STEWART'S Home Made Bread,

THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.

Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home, and only there. He knows that if she is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the peace or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.

The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

CHAPTER XII
A STRANGER IN EDEN.

"It is known Vane was going to come this trip," he says, ruefully, "I'd have got him out into the Nancy Bell, and drowned him; and that wouldn't have been any use, for he can swim like a dogfish."

For a while Jeanne comforts him and herself with the reminder that she will soon be back.

She is telling him so now, and they two, having escaped from the house, are strolling down the lane, her arm around the boy's neck, her face dreamily happy, her voice soft and low, and full of the melody which Love lends to his slaves.

"It won't be long, Hal," she says, "and we shall come back and settle down within sight of the old house, and—"

"But Vernon does not say so," says Hal, incredulously; "he says his plans are all uncertain. I believe, Jeanne, you don't know anything about what you are going to do."

Jeanne flushes slightly. It is quite true; she does not.

"Not yet," she says, dreamily. "But we shall come back—oh, yes, we shall come back. And Hal—what time does the last train get in?"

Hal grins.

"Do you ever think of anything else but Vernon, Jen?" he says. "Did he say he would come back to-night? Perhaps he'll lose the train," he suggests, wickedly.

Jeanne looks startled, then she pinches his ear.

"Yes, he will come to-night," she says, looking toward the horizon longingly, as if Vernon had been absent a year, instead of six hours; "he never breaks his word. And Hal, don't you think we ought to go back?"

"No, not yet," says the boy; "I can't stand all that cackle about the fat-tails, and to-morrow's feed. Let's go down the lane into the road, Jen."

And so, side by side, they go through the crimson flood of sunlight, Jeanne's face, in all its fresh loveliness, beneath her broad-brimmed gypsy hat.

Hal grins.

Home-made, but Has No Equal for Coughs

Make a family remedy of really dependable cough medicine. Ready to prepare, and serves about 50.

If you have a severe cough of chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficulty breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any drug can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex, mix this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and its cost is its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief. You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds. There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for 2½ ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

who stands, pale and bewildered, grasping a jewel-case and a sun-shade, and looking as if the end of the world had come.

For a moment the lady does not appear to be conscious of Jeanne's presence, but stands shaking her French gray dress, and scolding in haughtily-languid tones the perspiring men-servants.

"Fell down!" she says, not sharply, but even angrily, but with haughty, contemptuous scorn: "of course, this is not a French road. Is the horse dead?"

The horse replies to the query by struggling up and shaking himself.

"It is both negligent and careless," she says. "Pray, let us go on!"

The man touches his hat and shakes his head.

"What is the matter?" she asks.

"Pole's broke off short, my lady," says the man, tumbling at the fragment.

"Do you mean that we shall not be able to go on?" she asks.

"Afraid not, my lady, till we get this mended."

And he looks around as if he expected to see a wheel-wright's shop drop down from the sky.

Her ladyship turns and apparently remembers Jeanne.

"Oh," she says, "did you help me out? Thanks, very much."

Then, as Jeanne's quiet bow convinces her that she is a lady, her ladyship adds more graciously, and with a sweeter tone:

"It really was very kind of you. I wonder you were not afraid. One's own people seem to lose their senses in accidents of this kind."

"I am very sorry," says Jeanne. "The hill is very steep here, and dangerous for those who do not understand the road."

"What my people do not," says the lady; "where are we?" she adds, looking around, with the air of a person who has left civilization and plunged into an unexplored district.

"This is Newton Regis," says Jeanne.

"But I don't see a house!" exclaims her ladyship, with indolent vexation. "Is there a village—a hotel—any place where one can get out of this dusty road? I suppose I shall have to remain in the carriage while they get another, or something. I must ask you to be quick," she adds, turning to the servants.

"There is a village in the valley," Jeanne says, "but our house is much nearer than the inn, if you do not mind walking to the end of the lane. It will be more comfortable than sitting in the carriage."

"You are really very kind," says her ladyship, still more sweetly and musically, more delicately respectful and self-contained than Jeanne had ever heard before in her life. "But it is intruding, I fear—"

"No," says Jeanne, in her frank way; "and it is not very far."

"Well, thanks, I will stay. You, Willson, you had better remain here while James goes down for another carriage. How far is Leigh Court from here?" she asks, as she follows Jeanne up the slope.

"How far, Hal?" asks Jeanne, but Hal, alarmed by the apparition of the fashionable beauty, has made his escape immediately after the upraising of the horse.

"I think it is eighteen or twenty miles," says Jeanne.

Her ladyship sighs.

"Quite out of the world! And do you live here?" she asks, looking at Jeanne, as if she wondered how any human being could exist so far out of the world.

"DANDERINE"

Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Abundant!

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, your hair takes on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and plentiful, because each hair seems to fluff and thicken. Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or scraggly. You, too, want lots of long, strong, beautiful hair.

A 35-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" freshens your scalp, checks dandruff and falling hair. This stimulating "beauty-tonic" gives to thin, dull, fading hair that youthful brightness and abundant thickness—All druggists!

"Yes," says Jeanne, smiling, "and am very happy."

This quaint addendum is like Jeanne, and is almost defiant.

The indolent blue eyes rest with languid interest upon the fresh young face.

"I am glad to hear it," she says; "I didn't think it could have been possible. I assure you that every inch of the road has only added to my regret at traveling! I have but just left Paris—"

Jeanne smiled, and blushed faintly.

"And I am just going," she thought, "—and am quite exhausted. It only needs this to put a climax to my suffering. Did you say your house was not very far?"

"That is it," says Jeanne, as they came in sight of the familiar red bricks.

Her companion raises her eyelids languidly.

"A romantic spot," she says; "it is like the first scene in a modern comedy-opera. And this is Rawton Megis?"

"Newton Regis," corrects Jeanne. "Will you come in and rest?" she adds, and her ladyship follows her into the cozy drawing-room.

"If you will excuse me," says Jeanne, "I'll go and find my aunt."

Her ladyship bows gracefully, but with the most cool indifference, and Jeanne, half-amused, half-irritated, wholly interested, goes in pursuit of reinforcements.

Her ladyship, left alone, goes—as a moth to the candle, or a stream to the sea—to the looking-glass, and, slowly, peering off one glove, smooths, with her lace handkerchief, a few flecks of silken yellow hair, and then looks with languid curiosity around the room.

Aunt Jane having caused the Holland covers which usually incase the furniture to be removed, in honor of the coming mornor, the dainty little room looks at its best.

What Carpenter Thinks of Moran.

The following from Reynolds' Newspaper of London, anon Carpenter and Moran, is of interest, the interview coming after the win scored by Moran over Beckett.

"It was so very disappointing," declared M. Descamps, Georges Carpenter's boxing manager, after the fight. "The first round was good. Beckett looked so strong and fit that I thought he would win. Moran then changed his tactics and poor Joe was trapped."

"It was a great mistake on Beckett's part to start infighting while his opponent was still fresh. He should have boxed. Moran was much the older man, and therefore would have tired quicker, leaving Beckett a chance to deal a knockout blow."

"It takes a lot to beat Moran. It is impossible to put him down for the count unless the blow carries full force and lands on a vital point. Also, Beckett was not so confident as usual."

Questioned on the subject of Moran using his left arm in the fight, M. Descamps replied: "No! Moran fought quite fairly. What some people took offence at was merely an exaggerated form of the American style of boxing."

"The best man won on the evening's performance," added M. Descamps, "but I would not go so far as to say the result would be the same in another contest."

"Would Moran stand any chance against Carpenter?"

M. Descamps replied, emphatically, "No. Georges would have him in three rounds. He would dash in like this game of his. Moran, he would thn. be out!"

The volatile manager began to illustrate his words with imaginary knockout blows to sundry opponents.

Flying Altitudes.

A Lieutenant of the French aviation corps recently successfully subjected himself to a test to determine whether or not his life could be sustained at 12,000 metres (39,350 feet, or about 7½ miles altitude), says Popular Mechanics.

Entering a large air-tight cylinder, the signal to start the exhaust pump was given. At a pressure corresponding to an altitude of about 13,500 ft. (4,115 metres), the experimenter was compelled to resort to a specially designed mask and an oxygen tank.

At about 30,000 feet (9,144 metres), observers noticed that he seemed to experience difficulty in moving his limbs. This is an experience reported by all aspirants to the altitude record.

When the pressure had dropped to a figure corresponding to the height of about 34,000 feet (10,363 metres), the subject closed his eyes as though weary.

As the barometer touched a figure equal to a height of 39,350 feet, the man was permitted to get up and admitted to the cylinder that there might be no disastrous shock. The mock ascent took 47 minutes and 30 seconds, while the descent was accomplished in 17 minutes.

The experiment demonstrated that, so far as atmospheric conditions are concerned, human life may be sustained at great heights.

The Lieutenant expects to make use of the experience in a future attempt to establish a new international altitude record.

Piracy Not Dead.

If proof be desired that the romance of the sea is not dead it may be found in the account of the coming trial of Black pirates, in Paris. The men are alleged to have overpowered the crew of the steamer Souhrab, plundered the passengers, and got away in the ship's boats with $1,400,000. Though the black brig that opened flamed the "Jolly Roger" no longer prowls the main, yet so far as atmospheric conditions are concerned, human life may be sustained at great heights.

The Lieutenant expects to make use of the experience in a future attempt to establish a new international altitude record.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

At last you can learn What Edison Did during the War

YOU wondered—everybody wondered, and practically nobody knew how Edison "did his bit." At last the official announcement is out! Come in and get your copy of the bulletin: "What Did Edison Do During the War?"—or write, if you can't call.

It tells what Edison did while Chairman of the Naval Consulting Board—how he spent months at sea, experimenting and inventing devices for foiling the German submarines. The bulletin also tells how Edison stood the gaff and kept the price of the New Edison down to bed-rock during the era of high costs and soaring prices. The New Edison has increased in price (in the United States) less than 15% since 1914—part of this increase is war tax. The bulletin also tells Mr. Edison's views on our Budget Plan which makes the New Edison easy to buy.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT IS POLITENESS?

What is politeness? One of the newspapers in a certain city has recently been conducting a politeness contest. Every day it sends out a reporter who is told to hunt for the politest person he can find and give him $50.

It is an interesting contest and I fancy will raise the general average of politeness in the city—for the time being at least. When one does not know whether or not the stranger who is inquiring directions, or the stupid customer who asks so many unnecessary questions, is a reporter who may hand one $50 for one's courtesy, one is apt to make a little extra effort to be courteous.

Do You Like to Have People Go With You?

But what gets me is the reporter's idea of politeness. On one occasion he asked directions as if he were a stranger in town, and then pretended to go in the wrong direction. The man who had given the directions followed him up and set him right again. One would have thought he would have received the $50. But he did not—because he did not go along with the reporter and show him the way!

Now do you think that politeness requires that? I don't.

It would certainly embarrass me every time I asked the way in a strange city to have the person from whom I asked it, give up the course he or she was following and go with me. I would have to make conversation, it would be a strain. I would much prefer to have my question answered as clearly and helpfully as possible.

One Can Embarrass by Offering Too Much.

I think courtesy has its inhibitions as well as its generous impulses. To offer too much is sometimes to hamper and embarrass. Indeed, there are times when with the best will in the world one does not know just what to do.

Here is what I mean by that. On a busy street the other day I saw a young girl on crutches hovering at the curb, evidently waiting for an opportunity to make the difficult crossing. My first impulse was to go to her and guide her across. My second was to leave her alone lest the proffered help make her helpless—seem more poignant. She was younger than I. It might saddle and even offend her to have me offer help. I wonder which impulse was right? I obeyed the second and she crossed safely by herself.

Again in trolley cars I am always puzzled whether or not to offer my seat to middle aged women. To older women one gives a seat as a matter of course, but how about the woman from 50 to 60? She may bitterly resent that accosting of her age. My theory is not to take a seat (unless by reason of being unusually tired I feel I have a right to it) until all women older than myself are seated, but not to give a seat to a but a distinctly elderly woman. Old men are another problem. One longs to help and yet shrinks from hurting.

Men Have Their Problems, Too.

It did not seem to me as if it could ever have problems of this sort until the Authorman said one day that he often wanted to offer to carry a woman's suitcase and did not do so for fear she regarded it as an attempt to scrape an acquaintance.

Remembering the times I had longed for help with a heavy suitcase I counselled him to run the risk. He perhaps I was wrong.

What is politeness anyway? Is someone has put it in a jingle: "Politeness is to do and say. The kindest thing in the kindest way. Of course it isn't always possible to know instantly what is the kindest thing, but I fancy if one has that at heart one will not go too far astray."

(From London Ideas.) Green, Brown and Johnson invited to Robinson's Christmas dinner.

On the way there Brown remailed to Johnson and Green. "By the way, you fellows, I want to give you a friendly warning. Beware of Robinson's champagne!" So when the drinks were produced Johnson and Green said they would drink nothing stronger than lemonade.

Much to their surprise, however, Brown did not follow their example but drank the champagne. So on the way home they asked him: "What really was the matter with Robinson's champagne?"

"Oh, the quality was all right," replied Brown, quietly. "It was the quantity I thought would be defective—not enough for everybody."

Refused to Abandon His Vessel.

Capt Hoeborg Stood by Wrecked Ship--N. F. Fishermen in New England States Ask For Duty on Fish--South African Nationalists Deserting to Smuts--U. S. Government Institutes Injunction Against Western Union

NEWFOUNDLAND FISHERMEN BEHIND MOVE.

BOSTON, Jan. 18. New England fishermen's union has taken the lead in the demand for an emergency tariff on fish which will probably modify the demands, according to the report of M. P. Nickerson, Commissioner of Fisheries from Nova Scotia. It is the idea of a general tariff which will be abandoned and Congress will be asked to put a duty on fish of fresh fish or falling to place an embargo on foreign fish coming direct from the fishing boats to sell their catches. It appears the active spirits in the movement are the fishermen of the province and the Canadian serving on American ships.

HOEBORG'S CREW SAFE.

HALIFAX, Jan. 18. Capt. Hoeborg, mate; Johan Johnson, boatswain; Arthur Walcott, and Edward Brown and K. L. Laiding which was lost in a gale of Malaga, Spain, while en route from Newfoundland to Spain with a cargo of fish, arrived here to board the Saxonia and will be taken to St. John's, Newfoundland, on Monday. Describing the wreck of the ship, members of the crew told Hoeborg that the vessel was lost in a gale of Malaga, Spain, while en route from Newfoundland to Spain with a cargo of fish, arrived here to board the Saxonia and will be taken to St. John's, Newfoundland, on Monday.

TORONTO, Jan. 18. Stocks and bonds are the Ontario securities in the estate of Azariah Dawe, a merchant of Bay Roberts, Newfoundland, who died Jan. 8, 1919, leaving $255,273. Three sons, three sisters, three cousins, a nephew and niece, three grand children, and a number of friends living in Newfoundland, share under the will. The sum of $500 is bequeathed to erect a fence around the present cemetery of St. Matthew's Church, Bay Roberts, and a similar sum to the Church of England Orphanage at St. John's, and $1200 or $1600 to provide for a stained glass window for St. Matthew's Church to the glory of God and the beautifying of His house, and as a memorial to my late brother Charles, and my dear wife, reads the will. A son, Robert Alexander Dawe, a student of McGill University, receives $1000 when he graduates in addition to other bequests. William F. Dawe receives $3,000 to finish his education and purchase necessary outfit for his medical practice. If in the opinion of my executor any of my sons shall misuse or extravagantly deal with the income of monies paid to him, they may postpone the date or reduce the amount of the payments as in their discretion they may see fit, the will reads.

Cheated Him Out Many Square Meal Says Lumberman.

Dauphinee Had Suffered For Over Two Years He States--Tanlac Overcomes His Troubles.

The gratifying results being obtained from Tanlac is further evidenced in the case of Dan Dauphinee, well known lumber man of Bay Side, N.S. Mr. Dauphinee has resided in Bay Side all his life, and is highly respected by all who know him. Here is what he had to say, while in Halifax recently, regarding his experience with Tanlac.

"I can just eat anything set before me now and enjoy it too, but before I got hold of Tanlac I was a nervous stomach trouble cheated me out of many a square meal. I had been suffering for more than two years, and kept getting worse in spite of all I could do. My appetite left me completely, and I didn't dare eat a bit of fresh beef, or fats of any kind. I suffered a great deal from bloating and dizziness, and felt tired and worn out all the time.

"I finally started on Tanlac, and before I finished the first bottle my appetite began to pick up, and I began to feel better in every way. I have taken three bottles of the medicine now, and my appetite is so big I just eat like a bear. It all agrees with me too, even pork, beef, fats, and everything else I want, and I don't have a bit of trouble in going about my work. In fact I just feel like I can do the work of two men, and I have never heard of anything that will hold a light to Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connor; in Paradise by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne; in Upper Gables by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Gushue, in Millertown by Ex-plotis Valley Royal Store; in Flat Islands by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisville by Uriah Frazer.

House of Assembly, to abolish this ruinous Act. It has been proved beyond a doubt the cause of the mercantile failures all along the coast.

The whole burden of the taxation of export duty and Export License has fallen on the shoulders of the fishermen only, and tell me one, please, who can deny this. People are expecting at Rose Blanche a large fleet of fishing vessels from Fortune and Placentia Bay, as many of them have started to fit out.

The fish so far taken this year are large and quite unusual at this time of the year. In other years the first coming of fish was a very small run. The weather on this coast since Xmas frost.

Salvage Notes.

Since my last notes the Christmas season has gone, and with it most of the festivities particularly noticeable at Xmas tide in the outports. The Societies both here and in the neighboring places have held their usual parades, and if one can judge from outward appearances, the enjoyment of the crowds present was in no wise inferior to that of other years.

Mummers, however, is certainly dying out. We were privileged only once during the season to behold mummers, and then the numbers were small and the "rigs" by no means compared with those of olden times, or with those of Rev. Canon Lockyer's days. The "Hobby horse" was absent altogether, and perhaps such an absence is welcome as it is in our remembrance when "Hobby horses" were productive of many "frights" not serious fortunately at Xmas time.

In the second week of Christmas the Sunday School teachers of St. George's held a Pork and Cabbage supper and dance in the Parish room, and a very enjoyable night was spent.

On January 10th the ladies of Salvage and Bishop's Hill held a Pork and Cabbage supper in the school room. Although the attendance was not up to expectations, the suppers served were an eye opener on the H. C. L. presenting an extraordinary contrast to the Government railway meal fares or to restaurant prices. The dance following was enjoyed by all present.

During the Christmas vacation the men of the harbors came together and ran a partition across the school-room, thus making the school now here a very comfortable and very satisfactory one. In addition two porches were put on and a front gallery. When the whole is painted, as is contemplated by the Board as soon as funds are available, the building will be one of which the people might be proud.

The Union Branch expect to hold their annual parade shortly. It was intended to have same on Old Xmas Day, but for some unforeseen reasons it had to be postponed.

Purchases and Prices.

If patriotism called for meager purchases eight or ten months ago, it calls for greater liberality to-day. The "buyers' strike" has done its work. While it has lowered the cost of living, it has also closed many factories and put many men out of work. Prices must go to a sane basis. Some of them are there now. Others are about to arrive. When a proper price level has been established, the American people—who for all the pessimism of the times are not "broke" by a long shot—should start buying again in order that the economic machinery of the country may be kept in motion and prosperity on a reasonable basis be restored.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

DROWNED BY DAN BURST. MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18. A score of persons are known to have been drowned, and thirty to have been injured this afternoon, when a heavy rain storm, the biggest since the founding of Mexico, broke and flooded the streets. The property damaged has not been estimated.

U.N.W. ELECTIONS. SYDNEY, N.S.W., Jan. 18. The results of the United Nations Workers' polls indicate the re-election of Robert Baxter as District President, over his opponent George McNeill. William Delaney's victory in the contest for the Vice Presidency against George Hayes of Springhill, is also pronounced, as he secured a majority in a number of the local electorates.

CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT OFF. NEW YORK, Jan. 18. The announcement that the heavy-weight champion fight between Dempsey, title holder, and Georges Carpentier, European champion, for which a purse of $50,000 had been offered, was made to-night by the New York Times. Failure of principals to deposit monies provided for in the contract resulted in the fight being cancelled.

YACHTS ON WARPATH. NOGALES, Ariz., Jan. 18. A band of Yaqui Indians resented the presence of the American yacht club, and today killed three of the club's yachts and looted a ranch at Cruz Pichas, 8 miles South of Nogales. According to official reports, the border tonight.

PASSENGERS WERE DRY AFTER SLEEVES. NEW YORK, Jan. 18. The British Isles on the liner today to report to the head-quarters of the Anti-Alcoholic movement here, and said that he believed in the Northern part of Ireland would in time become bone dry. He said with a cool reception in Wales, and added that until he was asked by the police at Wrexham, he did not wish to put out his tongue or do him bodily harm. Johnson said that although he harranged that cabin passengers amongst them he travelled, telling them of the well effects of strong drink, they were harder than ever after his explanations and the rather lost hope in him, he said. Scotland would be generally dry in it is now bone dry in the United States, after a long campaign.

AND GLOUCESTER WILL CONSULT. BOSTON, Jan. 18. At an informal meeting, to-night, of merchants and others connected with the fishing industry at this port, it was decided to delegate Gardner and Gloucester to appear, on behalf of Boston fishing interests, before the House Ways and Means Committee at Washington, in advocacy of a duty on fish. The Committee will consider fish schedules on January 21 and 22, in continuation of its work on the fisheries. It was announced that there should be an adequate duty on fish, but no figures were specified. Boston fish men will consult with Gloucester fishing interests before Mr. Pools goes to Washington, in hope that he may be able to present the views of representatives of industry at both ports.

GRADUAL WITHDRAWAL. LONDON, Jan. 18. British troops are being withdrawn gradually from Mesopotamia, only as the country becomes more pacified, making it possible for fewer troops to maintain order, according to an authoritative statement in official circles. No indication is given, however, of the number to be withdrawn, because this will depend on how long it takes to restore order, but as districts become normal troops will depart.

CREDIT DISCUSSION. PARIS, Jan. 18. Premier Lloyd George will discuss with Premier Briand at their meeting beginning January 25, the question of International Credits, says the Echo de Paris.

DENY CALLING OFF. NEW YORK, Jan. 18. Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, Tex Rickard, promoter, and others, denied to-day that the Dempsey-Carpentier bout had been called off.

WORCESTER HAS BIG FIRE LOSS. WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 19. This city was spotted by fires to-day, with a loss of upwards of one million dollars. Two business blocks and a score of tenement structures were destroyed and two hotels in the south end damaged. The wood working plant of M. K. Smith, several blocks north, was burned with a loss of one hundred thousand dollars. There is only a faint suspicion of incendiarism.

PROTEST ORDER. TOKIO, Jan. 19. The Military Reservists Association at Takamatsu has passed a resolution authorizing its officers to file protests against the reported instructions issued by the Japanese commander at Vladivostok, in future not to challenge members of United States forces. The order of the Japanese commander is considered inimical to military discipline.

IN OBSCURITY. LONDON, Jan. 19. It is reported that D'Annunzio will stay in a village near Paris as the guest of friends. Documentary evidence as to his resistance at Fiume is in a publisher's hands.

STOLE CHARITY MONEY. VIENNA, Jan. 19. Officers of the American Quaker Society, which has been engaged in relief work, were recently entered by burglars, who stole one million crowns.

MONTENEGRINS PERSECUTED. MONTREAL, Jan. 19. Col. Fehurnham, of Winnipeg, head of the Red Cross Mission to Montenegro, writes the following: "At a popular demonstration at Podgoritz in favor of King Nicholas, Serbs arrested and imprisoned three hundred and fifty Montenegrins. Heavy fighting has been taking place between Serbs and Montenegrins. Pathetic stories of distress come from Montenegro, and it is said that the Serbian Administration is a system of organized robbery and outrage."

Mr. Ayre Replies to Kim Lee.

Dear Sir.—Mr. Kim Lee, in your paper, yesterday, takes exception to the manner in which some matters dealing with certain individuals of his race have been reported in the press; he also says that it is unfair that a gentleman, even though he be a professional man, should rush into print and openly discuss a matter that should not be discussed in the public press. All he asks for is British fair play. As I am the only professional gentleman, clerical or lay, who rushed, as he terms it, into print, it is only fair to him and to me that he should be set right on points in which he is obviously wrong. All he asks for is British fair play. That is what I want to give him. Whether he knows it or not, he has not received it any time during the twenty years he has been here. Liberty and equal laws is the boast of the Briton. Mr. Kim Lee and his Chinese compatriots have not had liberty nor equal laws. During all the time they have been in this country they have been deprived of the companionship of their womankind. It is not my business to defend the press, but I have carefully read the reports of the cases, which have called forth Mr. Lee's letter and my letter, and I have failed to find any single reference to his countrymen to which he can possibly take exception. The principals in these cases were not of his race, although they were the wives of the members thereof. They were Newfoundland women before whose walls of restraint had succumbed, not nearly so unusual as these were. Nothing was said that in any way could be construed as a reflection in any way on the Chinese people amongst us. In last night's paper there were extracts from Canadian papers referring to the seven men who, yesterday, came here, and they made most insulting reference to these men from China. One of our papers, in quoting the judge, referred to "The Heathen Chinee" but surely Mr. Lee does not take exception to that. He knows that in the opinion of some of us his race are considered so heathen that our race are sending men and money to induce them to give up their religions and to embrace one of the many branches of ours. Over their washboards, and elsewhere, their countrymen may well muse on the insufferable assurance which prompts those people who preach good will to men and whose countrymen for the past six years, with all their devilish ingenuity, have practised just the opposite, who with poison gas, fire and sword, shot and shell have been at each other's throats and who before and since have tried to get them to leave the religions which for so many thousands of years have prevailed in China and embrace theirs of so recent growth. They must smile up their sleeves at the arrogance of the descendants of those whose ancestors were running about naked with paint daubed on their bodies, thousands of years after their own Chinese ancestors had reached such a state of civilization that their learned men were weighing the stars and to whom the boasted inventions of our days were familiar things. They must wonder at the absurdity of a law which prevents a Chinaman in Newfoundland from living with a Chinawoman, but permits him to live married or otherwise, with a woman of any other race. I can hardly think that this quotation from Brock Hart's celebrated poem was the cause of Mr. Kim Lee's letter and so I conclude that it must be my letter which makes him set forth so eloquent a defence of the conduct of his countrymen in our community. I have lived near the Chinamen in the city and I have marvelled at the remarkable restraint they have shown when exasperated, almost beyond endurance, by unhappy hooligans whose one object in life seems to make other people miserable. I am prepared to admit that their conduct as citizens has been, on the whole, exemplary, but even Mr. Lee does not claim that they are perfect. They are men even if Chinese men. It is unfair that these men should be deprived of the companionship of their own countrywomen. I am surprised that Mr. Lee and his countrymen have for so long so quietly submitted to such an outrage. How vigorously would Englishmen kick under laws so unfair and what Irishmen would do goodness only knows. No country will long endure where freedom does not exist. Ultimately the slave is enslaved as well as the enslaved. Well-wishers of this country ought to see that all admitted to equal rights that the banner of British justice over all its subjects enjoying equal rights and equal laws. If Mr. Kim Lee thinks that I want, in any way, to restrain his liberty he is mistaken. I want to give him all the rights and privileges which I myself enjoy. One of those rights is the discussion in the public press of all matters, religious and secular, which affect the public welfare.

Church Organ Installed.

Rev. Father Finn, Holyrood, has had a splendid new organ installed in his church. The instrument came by the last Rosalind and was transhipped by Mr. McNamara, broker. It was purchased in Ontario and is a replica of the organ in the Cathedral of Grand Falls. Father Finn expects to have his new church completed by the spring, the other being destroyed by fire last year.

Wedding Bells.

At the Presbytery, on Jan. 14, by the Rev. Father Rawlin, united in the holy bonds of matrimony Mr. Peter Holden, third engineer of S.S. Coban, and Miss Bridie Baker, youngest daughter of John Baker, cabman. The bride was attired in a navy blue costume and white fox fur, a present from the groom, and was attended by Miss Agnes Holden, sister of the groom. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Jack Baker, brother of the bride. The groom's present to the bride was a diamond ring, and to the bridesmaid gold cuff links. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to the residence of the groom's mother, Killbride, where the reception was held and congratulations of their friends received. In the night a dance was held and the guests spent a most enjoyable time. The bride and groom received most costly presents from their friends and carrying with them their best wishes for a long and happy future.

To Whom It May Concern.

Address to New Pastor.

Father Pippy Honored by Parishioners. On behalf of the people of St. Joseph's, the parishioners of St. Joseph's church, Fr. Pippy to extend to him a formal welcome to the Parish to the charge of which he was recently appointed. Fr. Pippy received the deputation at the Presbytery and Inspector Mackey, Chairman of the reception committee, after stating the purpose of the visit, asked Mr. Ray Jardine, Secretary, to read the address of welcome which was to be presented to the new Pastor. The address was as follows:

Devil Ship That Missed Its Mark.

That "mystery ships" are not altogether of present day origin is proved by looking over records of a century or two ago. In 1599 the English decided to clear away the corsairs of St. Malo, who had long been preying upon foreign commerce. At first they tried to bombard that port, but finding that their shots had little or no effect, they devised a machine which was intended to utterly destroy the town at a single blow. A special boat was built for this purpose, with a carrying power of 40 tons. It was fitted with all kinds of destructive material, and such combustible materials as pitch, resin, and chopped straw. There were over 500 bombs and shells with four openings as to three projectiles in all directions. This great hulk was towed at high tide by three shallops close to the walls of the town of St. Malo. Some of the sentinels saw the manoeuvre, but before they could give notice the vessel struck a rock about a pistol shot away from the walls of the town. It was badly injured by the shock, and the fire caught earlier than had been intended. The first thing that was heard was a bomb shot by the English as a signal, and then all at once, as if the fire had caught in two or three magazines at the same time, the most terrific explosion followed. Flames flashed over the sea, the windows rattled as if from earthquake shock, the inhabitants of the town rushed out of doors expecting to see their houses fall to pieces. Strange to say, with the exception of the breaking of a few window panes, not one of the inhabitants was injured. But the English were not so fortunate. At least one hundred and fifty of the men on board the shallops were blown to pieces or drowned by the premature bursting of the machines which had proved so infernal to its inventors. The individual who had arranged the whole plan and built the boat was a Frenchman named Fournier, and he was one of the victims of the disaster. So ended one of the most famous attempts to use an infernal machine, and had it not been for the accident of striking on the rock it is certain that much of the town of St. Malo would have been destroyed by the explosion, while the English would have escaped in safety. An attempt with a similar machine was made against Dunkirk by the English at a later date, but with like results.

Agreement to Limit Navies Suggested.

With a unanimity never before displayed on any world question, London newspapers are demanding an agreement between Britain and the United States to limit future naval construction. If Japan does not come in on the agreement, it is suggested that the two English-speaking powers join to coerce her. That the cost of modern navies is the foremost reason why the press is now stirring the public opinion in favor of a limitation of armaments is frankly admitted, although the sturdiness of competitive building by cousinly nations is also emphasized.

H. F. SHORTS.

For many years few men in this country were better or more favorably known than Capt. John Bartlett of Brigus, one of our most successful seal-killers. Capt. Bartlett represented Port de Grave District for four years in the House of Assembly, and by his sturdy independence and biting condemnation of all matters of a shady or unpatriotic nature, he earned for himself the title of "Honest John," by which he was known over the whole country. Capt. John's record can compare favorably with those of our most famous masters in the old days, but, unfortunately, I cannot give the amounts of seals brought in by him during the latter portion of his career. I can only give the totals from 1839 to 1862. I could never understand that we can find no records of the sealfishery, codfishery or mercantile marine in the Custom Houses of Conception Bay, previous to the year 1862, and I presume the loss of the records of other bays are still more deplorable. However, it is too late now to fret over this unfortunate condition of affairs. The following is a statement of the number of seals brought in by Capt. John Bartlett of Brigus, from 1839 to 1862, in the sealing sailing vessels, Mary and Selina.

In those days there were quite a large number of old seals among the cargoes, and Capt. Bartlett was famous for securing old seals, hoods or harps, if he missed the young fat through being jammed or some other cause. The amount of seals brought in by him in the two sailing vessels Mary and Selina for the above number of years aggregated 49,521, valued at $27,855, weight 28,841 cwt., 3 qrs., 21 lbs., which is not a bad showing for such a long period.

RECORD BREAKERS.

Still that record has been beaten by many of the old sealing masters, notably Capt. William Whalen, John Barron, Alex. Graham, William Roberts, surnamed the "Dandy," Edward White, James Wilcox, surnamed the "Britalner," Az. Munden, William Keen, William Kneel, Daniel Green, Terence Holleran, Peter Cummins, Joseph Houlihan and many others. Capt. Ned Purcell was a famous seal-killer in the old days. It was owing to his having brought in a load of small seals in the John and Rachel, belonging to Mr. Walsh on the Beach, St. John's, that a law was made for seals to be sold by weight. Previous to that they were sold at so much a seal. In the very early days, the seals were brought in round, that is the skin and fat was not removed from the carcass. Pound boards were not used in our sailing fleet at the sealfishery until about 90 years ago. What gave rise to this improvement occurred in Conception Bay, when skipper Grant of Salmon Cove was beating up the Bay with a load of seals. During a sudden strong "faw" off the land the schooner capsized, and the crew were precipitated into the water. They managed to cling to the ropes, and every other available means, until rescued by boats' crews, who witnessed the event and hurried to their assistance. As far as I can recollect in hearing of the event, they were all rescued. But after that skipper Grant fitted out pound-boards which prevented the seals from shifting as they did upon the above occasion and caused the trouble.

A FAMOUS SEAL KILLER.

But when we come to records, I do not think there was any could equal, and certainly not better, that of Capt. Henry Thomey. Capt. Thomey first took command when he was 20 years of age, the first vessel he went in as master being the Lemon. After that he was in command of the John, Scotch Lass and then the famous brig Isabella Ridley. He may have commanded one or two other vessels. But I have never known nor heard of him coming in without a good trip of seals, and he was in command for over half a century. I am positive that his average for the 50 springs was at least 3,800, a wonderful showing. He lived to a patriarchal age of 92 years, the last of his generation. He reminded one of a giant oak, in the midst of a vast landscape, surrounded by a few shrubs and saplings. Even after he had given up seal-hunting and remained at home, the day the fleet sailed for the ice-floes he published his forecast, over his own signature, in the Harbor Grace Standard, and it was often reprinted in the Telegram, and never have I known him to be out in his reckoning as to where the seals were to be found. To give some idea of Capt. Thomey's judgement. One year he was tied on the Wadhams Islands for eight days. On the South West corner of the Island on the eight evening there were several old seals playing up in the water. Calling his master watch, Hugh Gordon, he said, "If we get a few miles to the North East there is where the whitecoats are." At four o'clock the following evening, he had all his crew out killing and panning the young seals, which were plentiful, and they killed a full load, but, unfortunately, some of his seals were taken by other vessels or lost. He secured the quarters of a load. During his whole career it is an established fact that Capt. Thomey never lost a spar or a man. No man was more careful over the comforts and safety of his crew. The model of his famous brig is to be seen in the Museum.

"THE FROSTY SPRING."

The year of 1857, known as the "Frosty Spring," when some 300 men suffered terribly from being frost-bitten, was a fairly successful Spring. Perhaps a list of the St. John's fleet and the amount of seals brought in by each vessel may not be out of place here.

A PROPHECY FULFILLED.

The old sealing gippers were great judges of human nature. I remember a merchant once having occasion to require a master for one of his vessels, and having the utmost dependence in the knowledge of a certain old skipper, the merchant asked him if he could recommend a man. The old skipper was a most eccentric individual, but famous seal-killer. Turning round to the merchant he remarked, "Do you see that man with the bag of bread on his back going on board the Dash?" The merchant replied, "Yes." "Well," said the old skipper, "I feel sure if you give that man a chance he will bring you in a load of seals." And he did, and afterwards became one of our most successful seal-killers. In the year 1871, the famous Capt. James Murphy of Catalina, was in the Mastiff, and he moored on to Belleisle, where he remained for a couple of days. One of his chief officers became uneasy, and told Capt. Murphy he thought they could proceed as the ice was opening up. Back came the reply from Capt. Murphy: "What do I want to proceed for when the seals are coming to me." And come they did. Belleisle split them, and Murphy and the large portion of the main patch went through the Straits together. About April 7th, I was the telegraph operator in Harbor Grace, and Channel office called up. I answered, and the following message was flashed over the wires:

To Ridley & Sons:—"Mastiff just passed Channel, flags flying, level with the water."

(Signed) OPERATOR.

Old Capt. Sam Spracklin of Brigus was the first man who ever went round the island in search of seals, and he secured a full load in the Gulf.

FIRST CERTIFICATE OF COMPETENCY.

Capt. John Burke of the Kingaloch fame, in the employ of L. O'Brien, was also a most successful seal-killer. He was a most intelligent and highly educated man, and was the first Newfoundland-lander who received an English certificate of competency as master. He with his son and three of his crew, were lost in the brigantine "Nautilus" in Petty Harbor Motion on January 1st, 1865, on a voyage from Sydney to St. John's. The crew were Mr. Bell, mate; James Tobin, Wm. Dwyer, James Lane, Mr. Sealey (cook), Jas. Tobin, William Dwyer and another man was saved. They were the watch on deck.

THOUGHT.

Not by the deeds which we have done, The temples reared, for they shall pass And newer temples be begun. Shall we improve life's changing mass; Our earthy progress must be wrought In the more lasting realm of thought. The history of the world is based On many a people overthrown. Whose hope of permanence was placed In massive piles of brick and stone; Yet when towering o'er the brink When humankind began to think Thought is the power which sways And shall unto the end of time, Before it every wrong must fall. And base beginnings grow sublime. With human thought and human will There's no such thing as standing still. Not by our skillful hands and strong Shall we escape oblivion's night. But as we've upward moved along In thinking clear and thinking right; We shall grow great as we have taught Our youth to brave the realms of thought.

MR. OR MRS. DYSPEPTIC

Get rid of Indigestion and Stomach Worries with "Pape's Diaprepin"

"Really does" put weak, disordered stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness due to acid fermentation—that just that—makes Pape's Diaprepin the largest selling stomach acid and regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments and turns sour, you belch gas and eructate undigested food or water; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated, remember the moment "Pape's Diaprepin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness. A box of Pape's Diaprepin tablets cost so little at drug stores too.

Obituary.

MICHAEL A. DUFFY.

His many friends will learn with regret of the passing of Michael A. Duffy, which sad event took place at his home, LeMarchant Road, yesterday afternoon. The deceased had not enjoyed robust health for a number of years, but up to a few weeks ago he was able to attend to his business. He recently contracted a severe cold, which confined him to his room, and despite the best medical attention he failed to recover. The deceased was for a number of years in the employ of Parker & Monroe, afterwards starting in the Grocery trade on his own account. Mr. Duffy was in his 48th year, and leaves a widow (nee Miss Mary Lawlor), two sons, Leo and Augustus, and two brothers, Andrew in the city, and Augustus in Pittsburgh, to all of whom the Telegram extends sympathy.

English as Esperanto.

AN EXTRAORDINARY POPULARITY IN CENTRAL EUROPE. JOHN COURNOUS in John of London's Weekly. Esperanto is said to be a universal language, at least, to have the quality of such. It may be, in theory, that its advocates claim for it. I have never heard it, however; how many people have? A survey on the Continent to-day, especially through Central Europe, would convince one that in actual practice the English language is not universally spoken than any other, and that the tendency to speak English in the former enemy countries is on the increase, ironical that may seem.

ity of English. It is quite certain that, to a large degree, the political situation, growing out of the war, has to do with both. The responsibility of the Treaty is laid mostly on France's shoulders, and the hatred of Clemenceau is extended to the French language. England, on the other hand, even among the Germans, is not without a reputation for fair play; and any excessive severity on England's part they are inclined to attribute to the influence of France. There is a general disposition throughout Central Europe to regard the Treaty as "Clemenceau's Treaty." Without entering into the justice or injustice of this, it is true that this impression has much to do with the popularity of one language and the unpopularity of the other. Incidental to this, there are other more practical reasons why preference is given to English even by persons uninterested in politics and international hatreds. There is the matter of future trade between the Central European and English speaking countries; this, too, has its political side, since it is difficult—even undesirable, in a sense—to trade with unneighbourly neighbours; even former enemies are preferred to former subject countries; the latter, too, are not over-eager to trade with their former masters—and there you are! Apart from that, thousands are getting ready to emigrate to America and elsewhere, and the English-speaking nations own half the world; what language should they study but English?

Enthusiasm in Hungary. England and the English were always popular in Austria; even during the war, all accounts agree, there were no rancour and resentment against the English, and English civilian prisoners were given the freedom of Vienna; so it is not astonishing, what with British and American relief missions working in Vienna on a large scale, that the English language should hold more than its own. Hungary, however, furnishes a more interesting example of the growing popularity of English; for the German and English language have at least a common root, so the study of English by a German or an Austrian is a comparatively easy matter; but for the Hungarian, whose language apparently resembles no other, to make English a secondary language is something to crow about. Yet nowhere are such enthusiasts of English to be found as in Hungary. Every other Hungarian in official and intellectual circles is said to be learning English.

English Editions. It is in Budapest, by the way, that they have adopted the English method of driving to the left instead of right; to such an extent are English ways popular! I found an old Hungarian family, consisting of about seven persons, all speaking a perfect English; Tauchnitz editions of English authors were lying all about the room; the boys were dressed in English sporting jackets and knickerbockers. The Hungarian adoration of England goes to the extent of wishing to be ruled by an English Prince; this wish has become almost a legend, and I've heard many speak of it. On a Danube steamer, going to Budapest, I found a German reading "Mr. Britling Sees It Through." We entered into conversation and got on the topic of the English language.

An Admission. "Yes, I suppose the English language is as universal as any," he remarked. "You English and Americans are not studying our language as we do yours."

CALENDAR.—We thank Messrs. J. P. Hand & Co. for a very useful desk calendar.

Wholesale Arrests Canadian With Coughs

Halt! Who goes there? Someone with a cough. Pass friend! Stop cough! you are under arrest. Thousands of such arrests are being made every day in all parts of Canada. Too long have coughs and colds evaded justice and caused untold suffering to humanity, but at last they have been cornered and overpowered by Canada's famous cough detective—Buckley's Bronchitis Mixture. Did you ever hear of this wonderful remedy? Why, everybody is talking and writing about the great work it is doing in curing coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, etc.

The following is one of thousands of letters received:—"Kindly accept my sincere thanks for the benefit my wife derived by the use of one of your bottles of Bronchitis Mixture. For over thirteen years she has suffered acutely. After spending dollar after dollar upon various remedies, no relief was obtained. Hearing of your most marvelous remedy she decided to give it a trial and I am glad to say one bottle has made her well. You are at liberty to use my name and should be only too pleased to answer any inquiries. Sincerely yours, John Holmes, Yorkville Ave."

THE TRAMPS.

I spend my quiet days and hours where winter does no winting, where in December gorgeous flowers the countryside are tinting. Here comes the lady who have the price, to dodge the beastly weather of countries stocked with sleet and ice, and snowdrifts stuck together. Here also comes the unwashed tramps; all day I see them drilling and lots of them are wicked scamps who'd knife you for a shilling. They're passed along from town to town by wise and thoughtful coppers, who do not wish to curdy down so many thieves and paupers. They're driven forth from Punktown's gates by stern official orders; that village wants no frowzy skates within its moral borders. They're chivied out of Mudville streets, the rural cops prevailing; that hamlet wants no bums and beats its atmosphere inhaling. This is the system that's in force wherever tramps may wander; and selfish seems such work and coarse—to shoot them there and yonder. And so the hoboes ply their boots, down all the roads they trickle; and some of them are calloused brutes who'd shoot you for a nickel. A trail of crime they're laying down, a record that's a beauty; and when we've shooed them from our town we think we've done our duty.

LARGELY ATTENDED.—There was an excellent sheet of ice on the Prince's Rink last night, and a large number of people took advantage of it. The Feldians and Terra Novas held their second hockey practices before and after general skating, respectively. Both teams showed up splendidly. The Feldian forward line was particularly good.

"The Old Homestead."

Every attention is being paid to the most trifling detail in the production by the B.L.S. players of "The Old Homestead" at the Casino Theatre on next Monday afternoon and night. As the curtain rises one is immediately transported to the comfortable "down east" farm of Josh Whitcombe, which character will be portrayed by Mr. W. B. Comerford. Here on the stage is the real live horse and the dray-load of hay which the farmhands are busily "pawing" into the barn loft, and in the centre of the farmyard stands an exact reproduction of the famous well and its old oaken bucket around which the quartette will be sung.

The twenty-four characters have been very happily cast; and an excellent show is assured those who attend. The theme, changing so rapidly from paths to mirth provoking comedy, entrances the audience right from the start to the finish, and the climaxes are so startling that they must be seen to be appreciated. The musical features of the performances will consist of Prof. McCarthy's quartette, Mr. Karl Trappell, the boy choristers of St. Patrick's, the "Ole Varginny" sextette, and the rendition of the latest musical success by the full C.C. Band. In view of the worthiness of the object, we bespeak capacity houses at all the performances next week. Reserved tickets and plan will be at the Royal Stationery store at ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

A 19th Century Lochinvar.

Of all the stories of Gretina Green marriages, not one is more remarkable than that registered of Edward Gibbon Wakefield to Ellen Turner. At the time of this episode in his career, Wakefield was a man of thirty, who had already run away with and buried one wife, and was in search of a gifted successor. A man of culture and a barrister, yet his purse was much too slender for his demands on it. After spending his first few years as a widower in a Bohemian life on the Continent he heard from an English lady of the charm and fortune of the young daughter of a wealthy Cheshire landowner. Returning to England, he spent a few weeks in the neighbourhood of the girl's home, obtained all the information he required, matured his plans, and set to work to execute them.

One day a private carriage drove up to the door of a school at Liverpool, where the girl in question, Ellen Turner, was a pupil, and a stranger presented himself with a letter informing her that her father was dangerously ill. The girl's distress and the stranger's plausibility quickly overcame the school-mistress's scruples, and within an hour the weeping schoolgirl was being driven swiftly away on her journey, and the stranger was gently breaking the news to her that her father was a ruined man, that the officers of the law were in pursuit of him, and that she was to join him at Carlisle. But before Carlisle was reached the adventurer had pointed out a way by which she might save her father from disaster, and that was by accompanying him over the border to marry him, and he would place all his fortune at the fugitive's disposal. The distracted girl consented and a few hours later David Long was officiating at Gretina at her marriage to the chivalrous stranger, and a little later the couple were en route for France. But the rascally Wakefield was not destined to reap the reward of his misguided cleverness. When he reached Calais with his bride Mr. Turner appeared on the scene with his solicitor; the aid of the police was called in; the newly-made wife was carried off in triumph; and her husband was left disconsolate. The following summer he was arrested and sent to gaol for three years to cool his ardour, while an Act of Parliament was procured for the annulling of the marriage. In later life Wakefield atoned for his indiscretion, and died, honoured and respected, on January 19, 1865, having won fame as a coloniser in South Australia and New Zealand.

Courtship by Mail.
The happy culmination of a speedy courtship conducted entirely by mail was reached at Kingston recently, when Mrs. Mary Wagar of Watertown, N.Y., became the bride of Miles Goodberry of Verona. Mr. Goodberry obtained the bride's address in Watertown and wrote her. Photos were exchanged, and after about two weeks' correspondence an engagement took place. All arrangements were made for the wedding, which took place Christmas Eve, being about one month from the date of the first letters. The bride arrived in the city the afternoon of the wedding, and met the groom for the first time on her arrival.
