CHAPTER XIII.

So, as the poor old doctor went from the daughter's room to the father he told the sad news to Mrs. Williams, who with tears and lamentations as quickly communicated it to the household.

Before night it was well known that Lillian, only daughter of Sir Ralph Melville, baronet, of Riverhall, Berkshire, was lying ready for the family vault.

The great bell of the chapel tolled, the many loving hearts who had looked upon the fair girl as one of Heaven's angels on earth were weeping round the desolated hall; the Towers were in confusion, and its master in a frenzy of sorrow and passion, when another blow, stricken by the same dread hand, fell upon the village.

Never parted in like they would not be severed in death. The lord and master of Riverhall had gone to join his darling at the river's brink.

Sir Ralph Melville was dead. He had died, said Dr. Bromwell, as peacefully as she; died without pain, without consciousness, passed like her from the sleep of life into the sleep of death.

Great was the lamentation, great also was the confusion. The terrible death-dealing fever was about still; all present were paralyzed.

The house was a plague house, and the doctors would not allow anyone to approach it. The very servants were dismissed, sent away to safety, and the huge place given up to the charge of the doctors and Miss Lucas.

No one was to enter it until it had been thoroughly disinfected; and Mr. Packer, arriving post haste, was denied admittance.

"But," said he, "the papers, Dr. Bromwell, and the will. They must all be secured. I—I must see that things are perfectly set in order."

"You must enter at your own peril and risk," said the doctor, gravely.

"I will risk it," said the grim lawyer, and he entered, sealed the papers, and took charge of the keys.

"Now," said he, "I should like to see poor Sir Ralph and Miss Lillian—"

"Impossible," said Dr. Bromwell. "I would not be answerable for the consequences; they might be fatal."

But the lawyer was as resolute in this as in the other, and the doctor admitted him to the room in which the two bodies were lying.

Miss Lucas followed him in and removed the cloth from the faces.

The faithful old lawyer turned away with a great sob.

"Thank you," he said; "I am much obliged. To think that I should live to see them lying there. Poor, dear child!"

Dr. Bromwell awaited him in the dining room.

still show, to poor Sir Ralph and his dear child. Good-day, sir; good-day." And the old lawyer returned to town post haste, as he had come, while Dr. Bromwell from the huge window watched him depart, and then sought Miss Lucas.

"Kata," he said, "one more obstacle overcome. There goes another dupe foisted to the top of his bent. To-morrow night and the same is ours."

CHAPTER XIV.

With an indifference that was perfectly sublime Clarence Clifford lay back in the close carriage and allowed himself to be driven away.

His two captors, French to the very eyelids, sat opposite to him, grim and silent. He looked at them with listless curiosity, listless partly through weakness, but principally through a not unnatural disinclination to meddle with the affair fate had so arranged for him.

Without a question he alighted and walked between his escort up the staircase of a house in a narrow, ill-favored street. Also without a question he entered a small, meanly furnished room, and sank upon the only couch in it.

His guards, after glancing significantly at the window, which was crossed with thick iron bars, and just touching the heavy bolts on the outside of the door, grimly nodded at each other and retired.

The prisoner waited and fell asleep. When he awoke a fire was burning in the stove and food was upon the table.

With a sigh he arose, warmed himself, looked at the food, and returned to the sofa.

When he awoke again the food had been removed, but a black bottle and a glass had taken its place. He felt refreshed after the two naps, and a little less weak, and uncorked the bottle.

Its contents proved to be port, and, moreover, old, and in good condition. This puzzled him, and for the first time set him thinking.

He looked round the room. Meanly as it was furnished the appointments were not those of a police cell.

"Political prisoners, even, do not get old port wine," he mused. "Where am I, and on what charge have I been arrested?"

Stirred up to a slight interest, he crawled to the window and looked out.

The view was simple and not extensive. There was a blank wall that served to hedge in an equally blank yard. The wall was of good height and surmounted by sharp iron spikes.

"It looks like a prison outside," he murmured; "but this—well, they will be here directly, and I shall know. After all, what does it matter?"

After a while he returned to the couch, tried to think, to gather up the tangled skein of the past; but, fortunately for the life which was battling within him against the weakness that still held its citadel, fell asleep.

The room was quite dark when he awoke, the table obscured the fire until he rose upon his elbow.

For a few minutes he failed to grasp his identity and the situation, but when he did so he got up, walked to the door and knocked.

This summons was answered immediately by the heavy withdrawal of the huge bolts, and, a moment after, one of his captors entered bearing a light.

This he set on the table, and, turning toward the prisoner, asked him if he had any wine.

"No," said Clarence Clifford, in French.

"Then monsieur had better drink some," said the jailer, and, with grim nonchalance, poured out a glass.

Clarence Clifford looked at him keenly.

"What prison is this?" he asked; "and when will the charge be made?"

The man stroked his beard, let his eyes wander round the room, came back to the wine bottle as a last resource, and said, with obstinate politeness:

MISERABLE AND ALWAYS IN PAIN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Dependable Help to Mothers

Port Greville, N. S.—"I took your medicine for a terrible pain in my side and for weakness and headaches. I seemed to float all over, too, and my feet and hands were the worst. I am the mother of four children and I am nursing my baby—the first one of four I could nurse. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before the baby's birth, so you can see how much it helped me. I cannot praise it too highly for what it has done for me. I took all kinds of medicine, but the Vegetable Compound is the only one that has helped me for any length of time. I recommend it to any one with troubles like mine and you may use my letter for a testimonial."—Mrs. ROBERT McCULLY, Port Greville, Nova Scotia.

Before and after childbirth the mother will find Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a blessing. Many, many letters are received giving the same sort of experience as is given in this letter. Not only is the mother benefited, but these good results pass on to the child.

No harmful drugs are used in the preparation of this medicine—just roots and herbs—and it can be taken in safety by the nursing mother. 98 out of every 100 women reported benefit from its use in a recent canvass among women users of this medicine.

Health in Strawberries

FRUIT THAT KEEPS US FIT.

The other day a doctor stated that if strawberries could be grown all the year round, and became a staple article of diet as potatoes, his profession would be ruined!

Strawberries are something more than a luscious fruit; they are a valuable medicine. In a strawberry are lime, phosphates, alkaline and mineral salts, iron, manganese, and a special kind of sugar, constituents that are so well proportioned that they do their full share of good.

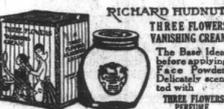

Diseases particularly susceptible to the strawberry cure are rheumatism and gout. That is because of the salicylic salts in the fruit. On the Continent doctors have established special hospitals, set amidst miles of strawberry beds, for the cure of the most acute form of rheumatism. Anæmia also yields to the strawberry treatment.

Field to Jam Jar. Some people find that strawberries upset them, and that they cause an irritating rash. In such cases strawberries should be left alone. The trouble is caused by the body being intensely antagonistic to the salicylic salts.

Finally, the sugar in strawberries is so energizing that if the red berries contained nothing else they would still rank high as a medicinal food. Strawberry plants grow in rows like potatoes. They are allowed to remain for three or four seasons, after which fresh plants are set in their places.

When required for the fruit markets, strawberries are picked "on stalk" and packed in baskets. Those required for jam factories are "plugged," the hard, inner core being removed with the stalk. The fruit so prepared is put into half-hundredweight tubs.

The ideal kind for jam-making is known as the Stirling Castle. It is a small strawberry of excellent flavour, is readily "plugged," and when converted into jam retains its brilliant scarlet colour.

Industry and Trade

Glasgow Herald: Our country is essentially an industrial area, and however much we may be able to augment our income by services to other nations our ultimate prosperity depends wholly on the cultivation and development of the resources which lie to our hands. If we are, as we seem to be, squaring our trade balance by serving as intermediaries to other countries, this has only been made possible by a far-reaching financial organization built up in the past on the foundation of solid trade and industry, but if in the evolution of commerce we find ourselves without the backing of trade and industry the subsidiary sources of invisible income will wither and fall. We have perhaps much to be thankful for that in the period of transition through which we are passing we have had these extraneous sources of income to draw upon, but the knowledge that they are there should not be allowed to obscure the primary consideration of declining industry.

"Monsieur had better partake of the wine; it was ordered for monsieur, and is good for monsieur. Allow! monsieur is weak; wine is to make monsieur strong, therefore."

And, with a significant wave of the hand, the man left the sentence unfinished.

CHARGED WITH TEACHING EVOLUTION.
COURTROOM, DAYTON, Tenn., July 10--With prayer by the Rev. Wm. M. Cartwright, Pastor of Dayton Methodist Episcopal Church South, a special term of Rhea County circuit court was convened here this morning at 9.10 for the trial of John Thomas Scopes, charged with violating the so-called anti-evolution law of Tennessee. Proceeding to charge the grand jury the judge said some question had arisen as to the legality of the previous meeting of the special grand jury, and he had decided to reconvene the grand jury and charge members again. He read the act of general assembly prohibiting the teaching of evolution and then read the first chapter of Genesis.

SEVERAL ARRESTS IN CAPE BRETON.
HALIFAX, July 10. Arrests in connection with the various strike activities and the disturbances arising out of it, are about the only happenings occurring in the colliery districts, pending the incoming of the new government which is being looked forward to as promising developments of some nature. Three men have been arrested at Big Glace Bay and remanded to the county jail until Wednesday. Magistrate Campbell to-day sent nine men from New Waterford up for trial at the October session of the Supreme Court on various charges of interference and disturbance. Fourteen arrests have been made in New Waterford in the past couple of days on charges arising out of the strike and they will come up for preliminary hearing next week. In practically all cases of strike arrests bail is immediately arranged. The inquiry into the death of William Davis, at New Waterford, on June 11, was adjourned to-day for another week, pending establishment of the status of the investigation. Counsel for the miners appearing as witnesses instructed them to refuse to give evidence on the grounds that the inquiry had no legal status and that the examination of witnesses might furnish information leading to further arrests on charges of picketing and so forth.

Well Known Captain UNDERTAKES SEARCH FOR LIEF ERICSSON.

In the Boston "Post" of recent date is an article with reference to the sailing from Cape Ann, Mass., of the schooner "Zodiac," which is commanded by Capt. Norman Ross, one of the most daring and venturesome skippers out of Gloucester, and possibly one of the most typical of the "Captains Courageous" made famous by Kipling. Capt. Ross is on a humane quest, his mission being to try if he can get any trace of Capt. Wm. Nutting, who in his sloop the "Lief Ericsson" is posted as missing since September 8th last, when he left Julianashaab, Southwest Greenland, for Battle Harbor, Labrador. Three companions were with Nutting and though most people give up all hope of his ever being heard of again, his devoted wife still believes that her husband's life need not yet be despaired of, and that there's much in the old marine adage that "a sailing boat is never overdue." The owners of the "Zodiac," R. W. and J. S. Johnson of New Brunswick, who are great admirers of Nutting, sailed on the vessel which they fitted out for the expedition, and unhesitatingly gave the command to Capt. Ross, whose strength, hardihood and endurance has been tested again and again, not only on the Banks but also in the North. The "Post" profusely illustrates the article, showing a picture of Capt. Ross as an inset. He is well known in Newfoundland, and many of our fishermen having sailed with him out of Gloucester on banking voyages. He is married to a Newfoundland lady, formerly Miss Kathryn Carrol, daughter of the late Capt. Joseph Carrol of St. John's, who for years was one of the Masters of Watch at the fields in S.S. "Resolute" with the late Capt. Arthur Jackman, and met his death by drowning in Fortune Harbour 21 years ago. Three sisters yet reside in St. John's, viz., Mesdames George Conway and J. P. Meaney and Miss Nellie Carrol. Capt. Ross will search unfrequented nooks and corners in Labrador and Northern Canada in his search for the missing voyagers.

"What Shall I Do?"
FAMOUS PICTURE WILL BE SHOWN AT THE MAJESTIC NEXT WEEK.

Captain Hann's Report
The Labrador fishery reported for the Marine and Fisheries Department Capt. Edgar Hann brought the following report by the Melgie which arrived in port yesterday morning. At Holton, Emily Harbour, Horse Harbour and Indian Harbour there is lots of fish, but ice conditions prevented the men from operating when the ship was there, but there was every hope that the ice would move off last week and that after that there would be good fishing. At Grady the men have done fairly well and McRae of that place has landed a thousand quintals. At Spotted Islands, 2,000 qtls. are landed; at Griffin's Harbour, 3,000 qtls., and at Sandy Bay, 2,000 qtls. The total catch along the coast was about 17,000 qtls. From Domino to Battle Harbour there is lots of fish in deep water, and traps have not been able to do much. However, it was hoped that in a few days the fish would come to land and that big catches would be secured. From Holton to Horse Harbour, fish is also plentiful, but operations are hindered by ice. At the former place one man put his trap out temporarily in the ice, watching it to save it from being torn up and in one haul he got one hundred qtls.; this was on last Saturday. All along the coast fish is very plentiful, and if the conditions improve there is every prospect of a big voyage.

At the Majestic Theatre Monday the public will have an opportunity of seeing the famous star Dorothy Mackall, in her greatest stage hit, "What Shall I Do?" which was written by the celebrated author Frank E. Woods, the man who won fame in "The Birth of a Nation." With her is associated Louise Dresser John Haron and William V. Monz.

"What Shall I Do?" is a special production that will hold the interest of all screen lovers. The National producers claim it to be the best feature so far released by the Producers' Distributing Corporation. When first shown it caused unusual comment in the big newspapers. Press and pulpit sounded its praises.

Supreme Court

Then my lord, if your lordship will refer to No. 48 in the book, which is marked J. A. McD. 238. Here is a letter written on 17th, January 1920 to the Trust by Mr. H. D. Reid, in which, in general terms, it is suggested that when certain things are done, that the Reids are prepared to give then an option subject to prior sale, and that letter is acknowledged by No. 63 J. A. McD. 238, a letter from the Trust to H. D. Reid.

Now my lord, the case set up in the pleadings is—although in the pleadings they allege that this verbal agreement was made in the months of December 1919 and January 1920, the case which is set up in the evidence is that the actual agreement for the ten per cent. commission was made prior to December 23rd, 1919, because, if I understand the evidence, it is that the letter of December 23rd, 1919 dealt only with such matters as were not already decided upon. So I submit that the offer of an option on the project for the fixation of Nitrogen on the 5th, January, accepted by the letter of the 21st, January, is another evidence against the contention that this oral agreement for commission was made in December.

Then, my lord, on the 14th, January 1920, the option is given on the fish shares—the shares in the fish company; and the fish company project is brought to a successful conclusion somewhere in April 1920, with the result that the Reids received the price mentioned in the option, and the Trust received whatever monies or shares over and above the Reids' option price that were payable by the purchasers; and these shares and this money, did not amount to ten per cent. of what Reid received. They amounted to much more than 10% of what Reid received, and the method of remuneration was not calculated on that basis, or on a percentage basis at all.

Then my lord, we come down to April 1920, when the negotiations with Lord Rothermere in connection with the Gander began to materialise, and my lord I begin with reference to that telegram in Volume 2, No. 636, marked J. A. McD. 23, sent by Reid to Camerogot on the 22nd, April 1920, which is: "Directors suggest five per cent commission to your Gander Rothermere negotiations. Do your counter."

I must confess that from the time that I first became acquainted with this correspondence, I repeatedly sought for some explanation as to how this telegram originated. It seems to have been launched suddenly without anything preceding it, and it is not until this morning that a solution has been afforded us, when Mr. Thomson in the box stated that the discussion which led to the sending of this telegram, resulted from some message from the Trust.

MR. EMERSON—He did not say that as a matter of fact. He said he thought it did.

MR. HOWLEY—Very well, we will take it that way. Mr. Thomson thought that that telegram resulted from a discussion which had been brought about by the receipt of a telegram from the Trust; and if there was an existing oral agreement to pay ten per cent. commission, what was the necessity for the Trust sending a telegram about the matter, what was the necessity for a discussion? What was the object, or the purpose, of the use of the Reids sending a message suggesting a 5% commission?

In answer to Reids message on the 24th, April, comes back 639, J. A. McD. 24.

"Rothermere's deal. Trust has always been led to believe usual ten per cent commission payable unless increased or decreased for some specific reason. Cable sent Thomson on 'matter.'"

The answer that comes back does not make any reference to the alleged pre-existing oral agreement, or any agreement. "Trust had always been led to believe usual ten per cent. commission payable." And my lord, there is a letter here in Volume. I think it is No. 67. This is W. H. G. 16, and in that, in the last paragraph on the bottom of the page, we have the expression:

"Over and above the usual percentage for the Trust."

Now then, to what does that refer? To what does the expression in J. A. McD. 24. "Trust has always been led to believe usual ten per cent commission payable," refer? Why this similar language refer to? I submit that it refers to the commission as defined in the message from Macdonald to Thomson, which went in evidence this morning.

If I refer once more to that 639, J. A. McD. 24, at the end of that message we see:

"Cable sent Thomson on matter," and in 643, which is J. A. McD. 29, and purports to be Minutes of Meeting of the Plaintiff's Directors held on the 23rd, April 1920, it is stated: "They set forth in the exact language of the cable the message that was sent to Mr. H. D. Reid on the 24th, April, and then they go on to say that Mr. H. B. Thomson was also sent a cable to the same effect. Now Mr. Thomson stated to my learned friend this morning that this must have been the cable he refers to when he said that he thought that the discussion which led to the sending of a message about the five per cent. commission emanated from a cable from the Trust; but that could not be, because the message offering the five per cent. commission was sent on the 22nd, April, and this message was not sent until the 25th; so that is Mr. Thomson thought that there was a cable from the Trust about this matter, then there must have been another telegram on or prior to the 22nd, April.

Now my lord, according to the minute, J. A. McD. 29 the Trust called to H. D. Reid on the 24th, April to the effect that the Trust had always been led to believe that the usual ten per cent. commission would be paid unless increased or decreased for some specific reason; and that Mr. Thomson had been sent a cable to the same effect; and here is the cable to H. B. Thomson:

"Cannot understand cables re commissions."

The first point that I would like to draw your attention to is this—that so far as we are aware there has only been one cable

Snow's Skin Soap
Soothe Itching Skin With Cuticura

about commissions; and that is the cable from Reid to Camerogot on the 22nd, April, which is marked J. A. McD. 23. That is the only cable that we are aware of that passed from this side to the Trust with regard to commission, and when they say: "Cannot understand cables re commission," I submit that we are forced to the conclusion that there must have been at least one other cable sent to the Trust by somebody with reference to this question of commission. Then the message goes on:

"Trust composed important business men who know ten per cent. can be asked on any such transaction."

Now my lord, is that language consistent—can it be reconciled at all with the position that the Trust at the time when they sent that message were working under an oral agreement to pay ten per cent. commission?

MR. EMERSON—I do not think you should read that part without reading the other part also. If you are dealing with that part of it—
MR. HOWLEY—You need not worry. I do not intend to omit one word of this message. There, my lord, is apparently the answer of the Trust, or at least possibly my definition is not correct; when I say answer, perhaps it is an answer or perhaps it is a direction to Thomson. Anyhow there is the position. Having received Reids' cable which says: "Directors suggest five per cent. commission to you" and apparently having received one or more other cables from somebody or other, they came back with that: "Trust composed important business men who know ten per cent. can be asked for on any such transaction," and this is the message which is the same as the message sent to Mr. Reid. I submit that under these circumstances the expression "usual ten per cent commission" must refer to the commission which important business men. Such as those who composed the Trust, knew that they could ask on such a transaction; and certainly by no stretch of the imagination can we reconcile the language of the message by which they attempt to justify the ten per cent. commission, with the idea of an already existing agreement to pay ten per cent.

Then the cable goes on to say: "Cable Reid this sense" but they did not cable Reid this sense. They cabled Reid that the Trust had always been led to believe that the usual ten per cent. commission was payable.

"Cable Reid this sense urging protection Trust."

There is nothing in the message to Reid suggesting protection of the Trust: "In view of future business reducing commission to Trust without giving substantial reason will prove bad policy." "So far as Greenwood, you and myself are concerned, we of course share in three equal parts all monies received from Newfoundland business either through Trust or other channels."

That is the message which Major Macdonald sent to Mr. Thomson on the 25th, April 1920. I have no comment to make on the latter part of it at this stage. I think it speaks for itself.

Then I submit that here is a continuous succession of letter and correspondence and conduct we not alone have nothing to substantiate or corroborate the story that the ten per cent. oral agreement was made in December 1919, but we have a multitude of things which go to refute it; and take into regard all these things, and there are one or two others that I would like to refer to before I sum up on this point; and those are: Your Lordship will remember the position on the 14th, August 1920, when the famous minute of the Reid Mtd. Company, to which so much reference has been made, was passed; we had a variety of versions of what happened on that day.

We have had from Major Macdonald and from Mr. Thomson a statement that is blankly contradicted by Mr. Conroy in his evidence; but with reference to the story of Thomson and Macdonald, I would ask your lordship, if we had nothing else to substantiate our position, I think it would be sufficient—I would ask your lordship to take this into consideration.

Major Macdonald and Mr. Thomson went into the Box, and they were examined at length by my learned friend in his usual brilliant and thorough manner, and it is not until after the story has been told by Mr. Conroy, that they are recalled to tell a story almost identical in language, which if known to them and if known to their counsel at the time, should never have been omitted.

MR. EMERSON—Are you talking now about the August meeting?

MR. HOWLEY—Yes.

MR. EMERSON—As a matter of fact the stories are diametrically opposite. Mr. Thomson does not remember such a discussion and Major Macdonald does.

MR. HOWLEY—But Mr. Thomson remembers the story exactly as Major Macdonald does.

MR. EMERSON—No he does not. He tells a different story.

MR. HOWLEY—So much the worse for you. I thought that I had to deal with a story which was sworn to by both, but it does not appear to be so.

MR. EMERSON—You are insinuating that the story was made up by Macdonald, Thomson and myself since Mr. Conroy went into the box—
MR. HOWLEY—I am not. I do not believe that if any client or that my learned friend would lead himself to it for a moment. My opinion of him, I think, differs from his opinion of me in that respect.

But the position under the minute of August 14th, speaks for itself. In that minute, which is No. 109, H.B.T. 65, on the second page, dealing with the morning meeting, it is intimated:

"The Board then proceeded to discuss several questions relating to the proposed sale of certain properties through the Trust, and Mr. Thomson and Major J. A. Macdonald were present by invitation to answer any questions that might be put by the Board" and at the afternoon session, on the next page:

"The remuneration to be paid to the Trust in connection with the various properties was discussed."

There does not appear to be any mention that when this remuneration of the Trust came up for consideration that there was any reference by anybody to a pre-existing oral agreement for commission; in fact, Mr. Conroy distinctly told us that up to this time and during this time he had never heard of such an agreement; and that again, I submit, my lord, is evidence against the existence of such an agreement.

Then my lord, if we go back to No. 67, W. H. G. 12; this is a letter from Mr. Greenwood to Mr. H. D. Reid, written in the 16th, February 1920 from London:

"Dear Mr. Reid: "As arranged, your brother E. G. conferring with us went into the question of the arrangements to be made between you and him, the Trust and ourselves. The only point for discussion was the payment towards management expenses in establishing the Trust, and handling your interests and the period of time for such payments. The option you have on the shares of the Trust as arranged in Montreal."

Now, my lord, is it not an extraordinary thing that the two matters to which reference is made are the matters which according to the correspondence and our story, are the matters that were discussed in Montreal, and settled upon—settled upon with the exception of the period over which the £1,000 was to be distributed, and there Mr. Greenwood writes to say that the only point for discussion was the payment towards management expenses in establishing the Trust and handling your interests, and the period of time for such payments. And he says that the option on the shares is as arranged in Montreal. There is no reference to the 10 per cent. commission either remaining over for discussion, or having been arranged in Montreal—none whatever.

Then, my lord, is there not a further convincing proof that the story of the Plaintiff's agreement has not been sustained. They have not produced to us a single report, or minute of the Trust, or anything of that kind, whereby this oral agreement was made a matter of record. If your lordship will go through the whole of this story as it appears in this printed volume you will find that on every occasion on which any matter involving monetary or other consideration to the Trust is to be dealt with, a most particular and exact minute is made; and here is this agreement which is setup as the basis of the whole claim and we having nothing but the belated word of Mr. Thomson and the indefiniteness of Major Macdonald to sustain it, and everything, I submit, to show that it is not correct.

Then, my lord, there is just

One Other Point.

If your lordship will turn to No. 111, J.A.McD. 8—Minutes of Meeting of the Plaintiff's Company directors held on the 1st September, 1920. Present Major Macdonald and W. H. Greenwood. This meeting was held after Major Macdonald had returned to England, having participated in the conferences that led to the Minute of August 14th, 1920; and apparently he comes before this meeting to make his report as to what had transpired during his visit to Newfoundland. In that Minute it is said that Major Macdonald left London on July 21st, 1920, and arrived in St. John's on August 6th, etc. And then it says that the chief questions taken up with Mr. H. D. Reid were:

"1. Gander Pulp areas and their sale to Rothermere, or a mortgage on the property for £60,000, the amount still owing on the property."
"2. The sale and development of the Humber property to Mr. Blackstad and his associates."
"3. The policy to be adopted for the sale of the other lands containing mineral deposits."
"4. The fish claim."
"5. Electric Power Plant and St. John's Tramway Co."

"6. The payment to the Trust in commission or otherwise for services in connection with the development and sale of these properties."

That was one of the questions—one of the chief questions taken up with Mr. Reid on Major Macdonald's visit to Newfoundland in August 1920, and I ask your lordship is that consistent with the idea of an already settled and existing agreement to pay a ten per cent. commission, as alleged in paragraph 2 of the Statement of Claim; that one of the chief questions that is taken up with Mr. H. D. Reid in August 1920 was the payment of the Trust by commission or otherwise for services in connection with the development and sale of these properties. Then he goes on to say that after discussing the above matters with the gentlemen mentioned above, it was decided by Mr. H. D. Reid that a Board meeting of the Reid Newfoundland Company would be called, and the agreement come to in each instance concerning the matters under immediate consideration would be forleged, I submit that if such an agreement existed, the borrowing by the St. John's Light and Power Company which was contemplated would have come within its terms; and if that borrowing had been carried out it could be claimed by virtue of that oral agreement that the Plaintiff Company was entitled to a ten per cent. commission on it; but it is admitted by the Plaintiff's right down to November 1921 that the mode or amount of remuneration to be paid for raising the money of the St. John's Light and Power Company has never been settled, or late as October and November, we find them writing to the defendant with a view to having settled the question as to how, or at what rate, remuneration is to be paid for service in borrowing money for the St. John's Light and Power Company. and Power Company; and this of the method and rate of in connection with the St. Light and Power Company is between the Plaintiffs and Corroy at the meeting of Novem- 1921, and the terms which the Newfoundland Company are pre- to agree upon with regard to it set forth in the letter written by Corroy on November 15th, 1921. I think is No. 367, J.A.McD. 338. All these reasons, therefore, that not alone the Plaintiffs not sustained this allegation of making of the oral agreement in 1919 and January 1920, but most abundantly evident to your ship that there is no foundation such a plea, and that the evidence has been given to the effect that this agreement was made will not be rejected by your lordship, but must of necessity be present to your mind in considering the value of the evidence of these witnesses on other points.

Now, my lord, the next point to which I wish to draw your lordship's attention is a point more or less incidental, but I think it should not be passed over, and that is with regard to this question of the

and the payments made in connection with it. Your lordship will remember that in the early days of the Trust one of the matters that they had in mind was the negotiating for the adjustment of a claim existing between the Messrs. Reid personally, as distinct from the Reid Nfd. Co., and the British Government. These negotiations were begun in 1919, and must first have been placed in the hands of Mr. Greenwood before the formation of the Trust. These negotiations were continued down through 1919 and 1920, and up into the Spring of 1921, when they were finalised by the payment to Mr. Reid of the sum in the neighbourhood of $80,000, and Mr. Reid paid $8,000, at the rate of ten per cent. on that settlement, and the cheque was payable to Major MacDonald. The money did not go into the Trust, and it was claimed, I understand from the witnesses for the Plaintiffs, that this was a personal transaction of Greenwood's, and that the Trust was not entitled to it. But a reference back to No. 111 shows us that when Major MacDonald arrived back in England, after his visit here in August of 1920, in making his report to the Trust at the meeting held on the 1st September, enumerated amongst the chief questions taken up with Mr. H. D. Reid "A. The Fish Claim." Now, if the fish claim was a personal matter of Greenwood's—given to him, it is true, or put into his hands before the Trust was formed, and conducted by him independently of the Trust altogether—and the evidence is quite to the contrary—but even if it was, what business did Major MacDonald have discussing it with Mr. Reid when he was out here, and why is he reporting upon it to the meeting of the directors of the Trust when he gets home in September. But the evidence is that the work in connection with the adjustment of the fish claim went on through 1920, and up to the time of its settlement in 1921; and that at that time Major MacDonald participated in it, and letters were written and work was done in the offices of the Trust by the staff of the Trust, and, as it pointed out here, the matter was entered in the minutes of the proceedings of the Trust; but when the money is received, then this matter did not belong to the Trust at all. It belongs to Greenwood, but it is paid to MacDonald, and the Trust knows nothing about it, nor is there any credit of it made in the accounts of the Trust so far as the evidence is concerned; and this is one of the questions that appears in the disputes between the Trust directors and the preference shareholders at the time when, as your lordship has been told by one of the witnesses, we were guilty of that conspiracy to block these proceedings. MR. EMERSON—Is not that quite apparent from the telegrams? MR. HOWLEY—At this stage I think it would be of interest if we referred to

The Constitution of the Trust.

Your lordship will remember that evidence has been given to the effect that fair proposal by your brother, as was also that the payments towards management expenses should be at the rate of £250 per month from October 1st, 1919, to October 1st, 1921. This arrangement being understood and agreed to, your brother cabled you, to which he received your cable confirming as follows: "Agree your terms Trust. Reid". The £1,000 you had sent in December 1919 was then applied under this arrangement". Then sometime afterwards, I think it was in March, in No. 61, Mr. Greenwood writes Mr. Reid, and he says: "I have to-day at the request of Major MacDonald put through a draft on you through the Bank of Montreal for £250, carrying out the arrangements made by your brother and Major MacDonald and myself with you for the monthly contribution to the managing expenses of the Trust. We will handle this matter, if it is satisfactory to you, in the same way every month, and I will note on the back of the draft that it refers to MacDonald and Greenwood. It was an oversight that this had not been done the first of the month. I was under the impression that Major MacDonald would draw, and he was under the impression that I would draw, and we delayed until this date to do what we set out to do when we wrote you touching the matter".

Now, my lord, there can be no question, in the light of that correspondence, there can be no question that these moneys were arranged for and agreed upon as monthly contributions to the management expenses of the Trust. They have not gone to the Trust, not one dollar of them; and the evidence is that they have gone into the pockets of Major MacDonald and Mr. Greenwood; and I submit, my lord, that the position is this: that either these men intended to deceive the Reid Nfd. Co., or intended to deceive the preferred shareholders of the Trust, or intended to deceive both of them, and I submit further, my lord, that they misappropriated these moneys, which were payments to the Trust by Mr. Reid, and which should have gone into the Trust accounts. They might, after going into the Trust's accounts, they might, if the matter had been done constitutionally and properly, have been paid out to MacDonald and Greenwood for services or one thing and another like that.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—Do you not think that these payments were earmarked, that even though they went indirectly through the Trust, these payments were intended for the services of Major MacDonald and Mr. Greenwood? MR. HOWLEY—I do not think so not at that stage. The subsequent arrangement for the £250 monthly was undoubtedly in the eyes of all parties, a personal payment to MacDonald and Greenwood for services. That was arranged subsequently, in the summer of 1921, but that point does not come in here at all.

All through this correspondence there is the express condition that it is a contribution towards the management expenses of the Trust; and it is laid down firstly by the Trust themselves, in the first mention of it, which is in the letter which Mr. Thomson wrote to Mr. Reid on December 23rd, 1919. He says: "That you remit to Major J. A. MacDonald the equivalent of £1,000 as a contribution towards paying management expenses during the next four months," and then Greenwood writes to Major MacDonald: "Thousand pounds contribution towards paying management expense next four months"; and then there is the letter from Greenwood to Reid on the 16th Feb., which said that "the only point for discussion was the payment towards management expenses, etc." (as set out above).

Now, my lord, I submit that it is not open to any two constructions. The arrangement for the payment of the £1,000 and the subsequent arrangement for the payment of £250 a month are all arrangements for payments to the Trust. I admit that after these moneys got into the hands of the Trust that there was a power in the directorate of the Trust to sit down and vote that MacDonald and Greenwood should receive them for extra services, or something of that sort; but they did not get into the hands of the Trust at all; and here we have the position, my lord—why should they go to MacDonald and Greenwood? What justification had they for taking them, or for looking for them? They were, although we did not know of this at the time, they were the managing directors of the Trust, which Trust had constituted itself to deal with the Reid properties in London, by virtue of an arrangement made with them by Mr. Thomson; this Trust, which as early as December 1919, and before Mr. Thomson left for Canada, had decided to concentrate upon the Reid properties, and which Trust had voted Greenwood and MacDonald £900 a year as its managing directors, although we did not know of this at the time, they should MacDonald and Greenwood ask us to pay between them at the rate of £250 a month for doing the work which the Trust was already paying them £900 a year to do? And, my lord, the money was paid specifically for the management expenses of the Trust. What were the management expenses of the Trust? Were not the salaries that the Trust had voted to these men part of their management expenses, and in what way could they justify, without another vote, in what way could they justify the receipt on their part of sums of money belonging to the Trust. I submit, and I submit with confidence in the position which appears from the record, that those moneys were arranged for as payments to the Trust on account of the Trust. It was arranged for as a payment to help to discharge all the expenses of the conduct of the business of the Trust, whether these expenses be the rents, or salaries, or anything else; and that Greenwood and MacDonald had no right without the authority of a minute by the Trust to appropriate these moneys.

There is Another Point

I would like to draw your lordship's attention to for a moment. It is only in connection with this that I would like to refer to it. If your lordship will remember, when we got down to this stage of the ten per cent. personal commission agreement in the spring of 1921. That is No. 254 in the book, H.B.T. 84, in which we have the minutes of the meeting of the Plaintiffs' directors held on the 6th April, 1921, at which MacDonald, Thomson and Greenwood were present; and after they had dealt with the Blackstad agreements that Mr. Reid had signed, were explained, we have No. 3: "Following on the report of the chairman that to the effect that . . . "etc." (to the end of the minute).

My lord, there was never, so far as we know, so far as we have any evidence, there was never any minute of the Trust with regard to this £1000 towards management expenses, nor this £250 a month, and the Trust, in so far as it can be dissociated from Messrs. MacDonald, Greenwood and Thomson, if it can be dissociated at all, never knew that Reid was contributing £250 a month towards its management expenses. The Trust, as a Trust, as I say, and in so far as it can be distinguished from these people, never knew that apart from the £900 a year, which had been voted to them as managing directors, that they were getting three thousand pounds a year more from the Reids for doing the same work; and I repeat again that there is not the slightest justification

THE NEW CHRYSLER FOUR

WALTER P. CHRYSLER TELLS ABOUT IT.

Far ahead in power, speed, fuel mileage, beauty; in safety, ease, and complete and perfect roadability. First car of its price with the option of hydraulic four-wheel brakes.

Walter P. Chrysler's manufacturing ability is incontestably proved by the most enthusiastic public endorsement ever given an individual in the motor car industry.

For four years, you have seen Chrysler-created products steadily forging forward to the very forefront of the four and six-cylinder fields.

You have seen Chrysler engineering, Chrysler manufacturing quality and Chrysler value built up to a production of more than 13,000 cars per month.

Every step of that irresistible advance was part of a process in preparation for the production of the new Chrysler Four.

Throughout these four years, Chrysler standards and Chrysler quality have won the most impressive success in motor car history.

A CAR WHOSE ABILITY AMAZES EVEN ENGINEERS

And all of this achievement, all of the fine manufacturing which have made the Chrysler Six such an unprecedented success, served to create an insistent demand for the outstanding Chrysler qualities of engineering supremacy, manufacturing fitness, riding ease and beautiful appearance—and to stimulate the genius of Walter P. Chrysler to produce these same qualities in the lower priced field of the four.

Now, the full Chrysler conception of what a four-cylinder car should be, becomes an actuality. Briefly summed up, it is our conviction that this Chrysler Four delivers more of power, speed, fuel mileage and charm of appearance than any other four in the world to-day.

Mr. Chrysler's description of the new Chrysler Four is here given at length. "A good engineer never accepts a fact until he has proved it to be a fact to his own satisfaction," Mr. Chrysler said, "and the engineers who designed the Chrysler Four were themselves amazed at the ease and road ability it displayed in their tests.

"It can and does hold its own on the road with the highest priced; and it can and does leave the ordinary and the average far to the rear.

"It will open any man's eyes at the way it fairly sprints up and over the long, heavy hills.

"And with Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes, which are optional at a small extra cost, it offers a certainty and a safety that have never before been present in cars of its price.

"In the fewest words, it puts a wholly new interpretation on four-cylinder ability and performance, on riding ease and complete and perfect roadability.

"Like the Chrysler Six, it puts a new interpretation on quality by way of the extensive use of fine and costly alloy steels, and with rigid adherence to the highest of manufacturing standards.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Saturday, July 11, 1925.

Are We Slaves to an Accursed System?

Yesterday we were privileged to listen to an informal discussion on fish, which took place in the office of a firm on Water Street, where some specimens of Iceland soft cured cod were on view. Side by side with the foreign product was a Labrador fish of last season's catch, and even after one had made every allowance for that fact, the contrast between the appearance of the two as food commodities was most marked. The former was white and looked appetizing, the latter, dark in colour, and it did not appear particularly palatable. The former showed that scrupulous care had been observed in the cleaning process; the latter, with a clot of dried blood where the bone had been severed, another clot adhering to the nape, and marks of slime on the back, indicated that little regard had been shown in the matter of ordinary cleanliness, and that appearances had been sacrificed in the anxiety to conserve energy.

Now no one will for a moment contend that the fish caught elsewhere can compare in flavour and general excellence with the properly cured Labrador product. No one for a moment will assert that the Newfoundland fisherman is lazy, indifferent to cleanliness, or ignorant of his business. Everyone will, however, at once admit that at present a considerable quantity of the fish cured, not only on the Labrador, but around the coast of the Island, leaves much to be desired in two essentials in any food product, cleanliness and appearance.

Why is this? A housekeeper making a purchase in a butcher's shop relies for the most part upon the appearance of the cut of meat. We may pride ourselves on the knowledge we possess of this, that, or the other commodity, but as a general rule our judgment is influenced by the way in which it appeals to the eye. So is it surely with our customers in the foreign markets, customers not only of ours, but of Norway, of Iceland, of Canada, and of France, all of whom are striving to oust our tastier fish by submitting to them an article which looks more attractive.

We ask why this is. Would it not be even more pertinent to ask why we have not long ago secured absolute control of these markets by curing our fish in such a manner that it would appeal as strongly to the eye of our customers as it does to their palate?

The gentlemen who discussed this matter yesterday were for the most part men of long experience in the fish business, and while their views as to the best processes of cure and so on may have differed, they were all of one opinion as to the root of this evil, namely, the tal qual system.

That, you may say, is no new discovery. No, it is not, but it is a hopeful sign to find a number of prominent fish buyers unanimously condemning the system and showing an earnest desire to find a way out.

Examine the insidious development of this system whatever way you will, and the only conclusion that can be arrived at is that it is the result of mistrust, avariciousness, and inexcusable folly. We feel inclined to add, disloyalty, for after all, it means sacrificing the country's reputation and its industrial welfare for the sake of, comparatively, an insignificant personal gain.

Were the business men of this country called upon tomorrow to sacrifice their comforts or to mortgage their resources in order to preserve the integrity of the Empire, they would do so without a murmur. In fact they would hotly resent it if they were not permitted to lend their aid in such a cause. If the call came to-morrow for young men to rally to the flag, they would as readily respond and as willingly offer their lives in its defense as they did in 1914.

Is the welfare and reputation of the Oldest Colony of such insignificance that we cannot make a slight personal sacrifice in its behalf; that we cannot voluntarily unite to banish a system which is having an immoral effect upon the toilers of the sea, is discouraging efficiency, and is destroying the vitality of our greatest industry? Is conscription necessary in order to make us realize our responsibility? Must a law be passed specifically stating, "Thou shalt not buy or sell on the Tal Qual System?" Surely the injunction with which everyone is familiar—"to be true and just in all my dealings"—is sufficiently relevant without any further binding laws!

If it be the case that the passing of such a law is unavoidable, then, however regrettable such action may be, let us have it, and the sooner the better. If in the interest of the others the slackers must be whipped into line, apply the whip. This is a duty which rests with the Government, and there must be no wavering in their ranks because of political or any other considerations.

First, however, before suggesting such drastic measures, we would appeal to the natural pride which every Newfoundlander possesses; to the tendency to give his services freely and of his own accord, rather than by compulsion, and above all, to his love of country, and we do not yet despair of such an appeal, broadcast through the land by men who are sincere in their convictions and are inspired by their mission, failing to arouse a popular movement which would result in removing "Tal Qual" forever from our vocabulary, and making the system nothing more than a memory recalled with horror and disgust.

Let the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who has already been outspoken in this matter, rally the exporters. Let the Leader of the Opposition and the President of the Fishermen's Union second his efforts. For the time being at least, eschew politics. Call upon the press to lend its aid to the movement. Ask the clergy throughout the Island to denounce the system from their pulpits as a thing of evil, and the teachers in the schools, to warn their pupils of its deadly effect upon the community. Let us be frank with ourselves and admit that so far, no real effort has ever been made to stamp out this blighting influence, and that we have been guilty whenever the issue has been raised of using it for purposes not altogether disinterested.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

July 10th.—Up betimes, the weather still fine, and do take a colder bath than for the first time since I did last suffer from rheumatism. But Lord, the shock of the cold water do greatly upset me nor do I think that I shall be able to continue. This day by invitation to Mr. Barr's office where among other things, did have shown to me a Labrador cure fish and an Iceland fish that is soft cured in like manner. What I did see, do make me believe what I did hear of our Labrador fish, that anon there will be no market for it if it did not improve in appearance, for where the Iceland fish is white and clean, our specimen is dirty and has many bloodspots. Both courts busy this day, being that Mr. Howley still disposes of the Reid case and in the Petty Court, the case of the Herbert Green do still continue.

By despatches this night out of China, news of all white women ordered to leave Canton and do seem how the Chinese trouble is not yet over. Indeed, this is a much troubled world, and what will come of all this lawlessness, I know not.

Famous Nova Scotian Racer in Port

The schr. Bluenose, Capt. Angus Walters, master, arrived in port this morning and is at present lying at Job Bros. premises. The Bluenose is the famous Nova Scotian clipper which showed her superior sailing qualities in 1923 in the Fishermen's Race, and again last year, when unfortunately a dispute occurred in connection with the course followed by the vessel.

The Bluenose is attracting much attention, and her appearance is greatly admired by those who have seen her. She was obliged to put into port to land two sick men. Thos. Skinner and D. Zinck who need hospital treatment. The vessel has about 1700 qts. of fish on board and practically a full bottom. Captain Walters has landed two trips which makes his total to-date up to 3,600 qts. He states that fish is fairly plentiful on the Banks but the weather has been the worst in his experience.

Belvedere Garden Party

Amongst the many attractions at the Belvedere Garden Party on Wednesday next is the Aquarium now being erected for the popular Secretary of the Ladies' Committee, Mrs. C. J. O'Keefe, and her talented assistants, Misses O'Neill, Murphy and Stamp. The old-time fish pond has been superseded and new and novel replacements will be in evidence. The writer was privileged to have a peep at a portion of the proposed contents of the Aquarium, and if that was seen will be placed in the exhibit, a traffic officer will likely have to be requisitioned. Certainly rods should be in big demand that afternoon and it is quite safe to say that everyone will be quite pleased with his catch. In affairs of this kind, it is quite the usual thing to give good value about every fifth or tenth throw and to give small prizes on the others, but throwing precedent to the winds, Mrs. O'Keefe and her assistants have determined this year to give unheard of values in every case, and it is due entirely to concerted work during the past twelve months that this idea of a big value fish pond is at all possible. No one should visit the grounds on Wednesday next without throwing a rod once or twice in Mrs. O'Keefe's fish pond.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—The annual Camp will be held from 23rd July to 1st August. Camp affords a healthy holiday at the seaside, Tostopol, for over 200 lads, who would not be able to get this outing if Camp was discontinued. The cost of Camp will be about $1,200. It is felt that many will be glad to help these lads. Will you please allow us space in your esteemed paper to publish the enclosed letter.

Yours very truly,
W. F. RENDELL, Lieut.-Col.

Open letter to our friends:—One or two of our usual sources of revenue are not available this year, and the Finance Committee is obliged to make a special effort to raise funds to meet the expenses of Camp. It is about fifteen years since we have made any appeal to the public for Camp, and we would not do so now if it were not absolutely necessary. TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

BELGIAN METAL WORKERS' STRIKE SPREADING.
BRUSSELS, July 10.
The strike of the metal workers, which has been in progress for some time, is spreading. Twenty thousand workers in the Liege district have announced that they will leave their posts on July 16, making the total number of strikers about 65,000.

COMPENSATION PAID OUT OF ENEMY HOLDINGS.

OTTAWA, July 10.
Payments of $2,300,000 have already been made by the custodian of enemy property to claimants who have substantiated their property lost to them through the German war measure, and another $1,350,000 will be paid next week to the Thompson Shipping Co., of St. John, N.B., it is announced. The Thompson Company had two ships interned in Germany at the beginning of the war and subsequently seized by Germany. The money is in payment for two ships.

THEUNIS KEEN ON DEBT SETTLEMENT PLAN.

BRUSSELS, July 10.
Former Premier Theunis has not yet made up his mind whether he will be a member of the mission which will sail for the United States this summer for the purpose of arranging a settlement of the Belgian debt. M. Theunis is understood to be not enthusiastic, especially as he would not agree with some of the policies which have been followed since he left office. Feichin Caster, a noted financial statesman and educator, appears to be the only one who has definitely agreed to be a member of the mission.

THE ALASKAN INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

DAWSON, Yukon, July 10.
Two deaths were reported to-day in an influenza epidemic in Dawson and surrounding districts. The Dawson Hospital is filled to capacity and whole families are sick. A nurse has been sent to Shikrik, an Indian village, 100 miles southeast of Dawson, where two fatalities were reported and where 100 persons are ill. Another outbreak was reported at Circle, Alaska, 175 miles northwest of here.

CONFLICTING REPORTS FROM LABRADOR.

WASHINGTON, July 10.
Unprecedented ice floes along the Labrador coast were reported to the National Geographic Society to-day as likely to place unexpected difficulties in the path of the MacMillan Arctic expedition. This report, however, differed somewhat from a message to the Navy Department in the day, which indicated that much less ice than usual for this time of the year was found in the vicinity of Hopewell Harbor from which the expedition expected to depart at 1 a.m. to-day. No message filed since that hour was received here. Capt. Harrison, some 400 miles north of Newfoundland, was named by Commander MacMillan in the message to the Geographic Society as the point for which he heads after leaving Hopewell, and from there he planned to push 200 miles further north to Cape Mugford.

URGER ON BY WOMEN.

FEZ, July 11.
The ferocity of the Moors' attacks against the French lines at night may be accounted for in part by the part tribeswomen play in them. These Amazons, which bands armed with henna, race after the riders shrieking hysterically and grasping any warrior who for a moment falls back from the onward rush. In the morning riders whose clothes are found to be daubed with henna are summarily shot.

BELGIANS LEAVING RUHR.

BRUSSELS, July 11.
Belgian troops now in the Ruhr are to return to the garrisons in Belgium between July 15th and 20th.

RUN BUNNERS ON THE LAKES.

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., July 10.
Fifteen boats loaded to capacity lay at anchor last night here waiting a favorable opportunity to slip out into the Lake in the darkness. The men worked hard yesterday in the breaking up of the boats with their whiskey and wine. The United States Coast Guard cutter with lights doused lay about three miles outside Port Colborne last night to watch the runners come out. The lookout observed the presence of the cutter, and the fleet stayed in with the exception of the largest boat of the fleet which successfully ran the blockade. A big rush across the Lake is expected to-night.

QUET IN CANTON.

CANTON, July 10.
Canton is quiet but the belief is expressed that a further attack upon foreigners is being planned. Inflammatory posters are being displayed throughout the city.

Magistrate's Court

THIS MORNINGS' SESSION.
The further hearing of the case arising out of the seizure on the Herbert Green was continued at 11.45 this morning before Mr. McCarthy, J. C. When Customs officer Augustus Green was cross-examined by Mr. Fenelon, K.C. When witness was doing watch on the Furness Whyly he did not remember recognizing Customs officers Kendrick, although there were quite a number of men around the premises at the time. In the conversation which took place in the captain's cabin on the Herbert Green, witness stated that the trio were comparing the comparative prices of liquor in the Controller's Dept. and the quality of liquor on board the ship. Capt. Bryne mentioned the price he was paying for his whiskey here, and complained of not being able to obtain a sufficient quantity for his own use. He also mentioned $1, $1.50 and $2.50 as the prices for rum at the Controller's. Witness also distinctly heard Capt. Bryne ask super cargo Ryan what whiskey would cost per case, Ambassador preferred. Witness did not catch the super cargo's reply, neither did he hear what Capt. Bryne said afterwards. The discussion witness was in hiding, and a lot of the words used were missed. The court arose at 1 p.m. until 2.45 this afternoon.

Baby Sleeps Well and Enjoys his Food now!

Mothers are saved a world of worry over babies' feeding difficulties and teething disorders by giving Woodward's Gripe Water. Read the experience of Mrs. J. J. Connor, 7, Willard Grove, Liverpool:—

"My baby suffered greatly with indigestion from birth till three months of age. His digestion was so bad he would scream after every feed. Since using Woodward's Gripe Water he sleeps better and enjoys his food better than he ever did, and has also progressed in weight and is a happier baby altogether."

Woodward's Gripe Water instantly relieves baby's indigestion, colic and teething pains, permits sound sleep and protects against diarrhoea. It is also a valuable remedy for internal pains and stomach disorders in older children and adults. It is pleasant to take and perfectly free from opiates.

WEEKLY MEETING REGATTA COMMITTEE.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Regatta Committee was held in the T.A. Club Rooms last night. President Hiscock presiding. The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. A communication was received from Capt Bennett, on behalf of the C.C.C. Band, asking permission to hold band concerts at the Lakeside on Tuesday evenings. This was granted. A letter was also received from the Secretary of the Felldian Club, entering the Felldian Amateur crew, which is as follows:—A. Wight,cox; T. Chalker,stroke; A. Bayly, C. Crossie, M. Chambers, R. Martin, J. Parsons.

Crews for the following races will enter on Friday night next at 9.30 o'clock, viz. Amateur, Mercantile, Intermediate, Juvenile, Senior Football, Junior Football. Due notice of this will be given in the daily papers.

At first of a proposition re the raising of funds to defray the cost of the improvements to the Lakeside and the usual expenses, much discussion took place as to the proper course to pursue in order to raise the amount of money necessary. One suggestion that met with the approval of some of the members was that the committee put a wheel on the course as well as the boat clubs, making four in all, and that at the end of the day, the receipts be pooled and divided equally. This was made to offset the putting of collection boxes for voluntary subscriptions on the lake. Other speakers, however were strongly in favour of the first course suggested, stating that during the week they had spoken of the matter to many of the general public and at least 95 per cent. were of opinion that this was the proper course. The improvements being made at the lakeside are for the benefit of the general public and the speakers felt that no one would mind the placing of boxes to receive voluntary subscriptions, at the lakeside, knowing the purpose for which the money was going.

The Regatta this year will cost about $4200.00 and the amount of money handed in from the collectors who have begun work, is to date $519.55, so that there is a large amount required yet.

The proposition for the boxes on being put was carried by a majority vote, and at the next meeting a committee will be formed to arrange the details in connection with the matter.

The Blue Peter Boat Club forwarded a communication that they had received from His Honor Judge Morris, granting permission to have a wheel of torture at the Regatta and the Club asked the sanction of the Regatta Committee. This was granted.

The collectors on the ward, which includes the dock, asked for two men to seek donations from the employees there; Messrs. H. C. Hayward and T. J. Fornan volunteered for the work and Messrs. K. Ruby and J. Murphy volunteered to visit the stores on the back streets and ask for contributions.

A few other minor matters were disposed of after which the meeting adjourned until next Friday evening.

BLUE PETER II NEARING COMPLETION.

The new race boat, Blue Peter, is rapidly nearing readiness for the pond, and is now at the Curlew Bank where it is being painted up. The cars are now being made, and will be completed in a few days. Full arrangements have not yet been made for the christening of the boat, but this will take place in the near future when the boat will be brought to the pond.

The Star of the Sea is now more than a week under way and this boat will be completed not later than the 26th inst, after which it will be got in readiness for the launching. Both boats are crewed for all the races.

Sailors Held in Custody

Two seamen of the Norwegian steamer Salmma, were arraigned before court this morning at the instance of the captain, charged with desertion. The captain appeared in court and stated the men left the ship on Thursday, and when they did not return yesterday he was obliged to have a search warrant issued for their arrest. The court decided to hold the men in custody until the ship is ready for sea. In the meantime the captain was ordered to make arrangements with the agents for the payment of expenses.

Explosion in Gasoline Tank

As a result of an explosion which occurred this forenoon in an underground gasoline tank at the premises of Mr. C. O'N. Conroy, a pipe fitter, Jas. Miller was seriously injured, and had to be conveyed to hospital for treatment. Miller, who is employed with W. J. Ryan, started yesterday morning to clean out the pump of the tank which had become choked with sand, and used an electric light for illumination. This morning he again went into the tank with the light, but in some manner the bulb broke and an explosion of gas immediately followed. The force of the explosion tore the man's clothing to pieces, and he is much injured about the head and arms. The Hospital reported at 1 p.m. to-day that he is resting easily.

Report of the Chief Agent for Week Ending, July 10th.

Called on Sunday by Mr. Mills at Harvey & Coys. with regard to a sick cow on board the S.S. Hetherwood. I phoned Dr. Bishop who attended to it and eventually it came to. I attended to the head of 125 head cattle, 50 pigs, 3 horses and 65 sheep from the Hetherwood. The cattle were all landed with care, and taken immediate delivery of by the owners. Humanely put to death a dog on Blackmarsh Road. The dog was a great annoyance in the neighborhood. I also destroyed another dog on the same road. The dog had bitten a boy and the doctor said it should be destroyed. Humanely put to death a dog that had been hurt by a motor car on Cornwall Avenue. I also destroyed a dog in a sick condition on Summer Street. Received a report from a lady of Cochrane Street of a motor car running over a dog and going on leaving it in a wounded condition. I have the number of the car and am investigating the case.

Called by the police to the west end where a cat was left in a wounded condition. I humanely put the cat to death. Received a report of a horse being in a field on Forest Road without any water. I am attending to it. Attended to the landing of 120 head cattle, 100 sheep, 10 horses, lot of pigs from the Canadian Stepper. All the cattle were watered and taken to pasture immediately on landing. Little Jack Rabbit
by David Cory

"All aboard!" shouted the Old Red Rooter, as the engine of the Lettuce-mere Express began to snort and puff. Quickly hopping up the steps, Little Jack Rabbit sat down in the Pullman Car "Green Cabbage" and looked out of the window to wave good-bye to Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother. Then away went the train down the track and around the curve. Pretty soon the Old Red Rooter opened the door and shouted, "Tickets, please!" Strange to say he had no puncheon with him. He didn't need one. No streetbus! He simply asked you to hold out your ticket. Then, with a hop-tottery up in the air, he brought down his ears and punched a hole in the little piece of pasteboard as neatly as any postman.

"Ha, ha," laughed the little rabbit, "I'm glad you didn't hit my thumb." "Wouldn't do that for the world," answered the old fowl, with a grin. "I'm very careful. Yes, I am, when I give the ticket a quickertzy jam."

Just then the little bunny at the window spied Danny Fox. That crafty old robber was sneaking along the Old Stone Fence that bordered the Pleasant Pasture. Over his shoulder hung an empty gunny sack and from his right paw a big stick.

"Dear, oh dear," sighed the little rabbit, "I hope he isn't on his way to the Big Farmyard," and hopping down the aisle, he called to the Old Red Rooter, "Look, look! Danny Fox is creeping along the Old Stone Fence."

"What?" answered the old fowl, pulling the bell-rope.

The next moment the train came to a standstill and out from the baggage car jumped the Policeman Dog. Wasn't it lucky that he had come on board to talk to the baggage master, an old dog friend of his?

"But, Oh dear me! No sooner had the Policeman Dog landed on the meadow than Danny Fox peeped over the Old Stone Fence. Drooping his old

A Bargain to Those Who Look Ahead

When it comes to the acid test of really hard grueling work and comfort—that is where the Morris-Oxford and Cowley Cars come out on top. Sturdy, reliable and steadfast, it has that rugged power and beefiness that your car in future will be a Morris. And it asks for little—only a gallon of fuel every 30 miles on the Oxford—only a gallon of fuel every 36 miles on the "Cowley," proven by Morris owners in Newfoundland. Prices wonderfully low, you can reach them.

It's British—and you'll be proud of it.

Britain's Best Customers

London Daily Telegraph: Our sales abroad of goods on which British labor has been expended have been falling considerably short of the high level which was reached in 1913. Both inward and outward trade, it is true, showed last quarter an expansion as compared with the corresponding period a year ago. But they are well below the pre-war level, and for such improvement as has been seen lately we have been largely indebted to the Dominions, Colonies and Dependencies, who are taking more from us than at any previous period, and who were responsible for about half of the increase in exports which took place in the last three months. It is a factor to be stressed that if it were not for the demand for goods which is reaching us from our partners and dependents overseas, our unemployment problem would long since have reached unmanageable proportions.

The Brigade's financial advisers composed of representatives from the various departments held a conference Friday night at the Armoury to find the ways and means of financing some twelve hundred dollars to provide between two and three hundred lads a holiday at Topsail Camp. For about fifteen years now the Brigade officers have not been around "with the book" to raise funds, but have endeavored to provide their needs from the ladies auxiliary, sports, band concerts, and with the help of voluntary contributions sent in by those kind appreciating friends who have been carrying on and maintaining the organization for the benefit of the youth of Newfoundland. This year two sources of our income have failed, so that the "Brigade financiers" have to make an appeal to those friends who would like to lend a hand to support the organization's work. It costs nearly four thousand dollars a year to finance the institution. For about fifteen years the various officers commanding have contributed handsomely and the officers have nobly backed up the leadership by assuming their responsibility, not alone for the work of drill, gymnastics, music, shooting, annual camp, outdoor and indoor sports, Brigade Savings Bank or thrift department and a hundred and one odds and ends of little things needing attention, such as visiting those who are ill, encouraging lads needing employment and advice, and arranging for the lads' annual entertainment and social evenings. The Armoury building repairs, heating and upkeep needs the attention of the officers from time to time. Not only have these gentlemen holding commissions to do this work, but they also undertake the financial responsibility as well.

Now, the Officer Commanding and his finance committee need twelve hundred dollars for Camp Expenses. The Brigade needs the money and with confidence relies on old friends, old comrades and others who would like to help the officers to voluntarily send us in a cheque or a bank note to help give the boys many of whom could never have a holiday—and such a good happy, healthy holiday, as the ten days under canvas with the Church Lads' Brigade at Topsail. Please do it to-day, and send your contribution to Lt. Col. Walter F. Rendell, C.B.E., Officer Commanding; Major Herbert Outerbridge, M.B.E.; Major G. R. Williams, or Captain Lewis, Paymaster.

Extensive Range of Human Voice

The limit of range of the human voice would appear to have been reached in Scotland on an occasion recorded by a correspondent writing to Jameson's Journal in 1828, when "being at the west end of Dunfermline he overheard part of a sermon then being given in a tent at Carneshill by Dr. Black." He did not miss a single word, "though the distance must be about two miles. The preacher has, perhaps seldom been surpassed for distinct speaking and a clear voice, and the wind, steady and moderate, came in the direction of the sound."

"Married First" Here Next Week

OPENS AT THE NICKEL MONDAY. "Married First," Metro-Goldwyn's picturization of "Mrs. Paramor," Louis Joseph Vance's novel, which was recently published, is the feature at the Nickel Theatre Monday. It is the first production for this company by Robert G. Vignola, director of "When Knighthood Was In Flower," "Yolanda," and other successes.

The cast of "Married First" comes in the category of "notable." Besides Miss Frederick, it includes Conrad Nagel, Miss March, Huntly Gordon, Alice Hollister, Patterson Dial and Paul Nicholson.

The story is something new in the way of love complications, for instead of the usual triangle, there is a quadrangle, with each side equally involved.

"The triangle idea has been done so often," says Vignola, "that one can usually close his eyes and feel instinctively what is taking place on the screen. Unless a picture, as well as a book or play, is full of usual surprises it loses its real value."

The four characters about which the story of "Married First" revolves puts an entirely new light on a plot of this sort, and gives a twist to the picture that makes it absolutely unique."

Flogging Still Legal in Maryland

Flogging as punishment, has been legalized by Maryland statute laws under every constitution the State has had from 1776 to the present time. It was common in the Colony before the Revolution. Under the statute of 1723, forgery, theft, counterfeiting, Sabbath breaking and blasphemy were equally punishable by the lash. A person who swore in the presence of a magistrate or other public official was liable to a fine of 2s. 6d. for each "cussword"; and if the fine was not paid he received up to 39 lashes.

In those days floggings were public. It was not until about 1810 that scandalized Marylanders succeeded in having the exhibitions cut off from popular views by a law which required those punishments to be administered behind walls of jails or prisons. Though public whippings were abolished, such punishments continued to be inflicted in private by sheriffs under order of the court for many years. The whipping post which was used in a Baltimore until a comparatively recent time still is in the custody of the warden of the city jail and is exhibited occasionally as a relic. It was not until about 1860 that flogging for trivial offenses was abolished in the States. Flogging for theft continued for some time longer.

Where There's a Will—
THERE'S OFTEN A SECRET!

An Aberdeen woman, while turning over some papers, accidentally found her husband's will, in which he left her the house in Cheahill. The surprised wife subsequently went to the lawyer's house, and found that she was named as the indiscreet testator. As a result, a divorce was granted.

May a startling secret is similarly disclosed by a will, though usually not until after the death of the person who made it. One testator went out of his way to call his wife a "perambulating vinegar cruet"; another provided that his son should not receive a certain bequest unless he "shall sign a pledge and keep it for twelve months."

From Society to Solitude.

It was from a will that a man who seemed to have the world at his feet—a officer in the Guards, a popular member of society, and a frequent visitor at Buckingham Palace—learned that he was not the son of the man he had always regarded as father, and that the woman he had known as aunt was his mother. He was so affected by the blow that, after resigning his commission and breaking off the marriage arranged between him and a well-known lady, he retired to an estate in the country, where he lived in great privacy till the end of his days.

Equally dramatic was another secret disclosed by a will. A West-countryman was struck by the similarity of the circumstances of the death of a merchant and those of the death of a man in the town that the merchant, while on a visit to the place where the merchant proprietor had an estate, had died suddenly in exactly the same way as that man. Later, moreover, he was given a public funeral, whereas nothing was said as to when or where the merchant was buried.

Drawing the Veil.

The West-countryman's curiosity was aroused, and he took the first opportunity of calling at Somerset House and inspecting the landed proprietor's will, which showed that he had been a double personality. For more than twenty years, in fact, he had maintained two establishments, and been landowner and merchant in turn without arousing suspicion among his friends.

No less strangely was the curtain drawn from another drama of real life. A wealthy manufacturer, on his death, left his legal wife an annuity of £600 and the rest of his estate, valued at about £40,000, to the woman whose bequest was made in her maiden name.

This practically gave away a secret that had been carefully guarded, but the children without a name continued in ignorance of their true status. When, however, their mother died, she left a will in which she disclosed everything, thereby vindicating the true wife, whom many people had regarded since her husband's death as an impostor.

Name Worth £25,000.

One of the most curious disclosures of a double life was made in the will of a well-to-do man who some years ago was well known in the City of London. For an unknown reason he liked playing the part of waiter out of business hours, and for a long period he was one of the institutions at a certain restaurant. When he died he made open confession in his will of this folio.

The extraordinary will of a chartered accountant who, after living on respectance a day, died and left unsuspected wealth amounting to more than

Riches in Rags and Tatters
LUCK IN CAST-OFF CLOTHES.

An unpromising way to romance seems the grimy entrance to the marine store. Yet how many stories are connected with the evil-smelling rags that pass through it!

By some strange chance a bundle of dilapidated cast-offs was not examined till it reached a mill in Canada, and then there was found in it a parcel of diamonds worth £3,000.

As another lot was being tossed into a bin a valuable antique ring fell from it. Part of a collection stolen from a house in Mayfair, the ring had been gleaned somewhere in London earlier in the day; but it could not be traced to the thief.

Fortunate, too, but for another reason, was a "find" in a waistcoat, one of a couple not good enough even to pawn, that were sold by a man who was down and out. Shortly afterwards he was arrested for housebreaking, and no fewer than seven people identified him.

Saved by His Memory.

He stated that at the time the felony was committed he was in a bus coming from Highgate, and that he thought the ticket given to him by the conductor was in the top left-hand pocket of one of the waistcoats he had sold. The ticket was ultimately found there, and as it bore out his statement he was discharged.

A number of waistcoats once became connected with a more serious crime. On the scene of a murder was found a waistcoat button that formed strong evidence against a certain man. When his friends heard of it they visited all the local marine stores and as a result waistcoat buttons were scattered profusely about the spot where the body had been discovered!

Documents of various kinds are frequently found in rags. In an old skirt was scrip for £200 Consols, which had belonged, it was subsequently learned, to a woman who was then dead. She had made the investment before her marriage, and had drawn the dividends as long as she was single, but not afterwards. These had accumulated and amounted to about £150. Stock and dividends were recovered by her two daughters, who were mystified as to why their mother had never claimed them. For years before her death she had been in dire straits.

Secreted in the lining of a coat was a will made ten years previously. It was duly signed and attested, and the effect of finding it was to give a comfortable income to the testator's widow.

Another will found in a coat was incomplete, lacking the testator's signature. As he had presumably died intestate and without known heirs, his estate had passed to the Crown. When the imperfect will came to light, however, it was decided to act upon it, and in consequence several friends of the testator received windfalls.

Perhaps the most curious "find" of this kind consisted of some scraps of paper, on one of which was a name, and a marriage certificate. The marine store dealer knew the owner, but as he could not find him he preserved the papers, intending to return them at the first opportunity.

Years afterwards one of his customers was in a police-court, when a man was brought up on a charge of bigamy. Prisoner denied the offence, and stated that never before had he seen the woman who claimed to be his wife. The customer, who had often seen the papers in the possession of the marine store dealer, instantly recognized the alleged bigamist as their owner, and with their aid the case against him was ultimately proved to the hilt. The name on the scrap of paper was his, though he was not going under it at the time of his arrest.

ness they experience precipitates attacks of rheumatism or catarrh, the consequence of which is that for many exercise in the open air is made impossible, and shelter has to be sought indoors, with all windows and doors shut. The result is that large numbers of people congregate in stagnant and moist atmospheres, conditions that are favourable for the spread of all kinds of infection.

Tempering Its Keenness.

The most notorious and deservedly unpopular of these winds are the east and northeast, which bring us, as all winds do, the climate of the places where they arise—in this case Russia and Siberia. In London the east wind is felt more keenly than it is farther inland. The Londoner gets it fresh and raw, crossing the North Sea as it does at its narrowest part, and having insufficient time to become charged with that modicum of moisture which might go some way towards blunting its painfully keen edge. It is to this wind that May owes its unenviable notoriety as a danger month.

But the east wind is not bad all through. Much of it is experienced as a breeze varying in force from one that merely influences the direction of smoke issuing from our chimneys to a current strong enough to keep the foliage of trees in constant motion. Such movements of the wind are good for health, helping to maintain the ventilation of our dwellings, and removing the stale, moist, warm, and poisonous air that tends to accumulate round our bodies. Moreover, these breezes, with their tonic tang, exert a stimulating action on the skin and its sensitive nerve-endings, whereby the rate of upbuilding and breaking down of various tissues is accelerated and the appetite consequently increased.

After a spell of the "nipping and eager" winds of May we welcome those that come from the Atlantic—southwest winds which before they reach us have absorbed moist warmth while passing over the Gulf Stream and the Equatorial current. They warm us with moist heat in winter, and as the air over the land is cooler, some of the moisture is condensed into clouds and rain, and in the process liberates an additional amount of heat. The loss of heat from the earth is diminished by the increased quantity of moisture. In this way these winds raise our winter temperature.

In summer the south winds have an opposite effect. They bring less heat than those blowing from the large land surfaces of the European and Asian continents, because naturally the surface of the sea in the Atlantic does not become so hot as these dry lands. Thus the south wind is rendered cool and moist, the sky is kept more or less cloudy, and the summer heat is modified.

When the wind is due north we get the comparatively intense heat of Spain. In summer, Russia and Siberia have a dry, hot climate, and it is this that the east and northeast winds bring us at that season, whereas in the winter they bring us their dry cold.

Use small lollypops instead of candies on the child's birthday cake.

Winds That Are Dangerous

We all welcome the refreshing breeze that appears to spring up from nowhere in the warm months that follow "flaming June." It has an instantaneous tonic and invigorating effect on our mechanisms, and goes a long way towards reconciling us to the occasional vagaries of the inconstant wind which, like fire itself, is a good servant and a bad master. For these are winds which, instead of toning up our systems, tend to reduce our vitality, to induce colds, catarrhs, pleurisy, and pneumonia, to play havoc with our hearts and wreak destruction on our kidneys.

These specially injurious and even destructive winds are those that are not only cold, but damp as well. When they are too cold and accompanied by excess of rain, they are very harmful. Then our bodies are made to lose too much heat, or the abnormal damp-

UNFINISHED STORIES.

Do you read serials? I know a great many people say with a sort of pride that they never do. They don't like having the story snatched away from them at just the moment the editor cunningly calculates they will be most eager to know what is coming next.

That is a perfectly natural feeling (though I don't just see why one should be proud of it) but isn't it a sufficient compensation after one has gotten over one's first fierce resentment, to have the pleasure of having something to look forward to?

I Do Read Serials.

Personally, I find it so. I do read serials and I like to have several on hand. But there is one thing I do think we have reason to grieve for and that is the serial that for one reason or another we never finish.

You pick up a magazine some day and find that somehow in the hurry of spring work you have skipped an issue. And the serial story you have been so interested in had been finished and another one had taken its place. Probably you will never finish that story. The magazine has vanished, likely, into the limbo where borrowed magazines go. You feel a sense of blankness, a sense of being unfairly shut out as if a door had been slammed

Rotary Club Luncheon

At Thursday's luncheon of the St. John's Rotary Club, Rotarian D. M. Baird introduced C. H. Barton, who addressed the Rotary Club in connection with the work of the Playground Association and outlined therein suggestions which will be of great value in enlarging the scope of operations of the Playground Association and add considerably to the facilities already afforded for the out-door amusements of the children of the city.

ADDRESS BY J. H. BARTON.

Mr. Chairman, Mr. President and Members of the Rotary Club— It is with a good deal of pleasure that I have been able to return to Newfoundland to direct the work of the Playgrounds. No mother, I think, has ever watched with more anxiety her children develop from the toddling stage to that of strong and sturdy manhood and womanhood than I have watched our Playground movement develop from the incipient stage with skepticism of its worthwhileness and possibilities to a well developed and well-organized institution of our city.

More particularly have I watched this growth with feeling, for the Playground work is affecting four or five hundred or more, while the Mother watches but four or five. However, I can hardly claim to be the Mother of this movement, I am rather a kind of stepmother called in as an aid—for the seeds of the Playground movement had been well sown by somebody sometime before I arrived. Just who is the person is that was individually responsible for primarily initiating the movement here, I have never been able to find out, but this I do know that without the work and interest of "Tim" Hartnett and Dr. Burke the playground movement would not have been the success which it was last year.

The Playground movement is now well past the toddling stage. People are convinced that it is worthwhile, and they know something of its possibilities. I want to congratulate the Rotary Club upon what you have accomplished in bringing health to the jungles and joy to the hearts of hundreds of unfortunate children. The philosophers of years ago considered play in children an evil which must be stamped out. The philosopher of to-day considers that play is necessary and desirable for the proper development of boys and girls and grown people. The successful worker must have the spirit of play in his heart, and the successful man is only a boy with a man's experience. It is to do any worthwhile work in the world a man must have the zest, the devotion, the spirit of comradeship, the capacity for self-forgetfulness, and the wholesome outlook upon life which the boy raised under favourable circumstances has.

I do not think of these boys and girls in their early years alone, but look forward to the time when they will come to play the parts of men and women in the world and wonder what is to be the future. Is their experience of life merely to be that of the hard taskmaster, the struggle for bare existence, broken in health and spirit? We talk in this country of developing its resources. We speak of ores and water powers and forests, and have ignored until fairly recently the greatest resource of this or any other country, namely the younger generation. We want playgrounds for children in order that we may conserve the health of our people. A great deal is being done in these days to protect us against the spread of disease. All over the world we are fighting with intelligence and zeal the great white plague, but the dread disease of tuberculosis must be primarily fought by developing stamina and all round bodily vigour through fresh air and physical activities. We must nourish that strength in childhood. We do not want simply hospitals for cure, we want rather playgrounds for prevention. If we were thinking of nothing but the preservation of health, we would make it one of our first objects to secure adequate playgrounds for children in the fresh air, and give them opportunities of exercise and recreation not afforded by their overcrowded abodes.

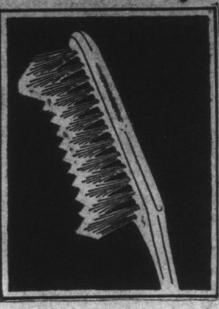

We also want playgrounds for children to conserve the morals of the people. There may be some who look upon human nature as hopelessly debased and beyond recall, who believe that virtue can be abstracted only through the most gruelling process of self-abasement and denial, but it is my opinion that the average boy is a good boy and the average girl is a good girl. I believe that the average man and woman would rather do right than wrong. I have a profound confidence in the capacity of human nature to seize that which is good, to hold true to high ideals with a progress which is slow but none the less onward toward humanity's goal. The best way to reach and develop the good in a boy is not to lecture him into tears by his wrong-doing, but to so surround him with the good that only the good in his nature has a chance to develop.

However, in this brief talk on Playground work and proposed plans you will be interested, I am sure, not so much in the philosophy underlying playground work nor even in the plans which I have going to carry out this summer. You will be interested more in how you individually and as a group can be of most help.

There are two things which I would like to see accomplished this year which I cannot do alone. The first pertains to Victoria Park. There is at the far end of Victoria Park a piece of Government property which is fenced in, but which juts into the Park, greatly marring the beauty, and detracting from the usefulness of that end of this park. Most of you know this property. It consists of a small amount of waste land and a brook which could, with slight expense, be made both useful and attractive. There is no reason, I am told by everyone with whom I have spoken of the matter, why that plot could not be given to the city, or other provisions made whereby it could be utilized as a part of the park. I am advised by City Clerk Mahoney that the City Council has made advances to the Government regarding this proposition, the first letter being sent as early as 1923, but that their letters have been ignored. I am putting the matter up to you because it seems to me that a body of men such as this should have influence enough to get some sort of action on such a simple matter. I am asking you as individuals and as a body to do something about that now. Possibly some action would be taken later at this present meeting regarding the method of attack. If we can get that land as a part of the park, I think that would be the biggest thing we could do this year.

The second thing that I would like to work for this summer is another playground to be located somewhere between Bannerman and Victoria Parks. There are children in badly congested districts who, because of the distance which they live from either park, cannot be expected to come to the Playgrounds for an hour or two of play. If we want to keep these children off the streets we have got to place a playground nearer to them. If there is no vacant lot available there may be some small spot of decrepit property which could be purchased reasonably and torn down. Last year we had offers of rather large donations for the purpose of establishing a new playground, and no doubt they would be duplicated, this year.

The two things are then, the improvement of Victoria Park, by getting the vacant Government lot, and the locating of a new playground in the lower part of the city. In regard to raising money for the work this year, two special methods are under consideration—the membership fees in the Association, I am taking for granted, of the first of these two ways I am not sure that I

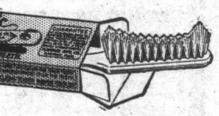

Five things you should know about your tooth brush

- 1 Is it made of the best bristles the world produces?
- 2 Are the bristles serrated (saw-toothed), and set in a curve to fit against all your teeth, and to reach the crevices between?
- 3 Does it have a large end tuft, and a properly curved handle so that the end tuft can reach and clean back teeth?
- 4 Will it keep germs, tartar, food debris, and other unclean substances off your teeth?
- 5 Is it fully guaranteed?

When your tooth brush is a Pro-phy-lactic, you can answer all of those five questions correctly. The Pro-phy-lactic Tooth Brush has for more than forty years been the standard, correctly designed tooth brush for keeping teeth clean, white and beautiful.

I am authorized to make a public statement as a definite decision has not been reached. However, the members of the Executive Committee of the Playground Association, present at a meeting Thursday noon seemed to be entirely in favor of the proposition. The plan is briefly this: an amusement company which has a travelling circus offers to bring this circus to St. John's under the auspices of the Playground Association, the Association to receive a specified percentage of the receipts. The circus consists of a merry-go-round, flying boats, three side shows and ten or fifteen booths of various games of chance and skill. The circus would come about the first of August and stay for a week or ten days, and the proposition seems to be a very good opportunity to make some money for the Association.

The second means of raising money was discussed by the Executive Committee of the Rotary Club at its meeting on Tuesday evening. It was decided by them that the most satisfactory thing which the Rotary Club could do to collect money for the Playground children would be to run a Playground Field Day or Children's Fair on the afternoon and evening of August 19th, the money to be made by having Rotary Club members run various booths. Some very interesting suggestions as to plans for this event have already been made, and with the enthusiasm which the Executive Committee showed, the event is sure to be a big success. An outline of the plans will be given in the course of two weeks or so, and every Rotarian will be given an opportunity to take an active part and thus help to support a movement which you will feel is so important.

Mr. Barton was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his interesting address, and will have the co-operation of the Rotary Club in making possible the suggested improvements.

How is Your Heart?

EVERYONE'S WONDER MACHINE.

The most wonderful piece of mechanism in existence—this is by no means an extravagant title for the human heart.

According to our forefathers the heart was the seat of the soul, and the term large-hearted, applied to the generous, is still used.

The ancients also regarded the heart as the fount of love, and it is on this belief that the custom of placing the engagement ring on the third finger of the intended bride's left hand was based. It was believed that this finger received more blood from the heart than any other, and that it was in closest touch with love's source.

Your Body's Pumping Station.

But the heart is much more than an index to the emotions. Regarded simply as a piece of mechanism, it is unapproachable in its perfection, even by the most marvellous man-made devices. As Dr. Calvin Smith points out in "How is Your Heart?" (Cassell, 5s.), its functions can be likened to those of the governor of a steam engine, or of the central pumping station of a city. In addition, the heart is the controller of all our activities.

"When increased physical energy is demanded of us, the heart responds with an increased output. But there is a point beyond which the governor cannot maintain an efficient circulation; crowding too much steam on, or forcing the engine at high speed for too long a time, materially disturbs the distribution, and results in a failure of function and purpose."

High in the list of infirmities that afflict civilized mankind are those generally grouped under the heading of heart disease.

The Rest Remedy.

Large numbers of people live in constant dread of seizures, heart failure, and even sudden death, as a result of knowing that their hearts are out of order. These will be relieved to learn that heart disease is not necessarily to be regarded as a terrible affliction.

The late Sir James Mackenzie, one of the greatest authorities, showed by his experiments at St. Andrews that even advanced forms of heart trouble need not prevent a person from leading a happy, contented life providing due precautions are taken against shocks and overstrain. Among these precautions none is more vital than adequate rest.

"Suppose, when your heart complains, you rest, physically and emotionally; such rest saves the heart harassed to the average degree at least ten beats a minute. Prove it to yourself; get someone to count your pulse when you are asleep. Ten beats a minute means six hundred beats an hour—over fourteen thousand beats saved in twenty-four hours! Now do you begin to see what your doctor means by heart rest?"

An Annual Overhaul.

What is the best way of maintaining the efficiency of your heart and warding off the various organic and functional disorders to which it is liable?

The author, whose interesting book deals exhaustively with the whole subject, prescribes the avoidance of the emotional storms and tempests of intense natures—by living tranquilly. By avoiding habitual physical overstrain—by frequently relaxing physically. By avoiding over-eating and the train of troubles that follow gormandizing—by governing the appetite. By an annual physical overhaul, which is the safest guarantee that one is not harbouring an infection somewhere which is likely to throw a monkey-wrench into our smooth-working machinery."

HEAT.

When a pedestrian is frying on the surface of the street, and the world seems witting, dying, in the everlasting heat, then, oh fellow-men, if ever, we should make a strong endeavor to be peculiar and clever, springing maxims blithe and sweet. When the day is cool and breeze, and we're full of pep and vim, it is too absurdly easy to line up with Sunny Jim; little credit are we gaining by the absence of complainings by our striving and our straining to put up a cheerful hymn. It is when the heat is sizzling and the sun is on carouse, and the briny sweat is drizzling from our whiskers and our brows, that we show what stuff we're made of, crying, "Heat we're not afraid of," while we loiter in the shade of banyan trees with goats and cows. High and noble is the fellow who can deal in harmless fun, when the world is parched and yellow with the baking of the sun, who can josh along and twitter when his friends are growing bitter, when the croaker and the quitter call for poison, ax and gun. He is panting, he is gasping, he is frenzied, burned and tanned, and his voice is

Black Stone Tossed Down From Heaven

The sacred shrine of Mohammedans is in Mexico. In the centre of Mecca is the Great Mosque, which was built as a place of pagan worship many centuries before the birth of Mohammed. It is known as the Mosque of Kaaba. Within the courtyard is a small building, the famous Kaaba. It is covered with a gorgeous holy carpet of black silk with a border of gold lettering, texts from the Koran. Embedded in one of the walls is the most sacred object in the world to Mohammedans. It is the black stone of meteoric origin which Mohammedans believe was tossed from heaven by the Angel Gabriel to Father Abraham. It is said that it was once whiter than milk, but that it has been turned black by the sins of the people who have kissed it. The followers of the prophet believe that this building rests directly underneath the throne of God. They say that it was lowered down from heaven at the request of Adam, and that it is an exact duplication of one that he had seen in Paradise before his expulsion and frequented by angels.

Lake Pyramid Very Strange Inland Sea

From the earliest settlement of Nevada the legend of a gigantic serpent inhabiting the depths of Pyramid Lake has been told. The serpent is said to enter the lake through a vast underground passage extending from the Pacific Ocean and is supposed to have existed since prehistoric times. Basking in the depths of the lake it lies in wait for luckless adventurers, drags down boats and canoes and devours its victims. The legend has been investigated by many scientists and some contend that the serpent is really an enormous mass of worms that breed in the usually placid waters. But this opinion is jeered by Indians and the old white settlers who have caught fleeting glimpses of the mammoth snake. Pyramid Lake is an inland sea of mystery. Situated 300 miles from the ocean, its teeming swarms with vast flocks of seagulls and pelicans. Thousands of venomous rattlesnakes lurk in the caverns, and the caves are veiled with the thick webs of huge black spiders. The lake receives the discharge of the Truckee River, but has no outlet—yet the waters are fresh and abound in trout and other prized fish.

SINCERITY.
 You must read it in his life, you must find it in his deeds,
 Not in anything he says, or his glibly spoken words;
 You must sense it in his smile, you must feel it when he's near,
 There's no other way to know if your fellow man's sincere.

Words are nothing after all, craven lips can turn a phrase,
 But sincerity defies sharp reception's artful ways;
 And an earnest man whose tongue lacks the gift of silver speech
 With an awkward line or two may win the hearts of many reach.

It's the man and not his words which we judge from day to day,
 There's a subtle inner sense art can never lead astray;
 And some clever chap may fall though all eloquent he be
 Should the man who hear him feel that he lacks sincerity.

We can see a deed of skill, we can hear a lovely phrase,
 Cleverness the eye can tell and to that we give our praise;
 But sincerity defies art or cunning to reveal.
 For the subtle ring of truth is a thing which we must feel.

Islanders Whose Houses Are in Trees

It is said that natives on Isabel Island, in the Pacific Ocean, live in houses in the tops of trees. The tree trunks are said to rise perfectly smooth and straight, without a branch, to heights of from 50 to 150 feet. The only means of reaching the houses, says a recent visitor to the island, is by a ladder made of a creeper. This is suspended from a post within the house.

The houses are cleverly built, are firm and strong, and each holds as many as a dozen persons. The natives keep an ample store of rocks in these houses for defense purposes. They throw them both by hand and with slings. They also have a hut or house at the foot of the tree, in which the family usually resides. The tree house is used only at night and in times of expected danger.

Most of the tribes on this island are very savage and one tribe is never safe from surprise attacks by the others.

Romance of Plants

BEAUTY FROM THE HIMALAYAS.

Nearly all of our trees and plants have been brought to us from abroad; a good garden is the floral history of a thousand fine adventures. Our tulips come from Central Asia, narcissi from Spain or Portugal, irises from temperate Asia.

Other welcome aliens are the lilac, laburnum, horse-chestnut, sycamore, Lombardy poplar,holm oak, and all our conifers save the yew and Scots pine. The men who went out and brought these in have left worthy descendants; the adventures of the orchid-hunters alone would fill a thrilling volume.

On the Roof of the World. A notable expedition of a different sort has just been concluded by Mr. F. Kingdon Ward, the naturalist and explorer, with his friend Lord Cawdor, three Bhutan servants, and a number of porters. They have spent a year in foraging for beauty and a year in the great passes of the Himalayas leading from India to Tibet.

They spent their time amid snow peaks and deep gorges through which swift rivers rush, and sometimes gleaned treasure at a height of 18,000 feet.

They met natives of primitive and kindly habits, some engaged in simple agriculture, others guarding their sole worldly wealth, herds of yak. The floral riches amid these will and awe-inspiring scenes almost passed belief; ivory-colored poppies of exquisite fragrance, 4 feet in height, and one variety with one hundred flowers to a stem; astonishing 2-foot gentians, each from five or six spikes of sea-blue trumpet-shaped blooms; exquisitely scented great pink lilies; marvelous rhododendrons, towering in full flower above the snows, dwarf rhododendrons with scarlet blooms.

The seeds had to be dug out of the snow, were enclosed in vacuum flasks and frequently dosed with carbon dioxide, and so passed safely from Arctic conditions by way of India to Britain.

Personals

On Sunday, June 21st, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hynes, of Somerville, celebrated the 37th anniversary of their wedding. Mr. Hynes and his wife have been 31 years resident in the land of Uncle Sam, and the weight of years falls lightly on their shoulders. Their many friends in Boston and elsewhere join in wishing them many more years of health and happiness, and with this wish the "Weekly" is heartily in accord.

We learn that Mr. Thomas Power, who was seriously injured several weeks ago and who has since been confined to bed at the Cambridge Relief Hospital, was discharged from the institution recently, almost fully recovered. His many friends in Boston and in St. John's will be glad to hear of his recovery.

Mrs. A. Moore, formerly of St. John's, now of Brooklyn, is visiting the fish and is staying at the Adams House. She returns to Brooklyn in a few days.

The many friends of Deputy Chief Shallow, who was injured in the performance of his duties at a fire in India Street some two weeks ago, will be glad to learn that he has recovered from the effects of his injuries and is now back at his desk at the Fort Hill Station.

Miss Chambers, sister of W. McKay Chambers, M.H.A. for Burgeo and LaFolle, left on the palatial steamer President Wilson for Italy, France, Italy, and Venice; then through Switzerland and France, continuing on to England and Scotland. Miss Chambers is one of a party of 22, many of them personal friends, and will not return to Boston until September.—Nfld. Weekly.

or authority for Macdonald and Greenwood in taking that money and putting it into their own pockets; and in so far as we are concerned, it is a payment by us to the Trust, and the Trust must give us credit for it.

Now, my lord, under

that we have been referring to, and in so far as any of the claims which the Plaintiffs make in this action are based upon that oral agreement, I have to submit that the oral agreement has not been sustained, and if not having been sustained judgment must go for the Defendants in so far as any claim is based on that oral agreement. Now the next point of claim.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—They were working under options at this time.

MR. HOWLEY—Yes, at that time the understanding was with regard to the remuneration, that they would make their remuneration on options at stated prices, but I also further say that that understanding was altered, by the minute of August 14th, 1920, in so far as it was referred to in that minute; but in regard to the condition of affairs up to the 22nd April when the first telegram in regard to the commission on the Gander was sent, that not alone that there was no agreement for a commission, but that there was an understanding arising out of Mr. Thomson's letter of the 8th November, that the Plaintiffs would handle the Reid properties on options, and that that was the understanding down to April, when it was changed in so far as it regarded the Gander, and in August, it was changed in so far as it regarded the Humber, and other timber lands, and that there was never any agreement at with regard to the St. John's Light and Power Company until they came down to November 1921; and that there was never an agreement at all with regard to the Railway or the segregation of assets, or any of those other brilliant conceptions which the Plaintiffs claim they were responsible for.

The Gander Option.

Now, my lord, the next point to which I come in the pleadings, is the Gander; and the story of the Gander, as told in the pleadings, commences on page of the Statement of Claim, and deals with the first option on the Gander; and in so far as a commission agreement, whether it be the oral agreement or the agreement of August 14th, 1920, or the agreement that is constituted in these telegrams that passed in April, is concerned, we are not concerned with an argument in regard to this first Gander option, because no claim in the nature of a claim for commission is made under it. If we are concerned with it at all, we are only concerned with it from the viewpoint of the claim for services; and I, therefore, propose to leave that question of the first Gander option, until I am concluding about the second Gander option.

The story of the Gander option is that negotiations which commenced in the early spring of 1920 resulted in this option given on the 4th June by Mr. R. G. Reid for the sum of £454,000. That option was given until the end of July, I think it was, and the Plaintiffs contend that the Reid Newfoundland Company failed to make title to a considerable portion of the lands, and that consequently the option was not exercised. The answer to that was that we did not fail to make title, and that failure to make title was not the reason why the option was not exercised; but in order to consider the story of the Gander as a whole, we have to remember that after the first option had expired, or after it had become known that it would not be exercised, the meeting of the directors of the Reid Nfld. Company of August 14th, 1920, took place, and the whole story of the Gander and the negotiations with Rothermere and his representatives was gone into, and apparently it was still thought that something could be done with the Gander, because, amongst other things it was voted at that meeting:

"To proceed with the proposed sale of the Gander Valley property through the Trust on the lines already communicated to the Trust in London by cable."

"That the Trust be paid out of the purchase price of the Gander Valley property by instalments proportioned to the instalments received, and payable at the same time, a commission of ten per cent. on the entire purchase price."

Subsequently the second option was entered into, this time with Mr. John Cowley and Sir Andrew Caird for a price roughly about half the price mentioned in the first option. It is claimed by the Plaintiffs in Paragraph 8 of the Statement of Claim:

"In September, 1920 the Plaintiff Company reopened negotiations with Lord Rothermere for the sale of the Gander Valley Properties, and the negotiations resulted in an agreement, etc."

which is the second option. And the Plaintiffs allege that: "The purchaser's cruisers reported, and in fact the amount of timber upon the properties was far below the amount represented by the Vendor in the said agreement, and in consequence the Purchaser did not exercise the said option."

The Defence to that, my lord, is a denial of the allegation contained in that paragraph; a plea that the non-exercise of the option was not due to the default of the Reid Nfld. Co., and a further plea that it does not disclose any cause of action against us.

The Initial Point

that I would make on that, before going into any detail would be this: I submit that all that the Plaintiffs did in that connection was to negotiate an option for sale, which option for sale carried with it a payment of £2000, which was received by the Defendants, and on which a commission of 10 per cent. in accordance with the terms of the agreement of August 14th, 1920, was paid by us to the Plaintiffs. I submit, my lord, that in law the right of the Plaintiffs, to collect a commission as on a purchase does not accrue until the Plaintiffs had effected a binding contract for sale, which had not been done in this case; that the mere negotiating of an option which did not materialize, and which did not give the defendants any right to insist on the sale being carried out, does not entitle the Plaintiffs to recover a commission as upon a sale, which either went through or would have gone through if something or some act on the part of the defendants or some one else had not interfered, I think, my lord, that that position is clearly established by authority, and I hope before I sit down to be able to satisfy your lordship with authorities on it; but, to leave it for a moment, and come back to the actual facts. I fear that I shall have to go over a great deal of ground that has been already go fully and clearly covered by my learned associate counsel, Mr. Hunt, in his opening.

My learned friend suggests that it is hardly worth while commencing a new subject, as it is almost five o'clock.

The Court adjourned to Wednesday, July 8th, at 11 a.m.

The centre of this mining region and the ruby trade is the town of Mogok, 90 miles northeast of Mandalay. The rubies are here found in a white dolomitic limestone or marble of the upper Carboniferous age. The rocks have been altered by contact with

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

The action arising out of the seizure of the Herbert Green was resumed at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the Magistrate's Court before Mr. McCarthy, J.P., when Mr. C. J. Fox, for the Crown asked leave to recall Customs Officer Wilson. This was granted. In answer to one of the questions put by Mr. Fox, witness stated that Super-cargo Ryan joined the Herbert Green at nine o'clock on the morning of the 4th. Witness further stated that two individuals were seen to come ashore from the Herbert Green, each having a bottle of liquor in his possession. Customs Officer Roberts relieved the individuals of the bottles and returned them to Super-cargo Ryan, and he gave a further warning by stating that if any more bottles were seen to come ashore he would report the matter to the proper authorities. Witness was present on two occasions when a warning was given by Customs Officer Roberts to Super-cargo Ryan prohibiting the liquor going ashore.

Augustus Green, sworn and examined by Mr. Fox.—Witness said he was a Customs officer doing general duty along the Water front. He went to the Furness Wharf on Saturday at 8 p.m., and while on the premises he saw Capt. Byrne of the schooner or Orleans walking towards the Herbert Green, and stopped to talk to Mr. Wilson. Witness then took up a position on the dock, aft of the cabin where the Herbert Green was lying. While witness was in hiding, he having overheard Capt. Byrne, Capt. Nauflits and Super-cargo Ryan talking in the cabin. The conversation of the trio centred generally on whisky and rum running. Witness remembered hearing Capt. Byrne asking Super-cargo Ryan to sell 4 or 5 cases of whisky. Witness was unable to state the exact amount Byrne wanted, but he referred to 4 or 5 cases several times, and he was particularly anxious to have the very best brand—Ambassador's whiskey preferred. They even compared a comparative price of Controller's liquor with those they had on board. Witness next heard Capt. Byrne remark, "Put the stuff over the outside." Super-cargo Ryan replied, "It is just as unlawful that way as to land it on the wharf." A short while later Super-cargo Ryan was heard to say "Nothing doing now, come back later." Mr. Green then left his hiding place and proceeded around the liquor stores on the same premises where he spoke to Wilson, and gave certain instructions.

At eleven o'clock that night witness recognized Guy Shears, defendant in a row boat at the N.E. corner of the dock. Witness turned around and went up to the street, where Captain Byrne passed him with an oar in hand. A short while later, witness saw Byrne sculling the boat towards the front of the Furness Wharf and it was then that witness went over to the stores and communicated with the police. Kendrick then came towards witness and said something about liquors being lowered into the boat. Witness then went to the front of the wharf and saw one case going over the starboard rail. He heard Capt. Nauflits shout out to Capt. Byrne to throw the darn stuff overboard. The captain then went into the wheel house and started an argument with the police. Witness then shouted to the police on board that he would follow the ship in the Customs boat with the other officers. At that time the engines of the Herbert Green were going causing a big strain on the lines. As the stern line parted the ship steamed out of the harbour. Witness remembered Const. Russell telling the captain to stop his ship, as it was under arrest, but he paid no heed. The captain stated the ship was ordered to sea at 12 o'clock, and to sea she was going. Engineer Jones then shouted to the stokers below to shake her up, and for someone to come up on the deck and throw the sons of—overboard. At this juncture Mr. Fenelon was not ready to proceed with the cross-examination of witness.

Mr. Fox then recalled Customs Officer Keurick, who recognized the bottle of whiskey that had been given him by Super-cargo Ryan, on board the Herbert Green. The bottle was then put in as an exhibit. In answer to a question put by Mr. Fenelon, witness knew the bottle by the name and label, beside he had previously made a small cut on one of the labels as an identification mark. The court arose at 4:30 until 11 o'clock this morning.
