LOCAL CHINAMEN ARE ACQUITTED

Wong Chung and Wong Ning Freed On Assault Charge This Morning.

The trial of the two local Chinamen, Wong Chung and Wong Ning, proprietors of a Chinese restaurant here, charged with assault, was completed this morning before Judge McLatchey in the County Court at Dalhousie and, following a ten-minute deliberation by the jury, a verdict of "Not Guilty" was returned. The prisoners were, accordingly, acquitted.

The only other criminal case on the docket is occupying the attention of the court this afternoon. This is that of the King vs George Diamond on a charge of theft. J. L. Hebert is defending the accused. M. A. Kelly, clerk of the court prosecuted both cases.

All civil cases were postponed.

BANQUET HELD IN ST. ANDREWS HALL

Over One Hundred Friends Were Guests of Men's Bible Class On Tuesday Evening.

The Hall of St. Andrews United Church here was the scene of a happy event on Tuesday evening when over one hundred men of that and other congregations were guests of the Men's Bible Class of that church. A most appealing spread was provided by a number of ladies of the congregation and all those about the banquet board did full justice to the repast.

A well arranged program of speeches and music contributed to the pleasure of the occasion. A solo by Miss Gladys Allanach, leader of St. Andrews' Choir, one by Mrs. F. W. Campbell, and two violin selections by Miss Vera Campbell were received with much well-merited applause. Rev. Mr. Forbes of Tide Head spoke very entertainingly about a number of things. Mr. D. C. Fitch a veteran Sunday School teacher of St. Andrews Church spoke on the responsibilities and opportunities of teachers and made many thoughtful and timely statements. Mr. James W. Day spoke in the interests of the Temperance Alliance, and urged the co-operation of everybody in bringing about better conditions in connection with the enforcement of the prohibition law.

Rev. W. S. Godfrey spoke on "Playing the Game", and his short address was listened to with close attention. Rev. W. W. McNaughton dealt with the matter of Bible Studies in a very helpful address.

Mr. F. G. Bridge, Principal of the Grammar School proposed the toast to the ladies and this was responded to by Mrs. F. W. Campbell. Mr. S. H. Lingley acted as chairman and made appropriate remarks. The occasion was a particularly pleasing one and the unusually large attendance added to the success of the event.

PAQUET CLAIMS IRREGULARITIES

Asks for Official Recount in Bonaventure—Some of Allegations.

Major Theo. Paquet, the conservative candidate in Bonaventure County filed a petition this morning before Chief Justice Lemieux, asking for an official recount before a judge of the Superior Court, claiming gross irregularities, such as several ballot boxes being broken, and also that some of the ballots had been rejected when they should have been held valid. It is understood that a judge will be delegated by the Chief Justice, in a few days, to sit at New Carlisle and preside over the recount. According to an official proclamation issued yesterday by the returning officer, Hon. Charles Marcell would have been elected over his opponent by a majority of 536 votes. It will be recalled that for some time Major Paquet claimed that he was elected by fifty votes over Mr. Marcell.

Judge McLatchey Makes Fitting Remarks—A Detailed Description Of The New Building.

Restigouche County's new, $50,000 Court House housed its first court gathering on Tuesday morning when the fall term of the County Court opened its sessions there before His Honor Judge McLatchey.

In opening his court Judge McLatchey made a brief speech befitting the occasion. He incidentally made fitting remarks about the fine new building, the spacious court-room and all its various appointments, and expressed the hope that proper pride would be taken in the new structure, and every effort made to preserve it and keep it clean and in good condition.

Twenty Years A Judge

The venerable judge also took this opportunity to reminisce. Briefly reviewing his legal activities in this county he made the interesting statement that he had been 36 years in legal life—sixteen years in practice as a lawyer and twenty years a judge. In this retrospective glance back over the years His Honor recalled many well remembered legal associates and, in most cases, also their passing; either to other fields of earthly activity or to a Higher Court beyond.

A Fine Structure

Situated on a very desirable site in the downtown, the new County Court House is a structure of fine appearance and one of the few public buildings in Restigouche which can be said to be a credit to this municipality.

The new building which is 60 feet square is a solid brick structure, faced with buff citidal brick and has stone trimmings. It is two stories in height and has a concrete basement the full size of the building.

First Floor

The building also has an attractive entrance and a spacious hall and wide corridor, running front to rear. On the lower floor are situated the County Council Chambers, the Auditor's office, office of the Registrar, Probate court room and the Secretary Treasurer's office. At the north-west corner of the building there will ultimately be completed a space for the Sheriff's office and from here a passage will lead from the main building to the jail.

Second Floor

A wide stairway leads to the upper floor where the court-room is concealed almost the entire space, being approximately 30 feet square. Ample room is provided for jury, witnesses and the public while a separate jury room, and private vestibules for judge and lawyers have also been arranged for. The finished Court House presents a most satisfactory appearance in every particular. The interior of the building is finished throughout in native hardwood. The building is heated by an up-to-date Dunham Low-pressure steam heating system. This was installed by A. H. English of Campbellton. The hardware for the new building was supplied by Renault Bros., and the furniture by H. M. Armstrong, also of this town. The Northern Electric Co. of Halifax supplied the necessary electrical fixtures while the plumbing was installed by the building contractors, the Parsons-Ed Company, Ltd. of Moncton.

The cost of the Court House is estimated at between $50,000 and $55,000. All architectural work in connection with the building was done by

This Year Yield Estimated As The Largest Crop In History of Dominion.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—The total yield of wheat in Canada is now provisionally estimated, according to a report issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 422,327,000 bushels. This total yield is 30,508,000 bushels more than the preliminary estimate of 391,819,000 bushels published on September 10.

Of this excess difference 27,306,000 bushels is for the single province of Saskatchewan, where threshing results have exceeded expectations. The total yield of wheat now estimated is the second largest on record for Canada.

PRESBYTERIANS ORGANIZE W. M. S.

Officers Elected At Organization Meeting Held Here This Week.

On Monday evening, a large number of ladies of the Presbyterian Church here gathered at the home of Mrs. L. A. Moore, President W. M. S.

In a most interesting and instructive speech Mrs. Moore sketched the wider work of the W. M. S., but dealt chiefly with the outlook in our own Miramichi Presbytery, describing the wonderful receptions accorded her everywhere she went, the enthusiasm that prevails, and the willingness of all to do their part.

During the past few days Mrs. Moore has met with thirteen Auxiliaries in Miramichi Presbytery most of which she has organized—and other places waiting for her inspiring and helpful message.

The following re-organization of the Presbyterian W. M. S., Campbellton, with a roll of twenty-five members and the following officers:—President—Mrs. Donald MacLean, 1st Vice President—Mrs. Quinley, Secretary—Mrs. Shaw, Treasurer—Mrs. W. S. Richards, Sec. Literature—Mrs. A. F. Chamberlain, Organist—Mrs. McGarvie. As only a few hours notice of this meeting was given, many were unable to be present, but it is hoped Mrs. Moore will visit the new organization in the near future.

THE SALVATION ARMY Special Revival Services will be held week-nights and Sundays from November 15th to March 8th, 1926.

Special subjects will be dealt with from the Book that speaks for itself. This Sunday 7:30 the subject will be "How Nobody Became Somebody and how Somebody Became Everybody." All are cordially invited to attend. Nov. 12—2w.

POSSIBLE CHANGES IN THE CABINET

Forke and Dunning To Enter Ministry—Graham To Retire?

Toronto, Nov. 11.—The night edition of the Toronto Telegram publishes the following: "It is reported in local Liberal circles that several surprises are all ready to be sprung by Premier King in the formation of the new government.

"The first surprise, it is said, will be the entry of Robert Forke, Leader of the Progressives, into the cabinet as Minister of Immigration. "Hon. Charles Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan is coming to the capital also to take a seat, according to the report, and it is said the Prime Minister himself is going to run in Russell, when the time comes. Right Hon. George P. Graham will not be in the new cabinet after the first session."

Toronto, Nov. 13.—Some of Canada's national problems will be discussed by prominent business men at Winnipeg when delegates gather in that city from all parts of Canada for the conference of Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, Nov. 16, 17 and 18.

In addition to a long list of subjects already on the agenda, provision will be made for a discussion of matters arising out of the conference of Maritime Boards of Trade in Charlottetown, P. E. I., on Nov. 5, and the Ontario Boards of Trade which met at Kingston Nov. 5-6. The Maritime Boards of Trade have already arranged for discussion at the Winnipeg conference of the subject "Elimination of Maritime Province Ports."

NEW ZEALAND STILL IN WET COLUMN

Government Won Decisive Victory—Premier Coats Returned With Good Majority.

Wellington, N. Z., Nov. 8.—The prohibitionists have not yet succeeded in their effort to make New Zealand dry. The question whether New Zealand should continue its present liquor license system, adopt "state purchase" or government control of liquor, or swing to prohibition, was voted on in a referendum during yesterday's general elections.

The counting of the vote is as yet incomplete, but the results thus far ascertained show approximately that the prohibitionists cast 27,981 votes as against 310,596 by their opponents. In the parliamentary election the government won a decisive victory. Premier Coats obtained a good majority in the next Parliament. On the first count, it was thought that the New Zealand Parliament was to have its first woman member in Miss Melville. A recount of the vote, however, showed that she had been defeated for the seat for Grey Lynn by the Laborite candidate.

Organization work in connection with this winter sport is being started in good time this season and it is hoped this meeting will be well attended and the work given an auspicious start.

If Campbellton is to win her rightful place in this sport greater and more constant interest must be taken in the work of organization.

Express Car On Maritime Carried $200,000 Worth Of P. E. I. Black Foxes

Two extra sleeping cars on the Maritime Tuesday night carried about 40 prominent Prince Edward Island business men who are connected with the Black Fox industry, en route to Toronto where they will attend the Royal Agricultural Show and Winter Fair.

Consolidated in the same train was an express car containing 200 of the finest specimens of the Black Fox, an export of Prince Edward Island. The express car is valued at $200,000 and will be in exhibition at the fair.

At a first more or less accidental though not followed up in an endeavor to ascertain the extent of the cigarette practice—discloses the disturbing fact that even many pupils in grade II are smoking regularly. One youngster in grade III when questioned, replied with something of the air of an old smoker, that he smoked "about a box a day". In other grades too the habit is even more deeply rooted and the situation, regarded from any angle is frankly disheartening. When asked where they secured their cigarettes, the pupils replied "Oh, any place where we can get 'em". Several of course were able to state at what stores they obtained their "smokes" but all names mentioned are withheld for obvious reasons.

Following this discovery, however, the Red Cross Society propose to see that the law is rigidly enforced. The law prohibits the sale of tobacco to and from minors and it is the intention of the society to see that this regulation is adhered to. There is no desire to lay any charge against any particular merchant at present as a great many children frequently buy tobacco for a parent but the society are now further investigating the matter and following this warning will take whatever measures are considered necessary to have the law observed by all.

INTERNATIONAL ICE MEET TO BE HELD IN NEW YORK THIS YEAR

New York, Nov. 10.—The 1926 international championships will be held in the new Madison Square Garden, February 28, March 1 and 2. If the application filed with the International Skating Union is ratified, this was revealed today by James M. Savage, President of the national Skating Association. This blue ribbon indoor skating meet of the season, would bring to New York the outstanding amateurs of Canada and the United States.

The present champion is Joe Moore, of New York, who won the title at Pittsburgh last year. For the second time he will defend it this season. Alabama, the country without a ruler, is also unique in being without railroads or banks and with almost no bridges or highways.

MARVELLOUS FEATS OF AN EGYPTIAN

An Egyptian fakir, whose feats are said to surpass those that have been witnessed in India, has created sensation in New York and is expected shortly to appear in America. This fakir first invites upon the stage any medical men in the audience who may wish to watch him closely and assure themselves that there is no trickery. He then produces a number of knives and needles which are handed about to prove their genuineness. These he thrusts through his cheek, his neck and his arms—without, so he declares, feeling any pain, and without a drop of blood flowing, the circulation being completely arrested by will power. It is supposed to be due to a control over the nerves and muscles, acquired by dint of fasting and holy exercises. After walking about with the knives and needles sticking into him, the fakir puts himself into cataleptic trance by swallowing his tongue. His head and feet are then laid on two trestles, the length of his body apart, and a man jumps on the human suspension bridge between them. Next a piece of granite weighing eighty-two kilograms is laid on the fakir's stomach and broken there by a workman wielding a pickaxe. After this the fakir comes out of his trance and lies down on a board spiked with nails, while another man walks about on top of him. The last trick consists in being buried for a certain number of minutes in a coffin which is then half-filled with sand and covered by a mound of sand. It is sort of tabloid version of burying alive. Doctors explain the phenomenon much as they explain the immunity from pain. When the subject has swallowed his tongue, thus shutting oxygen out of his body, he has, according to this explanation, "hypnotized himself into a state of asphyxia" in which all the vital functions are temporarily suspended.

CANADA'S STAND

Canada's position since the war has been a difficult one. The part she played in the conflict was both glorious and costly. Peace found her encumbered with debt, bereft of some of her best foreign markets and without any recompense in sight. Canada, in fact, was the only unit in the British Empire which did not draw a single prize from the Treaty of Versailles. German Southwest Africa was added to the South African Union; Australia was given mandates over various islands; Great Britain items on the credit side of the ledger when the peacemakers concluded their labors. But Canada, for geographical reasons, received nothing. In the seven years that have elapsed since the end of the war, the Dominion has been emerging slowly from the economic depression which followed the war. The slow recovery is to some extent a matter of choice. Canada has never indulged in short cuts to growth and prosperity. Her immigration policy has always been a curious one, dictated largely by a desire to keep the original stock unlimited. In the past this was not difficult, as the bulk of the immigration moving into Canada came from the British Isles. Belief in Canada's frugidity, created partly by Kipling's unfortunate My Lady of the Snows verse, was too firmly established to attract the Latin, Slav and Near East flood. The United States got practically all of it. Now that we have swung over to a sound principle of restriction and selection, however, Canada could take advantage of the situation growing out of our immigration law. But so far the Dominion has shown no tendency to throw open the gates. Canadians seem to feel that the wiser course is to grow slowly rather than profit by a boom in population; and anyone who considers the problems that our old free and easy policy has created for us must applaud her decision.—Saturday Evening Post.

SHOT THE BULL SO MUST PAY $90

Bull Strayed to His Premises and Defendant Went Gunning.

Bathurst, Nov. 4.—Because he shot the bull owned by George Luce, which had strayed to his premises, Joseph White was directed to pay the owner $90 as damages in the Gloucester County Court this morning when a jury returned a verdict for that amount in favor of the plaintiff. The defendant contended that he had shot in self-defence, or at least that the appearance of the animal on his property had been such as to require stern measures. The plaintiff, however, contended that this had been a dog-like wrong and sued White for the amount of $100. The jury valued the bull at a discount of ten per cent. and assessed the damages at $90.

CONSIDER THE NEWSPAPER

When you wish to buy something where do you look for it? In your newspaper. When you need information regarding some event of the future where must you go for it? To your newspaper. When your merchants need business, through what medium do they obtain it? Your newspaper. When the community and the churches, schools, civic and welfare organizations of the community need community action and co-operation, to what do they appeal? Your newspaper. These are some of the reasons why the newspaper is YOUR newspaper and why communities are only as strong and progressive as their newspapers. There may have been instances where a live newspaper was unable to resuscitate a dead town, but there is no man who has been a mourner at a funeral where a live newspaper has been the undertaker to a dead town. If there is one quick cure for community somnolence it is a wide-awake newspaper.

The first duty of a newspaper is to transmit to its readers the thoughts and activities of humanity at home and abroad, but the value of that other department of the newspaper—advertising—should be overlooked by none. The public anticipates its shopping by scanning the advertisements in the newspapers and the merchants anticipate their business by newspaper advertising. Advertising is a mutual proposition between all concerned. Before the rise of present intensive newspaper advertising the public was powerless to plan its buying. Money, time and dissatisfaction was the price paid. At the same time merchants had to be content to wait for business and the most of it came Saturday afternoon and evening, seldom on Monday and never in the morning. Newspapers and the universal employment and appreciation of newspaper advertising permits the public to plan its shopping and has made business every week day.

A. G. Robichaud Makes Reply To "Charlo Fisherman" In Firey Letter

Denies Charges Of Illegal Salmon Drifting And Also Insinuations That He Was Interested In Landing Of Lipuor

Dear Mr. Editor—
Please allow me space in your intelligent paper, in order to answer certain charges made against me, and a certain Mr. McIntyre of Carleton, N. B., whose article appeared in the Moncton Times, under date of Oct. 17th last, the issue of which I only got today, hence the delay in answering Mr. Charlo Fisherman, or perhaps Mr. "Dalhousie Monopoli" as the name would better apply.
First of all, Mr. "Charlo Fisherman," allow me to tell you that you are a contemptible liar when you say that I have been drifting for salmon while being in the employ of the Dept. Marine and Fisheries as official observer re the search for scallops, and in order to prove my assertions let me tell you for your information that I was employed by the Dept. from Aug. 11th to Sept. 2nd, both days inclusive, and that I gave 20 days work all told, and I defy you to prove the contrary, because every one of my salmon nets was hung up in Mr. Eugene McLarty's barn since the 10th of July.
Secondly—I must again reiterate that you are again a contemptible liar when you say that the beds of scallops were not discovered by A. G. Robichaud.
Who then discovered them? I leave that to you to answer, Mr. "Charlo Fisherman," and when you do answer this above question, I sincerely hope you will not prove yourself again as cowardly as you were in your letter to the Times, and that you will sign your own name to your letter.
I have never yet been accused, and I sincerely hope to never be accused of writing publicly against men, who, by the way, may have just as good social standing as you may happen to have yourself Mr. Charlo Fisherman because a man, who, by the medium of one of the leading papers of this Province, lowers himself to the use of a "Pen-name" in order to insult more freely, and more at ease, the reputation of respectable citizens of this Province, should not be respected, nor should he be believed by the energetic and most intelligent fishermen on these shores of Bay Chaleur.
I wish to refer you, Mr. "Charlo Fisherman" to my reports on the Experimental Scalloping Fishing in the course of these 20 days I was employed as official observer.
I also wish to point out to you that Mr. Officer Fournier, one of the most capable, intelligent, and devoted officers of the Dept. of Marine and Fisheries has on the whole coast, supervised in person practically all of my operations. That he was with me, when I was surveying that bed of scallops off Belledune, that he saw for himself, then and there where the best part of the bed was, for a stretch of approximately seven miles following the shore of your own county of Restigouche, Mr. "Charlo Fisherman" and you again show yourself enough of a coward to insinuate, in your letter to the Times, that this same officer, a man who never shirked his duty, even on the battle-fields of Flanders, a man who has always at heart to protect the poor and needy fisher folks, against the encroachments of those who endeavor at all times, to monopolize the fishing industry on these shores (and I would not be the least surprised if you were not one of them that he, as you say, did not fulfill his duty, and that he was protecting me. Again a lie, Mr. Charlo Fisherman, yes, a mean cowardly lie, under the protecting mantle of a "Pen Name", and I defy you to prove the contrary.
Now, Mr. Charlo Fisherman, in order to make it clear to you I may point out, that I have drifted for salmon in the Bay Chaleur, under a license which allowed me to drift two miles off shore.
I left Shipigan on the 9th of June, and started operations on the 10th, and on the 6th of July, I got my nets ashore to dry, and they are there since. In other words, I fished 37 nights and caught some 1800 lbs. of salmon. Now this reminds me of the fact, that during that time, some of you people who were spending hundreds of dollars to send delegations to Ottawa against me, even went as far as to report to Ottawa that I had shipped 12 boxes of salmon in one shipment. Oh! you should thank Providence that you were not in my stead, because I had to sustain a loss of over half a thousand dollars on that salmon business.
Now Mr. Charlo Fisherman, I feel it my duty to challenge you, or any of your followers, to prove that I have been drifting and shipping salmon illegally, and I also regret to advise you, that you will have to answer this charge in the courts, for, know ye, that I have just as good a right to my reputation as you have, and use it I will.
Your insinuations about Lipuor being landed by me, are apt to make a fellow laugh, "Great Scott!" Why! your informers must have had eyes just as good as the "Lyorks" or the "Skunks" to be able to read the name of a boat, and supposing now that particular load had been landed on the 4th, of August, surely those who landed this cargo, must have operated in the dark of night, and you "Lyorks" or "Skunks" told you they had read the name, is it not? Well then my idea would be they were "skunks" and that they swam, out that particular scow, climbed up and read the name. Would't this be logical enough? It should if you are not too sceptical. However, for your information, I may as well tell you that on the 4th of July, I was out fishing scallops on the Carleton bed (another prolific bed I discovered, mark you and I got back ashore in Charlo at about 4 of the clock in the afternoon, my boat stayed at anchor all that evening and night, and next morning I left again for the scallop beds.
Yes, there was a Mr. McIntyre with me in my boat, and there you again show yourself a coward, by not writing his whole name.
Please bear in mind Mr. Charlo Fisherman that there are lots of McIntyres in Charlo and I may say also, for your information, that they are all "White". You cannot find a "sneaker" nor a "squaleer" in the McIntyres, and especially Mr. George McIntyre, the gentleman who piloted me to these prolific scallop beds during the course of this last summer, is one between them all, whom I admire for his honesty, integrity and greatness of heart. I take pleasure and pride in introducing him to you Mr. Charlo Fisherman, and am not the least afraid to recommend him to you and your likes, as a straight forward gentleman and law abiding citizen.
Now, let us say a word about your "two men, non-residents of Charlo, sitting on the beach". Oh! My! but it reminds me of a song, I often heard in Charlo, and I must confess you made a very grave mistake Mr. Charlo Fisherman, because you should have written it this way (as the song goes)
"Two Bums were sitting on the beach, watching the tire coming in"
"One Bum said to the other Bum I wish that water was gin".
Those were your two "Bums" Mr. Charlo Fisherman, and let me call the lie on you again when you say they are non-residents of Charlo, because, as far as I have heard, they are known all too well, and one of them in particular, should pray to The All Mighty above, that the same face does not befall him, as happened to a member of his own family not so many years ago, on account of persecutions against his neighbors.
Before concluding Mr. Charlo Fisherman let me say to you again that you are a liar when you say that my boat carried two top masts and that I took them off, and that you are again a liar when you say my boat carried three gibs, because it never carried but two.
I broke in the gib-boom one Sunday while making an excursion from Carleton, and I had to take it off, I had it ashore at Charlo, and it was stolen by the same man who, I have good reasons to believe, gave you all this false information.
As to painting my boat, this is a job I do every summer in the month of August, and I will do it next summer again, and for your information, I will say there is no name on the stern of my boat, but there is written there, in accordance with the Customs Laws the name of the port of Registry, which is Chatham, N. B., and on each side of the Bon, is painted the name of the boat, that is, J. G. Robichaud, and I feel honored and proud to let you know that J. G. Robichaud is my brother, because he was the only French Acadian Liberal elected in the Maritime Provinces, and I have no hesitation whatever to assure you and all the toilers of the sea along our shores that Mr. Robichaud, M. P. for Gloucester, will be waiting at this next session of the King Government, in your own interest as well as theirs.
Thanking you, Mr. Editor for the allotment, I have the honor to be,
Yours very truly
A. G. Robichaud.

BELIEVED VICTIM OF TRIBAL RITES

Indian Atavism Blamed for Death of Girl Found on Primitive Altar.

Eureka, Cal., Nov. 9.—The theory that Carmen Wagner, 18-year-old girl found murdered near here yesterday, may have been killed in accordance with sacrificial rites of an ancient Indian tribe by a descendant of the tribe, was advanced by Dr. E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley criminologist, who returned to Eureka after visiting the place where her body was found buried.
About 300 yards away, Dr. Heinrich said, he had found an ancient altar where the girl may have been murdered by the person who first shot and killed Miss Wagner's companion, Henry Sweet.
"It is possible that a descendant of the Indians in the vicinity was a victim of a 'fareback' to the old religious belief of his forefathers and he may have conceived the idea of sacrificing a young woman on the moss-covered altar," the criminologist said.
Dr. Heinrich believed his theory strengthened by the fact that growth on the trees at the altar had recently been disturbed.

Prussian Willing to Pay the First Worlds Championship Amount in Settlement of Family Claims. Event of This Kind On Continent To Be Held At St. John.

Berlin, Germany.—"The Prussian Government is willing to award the Hohenzollern family $20,000,000 in cash, castles, lands and pictures in settlement of their claims; citizens who loaned the monarchy gold before and during the war may receive 12 1/2 per cent of their investments after 35 years." This is the way the Morgen Post sizes up the Prussian Government's secret negotiations with Hohenzollern lawyers for settling the estate of the former ruling family.
This sum is in addition to $3,000,000 in gold sent to Bonn the year after the revolution to enable Wilhelm to keep the wolves from the door, and the granting of other properties now in possession of Hohenzollern princes and princesses, such as the Oels estate which was awarded to the former Crown Prince by the Prussian courts.
According to the same paper the Prussian Government has offered the Hohenzollerns 150,000 acres of land and 33 castles if their claim could be settled out of court. However, this offer was refused by the former reigning family, who are demanding everything over which the crown held administrative rights during the monarchy. Among other demands are the pictures in Schach Gallery at Munich, which were presented to the Kaiser by Schach in exchange for the pictures of two-thirds of all pictures in the Kaiser Friedrich Museum at Berlin, which was recompense for the Achilleons Castle on Corfu, jewels, etc. It is rumored numerous pictures from the castles now are gracing homes of Republican politicians and that the Kaiser's lawyers are demanding the highest sums for these, believing the Government will pay rather than have the politicians humiliated.

QUAKER WIT

The typical Quaker is credited with having had much common sense in spite of his reputation for generous hospitality. A story of a man who went to Quaker friend for advice in buying horse reflects the almost gruff brevity of their speech.
"I want a horse," said the man, "that must not cost much, but which shall be nice and quiet for mother to drive out with and take riders in the afternoon, one broken to the saddle so that I may go back riding in the morning, one that is strong enough to draw the carriage when we go to church, a horse that can be equipped to draw a load of hay and that could be used to go back and forward to market. Can you tell me where I can find such a horse?"
"No," said the Quaker, quietly. "I know of no such horse, but as three looks for one why dost thee not get one that is also a good milker?"

SIGNS OF A FIGHT

A movement to form an organization of friends of the public distribution of hydro in New Brunswick is reported. The very evident desire of private interests to get their hands on the Grand Falls is a warning to those not served by the Musquash that they will not be permitted to enjoy such advantages as is enjoyed by the Musquash patrons. Further, it is a notice to the Musquash patrons that sooner or later the larger development will seek control and authority over that property. There will be continuation of the public control of the Musquash and extension of powers of the province only if the friends of the public influence felt. It is a big fight already to protect the public against private exploitation. Those who combined to turn Veniot out because he said he would never allow private control of the Grand Falls are today hot foot after the Grand Falls. It is a time for the friends of the public, whether they be Liberals or Conservatives, to get together. They have a big fight ahead to save the water power of this province for the people of this province. —Globe.

Not too far from the fact that the only ones who should give thanks, all Canadians find satisfaction in the report issued by the National Foreign Trade Council of the United States. Study by that independent organization shows that during the last fiscal year Canada led all other countries in the world in proportional recovery of forest products. Other and larger countries, of course, secured a greater volume of international trade than did this country, but the fact that what we secured in proportion to population was far in excess of that obtained by any other country proves many things. Among others it proves that Canada's government and Canada's exporters have both been alive to Canada's opportunities overseas. —Ex.

A TIMELY STATEMENT

In replying to Premier Baxter's statement in connection with Grand Falls the Hon. P. J. Veniot, former prime minister makes the following remark in discussing the situation at length.

"It is time the people of New Brunswick took a more lively interest in our public matters. We have reached a crisis in our industrial development. No government should be allowed to better away, on a mere party pretext of this or that, being not just right, our common heritage for the sake of political expediency."

Whether Grand Falls should be developed under public ownership or whether a private corporation should be formed to deal with the development of this valued water-power Mr. Veniot's statement is a timely and should inspire serious thought on the part of every taxpayer in New Brunswick.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Ontario Hydro system this year paid to the government a total of $2,151,078 in interest and carrying charges on hydro development expenditures. By refunding hydro loans, which now total $146,529,509, a province of Ontario was able to reduce the interest by $100,000 and other government borrowing an interest reduction of substantially the same amount has been effected. The Hydro is in good standing with the Ontario government and the people of Ontario are enjoying lower light and power rates over a wider area than obtain elsewhere in the world.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Point LaNim, Restigouche Co., N. B. Editor, Campbellton Graphic, Campbellton, N. B.

A lot is being said by the old turnout against the expenditure on the roads at this time of the year.

It is to be said in defence of the whole party, that later in the season and in the spring is the only time an car can be successfully, and I may say economically, with refacing a road. That is the condition of the road in this locality.

The gravel that is put on late in the season all the necessary moisture to settle with the surface of the road, whereas if put on in June or July would not settle. It would be a rolling road. Nothing could do this as well as an old fashioned iron faced road drag, skillfully handled. A peared man should know his road and the parts that need most care, not driving over the whole section in one day, but give special attention to the most needful parts.

It is up to the parol man now to see that this newly put on gravel is kept in its proper position to form an up to date road. Nothing could do this as well as an old fashioned iron faced road drag, skillfully handled. A peared man should know his road and the parts that need most care, not driving over the whole section in one day, but give special attention to the most needful parts.

Cordial relations between the ports of Quebec and Liverpool were emphasized recently by the exchange of cables by the respective Chief Magistrates of the two cities. The occasion was the Civic Week Celebration at Liverpool when the Lord Mayor, Thomas Dowd, sent Mayor Joseph Samson, of Quebec, greetings to which the latter responded.

A record for October weddings was established at the Windsor Station, Montreal, early in that month, when twenty couples invaded the Concourse on their way to Boston, Quebec, Ottawa and Toronto. Two of the bridesrooms were bounced following time-honored custom. It used to be the fashion to subject brides to this usage, but since the advent of motor skirts the practice has been frowned upon.

Establishing what is easily a world record for movement of wheat, grain poured into Port William and Port Arthur elevators at the rate of nearly thirty bushels a second for the whole of the 21 hours of October 5, from Canadian Pacific Railway cars. In all, 1,701 cars were unloaded during the day, and each car carries an average load of 1,500 bushels, representing a total of 2,552,650 bushels.

Driving into stationary trains on level crossing is to be a favorite sport on the part of a number of motorists judging by reports, coming in recently from different sections. The latest is from Galt, where a motorist, in broad daylight, ran into a recent train consisting of 10 loaded and 15 empty cars standing in plain view on a crossing. Fortunately no one was hurt, but the damage is another of those car wrecks on the part of motorists.

The Grand Challenge Cup, emblematic of the First Aid championship of the entire system of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was won by the Weston Shops team, of Windsor, champions of the West, against McAdam, N.B., team, champions of the East and last year's winners, after a searching test of the two teams conducted at the Place Viger Hotel, Montreal, recently. The margin between the two teams was so narrow as to be in doubt to the last moment. Weston took 507 points out of a possible 672 and McAdam had 499.

Tourist traffic development throughout Canada has reached such proportions as to equal the value of a fairly good wheat crop, and such development has only just begun, is the opinion of Colonel Phil Moore, of Yoho Valley, B.C., interviewed recently. He thought that an estimate of three hundred million dollars spent by tourists annually in Canada was not too high. Growth of interest in the Canadian Rockies was very noticeable and through the majority of tourists there were Americans, not Canadians, too, were beginning to discover them, said the Colonel.

Here and There

All tourists' records, motor and train, are being broken at Banff, Alberta, this year. More than 13,000 cars were registered by the first of August with the big rush yet to come. As many as 2,000 were under canvas at one time in the Government auto camp ground.

Maple sugar and maple syrup production in Canada during the season of 1925 amounted to 9,791,259 pounds and 1,672,093 gallons, respectively, with an aggregate value of $6,825,416. This compares with an output of 9,385,415 pounds of maple sugar and 1,970,696 gallons of maple syrup during 1924. Quebec province accounted for over 90 per cent. of the production of maple sugar and over half of the output of maple syrup.

Production of the four basic industries of British Columbia during 1924 aggregated in value $210,692,793, as compared with $207,934,041 in the previous year, according to a statement issued by the Provincial Government. The 1924 production was made up as follows, with 1923 comparative figures in brackets: Forest products, $90,702,000 ($86,674,400); agriculture, $60,029,224 ($59,159,795); mines, $48,704,604 ($41,320,730); and fisheries, $21,256,965 ($20,795,923).

"Canada has the greatest opportunity of any community on the face of the earth," stated St. Joe Strachy, editor and proprietor of the London Spectator, in the course of a recent address before the Canadian Club. He stressed the advantages the country enjoyed in her large wherewithal of electrical energy, wood pulp and mineral assets.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 men are expected to work in the forests of the Province of Quebec during the coming winter, according to the chief forester of the province. It is anticipated there will be a good season in the pulp and paper products, but that the cut of lumber will not be so heavy owing to the low price prevalent for sawn lumber.

Ready to Roll the World's Grain Caravan

To the average person a railroad shop is perhaps the most uninteresting institution one could possibly think of. It suggests to one's mind everything that is cold and unromantic and grimy. Even the scene surrounding these solid premises looks forbidding like a prison wall. During the great Canadian rush from West to East there were places in the West more interesting than the Weston Shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway. These shops use up $300,000 worth of material annually and they burn and shed out the next day to 120 tons of coal each day, all West-Canadian coal.

One of the most interesting parts of this institution is an apprentice school where 140 boys attend school in the company's time, receiving regular wages. They are learning the technical side of railroading. They study arithmetic, geometry and mechanical drawing and enter regularly into the practical side of shop life.

A unique part of the shops is a section where all the scrap iron and metal waste from Fort William to Calgary is gathered and shipped to be re-made into iron castings. The company saves $35,000 a year from this re-melting metal. From these castings the shops manufacture all bolts and iron casting parts for the entire western lines of the company. Each month 100,000 tons of cast iron is manufactured here.

It is interesting to go through these shops and see some of the biggest engines in the service being completely rebuilt. An engine can be rebuilt here in about eighteen days.

"There is an engine that went into the rock-slide in the Rockies two months ago," says the foreman. All the parts of this engine is at frame, just steel bars on wheels it is being re-made, boiler and everything.

Engines and freight car wheels for western lines are also made here. The wheels must be ground while both wheels are on axle, and both must be made exact in size within a hundredth of an inch. For, if as the foreman explained, one wheel is an eighth of an inch larger than the one on the other side of the axle, that larger wheel will want to travel an eighth of an inch farther every time the other one turns over, thus wearing down the flange and spoiling the track—and causing danger to the entire train. Annually, 16,000 pairs of new wheels are made here.

ARMISTICE BALL A MOST SUCCESSFUL FUNCTION

The Armistice Ball, held at the Chateau Restigouche last evening, under the patronage of the local Red Cross Society, will without a doubt rank as one of the most successful social functions of the fall and winter season here. THE EMBARGO ON POTATO SHIPMENT

Railroads Action Is Result of New York, Boston and Pittsburgh Congregation.

Montreal, Nov. 10.—An embargo has been placed on shipments of potatoes from Canada to Boston, New York and Pittsburgh. Notice of this embargo was given to the Canadian railroads, through the car service section of the American Railroad Association, Washington, the request having been made to the association by the Boston and Maine Railroad, so far as Boston was concerned, the New York Central for New York and the Pennsylvania Railroad for Pittsburgh. It went into effect at midnight last night, and shipments loaded here before 12 midnight will be accepted, but shippers who tried to ship to-day were refused. The reason given is that as a result of reports of a potato shortage the large markets in the United States have been overrun with the tubers.

The action has not been taken as a result of any move of the Canadian lines, but they are compelled to follow the American embargo by refusing to accept shipments destined to the United States, as the American lines will not receive cars from them. It was reported by the Canadian Pacific Railroad that at Boston there were between two hundred and three hundred carloads of potatoes lined up on the track awaiting delivery. A local dealer said that probably most of these potatoes were grown in Quebec, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

NEW FERRY ON ROUTE

The new ferry, "Frances Ullock," was again put on the route yesterday, and with the improvement to her steering equipment, gave better satisfaction, though considerable difficulty is still experienced in making the slips which are too narrow for the new boat. A little engine trouble last evening resulted in the boat drifting down river to the Canada Dock. This deficiency was overcome and the new ferry is on the route again today—Chatham Commercial.

FOR SAFETY'S SAKE

It is the task of every man to provide a competence for himself and his family, it is his dream to win financial independence. It is upon this laudable ambition of every man that the get-rich-quick schemes prey. Year after year he trades upon the small investor's inexperience. Wild are his claims, alluring the promises he makes—tragic the disillusionment and loss. Take no chances: There is one form of investment which wide experience has proven safe, which is guarded by every precaution which man can take and which affords not only a dividend on your investment, but absolute protection for your family in the event of your being taken from them. For safety's sake, invest in a Confederation Life Insurance Policy. For particulars apply to G. H. LAPPRAK, District Agent of Northern New Brunswick at Campbellton, N. B. Nov. 12—1p.

CLAIM SUCCESSFUL CANCER TREATMENT

Prof. Bell, of England, Tells of Remarkable Success With Lead.
Toronto, Nov. 11.—Announcement of world-wide interest in the medical profession was made at the Toronto Academy of Medicine last evening, when Prof. W. F. Blair Bell, of Liverpool, England, told of the successful treatment of cancer by a chemical agent. In his cases, he had used lead. Dr. Bell cited several instances in which remarkable success had been achieved, and in answering the question, "Will our work stand the final test; does lead arrest malignant disease in man," he was able to assure the Academy that out of about two hundred cases treated—mostly hopeless—fifty or so patients were believed to be well. Two cases were specially singled out, "for we have been fortunate enough to make for them, yesterday and to-day, days of thanksgiving."
"Five years ago to the day, a woman was admitted to his maternity ward at the Royal Infirmary, Liverpool, for her confinement, which took place a few days later. She was suffering with an extensive, ulcerated carcinoma of the left breast, with glands in the axilla. Operation had been considered useless six months previously by two surgeons. The growth had been accelerated during pregnancy, as is usual in these circumstances."
"I was looking for just such a hope-ful case," he said, "I secured from a piece of tissue adjacent to the ulcerated area and interavenous injections of lead were given. Not only is the patient well to-day, five years and one day later, but also she has had two more babies in the interval, both of whom she has nursed at the breast that was affected."
"The other case was that of a woman of 38 who, ordinarily, had a few weeks to live, for sections showed the growth to be a most rapidly growing spindle-cell sarcoma. Treatment with lead injections has resulted in a considerable decrease in the size of the tumor, while the patient herself increased in weight by 21

VALENTINO SAYS HIS IDEAS ARE OLD-FASHIONED
"Movie Sheik" Thinks His Wife's Proper Place is in Home

New York, Nov. 19.—Rudolph Valentino, arriving in New York to remain until next Saturday when he sails for a vacation in Europe said that he will not meet Mrs. Valentino the former Winifred Hudson, now known as Natha Rambona when her boat docks Monday. Mr. Valentino said that the "test separation" with his wife will continue.

"The movie Sheik" discussing domestic matters confessed that his marital views were perhaps old-fashioned. "When a husband in a profession," he said, "the wife should give in to his career; when the wife is professional the husband perhaps should give in, but I am just old-fashioned enough to think the husband should make the money. The wife belongs at home; there is plenty to do there." Mr. Valentino ended the interview by saying that he was so old-fashioned he could not even do the "Charleston."

TELLS STORY OF HARDSHIPS IN GETTING BOXES
Travelled 150 Miles in Northland to Collect One and Its Ballots

Winnipeg, Man., 10.—J. B. Lockhart representing the returning officer of the Springfield constituency, has returned from a trip into the northland to collect ballot boxes from outlying polls. Some of the hardships encountered by those entrusted with such tasks are graphically described by Lockhart. During the trip in canoe and on foot the party were repeatedly halted by ice. They tramped 150 miles after one ballot box. Ten nights were passed in the open air and the trip concluded with a two day trip across the Lake Winnipeg during which the steamer Bradbury had to make its way through heavy ice. Some of the polls were north of Fort Alexander. The trip was begun a month ago, with the distribution of the ballots and ballot boxes.

PROVIDED $2,000 ELOPEMENT FUND

Wife of Murdered Man Makes Strange Admission
Newark, N. J., Nov. 10.—Mrs. Wm. M. Clark, whose husband was killed by blows from a hammer, as he entered his garage in Hillside, N. J., yesterday, confessed that she and Joseph Cowen, a friend of the family, had saved an elopement fund of $2,000. The money, she said, was on deposit in Newark. Cowen is being held without bail in Hillside.

Mrs. Clark said that Cowen had begged her to run away with him, but that she had steadily refused. She admitted that Cowen had been at the Clark house on Monday, leaving shortly before her husband came home.

Although she had co-operated with Cowen in saving the elopement fund, Mrs. Clark said she never had promised to run away with him.

Little Lucy Dalton and Her Big Grand Daughter

The Old Timers Day during the Old Home Week Celebrations at Bay, when the town gradually faded into the distance, the model of the Lucy Dalton, the Canadian Pacific's engine which through the Old Timers' celebration, was taken through the principal session and finished for her photograph by the one of the gigantic grandsons, who nowadays perform the new city on her own motive power. Thousands of old-time railroad men gathered in the Baby City shops in North Bay and of Ontario for the Old Timers' celebration, and many were the hair-raising stories told of the days when first a century ago, the railroad first pushing its way through the barren wilderness which was then North Bay.

HER NERVES BETTER NOW

Received Much Benefit by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ontario.—"I started to get weak after my second child was born, and kept on getting worse until I could not do my own housework and was so bad with my nerves that I was afraid to stay alone at any time. I had a girl working for me a whole year before I was able to do my washing again. Through a friend I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it. I gave birth to a baby boy the 4th day of September, 1922. I am still doing my own work and washing. Of course, I don't feel well every day because I am still getting on my feet, but when I get my rest I feel fine. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound, and am going to keep on with it until cured. My nerves are a lot better since taking it. I can stay alone day or night and not be the least frightened. You can use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHARLES GANSON, 27 Forsythe Street, Chatham, Ontario.

Mrs. Ganson is willing to write to any girl or woman suffering from female troubles.

Helpful Hints Dressing The Bed

It is often a matter of doubt with the housewife just what kind of bedspread to use. She more apt to think of the cost and qualities than suitability for surroundings. This is all wrong, for the bedspread is one of the most prominent factors in decoration the room contains. It should be in harmony with the style of the bed it adorns.

The brass bed of simple design, easily fits itself to its surroundings. Its valance and all-over spread may be of chintz or cretonne for son's bedroom. It may have a simple silk valance to peep from under a satin embroidered coverlid in mother's room. Or it may have a dainty white mull valance and dotted muslin spread over pale blue silkoline in the guest room.

It is not quite as easy to dress the old-fashioned turned beds, for they should be covered with the old style homespun covering, with starched pillow shams at the top. The valance, if the bed is high enough to need one, may be of sheer white linen having a plain deep hem. Woven rugs on painted floors, chintz wall paper, muslin curtains, a quaint dressing table and old-fashioned chairs naturally go in a room with this sort of bed coverings.

A number of liberties may be taken with an old four poster, but if it has a tester top and the room is in the period to match, there are a few conventional rules as to its fittings that cannot be overlooked. Its home surroundings may not call for the silken side curtains that always are chosen to match the lining in which case they may be of simpler material, chintz, mull, or cretonne. Where the top arches from post to post, it is draped fully at the corners and is covered with the curtain, which follows the outlines of the arches at the openings. It is usually chosen of thin material and trimmed with the ball fringe.

The modern slender four posters are quite simple to dress, for the entire bed is covered with the spread, generally matching the hangings of the room. This style spread is cut long and wide enough to be used without a valance if desired. Many times one matching in the same material is employed.

French dimity spreads are also used on these beds, sometimes plain, sometimes over a colored under-spread, which shows the fine patterns of the work. These spreads run the gamut of prices from a few dollars into the hundreds. There are a number of Swiss spreads, Italian cut work, and Spanish embroidered spreads that are to be had at all prices, providing they harmonize with the decorations of the room in which they are to be used.

There are English cotton spreads with valance to match, both embroidered in colors, that are very charming for cottage or guest room use.

One smart girl did her whole room in green organdie, and not the least feature in the tasty boudoir was the fluffy-ruffles bedspread of green organdie, with its bolster roll to match.

For the housewife who has neither very much time nor money there are all manner of attractive and inexpensive bedspreads in the stores—clever designs wrought in bright hues to delight the tastes of the younger members of the household. Pretty colored borders on the white cotton spreads, with pillow covers to match add a bright note to the room.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Here and There

Wishing farewell and bon voyage to the celebrated writer of the Scarlet Pimpernel, a bouquet of scarlet pimpernels was presented to her by her husband, Mr. Montagu Barstow, on the SS. Montclair of the Canadian Pacific line, for England. The presentation was made on behalf of the company by Capt. Geo. Webster and President E. W. Beatty's card was attached. Baroness Orczy came out to Canada to assimilate local colour for a new book, which will be eagerly awaited here.

Motor tourists from the United States brought $150,000,000 in revenue to Canada in 1925, according to estimates of government officials. This sum is equal to a quarter of the value of the Dominion's wheat crop and approximates the value of the annual mining output of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia combined. More than 2,000,000 American automobiles, it is estimated, crossed into Canada this fall. They carried in the neighbourhood of 9,000,000 persons, or a number equal to the total population of Canada.

C. B. Foster, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific, states that the success of the crop in the West this year will make money more free and is bound to stimulate travel between Canada and the Old Country. To handle the expected increased volume of traffic, his company, he states, will run special trains early in December connecting directly with the company's Atlantic liners, sailing from the winter port of Saint John, N.B. These liners sail on dates that are calculated to get passengers home to any point in the British Isles or the near continent in plenty of time for Christmas.

Taking the North American moose over to Europe with a view to acclimating it in Northern Europe is in part the aim of Heinrich Carl, Count Schimmelmann, one of the largest land owners in Denmark. The Count and Countess were taken to the Gains river district, where they spent three weeks. During this time they walked an average of fifteen miles a day for twenty days, covering three hundred miles on foot, not reckoning the distance they traversed in canoe. They went to the woods of Northern Quebec for another shot at the elusive moose before sailing for home on the Canadian Pacific liner Montclair.

A recent epidemic of motor accidents, five of which occurred in one night, though luckily none of them proved to be fatal, elicited the following editorial comment from the Montreal Star: "That five drivers of automobiles should drive their cars into moving trains within a period of twenty-four hours in Canada would seem to indicate that carelessness is the main cause of accidents. The location of level crossings is either well-known or clearly indicated at a distance that gives even a fast driver ample time to stop. At many level crossings bells automatically ring as trains are approaching. At others, bar gates are let down. Some are open—these almost entirely in the country districts. But despite all safeguards, warnings, signals, and precautions, accidents continue to happen at level crossings with an alarming consistency. In some incidents, indeed, it almost looks as though the drivers were determined to defy all attempts to ensure caution." The paper calls for cancellation of driving license in cases like the above.

THE SMALL HAT AND BOBBED HAIR

Parisian Women Resisting Successfully the Attack on Fashion.

Paris, Nov. 9.—The recent offensive, led by the trade against the small hat for women and the cloche shape, apparently has failed. At recent public gatherings the larger and more complicated types of hats, which dealers have been attempting to sell, were missing. None but the small hat, and few except cloche shapes, were to be seen. With equal determination, the Parisian women seemingly also are resisting the movement against bobbed hair.

Gallagher, of Winnipeg, was with him when the operation was performed and writes that his father is getting along nicely. Mr. Gallagher is seventy-eight years of age and enjoyed good health up to quite recently.

Mr. Gallagher has more recently been a resident of Woodstock and is well-known throughout the Maritimes.

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted by DOROTHY A. F. MARCELL

Copyright, 1925, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"THE WIFE WHO WASN'T WANTED" with Irene Rich in a picture from this novel

SYNOPSIS "Slick" Jennings, political ward heeler, has just telephoned Jerome Wallace, candidate for District Attorney, to tell him that the results of a canvass, published by the Star this morning, show that District Attorney John Manning is almost certain of re-election. Wallace declares he is paying Jennings to "do the worrying" and bids him "get busy."

CHAPTER IV—Continued Regardless of such fears, the Westmore Country Club had, socially speaking, completely outdone itself, tonight, setting in Bob Manning's birthday party a new standard. But general excellence may not be exceeded without special effort. So far as expense was concerned, John Manning had been liberality itself. And for days, Eileen had not only busied herself with the list of guests, but had been in frequent conference with different members of the Club's staff. Now, all this effort had been rewarded. It had been a wonderful evening for Bob's young friends. An evening of superlative delight ending with a dance which was a perfect riot of unrestrained joyousness.

—Worried, by their strenuous activities, the members of the orchestra were putting away their instruments. Quietly was the melodious moan of the saxophone, stilled the sharp staccato of the banjo and jazz, king jazz, had ceased to echo over the polished dancing floor.

But in its pursuit of pleasure, youth never wavered. Orchestras may tire, pianos may grow heavy eyed, attendants fall asleep at their posts, yet youth is indefatigable. Midnight merely heralds the dawn of a new day, of fresh opportunity for enjoyment. In the face of the departing orchestra, a group of Bob Manning's youthful guests lingered wistfully upon the porch of the club house as if fearing to depart, lest, by chance, they would overlook some final crumb of the banquet of pleasure spread for their enjoyment that evening.

To them came Bob, fairly radiant with excitement and happiness. "Good night, good bye," he cried, but in his eyes lurked another message: "Stay, why go?"

"Good night—good bye," they answered, and in their faces too was written another message: "We don't want to go—give us but an excuse and we will stay."

Even as they waited with vague longings, there burst upon them temptation in the person of Diane Blessoe. Alert, high strung and vivacious, she paused in the doorway of the club house clinging to the arm of Theo Saturn and her gay, careless laugh was like the song of a siren as she gazed at the waiting group without.

"What, going home?" she cried as if marvelling that such folly were possible.

"The party is over, what else is there to do?" answered Molly Pierce. A demure little maid to whom Diane's gayety and spirit was a thing to be emulated. "Aren't you going home?"

Again that laugh of Diane's rang out in the night, provocative, tantalizing in its mysterious promise.

"Going home? The very idea." She shot a glance at Theo whose lids were already laden from want of sleep. "We never go home when there is any place else to go, do we, Theo?"

"Not on your life," he proclaimed opening his eyes very wide indeed in a brave attempt to appear alert and awake. "Din and I just get wide awake about this time of night—hey, Din?"

For this loyal support, he was to be poorly rewarded. Calmly leaving him in the lurch, Diane made for Bob and slipping her arm through his, gave him a look which proved that regardless of her father's attitude towards the Manning family, her own towards this member, at least, was very kind indeed.

"Come on, Bob, let's finish your party at Calkin's Inn!"

"Calkin's Inn?" he repeated in surprise and it was clear that regardless of Diane's enthusiasm, he did not share it. "Why it's too late to think of going there, isn't it, Diane?"

"Too late for Calkin's Inn? They don't know the meaning of the word late there," she thrilled.

"It's the very best time right now! They are just beginning to get really gay! Come on—Theo will take the whole crowd in his machine. Let's go!"

"Is—this a nice place?" worried Molly, afflicted with scruples.

"Haven't you been there?" Astonishment at such woeful ignorance may have accounted for Diane's failure to answer the question precisely. "It's wonderful, Molly, a touch of high life to live you up."

"A slumming party?" Molly was tempted and yielding fast.

"Slumming party! Great Heavens, no, child! We'll dance—dance to real music—music with pep."

"At this time of night?"

"They've hardly started—we'll dance until morning."

"Until morning?" Molly's eyes grew big. "But what about my mother, Diane? She'd throw a fit if I stayed out until morning."

"Dearie, surely you have a key?"

"Yes, but mother would hear me when I came in."

"Listen, honey," Diane rested a persuasive hand upon the other girl's shoulder. "Mother must not hear. Just be careful. You can get away with murder if you are careful. Why, the other night it was daylight when Theo and I started home from Calkin's, wasn't it, Theo?"

"Sure," responded that worthy sleeper, apparently still suffering from the effects of the trip. "No—body around but the milkman—the old, old, bright-eyed milkman."

"Well," continued Diane, "my mother is a good sport, up to date and not too inquisitive. But I didn't quite dare to drift in with the sun beams. So giving old Theo a snappy farewell, I slid in, shed my slippers and was upstairs in my little bed in a jiffy."

"Diane, what time did you get in last night?" mother asked next day. "You can search me—it must have been dreadful late," I retorted, giving her the angel eye. You see, "Diane went off in a gale of laughter. "It's easy if you're careful." With which wisdom, she smuggled closer to Bob and urged him towards Theo's car.

"Come on, nice boy," she pleaded. "I guess I won't go tonight, Diane, he said, glancing back over his shoulder as if he felt other eyes upon him. And, indeed, from just within the palm decorated hall, nothing of this had escaped the sharp eyes and ears of Marjorie, regardless of the fact that she was not alone to do, Marjorie!" pleaded her companion, regarding her with undisguised admiration.

"Go home, of course, Billy," she retorted with a coldness which would have chilled a less persistent heart. "With whom?"

"Blind was this youth or he must have remarked her wonderful gaze and the uncertainty of her answer. "Er—perhaps with Mrs. Manning," said Marjorie intent upon Diane's words. Hope leaped in Billy's eyes. "I've my car here. Can't I take you home, Marjorie?"

FARM NOTES

FEEDING LAYING PULLETS

Especially good results were obtained from alfalfa leaves in an experiment conducted at the Brandon Experimental Farm to determine the value of different supplements when fed in conjunction with the regular ration. Alfalfa leaves fed in an open rack kept before the pullets continuously, mangled split and fed fresh each day, and canners' meat cooked and mixed with the mash, were the supplements used. During the 62 days of the experiment the hens given alfalfa leaves had an average 26.9 eggs as compared with an average of 22.9 laid by those given meat and 20.1 by those given mangle. The alfalfa leaves gave, therefore, the greatest profit over cost of feed, and in this test were shown to be worth 10.8 cents per pound as a winter feed for laying pullets.

FEEDING DAIRY COWS

Ensilage produced more milk and butter at a less cost than mangle, pound for pound, in an experiment carried out at the Experimental Farm, at Agassiz, B. C. Each cow was fed ten pounds per day of a grain ration composed of three parts oat chop, three parts bran, one part barley chop and one part oilmeal with some mineral added. Each cow also received ten pounds of alfalfa hay and fifty pounds of either ensilage or pulped mangels. The cows getting ensilage produced two pounds each more milk per day than those fed mangels. It took ten pounds more mangels than ensilage to produce a hundred pounds of milk and twelve more pounds to produce a pound of butter fat. The cost of producing a hundred pounds of milk was $1.28 with ensilage and $1.55 with mangels.

WHEN THE POTATO WAS TABOO

The history of the potato is a good example of how slow we mortals are to adopt new things and new ideas. As the potato is now known all over the world and universally used as a food, it is hard for us to believe that European peoples scorned it and even fought its use for almost two centuries after it was first introduced. History tells us that Sir Francis Drake carried potatoes to England from America in 1586. The people of England and Europe apparently would have nothing to do with them, although as the years went by they were used to some extent as a food for cattle.

The pigs and cattle appeared to relish them, but their haughty masters scorned the lowly tuber. During the eighteenth century the Germans began to feed potatoes to their prisoners of war. A French chemist by the name of Parmentier, who was captured by the Germans in 1765, was held a prisoner for five years; and his chief article of diet during his imprisonment was potatoes. He became one of the first boosters that the potato had. When he returned to France, he wrote a treatise on raising potatoes to raise potatoes. In his country he says that "in times of necessity potatoes may be substituted for ordinary food." Even the friend of the potato, you see, regarded it merely as an emergency ration.

Parmentier did not have much success in converting the people to potatoes until he at last hit upon the happy expedient of persuading the King and Queen to eat some. People then began to follow that example. The popular desire to ape royalty and to follow a new fad appeared to be a stronger force than all the persuasive reasoning that Parmentier could see. In England and Scotland the potato was similarly opposed and scorned. William Corbett, a labor leader of the eighteenth century, stirred up the working men to revolt against the attempts that were being made to introduce potatoes into common use. He urged all his fellow workers "to refuse to eat such cattle-food."

Use the Want Ad. way

Turning Leftovers into savory dishes

The French people—famous for thrift—used to say that they could feed six people with what the average family on this side of the Atlantic threw away.

It is almost inevitable that there should be things left from yesterday—yet the remains of roasts and steaks, the spoonfuls of vegetables, the food that has lost its taste, are no longer wasted, nor are the "scraps" turned into "stews."

The sprightly "OXO" CUBES with their supreme flavour of prime beef, have come to the rescue of those who want to be sensibly economical. Now you find "OXO" CUBES in thousands of homes and the French have changed their ideas about our extravagant cooking.

Minced Meat on Toast

2 cups minced beef (left-over steak or roast) 2 "OXO" BEEF CUBES 1 cup boiling water 2 tablespoons flour 1 tablespoon butter Mince the meat, removing all gristle and fat. Dissolve the cubes in the boiling water. Blend the butter and flour and stir quickly into the dissolved cubes. Pour over the meat and let simmer two or three minutes (long enough to cook the flour and heat the meat). Pour over six or seven slices of hot toast. Where any gravy is left over, use but one "OXO" BEEF CUBE dissolved in 1/2 cupful boiling water and add the gravy. Season to taste.

AMERICAN PLOW AS WEDDING GUEST

Appearance of Tractors Excite Peasants. London—The recent appearance of American tractors has created great excitement in isolated villages of Turkestan, Central Asia. The mullahs, or priests, are strongly opposed to the invention, which they call "shaitan omach," or "the devil's plow," and they utter dark prophecies of crop failures and other disasters that will follow its use. But the Turkestan peasants take kindly to the tractor after they realize its superiority over their primitive, ox-drawn plows. One case is insisted that the tractor should be present at his marriage, as a short honored guest.

Our New Pension Plan

guarantees that upon reaching a certain age in life you will receive a monthly cheque for $50.00, $100, $200, $250—as you may now decide—and this monthly payment cannot cease as long as you live.

An Income for Life

When they were younger they did not have the chance now offered you. It was not then possible to secure such a convenient and certain provision as this Monthly Pension Plan.

And This is Not All

Suppose some day before you reach age sixty you meet with a mishap and become totally and permanently disabled through accident, illness or any cause. (Such a thing has happened soon after men have secured this new policy of the Canada Life.) Immediately the payment of further premiums would be cancelled. The Canada Life would become responsible for sending you $50.00, $100, $200, $250, a month, as arranged, for the rest of your life.

The King of the Forest

By Greta Gaskin Bidlake

He was the King of the New Brunswick forests and he felt himself that. Last year he had been an awkward, ungainly moose calf, hiding, under his mother's care, in a den of bent spruce under a tilted windfall, or having his breakfast of lily pads standing in the waters of the lake in the early hours of morning sunshine. There, too, they sought refuge on hot afternoons, when the heat became oppressive and the flies bothersome. Now he was a lordly fellow, going about by himself and wise in the ways of the wood. Already he had challenged more than one rival to his supremacy, and locking his proud antlers in those of his foe, had bested each in a sharp battle of horns and hoofs.

On returning to his old haunts the second year he found something he could not understand. Last year there had been men creatures about. There were a great many of them with shovels, pickaxes, hammers and wheelbarrows. At night all was quiet save for singing and guffaws of coarse laughter that floated out from the tar paper shacks where the strange beings slept, the lighted windows of which illuminated the soft summer darkness. He and his mother had watched the men from the concealment of some underbrush at the edge of the clearing. He could yet remember the great machine which snorted and puffed and rattled as it bit into the earth bringing up huge mouthfuls of black mud which it slowly and carefully emptied into a waiting cart, and went back for more. It was there that his mother had impressed upon him the necessity of keeping away from man, a lesson he was to learn more thoroughly yet.

This second year he returned, wise, lordly, cautious—but curious. The earthly machine was silent. The camp was deserted. No more the forest rang to the blows of the hammer and the falling pickaxe; no more the shouts of the working gang broke the stillness of the summer woods. He sniffed the wind, head thrown back, nose up; there was no smell of human beings.

He approached carefully, in a roundabout fashion, pausing now and then to scent the light wind which had sprung up. There were the empty construction camps, a few disused shovels lay about, a heap of rusty bolts lay near a tumbled pile of the roughly-sawn boards. And all was still; the silence of the forest brooded over everything. A white sign, lettered in black, stared down at him from over the doorway of an empty office. He reached his long nose up and felt it, smelling it curiously. "Fisher Construction Company, Engineers, Contractors and Architects," said the sign, but to the big moose it meant nothing but the smell of paint and human hands. He edged his way along the row of tar paper shacks, investigating everything, yet always alert, and came out at the top of a steep embankment.

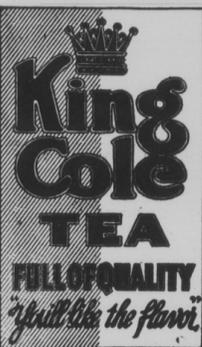

Below him lay something that was obviously a path. One end of that path lay at Prince Rupert; it led in the other direction to Moncton. His lordship saw it stretch away into the distance, a long trail of cross-pieces and shining steel rails. He trotted down the trail to a spring below, a trail worn by the cook's helper as he carried water for the kitchen and by thirsty men of the crew who relished the crystal freshness of its waters after a hard day's work in the storching sun; and, refreshing himself as so many wild creatures had done since he got a sight of him and, for most of them, a sight along the barrel of a rifle was the one most desired. Many were the tales told him by Indian guides. How he had chased Noel, the trapper, and that very agile woodsman had run up a tree wearing his snowshoes; how he had come charging down upon a timber cruiser, and forced him to take to the lake and swim for his life; how he headed straight for the New York sportsman, who stood holding his gun ready to shoot, and put that gentleman to rout; how he came upon the brush-lean-to of two fishermen, luckily, during their absence, and ripped it to ribbons, stamping upon the tatters; how he waded out threateningly to attack salmon fishers by night, and was only beaten off by having their blazing birch bark flambeau thrust in his face; how he had driven off and terrorized a pack of wolves, leaving carcasses, tufts of fur, teeth and blood, scattered on the snow in a wide, trampled circle, that told its own tale; and, lastly, how he had emerged and stared at it in foolish calf wonderment. Bells, whistles, warnings, and a shock that jarred him out of his stupor. A sudden impact of tremendous force, and the lordly Moose, was lifted in the air and tossed to one side as lightly as if he were of no consequence whatever, while the new terror rushed past in blinding flashes of light and shadow. He pulled himself together, rose shakily on his legs, took a last look over his shoulder at the long Thing tearing on down the track, and made off into the woods.

The strange Terror had on its sides letters which spelled "Trans-Continental Railway"—but no moose could discern that. Also, it was the first regular train over the line from West to East, another fact of which he was unconscious.

"A moose on the track, mamma!" shouted a small boy with his head out the window. Others took up the cry. The passengers rushed to the windows. "What a big fellow!" was the cry. "Isn't he a magnificent creature!" Then, as the train sped by, and the humbled moose disappeared into the forest, the commotion subsided, except for the voice of the small boy remarking with all the wisdom of four years and a half, "Say, Muvver, I bet that big moose got a awful thump. He'll keep away from where mans is now, won't he?"

The small boy was right. The moose tore through the forest, forgetful of his former caution and, as it was yet early afternoon, plunged through a muddy pool and waded into Little Gulquac Lake. There he submerged his sore sides and cooled his bruised shanks. An earlier meal of lily stems and pads, near the same spot, sufficed him, so that food did not engage his attention except for a nibble now and then at tender, succulent shoots nipped off beneath the water, torn up, and chewed in languid, munching, sidewise fashion.

An hour later he was still there, plunged almost under the water, only his nostrils and the tips of his broad horns showing, with a gathering swarm of black flies to mark the spot above the surface of the lake. Suddenly, out of the woodland solitude, a canoe shot silently around the point black mud which it slowly and carefully emptied into a waiting cart, and went back for more. It was there that his mother had impressed upon him the necessity of keeping away from man, a lesson he was to learn more thoroughly yet.

The Misses Blanch and Carmel Arseneau, Campbellton, spent a few days last week, guests of Miss Irene Haley. Miss Ruby Irving was visiting relatives in Tide Head last week.

"I'll be doggone; I've been living among the wild animals so long I guess it must be goin' to my head," mumbled Sam, who, being human, was half relenting of letting the opportunity pass, the while he prepared himself an early morning meal and packed up to go home.

Dawn was streaking the east, when Sam slid his canoe into the water, loaded her with his camp outfit and shoved off. In three days he was home again.

"Why, you was goin' to bring him out," observed one, pulling a ludicrous face of inexplicable surprise. "Now, look here, boys," said Sam, half shamefacedly, "I called him and I had him up. I couldn't shoot him, that's all. You wouldn't understand, so I won't tell you."

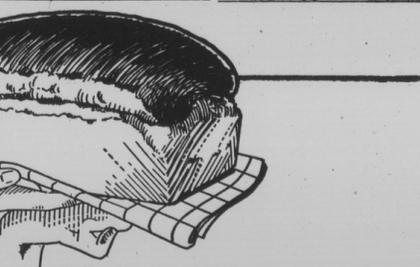

There was a moment of silence. I think, in spite of Long Sam's belief to the contrary, there was not a man there but understood, in some little degree, why Sam had not fired his gun, and that, for all the good-natured banter they plied him with afterwards, they honored Sam in their hearts while openly denouncing him as a fool. It spoke much for Sam's reputation that his story was believed.

BASKETBALL GAME
The first Basketball game of the season here was played on the Campbellton Catholic Club floor Friday evening last, November sixth, in which the town's all Stars team defeated the Club team in a very fast and exciting game which was witnessed by a large crowd of enthusiastic fans. The game was started at 8.30 and after a few minutes play Ferguson for the all Stars caged the first basket on a pass from Wilkins. Close on the heels of this one E. Murray for the Club team evened the score by a pass from Howard. The club team then succeeded in sinking two more baskets putting them in the lead by four points. The town team retaliated through some very nice combination work and regained the lead by putting over three baskets. The game then went into a whirlwind pace to the last of the first period which ended with a score of 13-12 in favor of the Club Team. The ten minutes rest seemed to liven up the boys greatly and the second period was the fastest yet witnessed on this floor for some time. The game then went see-saw and it was hard to tell which team would carry home the Bacon, the teams being so evenly matched. The game ended 26 to 30 in favor of the Town team. The line up—
All Stars: L. Jamieson, G. Alexander, W. Ferguson, L. Wetmore, E. Wilkins, McLean, McBeath.
