FELL BACK

The Boers Retreated in the Night.

AND GOT CLEAR AWAY WITHOUT LOSING ANY PRISONERS OR GUNS—BULLER WAITING FOR SUPPLIES.

London, June 15.—That Commandant-General Louis Botha should have been able to stand for two days against Lord Roberts and then to retreat without losing any guns or having any of his men captured is taken to mean that he has a force which the British must still reckon as formidable when acting on the defensive. The pacification of the whole of the Transvaal, especially the wide spaces facing the railways, is looked upon as a business requiring months rather than weeks.

Meanwhile everything goes well for the British arms. A Boer bulletin issued June 12, at Machadodorp, said: "Both wings of the federal forces touched the advancing enemy at 10 a. m. yesterday east of Pretoria. Fighting continued until dark. The enemy, though in overwhelming numbers, were checked along a line of 36 miles and the burghers succeeded in driving back their right wing five miles. Two burghers were killed and 10 wounded." Another Machadodorp announcement is that the first regiment of Gen. Buller's force to attack Almond's nek was "annihilated," but, as the British were in overwhelming force, the burghers were compelled to abandon the nek.

A despatch from Lorenzo Marquez, dated yesterday, says: "President Kruger is holding on to his gold and issuing paper notes from a press in his executive car. The Boer government's coin stock is exhausted, and the officers are now paying out plain gold discs unstamped. Some who have declined to accept notes, have taken their salaries in gold bars. The Boer government is still paying out much gold in that way."

Two steamers arrived at Lorenzo Marquez yesterday bringing several thousand tons of supplies consigned to Portuguese merchants but destined for the Boers. One hundred Americans, Frenchmen, Germans and Hollanders have arrived here by various steamers en route for the Transvaal. Mr. Crowe, the British consul-general, has large stocks of clothing for the British prisoners; but he will not forward these until he has assurances that the Boers will not take them for their own use.

NEEDS SUPPLIES.
Gen. Buller will be unable to advance further until he gets supplies. He will probably wait until the tunnel has been cleared. Nearly every farm house his troops passed flew a white flag. The British took nothing without paying for it, and a brisk business was done in milk, eggs, bread and chickens by thrifty housewives, who were pleased to get so much English money. One woman whose husband and two sons have been fighting said: "You British are unlike our people. They took my horses in exchange for sheep and mules, and made me make butter, which they never paid for. I am sending to have my men come home at once."

Usually the first question a Boer woman puts is: "Will my husband be shot if he is captured?" One young man was pulled from under a bed and he went on his knees, begging the British not to shoot him.

Gen. Buller had a sharp skirmish at Ficksburg, on June 12. The Boers had been aggressive along the whole of the Ficksburg-Synsket line and menaced Ficksburg in force. The British outposts retired to the village. Gen. Buller held the attention of the Boers in front with two guns, while the country were sent round to their rear and drove them off, with a loss to the British of three wounded. Two patrols were also wounded. President Kruger is at Uitkopp. His presence there is supposed to account for the Boer activity.

FIGHTING NOW ON

Chinese Troops Resisting the Advance of the Foreign Column.

The Japanese Legation at Peking Burned and a Foreign Minister Reported Murdered.

London, June 15.—The Times publishes the following despatch from Tien-Tsin, via Shanghai, June 14:—A serious engagement has occurred between the international column and the Mohammedan troops of General Tang Fu Siag, near Peking. Bryan Brennan, British consul at Shanghai, who is now in London, says these Mohammedan troops are armed with machine guns and repeating rifles. Observers at Shanghai and Tien-Tsin think there is a great deal more trouble ahead for the concert of powers than merely reaching Peking with 2,044 men. Serious disturbances are taking place at Yunnan-Fu and Meng-Tse, as well as at other points at a considerable distance from the capital. The whole Chinese Empire seems to be in a ferment. The intentions of the Empress Dowager are still equivocal, with a balance of testimony on the side of a determination to expel the appropriators of a part of her country, or lose her dynasty in the attempt.

A special despatch from Shanghai says an unconfirmed report has reached there from Tien-Tsin to the effect that a foreign legation had been burned, and that a minister had been killed. The names, it is added, are withheld pending a confirmation of the report.

It is further rumored that the international relief parties are experiencing great difficulties in regard to provisions and water. It is believed that the delay has been caused by the belief that the force was insufficient to overcome the opposition that might be encountered, and thus precipitate a massacre at the capital. It is added that the Japanese have sent two more cruisers, and have landed three hundred additional troops.

A telegram received from Yunnan-Fu says that the English and French missions there have been burned, and that the foreign residents have taken refuge in the viceroy's residence. The trouble, this despatch says, is reported to be due to French intrigues. A special despatch from Shanghai, dated to-day, says:—"A report has reached here that the British, American and Japanese ministers in Peking favor the restoration of Emperor Kwang-Shu, but that the French and Russian ministers insist upon the Powers taking charge of China. It is further reported that the respective divisions of the country have already been assigned. The belief is that the withdrawal of the British ships from the Yang-Tse-Kiang is an indication of Great Britain's disclaimer of the sphere theory."

Later reports from Tien-Tsin confirm the news of the burning of the Japanese legation, but the rumor that a minister has been murdered is not confirmed. Fifteen hundred Russians, with four guns, have arrived outside of Peking. This makes 4,000 Russians who have landed. It is regarded as certain that the Japanese government will take active steps concerning the murder of the chancellor of the Japanese legation. In consequence of disturbances at Che-Foo, the German flagship and H. M. S. Phoenix have returned there. A Russian warship, with 600 troops, has gone to Han Kow.

It has been learned in official quarters that although it is expected the government at Peking will show no further resistance as soon as it shall perceive the powers are determined, the commander of the international forces has been instructed to inflict a sharp lesson in the event of any resistance, and not to brook any delay in re-opening the gates of Peking if he finds them closed.

OVER 100 LODGES

Will be in Line Here on the Glorious Twelfth

County Orange Lodge Meets and Completes Arrangements for the Big Celebration.

The outlook now is that over 100 Orange lodges will celebrate in the Maple City on the Glorious Twelfth. These lodges will come from East and West Middlesex, Elgin, Essex, the states of Michigan and Ohio, and from the surrounding townships of Kent. Several Orange meetings were held in Chatham yesterday.

The semi-annual gathering of the District L. O. L. of Howard and Harwich drew a large attendance. District Worshipful Master, Bro. Wm. Simpson, presided and the usual routine business was transacted.

Subsequently, the County Lodge of South Kent met, with County Master E. J. Neely in the chair, where all arrangements for the coming celebration were completed.

Bro. Wesley Shaw and Thomas Biggart were instructed to get out the necessary printed matter, while Bro. Thos. Martin and Thomas Biggart will look after the subscriptions.

Bro. Simpson was appointed to secure speakers for the day. The speaking will take place on Remembrance Park. Bro. Martin and John Sissons were appointed to secure carriages for the ladies in the procession.

In addition to the parade and speeches there will also be sports and games. The Supreme Grand Master of the Orange Order in the United States has accepted an invitation to be present. Last night the Scarlet Chapter met and initiated several candidates. The Ladies' Orange Lodge also held a well attended meeting.

UNDER A HOT FIRE

The Canadians Had to Advance on the Boer Position.

London, June 15.—The Morning Standard correspondent at Kroonstad, cabling yesterday, says that at Yster Nek the Canadians were ordered to advance towards the enemy's front, and to take cover and hold the enemy with long-range fire. The Canadians advanced under a heavy shell fire from three guns over a dead level plain, and gained the foot of a slight ridge before the main range fired by the Boers, and took cover behind a stone wall. All the time they were pouring a steady, well-aimed fusillade on the enemy, and finding themselves outflanked, the Boers left during the night. According to the Standard's correspondent, the Canadians figured prominently in forcing Botha to evacuate his position near Pretoria.

VERY CLOSE TO DEATH

Chicago Motorman Expires as His Car Dashes Before a Moving Freight Train

Chicago, June 13.—With the motorman dead on the front platform, an Indiana avenue electric car, crowded with passengers, shot across the railroad tracks at Fortieth street just ahead of a freight train last night and for three blocks ran at full speed, with no one at the controlling lever.

The motorman, H. A. Morgan, had fallen helpless from heart disease, but the passengers did not realize their danger until after it was over and the car had been stopped by the conductor.

As the car approached the railroad crossing the conductor heard the sound of an approaching train. Looking ahead he saw by the signal lights that the gates were down. As the car failed to stop he pulled the bell rope and shouted to the motorman. He received no answer. The watchman at the crossing thinking that the motorman had lost control of his car, raised the gates in hopes that the car would cross the tracks before the locomotive could dispute the right of way. His calculations were right, for the car just managed to clear the crossing in safety.

The glaring light from the engine's headlight as it swept across the faces of the passengers and the unusual jarring in crossing the railroad tracks caused a panic in the car. As soon as the crossing had been passed the conductor rushed to the front of the car, where he shut off the electric current and found the motorman lying dead on the platform.

"ONE HOUR AND THE NEXT"

Synopsis of the Story by the Duchess of Sutherland.

The impression made upon most people who have read the Duchess of Sutherland's novel, "One Hour and the Next," is that she was making a study of Socialism.

It has a strong psychological interest. The hero is Robert Lester, a man of brilliant mind, energy, great wealth and fine education. He has a wife, very beautiful, but a victim of epilepsy. He plunges into socialist propaganda as a means of distracting his mind.

He settles in a large manufacturing town and throws himself heart and soul into the cause of the men, stirring up much strife between them and their employers.

Agnes Stanley, the handsome daughter of the schoolmaster, becomes his mistress. One day he kisses her, but she is married and falls deeply in love with him, although he gives her no encouragement.

On his part, he takes advantage of her infatuation by enlisting all her energies in his agitation. She grows more and more frank in the display of her feelings. One day he kisses her, but she is married and falls deeply in love with him, although he gives her no encouragement.

Lester's agitation fails. He goes away. Agnes learns that he has a wife, and the story ends with the young woman crushed and heartbroken.

All things die not: while the soul lives, love lives; the song may be new, the love, now plaintive, but it is deathless. Mary Johnston.

ARCHIE DENIES IT.

The Globe, in its parliamentary report, says: "Mr. Archie Campbell was also compelled to give the lie to an epithet of the House of Commons. The story is going the rounds of the Conservative press that last night when the House sang 'God save the Queen' Mr. Campbell remained in his seat and did not uncover. The member for Kent pronounced this yarn a downright falsehood from beginning to end."

CRONJE GIVES UP.

Son of the Victim of Paardeburg Surrenders Klerksdorp.

Another Raid on the Railway Ruined—Free State Raiders Very Daring.

London, June 15.—The War Office issues the following dispatch from Lord Roberts.

"Pretoria Residency, June 14.—10.40 p.m.—Klerksdorp surrendered on June 9 to an armed party sent on by Hunter.

"Kitchener reports that the Boers attacked a reconnaissance train early this morning a few miles north of Klerksdorp. He sent out mounted troops and drove off the enemy before they could do damage. One man was killed and 11 wounded, including two officers.

"A messenger from Klerksdorp reports that Cronje, who commanded there, determined to surrender as soon as he knew for certain that Pretoria was in our possession. His example has been copied by many in the neighborhood. The court house is now said to be full of arms."

By the peaceful occupation of Klerksdorp, the British have gained a strategic position of some importance, as the town is not only the terminus of another railway to Johannesburg, but is within easy reach of the Kruonstad-Vierfontein railroad.

The Cronje, who surrendered there, is a son of the famous Gen. Cronje, now a prisoner at St. Helena. The son was prominent during the siege of Mafeking.

Apart from the fact that Lord Roberts' despatch comes direct from Pretoria, showing the telegraph line is reopened, the only other point of interest is the fact that the Boers, whom Gen. Methuen was reported to have routed, have suddenly recuperated to attack a reconstruction train.

A despatch from Kimberley reports the capture of the well-known pugilist, "Jim" Holloway, who was an adjutant in the Boer army and who blew up the bridge at Fourteen Streams.

CAUSING MUCH TROUBLE.

London, June 15.—The optimism induced by Gen. Roberts' despatches in restoring communications with Pretoria has not altered the fact that the Free State raiders have taken over a thousand prisoners at Lindley and Rooval and retreated with them and their guns and that the raids may be repeated. Dewet's commandos have not been dispersed and whatever precautions may be taken there will be danger of another raid, since the railway cannot be absolutely protected by infantry battalions nor by artillery trained all along the line from Bloemfontein to Pretoria. The conquest of the northeastern section of the Free State has not yet been effected and operations by a series of columns from Heilbron, Lindley, Senekal and Ficksburg are rendered difficult by the transport problem.

Buller has cleared Laing's neck and Lyttelton has received the submission of the Wakkerboom district, but the Boer army has not been captured. It has retired with all its guns and supplies and will fight again in the mountainous district remote from the railway. Botha's army has also withdrawn from the positions which it held for two days against Roberts' forces east of Pretoria, but it has not been dispersed, nor have the British taken either guns or prisoners.

What is Going on in Baseball and Other Athletic Games.

News, Local and Telegraphic, Gathered From Reliable Sources.

From now until after July 4th all the ball games in the International League series will be in series of two. This was done to get in the schedule of 110 games, and one day, to-day, is lost in making the change.

GOING TO DETROIT SUNDAY.

Detroit Tribune.—Owing to the fact that the scheduled game between the Port Huron and Chatham teams cannot be played in the Tunnel City Sunday, it has been decided to transfer the game to this city, and a championship game in the minor league will be played at Burns park next Sunday afternoon. Play will commence at 3:30 o'clock. President Burns, of the local team, has been good enough to look at the matter in the right light, and will let the minors use the local grounds for the game. He considers the fact that minor leagues develop ball players for the big fellows and that they should be encouraged in every way. A big excursion party will come down from Port Huron to see the game Sunday.

AN AMATEUR SET-TO.

There was quite a large and decidedly enthusiastic gathering of spectators on Tecumseh Park last evening to witness the junior baseball game between the C. C. L.'s and the Bobs. Five innings were played before dusk and the Collegians proved themselves the victors, by a score of 9 to 3. The features of the game were a phenomenal capture in centre field by Garnet Brackin and the clever battery work of John Blythe and Harold Hankin, who had eleven strikeouts to their credit.

The teams were:
C. C. L.—Bat: 1b, Oldershaw 1, Anderson 3b, Miller 2b, Brackin m, Blythe p, Benson r, Rankin c.
Bobs—Elliott c, Papey m, Guy 1b, Primeau p, McColig 1, Feely 3b, Sumers 2, Poole 2b, Head r.

BEATEN BY HAMILTON.

Hamilton, June 13.—Pitcher Andy Thompson, who made a show of the Hamilton club almost every time he went against them last year got his bumps today. Only two hits had been made off him up to the fifth but in that inning Connell made a single, McAndrews a two bagger and Sheehan a single, scoring three runs. In the sixth, with one man out, Bradford, Doran, Connell, McAndrews and Broderick made singles and a steal and a bad throw by Klock to wind up gave Hamilton five more runs and error by McConnell and a hit by McAndrews added a run in the eighth. Bradford was in the box for Hamilton and the visitors hit him freely at first. Handiboe got a drive to right in the first inning and Strowger played to cut the man off at first and missed the ball entirely. Handiboe going to third, a base on balls to Connell and singles by Grimshaw and Neal followed, yet Chatham got only one run, a single by Doran. Connell opened the third inning with a beautiful drive to left field fence but in going to second base he neglected to touch first—a habit he has and about which the umpire had been warned in advance—and was given out. Handiboe then hit safely as did Connell but Handiboe tried to make two bases on Connell's hit and another magnificent throw from right cut him off. After that inning Chatham got only three hits and but one run, Klock scoring in the fifth on a base on balls, a sacrifice and two errors—the only errors Hamilton made in the game. Score:

FINE CRICKET WORK.

Chatham cricket team beat the Dresden eleven yesterday on Tecumseh Park by 12 runs and an inning. The batting of Horstead, Atkinson, Kenny and Bell, for Chatham, were features of the game. In the second innings Detroit put together 90 runs. Faithful 22, Ridgely 18, C. Calvert 12 and Tom Dale 11 were the only double figures, but the batting of the whole team was much better than in the first part of the match. In the initial innings Kenny carried off the bowling honors with six wickets for 12 runs. Stott also bowled well and got two wickets for 12 runs. In the second innings Aitken did some splendid bowling. His record was five wickets for 18 runs.

LOVE'S TRIUMPH.

A STORY OF LOVE AND WAR.

BY MARY J. HOLMES.

Author of "Lena Rivers," "Edna Browning,"

"Tempest and Sunshine," Etc., Etc.

"That, however, was this time the voice was decidedly authoritative in its tone, but what more Rose might have added was cut short by the widow, who dropped the 'griddle' with a bang, and turning sharply round replied:

"There's no Bridget here, and if it's you, you mean, I am Mrs. Joseph Simms."

Rose had good reason for remembering Mrs. Simms, and coloring crimson, she tried to apologize:

"I beg your pardon, I did not see your face. I imagined everybody kept a girl, and your back looked like—"

"Don't make the matter any worse," interrupted the widow, smiling in spite of herself at Rose's attempt to excuse her blunder. "You thought from my dress that I was a hired girl, and so I was in my younger days, and I don't give the war for it neither. Miss Simms, is she? She's had a good deal over it, I think. Here's the water, and filling a gourd shell she handed it to Rose, who, in her admiration of the (to her) novel drinking cup, came near forgetting Annie."

But Annie did not care, for the encounter between the widow and Rose found her laughing the first really hearty laugh she had enjoyed since George went away.

"It's just like this," Rose said, as she resumed her seat by Annie, listening intently while she told how kind the Widow Simms had been, coming every day to stay with her, and only leaving her at night because Annie insisted that she should.

"I like Mrs. Simms!" was Rose's vehement exclamation, "and I am glad Tom said what he did about Isaac, and I used to see our wood. I did not tell you, did I? And there's something real nice about your husband, too. I mean to call her in while I read it," and Rose ran out to the wood-shed, where the widow was now spitting a pine board for kindling, the newspaper she at first had used, having burned entirely up."

Rose's manner and voice were very complimentary as she said:

"Please, Mrs. Simms, come in and listen while I read what brother Tom has written about Mr. Graham, and your Isaac—something perfectly splendid. Tom has volunteered and gone to Washington, you know."

It was strange how those few words changed the widow's opinion of Rose. The fact that Thomas Carleton, whom the Rockland people fancied, was a Secessionist, had joined the Federal army, did much towards effecting this change, but not so much as the fact that he had actually noticed her boy, and spoken of him in a letter.

"Miss Mather isn't so bad after all," she thought, and striking her axe into the log, she followed Rose to the sitting-room, listening eagerly while she read the few sentences pertaining to George and Isaac. They were as follows:

"By the way, Will, I find there's a company here from Rockland. Fine appearing fellows, too, most of them are, and under good discipline. I am especially pleased with the second lieutenant. He's a magnificent looking man, and attracts attention wherever he goes."

"That's George, you know," and Rose, quite as much pleased as Annie herself, nodded towards the latter, whose pale cheek flushed with pride at hearing her husband thus spoken of by Rose Mather's brother.

"Yes, but Isaac," interrupted the widow. "Whereabouts does he come in?"

"Oh, pretty soon. I'll get to him. There's more about George yet," answered Rose, as she resumed her reading.

"I had the pleasure of talking to him yesterday, and found him very intelligent and sensible. If we had more men like him, success would be sure and speedy. He has about him a great deal of fun and humor, which so far exceeds keeping up the spirits of his company, and some of the poor fellows need it sadly. There's a young boy in the ranks, Isaac Simms, who interests him greatly."

"Oh-h!" and the widow drew a long sigh as Rose continued:

"I wonder he was ever suffered to come, he seems so young, so girl-like, and so gentle. Still he does a great deal of good, Lieut. Graham tells me, by visiting the sick and sharing with them any delicacy he happens to have. He's rather homesick, I imagine, for when I asked him if he had a mother, he chin quivered in a moment, and I saw the tears standing in his eyes. Poor boy, I can't account for the interest I feel in him. Heaven grant that if we come to open fight he may not fall a victim."

"Yes, yes, my boy, my darling boy," and burying her face in her hand, the widow sobbed aloud. "I thank you, Miss Mather, for reading me that," she said, "and I thank your brother for writing it. Tell him so, will you. Tell him I'm nothing but a cross, sour-grained, snappish old woman, but I have a mother's heart, and I bless him for speaking so kindly of my boy."

Rose's tears fell fast as she folded up the letter, and Annie's kept company with them. There was a bond of sympathy now between the three, as they talked together of the soldiers, Mrs. Simms and Annie devoting various methods by which they might be benefited, and Rose wishing, she too, could do something for them.

"But I can't," she said, despairingly. "I never did anybody any real good in all my life—only bothered them," and Rose sighed as she thought how useless and harmless was her present mode of life.

"You'll learn by and by," said the widow, in a tone unusually soft for her; then, as if the sock she held in her lap had suggested the idea, she continued, "Can you knit?"

Rose shook her head. "Nor your mother, neither?"

Again Rose shook her head, feeling quite ashamed that she should lack this accomplishment.

"Well," the widow went on, "I don't much use to learn now. 'Twould take a year to get one stocking done, but if when winter comes, that brother of yours wants socks and mittens, or the like of that, tell him I'll knit 'em for him."

"Oh, you are so kind!" cried Rose, thinking to herself, how she'd send some pineapple preserves, such as she had with dessert that day.

They grew to like each other very fast after this, and Rose staid until the little round table was arranged for tea, and rolled to Annie's bedside. There was no plate for Rose, the widow having deemed it, preposterous that she should stay, but the table looked so cozy, with its tiny black teapot, and its nicely buttered toast, that Rose invited herself, with such a pretty patronizing way, that the widow failed to see the condescension it implied. It did not, however, escape Annie's observation, but she could not feel angry with the little lady, touching her bone-handled knife as if she were afraid of it, and looking round in quest of a napkin she failed to find, for Widow Simms had banished napkins from the table as superfluous articles, which answered no earthly purpose, save the putting an extra four cents into the pocket of the washerwoman, Harry Baker's mother.

It was growing late, and the sunset shadows were already creeping into the hollow when Rose bade Annie good-bye, promising to come again ere long, and wondering as she took her homeward way, whence came the calm, quiet peace which made Annie Graham so happy, even though her husband was far away in the midst of danger and death. Rose had heard that Annie was a Christian, and so were many others whom she knew, but they were much like herself—good, well-meaning people, amiable, but let their husbands once join the army and they would make quite as much fuss as she, who did not profess to be anything. And then, for the first time in her life, Rose wished she, too, could learn from Annie's teacher, and so have something to sustain her in case her husband should go. But he wouldn't go—and, if he did, all the religion in the world could not make her resigned, and the tears sprang to Rose's eyes as she hurried up the handsome, walk to the piazza, where Will sat smoking his cigar in the hazy twilight. She told him where she had been, and then sitting upon his knee, told him of Annie, wishing she could be like her, and asking if he did not wish so, too.

Will made no direct reply. His thoughts were evidently elsewhere, and after a few minutes he said, hesitatingly:

"Would it break my darling's heart if I should join Tom at Washington?"

There was a cry of horror, and Rose hid her face in her husband's bosom. "Oh, Will, you shan't, you can't, you mustn't and won't! I didn't know you ever thought of such a cruel thing. Don't you love me any more? I'll try to do better, I certainly will!" and Rose nestled closer to him, holding his hands just as Annie Graham had once held her husband's.

"You could not be much better, neither could I love you better than I do now, Rose, darling," Mr. Mather replied, kissing her childish brow. "But Rose, be reasonable once, and listen while I tell you how, ever since the fall of Sumter, I have thought the time would come when I should be needed, resolving, too, that when it came, it should not find me a second Sarah Jane's cousin!"

"But Rose, be reasonable once, and listen while I tell you how, ever since the fall of Sumter, I have thought the time would come when I should be needed, resolving, too, that when it came, it should not find me a second Sarah Jane's cousin!"

"You could not be much better, neither could I love you better than I do now, Rose, darling," Mr. Mather replied, kissing her childish brow. "But Rose, be reasonable once, and listen while I tell you how, ever since the fall of Sumter, I have thought the time would come when I should be needed, resolving, too, that when it came, it should not find me a second Sarah Jane's cousin!"

A Contented WOMAN

isn't contented simply because she uses SURPRISE Soap; but the use of this soap contributes largely to her contentment. In proportion to its cost, it's the largest factor in household happiness.

It is pure, lasting and effective; it removes the dirt quickly and thoroughly without boiling or hard rubbing.

SURPRISE is a pure hard Soap.

The sudden lifting of Rose's head, and her look of perplexed inquiry, showed that, notwithstanding the fanciful ornament styled a diploma lying in her writing-desk, Sybil's pains had not the honor of being numbered among her acquaintances. But her heart was too full to ask an explanation, and her husband continued:

"Besides that, there was a mutual understanding between Tom and myself that if one went the other would, and he has gone—nobly laying aside all the party prejudice which for a time influenced his conduct. Our country needs more men."

"Yes, yes," gasped Rose; "but more have gone. There's scarcely a boy left in town, and it's just as everywhere."

Mr. Mather smiled as he replied: "I know the boys have gone—boys whose fair, beardless faces should put to shame a strong, full-grown man like me. And another class, too, have gone, our laboring young men, leaving behind them poverty and little helpless children, whereas, I have nothing of that kind for an excuse."

"Oh, I wish I had a dozen children, if that would keep you," cried Rose, the insane idea flashing upon her that she would at once adopt a score or more of them, and thus be helping in the maddening hollow that afternoon.

Mr. Mather smiled and continued: "Suppose you try and accustom yourself to the idea of living a while without me. I shall not die until my appointed time, and shall undoubtedly come back again. Don't you see?"

"No, Rose didn't. Her heart was too full of pain to see anything but her own life as a woman, and she was sobbing passionately, one moment accusing her husband of not loving her as he used to, and the next begging of him to abandon his wild project."

Mr. Mather was not at all deterred by the idea of living a while without me. I shall not die until my appointed time, and shall undoubtedly come back again. Don't you see?"

FATHER O'LEARY

Will Get the Victoria Cross for Bravery at Paardberg.

He is One of the Champions of the First Canadian Contingent.

The announcement is made that the Victoria cross is to be awarded to Fr. P. M. O'Leary, the Roman Catholic chaplain with the first Canadian contingent in South Africa, and to a French-Canadian named Fiset, a surgeon, for conspicuous bravery on the field of battle during the engagements in which the Canadians participated before the capitulation of the Orange Free State capital.

Fr. O'Leary's untiring devotion to duty and his great bravery have earned him the admiration of his battalion. Unflinching at the post of danger, his signal service at the front and in the firing line has won for him the distinction of being recommended for the award of distinguished valor. In a recent letter to his brother, James M. O'Leary, of Ottawa, he writes that the stirring scenes with the Canadians on the battlefield.

"We had marched the preceding night 23 miles, some say 25, good miles, a forced march, heading off Cronje. Oh, but that beautiful moonlight night, how long! Ere we were allowed to throw ourselves on the velvet to snatch an hour's sleep, long had our one biscuit been disposed of, as also our ration of water, and mind you, we had been marching and countermarching for days.

"At daybreak we again struck the hateful Modder river. We had just settled down for a rest when the order was passed along to be up and go forward. Away in the distance the heavy booming of guns told us the battle was on. Hand in hand with the brave Gordons and the ill-fated Black Watch, we dashed into the swollen river, up to our necks in water, though it ran like a mill race, carrying many a poor fellow off his feet. Then a scramble up the steep bank, a hasty formation, and we were off again. In less than five minutes we had occupied the position assigned us.

"The plunge in the river had, I must say, revived us, but lying on the burning sun in our wet clothes under a terrific fire soon told on us. So exhausted were we that many slept, myself among the number, on that bloody hillside, while bullets did their deadly work around us. Oh, that day was a long one.

"We occasionally shifted our position, always drawing nearer and nearer the enemy's lines until by evening the welcome order was given to charge. Then what a scene! Never, never shall I forget it. We arose with a bound and dashed forward, finding the air with a genuine Canadian cheer, the first heard on the continent of darkest Africa. The boys were no longer men; tigers they might be called. Already the top of the regiment on the other bank of the river had gone down decimated under the terrible fire. We felt that the day could be saved by us, and we saved it.

"But what was your poor wayward brother doing all this time? He best know you will add me again for disregarding your injunction to take care of myself. Really, I had the intention of so doing, but you have no idea of the fascination that seizes upon one in the id delirium of battle. For a time I lay behind a friendly ant hill, beside a good-hearted Black Watch, who had made room for me. How I gazed there I shall never know, for it was away from the front line, but retire I would not account of the effect it might produce on the men.

"Quietly we chatted together until the fire became hotter and hotter, and when it became evident that the ant hill could no longer shelter us both, with a 'here goes,' I made a dash, still forward, toward another shelter. I fancy I still hear his warning ringing in my ears: 'For God's sake be low; it's terrible.' Just then a terrible discharge rent the air, but I was safe. Next morning at daybreak I was charged to pass the ant hill there lay my poor comrade, just as I had left him; but no, his side was torn into three gaping wounds. Poor boy, he received what had been intended for me."

FACE &amp; HEAD COVERED WITH SCALES

Shed a Tablespoonful at Night. Hair Full of White Scales. Offer $100 for Cure. Friend Suggests CUTICURA REMEDIES. Tried Them and is Cured.

Last summer I had company—a man and his wife. The man's hands and face had dry, scaly scales on them, and his head was covered with the same, his hair being full of those white scales or scales. His wife said, "Some mornings she would find a tablespoonful or more of them in the bed." I asked him what ailed him, and he replied, "that he did not know." "Why don't you cure yourself?" "I would give a hundred dollars to be cured." As he was living in Bristol, Va., I did not see him for some time after, and then he fairly about me: "I am cured. CUTICURA has done it. The Lord God of Israel has done it. I have paid out a lot of money, but don't get cured." He said, "Well, I told him to get the CUTICURA remedies and he would be cured. ## CALL TARTE HOME

An English Paper's Advice to Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The Minister of Public Works' Speeches in Paris Unfavorably Commented Upon.

London, June 15.—The St. James' Gazette, under "Notes of the Empire," says that after ex-Premier Schreiner, of Cape Colony, the figure of the week in colonial circles has been Hon. J. I. Tarte, the Canadian Minister of Public Works, now sojourning at Paris in connection with the great Exposition, and adds: "It is really difficult to know what to make of this gentleman; but we are sure Sir Wilfrid Laurier would be well advised if he were to call his errand colleague to Ottawa, where his speeches would give less offence and give rise to fewer misconceptions than they do in Paris." The Gazette attacks Mr. Tarte for his recent utterances, which it alleges are unbecoming to a minister of a British colony. For instance, his prophecy that the French element will some day form a majority in the Canadian Confederation; his assertion that the French tricolor now floats over three million Frenchmen in Canada, and his appeal to France to never lose sight of French Canada. English journals generally have passed the speeches by as regrettable outbursts of Gallic temperament.

The Truth About Straw Hats

We usually make a price and stick to it; but if a price is, for any reason, lowered its still one price,—one price to everybody.

Time gains the bulk of the straw hat trade and we expect to get the bulk of it.

How can it be otherwise when we went this year straight to the maker in New York and can save you every intermediate profit besides the discounts we got by paying cash.

We were never able to do as well and the price, style and quality can't be matched.

Each One is a Winner

THREE LINES of Straw Hats, regularly worth 75c, at..... 50 cts.

FIVE LINES of Straw Hats, regularly worth $1.00, at..... 75 cts.

SIX LINES of Straw Hats, regularly worth $1.25 and $1.50..... $1.00

FOUR LINES of Straw Hats, regularly worth $2.00, at..... $1.50

There's eighteen lines for you and four prices,—choice enough in all conscience. For sure this bears out our previously printed statement that we were in position to save you twenty-five per cent. Figure it out for yourself and then come to your new store and see how much more than so it is.
