SINGING OF THE WONDROUS NERVE FOOD

The Great South American Nerve Food

This remedy is prepared by one of the most eminent specialists of the age, who has absolutely proven that two-thirds of all diseases are caused by deranged nerve centres at the base of the brain, which supply the different organs of the body with nerve force.
As all varied in physiology know, the stomach, heart, lungs, liver, and in fact all internal organs, are connected with the nerve centres within or at the base of the brain by numberless small nerves or branches, so that when the nerve centres are deranged it will be understood how the derangement will be reflected through these small nerves to the different organs of the body, which they supply with nerve force, and thus produce every variety of nervous disease, Indigestion, Heart Disease, Lung Troubles, Scrofula, etc. SOUTH AME-RICAN NERVE FOOD acts directly on the nerve centres, and for this reason gives relief in one day, and speedily effects a cure.

THE LIMITATIONS OF NATIONAL YOUTH.

WITH APPOLOGUES TO ELEGANT FIELD.

(From Toronto Globe.)

I'm proud to be a Yankee, what twists the lion's tail,
And makes John Bull so mad he wants to sear:

I can blow off patriotism like an equinoctial gale,
And when talking is on tap you bet I'm there!

When I'm shouting, I'm a fright;
You lick the world on sight, And I'll wellop all creation in the coldest dullest fight.

If I dare—but I dare not!

I'm glad I'm in America, the country of the free,
Where the bird of freedom's screaming all the while,
And the Stars and Stripes is flapping from the top of every tree, You bet your socks I'd make All the Kings and Emperors chase The durned effete old monarchies with consentation quake,
If I dare—but I dare not!

I'd like to build a navy of the biggest kind of boats,
With a gallant Yankee commodore and crew;
I'd like to outnumber every man-of-war that floats,
And make poor Johnny Bull look ghastly blue;
I'd stretch my conquering hand O'er the wide Canadian land, And spread the Stars and Stripes from Puget Sound to Newfoundland,
If I dare—but I dare not!

And if I dared, I'd do a heap of blood and thunder things,
And show creation lots of curious sights; I'd parcel out Guinea to New York financial rings,
And help the Cuban niggers get their rights,
With a mild, pers. vive, jere, I'd all up the tortuous Turk, And van him with howitzers from his truly pious work,
If I dare—but I dare not!

THE 'SKIP'S' STORY.

Dannie McLean, known to his intimates of the curling club of Bytown, N. B., as 'Dannie the Skip,' is a Scottishman by birth, a mason by trade, and by choice a devotee of the game called
'curling,' which is played on ice.

The fountain of gladness for him freezes up with the thawing out of the ponds, and thaws with their freezing.

The game is in itself an excellent one, but it too often leads the players into Scottish 'conviviality,' and possibly Dan-nie, who is 'skip' or captain, of a 'risk,' or else, become confined in drinking habits by sedulously attending all the feasts of the Bytown club. Be that as it may, he no longer drinks intoxicants, and I think many people will be interested in an account of the occurrence that made him an abstemious.

Last summer, he said to me—for I shall try to tell his story in his own words—
"I took a contract to build a tall chimney for the tanning company at Millville.
It was to be eighty-two feet high and they wanted the job hurried through.
The bricks were on the ground, and we ran the thing up at a great rate.

The foundation and lower part were plain sailing, but as we got higher I had trouble with my help. The local men couldn't climb, and I had to get a few trouble frightened and left, one after another.

At last I had to send back home here for Charley French. Charley and I got on pretty fast, and one Saturday afternoon we were putting on the finishing touches, over eighty feet above the ground, when the thing happened I'm going to tell you about.

You see, at that height bod-carrying was out of the question, so we had a block and tackle rigged, and lifted all our stuff by horse-power. The upper block was fastened to one of the upright posts of the staging; the lower one to a post sunk in the ground.

It was not a very safe arrangement, as we could not make the staging secure.
But we got a quiet steady breeze, and a cautious chap for a driver, and didn't feel as though there was much danger.

There were six uprights in the staging, of course each of them was not all one stick. They had to be spiked about every twenty feet. This made three joints in each upright, and they were far from being firm.

On we nearer the ground, where the brickwork had hardened and the staging was well fastened to the chimney, it was all right; but the upper part of it was decidedly unsteady. The posts creaked and vibrated more or less every time a tubful of brick or mortar came up.

We had made a bet of a bottle of brandy with the manager of the company that we could finish the work by Saturday evening. At dinner-time that day I was so certain that we were going to win easily, that Charley suggested to the manager that he had better pay half the bet in advance, in the shape of a flask of brandy. He agreed, and we took the flask up with us to finish off.

We had drunk most of it, and only one more course of brick to lay, when the son of the manager made his way up beside us. He was a wide-awake, independent-looking youngster, fourteen or fifteen

Editorial Notes.

Prerogative and dissolution of Parliament have taken place and the dates of election announced.

Prior to dissolution Sir John Carling and The Temple, Esq., were appointed to the Senate, and took their seats therein.

The dates of election are as follows:-

Nomination June 16th, Polling June 23rd.

The writs are returnable on Monday,

July 13th, and the house will probably be called to meet on Thursday, July 16th.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell retires from the leadership of the government which position will be assumed by Sir Charles Tupper, who urged Mr. Bowell to take the portfolio of trade and commerce, which he declined, feeling that at his time of life he can well be relieved of the responsibilities of an important department.

It is stated that Sir Mackenzie Bowell will remain in the cabinet without portfolio and be leader in the Senate. Among the changes mentioned is that Chief Justice

Meredith will retire from the Ontario bench to accept the post of chief justice of the province. The appointment is a good one and has been most favorably received.

The Coming Week.

Under the head of "A Week's Work" the Newcastle News gives a column article selected from local papers, the subject being the slough of debt and taxation into which Canada is plunged, and what the people may expect if Sir Charles Tupper and his Liberal Conservative successors are returned to power. We venture the statement that it will not be the Liberal Conservative party which will be wrecked at the coming election but that of their opponents, the Liberals, who are now engaged in the to them familiar work of preparing their coming session. For the past sixteen years they have been thus engaged but the majority of the people put no faith in them and their vacillating policy, and do not believe they are any nearer victory than at any recent election.

So far as his own party is concerned Sir Prohibition in Politics.

Under this head the Advocate has its usual remarks of disaffection with the course pursued by prohibitionists. To dissatisfaction is one of the most promising features of the movement, because it finds fault with the advanced order issued from the Provincial Association recently formed in Fredericton.

Among other things the Advocate does not like and finds fault with the vote of the majority at the recent convention when they adopted the Platform of Principles of the Provincial Association. The majority declined to vote in favor of an amendment to Section 1 of the platform which reads as follows:-

1. We believe that there is no question in politics so vital to the moral and financial prosperity of Canada as the prohibition of the liquor traffic.

The phraseology was objected to by Rev.

Joseph McCoy. He was not prepared to admit that there is "no question in politics so vital," etc., and moved an amendment that the word "and" be changed to "more" making it read that "there is no question in politics more vital," etc.

The amendment was lost by a vote of 5 to 9, and the original motion to adopt the section as read carried by a vote of 10 to 4. The vote is certainly in accord with public opinion, as few prohibitionists or even temperance men who may not be prohibitionists, think that there is any other question so vital to moral and financial prosperity as the prohibition of the liquor traffic.

We wish to say for the information of the Advocate that the platform of principles was proposed by a committee of the organization of the New Brunswick Prohibition Association at Fredericton in February last. Committee was composed of through prohibitionists when that platform was proposed not a single word was said against or fault found with or declaration. Neither the committee nor delegates wished to mislead, but to have each declaration made as strong as vigorous words could make it.

Through prohibitionists look upon the traffic in intoxicating liquors as the most grievous evil of the nineteenth century.

None other even approaches it as so vital to the moral and financial prosperity of any country, and believing so why should they not say so?

A few may strive to raise other ills to a level with the cure of intemperance, but very much like the editor of the Advocate in his homilies on temperance, they do not receive much credit as being prohibition-ists even temperance men when they thus try to belittle the most significant evil of the present day.

The annual meeting of the Riverside Cemetery Company, of Chatham, was held on Monday at the railway office, Snowhill building, when a fair attendance of members. The chair was occupied by Daniel Ferguson, Esq. The directors reported that a neat fence had been erected around the front of the cemetery, that much of property had been gained, roads and plots laid out and the latter marked with cedar stakes, in sufficient number for some time to come.

All accounts, including $755 purchase money had been paid and there was a small balance on hand.

The directors reported that $1,100 had

16,000 MILES ON HORSEBACK.—SOME OLD

TRIPS.—THE MARKS.—GENERAL

NEWS.

The poets have told us of many great feats of horsemanship, not the least of which was the "doughty Douglas" at the battle of Otterburn in 1388.

"It falls about the linnets, says,

When he had, some of his boys,

The doughty Douglas heard say to ryle

In England to take a pray."

We all know the story of young Lochinvar, as told by Scott and of John Gilpin as put in doggerel by Cooper, and a good many have heard of Paul Revere and his horsemanship something more than a hundred years ago. But Major George M. Barbour, who was prominent in the management of Chicago sports, Fair, proposes to eclipse them all, the "doughty Douglas," Lochinvar, John Gilpin, Paul

Revere and the whole tribe of equestrian heroes have been celebrated in prose or verse by riding a broncho, now in Buffalo Bill's Show, from New York to Texas. If he is successful it will be the first time the trip

Our readers will be pleased to know that we have made special arrangements by which the Union Advocate and the FAMILY HERALD and WEEKLY STAR of Montreal together, may be

The Family Herald is the greatest weekly afford to do without the Family Herald, for not only does it amuse and interest but it repays its subscription price many times over.

All the successful farmers, traders and businessmen endorse it because they find it of great assistance in their business, and which they can get nowhere else. Home and field is a valuable aid to their housekeeping. The young folks are fascinated with the pages given them. It contains matter to interest every member of the family.

The Great South American Nerve Food

This remedy is prepared by one of the most eminent specialists of the age, who has absolutely proven that two-thirds of all diseases are caused by deranged nerve centres
at the base of the brain, which supply the
different organs of the body with nerve force.
As all varied in physiology know, the stomach, heart, lungs, liver, and in fact all internal
organs, are connected with the nerve centres
within or at the base of the brain by numbers of small nerves or branches, so that when the nerve centres are deranged it will be reflected through these small nerves to the different organs of the body, which they supply with nerve force, and thus produce every variety of nervous disease, Indigestion, Heart Disease,
Lung Troubles, Scrofula, etc. SOUTH AME-RICAN NERVE FOOD acts directly on the nerve centres, and for this reason gives relief in one day, and speedily effects a cure.

THE 'SKIP'S' STORY.

of the curling club of Bytown, N. B. Scotia, as 'Dannie,' the 'Skip,' is a Scotchman by birth, a mason by trade, and by choice a devotee of the game called
'curling,' which is played on ice.
The fountain of gladness for him freezes
up with the thawing out of the ponds,
and thaws with their freezing.

The game is in itself an excellent one, but it often leads the players into Scottish 'conviviality,' and possibly Dan-nie, who is 'skip' or captain, of a 'rink,' or side, became confirmed in drinking habits by sedulously attending all the feasts of the Bytown club. Be that as it may, he no longer drinks intoxicants, and
an account of the occurrence that made him an abstergent.

Last summer, he said to me—for I shall try to tell his story in his own words —I took a contract to build a tall chimney for the tanning company at Millville.
It was to be eighty-two feet high and
they wanted the job hurried through.
ran the thing up at a great rate.

The foundation and lower part were
trouble with my help. The local men became frightened and left, one after another.

At last I had to send back home here for Charles French, Charley and I got on pretty fast, and one Saturday after-
going to tell you about.

You see, at that height hot-carrying was out of the question, so we had a block
and tackle rigged, and lifted all our stuff
fastened to one of the upright posts of
the staging; the lower one to a post sunk
in the ground.

It was not a very safe arrangement, as
we could not make the staging secure.
But we got a quiet steady horse, and a cautious chap for a driver, and didn't feel as though there was much danger.

There were six uprights in the staging.
Of course each of them was not all one stick. They had to be spliced about every twenty feet. This made three joints in each upright, and they were far from being firm.

Down nearer the ground, where the
brickwork had hardened and the staging
all right; but the upper part of it was decidedly unsteady. The posts cracked and vibrated more or less every time a tubful of brick or mortar came up.

We had made a bit of a bottle of brandy with the manager of the company that we could finish the job by staring at evening. At dinner-time that day it
manager that he had better pay half the
brandy. He agreed, and we took the flask up with us to finish off on.

We had drunk most of it, and only
son of the manager made his way up be-
side us. He was a wide-awake, independent-looking youngster, fourteen or fifteen years of age, but he had no right to be there. He would have been sent down in a hurry if the brandy hadn't made us a little tipsy.

As it was, we both had some trouble to order him to leave at once. Instead of obeying, he put his hands into his pockets, eyed us knowingly for a moment and remarked—

"Say, aren't you two a little high for eighty feet above ground?"

We laughed and let him stay. He moved around the staging, not in the least disturbed by the elevation. Finally, when he got tired looking, he picked up a hatchet which had been in use for driving nails, and began chipping at one of the posts.

"I finished the last brick was laid. We finished the brandy, and gave three cheers, while the boy stood watching us with anything but respectful eyes.
Charlie French was leaning against the chimney with the empty flask in his hand looking somewhat tipsy.

"See here, Dannie," said he, solemnly "there's the old horse down yonder, and we've forgotten all about him. He's seen us right through this job, and he hasn't been offered so much as a smell of the brandy."

"Hello, old chap! Here's the flask for you anyhow," he suddenly shouted, and he gave it a toss.

It went flashing and circling through the air, and fell with a crash on a big stone just behind the horse, whose driver was with a crowd of loafers some twenty or thirty yards away.

The horse gave a frightened leap, and galloped off at a speed that I hadn't thought of in his mind. The rope whizzed over the pulleys, and the half-filled tub shot up towards us like a rocket.

It came against the upper block with a crash that threatened the overthrow of the whole staging. Posts swayed and bent their joints; boards, loose brick, and tools slipped from their places and went rattling down below.

We clutched at the top of the chimney as the steadiest object within reach.
But the newly-laid brick moved under our hands, and gave little promise of holding us up.

The horse was checked for a moment when the tub came against the upper block; but he bent wildly to his traces, and the fastening of the lower block gave way. He had now a direct purchase on the upper corner of the staging, and being torn away at the first tug was being unable to bring his full strength to bear. The rope ascended at an angle which lifted the traces above his back, and shifted the strain from his shoulders to his neck. He was half choked and thrown to the ground.

The staging groaned and reeled as he struggled to get on his feet again. His driver stood stupidly looking up at us without moving a step. The whole thing happened in so few seconds that it is not much wonder the man's presence of mind left him. The horse scrambled to his knees, then to his feet, and pulled frantically.

The strain at the top of the chimney became frightful. It seemed as though not only the staging, but the whole upper part of the chimney would be pulled away and fall at the next plunge.

Neither Charley nor I had spoken a word. We just held on, and gasped and wondered how it would feel when everything gave way. And we forgot all about the manager's son until he spoke up behind us—

"Say, it's about time to cut this rope, ain't it?"

Before we could turn our heads there was a sharp click on the block. The clearest cut of the rope shot downward.

The boy stood with the hatchet in his hand watching this horse. Of course the moment the rope was cut the straining animal pitched forward. Then, taking fresh alarm, he ran from the place with the ungainly movement of a runaway truck horse.

"It'd be a good thing for you two men if you were just as frightened of running as old Dobbin down there seems to be," remarked the boy calmly, as the horse disappeared round a corner, while the rope trailed behind him like a long snake.

Charley and I were both sober enough by that time, and we wanted to shake lanes with the manager's son, but he refused.

"No use making a fuss," he said. "I happened to have your hatchet in my hand, and I cut the rope—that's all.
Another yank from Dobbin would have brought the whole thing down, and as that'd have been about as rough on me as you'd."

"So you see I came near not curling any this winter," concluded Dannie, "but as it is I'll just quit the 'conviviality of the game.'—W. E. Macdellan, in Youth's Companion.

With all her frills and fads the "New Woman" does not commence to enjoy the same comfort with her mannish clothing that a man does. For she will almost always sacrifice comfort for style and effect, while with a man comfort comes first. Men's suits and overcoats admit of such few changes in style that the main question is to get a becoming color and, for severe weather, to make them warm enough without too much bulk or weight. And here men take advantage of the many feminine appropriations of their style and borrow the invaluable Flane Chamois or such such extensive sleeves are safely built, using it in winter coats and vests for the sake of the healthful warmth it gives, a comforting warmth which neither wind nor rain will penetrate.

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, April 22.—The House met at 10.30 a.m.

The Liberal continued their policy of preventing discussion of the estimates, in furtherance of which Sir Richard Cartwright moved the adjournment of the House, and made another speech on the appointment of Judge McMillen.

The bill to amend the act respecting ocean steamship subsidies came up for its second reading.

Mr. Martin asked for an explanation of the bill.

Sir Richard Cartwright said the new bill would be meeting within a couple of months and he thought the matter might well stand over until then.

There was no great hurry, particularly as the subject was an important one. He did not oppose the fast Atlantic scheme, but it was too late to perfect it this session.

Hon. Mr. Foster pointed out that parliament had endorsed the principle of the fast Atlantic service and he thought it was too late to raise an objection to it now. The bill only affected a subsidiary feature, namely the abandonment of the terminal French port because an independent French line was to be subsidized.

Sir Richard Cartwright again emphasized the objection to a dying parliament dealing with such an important matter. The bill was reported from the committee.

Other objections occupied the floor until Hon. Mr. Foster interposed to address a plain statement to the house. On Thursday last, he said, the remedial bill had been withdrawn and on Friday the house had attempted to get into supply in order that the appropriations absolutely necessary for the services of the country should be voted. From that time to this they had been ineffectually endeavoring to get into committee of supply, and now matters had come to this pass that unless progress were made at once it would be useless to vote any estimates as they could not be put through the final stages, for parliament would prorogue at eight o'clock Thursday. The opposition would, therefore, have to take the responsibility for further delay.

The temerity had the desired effect and after a few deprecatory remarks from Mr. Laurier, the house at five o'clock went into committee of supply upon the supplementary estimates.

The first nine items in the supplementary estimates had been passed at six o'clock, at which hour the committee rose and reported and the house adjourned.

The house met again at eight o'clock for another session, but before going into committee again there was a general "redress of grievances."

Sir Richard Cartwright called attention to a cable market report in the Mail and Empire, which he designated as an incendiary attempt to ruin the credit of Canada. The report went on to say that Canadian securities in London were weak and would likely remain so till after the election; that if the liberals were returned there would be many empty factories and that money would be tight until after the election.

Sir Richard was sure the finance minister would join him in denouncing this attack upon the credit of the country.

Hon. Mr. Foster rejoiced that there was a silver lining to this dark cloud, and the silver lining to this dark cloud was that the liberals were not likely to get into power.

On the item of one million dollars for arms and ammunition, the opposition objected to its being charged to capital account.

Hon. Mr. Foster held it was no argument against the charging to capital account to say that the articles would wear out. This would constitute a new and complete armament and necessary renewal from year to year could be charged to income.

After some further discussion the item passed, as did also the items down to those for railways and canals with the exception of those for the latter service chargeable to capital.

There will be no new railway subsidies brought down or supplementary estimates for next year, Mr. Laurier having declined to allow any to pass. After making good progress in supply the committee rose and departed.

The house adjourned at 1.55 a.m.

Ottawa, April 23.—The house met at 10.30 a.m.

At the very outset Mr. Martin complained that the accountant of the house had refused to pay his indemnity before the prorogation unless he produced a pair. He wanted to know by what right any officer of the house asked him how he was going to vote, for that was what a pair meant.

Mr. Speaker explained that the full indemnity could not be paid under the rule until after prorogation, but upon the members pairing they had been paid on the last day of the session.

Some further discussion took place, and it was decided to hereafter stand by the rule and pay only after prorogation.

A number of government bills were put through. The government accepted an amendment of Mr. Edgar's to the Atlantic steamship bill providing that the fast line contract could not be entered into until parliament met again.

On the electric lighting inspection item Sir Richard Cartwright urged that the inspection fee be reduced to a nominal charge. Col. Prior said he would look into the matter.

On postal items Mr. McMillen made a plea for better salaries for village postmasters, while Mr. McShane protested against the two cent drop postage in cities. With the exception of a few items which were left over for further explanations all supplementary estimates were passed.

Before the house rose Hon. Mr. Foster urged that the main estimates for three months be allowed to pass in order to avoid, if possible, the necessity for parliament meeting in July, which would be expensive and inconvenient.

Sir Richard Cartwright said it was utterly impossible to accede to the request; it was most unreasonable.

There with the matter dropped.

At three o'clock the house re-assembled and at once proceeded to concur in the supplementary estimates. Before the item of 1,000,000 for arms and ammunition, Mr. Rinfret, seconded by Mr. Legris, moved in amendment that the item be not concurred in, but that "the house regrets that the government, without the authority of parliament, has entered into contracts for the purchase of arms and equipments to the amount of nearly two millions."

The house divided on the amendment, which was defeated by 67 yeas to 35 yeas.

Meers, McCarthy and Stables voted with the opposition, Mr. Wallace with the government.

On the item of $20,000 for enlarging the Lachine canal Mr. McShane raised all sorts of objections, claiming that the amount was unnecessary.

Sir Donald Smith made an urgent appeal to have the vote put through, but Mr. McShane was obstinate, and being backed up by Mr. Laurier, the vote was reduced to $10,000. The remainder of the supplementary estimates were concurred and the supply bill passed at six o'clock.

Sir Richard Cartwright wanted to know about the next meeting of parliament, and was informed by Sir Charles Tupper that it was the intention to have the new parliament meet at the middle of July, to which Sir Richard rejoined that the elections should have been brought on a week earlier, as the government would have trouble enough getting on without supplies in the meantime.

At the evening session five private bills, including the Chicago ship rail bill, were introduced and the first way bill, were withdrawn and the first order to be repaid.

HOPE WAS ABANDONED.

THE PECULIAR CASE OF MRS. HILL, OF WINCHESTER.

The Doctor told her that her trouble was Consumption of the Bowels, and that there was no hope of recovery—but Health was Almost Miraculously Restored.

From the Morning Herald.

Mrs. Hill, wife of Mr. Robt. Hill, of Winchester, had many months ago been looked upon as one whose days were numbered. Today she is a handsome, healthy woman, and she is the result of her former desperate condition, and it is therefore little wonder that her case has attracted the profound attention of her neighbors.

To a reporter who called upon her Mrs. Hill expressed a willingness to give the story of her illness and recovery for publication, and she told with an earnestness that conveyed to the listener better than mere words could do, the story of her sufferings.

My husband and I were married in 1860, and I have since that time been a devoted wife and mother. I was a healthy woman, and I was looked upon as one whose days were numbered.

Gondreau, accountant of the Marine and Fisheries department, to be Deputy Minister of the same department; Joseph Pope, assistant clerk Privy Council, and formerly private secretary to Sir John Macdonald, to be under secretary of State; J. L. Payne, secretary to Premier Bowell, was appointed to be assistant clerk of the Privy Council. Among the appointments which it was said were made on Saturday but which yet require official confirmation, is that of John McDougall, ex-member for Pictou, N. S., as commissioner of customs.

As regards the Tupper ministry there is nothing certain to-night. Many names are being talked of but Sir Charles naturally will say nothing. It is believed that even despite all denials he will secure Hon. Mr. Chapleau as one of the Quebec representatives. Mr. Chapleau has been sound for his health.

It is learned that Hon. Mr. Chapleau was in New York to day and will be in Ottawa tomorrow, although as previously stated it is very uncertain as to his future course.

The first shot in the campaign from a ministerial standpoint will be fired at Montreal on Monday next week, when Sir Charles Tupper and others of his colleagues will attend a banquet to be given in their honor. Thence Sir Charles Tupper, Hon. Mr. Daly and other ministers will proceed to Manitoba, where they will spend a few days.

Sir Charles was waited upon yesterday by a deputation consisting of Messrs. Davin, MacDonald (Assiniboia) Earl and Davis, who presented a memorial setting forth that the north west contingent were a unit in their desire to have Mr. Daly remain in the cabinet as minister of the interior and their representative.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Mr. Sanford Fleming go to England as Canadian representatives to the colonial office conference on the Pacific cable question. Hon. John Costigan leaves for New Brunswick to-morrow to look after the elections.

Suit you exactly, Sir!

I picked him up from a man who knew nothing about a horse. The neighbor said he was "hard to keep." I knew where the trouble was. His hair stood on end like the feathers on a Poland hen. His hide was so tight that the slaps of your hand on him sounded like the beat of a drum. He was so thin you could see him only when he was "broke-side on." Yes Sir! I bought him home under a blanket—was ashamed to be seen with him—gave him Dick's Blood Purifier and now after six weeks just see him. Yes Sir—just six weeks—You can't beat Dick's, it simply puts an animal right. Its worth dollars where it costs cents. You can get it from druggists or at general stores but if they don't have it don't let them palm off something else on you—because you can send 50 cents to Dick & Co., P. O. Box 482, Montreal and they will send you a trial box, large—just put it on.

FURNITURE.

I have just received the largest importation of furniture ever seen at one time on the Miramichi. It is the best that money can purchase and must be sold. I will be pleased to have intending purchasers look it over.
