CHAPTER XXXV.

"No," he said, "it is too large a sum. I'm afraid we are up a tree, Lady Pauline. I've just seen Mr. Mershon; he wants to see Decima. I told him that she wasn't fit, and—well, I hinted that it wouldn't be the least use his seeing her. Decie knows her own mind, and once it's made up—Ah, yes, it's all over between Mershon and her. And, well, I'm glad it is—though," he added, faintly, "there'll be the devil to pay over these bills! But I don't seem able to think of anything but poor Gaunt!" he said, aloud. "I've just met Bright. He's terrible cut up; but somehow he can't bring himself to believe that Gaunt is dead. The next in succession is a cousin of Gaunt's. He is travelling abroad just now; but Bedford and Lang have written to him. There's no end of excitement in the village. Gaunt was more popular than one would have thought; and some of the women cried when they talked to me about him. One and all absolutely decline to believe him guilty of—of—They are all very sorry for Decie's illness. She's the Lady Beautiful of the village, you know."

Lady Pauline inclined her head. "And—and it was she who egged Gaunt on to undertaking all the improvements that have been made. Poor Gaunt!"

Bobby's eyes filled with tears as he turned from the room.

The next morning Decima came down-stairs. She was very pale and thin, and very weak still, and she looked but the ghost of herself as she sat in a low chair by the fire.

"Are you sure you are strong enough to leave your room, Decima?" asked Lady Pauline; and Decima had turned her face to her with a shadowy smile.

"Yes, aunt. I—I want to take up my life again as—as if nothing had happened. They—father and Bobby—want me." Her voice broke for a moment. "I can not lie there and think, think any longer. I want something to do, something that will help me to forget. But ah! no, no; I shall never forget!"

How could it be possible for her to forget the man who had loved her, and whom she had loved with all her heart and soul; or cease to remember with anguish that he had gone to his death with the charge of murder hanging over him.

In the afternoon, as she was standing at the window, looking sadly at the bare trees swaying in the wind, she saw Mr. Mershon open the gate and come up the path. Her hand went to her heart, and she looked round as if for help. Lady Pauline had gone down to the village with Bobby. There was no one to help her. Well, it was a part of her burden, and she must carry it. She rang the bell.

"Tell Mr. Mershon I will see him," she said.

She did not go back to her chair, but stood by the window waiting, and the light was full upon her face as she entered.

To him she looked more lovely than ever, with the sadness in the violet-gray eyes and the ethereal pallor of the girlish face. His eyes fell before hers as she regarded him steadily, and his hand shook as he took the one she held out to him. For a moment he lost his presence of mind, and no word of the speech he had prepared would come. Then, with an effort, he mastered his emotion, and said, almost abruptly:

"You're better, Decima? I'm very glad; I—I wanted to see you. I've had an anxious time, and—and—You're sure you're better?" he broke off, raising his eyes for an instant to the white face.

"Yes," said Decima. "I'm sorry you should have been anxious, and—and I am glad you have come."

"Of course I should come, the very first moment," he said. At sight of her all his passion revived, and he felt that he would move heaven and earth to keep her. "Of course they—Lady Pauline—told me, gave me your message, but I needn't say, Decima, that I didn't attach any importance to it. You—you—very likely you didn't know what you were saying when you sent me word that—you wanted to break with me."

"Yes," said Decima; "I was quite conscious, Mr. Mershon."

Her voice was low, but its steadiness surprised ever herself.

"You were?" he said, huskily. "Then—then I suppose you said what you did because you thought I should be annoyed, riled at your being mixed up with—with this affair of Lord Gaunt's? Of course, I—it was very natural that I should want an explanation; that I should want to hear all about your visit to his rooms and—and what took place between you."

"Yes," said Decima calmly; "it was your right. It is so no longer. But"—she went on as he opened his lips—"I will tell you, Mr. Mershon. I will tell you, because you will then see how—how impossible it was that I should have refrained from sending you my message. I went to see Bobby—"

"I know," he said, eagerly. "—And Lord Gaunt came in." As she spoke his name her eyes closed for an instant, and her hand slid along the edge of the wall as if she were seeking some support.

"And you were together there," he said, nodding gloomily. "What—what passed between you? Don't tell me if you don't like. I'm content to let bygones be bygones, Decima."

"I will tell you," she said. Her lips were quivering, but she steeled them. "Lord Gaunt—told me that he loved me."

Mershon started, and his face went black.

"The villain!" he muttered. Decima's face grew crimson, and her eyes flashed. She turned away as if she would not say another word; then suddenly she faced him again.

"He told me that he—loved me. And I—her voice broke for an instant, but she went on painfully—"I knew then that I had loved him for a long time. I shall love him while life lasts!"

There were no tears in her eyes, and they met his furious gaze unflinchingly, almost as if she did not see him, or had forgotten his presence.

"And you can tell me this!" he stammered, huskily. "You can confess that you love a man who was married already—a man who has committed a dastardly murder?"

Decima's hand went to her heart.

"He did not do it!" she said. "I know it!"

Mershon sneered.

"Oh, I've no doubt they have kept the story from you, or as much of it as they could. You haven't read the evidence."

"Yes; every word," she said. There was a strange light in her eyes, and her voice seemed to have gained a sudden strength. "Every word; and still I say that he was innocent! I know it!"

He glanced at her angrily.

"It is a lucky thing for him that he escaped having to face a jury," he said, with a sneer.

Her lips quivered, and her eyes closed, and a low exclamation of anguish broke from her involuntarily.

"Even—even if he had lived and they had found him guilty; even if I were convinced that he had done it—"

She stopped and looked beyond him as if she did not see him.

"Well?" he demanded. She lowered her eyes to his face.

"I should love him still!" came slowly from her white lips.

Mershon's rage and jealousy overmastered him.

"You must be mad!" he said, hoarsely. "After that shameful confession, there's nothing for me but to take myself off!" He snatched up his hat and looked toward the door; then his eyes seemed drawn toward her unwillingly.

"I—I suppose you have counted the cost of—of this rupture of our engagement?" he stammered. "You don't for-sum of money? Perhaps your brother—your precious brother," he sneered—"has made the consequences pretty plain to you?"

She looked at him as if she were trying to attend, to understand.

"I see you do," he said. "Well, of course, I stand by my word, and I expect you to stand by yours. I undertook, in the event of your marrying me, to take over your father's liabilities and to provide for your brother. As the marriage is off—as you break the engagement, and—and insult me by the statement you have just made, you can't expect me to carry out my part of the contract. You can understand enough of business to comprehend that."

"Yes, I understand," she said in a low voice. "I am sorry—yes, I am sorry that I can not marry you. But I can not! It would have been hard before, but now—" She turned away as if she felt that it would be impossible for him to understand what that now meant, and Mershon, with an almost audible oath, left the room.

His dog-cart was waiting for him, and he leaped into it and drove home to The Firs at a gallop. As he tore up the steps and entered the hall, his sister came out from the drawing-room. She held a telegram in her hand, but in his fury he did not see it.

"Where are you going?" he demanded, for she had on her out-door things.

"I—I was going to The Woodhines to—to inquire for Decima—to see if she was well enough to see me," she faltered.

"Then you won't do anything of the sort!" he snarled. "You won't go there again—do you hear?"

"What—what has happened, Theodore?" she asked, timidly.

"The engagement's broken off!" he said, huskily, as he flung his hat aside and drew his hand across his sweat-crowded brow. "She's—she's behaved shamefully! She's disgraced herself! She's not fit for a decent man to marry! She—" The words seemed to choke him, and he broke off with an oath. "But I'll punish her! I'll punish her! I've got that old fool of a father of hers under my thumb—and that young ruffin, the brother, I'll punish her through them. Yes, by God! I'll have them truned out into the street within a week! I've told Gilsby to act."

"Oh, Theodore!" she faltered. "Poor child—poor child! You will not—"

"Won't I?" he broke in, with a malignant sneer. "Poor child! A pretty child! To admit, to boast, that if—if that beast were proved guilty, she'd—she'd love him still! What! do you think I'm a dog, a cur, to be kicked aside and not resent it? I'll have my revenge! I'll turn them into the street! What the devil are you crying and trembling at? Here, what's that?"

He snatched the telegram from her hand and tore open the envelope.

She was going back to the drawing-room, when she heard him utter a cry, a cry of rage and baffled fury, and she turned back.

Mershon was leaning against the wall, glaring at the telegram. He raised his head presently, and his lips moved, but no sound came. The telegram fell from his hand, and in fear and trembling, she went forward and picked it up. He did not prevent her, and she read the wire. It was from Mr. Gilsby, the lawyer, and it ran thus:

"All D's bills met. Some one has undertaken to discharge all his liabilities. Will write."

Canada's Labor Problem Not For Federal Solution.

Provincial Governments Must Make Their Own Arrangements—Arthur Henderson Talks of Irish Situation—British Cabinet Approves Reduction in Expenditure—Sir George Foster Joins Army of Benedicts.

BRITAIN REDUCING EXPENDITURES.

LONDON, Dec. 9. Members of the House of Commons had been warned to-day that important divisions were impending and accordingly mustered in strength in anticipation of a vigorous debate on the question of the hour, viz., economy in public expenditures. A motion was submitted by Geo. Lambert, Liberal M.P., which would have prohibited expenditure during the coming year in excess of $98,000,000 pounds sterling but the House showed itself unfavourable to a hard and fast line and approved an amendment urging the Government to reduce the cost of public services to the utmost possible limits. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, joined in the debate and announced that the cabinet had resolved on reducing the military estimates on stopping schemes of social reform, involving expenditure and permitting no new construction of the Navy until the seasons of the war had been definitely ascertained.

NOT A FEDERAL CONCERN.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9. The attitude of the Dominion Government towards the unemployment situation in Canada is set forth in a statement which was issued to-night from the Office of the Minister of Labour. It is stated in brief that unemployment problems are the more direct concern of the municipalities or provinces in which unemployment exists and that the federal government, with primary by such municipalities or provinces. Federal aid should be given only when the problem becomes too difficult to handle locally.

TRYING TO SOLVE LABOR PROBLEM.

TORONTO, Dec. 9. Great efforts are to be made by members of the Drury Cabinet to transfer surplus labor now in the city to outlying districts. To-day, Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture, conferred with officials of his department toward arranging for agricultural districts to absorb some. Every agricultural representative has been instructed to immediately come to his district and see how much help can be employed by farmers.

HENDERSON ON IRISH CONDITIONS.

HOUGH GREEN, Dec. 9. Arthur Henderson, who has just returned from Ireland, where he went on a trip of inspection on the Labor

Commission, said in an address to-night that if British Statesmanship was not equal to the opportunity which he was now convinced was open a hopeless situation as far as Ireland was concerned was bound to arise. It was impossible for him, he said, to exaggerate the deplorable conditions prevailing there. "Coercion is applied with such discriminate violence," Henderson declared, "that people are terror stricken. The unhappy inhabitants are all armed day and night and their country is under the heel of resisting military occupation." "It is actually true to say that life was safer in Brussels during the German occupation than it is now in Cork, Dublin and Londonderry. No man, no safe, even women and children run terrible risks of being shot while in the streets. The economic life of the country is coming to a standstill."

THE IRISH QUESTION.

LONDON, Dec. 9. It is announced that Premier Lloyd George will make an important statement on Ireland on the opening of the House of Commons at noon Friday.

NEITHER DENIES NOR AFFIRMS.

DUBLIN, Dec. 9. Press reports that the Government has entered into negotiations with Sinn Fein leaders are alluded to in Dublin Castle's Weekly Summary of Events as a matter interesting all sections of the Irish public. The castle's statement neither confirms nor denies the accuracy of the reports, but remarks that there is no doubt that a majority of the people are anxious for a settlement in order to be relieved of the present abnormal conditions, endangering personal liberty and property.

TAKING UP THE WGAE FIGHT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9. A needless Trades' Alliance was launched here to-day as an organization of five big clothing labor unions which had decided to take up the wage fight with the manufacturers in New York and Boston. The announcement of this decision this morning followed the formation of the Alliance by delegates of unions representing five hundred thousand needle workers.

WAGE REDUCTION.

BOSTON, Dec. 9. A wage reduction of twenty-two and a half per cent. in the Textile Mills of the New England and New York State was forecasted to-day in a statement issued after a conference of the Textile the manufacturer. The industry is understood to employ three hundred thousand workers.

SIR GEORGE FOSTER MARRIED.

GENEVA, Dec. 9. Sir George E. Foster, head of the delegation from Canada to the Assembly of the League of Nations, was married here this morning to Miss Jessie Allen. The bride was given away by A. J. Balfour, head of the British delegation. Sir George was attended by Hons. N. W. Rowell and Payne of the Canadian delegation.

CREW MUTINIED.

LONDON, Dec. 9. The officers of the Italian submarine chaser 618 were treacherously bound and gagged by their crew, according to a Times despatch, describing the desertion of the vessel from the blockading Italian fleet to the Fiume forces.

WILSON'S REPLY DISAPPOINTING.

GENEVA, Dec. 9. President Wilson's negative reply to the League of Nations' invitation to name an official delegate to co-operate with the Commission to be appointed by the Assembly to discuss disarmament, has caused great disappointment here. The desire of the Assembly members seem to be to maintain as many points of contact as possible with the United States, and it was thought the disarmament investigation afforded an opportunity of which President Wilson could take advantage without committing himself.

VISITING RELATIVES.

SYDNEY, Dec. 9. About one hundred and fifty of the two hundred families who have left here since the strike of railway employees at the Dominion Plant began are Newfoundlanders, who have returned to the island to visit relatives while waiting for the strike to blow over. In spite of official denials, stories of big rail orders for the Dominion Plant persist.

TRAWLER ASHORE.

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 9. Efforts were being made to refloat the French steam trawler Gabrielle, which went ashore last night at Livingstone's Shoal, near Low Point, enroute here for bunker. Her cargo of fish is being removed and it is hoped she can be pulled off the rocks when the sea goes down. The crew got off safely and are here.

LUXEMBURG AND FINLAND ADMITTED.

GENEVA, Dec. 9. The League of Nations Committee of admission of new States yesterday decided in favour of the admission of Luxembourg and Finland.

MEXICAN GOVERNMENT RECOGNIZED.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 9. Japan and Brazil have recognized the new Mexican Government, according to the Foreign Office here.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Dec. 9. Records at the Employment Bureau show a marked increase in unemployment among women and girls during the past month here.

PROSPECTS IRISH TRUCE REVIVED.

LONDON, Dec. 9. Prospects of an Irish Truce have been revived, says the Daily Mail, as a result of private interview between Patrick Joseph Clune, Bishop of Perth, and Lloyd George yesterday.

NOT PRO-GERMAN.

PARIS, Dec. 9. Suggestions, that he is Germanophile were repudiated last night by Hon. orio Pueyredon, head of the Argentine Mission, which has withdrawn from the Assembly of the League of Nations.

A SOCIALIST PRESIDENT.

VIENNA, Dec. 9. Dr. Michael Hainisch was to-day elected President of the Austrian National Assembly. Dr. Hainisch is a prominent Socialist.

TURKISH-ARMENIAN TREATY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 9. The Peace Treaty between Armenia and Turkish Nationalists as reported to have been signed in Alexandropol. Under the Treaty Armenia's territory will be reduced to only the region of Erivan, the capital and Lake Kochka, excluding Kars and Alexandropol.

ASKING AID FOR CHINA.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9. President Wilson to-day called on the people of the United States to contribute to funds to relieve the appalling distress in China, resulting from famine in several of the provinces. The President said that in order to insure an orderly collection of contributions, he had invited a nation wide committee to attend their aid.

BRITAIN'S NAVAL POLICY.

LONDON, Dec. 9. No programme of capital ship construction for the navy will be presented to Parliament until the whole question of naval strength as affected by latest developments in naval warfare has been exhaustively investigated by the Committee on Imperial Defence and results of such investigations have been considered. This announcement was made in the House of Commons to-night by J. Austin Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer. "The Government has welcomed the decision that the Committee on Imperial Defense shall exhaustively investigate the question of naval strength as affected by latest developments in naval warfare," said Chamberlain, and will present no programme of capital ship construction to Parliament until the results of that inquiry have been considered. Chamberlain's announcement was the outcome of a set debate in the Commons to-night, arising from a big attack on the Government and from agitation in favour of a navy equal to the navies of the United States and Japan.

MRS. MACSWEENEY TELLS STORY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9. The life story of the late Terence MacSweeney, Lord Mayor of Cork, who died of self starvation in Brixton Prison, was told to-day by his widow before the Commission of One Hundred. Mrs. MacSweeney's accounts of the numerous arrests of her husband and his efforts on behalf of a Free Irish Nation and her attacks on the British Government, were punctuated alternately by applause and sobs.

D'ANNUNZIO'S NAVY INCREASING.

LONDON, Dec. 9. A third Italian war vessel, the destroyer Espero, has joined D'Annunzio's forces at Fiume, says a Milan despatch to the London Times.

SPANISH STRIKE OFF.

STOPS AT NOTHING.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 9. HALIFAX, Dec. 10. The Norwegian steamer Romdalsfjord, struck a sunken ledge near Sambro, off Halifax Harbor at three o'clock this morning. No loss of life is reported, but there is a heavy sea running and the ship is in a perilous position. She is about half a mile to the eastward of the rock upon which the "Bohemian" struck last February. Tugs were sent her assistance after S.O.S. calls were received. The Romdalsfjord is a freighter of 3,000, bound from Norway to New York, and was putting in here for bunker.

REFUSED INCREASE.

MONTREAL, Dec. 10. The refusal of the ladies' garment workers request for an increase of eight dollars a week is an outstanding feature of a decision rendered by an arbitration board between the workers and employers. EXPECTED TO-DAY.

LONDON, Dec. 10. An announcement of the conditions under which the British Government would enter into negotiations with Sinn Fein were expected from Premier Lloyd George in the House today.

Reported Looting at Rose Blanche.

Reported Looting at Rose Blanche.

During the past couple of days there has been much talk of occurrences at Rose Blanche, but so far the news received seems conflicting if not vague. It is believed that the Government has full possession of the facts and so far have succeeded in keeping them suppressed. The first report to reach the city said that the people of the place had broken into the stores there and taken provisions. The other rumor and possibly the correct one is that upon an attempt by a large mercantile premises to remove their stocks from the place, the people turned out en masse and prevented the accomplishment. Seeing that during the winter months there may be a serious shortage of food, the latter course is what a sensible people would do.

Deported.

A dejected passenger returning to Newfoundland Saturday night was a Portuguese sailor named Jose J. Duas, who arrived here only a few hours previous on the same steamer from the same place. The man could not speak a word of English and twelve American dollars was every cent he possessed. The sailor was quickly spotted by the immigration officer. Jose had his discharge papers showing he sailed on several crafts. He also had a letter purporting to be written by the well known St. John's firm of Goodridge & Son, which stated the fellow was being conveyed to his home in Portugal on the schooner Nauta at the request of the Portuguese consulate at St. John's. Inasmuch as the man had no vessel by that name accompanying him, and no such craft at this port, there was nothing left for Mr. Dooley but to send him back at the expense of the Newfoundland Railway Commission. It would appear that a whole lot of misery and expense could be spared unfortunates of the above

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO IT NOW, UNLESS—

Some years ago, a wave of motto hanging engulfed the business world.

Business men of all classes hung mottoes of various import over their desks. One favorite was, "Be brief. We have our living to earn and it takes most of our time to do it." Another, "Do it whose homes are most accessible, instead of making the extra effort required to keep in touch with the people whose personalities really mean the most to us.

We hear about some specially worthwhile book and fully intend to read it, but find ourselves, instead, spending our time for reading on the magazines and books that happen to be near at hand.

There are, of course, natures that need such admonitions as, "Do it now," or the older, "Do the thing that's nearest, though it's hard the while," but I think there are quite as many that need to be reminded to look beyond the thing that is near at hand and not let mere nearness obscure and distort true values.

Loon Killed An Indian.

In Hertfordshire, England, the other day, a boy who foolishly went to look at a swan's nest was tackled by the cock bird and had an arm broken. The swan fights with its wings, and can deal a most tremendous blow. The gender will put up a good fight, if cornered, but he is more of a bluffer than the swan. He delights in chasing anyone who will run away from him, but turn on him with a stick, and it is he who does the running. The crane tribe use their long and powerful beaks as daggers, and are really dangerous, if wounded. They invariably strike at the eye of their opponent. A few years ago, an Indian who shot a loon on the Great Slave Lake, and went to pick it up, was killed outright by the bird, which drove its spear-shaped beak right into his brain. Owls will sometimes attack human beings, but it seems probable that this is not intentional. It is rather that they mistake people's heads or hats for rats or other prey. There is an amusing account of some lumber men who dared not venture out at night on account of some unseen enemy robbing them of their fur caps. They thought it was the Evil One and were mightily relieved to find that the robber was merely a large brown owl.

Household Notes.

Keep a supply of cinnamon sugar in an attractive jar. Cinnamon toast is then quickly made.

Left-over cauliflower may be mixed with some other vegetable and baked in scallop shells.

If ashes are allowed to accumulate in the fireplace, they will burn the feet of the andirons.

A wart may be removed without soreness by applications of oil of cinnamon three times a day.

A large marble boiled in milk or custards will automatically stir the liquid and prevent burning.

Gloves will not streak if washed in cool water, squeezed dry, and stuffed with crushed paper.

Add a spoonful or two of baking powder to the turkey dressing. Do not pack too tightly in the fowl.

Biscuits will be lighter if the dry ingredients are sifted together before adding shortening, milk and egg.

Roast pigeon is delicious stuffed with mushroom chopped and mixed with soup stock and breadcrumbs.

Heavy suds are good for cleaning the cloth tops of shoes. Apply with a stiff brush and rinse with a sponge.

If you wrap your cheese in a cloth moistened with cold vinegar, the cheese will neither mold nor dry.

Secrets of Sacred Cities.

Behind the announcement that the Spaniards were, at the time of writing, about to occupy the Holy City of Sheshuan (pronounced Shez-he-wan), in Morocco, is an interesting romance of religion.

Four hundred and fifty years ago, when Christian civilization was making itself strongly felt throughout the countries of the world, a number of fanatics in Morocco, headed by one Muley All Ben Rachid, determined to isolate themselves from the rest of the world by building a city of their own.

They chose a spot surrounded by a natural barrier of mountains, about sixty miles directly south of the Straits of Gibraltar, and there built Sheshuan, a city which has never been trodden by a white man. A stranger who tried to penetrate the city would probably be instantly killed, and the only instance on record of a white man running the risk was that of a French explorer, the Vicomte de Foucauld, who reached the suburbs of Sheshuan disguised as a native.

Fortunately for him, he was turned back by the authorities before he could penetrate the inner town.

Spanish airmen, however, have flown over the city, although they have learned little beyond the fact that it contains many mosques and religious foundations, has a busy bazaar, and large public baths. One of the principal buildings in the city is the large mosque built by Rachid. Morocco, by the way, boasts of two other sacred towns—Zarhou and Wazou—only the latter, which is about fifty miles south of Sheshuan, being open to Europeans.

LANDLORDS.

I am looking for a shelter for my dachshund and my wife, and I can't get it, through the city's noise and strife. I would rent some humble attic two miles higher than the street, but the landlord plutocrat names a price I cannot meet. I would rent a rusty basement underneath a squalid flat, but the landlord, from his casement, names a price that lifts my hat. Oh, the landlord is a pester who would scalp me with his knife, and I wander, seeking shelter, with my dachshund and my wife. Up and down the streets. I trundle, with my money in my hand, but my paltry little bundle doesn't seem in much demand; thro' the town I've roamed and rubbered, and I hunt for lodgings still, but one cannot rent a cupboard with a fifty-dollar bill. And the landlord, fat and greasy, pays no heed to my despair, to my haggard cheeks and creases, to the snow that streaks my hair. He has no respect for sorrow; if I wish to rent a berth, I must go and steal or borrow more than his old coop is worth. Men in summer heat I sweeter, when the winter storms are rife, I must vainly seek for shelter, with my dachshund and my wife; and some morning you will find us lying in an alley dead, with our trail of smoke behind us, and a bitter sky o'erhead.

Wrestling Tournament To-Night.

The much advertised Wrestling Tournament and boxing competition will be held to-night in the C.L.B.C. Armoury under the auspices of the C.L.B.C. Athletic Association. This sport, which of recent years has been neglected, owing principally to the war, is again being revived and lovers of the catch-as-catch-can game will be well rewarded by visiting the C.L.B.C. Armoury this evening. There will also be a five round contest (boxing exhibition) between two well known Naval Ratings of H.M. Wireless Station, which will be one of the great attractions. Mr. S. P. Cullen, the well known referee, is once more "on the job" and this is a guarantee that the game will be fair and just. The entries will not be finalized until this afternoon, so any intending competitor still has time to enter and show his skill. Weighing in sharp at 7.30 p.m., and patrons are advised to come early and secure their seats. Reserved seats are being sold at the Royal Stationary Co. Three doors east of the Court House, and to secure a good ring-side seat, all are advised to book immediately. The prizes are now on exhibition in the window at Messrs. James Baird, Limited, and in addition there is a splendid photo of "Newfoundland's only competitor" in the great Paris International Games, Capt. F. W. Marshall, Royal Newfoundland Regiment, who was also a winner, and received his prize from the hands of General Pershing. Up to the present the following have entered for the different contests:

Lightweight—A. Hennebury, A. White, T. Hall. Heavyweight—C. Martin, H. Pitcher, T. Coffey. Middleweight—S. Bradbury, A. Hammond, A. Martin. Bantamweight—J. Murphy, C. Stone, F. Stone.

With such well known exponents of the noble art of wrestling taking part in the contests, an enjoyable evening is in store for the sporting public. It is hoped that, as ladies have always shown keen interest in this sport, they will signify their continued interest by attending to-night in large numbers.

Last Week's Storm.

The storm of last Thursday and Friday was one of great severity. At Curling and vicinity fences were blown down, chimneys damaged, and the railway bed at Seal Head badly washed away by the sea. The schr. Grace P. Brown went ashore at Benoit's Cove and a cargo of salt was lost. The schr. Earl Grey harboured at Lark Hr. The schr. Emerald Burke, Capt. Seeley, which sailed on Wednesday for Halifax, went ashore at Port au Port Bay. In the Gulf the full force of the storm was felt, and the Kyle crossing from North Sydney to Port aux Basques experienced the roughest trip since being on that route. It took her about thirteen hours. Her decks were swept by the seas throughout the trip, but the good ship under the capable direction of Captain Stevenson and his efficient officers came through safely and docked at Port aux Basques an hour before noon on Friday. Along the South Coast the coastal steamers and other shipping were completely tied up, it being one of the worst storms on that part of the coast for many a day.—Western Star.

The B.I.S. Dramatic Troupe are now working enthusiastically on a production which they will put on at the Casino Theatre about the end of January. As the cast includes Mr. P. F. Moore and other well known local artists, the production will undoubtedly receive a hearty welcome from the playing public. A fuller announcement will be made shortly.

Drastic Regulations.

HAS NEWFOUNDLAND NO POWER OF RETALIATION?

A number of laborers who arrived here by the steamer Kyle this morning escaped deportation by inches. Twenty minutes after they had passed the necessary immigration requirements, Immigration officer Dooly received instruction from headquarters which would not have permitted their landing here.

The amended immigration requirements are much more restricted than generally believed, particularly as will be noticed in Clause 2 of the new regulations, which read as follows:

1. No immigrant of the mechanic, artisan or labourer classes, whether skilled or unskilled, shall be allowed to land in Canada unless he possesses in his own right money to the amount of $250 and in addition transportation to his destination in Canada.

2. If an immigrant of the mechanic, artisan or labourer classes, whether skilled or unskilled, is accompanied by his family or any member thereof, the foregoing regulations shall not apply to such family or members thereof if the head of the family possesses in his right, in addition to transportation for his family to destination in Canada, a further sum of money equivalent to $125.00 for every member of the age of 18 years or upwards, and $50.00 for each child of the age of 5 years and under the age of 13 years.

3. The provisions of the two preceding paragraphs shall be applicable as from the 15th day of December, 1920, to immigrants of the classes herein specified who land in Canada from foreign contiguous territories, and to other immigrants of the classes specified who land in Canada from other countries on or after the 1st day of January, 1921.—North Sydney Herald, Dec. 7.

Callous Treatment.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Returning home last night I was horrified to see a young lad of not more than fourteen years of age being escorted down Long's Hill—I presume to the police station. All the clothing the lad had on was a single which did not cover his waist, while his captors possessed heavy overcoats in addition to their ordinary clothing. Now, Sir, leaving aside the moral aspect, was it a Christian act to expose the lad to the weather at this time of the year, which may mean his death. I do not know the circumstances, but surely in this age of enlightenment, something should be done to prevent happenings of this nature. Yours truly, DECEMENCY.

"Talk Horse."

Winter is near and the prospects fine for some good and healthy sport. Our number of fast horses has been considerably increased. The Irishman has 'em, the Englishman has 'em, and the Scotchman has 'em. It is said Almighty God made the whole of us, but at times it looks as though He must take small credit to Himself for the job, when He hears the unkind things we say of each other and the more unkind things we do to each other. Come on the Irishman, Come on the Englishman and come on the Scotchman (with a wee drapple). Let us away to the Lake and lose ourselves in the kingly sport. The dear old nags are wickering in the barn, lovely creatures that they are. They'll close a gap and teach us a Diviner way. Horsemen! here's your creed, by J. Witcomb Riley:

"I love my God the first of all, Then Him that perished on the Cross; And next my wife, and then I fall Down on my knees and love the Hoss."

Asleep for Years.

MODERN RIP VAN WINKLES.
The story which came from New York recently of the awakening of a woman named Clara Jorgensen is not without a parallel. Mrs. Jorgensen was lying motionless and speechless in the Racine Asylum for this long period.

Throughout it was necessary to feed her like a baby, and although cognizant with every word spoken to her, she was powerless to move until after receiving a visit from her little six-year-old nephew. His childish chatter seems to have caused something to snap in her brain, and her former control over her muscles returned.

A Thirty-two Years' Slumber.
It is just a year ago since Mrs. Dora Muntz, of New York, was afflicted with a similar state of mind and body, which lasted for one hundred and two days and nights. After putting on a kettle for tea she settled down to enjoy "forty winks."

In this case Mrs. Muntz appears to have lost count of the winks, for it was not until the one hundred and third day that she woke up again, having been roused by one hour's steady rendering of Schubert's Serenade, someone having remembered her passion for it and hired a professional violinist for the experiment.

Another interesting case was that of a girl of Scottish descent, whose sleep in a trance lasted five months. Following a severe attack of mumps, this girl, of fine athletic build and unusual strength, occasionally lapsed into fits of unconsciousness.

This so alarmed her parents that they consulted the medical authorities at King's College Hospital, Denmark Hill. They were completely baffled, however, and believed nothing short of a miracle could save her. "Does she know you when you speak to her?" a friend asked her father. "Yes, occasionally," he replied. "If I am lucky enough to catch her during one of the short periods of consciousness, but it is terrible work to get her to speak at all."

One of the greatest of sleeping mysteries is that which resulted in the death of Margaret Bangare, "The Dormouse of Menelles." This young and pretty girl was rendered unconscious as the result of a practical joke, and lay in a comatose state for twenty years. Medical celebrities from all parts of the world flocked to see her, but were unsuccessful in diagnosing the case or arousing her from her protracted sleep, and she died in 1903.

Surely a subject for the speculative psychologist is the record sleep induced in by Caroline Ohlson, a Swedish girl. In 1875, when only a child of fourteen years, she fell into a long trance in the island of Okuko, in the Baltic, and remained unconscious for thirty-two years. Food was administered to her, although she seemed quite unconscious. Nor did she respond to any inquiry during that long time. Then suddenly she awoke, no longer a girl, but a middle-aged woman, and the most careful examination could not reveal the slightest weakness or mental effect. After coming out of her long trance Caroline enjoyed very good health.—Tit-Bits.

The Admiral's Joke.

Lord Charles Bessford was in the Carlton Club and had just received a shilling's-worth of stamps from the waiter when Mr. Bankes-Stanhope, a fussy old member, reproved him for smoking a cigar, smoking being strictly forbidden in the hall.

"He reproved Lord Charles for his breach of the club rules in, as I thought, quite unnecessarily severe tones" (writes Lord Frederick Hamilton). "The genial admiral kept his temper, but detached one penny stamp from the roll, licked it, and placed it on his forefinger."

"My dear Stanhope," he began, "it was a little oversight of mine. I was writing in there, do you see" (a friendly little tap on Mr. Bankes-Stanhope's shirt, and on went a penny stamp), "and I moved in here, you see" (another friendly tap, and on went a second stamp), "and forgot about my cigar, you see" (a third tap, and a third stamp left adhering).

"The breezy admiral kept up this conversation, punctuated with little taps, each one of which left its crimson trace on the old gentleman's white shirt front, until the whole shilling's-worth was placed in position."

"Mr. Bankes-Stanhope was too irate to notice these little manoeuvres; he maintained his hectoring tone, and never glanced down at his shirt front."

"Finally, Lord Charles left, and the old gentleman, still puffing and blowing with wrath, struggled into an overcoat and went off to an official party."

Empress's Lost "H's."

That the late ex-Empress Eugenie was somewhat weak in her aspirations is illustrated by the amusing reminiscences of Dr. Ethel Smyth, the composer, who lived near the Empress and enjoyed her intimate friendship.

On one occasion there was a gathering of harriers in front of the Empress's residence. She came out on to the gravel sweep and, bowing right and left to the westward, said, repeatedly: "Put on your 'ats. I pray you put on your 'ats."

The Master was then presented, to whom she remarked: "I 'ope the 'ounds will find the 'are near the 'ouse."

WITH DOG AND GUN.

Out in the woods with a dog an' gun is my idee of a real day's fun. 'Taint the birds that I'm out to kill that furnish me with the finest thrill, coz I never worry or fret a bit. Or curse my luck if I miss a shot; There's many a time, an' I don't know why,

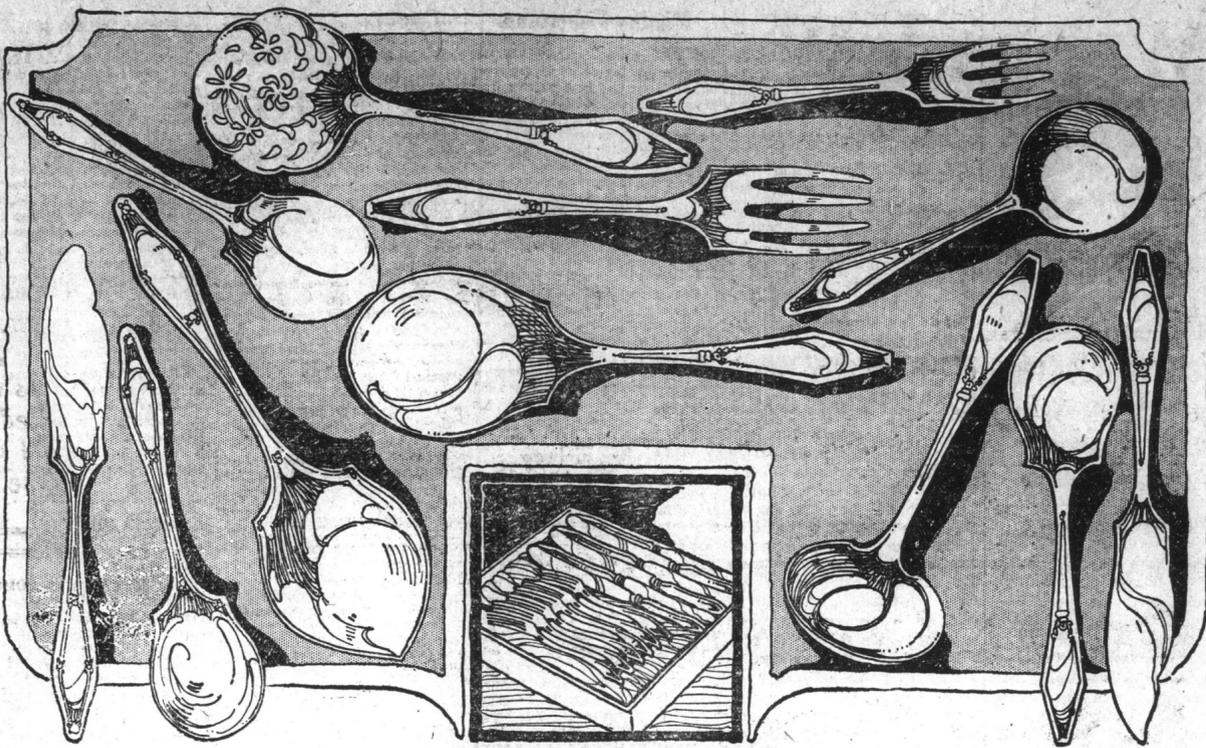

That I shoot too low or I aim too high, An' all I can see is the distant whirr Of a bird that's gittin' back home to her—
Yep, gittin' back home at the end o' day.
An' I'm just as glad that he got away.

There's a whole lot more in the woods o' fall Than the birds you bag—if you think at all. There's colors o' gold an' red an' brown As never were known in the busy town; There's a room to breathe in the purest air, An' something worth looking at everywhere;

There's the dog who's leadin' you on an' on To a patch o' cover where birds have gone, An' standin' there without move or change. Till you give the sign that you've got the range. That's thrill enough fer my blood, I say, So why should I care if they get away?
Fact is, there are times that I'd rather miss Than to bring 'em down, coz I feel like this—
There's a heap more joy in a living thing Than a breast crushed in or a broken wing.
An' I can't feel right an' I never will When I look at a bird that I've dared to kill.
Oh, I'm jus' plumb happy to tramp about An' follow my dog as he hunts 'em out, Jus' watchin' him point in his silent way.
Where the Bob Whites are an' the partridge stay, For the joy o' the great outdoors I've had.

Charms for Lovers.

In the chimney of an old Derbyshire cottage has been found a dried pig's heart stuck full of thorns. This is a relic of the old belief that a jilted lover, by taking such a heart and sticking it full of pins or thorns, might so cause pain and suffering to the faithless sweetheart.
The belief in love charms is not dead, and is not likely to die. The writer knows of a girl who wears around her neck on a silken string a carbuncle which, she believes, will

"I'm An Imbecile!"
How the police are sometimes non-plussed is illustrated by a story told by Colonel Repington of Lady Beresford.

The latter was stopped in her car by a policeman for using petrol without authority. He demanded her name. She looked out at him furiously and said, "My good man, can't you see that I'm an imbecile?"

The policeman was so taken back that he dropped his pencil and notebook and told the chauffeur to drive on.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, Editor

Friday, December 10, 1920.

Our Greeting.

If we have been apparently tardy in offering the salutation of welcome to Newfoundland's Prime Minister on his return to his native shores after a long absence and sojourn in lands abroad, it is not due to any lack of courtesy or inclination on our part. It is merely because we did not wish to break in on the greetings of numerous political friends, until their full meed of delight and joy over the coming back of the wanderer had been expressed. Now that all these have presented their studied and acted welcome, we may be permitted to enter upon the scene and accord to the Honorable Richard Anderson Squires, Prime Minister and Colonial Secretary of Newfoundland such a greeting as befits his dual office and his personality. Like Ulysses of old Premier Squires has been in many lands and witnessed and observed the manners and customs of the inhabitants thereof. As he would put it himself, quoting from his favorite classical author, "Qui Mores Hominum Multorum Vidit et Urbes," and therefore comes back to us enriched beyond expression with the knowledge and experience he has gained of foreign peoples, all of which will eventually be utilized for the benefit and advancement of this dominion.

We are delighted to see the Premier back with us again. At one time we thought that the blandishments of friends and admirers, coupled with the honors and attractions of a promotion to high office and position on the other side of the ocean dividing us from Europe, would be so appealing that they would seduce him from the allegiance to his native land, sworn to from platform and hustings. But his nature was too noble, his principles too highly set to permit him to desert the country of his birth in the extreme hour of need. And so he returns with laurels on his brow, laurels won by his most admirable conduct of the affairs of the dominion of Newfoundland committed to his charge by a majority of the electorate—not forgetting the influence wielded by the F.P.U.—in 1919, and as Spartacus was hailed by his followers, so we now hail the returned political hero and call him "Chief"—but with qualifications. Chief he was at one time,—a short year ago—but during his absence his title has been usurped by his second in command and the reins of Government transferred to the hands of the usurper. Hence it might happen that in welcoming the titular Prime Minister of Newfoundland, the real Prime Minister might regard such as lese majeste, and according to form either suppress or censor the utterances with which we greet the homecoming of one whose self-abnegation and personal reticence has made him the model politician of the ages.

The Premier returns! And to what? His holiday abroad was not spent in abstinence of enjoyment or in surrender of the pleasures of travel, or in any mortifications of the flesh due to fasting or restraint from the delights of the table. While Newfoundlanders in many sections of the country were crying out for relief from deprivation, their chosen leader was feasting on the fat of the land as supplied by the first class hotels of Britain and the continent of Europe. And so the young tribune returns after having enjoyed a plethora of the good things of earth, to find that in his absence the affairs of the country, which he had sworn to administer justly, have been taken out of his control and managed in such a wilful and crude manner that portions of the island were crying out for relief, a situation not paralleled since the financial disaster of 1894. The Premier returns to find that he has been merely the instrument of another more astute than he, and whilst we welcome once more the controlling hand of Newfoundland's Renzi on the helm of the Ship of State, we cannot altogether compliment the skipper on the course which has been steered during his watch below—or rather during his holiday from the chart room. In order to restore and retain his authority, assuming that he has the courage of which he boasts, it will be necessary for him to assert command immediately and so discipline the refractory members of his crew in such wise that there shall be no future mutiny or usurpation of authority by subordinates. If Premier Squires desires to show himself a real man he cannot do less than has been suggested. We repeat our welcome home, but we cannot congratulate the Prime Minister on the situation confronting him.

The Star Scintillates.

For some time we have been watching the Star with the deepest interest. During the past week or two it has been amazingly unlike its old humorous self, but last night our patience and faith were justified, and the editorial page made us simply choke with laughter. At last, after over a hundred years, Punch has found a rival which it will certainly have to fight hard to beat. It appears that the Telegram trod on the sacred corns of the Star recently, judging by the amount of space devoted to it yesterday. The Star says that we have been exposed and we are pained thereat. We are glad the Star has found us out at last, for we all know what an awful thing a "Star Exposure" is. As regards being pained, we admit we were, but not now. What pained us was to see the honour of the Editor of the Star gradually deteriorating, but now that he is his old self once more, our pain is "non est." We are sorry for the Norwegians if what the Star says about them is true. They are actually going to commit economic suicide by copying our fish regulations. Well, imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, so the new champion of Coakerism can scarcely be blamed for putting on airs. The poor old Star is never tired of harping on the Bay de Verde bye-election. We said once before, and we repeat for the benefit of our Starry contemporary, that if there were a bye-election in Bay de Verde now the Government candidate would be absolutely snowed under and would undoubtedly be forced to smoke himself to death or something equally desperate. We only hope that the Star keeps up the vein of humor in its editorials, for that is the only reason for their being read.

Missing Fisherman.

It was reported to the police last night that a Bay de Verde fisherman named Jacobs has been missing from his schooner since Monday last. Jacobs was one of the crew of Blundon's schooner which has been moored near the wrecked S. S. Desola at the dock wharf, and left the schooner Monday evening last to come on shore. Since then he has been unheard of. After Jacobs had left it appears that the schooner was hauled off a distance from the Desola, and it is feared that when he returned to board the schooner he probably did not take notice of her position and fell into the water. The missing man was a former Royal Naval Reservist, but enquiries on board H.M.S. Briton show that he has not reported for duty to the naval authorities. He left all his belongings on the schooner and Captain Blundon and crew are very anxious about his safety.

Herring Fishery.

There has been very little herring fishing in the Humber Arm the past week. All last week there was good fishing both in North and Middle Arms. The storm of the latter part of the week, however, interfered with operations, and we hear that considerable gear was lost. The fish is of a good size, and there is a ready market for the fishermen. The schooner Donald L. Silver, Capt. Shaw, is taking salt bulk. Up to the present we have had very little frost for freezing herring and there is quite a demand for fish cured that way. It is hoped that every facility will be offered for the marketing of frozen herring as no part of that industry gives better returns.—Western Star.

Cargo Not Ready.

The new concrete steamer Permanentia, which was to sail for Newfoundland this week to take a cargo of herring for Boston, says the North Sydney Herald, has been delayed here, according to a statement made to that paper by Louis Carnes, because of work received from the former place stating that the cargo was not ready.

Laborers Coming Back.

There were fifteen or sixteen laborers on the steamer Kyle, this morning, who are on their way to the various collieries to seek employment. They stated that work in the Ancient Colony is at a standstill, with the future bad, so far as employment is concerned. All of the group had worked in the Cape Breton collieries a short time ago, and left thinking better wages were obtainable in the lumber woods in the colony.—North Sydney Herald, Dec. 7.

Prelate Departs.

Right Rev. Dr. Morrison, Bishop of Antigonish, who was here attending the consecration services of Bishop Renouf, of St. George's, left by yesterday's express in special car en route to Halifax, where he attends a special function on Sunday next. His Lordship enjoyed his brief stay very much, and but for his engagement in Nova Scotia capital, would have remained in the city until Sunday next.

And Still It's Sold!

In connection with the whiskey-running game on the American side of the river, collector Holland, of Cornwall, Ont., has issued a statement summarizing the arrests and seizures made so far this year. The statement says that 372 seizures of liquor have been made and 106 automobiles in variety from a Pierce-Arrow to a Ford, were confiscated, together with 20 horses, four motor launches, 54 tons of hay, and 41,159 quarts of whiskey. Upwards of 500 arrests have been made and fines were imposed ranging from $400 to $1,000 in each case. Whiskey was found in carloads of hay, boats, autos, trucks, pulpwood, potatoes, secreted in butter, Christmas trees, fish boxes, steel drums and wagons.—Canadian Newspaper.

Committed for Trial.

Yesterday afternoon the four men, Norris, Hodder and Noseworthy (2), who had previously been tried on a charge of felony, and acquitted, were up before Judge Morris and charged with riotous assault, common assault and indecent assault. The prosecution was conducted by Deputy Minister of Justice Summers, who in opening the case informed the court that the charges against Norris had been withdrawn. Mr. Higgins, K.C., for accused, asked for Norris' discharge, which was granted. The evidence of two men who were in Mrs. Power's house when alleged assaults were committed, and Head Constable Byrne, who seized a loaded revolver from Hodder, was taken. Mr. Summers moved that accused be sent to the Supreme Court for trial, and no objection being raised by the defending counsel, His Honor Judge Morris intimated that he would formally commit them to-day. Accordingly they were up this morning and committed for trial at the February session of the Court, they being meanwhile released on personal bail of $2,000 each and two sureties of $1,000 each.

A Radical Change.

At a West End mercantile premises, where during the time the guaranteed Labrador fish was being bought, there was great activity and crowds of men found employment, to-day all is still. Not a fish is being packed and all the laborers, coopers and other help, except four or five bosses and store men, have been paid off, not knowing when they will again get work.

Fish Exporters' Meeting.

The Fish Exporters Association held another meeting this morning in the Board of Trade Rooms, but enquiries failed to elicit anything concerning the purposes for which the meeting was called. Amongst the fish exporters it was said that the meeting was to consider conditions in Portugal which are now reported to be in none too good a state.

Drowned While Skating.

A drowning fatality in which two lads lost their lives, occurred at Red Island, P.B., on Sunday last. A number of boys were skating on one of the nearby ponds when the ice gave way. Several managed to escape but unfortunately two lads, Lamb and Hayward, aged 13 and 14 years succumbed before they could be rescued. The bodies were recovered.

An employee of the R.N. Co., met with a nasty accident yesterday. He was on a shunting engine, when another engine collided with it, and the man was thrown to the ground and badly hurt about the shoulder and hip. It is expected, however, that he will be able to get about again in a few days.

Coming Home for Xmas.

By the last trip of the S.S. Kyle to Port aux Basques, she brought 49 second class passengers, some of whom arrived in the city by last evening's express. Quite a number of other second class passengers, who had been at various points along the line, seeking employment, joined the express for their homes. Many of these latter belonged to the eastern settlements. It appears that all the logging camps are filled up, and it is reported that two at Badger have closed. A good many of the arrivals are men returning home for the Xmas holidays.

Personal.

Mr. William J. Garland, of Lower Island Cove, Bay-de-Verde District, has been in town on business for some days and returns by Saturday morning's train to his home. Mr. Garland is steadfastly opposed to the Fish Regulations and strongly maintains that they have been detrimental to the progress of Bay-de-Verde, and that through their operation many small traders in that district will be compelled to go out of business at a serious loss to themselves. Mr. Garland expresses the opinion that the time is ripe for a change, and that men like Crosbie and Cashin are needed to deal with a situation unprecedented in the history of Newfoundland.
City Commissioner Mullaly is now confined to his home with a severe cold.

Thought He Had a Cinch

(From the Boston Transcript)
Two Englishmen, riding from the railroad station to their hotel in Dublin, began speculating as to the fate of the man who had just been told that he had a cinch. "Give him what you will, he will ask for more," said one. "You can never satisfy a jarvey." "Bet you a fiver I can," said the other. "The bet was promptly taken and when they arrived at the hotel, the better handed the jarvey a sovereign, telling him to keep the change. He was just congratulating himself on being about four pounds in on the transaction when he heard the jarvey say, "Sure now, your honor, 'twould be a terrible thing to break a beautiful tom like this for one pot of porridge. Does your honor happen to have tuppence in coppers?" "He paid—the tuppence and the five." "For your health's sake we offer Nature's answer to Constitution, "LES FRUITS." EL LISS.—dec3,11

The following officers were elected: Captain—T. V. Payne. Vice Captain—M. G. Winter, Jr. Secretary—E. G. Ewing.

Several matters in connection with hockey were then discussed. A vote of thanks was passed unanimously to Mr. M. G. Winter, Jr., for his untiring energy in procuring uniforms and sticks for the hockey team.

The next matter to come up for discussion was the reorganization of the Old Feildian Club. Mr. Jeffrey vacated the chair and Dr. Blackall was unanimously appointed chairman.

It was proposed by Mr. R. R. Wood, and seconded by M. G. Winter that the Old Feildian Club be reformed. This motion was carried without a dissenting voice.

A general discussion then followed re matters in connection with the Club and it was finally moved that a committee of six be appointed to go into the matter fully and report to a general meeting to be held later.

The committee appointed consisted of the following: Messrs. R. H. Tait (convener), R. R. Wood, C. E. A. Jeffrey, E. S. Pinnett, G. Hunt, R. James, A. vote of thanks to Dr. Blackall for the able manner in which he had filled the chair, was then passed and the meeting closed with the usual formalities, supplemented with cheers for the Old Feildian Club and the Chairman.

Burglars at Work.

Store Window Broken—Goods Stolen.

A large pane of glass in the eastern window of the store of Mr. J. Deshowitz, at the junction of Adelaide and Water Streets, was broken at an early hour this morning, and a considerable quantity of goods stolen.

The theft was supposed to have taken place between the hours of 1.30 and 2 a.m. as at the former time the night police were standing near the place and everything was intact, but upon returning on their rounds at 2 a.m. the burglary had been committed.

A couple of young men seen in the vicinity about midnight are believed to be the guilty parties. Mr. Deshowitz was acquainted of the robbery soon after the occurrence and had the damaged window secured.

Obituary.

PATRICK MOLLOY.

Another link in the "Old Guard" of the seventies has been severed by the death of Mr. Patrick Molloy, who died rather suddenly at his home, St. Shott's, on the evening of December 1st, fortified by the rites of Holy Church. Deceased had attained his sixty-seventh year and all through life was blessed with a strong physique. Latterly he began to grow infirm and feeble and when three weeks ago he became ill it was little thought by his now stricken wife and family that so soon the one whom they held most dear was to be taken from their midst.

But one who knows best had already marked him for his own, and on the above mentioned date, perfectly resigned to the Holy will of God, his pure soul passed to its eternal home. During his brief illness he was tenderly nursed by his loving and devoted wife and family, who were present to soothe and console him by their prayerful aspirations in his dying moments.

Mr. Molloy was of a happy, kind and humorous disposition and his presence would cause merriment, good feeling and a genial ray of sunshine in any company. When he culminated and peacefully passed away, on Wednesday, not a few were touched with grief on hearing of his sad demise.

Interment took place in the family plot of the village cemetery, surrounded by sorrowing and sympathizing relatives and friends. Left to mourn their sad loss are a wife, two sons, two daughters and one sister, Sr. Agatha of the Presentation Convent, Trepassey, to all of whom we tender our sincerest sympathy.

"We miss thee from thy home, dear, We miss thee from thy place; The shadow o'er your home is cast, We miss the sunshine of your face. We miss your kind and willing hands, Your fond and earnest care; Your home is dark without you, You're missed both everywhere." —Com.

Terminal Conditions at North Sydney.

During our visit to the Sydneys last week we were surprised to notice the wretched conditions prevailing at the terminal at North Sydney. From the steamer to the street (Commercial) a hundred yards or more, one has to wade through mud and water, with several ruts on the way, and at night the vicinity is poorly lighted.

In view of the thousands of people who travel by that route yearly and the millions of dollars worth of freight traffic handled, we are of the opinion that the Canadian Railway authorities should have long ago provided better accommodation. At the terminal sheds there is little or no accommodation for the travelling public. When we were there the corridor was practically blocked with baggage and it was only with difficulty that people about to embark by the Kyle could reach the ticket office.

We also visited the Newfoundland post office where we found similar congested conditions. In that little shack over a hundred bags of mail are received daily, and assorted into two hundred and eighty divisions. All mail matter to and from Newfoundland by the cross-country route is handled and assorted by Mr. Shano and his little staff of assistants. Millions of dollars in currency pass through this office, and yet there is little protection provided. What is required is a building four times the size of the present one, constructed of brick, concrete or other unflammable material, and well lighted and heated. And provision should be made where travellers to Newfoundland could obtain accurate information about the country, its resources, sports, means of travel, etc.

Since the foregoing was written we have read the statement of the Railway Commission and note that the Canadian Government at last proposes erecting a new terminal at North Sydney at a cost of $400,000, and that the Newfoundland Post Office will be included in the building. We trust that some attention will be given also to the approach, and would suggest that from the sidewalk, Commercial Street, to the terminal be paved.—Western Star.

The presentation of Prizes in connection with the C.C.C. Sports, held last July, took place in the C.C.C. Hall at 9 o'clock last night.

The Manufacturer's Duty. We note by recent St. John's papers that various manufacturing concerns in and about that city, are reducing their staffs, and intimate that the lack of market for their products is the cause. Complaint is being made of the general public purchasing foreign manufactured goods, while our industrial productions are allowed to remain to rot in the warehouses.

Now where does the fault lay? What are those manufacturing concerns doing to remedy matters? It is up to them to impress the public of the merits of their products. Let them standardize their goods and then take advantage of means obtainable to keep their wares before the purchasing public. The newspaper has been long recognized as the best and most profitable means of advertising. There are in St. John's a number of daily and weekly newspapers and the East and West Coasts are covered by their own local weeklies. Here is a means by which the manufacturer can talk to the people throughout the country and keep his goods before them continually. Occasional advertising is like an occasional shower—it thunders, and there is lightning and a few drops of rain; and after it's all over, everybody asks, "what was it all about anyway?" The steady rain makes the fields green and the crops to grow and fills the streams; so does advertising sell the manufacturer's products and keep the wheels of industry going. Create a demand for your products and you will find the merchant seeking them for his customers. To-day people buy goods that are advertised; goods which the maker has sufficient faith in to place himself on record as their sponsor.—Western Star.

WEEKLY MEETING.
The regular weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held last night, Mayor Gosling and Councillors Ayre, Morris, Peet and Vinicombe being present. The following matters received the consideration of the Board:

Letters were read from the Reid Nfd. Co. regarding street lighting, etc. Higgins & Hunt, solicitors for G. T. Phillips, asked particulars regarding B. P. sent their client for extension water and sewerage pipes. Information will be forwarded.

In the matter of A. L. Reid's application for compensation for loss of horse, the solicitor reported the Council was not liable.

A letter was read from the President of the Truckmen's Union regarding stands at the different public coves.

Mr. J. Barter drew the Council's attention to the necessity of the better lighting of Golf Avenue and Mundy Pond Road.

Application of Thos. Smyth for temporary covering of space adjoining Furness Withy Company's premises, was deferred for enquiry.

Plans submitted by W. B. Power to build carpenter's shop, Collier's Lane, were approved, subject to the supervision of the City Engineer.

Work of extending water and sewerage mains Sudbury Street, was deferred until next Spring.

In respect to the report which appeared in the daily papers stating certain damage had been done to the store of Hon. S. Milley, Water Street, through breaking of pipes owing to high water pressure during the turning on of water after the recent fire, the City Engineer reported there was no turning on or off of the water and the pressure was unaffected either before or after the fire referred to.

Complaints were received from citizens of the opening made in city streets by the Avalon Telephone Company being insufficiently lighted and protected at night time, and that accidents were likely to occur if better attention was not given the matter. Ordered the Company be written to in this connection.

Decided tenders be issued for quarry spawls.

Ordered public coves along the water front be immediately cleared of all obstructions.

The City Engineer reported on the various works for past week. Health Officer Brehm stated there were 4 new cases of diphtheria and 1 of typhoid fever in the city during the past week.

After the passing of pay rolls and bills and the disposal of routine matters, the meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

It is the Worthy Ambition of Every Woman to be Beautiful

THE powder puff is all right when used in moderation to touch up the complexion or to cover up a rough spot in the skin.

But this is only an imitation of real beauty after all. For powder can never compare with rich, red blood as a beautifier.

Powder may conceal wrinkles, but rich blood prevents their formation and gives the sparkle to the eye and the glow to the skin which speak of youth and vigor.

Outdoor exercise is the natural way to redden the blood, and English women who are famous for their beauty take long walks to tone up the complexion.

In this country there seems to be little time for outdoor exercise, and as a result the blood becomes thin and watery, the skin grows dry and harsh, and the complexion tells of the run-down condition of the system.

But there is another way to redden the blood and to restore the healthful glow to the faded skin. That is by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment is called a food because it is composed of the elements of Nature which go directly to the formation of rich, red blood.

You cannot use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food long without feeling the vigor and energy which it instills into your system. Nor will you be long under its influence until people will tell you how much better you are looking.

Cosmetics are mere makeshifts as compared with this method of increasing the natural beauty, for there is an attractiveness of the human body which the elasticity and vigor of health alone can give.

It is the worthy ambition of every woman to be beautiful, and by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the woman who is not in robust health can at the same time greatly improve her health and add largely to her beauty and attractiveness.

Mr. Hawes Incapacitated.

We learn that a message received during the week from Genoa, states that Mr. George Hawes, the NEG. Government Codfish Agent, is seriously ill at that place. At times during the past year, Mr. Hawes has been stricken with a serious illness for which he has been receiving treatment. He has now had a relapse, and his condition is such that it is doubtful if he will be able to continue his negotiations with the Consular regarding the disposal of our fish. It is also learned that Mr. W. A. Munn, who left here on the Digby last trip; has been asked by the exporters to proceed to Genoa, and negotiate with the Italian authorities on their behalf. Mr. Munn is expected to reach Genoa to-day, and it is hoped that he will be able to satisfactorily arrange matters.

Sarcasm.

The police-court of a certain assize town is situated near a shipbuilding yard, and proceedings in the court are frequently interrupted by the noise.

On a recent occasion the judge ordered a constable to go and ask the manager of the yard if he couldn't do something to lessen the din. The manager was in an irritable mood, and expressed a ready but sarcastic willingness to please "his lordship." The sarcasm, however, was lost upon the policeman.

"Did you deliver my message?" asked the judge as the officer entered the court to the tune of a hundred hammers; "the noise is as intolerable as ever."

"Yes, sir," answered the officer. "The manager said he would order the men to get out their indiarubber hammers at once."

No Such Thing as Sound.

Really there is no such thing as sound at all. We call vibrations sounds.

When a bell is hit, it vibrates. The vibrations produce a corresponding motion in the air, with strikes on the drum of the ear, and gives the sensation of sound. Touch the bell with your finger and you stop its vibrations. The sound-waves in the air at once cease, and you hear no sound.

Different vibrations cause different "sounds"—using the word in its usual sense. Musical sounds are the regular and uniform succession of vibrations. Some sounds are sonorous and pleasing, others are "dead."

The difference is due to the quality of the sound-originating substance. A hard and elastic substance like copper or iron will give vibrations which come to the ear pleasantly.

From lead, which is not hard nor elastic, the sound produced is non-sonorous.

Cracked or split bell gives a disagreeable, non-musical sound, because the crack causes a double vibration. The sound-waves clash and jar, impede each other's motion, and so produce, when they reach the drum of the ear, a discordant sound.

Slow vibrations produce treble or deep sounds. Quick vibrations produce treble or shrill sounds. The deepest bass sound audible—capable, that is, of being received on the ear drum—is produced by thirty-two vibrations per second. The sharpest treble sound goes to 15,000 per second.

Sounds are heard best on a clear, cold day. That is because the air is of uniform density and there are fewer currents and less variations of temperature to interfere with the sound-waves.

Sounds are feeblest in hot weather, as rarefied air is a bad conductor of sound, or more correctly, it is a bad conductor of vibrations.

The best place for sounds is in the Polar region. Conversation can be carried on with ease at a mile to a mile and a quarter. That is because the air is cold, clear and extraordinarily still.

Authoress at Six.

On scraps of paper torn from bags containing meat, Opal Whiteley began to scribble her diary when she was six years of age. The diary grew, until, when she was twelve years of age, it had reached 150,000 words.

Then came a tragedy. Her foster-father, a lumberman—Opal never knew her parents—discovered the hiding-place of the diary, and in a fit of temper tore it to pieces. The girl kept the fragments and placed them together. Now, when the writer is twenty-one, the diary has been published, its human interest and pathos having appealed so strongly to Viscount Grey that he has written an introduction to the book.

Bramah, the Lock Maker

On December 9, 1814, died Joseph Bramah, inventor of the famous lock which bears his name. Born in 1749, he was the son of a farmer in Yorkshire and was intended for the land, but as he showed a great preference for the use of mechanical tools he became a cabinet-maker. His inventive genius soon came to the front, and he conceived or improved a large number of metal articles such as taps and valves, and abandoned cabinet-making to become a manufacturer. He made improvements in the steam engine, and invented machines for planing wood and for making pens. It was in 1784 that he invented the celebrated lock, and for the next 37 years Bramah locks were considered so impregnable that it was thought impossible to open one without the proper key. At the great exhibition of 1851 there was a collection of locks by various makers, and an American lock maker named Hobbs, declared he could open any English lock without using a key. In the presence of witnesses he opened one of the most difficult in twenty-five minutes. Bramah's firm was still in existence, and in their shop window was a handsome padlock, with a placard affixed offering 200 guineas to anyone who could open it. Hobbs accepted the challenge, a committee was appointed and an agreement signed. Hobbs was to open the lock, without seeing the key, within thirty days. The committee kept the key, and Hobbs worked on the lock with small instruments of iron and steel through the keyhole only. On the thirtieth day he exhibited it open and uninjured, and received the prize. A great controversy arose among the lock-makers, and we may suppose they have much improved their locks since then.

Master's Time Kissing-Time.

"Susie," said the plumber, laying down his tools, which he had taken up by mistake, "I love yer."
"Get along now, do," sniggered the kitchen-maid. "You're joking."
"No, I ain't," said the man of pipe and screws. "I mean it, straight."
"Well, why don't you choose time for love-making when I'm not too busy?" answered the basement Venus, with a pout. "Can't you see I'm awfully busy?"
"All right, Susie, don't get cross. Look here, if I spins this job out till to-morrow afternoon will you promise to get your work out of the way, so that we can chat things over like?"
"To-morrow afternoon, indeed!" snapped Susie. "You ain't in a hurry. I must say. What's the matter with to-night?"
"To-night—in my own time?" retorted the plumber scornfully. "I don't think!"

His One Slip.

Amongst many good clerical stories told by Dr. Edwards, the new Archbishop of Wales, is one concerning a clergyman who was asked to preach at a harvest festival in Kent. The learned divine in question (says Dr. Edwards) had made an especial study of optics; likewise he possessed the not altogether uncommon failing of being totally incapable of extemporizing a discourse. Judge of his consternation then, when, on getting into the pulpit, he found that instead of the manuscript of the sermon he had prepared for the occasion he had brought with him the notes of a lecture on optics. However, on the spur of the moment he decided to deliver the lecture, and trust to luck or Providence. In the vestry after the service he was heartily congratulated by a sidesman on his helpful and interesting sermon. The sidesman asked, however, if he might offer a suggestion, and said: "You'd find that the people hereabouts, sir, would understand you better if you was to say 'op poles. You see we don't call 'em 'op sticks about here."

Their Ancestry.

Of Napoleon's marshals, Bernadotte, the ancestor of the present King of Sweden, and the only Napoleon-made king who kept his throne, was the son of a lawyer. He deserted his old master and fought against him at Leipzig. Murat, who married Napoleon's sister and became King of Naples, was the son of a steward in the service of the Talleyrands. Ney, whose conduct of his command of his left wing at Waterloo is said to have largely contributed to the French defeat, was the son of a cooper and was practically uneducated. He was created Duke of Elchinden, and was shot in 1815 in the Luxembourg Garden by the Bourbons. Angereau was the son of a small Paris shopkeeper. He, too, died a Duke. Berthier, whom Napoleon trusted above all his other generals, and whose final defection astounded him, was the son of an engineer officer. He was made Prince of Wagram, and married a niece of the King of Bavaria.

MacSweeney's Face in Wall.

Profile Appears in Plaster in a Boston Home.
 (Boston Globe, November 27.)
 The sudden and unexplained appearance of a perfect cameo replica of the profile of the late Lord Mayor Terence MacSweeney, who died in Brixton Prison, London, after a hunger strike of seventy-four days, which has appeared in the plaster wall of the kitchen at 7 Otis Place, is causing much wonder.
 According to employees of the household the image suddenly appeared in the wall between six and seven o'clock last Sunday evening. They can give no explanation as to how it came about. The house is occupied by Miss Louise Appleton Wells. The apparent phenomenon was first noticed by Miss Agnes Kelly and Miss Della Curley, who are employed as housemaids by Miss Wells.
 The story told by the two maids is a remarkable one. Last night they related to a Globe reporter their version of the circumstances surrounding the appearance of the image, which is really a low relief of the profile of Lord Mayor MacSweeney.
 As to the identity of the face in the relief, there can be no doubt. The young woman had a reproduction of a photograph of Lord MacSweeney, taken as his body lay in state in Cork. The face in the cameo is identical with that in the photograph. Newspaper men carefully compared the two and were satisfied that, entirely apart from the manner of the appearance of the phenomenon, the likeness is perfect.
 According to Miss Kelley the cameo appeared last Sunday evening. She said that the clock on the shelf above the spot where the likeness of the Irish martyr appeared stopped suddenly at exactly 6 o'clock. Some time before 7 o'clock one of the maids approached the shelf to wind the clock. It was then that the phenomenon was discovered.
 Miss Kelley said that at the time the face could hardly be distinguished with the naked eye. Since she first noticed the face, however, she asserts that it has become more and more clear, until last night the outline could be plainly distinguished from across the room.
 The two women also declare that at times a ghostly, flickering light seems to play over the cameo, throwing the features up more clearly than ever.
 Neither of the women can explain the appearance of the cameo, they said. Miss Kelley has been a close follower of the MacSweeney case, and she said that beginning the night following MacSweeney's death she erected an altar in the kitchen and kept vigil for five successive nights, until the demonstration on Boston Common on Sunday, Oct. 31, in honor of the martyred Irish Mayor.
 They declared that Miss Mary Romano, of 19 Willard Road, Brooklyn, who personally attended the MacSweeney funeral in Cork and who viewed the dead Mayor's body as it lay in state in Cork, has seen the cameo and pronounced it a perfect likeness.
 The photograph of the dead Mayor with which reporters compared the cameo appeared in the issue of the Irish World and American Industrial Liberator of Nov. 20. The photograph is very distinct and is two columns wide.
 So far, none of those who have seen the cameo, which is oval-shaped and about an inch long by three-quarters of an inch wide, have been able to offer a suggestion as to how it made its appearance in the wall.
 Miss Kelley said that Rev. Fr. Carriane, of St. Joseph's Church, viewed the cameo on Wednesday evening and said he was glad he had seen it for himself.

A Successful Plotter.

Fouche, the most notorious and the most dishonest of the Napoleonic statesmen, belonged to the people. His father was a sea captain, and he began life as a teacher of mathematics at Arras, where he met Robespierre. He was elected to the National Convention, joined the extremists, and voted for the death of Louis XVI. Fouche was responsible for the ghastly noyades at Nantes, when nearly a hundred Royalist priests were tied hand and foot and thrown into the Loire. He was charged afterwards with having disgraced the Revolution by his excesses, and only contrived to save himself by rounding upon his associates. Robespierre denounced him as a despicable impostor, and in the last months of the Terror he only just managed to escape the guillotine.
 But Fouche was one of the most successful plotters in history, and he always managed just to save his skin. When the Directorate was established, Barras made him an army contractor and Fouche made his fortune. There never was a war without a profiteer! In 1799 Fouche began his long career as Minister of Police. He created an army of spies that gave him so complete a knowledge of every important person and every party that even Napoleon feared his power. He had spies everywhere—spies among the Royalists, spies among the Jacobins. Even Napoleon's secretary was in his pay. Incidentally he created a Press censorship as rigorous as that which existed during the Great War, and it would hardly have been possible to make it more rigorous.

We're Taller in the Morning.

The difference between your height in the morning, and your height at night is very small, but the fact remains that you are a little taller in the morning than at any other time. The explanation is this: The backbone of the human being consists of a number of small bones, or vertebrae, and between each bone there is a disc made of cartilage. The use served by this small disc is to loosen the shock that would otherwise be felt on moving.
 After being in an upright position for many hours, the weight of the body tends to squeeze these discs, thus making them flatter and to a small extent reducing the total height.
 During the night they resume their natural thickness by means of their elasticity and so stretch the backbone to its full length.
 In this way we may be said to be a little taller the first thing in the morning.

Jews' Guy Fawkes Day.

The Jewish Feast of Purim was formerly the Guy Fawkes Day of the Hebrew world in England as elsewhere, the burning of an effigy of Haman being a regular feature of the celebrations. Nowadays, however, the old-time ceremony is only carried out in its entirety amongst the Polish Jews.
 For weeks beforehand the youths of the community are busy with their preparations, these including a bonfire of huge dimensions and plentiful supplies of fireworks, exactly as used to be the case in connection with our own celebration of "The Fifth" forty or fifty years ago.
 On the morning of the great day itself a procession is formed, headed by Queen Esther and Mordecai, with Haman bringing up the rear, borne aloft on a wooden platform.
 Games and sports of various kinds are then indulged in, including a sort of mock battle between the children, who pelt one another with nuts.
 The afternoon is taken up with the performance of a species of religious drama—known as the Purim Play—at the conclusion of which the "Guy" is consumed by fire, together with a wooden erection symbolical of the gallows which that unhappy individual was meant to hang Mordecai upon.

BISHOP SPENCER COLLEGE.
(By our special representative.)
On Wednesday afternoon we experienced the privilege of inspecting Bishop Spencer College, the Church of England Educational Institution for girls. This college, which was founded during the latter part of the past century, was for many years conducted in the Synod building, where it remained until nearly two years ago, when it was removed to its present quarters, in what was formerly the British Hall. This building is a great improvement on the old one, the rooms being laid out in a much more convenient manner, and there is also a great deal more space. The first floor contains four form rooms, to wit, the Kindergarten, Lower Fifth, Upper Fifth and the Fourth. All these class rooms are very spacious and are excellently fitted. The teachers' dressing room is on this floor, as is also the headmistress' study. The second floor contains the Hall, and the Third Lower Sixth and Upper Sixth Form Rooms. The Hall is quite a large apartment and has a stage at the far end. The girls assemble here each morning and afternoon for prayers. On the top floor there is a gallery, and also a small though well lighted room which is to be fitted up as a studio. We were informed by Miss Richards, the new headmistress, that amongst the innovations to be introduced in the near future is a moving picture projector for the purpose of showing educational pictures to the pupils. This will undoubtedly be appreciated by the latter as a welcome relief from the monotony of ordinary lessons. Another innovation is a reference library, which will be kept in a small room set aside for the purpose, for the use of the Seniors only. The headmistress, after consulting the directors, decided not to enter candidates for the Primary and Preliminary grades of the C.H.E. this year, so that a better and less crammed curriculum can be arranged. Personally, we have always thought that the C.H.E. Exams should be abolished altogether, and we must congratulate Miss Richards and the directors of Bp. Spencer College upon taking this step, the wisdom of which, will, we think, be apparent to all.
Miss Richards has also devoted a great deal of attention to forming a group of Girl Guides in the college.

"I Just Feel Fine All the Time," Says McDougall, After Taking Tanlac.
Howard McDougall, well-known carpenter and life-long resident of Harcourt, N.B., is still another who has cause to be glad that he was induced to give Tanlac an honest trial. Mr. McDougall is a veteran of the recent world war, having served overseas for more than two years with the famous 26th Battalion Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and participated in a number of the hardest fought engagements. Here is his statement regarding Tanlac:
"Ever since I returned from overseas about two years ago, I have been in a mighty bad fix, that is until I got Tanlac recently. I suffered terribly with indigestion all the time, nothing tasted good to me, and my appetite was so poor I couldn't eat half a meal. I suffered dreadfully from bloating, would wake up every morning with a severe headache and some days it wouldn't leave me at all. I had such awful pains in my back every morning it felt like it would break in two when I stooped over, and it would be late in the day before the pain began to ease up. I didn't know what it was to get a good night's sleep, and I simply felt miserable."
"One day one of the boys where I was working told me about the good Tanlac had done him, and got me started on the medicine also. Well, sir, it just knocked my troubles sky-high, and has put me in the best of health. I'm eating great now, my stomach never troubles me, and I'm picking up in weight right along. I sleep good and sound every night, never have an ache or pain, and just feel fine all the time. I don't know what it is but there's something about Tanlac that certainly does the work, and I can't speak too highly of it for what it's done in my case."
Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gillies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Gushue, in Millertown by Exploits Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Island by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Uriah Freake.

The Lost Highlanders.

(From "The Bookman," in the Winnipeg Free Press.)
Under the caption, "Wolfe's Lost Highlanders," a writer in the current number of Chambers' Journal writes about the Scotchmen who remained in Canada after the fall of Quebec and married French women. And he tells again the story of their gallant defence of that fortress, sixteen years later in the American invasion. These Highlanders called to the colors from their farms responded to the number of twenty-one officers and two hundred and seven men, "no bad muster after sixteen years of peace, not forgetting French wives of doubtful loyalty." And he says that but for these Highlanders, speedily called into action by Sir Guy Carleton there is not a doubt that "the Stars and Stripes would float from the Rio Grande to Baffin Land" today. It is the last time that Wolfe's Highlanders appear as fighting men. In the battle, the British lost fifteen men and the Americans four hundred. "It was the decisive battle for Empire in Canada, and it was the Highlanders who turned the fortunes of the day." Henceforth they are devoted to the arts of peace in town and country, and are racially absorbed by the French-Canadians, their surnames only remaining to this day—Campbells, Frasers, MacLarens, etc., all speaking the French language, "they are French-Canadians, but every trait and gesture shows the inheritance of the men who made and saved Canada for Britain."

Poison Fish.

In the waters around the Barbadoes dwells fish called "Caranx plumieri." Very properly deeming this a stilled sort of name, the people of those parts call it the John and Goggie-Eye. At some seasons of the year it is poisonous. When a John and Goggie-Eye is caught its fate depends entirely on the local price of ducks. Why? you ask. This is why. If a duck costs 30 cents, the angler must catch 40 cents worth of Johns and Goggie-Eye before it is worth his while to consider marketing the fish. For the test of the safety and edibility of a haul of Johns and Goggie-Eye is whether eating them will kill a duck in a couple of hours. If the duck dies, the Barbadoes angler holds the catch to be murderous. If the duck lives and looks quite happy after eating a selection of these temperamental fishes, the catch is held to be safe and saleable. The yellow-tailed sprat of the Leeward and Virgin Isles also is poisonous at times, but it is not used for offering risky hospitality to ducks. Poisonous, too, are the ocean pike, or barracuta, and the beautiful "Algula caninus." Practically all those lovely tropical sea fishes in gaudy blues and yellows and purples and pinks are poisonous or semi-poisonous. When in doubt you keep only the least picturesque for the pot and let the gay jazz-jumped catches go.

The Cradle of the British Navy.

TRINITY HOUSE AND ITS ROMANTIC STORY.
Ask ninety-nine men out of a hundred what Trinity House is, and they will not know. Yet Trinity House is one of our great national institutions.
It has been truly called the "cradle of our Navy," the saviour of England, and the sailors' best friend. Its story is crowded with romance.
No one can tell definitely when this venerable corporation first came into being. Some declare it was born as long ago as Alfred's time.
We know, however, that five centuries ago its parent was an association of pilots and mariners at Deptford Stronde, in Kent; and that, when Henry VIII. awoke to the discovery that he had no fleet with which to fight the pirates who swarmed around our coasts, he gave the Deptford pilots a charter empowering them to form a Guild "in honour of the Holy Trinity of St. Clement, in the church at Deptford Stronde," to "improve the Navy."
As the years passed, new powers were granted to the Guild—to provide pilots, to erect sea-marks, to increase and control shipping; and in Elizabeth's reign, to take charge of "the Queen's Majesty's Navy Royal."
The Trinity Guild, founded by a handful of Deptford pilots, had now become the supreme ruler of England's ships and English waters. When the Armada came insolently sailing up the Channel, it was the tiny vessels mustered by the Guild that, with the help of the elements, scattered and destroyed its proud galleons.
Twice in later years the Guild did its best to save England. In 1797, when the British fleet mutilated at the Nile and threaten to join the French, the Guild destroyed all the beacons and buoys at the mouth of the Thames, thus closing the passage to the sea. Again, in 1805, when a French invasion was imminent, the Brethren moored a fleet of frigates across the Thames, thus barring approach to London.
It was in early Stuart days that Trinity House reached the zenith of its power. All the buoys and beacons round our coast and the shipbuilding and naval stores at Deptford were placed under its sole charge. It had entire control of all shipbuilding for the Navy, the appointment of pilots and naval officers, and of Consuls at foreign ports. In fact, the Guild was the autocrat of our seas. To these duties it added those of charity, providing almshouses in which "decayed masters of merchant vessels, their widows or maiden daughters," could live in peace and comfort.
Trinity House has lost many of its old-time powers and dignities, but it still plays a vital part in the world of seafaring men. It is responsible for all the lighthouses, light-ships, beacons, buoys, and fog-signals which do sentinel duty round the coast of England and Wales, and has a partial control over the lighting and buoying systems of Scotland and Ireland.

Dick Whittington.

Dick Whittington never became Sir Richard, though popular approval has given the accolade which King Richard II. and the fourth, fifth, and sixth Henrys, under whom successively he lived, denied to him, observes Walter G. Bell in the "Daily Telegraph." And the pretty story of his devotion to the cat which brought him fortune, current for so many centuries, England holds in common with other countries of the world. And "Turn again, Whittington, thrice Lord Mayor of London," was, in sober fact, not only thrice, but four times Lord Mayor—in the years 1387 and 1398, and next century in 1408 and 1419. The dry facts of historians, dull, unimaginative people I agree, ought not to be interjected into Whittington's romantic story, one of the most precious possessions of our nurseries, and useful in pointing the good lesson of the rewards of industry. Actually, he was a much greater citizen than the legends make out, and his vast benefactions and public works left an enduring mark upon the London of his age.

A Scandalous Pardon.

(From the Boston Transcript.)
Franz von Rintelen, alias (Hanson, alias other names, the busiest of German busy-bodies in America during the early years of the war, and the man convicted of conspiracy to place fire-bombs on ships leaving New York, has been pardoned out of the Atlanta penitentiary, to which he was sentenced for the very mild and easy term of four years and two months and permitted to sail for his beloved Germany. This is an exercise of the executive clemency which could not find it in its heart to pardon Eugene Debs, for whom more than 2,000,000 American citizens voted for President of the United States. It may be well for Mr. Debs to continue to reside at the Atlanta penitentiary, for the sake of the salubrious example to his fellow citizens, and the expiration of his term, but the granting of the pardon which he has committed is as nothing to that of which the man Rintelen was guilty. Rintelen's finger was in every pie of activity that was developed by German ingenuity and depravity in New York for about three years of the World War. Noble son of German imperialism, to connect himself with plans to place bombs in ships carrying women and children! How supremely worthy of the tender executive clemency! What a recommendation of American magnanimity, and of the national intelligence, he will be to the hard-struggling democracy of Germany when he reaches Berlin! The pardon of this man is in truth a scandal and a disgrace. The fire-bombs were not an example of his operations. He flouted the officers of the law for a long time, and now his easy pardon abuses the patience of the people and stains the national honor.
