All Sorts and Conditions of Eyes.

All sorts and conditions of eyes are brought here in the course of a year, for us to try our skill upon in the fitting of Glasses. Yet we seldom, if ever, fail to fit them satisfactorily, no matter what the defect of vision that makes glasses necessary.

We have had experience in fitting eyes with Glasses for more than a quarter of a century back, and have been studying and learning more about eyes every single week during that long period.

At any time when you have need of Glasses we believe it will be to your interest to place the matter in our hands.

Of course we have

Eye Glasses & Spectacles

Of all kinds, Silver, Gold Filled, Solid Gold, etc.; but, after all, it's the fitting that's most important.

Her New Language

She possessed a mind discerning, That was stored and crammed with learning, And her thoughts, for ever burning, She could suitably express. All her sentences were rounded, And her words imposing sounded; I was really quick astounded As I listened, I confess.

It was rather an infliction, All this verbal restriction, But her elegance of diction, Each precise and polished phrase, And the beautiful selection Of the words and their connection— And her most correct inflection— They were quite beyond all praise.

But I saw her very lately, And she did not talk orately, All that language suave and stately She no longer kept on tap. She was saying: "Bessums diddums! Where de bad old pin got hiddums in her muzzer's precious kiddums?" To the baby in her lap.

Beware of Worms

Don't let worms gnaw at the vitals of your children. Give them Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup and they'll soon be rid of these parasites. Price 25c.

She.—After you left me last night, George, papa put his foot down and said your attentions to me must cease. I knew this cruel blow was coming, for I've felt it in my bones all along.

He.—Yes, dear, I knew it, for, just as I was leaving he put his foot up and told me the same thing. I feel it in my bones still.

Proud Mother.—You will be five years old tomorrow, Willie, and I want to give you a real birthday treat. Tell me what you would like better than any thing else.

Willie (after thinking earnestly for five minutes)—Bring me a whole box of chocolate creams, mother, and ask Tommy Smith to come in and watch me eat them.

Mrs. Fred Linn, St. George Oak, writes: "My little girl would cough so at night that neither she nor I could get any rest. I gave her Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and I am thankful to say it cured her cough quickly."

A Dentist was saved from drowning by a laborer, and from the depths of his grateful heart exclaimed:—

"Noble, brave, gallant man, how shall I reward you? Only come to my house, and I will cheerfully pull out every tooth you have in your head, and not charge you a six-pence!"

A Christian way of Settling International Difficulties.

"The quarrelsome little republics of South America" have often been alluded to by orators in this country when contrasting the peace existing between all the States in our Federal Union with the hostility prevailing between the various countries in the southern hemisphere. But this rebuke can not longer be fairly leveled at our South American neighbors. Recent events among them show that they are far in advance of the Anglo-Saxons in their earnest desire to settle their quarrels peacefully.

A despatch from Nanagu, Nicaragua, last week, stated that the foreign ministers respectively of Nicaragua, Honduras, and Salvador, had met recently at Amapala, an island in the gulf of Fonseca, belonging to Honduras, and had discussed the political affairs of their respective countries. The result is said to have been so satisfactory that the proposed conference of the presidents of the three Republics is considered to be unnecessary. This seems to be the practical working out of the arbitration idea attempted by the great Powers at The Hague. But a still more striking instance of the peaceful spirit of peoples, supposed by North Americans to be peculiarly fiery and pugacious, was the mutual disarmament agreement reached a short time ago between Chili and the Argentine Republic, and the decision to abandon the forts erected on their borders, and to raise, instead, on the summit of the Aades, an immense statue of Our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace. This extraordinary substitution of the symbol of Christianity for the grim stronghold of war has attracted the attention of the world to the two South American countries involved in the agreement, and lovers of peace in all lands have been encouraged by such a signal manifestation of international amity.

Some even in the progressive United States are drawing lessons from it. The other night in New York, Edwin D. Mead of this city, made a speech in which he contrasted to our detriment the war spirit of our country, as shown in the increase of our navy, with the disarmament agreement of Chili and Argentina. Mr. Mead said it was not worthy of the civilization which this country had attained to spend hundreds of millions for battleships, when South American countries, which we consider semi-civilized, were erecting figures of Christ on their frontier.—Sacred Heart Review.

"The Religious Crisis in France"

By Count Albert de Mun is the latest publication of the Catholic Truth Society. It is an exhaustive account of the terrible persecution borne by the Church in France. All the news concerning the crisis in France published in the daily press is colored by English prejudices. Count de Mun prepared this statement of the case for English readers and it was published in an English magazine. Do Mun is the leader of the French Catholics, a member of the Chamber of Deputies. He is one of the ablest French public men. His article exposes the true nature of the French politicians and socialists who are trying in vain to extinguish Christianity.

This is the most comprehensive account of the entire crisis published. Our readers may remember that a lengthy synopsis of this article was published in the "Current Comment" of the Review for April 30. Copies of the pamphlet, ten cents each, may be had from the International Catholic Truth Society, Arbockle Building, Brooklyn, or from the Catholic Truth Society, San Francisco.—Sacred Heart Review.

Referring to the death of ex-Queen Isabella of Spain, the Cask of remarks: "The newspapers have had a great deal to say about the scandals of her private life, but we must remember that these stories were set afloat by her political enemies. Queen Victoria had good opportunities of knowing whether the reports were true, and if she believed them she would scarcely have invited Queen Isabella to visit her at Windsor."

Says the Catholic Citizen: "The city of New York has more people of German birth than of Irish birth by fifty thousand, but if we count out the Jews as a separate class, then the standing of races is as follows: Irish-born people first, Jews second, Germans third. There are six hundred Jews in New York, and they are said to own most of the real estate south of Houston street and east of the Bowery. The New York Nation is authority in the statement that ninety per cent. of the real estate transfers in New York today are to persons of the Jewish race."

English newspapers have revived the rumor of the conversion of John Morley. The London correspondent of the "Manchester Daily Dispatch" writes: "There reaches me a rumor which I give with due reserve, though its source entitles it to be received with every attention. It is to the effect that Mr. John Morley, the sympathetic writer on Voltaire's philosophy, has recently been received into the Church of Rome. It is certainly a fact that Mr. Morley for some time past has been attending Mass at the Catholic chapel in Farm street, Berkeley Square, though whether with purposes of devotion or observation and criticism is a question which can only be settled by an authoritative confirmation or denial of the rumor in question. But in view of the fact that similar statements have previously been made regarding Mr. Morley's faith, sometimes producing denials, sometimes not, I must repeat that I give the report with every reserve, although it comes from a source of undoubted credibility and authority."

M. Combes has had to put up with another of those annoying judicial decisions which show him from time to time that the Bench is not quite as obedient to his voice as the Chamber of Deputies. M. Combes had ordered the prosecution of three school teachers who were guilty of the offense of having been members of a dissolved congregation. They had ceased to be members and been duly secularized, as appeared from their "letters of secularization." Moreover, they were not living together. They used to meet only at the school, and used to shake hands and stand together in conversation from time to time. This was sufficient evidence for M. Combes to order the prosecution of the teachers in question for illegal keeping of a religious school. Unfortunately, the Central Court in Paris failed to see the offense as clearly as M. Combes. They would not decide that a school is a congregation school because some of the professors have been members of a congregation; and are so no longer, and they positively went so far as to declare that the presence of three secularized monks shaking hands and having a few moments' conversation in the courtyard of a school, even if the dire event did happen once and even twice a day, did not make a congregation. M. Combes cannot yet understand the stupidity of those Paris judges who have thus upset a convenient little jurisprudence which he had been laboriously working up with the help of some devoted provincial magistrates.

Items of Interest.

The latest Irish exchanges state that Very Rev. Cannon O'Hanlon, P. P., is recovering from an attack of illness which caused much anxiety to his numerous friends. The pastor of Sandy Mount has reached the patriarchal age of 84.

Noting in fact that the Holy Father has taken time by the forelock and named the secretary of the next conclave, "Les Annales Catholiques" says: "The new secretary is Mgr. Ga-parri, of the Congregation of Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs, and former professor of canon law in the Catholic institute of Paris. An interesting detail in connection with this subject is the fact that it was Mgr. Ga-parri, in virtue of his official functions as secretary of the said congregation, that Leo XIII. committed the drawing up of his reply to the pretensions of the French Government in the question of the nomination of Bishops. This reply, of which M. Combes dared not cite a single word in the Assembly, was so serious and unanswerable an argument that it left no room for any other rejoinder than a brutal ultimatum."

The Catholic Church the foster-mother of arts, gave to the world a musical composer of remarkable parts in the person of Anton Dvorak, who died of an apoplectic seizure at Prague the other day, aged sixty-two. Like so many who have risen to fame, Dvorak was a self-made man, the son of a Bohemian innkeeper. The merit of his "Stabat Mater" was acknowledged by the whole world. His mastery over the modern orchestra and his power of emotional expression enabled him to reach a high mark in his art, and wherever he went he excited admiration in an unusual degree. But though popular everywhere, naturally enough the heartiest admiration was felt for him by his own countrymen, and his death they mourn as a national loss.

English newspapers have revived the rumor of the conversion of John Morley. The London correspondent of the "Manchester Daily Dispatch" writes: "There reaches me a rumor which I give with due reserve, though its source entitles it to be received with every attention. Religious Maxims.

SUNDAY.

O Holy Ghost, Uncreated Love of the Everblessed Trinity, Thou art living Water and living Fire. Drench my heart in the streams of Thy grace, and make it clear before Thee. Drench my heart in the fire of Thy love, and burn up all the dross in it, that it may be bright in Thy eyes.

After ten long days of waiting, Came the Spirit from above; For He would not leave them orphaned, And He brought them gifts of love.

Points of truth and light and healing, With His gifts that Spirit came; Then the tongues of cloven brightness Swiftly set their hearts on flame.

MONDAY.

Give me grace, O loving Spirit, to follow always where Thou leadest, and to turn back always when Thou forbiddest. This thing I have asked of Thee, O uncreated Love; and this is the longing of my soul.

Then the sevenfold grace descended, With it all their souls were filled: And they gave their Master's message, Speaking as the Spirit willed.

Forth they went in light and gladness, Never ceasing, never dim, Leaving every love for Jesus, Giving every love to Him.

TUESDAY.

O Holy Ghost, uncreated Love, Thou art God. Seraphim and Thrones veil their eyes in the brightness of Thy light. Yet will I speak to Thee, my Lord, though I be but a dust and ashes. To Thee, O Spirit of life, I lift up my hands, as the deep of my sorrow cries out to the deep of Thy love.

Reigneth over all the Spirit Of the Father and the Son; Yet in lowly hearts He dwelleth, Till the work of God be done. Balm of the true Physician, Always, Holy Ghost, Thou art, Healing every pain and sorrow, Giving joy to every heart.

WEDNESDAY.

Great is Thy strength, O Holy Ghost! Make firm, O God, the things that Thou hast wrought in me.

Now the shades of evening deepen, Now the night comes on apace, Holy Spirit, give Thy servants Thoughts of fire and gifts of grace. Thou dost shine on those who love Thee, Through the darkness of the night; Holy Spirit, be our Helper, Be our everlasting Light.

THURSDAY.

O Holy Ghost, loved and loving, let me not lose hope through weariness in the day of distress. I can do nothing for myself; but in Thee and with Thee I can overcome and be faithful, and walk even here with Jesus in white.

May the Spirit, dwelling in us, As the noontide bright and clear, Fill the souls of all his servants Full of love and holy fear.

So, when Jesus comes to judgment, And before His throne we stand, Words of gracious love will bring us Safely to the Promised Land.

FRIDAY.

O Spirit of Truth, keep my faith bright and strong. Let it never be dimmed—never be shaken. Guide me, for Thou art the Spirit of grace; and bring me to my inheritance, for Thou art the Spirit of truth.

From Father and from Son proceedest Thou; Of Father and of Son the Love art Thou; Their kiss of everlasting peace art Thou; The Band unbroken of their rest art thou; One God with Father and with Son art Thou.

SUNDAY.

By Thy holy appearance, at Pentecost, in cloven tongues of fire, on Mary the Mother of God, and on the Apostles of the Lamb,—by the sweetness of Thy name,—by the fire of Thy love,—save us, O Spirit of the Living God!

On Saturday, May 1, Dr. Gaffney, Bishop of Meath, dedicated to divine service a handsome church erected in Oldcastle to the memory of the saintly Oliver Plunkett, the story of whose betrayal and barbarous execution forms one of the saddest of the many sad pages in the history of Ireland. The sacred edifice, which was commenced by the late Father Grehan, P. P., and completed by the present pastor, Father Berry, P. P., is a credit to both, and one of the people of Meath, in the vicinity of Oldcastle, is SEVERAL freight and coal piers of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company at Jersey City N. J. were destroyed by fire on Sunday.

COLONEL Matthew Stanley Quay Senator from Pennsylvania died peacefully Monday at his home Beaver, Pennsylvania after a prolonged illness which the doctors diagnosed as chronic gastritis.

THERE was a fair attendance at the market yesterday and prices of staples were about as follows: Potatoes 30 cts; oats 30 cts; pressed hay $13, loose 70 cts; cow, eggs 13 to 14 cts; butter 2 to 24 cts.

EXTENSIVE preparations are being made for a monster multitude at the Hope River tea party which is to be held at Hunter River Station on July 4th. No palisade is to be spared to make it a treat for all who may attend.

TOMORROW is the Feast of the Assumption, one of the suppressed holidays. First Communion will be administered to the children of the Cathedral parish who have been preparing for some time, and the Sacrament of Confirmation will be administered by his Lordship the Bishop in the afternoon.

REV. A. P. McLELLAN, St. Andrew's, is pushing forward great improvements to his Church in anticipation of the centenary celebration to be held on July 13th next. These improvements include the laying of hardwood floors and new up-to-date pews, as well as a new main altar with marble top, a gift from the priests who are natives of the parish.

At Burlington, eight miles from Berwick N. B. on Wednesday evening last, the house and barn of a Mrs. Robertson were destroyed by fire and Mrs. Robertson was burned to death. Suspicion attached to Robertson, the husband, and he was arrested. It is expected the evidence at the preliminary investigation will be sufficient to send him up for trial for murder.

AN Ottawa despatch of Monday's date says: The cabinet had under consideration on Saturday the supplementary Estimates. The balance of the work of the session is ready for enactment, and after the present week government business will have proceeded on every sitting day except Monday. The length of the session will depend upon the opposition.

THE village of Fairville N. B. was threatened with destruction by fire last Friday evening and escaped with but the loss of five dwellings and four barns. The people were almost panic struck when the fire grew to a large extent and the destruction of fourteen years ago when the place was almost wiped out weighed on them. Many began packing their household effects to move out. Some who did remove the things from their houses courted loss by their fear in the early minutes of fire but seven special constables were sworn in and the looting ended.

REV. J. J. McDONALD, Kirkcubright, lately purchased a very desirable property with a handsome residence for a parochial house for the mission of Seven Mile Bay. The house is surrounded by a beautiful orchard, and commands a view of Carleton Place, St. George's Head, Cape Tormentine and Basil. The house has just been painted, fitted up and furnished and constitutes a charming complement to the beautiful little church. The church and parochial residence are located in an ideal spot and both priest and people are to be congratulated on the success that has crowned their efforts.

A NORWEGIAN seaman, 38 years of age, named Carl Sylvestre, second mate of the schooner Severn, Captain Pickles, died very suddenly on board the vessel shortly after noon on Friday. The schooner had arrived that morning from New York, with a cargo of hard coal, for A. Pickard & Co., and was lying at the head of Peaker's No. 1 Wharf at the time of the occurrence. Deceased had shipped in New York on the 13, and appeared to be in the best of health right up to the time of his death. He ate a hearty dinner on Friday, as usual. After dinner he went to work on deck with the rest of the crew, in springing the vessel to the wharf. He hauled on a tackle with the others, all working forward. This mate noticed him let go the rope and walk aft. He did not consider this unusual; but about five minutes afterwards the mate turned round and saw the man lying on his back on the deck. He went to him and found him just alive and groaning, and in ten minutes he was dead. Dr. Conroy and Dr. Johnson, Coronor were called. The former made an examination, and the latter having obtained all the facts in connection with the sad affair deemed an inquest was unnecessary. The remains were buried in the Peoples' Cemetery on Saturday.

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

THE Finance Minister has announced that the financial statement will be made on Tuesday, June 7th. Mr. Hackett has given notice of a question which he will put to the government asking if it is not intended to erect a statue on Parliament Square to the memory of T. D'Arcy McGee.

EDWARD Blake, speaking at Longford, Ireland, said that the choice had been before him of giving up either the representation of his constituency or his professional work. He had decided to give up the latter, retaining their representative as long as they wish him to do so.

A DISASTROUS fire occurred at Lickletter Road, about two miles from Simmerside Monday afternoon. Mr. Adrian McClare's residence was completely destroyed with all its contents and $50 in cash. The fire started from a spark from the flue. There was a very high southwesterly gale blowing and the burning chimney set fire to the roof of Mr. Eriehard about 40 yards distant. The barns were burned and the house was with difficulty saved. The loss is heavy, both parties being new comers in the settlement. Mr. McClare had $300 insurance on the house.

A SAD drowning accident occurred on Richmond Bay on Monday evening, when Harry Best, of Lot 16, lost his life. He and his brother Arthur were returning from overhauling their lobster traps, a heavy southwest gale blowing at the time. Their boat sprung a leak, swamped and sank. The two boys clung to the top of the mast, Arthur holding his brother up. He became completely exhausted and had to let his brother go. He then sank. The boys were seen from the shore clinging to the mast, and a boat hurried to the rescue. It was just in time to save Arthur, who had become unconscious and was sinking. He was taken ashore and resuscitated after considerable trouble.

YESTERDAY morning Dr. Conroy who it will be remembered met with a serious accident last winter and has since been confined in the hospital, but is now convalescent, was waited upon by a number of friends and presented with a beautiful and valuable horse purchased from Mr. F. W. Robins, together with the following short address: DEAR DR. CONROY: We the undersigned, wish to present you with this horse Medicus as a token of our esteem and friendship, and of our joy at seeing you out again.

HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP McDONALD, REV. DR. MORRISON, S. R. JENKINS, M. D., B. C. PROWSE, CHARLES LYONS, D. O'M RIDDIN. This gift was supplemented by the present of a beautiful set of harness from Rev. Dr. Gauthier.

DURING the thunder storm of Friday morning, a home in the East End of Charlotte town was struck. The top was knocked off the flue which was also burst down to second floor. The covers on the stove rattled prettily. The house was occupied by Henry Gurney, farmer at the Asylum. His wife was in bed at the time and her mother, Mrs. McSwain was in the kitchen. Both received a shock, but were not hurt. A dog lying at the end of the house was instantly killed. A house belonging to John Morris Donaldson, was also struck and greatly damaged. The lightning also struck the flue in this instance knocking it over, and went right through the house. The plaster was knocked down, windows were broken, the floor torn up and the potatoes in the cellar were scattered in all directions. Mr. Morris and his servant man live in the house alone and at the time were out milking, and thus escaped possible death. This was about six o'clock in the morning. At Missouche the telegraph instruments in the station were burnt out and the telephone connection west of Summerside destroyed.

Correspondence.

DEAR SIR,—As my name has been mentioned lately in and out of the Press regarding some trouble at Peaker's Station, I would ask the favor of being allowed to say a word on the matter. In the first place, we know that contending parties speak, and unfortunately often speak very differently. It is wise then for a respectable journal of long standing to publish the evidence of one side, without one word of rebuttal from the other? This trouble arose last March at a debate in Ruskin School, where Daniel Grant, his brother, and certain McDonalds—having previously conspired, which will be proved—made an attempt to beat me. In this they failed, for which their chagrin knew no bounds. Daniel then claimed to have been my friend, but that would not work. He then determined to finish me somehow. He met me on Palm Sunday night in a place he knew I was to be—his brother being close by—called me back after I had passed. After some talk I turned my face from him when he struck me with a weapon, knocking me senseless. He admits he continued to strike though I lay as if dead. As the "guilty conscience needs no accuser," he then had recourse to threats of using his revolver, which he has been carrying for years. My father endeavored to have him arrested in Charlottetown that day, but the magistrate was out of town. He sent word to James Mooney and me to come to Peaker's for that purpose. That snob was not carried out I alone am to blame. When I saw him, it being the first time since the waylaying, all reason left me. He claims and justly too, that in the scuffle on the platform, he and his friends had the best of it. And all who were present know that when it was decided that he and I should finish it he had little appearance about him of an injured man; that during the seven or eight rounds nothing could be fairer. And when he drew his revolver and said he would fight no more, being excited, I made for him, but was put back by a friend, who said, not one more blow, "he's beat and that settles it." All the punishment he received he got while in single combat with me. The correspondent failed to mention that Grant was fined at Georgetown for carrying a revolver. It is also untrue that anyone was bound over to keep the peace. I take this opportunity to most sincerely apologize to the respectable passengers, the train hands, the bystanders, and the general public, for allowing my feelings to master me, and being the cause of so alarming a scene. I also wish to express my deep respect for Mr. Blanchard's impartiality and gentlemanly conduct of the case.

Yours, SEABASTIAN J. MOONEY, May 18, 1904.

Our Lady's Rosary.

It is a ladder leading to the skies,
Its every round, a golden mystery,
'Tis brilliant with the dews of Paradise
'Tis twined with roses of eternity.

Climbing its shining steps, we live, in prayer,
The life of Mary and her Blessed Son;
Their joys and sorrows piously we share,
And look upon their glories, one by one.

We ring the chimes of Pater Noster sweet—
The silver Aves of glad Gabriel;
And, at each decade, joyously repeat
The Gloria the angels love so well;

And thus we scale the ladder of our Queen,
Thus rise with her to heaven, where she reigns,
And hail her crowned, resplendently serene,
Fair Sovereign of her Son's divine domains!

O pure liege Lady! our true Mother be!
In thy fond Heart, our joys and sorrow meet;
Then, by the ladder of thy Rosary,
Conduct us safely to God's glorious feet!

A Young Poet of Canada.

(Montreal True Witness.)

Canada claims the honor of having given to the world many distinguished poets of international fame, but among these one rarely finds one whose voice proclaims to the world that the writer is a Catholic. Why the author, who is happy in the possession of true faith, fails to reveal it is a mystery; but the lamentable fact remains that religion is not a prominent feature in the works of our writers. Hence it is that we, as Catholics and Canadians, are particularly interested in the advent of a new voice in the field of song.

Imbued with this interest in the latest Canadian arrival in the kingdom of literature, I recently pressed the electric button at the entrance of St. Joseph's Hospital. In response to my ring the great door was opened by a gentle, low-voiced nun, who, in answer to my inquiry, replied that Dr. Fischer was engaged in the operating room, but would presently be at liberty. Accordingly I was ushered into the Doctor's apartments, where in the interval I had ample opportunity to observe the well furnished study. As my eyes wandered about the room I perceived in the book case well worn copies of standard authors, surrounding long, orderly rows of ponderous volumes on medicine. There was Shakespeare, shining forth in all his glory, Browning, Longfellow, Tennyson, Whitman, Bliss Carman and others both ancient and modern. On the walls were well-framed copies of rare pictures—notably among them those of religious character—Christ and His Blessed Mother. A few good landscapes in water-color added a touch of nature. On the mantel and about the secretary were many rare prints and photographs. Among the latter were some autographed by noted American prelates—one of His Excellency, Diomedé Falconio, bears the words "May God bless you." There is also one of Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Quigley, and one of Lord Minto, Governor-General of Canada.

I noticed also that everything in the room—books, papers, magazines—was arranged in perfect order, which characteristic savored of the physician rather than the poet. There was nowhere to be seen that litter which we associate with the litterateur.

Before very long my attention was diverted from this critical survey of the room, by the sound of a firm, even step in the corridor without. In another moment a light tap on the door announced Dr. Fischer. He entered, wearing the regulation coat of white duck with its ivory buttons, and again the physician was uppermost in mind. He possesses a very striking physique—a tall, broad, shouldered, comfortable-looking man with a bright, intelligent face surmounted by an abundance of wavy, brown hair, and a manner which sets one at one's ease in an instant. He is one of those delightful persons who can be busy without being hurried. Having just finished a hard day's work he had a certain air of weariness which, however, did not betray itself in his conversation.

He seated himself near the secretary and after some preliminary conversation concerning his work and his first book, recently published by Richard Badger, of Boston, I asked rather abruptly, perhaps:—
"When did you write your first poem?"

There was a merry twinkle in his eye as he shifted in his chair and after a moment's reflection replied:—
"When I was a little chap in knee-breeches and knew very little of life and still less of the mechanics of verse. I was one of the new arrivals at St. Jerome's, and it all came about in this way. I was tired of studying. I thought the two hours allotted to studying would never cease. I had been making desperate attempts to learn some Greek grammar without avail, so, at last, disgusted with my self and everything, I closed the book with a bang. Unconsciously, almost, I picked up the pen and in rather a sombre state of mind wrote a few lines on the scabbler before me. Then came a second, a third, a fourth—one verse was complete. I was delighted. For the next hour I worked like a Trojan, and then five verses stood to my credit. I had written my first poem—and it was exquisite. I assure you. I carried the manuscript about in my pocket until I wore it out, as well as all my friends. But to the trifling beginning of that well-remembered evening I date all my success. During the years that followed I wrote poetry by the yard—for the waste-paper basket I gained thereby the good will and interest of kindly master minds, good priest professors who not only often tore my verses to shreds in the class room, but also gave me a helping hand and encouraged me to work faithfully on. It did hurt sometimes to be ground to dust, but there was usually a promise for me in the criticism. All this helped me greatly. My verse is by no means perfect, but let me hope it will improve with the years."

Although frankly pleased with his success and the kindly reception accorded him by the critics, and deeply grateful to those who have encouraged and helped him, he remains perfectly simple and unaffected. He takes the bitter with the sweet, in the form of adverse criticism, and, in that commendable spirit of optimism which pervades his pages, makes the disagreeable serve for good along with the pleasant.

Dr. Fischer was born at Waterloo, a thriving Canadian town, on February 1, 1870. He is therefore the youngest of our Canadian poets. In his childhood, he showed a great love for books and music. He was particularly fond of Diogenes, whose stories he read assiduously.

He attended the public institutions of learning in his native town, and having completed the intermediate course entered St. Jerome's College, one of the best Catholic Colleges in the Dominion. At this early age he gained a local reputation as poet, musician and actor. Many of his poems, suggested by events of the day appeared in the columns of local papers and the college organ. His soul seemed to find wings in music as well as in verse, for he frequently gave vent to his feelings at the pianoforte as well, although none of his musical rhapsodies were ever committed to paper.

In 1897 he graduated from St. Jerome's and was appointed Professor of Music there for the following year. In 1898 he matriculated and began the study of medicine at the Western University, London, Ont. After a course of four years he received his medical diploma and was appointed head house-surgeon at St. Joseph's Hospital. This is one of the finest and best equipped hospitals on the continent, and Dr. Fischer's arduous duties leave him but little time for his literary work. He has a very high ideal of the physician's vocation, and his profession holds first place in his affections. His literary work, therefore, provides for him a delightful recreation. The way in which he pursues his literary tendency reminds one of Carlyle's advice to the young writer:—"If nature prompts, and friends persuade; Then write, but no pursue it as a trade."

Music he has almost entirely given up, for lack of time to devote to it, but during his college years it was better known than his poems. As a physician, Fischer is very popular for his character is such as stamps the true physician wherever he is found.

Readers of the Rosary are not unfamiliar with his work, and it has frequently appeared within these columns. He has been writing for the magazines only some four years and already his poems are received both far and near, appearing in "Dunshee's," "Man and Woman," "The Catholic World," "Carmelite Review," "The Chicago New World," "Buffalo Union and Times," and a number of secular magazines in the United States and Canada. The critic, one and all, have been more favorable to the young poet than one would have dared to hope. It is true his work is not perfect. There are times when the thought is not always sequenced, the lines not structurally perfect, but these are blunders of workmanship which will yield to discipline and study. The words are, after all, merely the dress in which the author clothes the children of his fancy; and who is not weary of the machine-made, soulless rhyme of the present day?

In these days of sordid and sensualism we need men of faith who are also men of imagination and fancy and poetic inspiration. The Catholic poet, if he would have a moulding, formative influence on his hearers, must bow before his God in the temple of his own invincible faith. This Dr. Fischer has done. In all his lines there is firm faith, trust in God's mercy, a devotion and reverence for all that is holy and beautiful.

In "Songs by the Wayside," we find songs relating to everything that goes to make up life's melody. Nothing is written from hearsay, but with true poetic instinct the author sees the beautiful in the simple things of nature and humanity and writes of them as they appealed to him. And therefore is nowhere to be found a word or line expressive of a morbid longing for the unattainable. The world—God's handiwork—is full of joy and beauty for those who can perceive it, and Dr. Fischer enables us to find therein, charms new and satisfying. There are nature-songs and heart-songs, songs of sorrow and songs of gladness, and always, through it all, that optimistic, hopeful, wholesome view of life which it is a joy to possess.

The work is characterized throughout by originality and individuality. The writer has not gone down into the depths of life, but he has not failed to set things in the true spirit, and writes always in close sympathy with nature.

I had recently the great pleasure of hearing Dr. Drummond, the celebrated "Habitan" poet of Lower Canada, give readings from his own poems. As I listened to the gifted man—whose voice held that immense audience spell-bound as he portrayed to them so truly and so beautifully the simple content of the French-Canadian peasant, happy amidst the joys and sorrows of his uneventful life—my thoughts wandered to "Songs by the Wayside." It seemed to me that there is a similarity in the strain in which these two—Dr. Drummond and Dr. Fischer, the one more experienced, more mature than the other—write of the seemingly simple, yet really the great and important things of life. For after all, it is not what we have, or what we do, but what we are, that is important. At the close of the lecture I was pleased to see Dr. Fischer presented by a prominent citizen and receive from the lecturer a hearty greeting. It seems fitting that the great in any field of labor should assist and encourage novices therein, whose merits is apparent and whose work is likely to prove a benefit to mankind.

SACRED MUSIC.

Another "Motu Proprio" Issued by the Holy Father.

A Vatican Edition of Plain Chant.

Pontiff Lays Down Rules for its Publication—Printers of Every Nation May Obtain Permission to Reproduce it as a Whole or in Part.

The Holy Father has issued the following "Motu Proprio":—
By our "Motu Proprio" of the 22d November, 1903, and by the subsequent decree, published at our order by the Congregation of Sacred Rites on the 8th January, 1904, we restored to the Roman Church its ancient Gregorian Chant, that chant which it has inherited from the fathers, which it has jealously guarded in its liturgical codices, and which the most recent studies have very happily brought back to its primitive purity. But in order to complete, as is fitting, the work that has been begun, and to furnish to our Roman Church and to all the churches of the same rite the common text of the liturgical Gregorian melodies, we have decreed to undertake with the type of our Vatican printing office the publication of the liturgical books containing the Chant of the Holy Roman Church restored by us.

And in order that everything may proceed with full knowledge on the part of all those who are, or will be, called by us to offer the tribute of their zeal to a work of so much importance, and in order also that the work may go on with due diligence and speed, we lay down the following rules:

(a) The melodies of the Church called Gregorian will be re-established in their entirety and purity on the faith of the most ancient codices, in such a way, however, that particular account will also be taken of legitimate tradition contained in manuscripts in the course of centuries, and of the practical use of the modern liturgy.

(b) Owing to our special predilection for the Order of St. Benedict, recognizing the work done by the Benedictine monks in the restoration of the genuine melodies of the Roman Church, especially by those of the French Congregation and of the Monastery of Solesmes, we desire that in this edition the editing of the parts which contain the chant should be entrusted in particular to the monks of the French Congregation and to the monastery of Solesmes.

(c) The works thus prepared will be subjected to the examination and revision of the special Roman Commission recently established by us for this purpose. It lies under the sworn obligation of secrecy undertaken with regard to everything concerning the compilation of the texts and the process of the press: which obligation will also be extended to other persons outside the commission who may be called on to help in the work. They must, moreover, carry on their examination with great diligence, permitting nothing to be published for which a suitable and sufficient reason cannot be given, and in doubtful cases consulting, besides the commission and the editors, other persons who shall be deemed skilful in this science and capable of giving an authoritative judgment. If in the revision of the melodies difficulties should occur by reason of the liturgical text, the commission must consult the Historico-Liturgical Commission already established by us in connection with the Congregation of Sacred Rites, so that both may proceed harmoniously in those parts of the books which form a common object of the labors of the two.

(3) The approbation to be given by us and our Congregation of Sacred Rites to chant books thus composed and published will be of such a nature that it will no longer be lawful for any one to approve of liturgical books, if these, even in the parts which conform with the chant, are not entirely in conformity with the edition published by the Vatican printing office under our auspices, or, at least, are not, in the judgment of the commission, so conformable that the changes introduced can be shown to proceed from the authority of other good Gregorian manuscripts.

(e) The literary proprietorship of the Vatican edition is reserved to the Holy See. To publishers and printers of every nation who shall make the request and who upon definite conditions shall offer a sure guarantee of knowing how to carry out the work we shall grant the favor of reproducing it freely, as best may please them, to make extracts from it, and to circulate copies of it wherever they desire.

Thus, with God's help, we confidently hope to be able to restore to the Church the unity of its traditional chant in a manner corresponding to the science, the history, the art and the dignity of liturgical worship, so far as at least as present studies permit, reserving to ourselves and our successors the right of arranging otherwise.

Given at St. Peter's, Rome, on the 25th April, 1904, feast of St. Mark the Evangelist, in the first year of our Pontificate.

POPE PIUS X.

Pay Your Debts.

SOME TIMELY OBSERVATIONS AND A STORY VERY MUCH TO THE POINT.

(From the Catholic Universe.)

Money makes more than "the mare go." It keeps business moving and enables people to settle their own obligations. Money is intended to be a circulating medium, and it ought not to find a resting place until it finally reaches the person to whom it is due.

Little debts are put off and delayed because they are, apparently, of small moment. Frequently that which appears of little account to men of means is of much importance to those who must labor for their daily bread.

The habit of procrastination in paying debts, even small debts, is fraught with much evil. Frequently men in business fail because they are made the victims of delay by a large number of small debtors. The little flakes of snow by accumulation block the freight train and the limited express. What Mr. A. owes may be little, but the little owed by hundreds and thousands of creditors makes a vast sum. The load made by such neglectful, if not poor payers, often becomes so heavy that the business man or firm falls prostrate with it at the doors of the insolvency court.

To whom do you owe a dollar, or half a dollar? Pay it; hand it over or send it without obliging the man or firm who gave you credit to expend 25 per cent, or 50 per cent, of the amount to collect the sum from you. "Money talks" and money moves, or should, and in moving accomplishes wonders. Here is a story or incident which will illustrate the lesson on squaring accounts:

An office boy in London owed one of the clerks 3 half pence.
The clerk owed the cashier a penny.
The cashier owed the boy a penny.
One day the boy, having a half-penny in his pocket, was disposed to diminish his outstanding indebtedness, and paid the clerk, to whom he was indebted 3 half-pence, one half-penny on account.

The clerk, animated by so laudable an example, paid one half penny to the cashier, to whom he was indebted one penny.

The cashier, who owed the boy a penny, paid him a half-penny.

And now the boy, having his half penny again in hand, paid another third of his debt to the clerk.

The clerk with the said really "current" coin squared with the cashier.

The cashier instantly paid the boy in full.

And now the lad, with the half penny again in his hand, paid off the third and last instalment of his debt of 3 half-pence.

Thus were the parties square all round, and all their accounts adjusted.

WOULD HAVE TO STOP HER WORK AND SIT DOWN.

HOW MANY WOMEN HAVE TO DO THIS FROM DAY TO DAY?

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS are a blessing to women in this condition. They cure Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Palpitation of the Heart, Faint and Dizzy Spells, Weakness, Lassitude, and all troubles peculiar to the female sex.

Miss Jessie Taylor, Salisbury, N.B., in recommending them says: "About eight months ago I was very badly run down, was troubled greatly with palpitation of the heart and would get so dizzy I would have to leave my work and sit down. I seemed to be getting worse all the time, until a friend advised me to try MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS. I can truthfully say that they do all you claim for them, and I can recommend them to all run-down women."

Price per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25 (all dealers, or The Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.)

High Grade Seeds For Particular Farmers.

Every farmer is proud of his farm, this is right and the best farmer will become discouraged if he finds noxious weeds getting the upper hand of him.

Now the first thing of importance is sow only the BEST SEEDS procurable, procure such seeds from reliable long experienced seed dealers who know where to get seeds best suited to our soil and climate.

Our Knowledge of the Seed Business.

Has been gained by twenty four years of research, experiment and study. Our claims are, that we know where to get the best Seeds, and that we know good seed when we see it.

We don't know anything about the Dry Goods business, don't want to, but our knowledge of the Seed business is worth a good deal to the farmers of P. E. Island. We don't sell cheap seed but sell as cheaply as good reliable seeds can be sold for.

Our present stock of Clovers, Timothy Seed, Wheat, Peas, Vetches, Fodder Corn, Barley etc., etc., is the best we have ever handled.
