THURSDAY MORNING, AUGUST 17. 1882.

DWYER GRAY SENTENCED TO

£5000 for contempt of court is publishing a letter from O'Brien, editor of the United a letter from O'Brien, editor of the United Ireland, accusing the jury which convicted Hynes of murdering Doloughty, of being drunk on the night previous to the day the verdict was given, and an article commenting thereon. O'Brien and Davitt were put out of the court. Gray, after being sentenced, was handed over to the custody of the city coroner. The latter evinced a rejuctance to take charge of him, but Judge Lawson called upon him to do his duty. The coroner, whose intervention was necessary because Gray is high sheriff of the city, then conveyed the prisoner to Richmond prison. Gray, at the expiration of his term, must find sureties himself for £5000 and two others in the sum of £2000 each. The decision of the court has caused a great sensation in the city. Gray was lord mayor of Dublin for 1880 and was nominated a second time for 1881 but decided to serve.

lined to serve. The lord mayor has arranged to call a special meeting of the corporation on Moraday with a view of considering measures to secure the release of Gray. Crowds are assembling around the statue of O'Conneil and speeches expressing indignation at the sentence are being made.

Judge Lawson to-day refused to adjourn the case to allow Gray to be represented by counsel. CALLING A SPECIAL MEETING.

The following is the proclamation, signed y Mayor Dawson, Parnell, Dillon, and

CITIZENS OF DUBLIN :- Without offeri CITIZENS OF DUBLIN: —Without offering any comment upon the sentence of Gray, we deem it our duty to invoke the people to maintain calmiess and a dignified demeanor; we express wishes of Gray in counselling his fellow citizens to abstain from gatherings in the atreets that might lead to a breach of the peace. We require only calmiess and temperance in the present emergency. Hundreds of thousands of visitors kept the peace in Dublin yesterday. Let citizens show equal prudence and self control on this occasion.

A RUSH OF CREDITORS.

To Secure Tuemseives in the Unic of au Insolvent—The Want of a Bank-ruptcy Law—The Failure of W. Bull &

As an instance of the need of a bankuptey law to secure a fair distribution of the assets of a insolvent, the case of Wm. Bull & Company is a case in point. This firm conducted a large general store in Welland, Merritten and Thorold. On the 4th of this month they were indebted to Toronto firms to the extent of between seventy and eighty thousand dollars, the principal claimanta being W. J. McMaster & Co., $17,-000, Caldecott, Burton & Co., $7000, Hughes Bros. $7000, D. Arnott & Co., $5000, and Peter Ryan, $10,000. Most of the paper matured on the 4th of August and Bull & Co. managed to raise gome funds toward retiring the acceptances falling due. In the meantime, to secure himself, Peter people of Egypt, representing that the sole before of the British is to restore the authority of the khedive, and it says that all peaceful inhabitants will be kindly treated, this and there was a general such to serve writs on Bull & Co. on Monday, the 7th instant, but the firm could be found nowhere. On Tuesday, however, of this week they turned up in Toronto—how they were produced is still a question—and they made an assignment of their whole estate to E. R. C. Clarkson for the benefit of all their creditors. Prior to this the rush of the oredi tors to and fro, looking for the ansolvents, was marvellous to beheld. The only happy one was Peter Ryan, for he was secure. Patrick Hughes was just a little excited, as his notes had not matured and it seemed as if the others would all get ahead of him, but the general assignment has put all on an equal footing, with the exception of Mr. Ryan, who comes first. Had it not been for Mr. Hughes' activity it is doubtful whether the general assignment would have been made. But that gentleman came across Mr. Bull on Saturday night at the Albion hotel, after the whole band of creditors had searched the town in vain for him, and he persuaded him to treat all alike. The other ereditors expressed their gratitude to Mr. Hughes for his magnanimity in the premises. It is thought the estate will pay a very fair percentage of the debts, as the firm has good assets and bad a high reputation among the trade. As one mer-chant put it, Bull & Co. was a firm that

THE MAIL ON PUSION.

During all the time that the railway fight between the Grand Trunk and the house last winter, the Mail said never a word. And never a word did it say on the subject since, until Tuesday, the 15th inst, when it spoke out boldly and resolutely, as follows:

its of three thousand three hundred of track. Speculate as people may, not possible to state with accuracy ailway company enjoys a monopoly of any class or traffic it may be tempted to use that monopoly to its own pecuniary ad-vantage, with a view to securing its share-holders—what they surely deserve—a small return for their investment. At the same time the misuse of a monopoly will breed competition; and a pretty strong com-petition, in which two railways fight for petition, in which two railways fight for life, will cost the old monopoly more in a few months than it gained by the extortions it has practised for years. Railway managers are not blind to this. The amalgamation of the Great Western and the Grand Trunk will certainly do away with the competition between these lines at a few points; but as the saints he a large saying in the work. between these lines at a few points; but as there is to be a large saving in the working expenses the benefits which the companies are to enjoy by their union should be secured without increasing the rates. Nor is the fusion without its good features for the travelling public. It will result by the utilization of portions of the Grand Trunk and Great Western in the forming of short routes between town and town. For instance, by using the Great Western track from London to Paris, and the Grand Trunk from Paris, to Brantford, a shorter route than that hitherte existing will be Trunk from Paris, to Brantford, a shorter route than that hitherto existing will be found between London and Brantford. It cannot be said that the Grand Trunk will be without competitiors. From Toronto eastward it will shortly have an opposing line. From Toronto westward it has the Credit Valley, and on the western peninsula it has the Canada Southern.

There is plain speaking on an important matter for you, if you only know which way to read it. To take another view, it does appear to us that the Telegram has good legal ground of action against the Mail for pirating its own peculiar non-committal, almost inimitable style of writing on two be white, but, on the other hand, it may also be black-who knows ?-says the Telegram. 344 Quien Sabe ?" is what the Mexicans say when similarly bothered. A railway company having a monopoly may use its monopoly power against the public but then again it may not -says the Mail. We think it is Carlyle that tells of an author who, having stated certain alleged facts, says that important inferences are to be drawn from be given to readers of the Mail, who may wish to infer its opinion from its language. The Cambridge carter, when bragging about what his horse could draw, being bantered by the students to say whether the horse could draw inferences replied : "Why. yes, anything in reason." Supposing readers of the Mail to be equal in drawing capacity to the Cambridge carter's horse, they can draw lots of inferences from the highly oracular. Delphic, sybilline article above

The ground taken is that the law of the sabbath as originally given to the ancient Jews was applicable to their special circumtances in the childhood period of the world's religious history, and was not intended for all times and all peoples. The decalogue of which it formed a part, contained within it the germ of what was to become universal, but that germ was encleared away. Thus when Christ came, He did not entirely destroy the old law but He fulfilled it, in the unfolding of its original erm and placing it on a new basis so that t should no longer be imposed as a yoke, ut should rather be iffused into the hear as a principle sustaining men from within.

This principle is that the day should be given to rest from ordinary labor and spent n such exercises of spiritual worship and ntellectual festivity as will tend to refresh the body as well as the soul, the two kinds being interconnected and the one reacting on the other. The new dispensation does not lay down any other rule as to the Sabbath than that it is to be a day of rest and christian recreation. All else is to be left to the discretion

A GREAT PEACH CROP. rall, this is to be a great peach year ing the prophecies regarding the edicted. Even at the beginning of summer we were told to expect little from the famous peach-growing region of Delaware and Maryland. Better reports came in a few weeks ago, but now, when the time for the ripening of peaches has actually come, we are promised the largest crop ever picked, the great yield of 1875 alone

"To-day," says the Philadelphia Press, "every peach tree on that long stretch of land between the bays of Delaware and the Chesapeake, and extending from Wilming ton to Northampton County, Va., is bend ing under an overload of luscious spheres. It is estimated that that region will yield the enormous quantity of five million baskets of peaches. And the quality of this extraordinary crop is said to be far better than that of 1875, when only was the abundance equalled. Because the peacher are so exceptionally good, the growers anticipate comparatively high prices; but with a supply so wast, there is no reason to doubt that during the next four weeks we shall be able to get remarkably good peaches at low rates.

The great peach region of the United States is made up of portions of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. More peaches are roduced there than on any other equal creage in the world. The number of trees aggregates something like six millions, young and old, and the orchards vary in ize from a few hundred trees to ten thousand. Three of the leading growers of Maryland, for iastance, have one hundred thousand trees in bearing this year. Encouraging reports are also received from the Niagara peninsula, New York state and the western orchards in Ontario.

OUR MOCKING BIRD. "Listen to the mockingbird," or the arrot, which you please. It is learning to alk. "Ne doubt a great many reformers who voted against their party on its platform at Ottawa will keep their places in the ranks and uphold its platform at Toronto. This is an easy way of compromising with their party consciences. It does not follow that because men veted for the N.P. in dominion politics they must vote to turn their friends out of office in Ontario politics. There will be a good deal of compromise voting done. Ontario is nominally Reform, although we should think not in the large proportion relegislature. He has no need of so large a no need of so large a majority at Ottawa. Nothing that reduced either could be looked of the heart, and not from the craven fear of dire punishment for the breaking of a command whose strict observance was, evidently, only incumbent upon a certain race at a particular stage of their existence, and not to be followed by the whole world or under the christian dispensation.

If that region do not supply in its exports of this year such evidence of its powers as to statement has led me to an examination of the official reports—with a result which I proceed now to present in brief.

A LETTER FROM DAVID BLAIN.

(To the Editor of The World.) DEAR SIR : You have an article to-day headed "Mackenzie and Blain." Let me on behalf of my old leader, for the purposes of this correspondence, repudiate the combination. Knowing Mr. Mackenzie's sense of party duty, I would feel I had done him great injustice if I had coupled his name with mine in any way in the correspondence now proceeding. I believe my letters will be condemned by him and that some portions of them will be distasteful to him, not the least of which is this subject arising out of the question put by Mr. Meek through the Mail. Your heading. Any one who has sat behind a cheveux de rather than the article, calls for attention. frize of these huge headcoverings knows "The ex-leader not carrying the debts of Permit me to say that my recollection is may hear the spoken part of the drama that I was asked to accept paper for $3500, indeed, but as Herodotus has it, the eyes and I thought Mr. Mackenzie had accepted are more trustworthy than the ears, and for that amount after I had declined. That after all one has paid for the gratification he struggled with it for years, you confess of both senses. It may of course be said on the face of the article. That the debt of the ladies that they suffer what they has been paid since I brought the subject inflict, that they too are deprived of full epjoyment of the drama by the hats of their sisters. But women kind, like a priesthood, however much they may hate and envy one another, stand together in line to resist any attack on feminine folly. Besides it is a question whether the ladies suffer as much pain to the stention of the reform association to the reform association the subscience of the so-called 'boom.' On the contrary they show in 1880 and sgain in 1881, a falling off. But the question arises on the face of the official report: the facts—and the reform party can get him to do so if to their credit—light might be to do so if to their credit—light might be thrown on the subject. I am afraid they steaders have not committed themselves inflict, that they too are deprived of to the attention of the reform association sides of a subject at once. The thing may whether the ladies suffer as much pain thrown on the subject. I am afraid they from the loss of properly enjoying the play, only paid the small balance he had been as they gain on the other hand in happiness by this opportunity of outvieing one complained that Mr. Blake as leader had another in the high-towering and wide- ignored the antecedents of the party. Your spreading extravagance of these ridiculous article seeks to credit him with the honorable sentiment of taking immediate steps to see that the liability was liquidated. I unwise heads, have tender hearts. They was glad to learn it, as there are some other debts yet unpaid. I trust you will not hats inflict on young men. There is not suppose that I think Mr. Blake should pay them any more than I think Mr. Mackenzie them. In this matter the same hint might guage but there is a temptation to quit for ought to pay them. It is not the ability to guage but there is a temptation to quit for pay them. It is not to be described a time the temple of the drama, and seek pay that decides the question: it is the of Manitoba, that of her 12,803 dwellings, principle of justice that has been violated, those uninhabited numbered so many as principle of justice that has been violated, and that from Mr. Blake as the leader of the party, that is objected to. You state the party, that is objected to. You state that "a tax was levied on certain parties."

April is set down in the census at 100. That the party, that is objected to. You state that "a tax was levied on certain parties."

Of course no one but the leader could do so. Why-did he not enquire years before what were the liabilities of the party, and if its honor were worth preserving levy a tax sufficient to pay everything. When he was levying a tax why did he not levy enough and square off all? My complaint was not so much that Mr. Mackeozie or Mr. Pattullo or Mr. Anyone-else had not been paid, but the dishonorable ignoring of the whole past history and condition of the party, and the status of the individual members of it. If he desires ever to succeed he must now go back and take up the party—in the condition it was when he usurped the power. Simply because there has been a change of rulers there ought not to be a repudiation of liabilities and antecedent conditions. That for years he has never enquired into the condition of the point may be condition of the party he leads proves his unitness for the task. Yours truly,

D. BLAIN.

It is even still more intelligible on their part as a means of detaching votes from Mr. Mowat in the coming elections for the local legislature, a means used most dexterously for holding in dependence on the good pleasure of the conservative chief, of inflaential bodies of men as "colonization companies" representative of the Methodists, of the Roman Catholics, of the Sons of Temperance, &c, &c. In this point of view one may well feel puzzled to understand why the journals of the reform party should not go behind that political performance of their opponents, by placing the question of settlement in the Northwest on its actual merits.

A party consisting of Mr. H. S. Howhand, his two sons, and Mr. John Gillespie of Toronto, and Mosars, Vanderwerken and W. W. Gillespie of Stamford, Conn., representing the Dominion lands colonization company, has just returned from a trip to the Qu'Appelle district. head and superior talents. Fine, silky, supple hair is the mark of a delicate, sensitive temperament, and speaks in favor of the mind and character of the owner. Crisp, curly hair indicates a hasty, somewhat impetuous and rash character. White hair indicates a lymphatic and indolent constitution; and we may add that besides these qualities, there are chemical properties residing in the celoring-matter of the hair tube, which undoubtedly have some effect upon the disposition. Thus, redhaired are notoriously passionate. Now, red hair is proved by analysis to coatain a large amount of sulphur, while black hair is colored with pure carbon. The presence of these matters in the blood points to peculiarities in the temperament and feeling which are almost universally associated with them. The very way in which the hair flows is strongly indicative of the ruling passions and inclinations, and perhaps a clever person could give a shrewd gaes to the manner of a man or woman's disponion by only seeing the backs of their hds.

SCHOOLMASTER VS. THE PRESS.

convention in Toronto, applies the meaning less than the press. Who can say but that an illustrated paper in the hands of a mis-sionary has not diverted the mind of a sionary has not diverted the mind of a savage from the thoughts of long pork. To-what can you liken the press but a giant squid or octopus; its tentacles are represent ed by cables, telegraph, railways, steamboat and telephone; its suckers (I am sorry I can find no better word) are represented by the many correspondents and reporters who with pencil and paper range the battle field, the distant mountain, lonely gien and arter-ies of the cities, gathering stores of knowledge ies of the cities, gathering stores of knowledge that those who thirst may drink. How many immigrants in following the lines of the correspondent's pencil revisit the home of their youth: The dripping well, the lovers seat, the old roar, pairlight glen etc., etc. I must confess that I have done so in reading the letters of Luke Sharp in the Detroit Free Press and have perceived many things that I only saw before. Again the press is like a smaller species of the Polypus found on the sea shore and often prodded with the walking stick of inquisitive old gentlemen when it emits a shower of shiny inky fluid all over the person of the scientist. (It is peculiar how the lower class of animals always aim straight.) So it is in stirring up the press with a long pole—one is apt to be covered with printer's ink more nauseous than pleasant. But come down to my own sphere—that of a bush farmer. When the work for the week has ended and to my own sphere—that of a bush farmer. When the work for the week has ended and we are made snug, the press is taken in hand. Seated in the rocking chair with the guid wife opposite and the children sitting around, with the comforts of home, sitting around, with the comforts of home, we travel through India seeing all the wonders that that land possesses, not forgetting her lately acquired scientific frontier, without the children being frightened by the appearance of a swarthy turbaned him doo demanding tickets or notifying you that you have arrived at Shimminy Shaster Shoo and must change here for Huggamy, Chugna Muggha; a turn of the page and we are in the paddy fields of Uhina studying the cultivation of rice, noting the thousands of Celestials who live in sanpans thousands of Celestials who live in sanpans and the sole of whose feet have uever trol thousands of Celestals who live in sanpans and the sole of whose feet have uever trol the soil of their native country. With what expressions of wonder do we remark the dexterity of the almond eyed visitor in abstracting the cat from aboard ship: Curried cat isdear to the epicurean taste of Ah ried cat isdear to the epicurean taste of Ah Sin. In another column, seated on the Egyptain pyramids we view the movements and machinations of Arabi Bev, while to our left lies the Invincible worked entirely by buttons. Has a fort to be razed—a button is touched and the thing is done—. Has a hostile ship to be swept from the sea, touch a button and she disappears, while the placid waters look benignly upon the conquerors as a beliews blower greets an organist. But who makes these buttons organist. But who makes these buttons and who controls them—that buttons are useful in dress is apparent to us all, but in the event of our not paying our tailor, should he maliciously sew on one of the invincible buttons, what a fearful catastrophe would befall us—merely to gratify the spleen of an unpaid tailor. There may yet be a boom in hooks and eyes. At the bottom of the page is one of these articles that touches the pulse of humanity and proves the whole world akin, who chronicled in who would uphold the law as it now stands, when every man is guaranteed his Sunday—Save for works of necessity—to spend it as he pleases. He is not obliged to go to church, if he does not like, he can take his family to the green fields, instead, if he pleases, no man is forbidding him. All that he cannot do is to compel another to minister to his pleasure at the expense of that one's own. Therefore he cannot go on railroad and steamboat excursions on Sunday as on other days, because the law protects the hands who run them is the enjoyment of a seventh day as well as protects the hands who run them in the enjoyment of a seventh day as well as himself. Here is true consistency—all are equal in the eye of the law. The cant and hypoorisy on this question are not therefore on the side of priestoraft, as most of your correspondents charge it; but on the hypoerisy on this question are not therefore on the side of priestoraft, as most of your correspondents charge it; but on their side, who to obtain unbridled pleasure for themselves, would condemn a number of their fellow men to the increasing slavery of toil. Visitors to Toronto, large bedies of delegates for instance—have frequently alluded in their own journals, after returning home, with satisfaction to the quiet Toronto Sunday, in contrast to the unceasing turmoil in cities where no Sunday rest is observed. Let all those who truly believe that all men are born, by the creator's mandate, "for life, health and the pursuit of happiness," oppose a change of the law, whereby a part of the community will become unceasing slaves to minister to the unbridled pleasure of another part.

Still, "the Sabbath was made for man," and there is no just reason I conceive, therefore, why public grounds like the Normal school, and Horticultural gardens, should not be opened on Sundays for promenading. They are public property—bought with the people's money, and should be open in all daylight hours for the use of those who really own them—the taxpayers. The labor involved for this on the part of caretakers would be so slight as not really to rob these officials of needful rest, for their positions are quite different from the toilers I have named who labor from early morn till midnight hours six days, and need a seventh for rest.

at cost of three cents—aye, at one cent— The World. What has the schoolmaster to show on his blackboard to equal this? A circus advertisement lifts the boy up the steps of knowledge faster than a domine could drive him with a stick. His attainments with youth are exemplified in his assign. of Lord Brougham to the remark, which I consider foreign to the case, in the present accomplishments of the schoolmasters the schoolmaster with the press is like of the age. That he is abroad I do not deny—taxes remind me of this; but he is too far abroad; "would he were access" home;" so far abroad is he that in many ineen brought to light by the Paris police. home;" so far abroad is he that in many in-
