Icemen and Garbage Collectors On Strike In Gotham---East Side Streets Strewn With Disease-breeding Kitchen Waste --- Unpleasant Conditions.

the health of the city was menaced by the ter. Nor were the poorer classes alone continuation of the strike of 2,000 drivers, Mayor McClellan late yesterday went over the head of Commissioner of Street Cleaning MacDonough Craven and placed the responsibility for the collection of garbage with the health department. The health people are making heroic efforts to re-establish sanitary conditions, against a possible epidemic. A strike of drivers for the American Ice Company also went into effect yesterday and with garbage on the sidewalks and no ice in many refrigerators, New York's stay-at-homers passed an unpleasant day.

For three days the streets of the east side have been strewn with rapidly decaying kitchen waste, while a disease-breeding stench has filled the nostrils of those who live in the neighborhoods where the strike was effective. To these the closing of their windows against the vile colors meant suffocation in their limited quarters.

Charlebran Keeps Kingston Penitentiary Officials Busy --- Third Attempt to Escape in Short Time.

KINGSTON, June 28-Charlebran, the CHICAGO, June 29—A despatch from Council Bluffs, Iowa, says Chief of Police Richmond has struck upon a unique scheme to prevent the premature celebration of independence by putting young girls as special police. Long lines of youngsters lined up for appointment and assignments.

Each was required to take the regular oath of a patrolman, and the youngsters were assigned to specific districts.

The novelty of having the power of arrest over the boys in the next block, has strongly appealed to the youngsters, who are showing their appreciation by keeping a sharp outlook on every boy who purchases fire works, to the disgust of the dealers.

There is a common notion that backache is a sign of kidney disease, but this in a thousand has anything to do with the kidneys. Hundreds of people die of kidney disease who never had a backache—and hundreds who suffer continually from backache have nothing wrong with their kidneys. By far the most common cause of backache is muscular rheumatism.

Sydney, my dear.

The kidneys are the organs that remove the poisonous material from the blood. If they become inflamed, congested or otherwise weakened in their action the poison remains in the blood and the whole system becomes filled with uric acid.

The general symptoms are backache, loss of appetite, decrease in weight, puffy condition under the eyes and in the ankles, sallow complexion, torpid liver, too frequent flow of urine, sediments in the urine. If any or all of these symptoms are present you should at once commence taking Warner's Safe Cure.

THE UBIQUITOUS ARMY.

It is hard for some to realize that in a short time the Salvation Army should five become the most considerable Imperial emigration agency in existence, one of the great forces for the consolidation of Empire. Yesterday the man in the guernsey, preaching at the street corner, and offending the susceptibilities of the susceptibilities of the susceptibilities of the cose who judge to see who judge to susceptibilities of the cose of the co

No one can examine the carvatori Arthy emigration work without discovering the reasons for its success. Much is due to the character of the men at the head, to the discipline in their ranks and to the discipline in their ranks and to the the character of the men at the head, to the discipline in their ranks and to the wide reaching nature of their organization. Other agencies have often chosen emigrants wisely, but they have had insufficient means for dealing with them all over a great continent like America. The Salvation Army has its officers everywhere. The emigrant goes to an out-of-the way corner of British Columbia. There is an "Army" captain there, who knows of his coming. He helps him to find work; he lets him have his bed if necessary; and he acts as the adviser on the spot, the friend in a strange land.

Then the Salvation Army advances money to suitable cases. The town laborer with eight children would make splendid material for Canada, but how is he to go there? So far as it can, the Army lends him part or all of his passage money, on trust, to be repaid as soon as can be. It picks its men carefully, and with more funds it could send more. As it is it uses the agent's commission on each passage to this end.

The young people did well to go. Some will fail, most will succeed. All will have what few of them could have found at home—a chance to live. There are tears now, but tomorrow there will be laughter.

The sale of the Patterson bankrupt stock now going on at F. A. Dykeman & Cos store is attracting large crowds. There have been so many special sales of the thind to get on. But he never had a chance here; he had to go across the water to have a chance. He has not been out there very long, but now he's earning plenty, and he's a garden full of showes, and he never forgets his old mother at home. God blees him, he wanted me, and I'm going to him."

"There's no chance for me here." You hear the same story from man after man in this throng. Now it is the countryman: "How can you earn a living on the land at home? I am going to try Canada. It may be better—it can't be worse." Now it is the laborer: "Eighteen shillings a week? I couldn't. They tell me the same story from a week was all I could earn here. Who can keep a family in London on eighteen shillings a week? I couldn't. They tell me one of the great forces for the tion of Empire. Yesterday the man in the guernsey, preaching at the street corner, and offending the susceptibilities of the fastidious in many ways, was ranked by those who judged merely by surface appearance as the narrowest and poorest of sectarians. Today his influence is felt in every land, and he himself has grown with his widening sphere.

Other attractions there are for Monday, but, probably, that which will most appeal to those leaving the city is the Gagetown-Fredericton outing of the Portland Methodist Y. M. A. Those who enjoy a short run and more time in one spot will likely stop at Gagetown. Those who ciellight in the beauties of the upper St. John will probably proceed to Frederic VESELS IN PORT Steamers.

A PERSISTENT ADVOCATE

Mr. Henry M. Whitney is still conducting a vigorous campaign to arouse in the state of Massachusetts a sentiment in favor of reciprocity with Canada. The arguments he uses are those which would be quoted in Canada as reasons why reciprocity should not be agreed to. Speaking in Salem this week Mr. Whitney, after speaking of the wonderful development of the lands of the western states during the past 50 years passed to the consideration of the great areas of Canada, and said that no one would dare to say that those lands will not in the next half century show as wonderful a development and become as thickly populated as the areas of the western states. legiance; at present it is enough to ven-ture the opinion that, however mixed they The great advantage to Massachusetts may have been, a vulgar desire to better

WEDDINGS

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on the 19th inst. in St. Dominic's church, South Portland (Me.), when Miss Elizabeth G. McCourt, of that city, and J. Henry Mulholland, of St. John, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Monsignor Hurley, who was also celebrant of the mass.

The bride wore a dress of white nun's veiling made over silk with hat to match and carried lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was Miss Bessie O'Donnell, of South Portland, and the best man was Henry J. Spears, of this city, uncle of the groom.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride to the families and a few intimate friends.

The gift of the groom to the bride was a gold monogram bracelet. Mr. and Mrs. Mulholland received a large number of beautiful wedding gifts. They left for a short wedding trip to New York, Jersey City and Boston. On their return they will make their home in this city.

Thine the leather, not the polish.

Old style paste polishes, fill up the pores of the leather of your shoes and for n a false surface. It is this caked-on blacking that you shine, not the leather, so it stands to reason that the shine won't last long. In the meantime the leather underneath this false surface is rotting and cracking—the blacking is ruining your shoes before you get their legitimate wear out

Packard's Special Combination Shoe Dressing is a leather food—it feeds the pores of the leather with the oil that keeps it soft and pliable, and prevents it from cracking. Packard's Combination is a liquid and paste—the liquid dyes your shoes a dead black, the paste gives the leather a brilliant shine. Rubbing the dressing off your shoe gives the leather a lasting polish, and leaves the pores open so

To Welcome Laurier Home Quebec, June 28—Preparations which will attain quite extensive proportions to tender Sir Wilfrid Laurier an enthusias tic reception on his arrival here from Europe towards the end of July have al-ready begun. A special committee for the purpose has been appointed. It is proposed to meet Canada's premier when he disembarks from the steamer and conduct him to the Chateau Frontenac, the route to be gaily decorated. All the prominent Liberals of the district will participate in the welcome. Quebec east (Sir Wilfrid's constituency) will tender its distinguished representative an

As the hunchback tyrant, Mr. Ryan gave a most artistic performance, and well deserved the nearty applause and curtain calls he received from a critical if not very large audience.

Mr. Connelly, as Richard, was a prime favorite, while Mr. Hicks, as the Duke of Buckingham, and Mr. Murphy, as King Henry VI., played their respective parts excellently.

Miss Davenport, as Queen Elizabeth; Miss Gillett, as Lady Anna, and Miss Gilmour, as the Duchess of York, were each side weather months. Diarrhoea, dysentry and to weather months. A ONE-STORY BUNGALOW

By Chas. S. Sedwick, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

"Oh! for a cottage in one vast wilderness." We do not, all of us want to live in a wilderness but there is a home feeling and comfort in the low spreading, one story cottage or bungalow that is not to be found within the palatial walls of granter or marble. A cottage similar to our illustration and nestled among a bed of climbing roses, woodbine and ivy carries with it the air of quiet, rest, sunshine and home.

During the past decade, we have been climbing up, up into steel and marble structures, ten, fifteen, twenty and more stories away from the fields and nature and surrounded by all that is artificial and man made, pumped full of electricity and gas until we are in danger of becoming automatons and this applies almost as much to ladies as to men. We need to get back to nature where we can hear the birds sing and live an out door life. This one-story bungalow is economical to build, the extreme size is 33 feet by 37 chairs.

A chair of about this period is shown in the first drawing. It is a Chippendale, showing Dutch influence. In fact, the Chippendale school came directly from the Dutch, working in mahogany, and mahogany was one of the characteristics of the furniture which came after Queen Anne's reign; indeed, before 1700 there was very little mahogany in use; it was the age of walnut and oak.

One of the particular features of the Dutch chair, apart from the solidity of frame and ball feet, is the sinking curve in the top line of the back. The curve always means Dutch character or influ-

Not so handsome, but very convenient for driving and to protect light gowns when out of doors, are the mohair and pongee wraps. These are made as a rule in coat style, though cut with ample full-ness and with large armholes. For driving or automobile coats the tan and gun-metal shades in satin taffeta or pongee are effective and practical for hot weather use, although for general wear as those of Chippendale. Peculiar to him and his period are the spade foot and the shield back, of which an example is depicted in the third sketch. While this chair has a pleasing aspect and contour, yet it exhibits the structural weakness which is present in nearly all of his chairs, and which causes so many of them to be found broken and mended.

Hepplewhite had a fancy for ending the back above the seat and attaching it by two short curved sides, which frequently broke under the strain of being leaned on. Besides this, the legs were unduly slender, and to counteract this defect he invented the spade foot, which gives the chair an appearance of strength which it does not have.

Hepplewhite, Shearer and Sheraton used inlaid work of brass or woods quite as much as carving, while Chippendale reliated almost, solely on carving for decora-

"Of course it would," Chief Campeau answered. "First, all beats would be better and properly covered, and all points filled. Then many robberies and assaults would be prevented. It would be especially so with street brawls. But beyond all this many of the big fires would be discovered before they had obtained such a hold as to give them the mastery. That is one of the greatest of the benefits that would accrue and it would be an important one. But to do this we must have an efficient force, and that means equipment and force, and that means equipment and

And so Nan sat a sad listener to what her troubled parents said about selling or "plastering" the farm which was home to Nan, a home full of tender ties and associations, regardless of the stint she had known there. She knew that mortgaging meant the same thing as selling, only there would be more delay in the transaction. And though the farm gave them stingingly of crops, she loved every foot of its soil, even to the stony hillside that was good for nothing save for Nan to climb and obtain a splendid view of the little county seat that lay at its further side. And how she loved the cornmove was to climb upon the fence and mount. Her heart beat with fear as she remembered that the colt had never been remembered that the colt had never been ridden by a woman, and her father had not thought him a safe animal for himself
