CHAPTER IX.

A DUEL OF WITS.

For, although Reginald had advanced with a well-bred smile and held out his hand, Grace was still standing at the side, or, rather, behind the squire, and staring, as it seemed, savagely, though she was only taking a good look at his face to see if she liked it—as she would have expressed it.

"Come, Grace, shake hands," said the squire, irritably, and Grace held out her small, gloved hand, which Reginald took and bent over respectfully.

"We shall be good friends, I have no doubt," he said, "that is, if Miss Grace is willing."

Grace nodded, but not very cheerfully, and then ran past them both upstairs.

The squire looked after her with half a frown.

"The young hussy!" he said. "You mustn't mind her rough ways, Reginald; her look's worse than her bite by a long way. And how's town, eh? You must tell me all the news. By George, it's near dinner-time! Go into the drawing-room, make yourself at home, and I'll be as quick as I can."

Captain Reginald lounged into the drawing-room and made himself comfortable before the fire—for though the weather was warm there was a fire—to think over his welcome and late introduction.

"By Jove!" he muttered. "What a savage! To tame her one should be a Van Amburgh. Well, I'll try it; yes, I'll try it, by Jove, for there is something about her that seems to dare me, and I dislike being dared!"

At dinner Grace sat at the bottom of the table, Reginald at the side. She had kept them waiting nearly ten minutes, during every minute of which Reginald Dartmouth had expected to see the squire burst out into one of the passions he remembered. But no, he had changed. Had Hugh been five minutes behind his time the Dale would scarcely have held the squire. Grace entered the room ten minutes late with calm serenity, unrebuked save by a "Come, Grace, lass; the soup's getting cold."

She made no reply and took a seat. Reginald Dartmouth took a look at her.

At first sight he had thought her beautiful; now, with the riding-habit displaced by a low-cut evening-dress, he discovered that she was barely good-looking.

Before the dinner was over he had decided she was not even that, but that she was something more, remarkable-looking and prepossessing.

"Well," said the squire, after boiling the soup and drinking a couple of glasses of sherry in silence—a silence shared by the others—"how's town looking?"

"Pretty much the same as usual," replied the captain, his well-bred, languid voice contrasting strongly with the squire's quick, sharp one.

"The usual amount of births, deaths, and marriages."

"Ah!" said the squire. "And how are you getting on?"

This was rather a difficult question to answer—all such questions are. The captain, feeling that the dark eyes at the end of the table were fixed upon him with a critical scrutiny, parried it.

"Tolerably well, sir," he said; then, turning to Grace, said, in his last way: "Let me get you some sherry, Miss Darrell."

"No, thanks," she said, shortly; "I don't like sherry."

The captain raised his eyebrows with mild astonishment, and the squire said, with his gruff laugh:

"Grace is a queer girl. Here, Reginald, give her some port," and he pushed forward the decanter.

But Miss Grace drew her glass away as Reginald was about to fill it, nearly causing some of the wine to drop on the cloth, and said:

"No, I won't have any port, either, Uncle Harry."

"No wine?" said Reginald. "What can I get you?"

"Nothing!" said Grace, unused to such attention and not relishing the half contemptuous tone of the remark.

"Nothing! Don't mind me, go on with your own dinner."

The squire looked at him and burst into a laugh, expecting to see a flash of embarrassment, or at least surprise, upon the captain's face; but he was disappointed.

Captain Dartmouth was not to be nonplused by a girl of seventeen. His face never altered a muscle, nor did

AFTER SUFFERING A WHOLE YEAR

Mrs. King Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Iola, Kansas.—"I was a constant sufferer from female trouble for about a year. I had pains in my back and stomach, in fact all over me, and was all rundown. A friend of mine was cured of the same trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and it gave me health and strength and made me a new woman of me. I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly, and you may publish my testimonial as it may be the means of helping some other suffering woman."—Mrs. E. King, 185 West Campbell Street, Iola, Kansas.

The great number of unsolicited testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory, many of which are from time to time published by permission, are proof of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, in the treatment of female ills.

Every ailing woman in the United States is cordially invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free, ready to bring you health and may save your life.

he took surprise. He filled his own glass and said:

"Thanks; I'll take your advice, Miss Darrell. Have the kindness to get me some salmon."

Poor Grace had meant to be rude—though why or wherefore she could not have told—and his cool nonchalance thoroughly upset her.

"Do you want a large or a small piece?" she said, without looking up, and holding the knife ready to cut.

"As I have come some distance and am rather hungry," he said, with slow and cool distinctness, "I will have a large piece."

Grace proceeded to cut him a slice, and the squire leaned back in his chair and laughed heartily.

"Come, I say, you two," he said, with malicious enjoyment—it pleased him to see some one else worried by the young hussy as well as himself—"you mustn't quarrel directly you meet. Bah!"

"Quarrel?" said Captain Dartmouth, lifting his eyebrows the slightest in the world. "We were not quarrelling, were we, Miss Darrell? At least, not that I am aware of."

But Grace would not answer him.

"Uncle Harry," she said, abruptly, "give me some beef."

The squire, still laughing, cut her some, and the three went on with their dinner in silence for a little while.

Presently Reginald said:

"How is the shooting this season, sir?"

"Oh, very plentiful," replied the squire. "My men were telling me the birds were never thicker." His face clouded as he spoke, for he remembered there was no Hugh to thin them now. "Have you brought your gun down?"

"No," said the captain; "I did not think of staying more than a day or two. I ran down for a change. London is insufferable just now, and I thought I should like to see you and the Dale for a little while."

"It's nonsense about not staying," said the squire, earnestly. "Send up for your gun, and go in for the birds—they want thinning down. Then you haven't got your horse on the road?"

"No," said Reginald; "for the same reason."

"Well, that doesn't seem much matter. I may find a moment to suit you, I dare say; but every man likes his own gun."

Captain Reginald thanked him.

"I'll apply for longer leave," he said. "I should like a pop at the birds."

"Ah, yes!" said the squire. "Get the War Office to let you have sick-leave for a month or two, and recover your health in the ten-acre."

Captain Reginald smiled.

"I dare say I can get leave," he said, "without pleading the invalid."

Then they talked on town topics, drew a few mild scandals over the coals, and after some politics—of course the squire was a Tory, and equally of course Captain Reginald was also—finished the bottle of old port and joined Grace in the drawing-room, she having risen from the table at the appearance of the port and called out as silently and serenely as she had entered.

Reginald knew that the squire would return to the dining-room and go to sleep, so he made himself comfortable in the easiest chair and prepared to tackle his belle sauvage.

When the squire, muttering some inaudible excuse, toddled out, Captain Reginald rose and walked up to Grace, who was standing at the window.

"Are you admiring the sunset," he asked in his languid way, "or counting the pigs?"

"Neither," said Grace. "I've seen the sunset too often, and the pigs, too, for the matter of that."

"May I ask, Miss Darrell," he continued, "what you are looking at then?"

"You may, but I ain't obliged to tell you," she retorted, then suddenly asked: "You came by coach this morning, didn't you?" turning her dark eyes upon him.

"Yes," he said.

"From London?" she asked, twisting a handsome bracelet round her brown, well-made arm.

"Yes," said the captain again.

"From Piccadilly."

"Piccadilly," repeated Grace; that's a queer name. Do you live there?"

"Near there," he replied, inwardly amused and wondering, but outwardly as calm and grave as herself.

"What sort of place is it?" she asked.

"A very disagreeable one," he replied. "Ugly, crowded, dusty—not at all like Dale, nor anywhere else," he added, inaudibly.

"What in the world makes you live there then?" she asked, lifting her heavy eyebrows.

The captain smiled.

"Because I am obliged to," he replied, leaning against the window and stroking his mustache.

Grace looked him up and down, as the saying goes, and returned to her contemplation of the food.

The captain waited for the next shot. It came, and pretty suddenly.

"What's your name?" she asked, turning her face round and eyeing him with calm curiosity.

"Reginald Dartmouth," he replied.

"Do you like it?"

"No," she said. "It's ugly—Reginald Dartmouth!"

"Yes," he said. "But I am generally called Captain Dartmouth."

"Captain!" she echoed, turning to him eagerly. "Are you a captain really? Have you been round the world? Have you seen savages and lions and tigers, and all that?"

He shook his head with a comical look of regret.

"No," he said. "I am a captain of another sort. I am a captain in the army."

"Oh!" she said, with great disappointment and some contempt. "A captain in the army. Have you fought all battles?"

DON'T LIKE MERGER.

LONDON, May 9. The Saturday Review regards with apprehension and dislike Col. Grant Morden's gigantic combine, seeing in it only the beginning of a number of mammoth trusts which will throw the control of vital products of industry into the hands of a few millionaires like Messrs. Vickers and Lord Beaverbrook.

FRENCH MASSACRED BY TURKS.

ALEPPO, Syria, May 9. The slaughter of the little French garrison which evacuated Urfa on the promise of safe conduct by Turkish Nationalist troops after the town had been besieged for sixty-one days, is described in the diary of Gen. Woodward, accountant for the American commission for relief in the near east, who was an eye-witness of the massacre. He escaped and returned to Urfa after several hundred French soldiers had been killed or made prisoners by tribesmen. The French were ambushed by tribesmen in violation of an agreement made by Namik Effendi, who came from Angora as the Turkish Nationalist government's representative, the diary says, and promised the Frenchmen safe conduct if they would evacuate. At that time the French had only four days rations left and had eaten all their horses and mules and evacuation was considered inevitable as the garrison was greatly outnumbered by the enemy. General Woodward says in his diary that he saw the Turks killing French wounded on the field and that he and an officer of Gendarmerie saw prisoners killed by the Turks after they had surrendered. Namik Effendi agreed to protect the Christian population, provided a guard of Gendarmerie and transport of sixty camel and thirty horses if the French would leave, the diary says. "We were suddenly attacked from the rear and from both flanks while we were moving as a column spaced at regular intervals. An order was given to deploy and this was carried out into the hills occupied by the enemy who almost surrounded us. The attack lasted for two hours, the Turks having two thousand irregular troops and one machine gun. They made a special target of our transport doubtless for plunder. As the firing increased other tribes joined in the attacks. Our rear guard was caught in a trap from which few escaped alive. With the transport destroyed our rear guard cut off and our line of defense broken we could only surrender and an officer of Gendarmerie was sent with a white flag. I accompanied him with an American flag. We were continually fired on as we approached the enemy asking for his commander. We were told there was no commander as the troops were irregulars and finally we sent messages to the flanks and the firing ceased, but another party of Kurds arrived almost immediately and firing was re-opened. Of the French detachment of five hundred only one hundred and thirty-two soldiers and one officer returned to Urfa. The remainder presumably were killed.

THE POLES HAVE KIEV.

WARSAW, May 9. Polish cavalry entered the city of Kiev on Saturday morning on the heels of the retreating Bolsheviks.

The city has been evacuated by the Bolsheviks and the Polish infantry kept up its advance toward Kiev during the day. The stiffest fighting engaged in by the Poles before they reached the outskirts of Kiev was along the Irpen River, just west of that city. The Bolsheviks were well entrenched and defended the strip between the Irpen and Dnieper until they were literally blasted from their positions. The Poles first crossed the Irpen to the northwest of Kiev near the mouth of the Dnieper early on Saturday, after three days fight before the city's gates. Soon afterwards the passage of the river was effected in force at various points over emergency bridges, some of which were built under fire of Bolshevik guns. The Main-Kiev bridge across the Irpen was destroyed by the retreating enemy and is being repaired by soldiers aided by the local population. For two days the struggle was for the most part an infantry battle. By the end of that time, however, the retreating defenders had recovered sufficiently from their exhaustion to bring up artillery. Meanwhile the Poles had also brought up guns, but progress of the artillery to the battle front was much hampered by rough country and various obstacles placed by the Bolsheviks to handicap the advance of the Poles. It was early on Friday that the Soviet troops began gradually to give way before the Polish cannon fire on all sides. The defenders were put back on Kiev where the only available crossing of the Dnieper was to be found. Modern armoured trains from the south on the Polish side aided the infantry in their fight for the ancient Russian capital, but the advance along the railroad from Fastova was made under great difficulties.

Slips by Famous Authors

The British Minister of Education points out some mistakes that he has come across in books. One of them runs through Ivanhoe, where the Normans and Saxons are represented as two distinct races. The fact is that, at the time with which the story deals marriage between the two races had gone so far that Norman could hardly be told from Saxon; and Sir Walter Scott did not realize this until the story was set up in type, and so the famous novel appears with this blunder right through it. Another mistake was made by Mrs. Humphrey Ward, who in one of her books made

Old Comrades' Excursion to Placentia.

The C.C.C. Old Comrades, leaving by train on the eve of the June whole holiday, will hold an excursion at Placentia. Accommodation for more than 500 persons has been arranged. The day at Placentia will be a notable one. The monument to Placentia's dead sailors and soldiers will be unveiled immediately after Military Mass. His Grace, Archbishop Roche and Monsignor McDermott will likely be present. At the unveiling a guard in khaki will present arms, and a firing squad will also be present. The C.C.C. Band will render the Dead March. The guard will be made up of soldiers from Placentia and the following Cadet Officers and men who have been overseas, Major O'Grady, M.B.E., Capt. Leo Murphy, Capt. McGrath, Lieut. Hickey, Capt. Whitty, M.C., M.B.E., Lieut. Christopher, Sergt. Major Galgay, Sergt. Morrissey, Corporal W. Clare, Pte. J. Brown, Capt. G. Byrne, M.C., Capt. A. Summers and Lieut. H. Power. These with the Placentia overseas men will be in full uniform, and the unveiling ceremony will be an event that will add to the already unique history of the ancient capital.

Presentation to Member.

Last week at the Parish Room of St. Mary's Church, Southside, a very pretty little function took place, the occasion taking the form of a presentation to Mrs. S. J. Shepherd, made by the Sanctuary Guild of the Church, of which Mrs. Shepherd is one of the oldest members. The presentation proper was made by the Rector, Rev. A. B. S. Stirling, who in appropriate language expressed the regret of the Guild that Mrs. Shepherd was obliged to sever the very pleasant connections that had existed for such a period, because of leaving the city and taking up residence on Bell Island, of which station Sergt. L. Shepherd is in charge. The souvenir was a cut glass and silver bouquet holder, engraved with the name of the recipient and that of the Guild as the donor. Some thirty-eight members were present, and after the gift had been presented and suitably acknowledged by Mrs. Shepherd, all sat down to a splendidly prepared supper, and the remainder of the evening was passed in social pleasures. Mrs. Shepherd leaves for Bell Island, her future home, during the present week, followed by the good wishes and regards of her numerous friends, for a pleasant stay on the Iron Island.

COLD STORAGE.
I may claim to be the Pioneer as to advocating Cold Storage and Freezers for Bait, and other fish that we have in our waters for bait and food purposes for the past thirty years, and the same would apply to Pickled Meats, Fork, Beef and Molasses, and I would ask the Mercantile community, and other Importers and Exporters, could they make an estimate of the losses sustained as to Pickled Meats, Beef, Pork, Molasses, Pickled Herring and Salmon; thousands of packages of the above named lying on the wharves in the May, June, July, August and September sun, the pickle of the meats coming through the staves of the packages owing to excessive heat, and what become of the contents; in many cases when the packages are opened sometimes after the contents found spoiled, the Importer blames the shipper, and often unjustly so. The same applies to Molasses gone sour; also to pickled herring, and when the latter arrives at New York and other shipping points, thousands of packages are condemned on account of the contents, the blame often times being laid at the door of the curer, the fishermen, and in many cases unjustly so. This has been occurring to my personal knowledge for over forty years, and I fail to see any improvement worthy of notice, so Messrs. Importers and Exporters, both at St. John's and in the Outports, get out of the old rut and be modern, see that your Pickled meats when landed are placed under cover, and the same applies to Molasses and Pickled Fish, and not on the wharves under the broiling sun getting cooked the wrong way. Be modern by having same placed in Cold Storage, and then the contents will keep indefinitely, and have we not cold storage the world over, but Newfoundland is away behind the times as to Cold Storage, and I am tired advocating Cold Storage and Bait Depots, particularly at two or three centres on the Labrador Coast, which should be erected at Battle Hr., Dominio, and some other suitable place, and with a plentiful supply of Squid or other bait fishes in Bait Depots on the Labrador, in the event of a failure with the twine, the Labrador fishermen would always secure a saving voyage, and a plentiful supply of bait fishes would to a great extent do away with the greatest scourge that we have in connection with our fisheries, the cod jigger, and hundreds of Labrador planters and fishermen have agreed with me as to my ideas as to Bait Depots on the Labrador, and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. W. F. Coaker, will agree with me, as when I spoke on same at Bay Roberts at the F.P.U. Convention held there some years ago, at which I attended as a special Delegate, did I not receive the unanimous applause of the Delegates of that Convention when I spoke on Bait Depots for the Labrador, and if the Government do not immediately, I say now this coming season, allocate a stipulated sum for any one at Dominio, the inshore fishery on the Labrador will be a thing of the past, also Bait Depots at Bonavista and suitable points in Conception Bay, Fouch Cove, Petty Harbor would be the means of an increased catch of codfish, and the same would well compensate the Government for the outlay, and any assistance given to same, and I have reason to believe that Honorable W. F. Coaker, who we should all believe has the best interest of the fishermen at heart, will agree with me. His personal experience in his travels in Europe the past winter has given him new ideas as to Cold Storage, the different ways to handle fish for the foreign consumer and as to standardizing our fish, and I believe that he will do all in his power to forward the fishermen and the Dominion at this present session of the House of Assembly, and also to have Cold Storage plants on our Coastal boats to convey bait fish to depots. Take that progressive nation, France, and the French Government Cold Storage plant now erected at St. Pierre costing millions of dollars.

Standardizing of Codfish, Herring, Salmon, Etc.

Now with reference to standardizing our various kinds of fish, viz., Codfish, Herring, Salmon, etc., and as to the marketing of same. Before I commence I must again make reference to Hon. W. F. Coaker, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and his trip to Spain, Portugal, and other countries should have given him a good idea of the different methods of curing, and handling of codfish, for the different European markets, and will place him in a position of demonstrating same to the fishermen, and on the floors of the House of Assembly, which he is now doing, and same should be beneficial to the trade in general, as experience should teach in all walks of life. Now I ask the question, "What have the Government and exporters of our codfish done to educate the fishermen as to the handling and curing of codfish, herring, etc., and is not codfish handled to-day as an article of food for the consumer in different parts of the world, in many cases more carelessly than it was thirty years ago, and what is the principal cause? Buying from the fishermen by the tailquail system, which gives no encouragement to the fishermen, that handled and made a No. 1 cure, and as Newfoundlanders there is only one remedy, that is for the exporters to purchase same under a Government standardized system No. 1, No. 2, No. 3 and to be exported as such, and then the consumer will get satisfaction and value for his money, which will be mutually beneficial to producer, fisherman, exporter and consumer. The fishermen therefore that will handle and make a No. 1 merchantable article will get well paid for his care and labor, and the fishermen that through neglect and carelessness will make an inferior article of fish for the consumer, will get face value for his inferior article of fish, which will mean dollars per quintal less than the fishermen who will make a No. 1 article, and the careless handler will look about himself when he sees the great losses that he is sustaining by his neglect. Certainly there are times when Shore fish, is slack or heavy caught, and from whether conditions, it is impossible to make a No. 1 or merchantable fish. (As a salter of Shore or Bank fish I would not take second place to any one.)

Now I will go still further than the Hon. W. F. Coaker, and ask him to take a lesson out of my book that I have learnt from a personal experience of over thirty years with our fisheries, and that is to help me to educate the fishermen to cut the throat of the codfish when taken alive out of the water by either the jigger, handline and codtrap where possible. (You cannot do this with trawled or codnetted codfish, because fish so caught are smothered and strangled) and the bleeding of fish makes the meat of the fish white and more nutritious from a medical standpoint. (Is not the shot rabbit tenderer and better for food than that snared or strangled). After bleeding, fish should be washed and salted well, and then we Newfoundland fishermen will take first place in the markets of the world. Any green liver or consumptive codfish, have same cut out and let go as fertilizer, and then the consumer will get pure fish food, which the laws of the United States demand to-day. I intend this coming season to have fish so bled when taken alive out of the water, and many of my friends will do the same, and I will export such fish myself to the markets of the United States, Cuba, Argentina, all to be standardized under my own registered brand, and guaranteed to the consumer. Can I supply the demand? I say No! but possibly before the end of this season I may have some fish put up in glass and neat carton packages for shipment to the wealthy consumers of the United States, Cuba, Argentina, etc. To let my readers understand that I am not talking through my hat, and to verify my contentions, in the year 1911, I was in Gloucester, Mass., and in the office of Messrs. Cunningham & Thompson, fish handlers, curers, etc. This firm put up boneless fish in glass and tumbler, and in elaborate tasty cartons, and the principal of that firm, Mr. Frank Pearce, stated to me in his office in the presence of his brother, Mr. Fred Pearce, and the famous fish killer, Capt. Clayton Morrissey, that they had a million dollars worth of property, and all the money that they needed to improve their plant and processes.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

IN DEFENSE OF THE MOVIES.

Just about once in so often I have a letter from a friend who is disturbed because some neighbor of hers goes too constantly to the movies, and who asks what I think of such conduct. The latest letter along that line is a slight variation of the usual complaint--that the offender is neglecting her husband or a spending too much money. In this case she would like my opinion of "a minister's wife and daughter--running to the moving picture shows."

RUTH CAMERON

(I cannot refrain from straying to remember what my grandmother, who was a Methodist Minister's wife, would think of the possibility of such a thing. My mother says her mother was so far owned by the congregation that they even complained when they bought the flowers on her hat were too bright.)

Now as to the movies and what I believe about "movie-it-its," as another letter friend calls the craze for them: I suppose my opinion is just exactly what any other sensible person perhaps I flatter myself? opinion is--that whereas attended in reason, the movies are an education and a joy forever, attended out of reason are just as wrong as anything else which is carried to excess.

Your Excesses Don't Affect the Movies.

There is nothing intrinsically wrong in going to the movies five times a week, but there is a great deal in spending time and money there that you cannot afford.

If you skip yourself of outdoor exercise; if you neglect your house work or your children; if you spend more money than you can afford at the movies (and then spend a little more buying delicatessen food because you haven't time to do your own baking, you are doing something that is not right. But that does not show that the movies are wicked any more than it shows that shops are wicked because women spend too much time shopping, or that golf is wicked because a man gets crazy about it and spends too much time playing the game.

A Blessing Sometimes.

When I see a woman who has a hard monotonous life at home, and who perhaps would not have gone to an ordinary theatre more than three or four times a year (if that often), setting out with a happy light on her face for her weekly or semi-weekly bit of romance at the movies, I am filled with thankfulness and gratitude that this wonderful bringing of books to life has come to pass. I once managed to persuade such a woman who was temporarily in such straitened circumstances that even her movie money had to go, to accept the money for bi-weekly visits from me. And I never gave away any money out of which I got such solid enjoyment in the surety of the joy it gave.

A Musiclock.

About the latest contrivance in the musical line is a combination phonograph and alarm clock, which Clarence L. Bull, a Rochester, N.Y. man has invented. Mr. Bull calls the instrument a "musiclock." This "musiclock" can be set not only to whatever time is desirable, but also to whatever tune the slumberer wishes to be aroused by. Upon going to bed at night the owner can select his favorite record, place it in the machine, set the alarm for the hour at which he wishes to arise, and then he retires. When the hands of the clock have reached the time the alarm is set for, a spring is released, and the record begins to play.

Mr. Bull was a fighter in the late world war, and was accustomed to arise at the reveille call of the bugler. This experience turned his thoughts to the idea, and the "musiclock" is the result.

Abandoning Fishery.

It is thought that a large number of vessels will not prosecute the fishery this year. The uncertainty of getting supplies, with the poor prospects of getting remunerative prices for the catch, has made many vessel-owners look to other avenues of employment, and some 50 vessels from points between Newtown and Greenspond hitherto employed at the fisheries will engage in the coasting trade this season.

Modern Miracles.

THERE ARE MEN AND WOMEN ALIVE TO-DAY WHO HAVE BOLDLY DEFIED THE LAWS OF NATURE.

Mrs. Annie Hunter, a Bournemouth medium, has been upsetting the recognized laws of Nature, by carrying about in her bare hands a blazing log of wood, yet without the skin showing the slightest sign of bleeding.

This performance took place on a day in November last, in broad daylight, and before an audience including a reporter from a well-known London "daily." The latter attempted, himself, to handle the burning log, but found it utterly impossible.

This is nothing new. Besides Western mediums. Hindu mystics and Buddhist priests in Japan are able, in some way not yet scientifically explained, to render themselves proof against fire and do other things even more mysterious. These performances have been seen by Europeans time and again.

Dr. Pascal has written a very full account of one such, which he witnessed at Benares on October 28th, 1898. A great trench was dug, nine yards long by two wide, and in this were laid fifteen large tree-trunks. These were fired, and allowed to burn until they were a mass of glowing embers.

More than fifty Hindus, many of them children, then proceeded to walk across this miniature volcano. Now and then one would stop and plunge his hand into the bed of fire. One came out with a flaming cinder as big as a hen's egg sticking to the calf of his leg. He did not even notice it until someone mentioned it, when he pulled it off and threw it away.

None of these people were in any way damaged or burnt or blistered. But the same thing has been done in England long before the present day. In trance states both Eglinton and Home were able to handle fire without injury.

Home could perform other miracles even more amazing. He could upset the laws of gravity. Sir William Crookes has described how, more than once, he saw Home "levitate"--that is, raise himself from the ground, and hang suspended in mid-air.

The most amazing of all these cases occurred on December 16th, 1868, in London, and there were present Lord Lindsay, Lord Adure, and Captain Wynne. These people saw Home, in a state of trance, suspended in mid-air outside the window of the upper room in which they were sitting. The moon, shining brilliantly, showed his figure as plain as day. He remained in this position for several seconds, then glided in again through the open window, feet foremost, and sat down.

Dying at Will.

There are over one hundred cases on record of Home levitating himself, and many in which he caused other people or heavy objects to rise in similar fashion.

That well-known Italian medium, Eusapia Palladino, gave proof of being able to raise himself into the air in the same way that Home did.

One case at Naples in 1899 was performed before reliable witnesses.

Hindu Yogis can in some cases die or expire at pleasure, reviving again after a certain period. One of these men, having previously prepared himself by power of digestion, stopped with wax all the apertures of the body except his mouth. He then turned his tongue back, so as to close the gullet, and relapsed into a state of insensibility.

His body, stripped, was sewn in a linen bag; the bag was placed in a deal box or coffin, and buried. The earth was trodden down, and a crop of barley sown over the spot.

At the end of ten months this man was dug up, and found to be exactly the same state as when first buried, except that his tongue was stiff, and took time to restore to its proper position.

Revived with hot water and oil, he was soon himself again. This experiment was carried out under the supervision of Europeans, among them Captain Wade, political agent at Loodhiana.

With Medical Witnesses.

An Englishman, Colonel Townsend, who had for long studied the method of the fakirs, was eventually able to "die" and come to life again. He performed the experiment in the presence of three doctors. One held his wrist, a second kept a hand upon his heart, while a third held a looking-glass before his lips.

Their report was that the heart completely ceased beating, and that all traces of respiration ceased. Colonel Townsend himself declared that the whole thing was effected by an effort of will.

Without doubt, miracles have been accomplished in the way of healing disease, of turning cripples into sound men, of restoring hearing to the deaf, and sight to the blind.

Modern science will eventually tackle these seeming miracles and explain them. It must be remembered that there is no such thing as "supernatural," and that the use of such a word is foolish.--Answers.

SPRING MUSIC.

I like to sing of balmy Spring, the season most inspiring; my harp I swat and keep it hot, until it needs new wiring. I like to praise the woodland ways where we will soon be roaming, and shady nooks and babbling brooks with cascades brightly foaming. No gent, I wist, can well resist the Spring, with all its glamor, unless he's old, with blood so cold it gives him katzenjammer. When I'm so chilled, my heart so filled with wintry slush and water, that I don't sing to welcome Spring, then lead me to the slaughter. My eyes are weak, my hinges creak, I bend them with a lever; my thews are stiff, but what's the diff? I'm just as young as ever. And so I prance and whoop and dance when Spring comes up the valley; and if a cop should bid me stop, I chase him down an alley. The winter's frown, the coal men groan, and idle is the plumber: the birds and bees and bugs and fleas have come to spring the summer. The vernal rain has come again, a resurrection bringing, so let us sing a song of Spring and chortle while we're singing.

In the Minority.

At a recent gathering of theatrical celebrities (says Mr. Bourchier) the question arose as to what was the most effective and witty retort ever made from the stage to the gallery. There was considerable discussion, but in the end the palm was awarded to George Bernard Shaw in connection with an incident that marked the opening night of his play, Androcles and the Lion.

The piece went splendidly from start to finish, and at the fall of the curtain the house rose, and the author was brought on the stage to bow to the storm of applause.

A solitary man in the gallery shouted, "I call it rot!"

"My friend," said G. B. S., "I quite agree with you, but what are we two against so many of a contrary opinion?"

I want another bottle of "Brick's Tasteless", it is the best preparation I have ever taken to give me an appetite.--apr28,1f

Standardizing Fish.

Which means, of course, codfish, and the purpose of the Bill now before the House of Assembly is to give legislative authority to those who may hereafter be appointed, all power to supervise and determine the grade and price of that article as it comes from the producer. As we take it from the chief clauses of the Standardization of Codfish Bill, the price in the local market will be fixed according to the inspection—size, type, condition, grade and quality being the factors in determining just what price the fishermen shall receive from those who will be the purchasers, in so far as their cure and make measures up to the standard of quality set by the regulations. Therefore it becomes not only obligatory, but compulsory on the part of the fishermen to govern themselves by the instructions, to be subsequently issued, and turn out a No. 1 article. Failure to do so will mean a loss to them in market prices, and the encouragement held out is that of close competition in taking every pains to maintain a superior standard to that which has heretofore been followed. Under the present Bill the makers of fish have to stand or fall by their own willingness, otherwise, to follow the rules and regulations.

The salient features of the Bill, as introduced by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and supported in the main by both Government and Opposition, are so important that a republication of its principal clauses may not be deemed amiss. To the fishermen themselves it will possess a compelling interest, and they cannot devote too much study to its provisions, as their success or failure to abide by them will mean prosperity on the one hand or loss of gain on the other. The burden of making good fish is placed directly on the fishermen themselves. A continuance of the careless methods of the past will not be tolerated, or if it is, the man who makes bad fish will suffer the consequences of losing considerably on the season's voyage. It is then squarely up to every fisherman who dries his catch to take pains. Conformity to the new Act will mean the turning out of a No. 1 article, for which a No. 1 price will be realized. Neglect of the instructions and disobedience to the rules will ensure, on the other hand, that a loss will inevitably follow. And this equally applies to Labrador as well as to Shore cured fish. Whether or not the new rules will entail any hardships upon those who are to be responsible for the making of codfish according to Act of Parliament, only time will tell, but there is this much about it, that a great deal more attention will have to be given the many processes through which codfish pass, before it is ready for shipment, if results are to be as the Bill directs.

There are great possibilities for the future well-being of the codfishery contained in Mr. Coaker's Bill, and if its operation is not too cumbersome and productive of delay in getting away cargoes to market, or of involving the fishermen in difficulties because of loss of time in inspection, thereby reducing the number of days of actual fishing, there is no doubt but that it will receive the hearty co-operation of all classes. Until, however, it is determined exactly how and by what means the inspection and standardization will be made, whether on the premises of the purchasers or at the stores of the fishermen, and just how many inspectors will be necessary, and by whom such inspectors are to be paid, the further details of the Bill have to remain undiscussed. But this much can be said: when it comes to a question of improving the cure of our staple export, the Telegram will not be the first to place any obstacles in the way of the men who are in earnest and sincere in their endeavors to bring about such a desideratum. For the further information of those interested, meaning all the people of Newfoundland, a digest of the Bill is given here-with:

1. There shall be a Commission to be appointed by His Excellency the Governor in Council which shall be known as the Codfish Standardization Commission.
2. The said Commission shall consist of not less than five or more than eleven persons, of whom the Minister of Marine and Fisheries shall be one, ex-officio, and shall be Chairman.
3. It shall be the duty of the said Commission to prepare and draft rules and regulations for the improvement of the manner in which said codfish (hereinafter called "fish") is prepared for sale and transported, and in particular governing the following matters, that is to say:
 - (1) The manner of catching, splitting, cleaning, salting, drying, pickling and preparing fish for sale and export; and generally, all and singular the operations involved in the preparation of salt codfish, from the catching of the fish to the production of the finished article.

- (2) The culling, selecting, assorting, standardizing, branding, and determining of the different types or varieties of fish, with a view to the establishment of grades thereof in the local and foreign markets and to the ensuring, so far as possible, of suitability for the several markets.
 - (3) The storage, packing, inspection, marking and weighing of fish.
 - (4) The lading, stowage, protection, dunnaging, covering, and all other matters connected with the carriage and conveyance of fish whether within this colony or from this Colony to other countries, and whether in ships, vehicles, or any other modes of conveyance.
 - (5) The establishment of standards of size, type, condition, grade and quality of fish, and the means of determining and enforcing the same.
 - (6) The fixing of differences between the prices of different sizes, types, conditions, grades and qualities in the local market, and the provision of methods for accurately determining such sizes, types, conditions, grades and qualities.
 - (7) The fixing of penalties for the breach of any of the rules and regulations to be made as aforesaid.
4. All such rules and regulations shall be laid before His Excellency the Governor in Council for approval, and if and when so approved and published in the Royal Gazette shall have the force and effect of law as if incorporated in this Act.

Court Had Busy Time.

(From Evening Telegram, May 15, 1919.)
"Forty-two representatives of the business houses on Water Street were present in the Police Court this morning. It was certainly unique to see so many of our leading citizens arraigned at the bar of justice, and we must confess that our feelings were truly indescribable when we entered the Court-room and glanced around. There they were, men in the highest commercial and social positions in the country—philanthropists, merchant-princes and politicians of the very first order. And what constrained them to be present? Why, nothing less than the omnipotent mandate of the presiding genius of the magisterial bureau. In short, they were there on a charge of violation of the following section of the Municipal Regulations Act:—
"Any person who shall place or deposit on any sidewalk in any of the said places, except in transit, any boxes, barrels, packages, or any other matter or thing, so as to obstruct free passage on the sidewalk, shall for every offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars."
We wonder if this Regulation is in force to-day (1920)?

New Pastor of Congregational Church

The Rev. Hugh Pedley, D.D., who is assuming the pastorate of the Congregational Church in this city for the summer months, arrived here yesterday by the S. E. Rosalia, and last evening occupied the pulpit of that church, being welcomed by a large congregation.
In his work of greeting Dr. Pedley said it was more than fifty years ago that on a bright summer day he left here with his parents in a sailing vessel for Quebec. They were then a family of ten. To-day only four are living—one a missionary in Japan, one in Ottawa, one in Toronto, and himself here; a successor to his father. This was his third time acting as "Eccelestiastical stop-gap" since retiring from the pastorate of Emmanuel Church, Montreal—three months having been spent in Portland, Oregon, and a similar period in Detroit—and he hoped that his intercourse with the congregation would be something more than pleasant, that the work of his Ministry would count something for the glory of God.
Dr. Pedley's theme last evening was the characteristics of Caleb, an outstanding figure among the Israelites at the time they were journeying in the wilderness: (1) his singleness of mind—he wholly followed the Lord his God; (2) his dauntless optimism—he believed things could be done. In developing and emphasizing these points the learned preacher delivered a practical and most impressive discourse.
Following the service the new pastor met the members of the Church and congregation, and on to-morrow evening a reception in honor of the Dr. and Mrs. Pedley is being held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Cowan. Dr. Pedley comes to us in the eventful of life, with a strenuous and successful ministry behind him. We extend him a cordial "welcome home" and trust his brief ministry will be as pleasant to him as we are sure it will be profitable to those to whom he will minister.

Funeral Ceremony.

The funeral of the late George A. Davey took place yesterday afternoon. Preceded by Undertaker Carnell, representatives of Dudley Lodge, S.O.E., and the Society of United Fishermen in full regalia, the procession proceeded to the C.E. Cathedral and at the western door was met by the choir and clergy and the casket brought to the Chancel Steps, the choir singing the late Mr. Davey's favorite hymn, "We love the place O Lord." The service was choral. Rev. Canon Jeeves officiating. The solemn dead march was played by the organist while the large congregation stood. The vestry members attended the funeral and walked as a body. After the service at the Cathedral, the procession proceeded along Governor Street and Forest Road, Canon Jeeves and Canon Field walking in clerical robes. The service at the graveside was conducted by Rev. Jacob Brington, who committed the body to the earth in sure and certain hope, while the choir chanted in perfect harmony the Nunc Dimittis. Following the Benediction the Societies present gave fraternal honors to their deceased brother, and all that was mortal to George A. Davey, good citizen, earnest church worker and of exemplary life and character, was left until the day when all shall be united again.

Inactive Spectators.

This morning a large Newfoundland dog lay for two hours wriggling in pain, on Duckworth Street, while a crowd looked on, including which was Mr. Curtis, Secretary of the S. P.C.A. Mr. Bastow was also on the scene, but had to leave to look for his shooting apparatus, and was gone nearly an hour, when he returned, but then took no action. The police had to call on Mr. Johnston, the Baker, who humanely procured some chloroform and put the animal out of pain.

HYPOCRITES.

LONDON, Ont., May 10.
Declaring that the moral uplifteners of Ontario are horrified if a man takes another drink, but satisfied if he takes another wife, Bishop Fallon of the Roman Catholic Diocese of London last night vigorously attacked the impending enactment of Legislation for easier divorce. "I would rather have a thousand drunkards, than one divorced man," said His Lordship.

Samuel Courtney Destroyed.

Messrs. T. H. Carter & Co. received a cable message yesterday from Gibraltar saying that the vessel Samuel Courtney had been destroyed by fire; no particulars are given as to how the fire took place. The captain and crew are at Gibraltar. The vessel was on a passage from Salerno, Italy, to Seville, Spain, with a cargo of stoves. The Samuel Courtney was one of the finest vessels in the trade; she registered 441 tons net, 531 gross and was launched in 1918.

STRIKE PLANS FAILED.

PARIS, May 9.
Leon Josphoux, Master Spirit of the French Federation of Labor, has failed apparently to strengthen the movement for the Nationalisation of public utilities by an ordering strike on transportation lines, subway and tramways in Paris. At ten o'clock this forenoon omnibuses were going about as usual, but there were only a few cabs seen.

Steamer's Crew on Carouse.

Says the Sydney Record of May 9: "The American steamer Widgeon, which bunkered at the coal piers here on Wednesday and proceeded to sea, was not far from port when the captain discovered that a goodly portion of his crew were missing. The boat did the 'about turn' and docked at North Sydney, from where frantic inquiries were made to find out where the men were. They were finally located at the local police station, where they had landed after a carouse at the Coke Ovens. There were five sailors, including the chief engineer. The men appeared before Magistrate Magah on Wednesday afternoon, and all pleaded not guilty to the charge of drunk preferred against them. They held that in the State of New York where they came from, a man was not drunk until he was on his back. Their plea, however, did not save them from being assessed a total amount of $20. They were taken in an automobile to North Sydney, and the Widgeon proceeded to sea."

BENON AND SIMS.

WASHINGTON, May 9. Rear Admiral Sims' charge that delays on the part of the Navy Department prolonged the war four months and cost five hundred thousand lives, was characterized Saturday by Admiral Benson, former Chief of Operations, as an outrage and injurious to the navy. Continuing his testimony before the Senate Investigation Committee, he said the charge if allowed to stand, would be "to the everlasting disgrace of the American Navy our first line of defence. The safe transport of the American army to France and back was the most wonderful feat the world had ever seen or dreamed of, and it shortened the war very materially," concluded Benson.

BLOODY BUTCHERY.

EL PASO, Texas, May 9. CHEAP!

So mercenary grows our hearts,
Our erstwhile foes, whom we would shame,
Must smile the while they contemplate
Our callousness to Britain's name.

For are we asked to celebrate—
A day of reverence to pay—
For all we owe her Flag and Fleet,
We answer an ungrateful "Nay."

"Empire!" place the faded word
Beside a paper Dollar Bill
And presto! we will chuck the same
And push said paper in our till.

We've used the day for flags and tags
And roared our British (?) voices hoarse;
But 'twas in dread of Prussian might,
Not pride in Britain's power, of course.

When battle raged, was it our fear
Of victory for the shrewder Huns,
That spurred our contributions to
The augmentation of the funds?

We gave our spaces in the press,
To call the brave and young to war;
We told them of the world's distress
And all the Flag was standing for.

And in the fulness of their strength
Right valiantly the youth replied;
But ask us not to bear in mind
The heritage for which they died.

It served its turn, this magic word,
We pledged, we pawned it, in the game—
But what a nuisance 'tis to be Compelled to recollect the same.

"Empire!" 'tis a hoax, for which
We send hot fools to die or kill;
To celebrate the same is waste:
Give us instead the Dollar Bill.

Ye who besport your O.B.E.'s,
And freaks of alphabetic craze,
How meaningless, how cheap must be
Their import now. Ah! vain the phrase

That made ye British Empire Knights,
Companions, Members, or the like,
If when that Empire's Day is here
'Gainst all for which it stands, ye strike!

But if our British boom's a frost—
A washout, our Imperial pride—
Then say, in Heaven's name, for what
And why, have Newfoundlanders died?

We heard of Duty till it rang
In echoes from the vaulted sky:
But Duty is a name for which
We ask the other man to die.

We know the glory that they won
Right in the face of death and hell;
But now we have nor time nor soul
To mark the cause for which they fell.

No, Trade's the thing, the only thing,
Let glory to the dreamers go;
Beware, say not that radiant fount
Whose draught can set brave souls aglow!

Nurse well the springs that feed its flow,
You'll need its ardour bye and bye,
And woe to those whose baser aims
Have let the stream of Glory die.

"A world-wide Empire, at whose name
The hearts of rescued millions thrill!"
So cheap, so cheap—in spite of blood,
It pales before the Dollar Bill!

If "Empire" comes to be a cant
For fakirs, fraud and profiteers,
What wonder if the Bolsheviks
Advice be ringing in our ears?

GIVES INTERESTING VIEW OF GERMAN EMPIRE.

North Sydney, May 8.—R. S. A. Allen, formerly of Harbor Grace, but now a prominent business man of Montreal, was a passenger on the S.S. Kyle. Mr. Allen in previous times spent five years in the employ of a large mercantile house in Hamburg, Germany, and speaks both German and French with fluency. He had an exceptionally good opportunity of studying German characteristics at first hand and free from war influence. He reviewed in an entertaining way the looseness of the German confederation compared with the union which exists between the component countries of Great Britain, and did not consider that Germany deserved the term of empire, though bound together by militarism. He blames the present unsatisfactory condition of affairs, regarding the enforcement of peace conditions, mainly upon President Wilson, who did not appreciate to its proper extent the racial feeling of the French, and suggests that Lloyd George was too much influenced by the American president. These influences certainly hampered Marshal Foch and delayed a satisfactory settlement of affairs. He considers that only under a republican form of government will Germany remain peaceful for any lengthy period of years. The proper way of securing the war payments to the Allies, Mr. Allen considers, would have been to occupy Hamburg and other big trading centers. In Germany, he says, there are over 2,800,000 tons of coal alone in sight, though she has lost in iron by being compelled to part with Alsace and Lorraine to France. While in most countries the trend at the present time was toward higher wages, shorter hours and less production, the Germans, by maintaining longer hours of labor, hoped to regain eventually the position which they had lost.

Newfoundland Freight Situation.

FAR FROM SATISFACTORY. North Sydney, May 8.—The Newfoundland freight situation is still in quite a congested state and yesterday there were still one hundred and fifty car loads of freight awaiting transportation to the Ancient Colony. But for the embargo recently placed on cars, the number would be much larger. In the course of two or three weeks the situation will be much easier, as three steamers are now carrying general cargoes from here to St. John's. The s.s. Meigle recently took down 28 1/2 car loads of freight, and the Sagona sight car loads. The regular boat on the route is taking full cargoes every trip.

Tanlac Proves Great Boon to Outport People.

Another Fisherman From Logy Bay Testifies to Its Merits.

Tanlac is proving a great blessing to the people in the Outports, many of whom are far removed from all medical aid. Statements are continually being received at the Tanlac office from people in all parts of Newfoundland, expressing their gratitude for the way this truly remarkable medicine has restored them to health, in many cases after years of suffering.

One of the latest of such statements comes from James McDonald, fisherman, of Logy Bay, who says: "For fully a year my stomach was so badly out of order I could never eat anything but what it would form gas and cause me great distress. I never seemed to get any strength out of my food and got so weak at last that if I tried to walk any distance my knees would give from under me and I would have to stop and take a rest. I was always having to ease up at my work just because I wasn't strong enough to stick at it. I had a lot of pain in the legs which seemed to me like rheumatism. At nights I couldn't sleep at all well and would get up in the mornings feeling all tired out and in poor condition to begin a day's work."

"The folks at home read a lot about the way Tanlac was helping people and restoring them to health and strength and they advised me to try it. So next time I came to St. John's I went along to Connors' drug store and got some. I can't say that the first bottle did me much good, but it seemed to make me sleep better, so I kept on with it, and I'm mighty glad I did, for now after taking seven bottles I am in the best of health again. My appetite is splendid and I never have any indigestion or stomach trouble of any kind. My food seems to do me good, for I'm ever so much stronger than I was, and must have put on a good many pounds in weight. I can now work hard or walk a long distance without getting tired, and never have any trouble with my legs. I've got every confidence in recommending Tanlac as a splendid medicine for us people in the Outports, and feel sure that nobody who uses it will be disappointed with the results."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's, by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale.—adv.

Wedding Bells.

The marriage took place quietly, on Wednesday evening, April 28th, in All Saints' Church, Montreal, of Maude, eldest daughter of Mrs. and the late George Neal, to Alan Roy, second son of John and Annie Clouston, both of St. John's. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Fee, Rector of All Saints' Church. The bride was given in marriage by Capt. James Kemp, and wore a travelling costume of navy tricot, black Parisian hat, white fox furs, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and ferns. The bride was unattended, but had as witnesses Mrs. James Kemp and Mr. Walter Laurie. After motoring around Montreal the happy couple returned to the home of Capt. and Mrs. Kemp, where a reception was held in their honour. After an extended honeymoon through Canadian and American cities they will reside at 483 Mt. Royal Avenue, East, Montreal.

In Memoriam.

Death has come into our ranks, and taken from us William J. Nauffts, the "Recording Secretary" of the N.L.W.A. We are the losers, he the gainer. How often have I heard him say:—"I am in the ranks of the N.L.W.A. that I might help others; misunderstood, probably I am in this world, but understood up there." Yes, Heaven understood Nauffts' motto—"Each for all, all for each." Now his reward has come Nauffts was not afraid to face death, because he shared what he had of this world's goods with those he knew needed it. He will ever be before us, as we continue the work without him.

WHAT IS IT ALL!

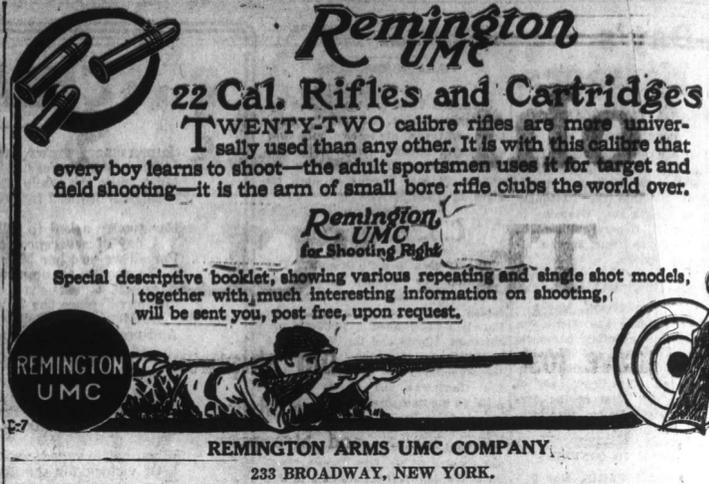

What is it all when all is told, This ceaseless tolling for fame or gold,
The fleeting joy or bitter tears?
We are only here a few short years;
Nothing our own but the silent past;
Loving or hating, nothing can last.
Each pathway leads to the silent fold
Oh! what is it all when all is told?

What is it all? A grassy mound,
Where day or night there is never a sound
Save the soft low-mourn of the passing breeze,
As it lovingly rustles the silent trees.
Or a thoughtful friend with whispered prayer,
May sometimes break the stillness there.
Then hurry away from the gloom and cold,
Oh! what is it all when all is told?

What is it all? Just passing through—
A cross for love and a cross for you.
Ours seem heavy while others seem light,
But God in the end makes all things right.
He tempers the wind with such loving care,
We know the burden that each can bear.
Then changes life's gray into heavenly gold,
Ah! that is all when all is told.

JULIA SALTER EARLE.
The late W. J. Nauffts was laid to rest yesterday afternoon, the funeral being attended by many of his fellow-unionists.

Boy And Girl Elope.

LAD OF 20 AND LASS OF 17 RUN AWAY.

Sydney, N.S., May 4.—Taking advantage of the absence of his sweetheart's father—who, it is said, objected to the attentions paid his daughter, James Carl did the cave man stunt on Monday when he is alleged to have abducted Lillian Buffett, of North Sydney.

The circumstances of the case were brought to light in the police court this morning when information was laid by Mrs. John Buffett, the mother of the girl, alleging abduction.

Both the parties concerned are under 20 years of age. Mrs. Buffett claims her husband is at present in Inverness county lobster fishing and his consent to the marriage is necessary.

In the meantime Carl, if detained, will be held on a charge of abduction until Buffett returns.

According to information given the city police the young man and his sweetheart are headed for Sydney, Carl is 20 years of age and Miss Buffett is 17.

ENDED IN WEDDING.
North Sydney, May 5.—The Carroll-Buffett elopement romance, which attracted much attention in Sydney yesterday, has ended as all good romances should with the happy marriage of the interested parties.

When Mrs. Buffett, mother of Lillian Buffett, went to the city yesterday and informed the police that James Carroll had taken advantage of the absence of the girl's father to elope with her, no trace of the young man could be found. Her parents objected to the match and this is said to have caused the trouble in the first place.

At any rate they were only hiding, for yesterday afternoon sometime they went to North Sydney and boarded the steamer Kyle, intending to go to Newfoundland. News of this move leaked out and they were taken on the boat by Chief Cowans and escorted to the Buffett home.

There a reconciliation was effected, and the mother gave her consent to the marriage, which was performed by Rev. Alfred W. Nicholls, after a ring and license had been procured from J. H. Allen.

They will reside in North Sydney.

MILLEY'S

From The Wild and Woolly West.

Yuma, Arizona, April 25.—The revolution in Mexico is right at our doors. Any moment we may expect to hear the sound of the guns as Sonora is only a few miles away. That great Mexican state has at last got tired of Carranza and his gang and is now attempting to drive out the unscrupulous politicians and bandits who have been strangling the life of Mexico. It is about time the decent people of Mexico, and the great majority of Mexicans come under that category, took some action to redeem the nation which has been the sport of bandits and cutthroats for many years. The cultured and prosperous state of Sonora has taken the lead and it seems probable that the revolutionary movement will soon embrace all Mexico.

NO WHITE FLAGS.

Last summer Mexicans attacked the American garrison at Nogales a few miles from here. There was a spirited battle in which about 100 Mexicans, and ten Americans were killed. The Mexican commander seeing the fight going against him asked the American officer in command, Captain Herrman, to send representatives under white flags to discuss terms of peace. Captain Herrman replied "We have no white flags, Americans don't use them." There have been many sharp battles on the border between Americans and "Greasers" although the two countries have never been officially at war. Last fall two Mexican officers who were implicated in a rising at San Luis, escaped over the border to Somerton, Arizona. Two days later Mexicans in a high powered motor car crossed the line, took the two officers and brought them back to Mexico where they were shot against an adobe wall. The alleged ringleader of the kidnapers, Captain Hilario Calles, is now awaiting trial at Yuma for murder. He was captured on a visit to this country two months ago.

CENTRAL SHOW ROOM

"Josie Marston, stand up. You have been found guilty of a most heinous crime. It was brutal in its conception and most fiendish in its execution. However, it's not only my purpose to dwell on the enormity of your crime; it is now my pleasant duty to enact a part that will forever place a quietus on your damnable career. It will soon be spring time Josie, and down in the wild woods will be heard the lowing of the kine and the tinkle of the bells, the merry prattle and laughter of the school children, as they romp merrily home from school making music for the weary ear; but you won't hear it Josie for you will not be there.

"Josie, the violets will soon be a bloom on the hill side and the meadows will be covered with blue and red. Nature will have dooned her fairest garments presenting in her gorgeous apparel a picture of variegated and bewildering beauty. She will, indeed, present a scene that has ever been the dream of poets and the despair of the painter's brush, but you won't see it Josie, for you won't be there. After summer with its quietude and rest comes winter, and the walling winds and chilling blasts will no doubt make distress for many an unfortunate wretch. But, don't let that fact worry you or cause you any anxiety, Josie, for you won't be there.

Josie, in passing sentence on a condemned criminal it's customary in this court to invoke the tender mercies of a higher court, but in your case we will dispense with that little formality. We won't use it here at all, for if I thought God Almighty would have any compassion on a wretch like you I would never think or speak of Him again except with utter contempt.

"Josie, on the sixth day of this coming month which will be next Friday, and I don't think there will be any eclipse of the moon or sun, I command that you be hanged by the neck until you are dead, dead."

The "Boys' Brigade" Founder.

Sir William Alexander Smith, founder of the Boys' Brigade, after a brief illness, died in London in his sixtieth year, on May 10, 1914. He had arrived in London from Glasgow on the Wednesday evening and was present at the annual demonstration of the Boys' Brigade at the Albert Hall on the Thursday, but on Friday, while at a meeting of the Brigade Executive he suddenly became unconscious, and died from hemorrhage of the brain. His body was taken back to Glasgow, where, on Sunday, the special church parades were held in view of the annual demonstration to be held on the following Saturday. Sir William, whose father and grandfather had held commissions in the Army was born near Thurso, Caithness, in 1854, and went to Glasgow when he was 14, where he entered the office of his uncle, a merchant. In 1874 he joined the 1st Lancashire Rifle Volunteers, and for six years as lieutenant, commanded the mounted infantry detachment. Passing through all the grades he rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel. Early in his Glasgow career he interested himself in work among boys as teacher and secretary in the Mission Sunday School of the Free College Church. It was his experience in this respect which led in 1883 to his formation of the Boys' Brigade, an organization which has become world-wide. In 1887 the spread of the movement was so rapid that Mr. Smith was asked to give up his business in order to become Brigade secretary, and this office he held down to the time of his death. He visited Canada as the guest of Lord Aberdeen, then Governor-General, and the United States, where he was a guest of President Roosevelt at the White House. His work was recognized by a national testimonial in 1908, and in the following year he was knighted.

Edmonton's Celebrations

OF 250TH ANNIVERSARY OF HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY.

EDMONTON, Alta.

With a street pageant embracing thirty-five historic floats, tableaux and living pictures illustrating pioneer times presented at one theatre and moving pictures that epitomize the fur trade at the Allen, Edmonton commemorated the 250th anniversary of the Hudson's Bay Company on May 6, 7 and 8th.

The tableaux were staged at the Empire theatre every night and were one of the most interesting features of the celebration. They included ten scenes, the costumes and stage setting of which were carried out with historic exactness. The scenes were:

1. King Charles II signs the charter May 2, 1670.
2. Prince Rupert, first of Hudson's Bay Company governors, and the directors take the oath of office.
3. Following the signing of the charter, King Charles and the lords and ladies of this court, appear at a ball at Whitehall palace. They dance the stately dances of that period and sing the original songs that inspired the cavaliers in the Cromwellian wars.
4. The Nonsuch ketch, first of the company's vessels to reach American shores, sails into James Bay.

5. Fort Charles, first of the company's fur posts. It was founded in 1674 and stood near the site now occupied by Rupert House on James Bay. Pompous old governor in red coat and ruffles holds his mock court in the wilderness stronghold. Indians bring in their peltries for barter.

6. Fort Edmonton founded in 1796.

7. Fort Edmonton 1850. Battle between Blackfeet and Crees when the latter were driven in flight into the protecting walls of the fort.

8. Fort Edmonton 1855. The garrison celebrating a Hudson's Bay company anniversary with vogueur chansons and Red river reels and jigs.

9. Fort Edmonton 1860. Big powder of Crees at the Fort. Indians from the Hobbema reserve will reenact this scene.

10. Pageant of fashions illustrating the changes in clothes from 1670 King Charles II. to 1920 under George V. All the costumes have been made by the Mallabars of Winnipeg from original and authentic designs.

The Edmonton street pageant which was the chief feature of the celebration in Edmonton was held Saturday afternoon, May 8. It comprised thirty-five floats picturing Hudson's Bay Company history. Indians, trappers and Royal Northwest Mounted Police, white officials, societies and civic bodies made the line several miles long. Sir Robert Kindersley, governor of the company, was in the parade.

The Edmonton celebration immediately followed that at Winnipeg which opened May 3. The other cities which will commemorate the anniversary are Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria. The festivities will end in Victoria May 24.

The Nervous Strain of Office Work

"BRAIN FAG," is the name usually applied when the nervous system of the office worker gets run down.

The brain demands an abundant supply of rich red blood. Once this is lacking, the thinking machinery slows down. Concentration of the mind becomes almost impossible and headaches are frequent.

At this season, as at no other, stenographers, bookkeepers and office managers feel the ill-effects of months spent in the vitiated air of super-heated offices.

The blood has got thin and watery, the nervous system is starved, efficiency is lowered and nature begins to give warning of nervous troubles.

The tired feelings tell you of the weakened condition of the nervous system and point to the need of rest. An hour or two earlier to bed and the regular use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will soon restore your energy and vitality.

It is well to remember that from a physical point of view you are approaching bankruptcy. To overcome this condition it is necessary to stop the waste of nervous energy as well as to add to the supply by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

As the appetite is sharpened and digestion improved by this treatment you will soon feel the benefit of this building up treatment. Headaches will disappear, you will sleep naturally and feel again the vigor and energy of health.

At all Druggists and Dealers. GERALD S. DOYLE, St. John's, Distributing Agent.

THE PRICE.
"They say my boy is bad," she said to me,
A tired old woman, thin and very
"They caught him robbing railroad cars an' he Must spend from five to seven years in jail.
His Pa an' I had hoped so much for him,
He was so pretty as a little boy,"
Her eyes with tears grew very wet an' dim.
"Now nothing that we've got can give us joy!"
"What is it that you own?" I questioned then.
"The house we live in," slowly she replied,
"Two other houses worked an' slaved for, when
The boy was but a youngster at my side,
Some bonds we took the time he went to war;
"I've spent my strength against the want of age—
We've always had some end to struggle for,
Now shams an' ruin smear the final page.
"His Pa has been a steady-goin' man,
Worked day an' night an' overtime, as well;
He's lived an' dreamed an' sweated to his plan
To own the house an' profit should we sell;
He never drank nor played much card at night,
He's been a worker since our wedding day,
He's lived his life to what he knows is right,
An' why should son of his now go astray?
"I've rubbed my years away on scrubbing boards,
Washed floors for women that own less than we,
An' while they played, the ladies an' the lords,
We smiled an' dreamed of happiness to be."
"And all this time where was the boy?" said I.
"Out somewhere playin'!"—Like a life shot
The thought went home—"My God!" she gasped a cry.
"We paid too big a price for what we've got."

CODFISH SHIPMENTS.—During the total shipments of dry cod from Nfld. amounted roundly to 6,000 quintals, of this amount 600 were shipped from Western Outlets and 47,000 from St. John's. Up to the close of April 38,000 quintals more had been shipped than at a corresponding date in 1919, reckoning from May 1st. It is believed now that the total of 1919 catch will not be much short of the previous. There are various opinions as to the balance of the fish still unshipped in the Dominion, and taking the estimate between two extremes we set the total at 200,000 qts. on April 30. Italy, Greece and Spain have practically ceased buying any more Nfld. fish of 1919 catch, and returns have yet been settled up on several of the cargoes that were shipped to these markets. The markets of Portugal and Brazil are now the main dependance for the balance of the 1919 fish, and the consumption in the former market at the close of the month was 80,000 quintals per week, which is an excellent average. The price in prices there, is on old and inferior fish. The good article in excellent demand and brings a price that pays the exporter well. Mail payments also are satisfactory. The past week shows a low record in fish shipments, the total being only 14,196 quintals dry and 5,418 in bulk. St. John's sent out 5,898 qts. to Bahia. From Marytown, 60 qts. were shipped to Barbados; from Grand Bank 1,180 qts. to Halifax, and from Laminine 4,318 qts. to Oporto. Of salt bulk, 5,418 qts. were shipped from Rose Blanche and Laminine to Boston and Gloucester. The fish is extremely dull in the city, but the arrival of the schooners from North and West is expected to bring in 50,000 quintals this month.

COD OIL.—The St. John's shipments of Common Cod Oil to date, amounting from January 1st, are exactly double what they were in 1919. During April the export was about 10,000 tons, bringing the record for the month of St. John's since New Year up to 10,040 tons as compared with 520 at the date last year. There is a limited quantity now on hand, and as demand holds good on both sides of the Atlantic, the highest prices of the year should be realized during May and June. The local quotation is keeping up to $310 per ton. This fish's shipment was 18,983 gals. to Halifax and Boston.

REFINED OIL.—In the month just closed 9216 gallons of Medicinal Oil were shipped to foreign markets, making a total of 216½ tons for the Port of St. John's as compared with 371 tons this date last year. There is a disposition on the part of many manufacturers to abandon refining cod oil the coming season, preferring to take the chance of getting a better price for rotted oil. This, we think will be a mistake. The present season's price will be lower. Our Medicinal oil has now a splendid reputation in the foreign markets and is preferred by some Druggists in the United States. 875 gals. were shipped, this week, to Montreal and Toronto. Nominal price to-day, $2.00.

BEEF.—There has been a steady decline in Beef all the month and the local prices of the different grades are now included between $20 per barrel for Fat and $37 for Special Family. Boneless is down to 32, according to quality. Dealers here, are expecting that Beef will be even lower than this in the Summer. The importation to St. John's for April amounts to 1533 barrels, showing a total since New Year of 5607 barrels as compared with 6050 barrels in 1919 at this date. It is a good thing to see that one article of supply at least used by the fishermen, is getting back to ante-war prices.

PORK.—During April the import record at the customs for Pork, shows 1,764 barrels. Total since New Year 9,186 barrels, as compared with 9,384 barrels at same date in 1919. Pork has shown a weakness all the past month, but did not decline in the same ratio as Beef. Mess and Fat Back are down to $51. Short Mess $59, and Family $56.50. The opinion of most importers is, that Pork has reached about its lowest point for this season. An ample supply has been ordered for the fishery requirements in addition to what is on hand.

FLOUR.—Quotations on flour kept steady all the month of April at about $17 per barrel wholesale for leading brands. The imports to St. John's in that month amounted to 5970 barrels and 500 sacks, bringing the total since New Year up to 23,026 barrels as against 42,198 for same date last year, showing a shortage of 19,172 barrels. Crop reports show a prospective shortage which may be taken as an indication that prices will probably be at least one dollar a barrel higher in June. The shortage in importation must be attributed to the fact that there were extra stocks imported last November and December.

SUGAR.—The imports of sugar since New Year to this port amount to 23,840 cwt., as compared with 22,376 cwt. for a corresponding period last year. The wholesale price all the month of April was 20 to 21 cents per lb. At the close of the month there was sharp advance at the U. S. and Canadian Refineries which will make white granulated to come in a few days hence, 26 cents per lb. wholesale. There is a big shortage in the Cuban crop, so that sugar prices are likely to rule at this high price till next winter.

MOLASSES.—There is no doubt now that molasses will be scarce and dear this spring and summer. The advance at Barbados in April was 20 cents a gallon, which put the price of new "Fancy" to $2.05 a gallon, "Choice" $1.90. The importation for last month was 588 puncheons by the schooners Norma B. Strong and Village Bell, from Barbados. Our yearly supply is about 12,000 puncheons all brought in between April and December. At present there seems to be no likelihood of the trade here being able to secure more than half this quantity. The Win The War and Annie Warren are due this month to Harvey & Co., from Barbados with cargoes of molasses, and the Carolina to Monroe & Co. The J. N. Rafuse, Clutha and Pellen are also expected with cargoes later.

SALT.—Since New Year only 14,519 tons of fishing salt have been imported. This is a better record than in 1919 but salt is still a problem. The shortage has been caused owing to the impossibility of getting steamers to freight salt here from Cadiz. The owners of freighters can do better work on other routes, and they have an exaggerated dread of ice on our coast in May and June. The importation for April was about ten thousand tons in sailing vessels. Messrs. Job Bros. are having a steamer cargo coming here next month and another large steamer is due with a load in June. If these arrive in time without mishap the problem will be solved for the early fishery. The price will likely be $3.70 to $4.00 per hhd.

POTATOES.—The usual May demand is setting in for potatoes for seeding purposes as well as table use. About the first of April the price was $7.00 to $8.00 a barrel for home grown and to-day it is $9.00 to $10.00 and $11. to $11.50 for Canadian and P.E.I. potatoes to arrive. There is a great scarcity all through Canada and the States and the widespread demand is driving up the price to unprecedented figures. There will be no relief from $10.00 to $12.00 potatoes till the new crop comes into the market in three months' time. People who have land and can get seed, would act wisely in raising all they can the coming summer.

AT THE BALSAM.—The following are guests at Balsam Place.—E. J. Ryan, Trinity; P. R. Holt, Montreal; Rev. D. H. Pedley and wife, Montreal; O. Hodder, Twillingate; Miss M. Snoderly, New York; I. E. Cheseman, H. Pettie, Burin; S. H. Crockett, Donavista.

Fishermen!

Here's the Boot for You!

Excel Boots

Have Pliable Uppers. Weather Proof and Weather Resisting. Tire-Tread Soles. Hard to Wear Out.

For Men and Boys.

Pliable Uppers, Weatherproof and Wear-Resisting. Tough Tire-Tread Soles. Hard to wear out.

You know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of the rubber and how the rubbers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use a fisherman's boot gets.

The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life or resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the drying-out action of sun, heat and cold far longer than other boots, consequently they don't crack anywhere so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto Tire, with 8 plies of rubber and fabric welded by tremendous pressure into a "tire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

These are exclusive features of "EXCEL" boots.

The picture at the left, of an "EXCEL" boot, with every detail of construction visible, shows how "EXCEL" boots are reinforced at every point of strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure which leaves the rubber pliable, weather-proof, and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

Below are listed seven special features which make "EXCEL" boots superior. Read them carefully so that when you need boots you will know how to get the best value for your money.

Seven Special Features that make the "Excel" Best.

FEATURE No. 1—The entire boot is cured under heavy pressure, forcing all parts together in "one-piece", and retaining the full life and resiliency of the rubber.

FEATURE No. 2—An 8-ply double sole of tough, durable rubber, made like an Auto Tire, running all the way under the full moulded heel. This sole and heel are so wear-resisting that they are commonly called the "tough on rocks" sole and heel.

FEATURE No. 3—A heavily reinforced boot which will withstand the hardest kind of wear.

Most reliable dealers sell "EXCEL" boots. Be sure to look for the name "EXCEL". Substitutes and "just as good" boots will not give you "EXCEL" service. If your dealer does not have them in stock, write us for name of nearest dealer.

FEATURE No. 4—Six plies at the instep relieves strain and prevents wrinkling or cracking.

FEATURE No. 5—Reinforced five-ply leg for extra wear. Just the right amount of strength to stand up, yet not be uncomfortable.

FEATURE No. 6—Four-ply top, very pliable.

FEATURE No. 7—Heavy duck lining, and a heavy insole prevent dampness and keep feet dry and comfortable.
