch them in fine baskets. If a native falls overboard into the mass, his life is an awful death, for it is a hard task to save him from sinking into the midst of the wriggling, clinging worms.

The hour before dawn sees these mysterious creatures disappear for the rest of the year.

So far no one has discovered why they come to the surface for so short a while, and how and where they spend the rest of their time.—Pearsons' Weekly.

Milady's Boudoir.

KEEP THE FACE CLEAN.

It is quite clear that the first requirement of a healthy skin is to be kept clean. Early women, no doubt, left the cleansing process to the elements—the sun, the wind, the rain. But with the advent of clothes the elements could no longer serve the purpose of the toilet of the whole body, and so the bath and its multitudinous accessories in the shape of water softeners, perfumes, soaps, skin foods and all the other cleansing appliances of a strenuous civilization came into being.

The daily bath is as essential to beauty as daily bread is to life. The skin, as I have already said, is an organ, one and indivisible, and as such cannot be expected to be beautiful only in selected parts, as, for example, the face and neck, and perhaps the shoulders and back. A beautiful skin is, of course, a skin that performs its natural functions in the normal and harmonious way.

You cannot expect that one bodily organ can be healthy in one part and unhealthy in another. Your face cannot look healthy if the rest of your skin is blotchy or discolored or otherwise abnormal. Hence the necessity of seeing that the skin of the whole body has its due need of attention. Then, and then only, is perfect beauty of complexion likely to be attained.

The ultimate object of the use of loofahs and washing gloves, or scented soaps and softeners, and all the other aids to beauty that litter the bathroom is the crowning triumph of a peach bloom and cream complexion.

Your Boys and Girls.

Every mother should learn to use a clinical thermometer and when the child is old enough it should be taught to hold it in its mouth. This is as important as to teach a child to take medicine or to open its throat for inspection. The knowledge of the height of a child's fever will often obviate the presence of a nurse or extra visits from the doctor.

If a child seems ailing without definite symptoms, the mother, by using the thermometer, can judge for herself if a physician's presence is necessary. On the other hand a sudden rise in temperature must not be considered alarming, although attention must be given to it at once, for a child jumps into a high fever for a very slight cause sometimes. It is only if the fever continues that it becomes grave cause for alarm.

go to its extreme limit is the aim of every good housekeeper. That is why she buys Zam-Buk when in need of a household balm—because she knows that it will give better results, last longer, and keep better than any ordinary ointment. A small quantity of Zam-Buk will give better results than many times that quantity of an ordinary ointment. It is, therefore, not only best, but most economical. Besides, as Zam-Buk contains no animal fat it cannot turn rancid, and remains perfectly good to the last application.

Zam-Buk's superiority is due to the fact that it is all medicine, whereas ordinary ointments contain a large proportion of animal fat and a small percentage of medicine. Zam-Buk is not only soothing and healing, but it is germicidal. This makes it invaluable as a "first-aid." An application of Zam-Buk to a wound as soon as sustained will prevent all danger of blood-poisoning. Zam-Buk is splendid for eczema, ringworm, scalp sores, ulcers, abscesses, old wounds, blood-poisoning, pimples, boils and piles, as well as cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, and all skin injuries. 50c. box, 2 for $1.25. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Send 1c. stamp for free trial box.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

Russ' Admiration of Pilsener.

(From the Boston Transcript.)
Neues Wiener Journal recites fierce adoration of Pilsener: "Rage at seeing an actor on the stage consuming the beloved Pilsener beer, which by its scarcity and high price is practically unobtainable by the masses of the people, provoked a riot in a Vienna theatre.

"The play was Gourelaine's 'Bou-bouche', in one act of which the hero orders two Pilseners from the waiter in the tavern in which the scene is laid. The audience were under the impression that no beer would be forthcoming and that colored water would be supplied instead. To their anger and dismay the waiter duly served two glasses of undoubtedly genuine beer, and these were followed by two more.

"When the fortunate stage hero stepped forward, and after holding up the beer to the light and, smiling at the audience, drained glass after glass with evident gusto, the exasperation of the people broke all bounds. Amid discordant shouts of abuse, half a dozen men rushed from their seats and clambered to the stage, kicking and otherwise injuring in their passage the conductor of the orchestra and two other musicians.

"The offending actor made his escape behind the scenes. Thither the avengers followed and not finding the man they sought, wreaked their spite on other unfortunate members of the company, whom they attacked in their dressing-rooms, kicking them into unconsciousness.

"Meanwhile the commotion in the body of the theatre grew indescribable. Men came to blows, women shrieked, and in the course of the tumult two rows of seats collapsed, the backs and legs of the chairs being subsequently used as missiles by the combatants. When, after twenty minutes of fearful din and uproar, four armed policemen entered the house, three seriously injured men lay groaning on the floor and another dozen or more showed the effects of the fray on their blood-stained faces, while two women and a lad were removed in an unconscious state from the wrecked pit."

Decorative sashes and belts will add color and interest to the very simple dresses.

"Tommy" is Learning French.

Christian Science Monitor: One of the most interesting side issues of the war, in the United Kingdom, promises to be a great spread in the knowledge of the French language. The traditional British Tommy had, it is true, an automatic way of dealing with the French pronunciation, as he had a fine contempt for "french lingo" of all kinds; but the traditional British Tommy is largely a thing of the past. The small expeditionary force of 1914 has grown to be a huge army, representative of the whole nation, and, if the new Tommy's pronunciation still leaves much to be desired, he is taking an ever-increasing interest in French newspapers, and greatly appreciates the "new world" which they open to him. It cannot be doubted that, when the war is over, many will wish to pursue the subject further.
