THE PARTING HOUR.

There's something in the "parting hour"
Will chill the warmest heart—
Yet kindred, comrades, lovers, friends,
Are fated all to part;
But this I've seen—and many a pang
Has pressed it to my mind—
The one who goes is happier
Than those he leaves behind.

No matter what the journey be,
Adventurous, dangerous, far,
To the wild deep or bleak frontier,
To solitude or war—
Still something cheers the heart that dares
In all of human kind,
And they who go are happier
Than those they leave behind.

The bride goes to the bridegroom's home
With doubts and with tears,
But does not hope her rainbows spread
Across her cloudy fears;
Alas! the mother who remains,
With comfort can she find,
But this—the gone is happier
Than one she leaves behind?

Have you a friend—a comrade dear?
An old and valued friend?
Be sure your term of sweet discourse
At length will have an end!
And when you part—as part you will—
O take it not unkind,
If he who goes is happier
Than you he leaves behind.

God wills it so—and so it is;
The pilgrims on their way,
Though weak and worn, more cheerful are
Than all the rest who stay.
And when, at last, poor man subdued,
Lies down to death resigned,
May he not still be happier far
Than those he leaves behind.

Interesting Tale.

THE PENAIRE OF PENAIRE.

I wonder if any one will care to read my recollections of our old nurse, Alice Penaire. To me they are vivid and most pleasant, for they are bound up with all the remembrances of my early life; but to those who never knew or saw her they may have less interest. Yet her life was hardly any less interesting than that of a common, and the many old Cornish legends and family histories that I could seem so united to her own life, that I could but fancy her an actor in them all. She belonged to an ancient Cornish family, and very proud was she of her lineage, though, in regard to this world's distinction, that was all, poor woman, that she could boast of when we knew her; for as a servant—a good and trusty one, indeed, but still as a servant—she had to gain her livelihood. But she possessed a far higher rank than is conveyed by any earthly connections; for she was truly one of the household of faith, and an heir of heaven's Grace does not always, however, wholly subside natural feeling, and our good nurse did occasionally, as I have hinted, show some pride about her ancient descent and the departed glories of her house. She often used to tell us, that if her family had their right, she would have had her own servants, and plenty of them; and, strange as it then seemed to us, it was true enough, as we afterwards ascertained.

Her great-grandfather, Mr. Penaire of Penaire, was a Cornish gentleman, who lived in a fine old mansion built in the time of our good Queen Bess, with its gabled ends and the porch in the centre to form the letter E. These architects were true royalists and substantial builders too. Many an Elizabethan house even now can well hold its own with more pretentious and showy modern edifices. Penaire stands in a sheltered nook, near to where a creek of the sea is joined by a winding river. Magnificent trees are grouped around, growing down to the water's edge, their fine old gnarled branches reflecting themselves in the still blue water beneath, and through these trees one can see glimpses of the old church tower. It is not a place of magnificent scenery which strikes the mind at the first glance; but it has a beauty which the more you look upon it the more you like it. It grows upon you, and you come to love it without explaining why.

The estate was a goodly one, and the old man of whom I am writing had in his time wealth enough for every luxury and comfort, as far as what Alice told us, that with all his wealth old Mr. Penaire did not possess the true riches, which make a man independent of worldly circumstances for his happiness, and without which the wealthiest man in this world's goods is poor indeed. True happiness wants peace of mind to make it real and the peace of mind only belongs to those who have the sense of their sins being forgiven through Christ, and who, with hearts reconciled to God, enjoy communion with their heavenly Father. Had this been the case with Mr. Penaire, he would not have felt so lonely and miserable as he was in his old age. He used to murmur and complain bitterly in the last years of his long life that he was left alone; for there was but one relation in the world that he could claim as his own, and that one had gone he knew not whither.

Mr. Penaire had lost his wife when his only child, a son, was just entering manhood. He was his father's pride and comfort; and when, after certain years, he brought to his home a fair young bride, Penaire was truly the happy dwelling place of a united, loving family. But oh how quickly was this brightness clouded! Uncertainty and change belong to all earthly things. Before six months had passed the bride-wife was a corpse. Her husband's wild and bitter grief no words can describe. When the fair form was to be carried to her resting-place, he would have her shrouded in all her bridal apparel,—no ring or jewel that she had then worn was to be omitted; and with mournful wailings she was borne to the old churchyard, and placed in the family vault.

Dearly, sad, and lonely the old house was that day. The father renewed the sorrow of his own bereavement, and felt as if his wife had but been taken from him, while the son was stunned and bowed down to the earth with his own most sudden grievous loss. They had not been accustomed to converse with God in days of prosperity, and now in the time of adversity they felt not the support and comfort of the Divine presence. Those two sat silently side by side in their library; their grief was too fresh and bitter for words; no sound was heard, but each groaned in his heart apart.

It was nearly midnight. All the household had retired to rest, glad to forget in sleep the sorrow of the day; but the two mourners did not move. The fire flickered low, and the young man roused himself to throw on a fresh log, and was just leaning back again with the never-changing look of agony on his face, when the door-bell rang gently, but distinctly. They both started to their feet, and went into the hall. Who could come at such an hour to disturb them in their grief? Half mechanically the young man unlocked the bolts, and slowly opened the door, and there before him stood his bride,—yes, his very own wife, whom but a few hours before he had seen laid in the dark chill vault. He looked and gazed in amazement, as if he saw a spirit. She had a lantern in her hand, and spoke to assure them that it was not her ghost. It was the work of but a few moments to bear her into the warm room and rouse the household. She was rather faint and cold, but still able to account to her wondering, almost bewildered husband and father for her strange return from the place of the dead.

The sexton, a depraved, wicked man, had heard much talk in the village, through the servants of the house, about the splendid ornaments which were to be buried with young Mrs. Penaire. Whisk might come on, and all the neighbourhood was still and quiet, he returned to the church, entered the vault, which purposely he had left unsealed, and, after some difficulty, he succeeded in dragging the coffin into the open air, and raising the lid, and without any reverence for the pale form lying shrouded in her bridal dress, he took off all the jewels that had been placed on her. The guard to her wedding-ring fitted so tightly, that he could not drag it off; so he placed her slender finger between his teeth, when to his horror the closed eyes slowly opened, and the supposed corpse raised itself up a living woman. The wicked old man fled from the spot half dead with fright and terror, leaving her the lantern and the jewels beside the coffin. Slowly recovering her consciousness, Mrs. Penaire, feeling in a half waking dream, rose up and took the lantern, and so escaping a fearful doom, reached her home. The marks of teeth on her third finger proved the truth of the tale that the sexton confessed in secret to her husband; but he was too rejoiced to have his wife restored to him from death to reproach her deliverer, however base had been the means he had used.

But this bright reunion, its unexpected making it still more precious, was not to be for long. One son was born to them. How often have I heard of him as the child born after his mother's death, and wondered at the strange story. The poor mother died in giving birth to her son. Before he was three years old, a fever, then raging in the neighbourhood, carried off his father, and he was left an orphan. The child grew to be a young man, and then he became weary of his grandfather's quiet mode of life. He longed to see new countries and find adventures. He did not suggest his wish to the old man, for he felt sure he would never consent to part with him, and so, one day, without a word of farewell, he left Penaire.

He wrote once to say that he was setting sail for a foreign land, and then the old man heard from him no more. There were, indeed, rumours sometimes whispered that there were those who knew his whereabouts, and could tell (they would) but the rumours were slight and feeble, and never reached old Mr. Penaire's ears.

From the day his grandson left him, Mr. Penaire was a broken-hearted, crushed old man. He cared to see or speak to no one but his lawyer, Mr. Civi, a man who had quietly worked his way up from an errand boy to a lawyer's clerk, and from that to be a lawyer himself; not, indeed, employed by the country people, but a man who often made himself useful to those who sought his service. I this way he had got into the employment and confidence of many,—almost, as it were, without their knowledge. It was so with Mr. Penaire. Mr. Civi had been very active in searching out some petty cases of trespass, and he had saved old Mr. Penaire a great deal of trouble from a troublesome neighbour, and so, almost imperceptibly, he had grown more and more intimate. When John Penaire left his home, Mr. Civi had, un-a-k-d, made every inquiry about him, and left no stone unturned to discover where he had gone. The old man could but be grateful to him for his zeal, and in his solitary house Mr. Civi became a frequent and confidential visitor. Five long weary years old Penaire lived on alive, seeing only the old man and Mr. Civi, great fat to his eyes, but continued interest in the missing one, but in reality dead to all this world's concerns, and preparing for that lonely end all sorrows and disappointments are at an end for ever.

The five weary years had thus passed, and Mr. Penaire felt that his days on earth were numbered. He had as yet made no will, but he had thought of it, and year by year, he had hoped for some tidings of his grandson, but the hope had grown fainter and fainter in the old man's heart, and now he felt he must arrange his worldly affairs and accede to Mr. Civi's constant entreaty to make a will. But to whom should he leave that estate which, though not settled, had been the Penaires' for centuries back. The search for John Penaire had been in vain, and if he never returned should the house and property go to ruin, or be possessed by those he had never known, and the name of Penaire be forgotten? No, that must never be; the old man had still the remains of his proud Cornish spirit; he could trace his family back and back to the Conquest, and now he could not endure the thought of his name passing away. For his estate he cared for less; he had no living relation, for Mr. Civi had confirmed every belief that John Penaire was dead. How Mr. Civi managed the affair no one ever clearly understood, but when old Penaire died, and his will opened, it was found that he had arranged this in case John Penaire returned to England within a year, the estates real and personal were to be his, but if he was, at the end of the year, still absent, Mr. Civi was to inherit all, and take the name of Penaire.

Some few people said that Mr. Civi had managed well, but it was but a nine days' wonder. John Penaire had been much blamed for leaving his home; and indeed, the idea of his death had been so firmly engrained, that Mr. Civi's inheritance was not a surprise. The year passed by, and Mr. Penaire was not heard of, and Mr. Civi went with his family to reside at Penaire as lawful owner. Six months after, the neighbourhood was astonished by the news that John Penaire was alive; and in England—a ruined man regarding fortune. The estate that should have been his had passed to others beyond hope of recall. He had had his desired wish for adventure, but he had failed hardly, and with difficulty had he procured money sufficient to bring him back to England. He said that he had written when ever opportunity was afforded him to his grandfather to request for forgiveness, but never receiving any answer, he was too proud to return without a fortune to a home which he feared might not have been opened to receive him. He had toiled and worked in many ways, and seen much of the bitter side of struggling life, weary often, and longing often for the quiet of Penaire, that he had once so despised. One day being in New York, he by chance saw a Cornish newspaper, he seized it eagerly to find news from home, and there, to his sorrow, he saw the mention of his grandfather's death. The paper was nearly a year old, and he had then no means of paying for its passage home, but by diligent work in four months he had saved just sufficient to bring him to England; but, alas, too late, Penaire could never be his; he had no money wherewith to carry his case to a court of law, and could he have done so, there was no hope of his gaining his cause—a lawyer had the estate, and he had made it secure to himself. How it was that no letters had ever reached old Mr. Penaire was never clearly known, but there were many conjectures concerning them.

It is a well known proverb—
"Bling gotten gains
Bring but sorrow and pain."
And a true one too, as we always see when we have the power or patience to trace their history; and at this very time, though the Civil Penaires are still at Penaire, they are a ruined family, their money is gone and well known how; some sons are outcasts from society, and the curse of ill gotten gains seems to rest on the place. The whole affair seems like an illustration of the Divine word; "Ambition may be gotten hastily at the beginning, but the end thereof shall not be blessed." (Prov. xx 21)

John Penaire married a woman in humble life, and lived a retired part of Cornwall, and was forgotten. His wife was a pious woman, and her influence and example were made a blessing to her husband. They brought up their only child, our dear nurse, Alice, in the fear of God and the love of the Saviour. In their humble sphere they were far happier than the owners of Penaire with all their worldly gain.

What became of the property I never learn of. When I recollect this tale of childhood's memory, I would like to have asked Alice more, but she is no longer. She lived with us more as a faithful friend than servant for fifteen years, when, not feeling well or strong, she wished to go to her native village for a visit. We pleased it should only be for a short visit, and so, in truth, it proved, but not as we had thought or hoped. Before she had left us a week we received sad news; our dear old nurse sent us her dying love, and the next letter told us that her earthly life was over. She had faithfully served us, and obeyed all her heavenly Master, and now he called her to himself, to enjoy an inheritance incorruptible and undecaying, and that fade not away.

THE FIRST AMERICAN NEWSPAPER.—The story of the first American newspaper, brief as its life, is full of curious interest. Seventy years after the landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock, and two hundred and fifty years after the invention of printing, a newspaper was issued in Boston. It lived one day, and only one copy is known to have been preserved. That copy was discovered by the historian of Salem, the Rev. J. B. Felt, in the Colonial State paper Office, in London, while engaged in researches relating to the history of his own city. This pioneer of American journalism was published by Benjamin Harris at the London Office-house. Boston and was printed for him by Richard Pierce on Thursday, the 25th of September, 1689, nearly two centuries after the discovery of the New World by Columbus. The paper was printed on three pages of a folded sheet, leaving one page blank, with two columns to a page, and each page about eleven inches by seven in size. Harris proposed to issue his paper once a month, or oftener if there should be a "right of occurrences." His first and, as it turned out, his only number, contained several columns of home and foreign gossip, without a word of editorial comment. Unfortunately for the success of his undertaking, he printed one or two items of local and military news which set the official bodies in a ferment of indignation. The legislative authorities solemnly determined that the paper came contrary to law, and that it contained "red citations of a very high nature." To prevent Mr. Harris from issuing a second number, they forbade any thing in print without license first obtained from those authorized by the Government to grant the same. In this way the first American newspaper came to grief; and but for the accidental preservation of a single copy in London its very name would have passed into oblivion. From Newspapers and Editors, by S. S. CONANT, in Harper's Magazine for March.

This burglar alarm which lights a lamp, fires a pistol, shoots a thief, rings a firebell, calls a watch dog, and only fails to act when the burglar comes, has been invented again; this time by a California boy. A house worth $500 can be put in a state of safety for about $1,000.

Discoveries of Tin at Queensland.

The most recent reports substantiate the fact that tin fields of unexampled richness have been discovered in the English colony of Queensland, Eastern Australia, the presence of the metal being detected over an area of 550 square miles. Mr. T. F. Gregory, the mineral land commissioner, states that, at the present time, only about 225 square miles of this area have hitherto been found sufficiently rich for working, but there are many instances of tin being found in paying quantities beyond these limits. The physical and geological character of nearly the whole of the area described is that of an elevated granite table land, intersected by ranges of abrupt hills, the highest limits of which are about 8,000 feet above the sea, its eastern escarpment forming the water shed of the Clarence river, the northern that of the Condamine, and the southwestern, the Nevein and McIntyre rivers. The portion of the district over which the deposits of tin ore are distributed is that comprised by the water shed of the Severn river. The richest deposits have been found in the stream beds and fluvial flats, the paying ground varying from a few yards to five chains in width, occasionally broken by rocky bars; but even in these instances large deposits are frequently lodged in the pockets and crevices between the granite boulders.

The probable yield of ore is stated at 10 tons per linear chain of the beds on the various creeks. In some instances, this has been found to extend to thirty tons per chain. Regarding the mineralogical character of the rocks, it is stated that the ore is associated only with granite which is invariably red. The granite generally is coarse grained and seems to disintegrate rapidly under atmospheric influence. There are numerous bands of loosely aggregated rock, granitoid in character, highly micaceous and traversed by bands and veins of quartz in all directions, in which the crystals of tin are abundant. No tin flows as at the Elmore mine in N. W. South Wales have yet been discovered.

As the lodes and veins have as yet been but very partially tested, it would be premature to give any decided opinion upon their value; it is probable that they will prove a source of great wealth, and perhaps render Australia one of the first tin producing countries in the world.—Scientific American.

DOMINIC COMFORT.—There are many who hold in blessed memory the sainted Dr. Cannon, Professor of Pastoral Theology and Church History in the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Dutch Church. He was indeed a good man of the old-time, preserving even to the last the costume of a hundred years ago. He held the relation of a brother in affection to Dominic Comfort, of the Presbyterian church of Kingston, New Jersey. On one occasion he heard Mr. C. comfort preach and at dinner remarked, Brother Comfort, I had an old lady saying this morning, the dominic's sermon was very comforting.

To which the said Comfort responded,

Only a natural consequence, my good brother. But pray, who ever heard of comfort coming from a Cannon's mouth?

This Dominic Comfort was a great wag—He was a little, like old man, and we well remember an occasion when he was on the New Brunswick boat, then commanded by Captain Fisher, that a carriage backed to the gang plank. The door was opened, and out came, rather gingerly, a delicate looking young man. The old dominic ran up the plank and assisted the passenger on board, and then, with a youthful air and flourish, said it always gave him pleasure to render any assistance to the aged and infirm.—Editor's Drawer in Harper's Magazine for March.

FUNERAL RITES OF FRONTIERSMEN.—Bishop Vail, of Kansas, tells a little tale that illustrates forcibly the free and easy way of life of the frontiersman, and the scanty ceremony with which his funeral services are conducted. "In one little graveyard where I happened to be walking," said the bishop, "there were twenty seven graves, and my informant, who discharged the office of undertaker, told me that the occupants of twenty-six of them were killed in affrays, or, as he politely expressed it, died and were buried with their boots on." The twenty seventh grave was that of a child.—Editor's Drawer, in Harper's Magazine for March.

People often complain of not getting their rights, and it is sometimes well for them that they don't. Death will certainly come sometime, and it is better to be prepared to die than to be young again.

"Love," says an amorous writer, "is an internal transport." The same might be said of a canal boat.

Useful industry does not so much consist in being continually busy, as in doing promptly those things which are of the first importance, and which will eventually prove most profitable.

PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE.
HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

Fredericton, Feb. 29.
In the House of Assembly, Mr. Harrison moved and Mr. Ryan seconded the address in answer to the Speech, and Saturday was fixed for its consideration.

On motion of Mr. Butler, Messrs. Beckwith, Butler, Palmer, Maher, Covert, Napier, and Robinson, were appointed a committee respecting mining interests of the province.

Mr. Ouly, chairman of Contingent Committee, read their reports, which were adopted.

On motion of Mr. Cain, a committee was appointed to whom should be referred the agricultural interest of the province.

Mr. Butler moved as an amendment to the report on that subject, that the matter of contracts for debates be referred back to said committee, with full power to rescind the contract.

He stated that he wished to do away with the publishing of debates, and give the contractor sufficient remuneration.

The vote being taken, the House was divided as follows on the amendment:

Yeas—Hon. Messrs. Foster, King, Sternson, Kelly, MacQueen, Crawford, White, Messrs. Butler, Girouard, Beckwith, Phillips, Napier, Ouly, Robinson, Ryan, Humphrey, Covert, Harrison, Tibbets.

Nays—Hon. Messrs. Willis, Cain, Messrs. Macpherson, Blanchard, Montgomery, Landry, Adams, Gillespie, Donald, Alward, Cormack, Williams, Miller, Lindsay, Brown.

After the division Messrs. McPherson and Willis wished to withdraw from the committee.

The following were added—Messrs. Landry, Kelly, Daniel, Ouly, Girouard, Lindsay, Ryan, Montgomery, Blanchard, Tibbets, Williams, and Covert.

The Attorney General presented a Bill relating to assessment and taxes in the Town of Portland; also presented an accompanying petition.

The Bill not having been published one month, such rule was suspended.

Hon. Mr. Crawford presented a Bill relating to the County Courts in this province.

Mr. Gillespie wanted to know if the money required for publishing debates would be taken from the bye road money.

The Committee on Debates having returned to the House reported that owing to difference of opinion they had been unable to come to any final arrangement, but had ascertained what the parties contracted with would take and abandon their contract.

Ottawa, March 1.
The Canada "Gazette" contains the Cabinet changes as previously announced but no other matters of special importance to New Brunswick.

The last rumor is that Sir Francis Hincks will be the next Lieutenant Governor of Ontario.

The chief topic of discussion is the publication by the "Globe" of correspondence up to the tenth of February between the Government and the Pacific and Inter-oceanic Railway Companies.

The "Globe" attempts to draw the inference that American capitalists are secretly behind Sir Hugh Allan, in the face of the positive declarations of that gentleman and other directors, as well as of the Privy Council itself, that the work is to be carried on under purely British auspices.

London, Feb. 26.
In the House of Commons Mr. Goldsmith gave notice on Monday he should ask the Government whether it was true that the actual losses of the United States were $2,500,000 less than awards made at Geneva and whether the American Government would remit that amount.

Mr. MacFie moved a select Committee to consider the relations of England with her colonies particularly those affecting emigration. He complained that no steps were taken to divert from the United States, English and Irish emigration.

Darymple seconded the motion and Viscount Bury opposed it.

After several speeches the motion was negatived.

Families continue to fly from Spain in large numbers. A vessel crowded with refugees has arrived at Port Vendre.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 28.
Preparations for Khivan campaign are going on without interruption. The report that the expedition has been abandoned has no foundation.

Count Von Brunnow, Russian Ambassador at London is not to be replaced by Count Schouvaloff.

Paris, March 1.
It is generally considered that to-day's sitting of the National Assembly is one of the most important since the establishment of the Republic. It is expected that the Right and Left will issue upon a distinct statement from Thiers of his policy.

Ireland, Feb. 28.
Catholic Bishops of Ireland resolve to oppose the education Bill, and sent up address to the Irish members of Parliament urging them to press for its withdrawal.

New York, March 1.
The public debt was reduced $5,000,000 during the past month.

Senator Patterson will probably be censured but not expelled. If the Senate have an opportunity to act on his case, which is doubtful.

A joint resolution congratulating Spain on the formation of a Republic passed the House to-day.

AN ASCENDING FORGER—J. D. James, collector and division Court agent, recently absconded from Toronto in consequence of ex-travelling. He had in his possession $100,000 belonging to the church of the Redeemer, also the proceeds of a lease and church collections, for the past months. Several banks, and some of the leading citizens of Toronto are heavy sufferers. James had been considered a worthy and respectable citizen and had been trusted to an almost unlimited extent.

Fredericton, Feb. 4.
Question of publishing the Debates settled to-day, by paying Day and R. porters, $1450 for release of contract.

Donald's bill exempting persons over sixty years of age from three days statute labour, was carried; it applies to all parts of Province except cities and towns to which the highway act does not extend.

The Legislative Council passed Address in reply to the Speech, after a lengthy debate without division.

R. ports and Documents are being laid on table.

The House is getting into good working humor. The members are all here except Wedderburn and Theriault.

Gough giving notices of motion hearings. No trains to-day.

Fredericton, March 5.
Fire last night destroyed Harding's barn, in rear of Barker House. The horse was burnt to death.

The Standard.

SAINT ANDREWS, MARCH 5, 1878.

THE LEGISLATIVE SESSION was opened at Fredericton on Thursday last. The Lieut. Governor's Speech is rather lengthy, but contains many subjects of interest.

After his acknowledgment of the pleasure of meeting the members in General Assembly, the Governor at once and in forcible terms refers to a re-adjustment of the financial basis of the Union, and shows the claims of New Brunswick to "Better Terms."

"That it was bearing in proportion to its population, the greatest share of the Public burdens of Canada—its rate per capita of taxation for Dominion purposes being greater than in any other Province in Canada."

He also invites attention to the Revision and Consolidation of our Statutes—the Mining Regulations—to the Emigration and Colonization policy of his Government, and the propriety of offering additional inducements to the young men of the Province to settle upon our vacant lands.

The sums placed at the disposal of the Government have been prudently expended. He next adverts to the Common Schools Act of 1871 having been impeached, and is happy to inform the Members "that it has been sustained by the unanimous adjudication of the Supreme Court; and in the event of an appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, he recommends that provision be made for its defence before that tribunal."

"A Special Case on that Act having been prepared by the Dominion Government for the opinion of the Law Officers of the Crown in England, and a copy thereof having been forwarded to me during the recess for the remarks of my Government thereon, I at once brought the Case under their consideration, and transmitted to the Secretary of State full remarks in vindication of the Act, at the same time communicating a Protest against any such reference, and claiming the absolute right of the Provincial Legislature to deal with such matters."

"A full Report of the proceedings of my Government during the past year, which I shall direct to be laid before you, will show that due attention has been paid to this matter, and that the prospects for the present year are highly encouraging."

"Your attention will be called to certain amendments of the Law in relation to the Administration of Justice, and I feel assured that in all your deliberations, you will be guided by that wisdom and prudence which will best promote the public welfare."

Our Fredericton Correspondent "Kappa," will furnish us with a letter each week during the Legislative Session. His first letter will be seen in another column, and as he is independent of politics, having no bias for the "ins" or "outs," the information he will convey can be relied upon.

We suggest to him to give as much information as he can with reference to the Charlotte representatives, as the people of the County naturally feel more interest in their actions than any others.

A little spice of our old friend's humor, to season his letters, will be acceptable. Perhaps he may furnish the readers of the STANDARD, with political portraits of our Charlotte members. This County can boast of having the youngest, and we hope to add one of the ablest representatives in our Provincial House of Commons.

We regret to learn that Wm. Snellgrove, a native of this town, fell from the main yard of the brig "Lydia" on the 14th December last, when off Monte Video, and broke his right leg. He was in Hospital, and recovering slowly. We sympathize with his family, of whom he was the principal support.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.—An influential correspondent, in another column directs attention to the inefficient state of our Fire department, and the heavy taxation the Town is subjected to, to maintain the Department. A very general dissatisfaction at the large annual tax, without an apparent benefit. We are informed that it was intended to call a Public Meeting to devise measures to reduce the tax, and also to request the Magistrates who are Firewards to resign. In no other County in the Province do Magistrates act as Fire-wards; the fact of their appointing themselves to the office is one that should be discontinued. Were the County or Town incorporated, such a state of affairs would not exist. The people look forward to the Sessions to make the desired change.

We are happy to state, that the Rev. Richard Verker, the respected Priest of the Catholic Church, is recovering from his severe attack of illness, which prostrated him for the past four weeks. He is still confined to his house, unable to discharge his public duties, but hopes to be able to resume them in a couple of weeks. Father Verker, as he is generally called, is popular with all classes and denominations, and deservedly so.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for March, fully sustains its high reputation of being the best, and most ably conducted Magazine on this continent. Its staff of contributors contains the leading writers not only in America but Europe also. Many of the articles are profusely illustrated, and the Editorial Departments are conducted with marked ability. The articles in the March number are instructive and entertaining.

Henry Osburn, Esq., Manager of the N. B. & C. Railway, returned from England on Saturday last.

The heavy blow on Monday evening was almost equal to the Saxby gale, and was accompanied by a fall of snow which drifted in some localities, impeding travelling. The train did not leave in consequence yesterday.

Two Alarms of Fire were given last week, the first at Williamson's drug store, on Friday morning, and at the Willard house in the afternoon of the same day. Both fires were put out without the aid of the engines, before doing much damage.

The man mentioned in the extract from the "News" as having been killed by falling from a hay mow in Brockway settlement, was not "Michiel," but Daniel Downs. He was from Wicklow, Ireland, and came to this country with others of Earl Fitzwilliam's tenants to work on the St. Andrews railway. He resided on Col. Mowat's farm for some years, was an industrious and honest man, and reputed to be one of the best ploughmen in the county.

We are informed that no one has as yet claimed the reward of $100 offered by the Church corporation for the robbery and desecration of All Saints Church, a few weeks ago. The people of all denominations regret that the miscreant has not been brought to justice.

BALLOU'S MAGAZINE for March, contains a large variety of reading matter, consisting of tales, poetry, and other amusing and instructive articles, with humorous illustrations. Priced $1.50 a year with chromo.—Address Thomas & Talbot, Boston.

To the Editor of the Standard.
Sir—I wish to call attention to the inefficient state of our Fire department. We had two alarms of fire last week, and only one Engine, No. 1 was able to get to the ground, the other, No. 2, did not put in appearance, owing I was informed, to its not being on runners, although the runners have been lying in the engine house all winter. I think it is the duty of the Firewards to see that the engines are kept in proper order; we pay a mechanic I am informed $50 a year, and the Town is heavily taxed besides for keeping the engines in proper repair. The engine companies are exempt from military and road tax, and if they do not attend to their duty, they should be fined.

There is another matter which I wish to draw attention to—Magistrates holding the office of Firewards, handling fire funds and auditing and passing those accounts; this is contrary to the meaning of the Act.

Yours, AN INHABITANT.

[Our correspondent has forgotten that a "special act" was passed empowering the Justice of Charlotte to hold the office of Fireward.]

SUMMARY.

THE CENSUS RETURNS.—The detailed returns of the census of England and Wales taken on the 3d of April, 1871. Were issued yesterday afternoon, in two large volumes of nearly 600 pages each. According to the revised returns the population of the United Kingdom, exclusive of the army, navy, and marine abroad, was in 1871, 31,628,338, against 29,070,932 in 1861, showing an increase in the ten years of 2,557,406, or 8 1/2 per cent. Ireland decreased 6.7 per cent. The number of men in the army, navy, and mercantile service is estimated at about 229,000. The area of England and Wales, estimated in 1861 at 37,324,883 acres, is now estimated, with the recent corrections, at 37,319,221 acres. The Scotch returns will be published in a separate volume, as the above relate exclusively to England and Wales.—Scotsman, Feb. 8.

A SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—A very singular accident happened in Longor on Ah Wednesday. A man going home at a very early hour in the morning with considerable liquor concealed about his person was accompanied by his bull dog which had jealously guarded him on his way home and which persisted in accompanying him to bed, fearing probably that his master would not receive fair play in the combats which might ensue. On the wife's attempting to put the dog out of bed he flew at her and bit the woman's ear off. The woman has suffered severely from the wound and scarcely any portion of the external ear has been saved.

—Mr. Frank E. Beckwith, Land Surveyor, dropped dead at Grand Falls on Tuesday. No further particulars of his death are given.

—A. H. Stephens, ex-Vice President of the Southern Confederacy, has been elected member of Congress of the Eighth District of Georgia. He is a man of great ability and a spirited orator. His reappearance in the Federal Legislature at Washington will create an immense sensation.

News from the West Coast of Africa states the disputes between Oka Jumbo and Ja-Ja has been settled.

CAUTION.—During this blustry, and stormy weather, it behoves people to be extra careful about their fires, especially at night. Their houses should be provided with roof and standing ladders.

GENERAL FAIRCHILD ON AMERICAN AND ENGLISH RELATIONS.—General Fairchild, the recently appointed American Consul in Liverpool, was entertained to dinner last night at the Washington Hotel, Liverpool, by the members of the American Club. In responding to the toast of his health, he said that he had never heard so much about the probable outbreak of war between England and America during the ten years that he resided in America as he had done during the few months that he had been in Liverpool. He spoke of the warm and friendly feeling with which America regard this country.

DOMINION STEAMSHIP LINE.—This line of steamships was organized last summer under a company having a fully paid up capital of £500,000 sterling with power to increase, and with an influential body of Canadian stockholders among its proprietors. It is intended to maintain a permanent weekly service, at an early date between Liverpool and Montreal, making Portland the winter port. At present the line is running to Boston, calling at Portland both ways. The following vessels, having a tonnage of from 1,850 to 2,500 tons each, are owned by the company—the "St. Louis," "Missouri," "Mississippi," "Texas," "Vicksburg" and "Memphis." The "Lord Clive" is also running on this line.

Government House, Ottawa, Tuesday, 24th day of December, 1872.

...HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL ... IN COUNCIL. ... WHEREAS by the Act passed in the 35th year of Her Majesty's reign, entitled: "AN Act to amend an Act of the present Session and to enable the Governor in Council to impose a duty on Tea and Coffee imported from the United States in the case therein mentioned," it is provided that if at any time, any greater duty of Customs should be payable in the United States on Tea or Coffee imported from Canada than on Tea or Coffee imported from any other country, then the Governor in Council may impose on Tea or Coffee imported into Canada from the said United States a duty of Customs equal to the duty payable in the United States on Tea or Coffee imported into Canada from any country other than the said United States, but passing in bond through the United States, shall be free from duty.

...And whereas the contingency contemplated by the above recited Act has occurred, and Tea and Coffee imported into the United States from Canada, are subject to a duty of ten per cent. ad valorem, while Tea and Coffee imported from countries East of the Cape of Good Hope are free from duty.

...His Excellency in Council on the recommendation of the Honorable the Minister of Finance, and under the authority aforesaid, has been pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that a duty of ten per cent. be imposed, and the same is hereby authorized to be levied and collected on Tea and Coffee imported into Canada from the United States of America.

...W. A. HIMSWORTH, ... Clerk, Privy Council.

DISSOLUTION OF CO-PARTNERSHIP.

...THE Partnership heretofore existing under the name and style of WADDELL & STOOP, has been dissolved by mutual consent. The business will in future be conducted by JAMES STOOP; all debts due the said firm will be received by him.

...FRANCIS WADDELL, ... JAMES STOOP, ... St. Andrews, Jan. 14, 1873.

$1000 REWARD.

...AVIN MALTMAN, born in Scotland, in 1792, heir to property, resided in New Brunswick, in 1854, as a labourer, and died in America since that time. Reliable evidence of his death will secure the reward. Apply to JOHN P. JAYNE, 7 Murray Street, New York.

NOTICE.

...CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT. Ottawa, Dec. 27, 1872. NOTICE is hereby given, that His Excellency, the Governor General, by an Order in Council, bearing date the 26th inst., and under the authority vested in him by the 2nd Section of the 34th Victoria, Cap. 10, has been pleased to order, and direct that the following articles be transferred to the list of goods which may be imported into Canada free of duty, viz:—

...Felt, Cotton and Wollen Netting and Flannel, used in the manufacture of Gloves and Mitts. By Command, R. S. M. BOUCHETTE, Commissioner of Customs.

Collector's Notice.

...THE undermentioned Non-Resident Ratepayer of the District No. 2, Parish of Penfield, County of Charlotte, is hereby notified to pay the sum set opposite his name, together with the cost of advertising, within three months from this date, to the subscriber, otherwise legal proceedings will be taken to recover the same.

Why the Valve Jar is Superior to all Others for Preserving Fruit.

- 1. Because it is the only one in which the contents can be securely fastened, and cooked while thus fastened, without risk of an explosion.
- 2. It is the only one that is Automatically Sealed, therefore, the only Self-Sealing Jar in the market.
- 3. It is so simple that no skill is required to use it successfully.
- 4. It is securely fastened when placed in the kettle, and being immersed, the fragrance of the contents is confined in the Jar, a more perfect vacuum produced and the handling of the hot jars entirely avoided.
- 5. It is well known that fruit jars which are closed with rigid fastenings burst by fermentation, and the effect upon the closet and surrounding is well understood by many housekeepers.

...The Cover of the Valve Jar being a perfect safety valve makes an explosion impossible, and entirely obviates every difficulty that exists in other fastenings. For sale by F. & J. A. WHITE, 10 Charlotte St., St. John.

SILENCE.
In silence mighty things are wrought;
Silently builded, thought on thought,
Truth's temple greets the sky,
And like a citadel with towers,
The soul, with her subservient powers,
Is strengthened silently.

Soundless as chariots on the snow,
The saplings of the forest grow
To trees of mighty girth;
Each mighty star in silence burns,
And every day in silence turns
The axle of the earth.

The silent frost with mighty hand,
Fetters the rivers of the land
With universal chain;
And smitten by the silent sun,
The chain is loosed, the rivers run,
The lands are free again.

Dryden was so bound up in his books that his wife exclaimed:
"I wish I were a book that I might always be in your society." "I wish you were an almanac, so I could change you every year," replied he.
