

THE TOWN OF GALT.

A Sketch of the Manchester of Canada.

Something About Its Early History and Present Prosperity.

Written for THE HURON SIGNAL.

Like all great manufacturing centres, Galt seems to busy with her local industries to spare time to improve her naturally beautiful situation.

THE SCENERY

partakes of the grand and sublime, and viewed from either the Credit Valley R. R. bridge, or from either of the hills, the scene opens like a panorama to the eye of the spectator, and stretches away until the eye meets the green foliage of the forest hills above, and the blue sky above, while below in the valley the river, like a shining serpent, winds its way until lost to view in the bend of the valley.

THE EARLY HISTORY.

Galt is merely a repetition of the early days of most of our Canadian towns, and the trials and hardships endured by the first settlers form the theme for the stories the old like to tell and the young to hear.

TWENTY MILL

of Ellis & Godfrey. They make a specialty of Canadian tweeds, and sell entirely to the wholesale trade.

who manufactures fingering and fine stitching yarns. The manager, Mr. John Wardlaw, is an old Glasgow man, and has been "spinning yarns" all his life.

GALT FELT SHOE CO.

but did not go any further than the door. This is about the thirtieth business one could well engage in. The felt is manufactured from the pickings and refuse of wool, and the process of refining and extracting the oil is such a dirty job that one has no desire to enter into the details.

PUMP WORKS

of McDougall & Co. This firm manufactures pumps of all kinds, upon which are constantly making improvements.

GALT EDGE TOOL AND SPRING CO.

The noise of the heavy drop hammer and the ceaseless pounding of the lighter trip hammer strikes the ear. Everything here is ponderous; the cutting, punching and shaping requiring great power.

GALT FOUNDRY, ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOPS.

Messrs. Crwan & Co. proprietors. This firm manufactures all kinds of woodworking machinery, and keep pace with the requirements of the trade in constant improvements.

They sell from one end of the Province to the other, and their business is extending so rapidly, that they are making a large addition to their works, 300 ft. x 150 ft.

SHIRLEY AND DETROIT.

To get any information here, you have to catch it on the fly. Everything is air and bustle, but we found the obliging manager, Mr. Janney, and from him learned something of the progress made by this firm.

GOLDIE AND M'CULOUGH.

This firm has recently made large additions to their workshops, and now employ three hundred and fifty hands.

CANT BROS. AND CO.

which we next visited, make a specialty of wood-working machinery, and have a branch in a near line for Canada.

THE GALT MACHINE ENDS WORKS.

The next place visited is a new venture in Canada, the manufacture of wood-working machinery, having to import their knives from the States.

THE VICTORIA WHEEL COY

is the title of the firm over which Mr. Robert Scott, the present mayor of Galt, is the presiding genius.

GALT KNITTING CO.

occupying a large stone building, on the river facing on Water street. They employ 150 hands, men and women.

which was the last one visited, carry on the manufacture of pins, in connection with their other lines of wood-working machinery and woolen looms.

DUNLOP.

Mrs. Rosa Fritzel, of Salford, visited here last week.

SAM'S SUCCESSOR.

John Fraser, of Inverness, Scotland, is engaged as foreman of Lonside Farm, for the coming season.

Reasons why you should purchase Fluid Lightning in preference to all other remedies are:

Rapid results—It is easily applied—no trouble—no loss of time—no expense—constant use—no application is essential. One bottle will remove more pain than any other remedy in existence.

15 FOR DYSPEPSIA and Liver Complaint, you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shilo's Vitalizer.

14 SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis. For sale by Jas. Wilson, druggist.

Jeneiro and neighboring ports while we were there. Mr. McGregor is an old Goderich boy, and was a clerk for Griffith, who at one time did business here, but it was before my time.

There are a number of other manufacturers in Galt which in the limited time at my disposal I could not overtake, but I think from the sample I have given you, it has justly earned the title of "The Manchester of Canada." It is now getting—as evidenced by the fine private dwellings erected last season and those then in process of construction. The estimated value of buildings erected last year is put down at $350,000, and this year they expect to exceed those figures.

THE CEMETERY.

While not having so naturally beautiful a situation as we have, they have made up for the deficiency, by the care bestowed on it. I think nowhere in Canada can it be exceeded for the beauty of its surroundings, which are draped in every conceivable shape, until you wonder whether they are really living or simply temporary ornaments stuck in the ground.

FIRE AND WATER.

Owing to the substrata being solid bed rock, which peeps through the soil frequently in the streets, it is impossible to have either gas or a sewer system, the most of blasting drains would be enormous. They cannot have water works either. They are now building electric light works, and expect soon to have the town, as well as the principal stores, factories and hotels lighted by the electricity. Galt possesses two good hotels.

THE QUEEN'S HOTEL.

which is the oldest, is kept by Mr. C. Lowell, and being situated convenient to the R. R. station, has a large commercial and tourist trade. Mr. Lowell is a gentleman who thoroughly understands the business and pays particular attention to the comfort of his guests.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

The Government are just finishing a handsome post office and customs building at a cost of $25,000. It is fitted with all the modern appliances, and is heated throughout with steam. It will be finished this month, and will be one of the finest buildings in the town.

Ladies troubled with Pimples, Blisters, Rough Hands or Face, or sores of any description, should use McGregor & Parke's Sanitary Cream. It will keep the skin in perfect health, smooth, clean and good color. Be sure and get the genuine, made by McGregor & Parke, Price 25c. Sold at Geo. Rhynas' Drug Store. (3)

Grocer to clerk—Cover up those raspberries to keep the flies off. Clerk—Shall I cover up the currants, too? Grocer—Of course not. Flies and currants are so much alike that the difference is not discovered until it is too late.

"What is McGregor's Speedy Cure for?"

It is for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Biliousness, and it is the finest blood purifier in the known world today.

"Does it give satisfaction?"

Where does it point to one instance where it did not.

"Where does it have the largest sale?"

Right in the city of Hamilton, where it is manufactured, there has been over one thousand dollars' worth sold in the last year retail, and the great majority of the sales are for one recommending it to another. For sale at 50c. and $1 per bottle by G. Rhynas, druggist. (3)

How a Dude Caught Cold.

A slim young man in the height of fashion was violently sneezing in a street last year retail, and the great majority of the sales are for one recommending it to another. For sale at 50c. and $1 per bottle by G. Rhynas, druggist. (3)

Miss Rosa Fritzel, of Salford, visited here last week.

Among the gallant redcoats in camp at London were a number of Dunlop lads. The country is safe.

SAM'S SUCCESSOR.—John Fraser, of Inverness, Scotland, is engaged as foreman of Lonside Farm, for the coming season.

The big picnic at Kingsbridge drew quite a number of people to see the doings. Our Architect did not meet a foe for tossing the iron circle.

THE NEW CARDINAL.

The Vicar-General Exposes a Nice Little Tory Game.

An Authoritative Statement From the Ecclesiastical Authorities, Showing that Sir John and the Secretary of State Had Nothing to Do With the Appointment of Cardinal Taschereau.

From the Montreal Herald.

In his address at the Laval University on Tuesday last, the Hon. J. A. Chapleau, Secretary of State, referred at some length to the action of the Premier and himself concerning the appointment of the new Cardinal, in such a manner as to lead some to believe that Canada was indebted to the Dominion Government for this great honor bestowed upon the Catholic Church.

His statements aroused so much curiosity and were considered so strange that a Herald reporter went to the Archbishop's Palace last evening to find out the whole truth of the matter.

He was received by the Very Rev. Father Marcechal, Vicar-General of the archdiocese, and after explaining the object of his mission, received the following statements:

"You can state positively that neither Sir John nor Mr. Chapleau nor any of the other Dominion Ministers had anything whatever to do with the elevation of Archbishop Taschereau to the Cardinalate."

"But Mr. Chapleau led many to believe differently in his address."

"Oh, well, you know, that these politicians are ever ready to make capital out of anything and everything."

"How was the nomination made?"

"The question of naming a Canadian Cardinal is not a new one by any means. The matter has been talked of for the last seven or eight years. At Rome it was felt that Canada had a strong claim to this great honor. Quebec, as you know, is the oldest See on the continent, and we all believed that when the honor was bestowed it would go to the Ancient Capital, which is the seat of the Catholic Church on the continent."

"What are the difficulties which are spoken of?"

"Well, Canada is a colony, and before the appointment of Cardinal Moran, of Australia, no Cardinals had been chosen in the colonies. When that appointment was made, twenty years ago, the greatest obstacle was raised. During the last year or two we all know that the Holy Father was anxious to confer this favor on Canada, and in October last we were notified that the time had come. But, as you are aware, the Holy Father never appoints a Cardinal before having first obtained the assent of the country in which the prelate resides that such an appointment would be well received. A Cardinal, although an ecclesiastic and a councillor of His Holiness, is also a political personage. Therefore, before such an appointment could be made it was necessary that the British and Canadian Governments should inform the Holy See that they would look upon such an appointment with pleasure."

"Then the appointment was decided upon before Sir John or Mr. Chapleau were aware of it?"

"Certainly; the whole thing was decided. The Holy Father was anxious to give this proof of his love for his Catholic subjects of Canada, but the official communications could not be made for the reasons stated above. Canada it had been it would have placed the new Cardinal in a false position."

"Well, how was the difficulty bridged?"

"Mr. Chapleau in his capacity of Secretary of State, was informed in October last that the Holy Father was anxious to appoint a Canadian Cardinal, and he was asked to convey the intelligence to the British Secretary of Foreign Affairs, who in turn would transmit it to Sir John, who is a good tactician, was going to England then, and he undertook the mission of notifying the British Secretary. This he did, and the customary despatch was sent from the Foreign Office, and the appointment, which was all but completed, was made public."

"Then Sir John did not communicate with Rome?"

"Not at all, and if he had, it would not have influenced a decision which was already arrived at. He merely facilitated matters in so far as the British Government was concerned in the manner in which I have indicated."

"How was the appointment of Mgr. Fabre obtained?"

"Oh, well, that was a necessary consequence of the other. It was felt that Montreal through its importance was deserving of the honor which was bestowed upon it. The Church of Montreal, as a faithful daughter of the Church of Quebec, saw with great pleasure the honors which were bestowed upon its mother."

"Reader," in informing you of this wonderful remedy for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, and all affections of the throat and lungs, we feel that we are doing you a great kindness, as if you have any of the above complaints, if you will only try it we will guarantee satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Kintail.

It is our painful duty to record the death of Mrs. A. Campbell, who died on Monday, June 21st, at the age of 60 years. The whole community mourn her loss, but though we shall no more behold her familiar form, or hear her friendly greeting, here, we rejoice that our loss is her gain. A large number of sympathizing friends attended the funeral of the departed.

Belshazzar's Warning.

"Tried in the balance and found wanting," is the general verdict rendered against most of the so-called cures for lung troubles. Such a decision has never been given again. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." On the contrary, it is conceded by thousands who have tried it, to be the only remedy for consumption (scrofula of the lungs) and scrofulous diseases generally. It will not cure when both lungs are most gone, but if taken when the disease is in the first stages it never fails. It is also specific for such scrofulous affections as fever sores, white swellings, hip-joint disease, and great swelling sores, and for blood taints generally, from whatever cause arising. VANCOUVER'S FIRE.

Letter from Rev. T. Thomson, a former Marquette, one of the sufferers.

The following letter, written to a prominent person in Clinton, by a former pastor of Brucefield Presbyterian church, will be of special interest, and should meet with a ready response. Vancouver, B.C., June 18th, 1882.

Dear Sir,—I write you now in the midst of a terrible calamity which has befallen our city last Sabbath.

About half past 6 p. m. one building caught fire—supposed to be from sparks from logs burning on C. P. R. land. A heavy wind was blowing at the time, and inside of two hours the whole city was a mass of flame, with the exception of 10 buildings—this is all that is left of the city of Vancouver. The remains of 7 bodies have been taken out, but it is estimated that nearly 100 must have perished; the heat was so intense that there must have been complete cremation of many bodies; 2 belonging to my congregation perished. Mrs. T. and I went to Sabbath school at 3, but there was so much smoke in the church we dismissed the scholars, not dreading any danger of fire for we are getting used to a great deal of smoke here. Inside of half an hour the church was a mass of flame—and was burned to the ground. We got to our house just in time to save a few things—I saved my horse, a very little furniture and some trunks. The following examples will give an idea of the excitement: I reached in through the fire to save two overcoats and a waterproof, and instead brought out two pairs of old torn pants I had cast off. One man went into his house to get his silver, and came out with an axe in his hand and a hatchet in the other. A woman ran for her jewelry, and brought out a lantern in each hand. Another man got hold of a satchel and went to get all he could in it; he grabbed a pair of crinolines, put that in the satchel, and ran. Another ran from the fire with an amusing load, but they serve to show the intensity of the excitement. We have lost very heavily, but our greatest loss is our beautiful church, which our people have lately built—we had only been in it four Sabbaths, and it was rapidly filling up. My people here, who are all unable to rebuild. My only way of getting a place of worship again for some time is to make $2 personal appeal to some of my old friends. Knowing your interest in the cause of Christ and your sympathy for the sufferers, I thought I would write you and ask if you would kindly assist us to rebuild. This is a hard place, morals are in many respects low; there is much Sabbath breaking, and so great need for a place of worship. Our good people have had many tears over the ruins of our Zion. I hope the Lord will put it into the hearts of those who have means to help us liberally. We had a very beautiful organ in our church, which we purchased from Doherty & Co., Clinton—this, too, was burned; we will miss it, for Mrs. T. has had to lead the singing in the church, and for a place of worship, where the Gospel shall be preached for the salvation of souls. Mrs. Thomson has been sick since the fire, suffering from the effects of the smoke and fatigue, but I hope she will soon be better. It is like beginning life again with us, though now we have little to begin with—we lost our clothing. I trust the Lord will spare us to give over, and that by the aid of friends of Jesus, we will soon have a church again.

I am, yours very fraternally, THOMAS G. THOMSON (formerly of Brucefield).

CHAPTER XXI.

The last farewells were spoken, and Beatrice, Lilia, a waiting-maid, and a courier set off upon the expedition which was to bring back life and health to the dimmed eyes and pale cheeks of the girl whose love had been thwarted, with such cruelty, apparently by her brother, Lady Lilia was so glad that Morven was not going to accompany them to Switzerland, although she thought it a little odd of him not to offer to do so. She had not travelled much in her life before. But she reflected, Beatrice was quite an energetic and decided as Morven; even if Morven had gone it would have been Beatrice who really decided everything, and made all the arrangements; and he was so fastidious about hotels and traveling companions that his absence was more of a relief than a trouble to her. Besides, sweet as was her nature, she could not divest herself of the feeling that he had been hard upon Bertie. She had not forgiven him for the separation from her lover; it was impossible that she should do so while the remembrance of Bertie was still strong within her.

It was Beatrice who (at Morven's absence) most deeply. She did not expect him to take of her shoulders the burden of plan-making and arranging for the party: that always fell to her share; but it seemed to her that Morven had for once failed a little in the chivalrous deference to which she was accustomed from him, when he refused, absolutely and entirely, to accompany the party even as far as Paris. This refusal was almost more puzzling to Beatrice than his denial of her plea for Lilia's happiness, which she returned before the left the Towers. Two unspoken agonies of this kind naturally had their effect upon her mind. She asked herself with dread whether Morven was changing, or whether she was now only beginning to realize his true character. There appeared something ignoble in his refusal to let Lilia marry the man she loved, simply because he had not all the fortune and social position to which Lilia, as an Earl's daughter and sister, might be entitled. Beatrice's thoughts turned uncomfortably towards the views which she had heard announced by Anthony Lockhart, the man of the people, the man who, in spite of money's wrong done him by his fellow-creatures, and worked for them with all his strength of body and mind. "I love the people," he had said simply enough, when she asked him whether he called himself a Socialist. For the sake of the general good, he was prepared to surrender his individual rights; his actions were guided by duty and regard for the claims of others. Beatrice felt that if she were a man she would like to act as Anthony Lockhart was now doing. She shivered at the thought of that worldliness of mind which set money and land far above love and purity and truth. She was ashamed of Morven when she considered that he meant to sacrifice his only sister—a fair, loving girl like Lilia—on the altar of the modern Moloch of wealth and fashion. His words and deeds had brought home to her with terrible force the difference of motive which existed between herself and her betrothed. If Morven could do this thing, his heart and soul must surely be eaten to the core by the canker of worldly ambition and petty pride. How then could she love him!—how make him a dutiful wife? Oh that he had a little more of Anthony's democratic sentiment! She would have respected that. For, in spite of her education and surroundings, she instinctively recognized the truth when it was presented to her. She knew she had more sympathy with the working classes, the toilers and sufferers of the world, than with those who wore purple and fine linen and fared sumptuously every day.

As yet the metal of Beatrice's nature rang true; it had not been corroded by the destructive influences of rank and luxury. It was more in harmony with Lockhart's aims than with any that Lord Morven had set before her. But this she did not know.

As she sat in the railway carriage with Lilia she let her fancies drift. She had no idea how dangerous an occupation she was engaged in when she began to frame a picture of her future life with a man who was one with herself in thought and aspiration. She saw herself beside him, working with him and for him—not for themselves, indeed, but for the good of their poorer brethren—bending every incident of their lives to one great and noble aim, the help of needy men. For themselves, no pride of place, no needless luxury, "plain living and high thinking," devotion to Humanity, to the sacred cause of the people and their rights. With this end in view, Beatrice thought that she could bear to be rich. She had always shrunk from the thought of wealth and power, except as instruments for the good of other people; if she might use them in this way, she felt that she could accept the responsibilities of a great position with trembling, but also with sacred joy. But who would help her to carry out this ideal? Not Morven certainly. She suddenly woke up to the consciousness that the fellow-worker of her dreams, the man who would be the helper, the counsellor, the guide of such a life as this, had borne the features, the outward semblance, not of Lord Morven, but of Anthony Lockhart.

She blushed crimson when she found it out. She was thoroughly disgusted with herself. "How can I be so unwomanly?" she said in her thoughts. "How could I let my mind stray in this extraordinary manner? It was a mere fancy, and I will never think of it again! Never, never! Oh, why did Morven not come with us? I never should have thought of such a thing if he had been here." And, as she mentally scoured herself and sat in dust and ashes, she saw as in a magic mirror what her life with Morven would really be. He would take her to London, he had said, and she would be presented, and pass the season in a whirl of gaiety. Morven was tiring of country life, and he had planned their future very fully. They would go abroad in the autumn; they would study art and see the wonders of the Italian galleries; they would have a yacht and spend long sunny days and weeks upon the blue Mediterranean. In winter they would visit some of the great historic country houses, where Morven would be known and welcomed as a friend; and in spring there would be once more the round of balls and concerts and evening parties of no account. The prospect had no charm for Beatrice. She shuddered as she thought of it.

"What mischief is brewing now?" said the doctor to himself, with a frown. He was in his own little study, which formed one of a suite of rooms long appropriated to the doctor's pursuits. He hesitated for a few moments after reading the letter, then took a key from his pocket and opened a door which was never unlocked save by himself—the door into his laboratory. Here he cast a sharp look round to see whether everything could be safely left. There were various jars and bottles which he examined with some care, electrical and chemical apparatus at which he cast a more cursory glance, and a pile of beautifully written manuscripts, in which he was in the habit of recording his observations. Beyond this room there was a smaller apartment—not much bigger than a press or a bed closed—into which he pressed with a look of interest. It contained one thing only—a living thing, alas!—a half-dead spaniel on which the doctor had been making experiments in vivisection. The creature was cruelly mangled, and had had part of its brain removed; but it still lived, and Dr. Airie contemplated it with a look of singular interest. "The vitality of some of these brutes is extraordinary," he said to himself, with a contemptuous smile. "But he was not thinking of the spaniel just then, he was thinking of the patient who lay in the bed at the foot of the stairs."

"He felt the dog to its full utterly indifferent to its sufferings—closed the door again and unlocked another, which opened upon a narrow stone passage terminating in a flight of steps. Dr. Airie went down the steps and stood for a few moments beside the door to which they led. The door was low and broad, very solid in construction, studded with nails, and secured with iron bars and a padlock. It looked almost like a prison door. The doctor listened at the keyhole for some time, but the only sound to be heard was that of a low moaning, as if of an animal in pain. Dr. Airie nodded to himself, with a satisfied look as he turned away. "All quiet there at my turn," he said. "It is not feeding time yet. I will go out at once."

"He looked the door with great care and deliberation on his way back to his room, but the keys in a safe hiding-place, securely fastened the outer door of the wing which he called his own, and went downstairs. He glanced into the library on his way. Morven was there, seated with an open book before him. But he was not reading, and there was an expression of extreme and painful sadness upon his face.

"Don't let me interrupt your studies," said the doctor blandly. "I really wished to tell you that I thought of going out for a little walk. Do you wish to inspect my—my laboratory—while I am out?"

Morven looked at him for a moment and then down at his book again. "No," he said curtly.

"No! well, perhaps that is best. But had I not better leave the key in your charge? If I were to be detained, our friend might grow a trifle outrageous." He laid a key on the table as he spoke.

The dark red flush which was Morven's sign of emotion mounted to his forehead. He pushed the key angrily away.

"Keep it to yourself, for pity's sake," he said. "Do you think I want to handle it? If you leave it in my care I shall set the doors open—I warn you of that."

"My dear Morven, control yourself," said the doctor, soothingly, as he took up the key and pocketed it once more. "You forget—you forget. There is no sin in chaining a wild animal; it must be done for the welfare of other people. Think of this, and try to see the matter in its true light."

He waited for an answer, but Morven merely laid his head down on his folded arms as they rested upon the table, and would not speak a word. The doctor shrugged his shoulders and sped softly out of the room, and on his way. "He is very weak," he said to himself, derisively, as he trotted the leafy sidewalks of the Park—"weak as water, in spite of that proud outburst. It was always so;—his father was so before him—Gerald too—Gerald worse, perhaps, than all. I sometimes wonder to myself," said Stephen Airie, with a curious little smile, "what will become of Lord Morven and his family."

He walked apart, and reached Mrs. Pirie's house soon after the hour of noon. He looked blandly at the house as he mounted the steps, and caught sight of Lockhart's figure at one of the upper windows. Anthony drew back at once, but not so quickly as to prevent the doctor from lifting his hat and smiling his recognition with exaggerated cordiality. Anthony's involuntary ejaculation of contemptuous anger could not be heard, but it was quite correctly divined by the visitor.

Mrs. Pirie met Dr. Airie at the door. "Well," he said to her cheerfully, "and what is the matter now, Mrs. Pirie? Can I do anything for you?"

"Step in here, please, sir," said Mrs. Pirie. Her cold impassive face wore an expression of disquiet or displeasure which it did not often show. The doctor saw that something was amiss. He followed her into the little parlor, whither she beckoned him; and there, for once in his life, he stood amazed, and Stephen Airie was not really amazed.

A beautiful young woman in black clothes, with dark hair neatly gathered under a dainty little widow's cap, sat in a low rocking chair by the centre-table. In her arms an equally beautiful baby boy lay fast asleep. She did not move when Dr. Airie came into the room; she looked at him for a moment with gathering defiance in her eyes, and then she turned her gaze upon her boy.

"Maggie, Logan!" he exclaimed. But the mother went out of his face even as he spoke. He nodded his head twice or thrice, and surveyed her with a smile. "As I expected," he said quietly.

"Not Maggie Logan," said the beautiful young woman, as quietly as she himself had spoken. "Mrs. Gerald Ruthven, if you please, Dr. Airie."

"That's what she keeps on saying," muttered Mrs. Pirie. "Is the lassie clean daft, doctor?"

"I've not me that's been saying—it's the bairn—the boy," she corrected herself hastily.

"Let me see the boy," said the doctor, leaning forward. But the mother pressed the child's face more closely to her breast.

"Not yet," she said. "It's better now. I'll show him to you by and by."

"When I'm gone—if it's that you're meaning," Mrs. Pirie began gratefully—but she was interrupted. The doctor turned towards her with a courteous excuse.

"Pardon me, my dear Mrs. Pirie, if I suggest that I should be left for a little time alone with my young friend here. There are matters which she may prefer to discuss with each of us separately; do you not think so?"

"Maybe ay, an' maybe no," replied Mrs. Pirie drily, although her anger was evidently appeased. "Gin ye bring the lassie to reason, doctor, I'll no gain say ye. There's the dinner to cook for the two braw gentlemen above us, see I'll awa' to the kitchen."

She made her exit with more noise than she usually made, shutting the door behind her decisively. The doctor's face changed when she had gone. It hardened and sharpened suddenly. "Now," he said, "what is not meaning of all this, Maggie?"

Maggie glanced at him, and then lowered her white eyelids resolutely. "It means," she said, "that I've come to claim my own name and my own place at last."

"And what may those be?" "I've told you already, I'm Mrs. Gerald Ruthven. You know what that means. I'm Gerald's widow. And this is Gerald's boy."

By a sudden movement she turned the child's sleeping face so that the doctor could see it plainly. Maggie knew what she was doing. She knew well enough that her child's face was that of Gerald Ruthven in miniature. The likeness was unmistakable.

Of falling health, whether in the form of Night Sweats and Nervousness, or in a sense of General Weariness and Loss of Appetite, should suggest the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This preparation is most effective for giving tone and strength to the enfeebled system, promoting the digestion and assimilation of food, restoring the nervous forces to their normal condition, and for purifying, enriching, and vitalizing the blood.

Failing Health.

Ten years ago my health began to fail. I was troubled with a distressing Cough, Night Sweats, Weakness, and Nervousness. I tried various remedies prescribed by different physicians, but became so weak that I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest. My friends recommended me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which I did, and I am now as healthy and strong as ever.—Mrs. E. L. Williams, Alexandria, Minn.

Dyspepsia Cured.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for Scrofula, and know, if it is taken faithfully, that it will thoroughly eradicate the terrible disease. Robt. Clark, of the Dauntless, of Goderich, was the guest of the tall laird last week.

We regret to learn of the death of Mrs. James Hall in Muskoka. She resided for many years in this neighborhood and was highly esteemed by all who knew her.

A. H. Clinton and J. Linklater attended the session of the Grand Lodge at Stratford on behalf of I. O. G. T. No. 213, and gave a favorable report at last meeting of this lodge, John Horton and A. C. McDonald attended the temporary meeting at Clinton, and gave cheerful tidings of the turnout at Carlow on Thursday last.

Locknow.

The weather is very hot and dry. Some farmers have commenced their haying. The crops will be rather light in this locality. The spring crops look fairly.

The Rev. Mr. Nugent, of Berlin, the new pastor of the Methodist church, preached his induction sermon last Sabbath morning very acceptably. F. McDonald, who has been operator in the telegraph office for the past two years, left a few days ago for Brantford, to fill a similar position.

Our public school closed for the holidays last week. The promotion examinations were held during the week. For the benefit of the public school, were up for second class certificates to Kinardine last week.

The annual games of the Locknow Caledonian Society were held in the village on Dominion Day, and were fully attended. Quite a number of the leading athletes were present, and the games on the whole were a success.

Parliament.

Mr. Strohers, of Galt, spent a few days with his son Willie last week. Allan McKenzie is very sick with inflammation of the lungs.

Martha Clarke is bedfast at present with deranged liver. On Monday evening a very pleasant game of base and football took place between a club from Lochalsh and our boys. In the ball game Lochalsh gained an easy victory, doing some excellent playing, but our boys had the best of it at foot ball, gaining one goal.

On Wednesday June 30th a very successful examination took place in S. S. No. 14. The pupils were examined by Hugh Matheson and their teacher to the satisfaction of all present. Although it was a very busy time between 25 and 30 visitors were present. Four pupils, Tom Murray, Alice Reid, Samuel Martin and Robbie McMillan received prizes for regular attendance, two of them not missing one day since the 1st of January.

Wills.

David Ryan has his house nearly finished. John Eohin has built a very fine house this summer.

Thos G Sheppard is spending a week or two visiting friends in Goderich township.

Hugh Girrin sold forty eight head of cattle to Masera, W and S McLean, of Goderich, for the handsome sum of $3,195.

A grand tea-meeting is to be given here on the 12th of July in aid of the Sabbath school.

School closed on the 2d inst., and one of our teachers, Miss E Glenn does not return as she is going to Toronto Normal school the next session.

Dr F Stewart, of Reynolds, Illinois, paid a visit to several old acquaintances in this neighborhood. Mr. Stewart taught school in this section sixteen years ago. He looks well, but is suffering from rheumatism.

Under the management of Samuel Sheppard the cemetery in this vicinity gave our church and shed yard a good coat of gravel. The gravel was much needed and "Sam" is to be highly congratulated for getting such an amount of it drawn.

Pain Remedy.

Where Polson's Nerviline is used. Composed of the most powerful pain subduing remedies known. Nerviline cannot fail to give prompt relief in rheumatism, neuralgia, cramps, pain in the back and side, and the most of painful affections, internal or external, arising from inflammatory action. A 10 cent sample bottle of Nerviline will give sufficient proof of its superiority over every known remedy. Try Nerviline. Large bottles 25 cents; trial bottles only 10 cents.

THE SCOTT ACT.

Business Done at the Convention at Clinton.

Resolutions on the Police Magistrate Matter—Public Meetings Recommended—The Temperance Vote.

A convention of temperance workers of Huron county, was held in the Rattentbury St. Methodist church, Clinton, on Friday, June 25th.

The President, in his opening address, recounted some important events and changes that had taken place since the last convention was held in May.

The mission of the delegation sent to interview the county council had been unsuccessful, that body, by a large majority having refused to memorialize the Ontario Government for the appointment of a salaried Police Magistrate.

Another matter referred to by Mr. Wilson, was the change made by the Dominion Government during the last session of the late session of parliament in the Scott Act itself, whereby the fines obtained from convictions under the Act must now be paid to the Governor-General instead of to the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province as formerly.

This appropriation by the Dominion Government of all the fines, would of course, be a serious difficulty in the way of the Ontario Government administering the law, as they would derive no revenue from its operation, and would have the salaries of inspectors and commissioners, and the costs of unsuccessful prosecutions to pay.

The announcement was made that Mr. George Walker could not accept the position of President of the Tuckersmith branch of the Scott Act Association, as he would be absent from home all summer, and on motion of Mr. T. McGillicuddy, seconded by Mr. J. Wanless, the selection of someone to fill this position was left to the Executive committee.

On motion of Dr. Williams, seconded by Rev. A. E. Smith, the following resolution was adopted:—"The members of the Huron Scott Act Association in convention assembled, having heard of the death of Mr. Benjamin Smiley, of Tuckersmith, late Vice President of this Association for that township, wish to convey to Mrs. Smiley our sincere and deep sympathy with her in her great loss.

We join in the earnest prayer, that the God of all consolation and grace, may lighten her sorrow and her to bear with true Christian resignation, the ills of life, remembering that the hand that afflicts is Divine."

The President allowed a discussion to take place, without a formal resolution being moved, relative to the Police Magistracy, and the action of the county council in refusing the request of the Association.

Mr. T. McGillicuddy thought a thorough practical campaign should be organized and the county stumped from end to end with the object of returning a county council who will ask for a salaried Police Magistrate.

Rev. W. M. Martin also endorsed the suggestion. He regretted the lack of public interest in the carrying out of the law which was evident. Even ministers of the Gospel had been entirely silent since the vote took place.

Our influence, felt in municipalities and parliamentary elections, by acting unitedly. Our legislators upon both sides of politics are afraid to touch the temperance question. We must close in our ranks and make known our actual strength, and compel politicians to take a decisive stand upon the question.

Mr. James Thompson suggested the formation of Electoral Unions in every municipality and the binding of the temperance people together with the pledge that they will vote only for candidates who give a satisfactory promise to support temperance principles at the council board and in the halls of parliament.

Mr. A. McLean had been somewhat discouraged about Scott Act enforcement. It had been partially a failure through defective machinery for carrying it out, though it had certainly not been altogether a failure.

Mr. J. P. Clark moved, seconded by Mr. T. McGillicuddy, "that each license inspector in the county be requested to ascertain all the magistrates in each municipality of their respective ridings who will take information in Scott Act cases, and that all who refuse to act be at once reported to the Honorable the Attorney-General with the request that they be dismissed, and that the Inspector to suggest to the Attorney-General the importance of holding such meetings, and assist, if necessary, in the management of such gatherings."

It was agreed that the next convention should be held in Searfirth early in September. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. McLean, and the convention closed a successful session.

At one o'clock the meeting was again called to order and opened with prayer by Rev. E. S. Rupert. The President nominated a resolution committee consisting of Mr. T. McGillicuddy, Rev. E. S. Rupert, Rev. W. M. Martin and Messrs. R. Adams, Septimus Hogarth and Andrew Gowenlock, which committee subsequently presented a report which was received and taken up serially.

Class 1 of that report, which reads as follows, was adopted by a unanimous vote:—"Resolved, that the action of the county council in its late session in refusing to memorialize the Ontario Government to appoint a Police Magistrate with salary for the county, as requested by the temperance people of Huron, is deserving of censure, but the convention commend the action of those members of the council who stood by our cause and supported the motion for such a memorial to be sent, that we hereby re-affirm our conviction that the appointment of a salaried Police Magistrate to administer the Scott Act in the county is an immediate necessity."

The second clause of the committee's report, which reads as follows:—"That in the opinion of the Scott Act Association it is desirable that at the next municipal elections only such men should be supported as are favorable to the enforcement of the Scott Act, and the appointment of a salaried Police Magistrate."

The third clause of the report asserted, "That in the opinion of this convention it is necessary for the proper working of the Scott Act, that all lines accruing from convictions, should go towards paying the expenses of enforcing the act generally in this county, and humbly request of the Governor-General in council, that the fines be so applied."

Class four was to the effect:—"That as the intelligent education of the people upon a Temperance question is necessary to the proper enforcement of the Scott Act, we earnestly call on all ministers and christian people throughout the county to agitate in the pulpit, and press, and by means of public meetings towards that end." The convention was in one mind upon this resolution and accorded it the same treatment that the others received.

Mr. J. Wynn thought the temperance people had always allowed political leanings to outweigh their temperance convictions, and thought it high time to reverse the order. For this part he had always placed politics at the top and temperance at the bottom, for he had believed the obstruction to temperance advancement came from the political party to which he was opposed, but he had now learned that both parties are in the way, and had turned the matter the other way up, and in future would support temperance first at whatever cost to his political party. If his party were in the way, he would not be afraid of hurting it, but would want to hurt it if it did not do the right.

Mr. J. P. Clark moved, seconded by Mr. T. McGillicuddy, "that each license inspector in the county be requested to ascertain all the magistrates in each municipality of their respective ridings who will take information in Scott Act cases, and that all who refuse to act be at once reported to the Honorable the Attorney-General with the request that they be dismissed, and that the Inspector to suggest to the Attorney-General the importance of holding such meetings, and assist, if necessary, in the management of such gatherings."

AFTER CAMP.—Lots of redoubts returned home through our village on Saturday from London. Our Jack MacAlister was the luckiest marksman with Goderich company, getting most bulls-eyes and centres at 400 yards.

Thos. Good, one of the local celebrities of this Swiss village on the Maidland, visited old friends here last week. As he was a resident here over 11 years ago, he saw a great change since that time on farms and was much pleased to see the windmill.

The new culvert at Tobin's was put in last week by R. Gibbs, contractor; John Barker swung the pick, while the shore-owners were James Jones and James Strong. There was some talk drawing on the temporary road by teams.

CASUALTY.—On Wednesday of last week while the school children were returning home in a wagon without a box that had taken them up, they got pushing each other as children will, when little Grace, daughter of Mr. John Shaw, caught her foot between the spokes. Her scream caused the driver to pull up at once, but the child's foot was so completely wedged that the wheel had to be removed before she could be extricated. Medical aid was immediately procured, and although the tiny foot is very much bruised, and the patient is confined to her room, it is hoped she will, in time, be running about again. She had a narrow escape from being maimed for life. The sole of the boot was ripped off.

Belgrave.

M. F. McKinnon, formerly of Blyth, is now doing a lively business in this burg. He is a grain buyer, runs a flour and feed store, and knocks the bottom out of high prices in furniture. If we had a few more men like him in Belgrave, we would soon covet the county town seat.

Colborne.

DIED.—Near Bramberry, Month township, Muskoka, on the 10th of June, 1886, Rachel, wife of James Hall, aged 51 years and 3 months. She was for many years a resident of Colborne. She passed away after a trying illness of two months, borne with Christian resignation. Her demise is much regretted by all who knew her.

On Tuesday last, 6th July, one of the most enjoyable days of the season was spent out at "Morrisdale Farm," the residence of John Morris, Esq. This gentleman has an annual gathering of his numerous family, most all of his family, and their families, and his brothers and their families, being present, together with a number of old neighbors, in all over one hundred. Mr. Morris settled on his farm in Colborne in 1834, when this was all a wilderness, and by industry and hard work has secured a competence of this world's wealth to keep him in his old days. We noticed among the old neighbors Charles Givrin, reeve of West Wawanosh in 1834, most of his family; Wm. Young, ex-reve Colborne and Mrs. and family; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Greene, of Dakota, formerly one of the pioneers of Colborne, and George Dolman, of Sarnia, and a lady friend from Goderich, and all reports are true this gentleman will take back one of the fair ladies of this section. The afternoon sports consisted of quoits, base ball and croquet. Most of games were hotly contested. The old ladies noticed how young deputy reeve Beck went in for all kinds of fun with the young ladies. We would not be surprised to hear something from Salford before long. Tea was served at 6 o'clock in the garden, under the large apple trees. The hostess, Mrs. Henry Morris, did everything to make it pleasant and everyone had a good time. About 9 o'clock the day's amusements were brought to a close. All were happy to meet, and hope to meet again next year.

Mrs. Harvey Howell, of Buffalo, spent a few days at the old homestead, Morrisdale farm, last week.

Belfast and Bluevale correspondence crowded out, will appear next week

Port Albert.

T. F. Young is home for the holidays. Mrs. J. O'Connor and child, of Detroit, is the guest of Mrs. O'Connor.

A. J. Turner, of Wingham, visited the village on Sunday last. We understand he intends shortly to leave for a trip to England.

R. Good has moved into the house lately occupied by C. F. Graham and Wm. Draper, of Toronto, entered into possession of R. Good's property.

The schooner Enterprise, in charge of E. Martin, has gone on a trip to Port Austin.
