CONTROL ALL GRAIN

Liberal Party in Norway to Handle All Wheat

By Special Wire to the Courier. Christiania, Oct. 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The return to the legislature of a majority of the supporters of Premier Gunnar Knudsen and the popular support of the present Liberal policy, points to a probable fulfilment of one of the cardinal proposals of the Liberal program—a government monopoly of the grain industry. Advocates of this measure are certain it is the only way to avert another emergency similar to the grain shortage at the beginning of the war.

To handle the proposed grain monopoly, the appointment of 1,200 special officials is contemplated at an expense of about $1,000,000 a year. It is estimated that capital of at least $20,000,000 will be needed. Conservative party leaders favor a protective tariff, which would encourage home agriculture and thus, they believe, assure the necessary supply of grain. But this proposal, which it is estimated would increase the acreage of cultivated land and make the country less dependent on imports, is not supported by the voters in the recent election.

Don't Want High Wheat

By Special Wire to the Courier. Fort William, Ont., Nov. 12.—A combined meeting of the Grain Exchange, the Board of Trade and the citizens generally sanctioned a memorial to Sir Robert Borden, expressing their opposition to free wheat, and declaring the removal of the duty on wheat would be a serious blow to Canadian commerce. The memorial declares the agitation for free wheat is being "helped" and "aided" by United States authorities and Minneapolis and Duluth interests and expresses the opinion that the establishment of free wheat would be a "grievous injury" to Canadian interests.

Should Place More in Canada

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, Nov. 12.—Sir Leo C. Money, the famous economist does not regard the problem of America as insoluble. He points out that British exports, if shipping freights and interest on foreign securities are included, still show an annual surplus over imports of £25,000,000 apart from government imports of war material. He also contends that the loan to the allies, bearing interest, will ultimately tend to diminish the adverse balance of trade created by the government imports.

ITALY IN

By Special Wire to the Courier. MILAN, Nov. 12, via Paris.—An agreement was reached at a meeting of the Italian cabinet last night, according to a telegram received by the Secolo from Rome, regarding the course Italy should take in the Balkan expedition. The ministers recognized it was an urgent question, the despatch adds, and the number of men Italy will send to the Balkans shortly will be made known.

Another Steamer Gone

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, Nov. 12.—The British Steamship Rhineland has been sunk. Up to the present, only one survivor has been landed. The Rhineland was of 1,501 tons gross and was built in 1903. She was 254 feet long, 35 feet beam and 21 feet deep. She was owned in Liverpool by the Liverpool and Hamburg steamship company.

Big Parade in Winnipeg

By Special Wire to the Courier. Winnipeg, Nov. 12.—Seven thousand soldiers here in training, most of them recently arrived in winter quarters from Sewell camp, paraded here this afternoon at 2.30 for review by Col. Rutan, D.O.C., with whom the reviewing stand at the corner of Portage Avenue and Main street were Sir Douglas Cameron, Premier Norris and Mayor Waugh. Wounded veterans returned from the front led the parade in automobiles. Twenty thousand school children waved flags along the route.

Missing Articles

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, Nov. 12 in Montreal Gazette)—A notification from the War Office has been received by the Canadian agents-general to the effect that the relatives of fallen Canadian officers should not hesitate to complain through official channels if valuable articles are missing from their kits, when returned. There have been several prosecutions here for thefts by railway employees and others, from officers' kits while in transit, and it is feared that where it is known that a kit is going overseas, the thieves may fear detection less than where the kit will be discovered on delivery in England.

HERE IS AN INTERESTING PICTURE OF ARMY LIFE IN THE FRENCH TRENCHES

WITH THE FRENCH IN THE TRENCHES FROM THE SPHERE. LONDON. The above is a typical scene in the trenches on the French battle line. It is a rather picturesque group. The trenches all along the line are protected from the enemy fire by thousands of sandbags stacked up high. In the foreground will be noted a chaplain sharing the hardships of trench life with the soldiers.

BRANTFORD MAKES RECORDS BEFORE LICENSE BOARD

No Deputations, and all Licensees at This Morning's Session Constituted Unique Record Said Chairman Flavelle; Gave Talk to Hotel-keepers.

The Ontario License Board paid their first visit to Brantford to-day and the event passed off with a quietness and order which they have not experienced in any other place. The whole event constitutes a double record. In the first place they were not waited upon by any deputations and in the second place all the licensees were in attendance. AN EARLY INSPECTION. The members who arrived last night made a very early morning inspection of the hotels in this district. Accompanied by License Inspector Eacrett, Messrs. Flavelle and Smith visited the Brantford hotels, and in Paris Inspector K'ripattch showed Mr. Bane and Mr. Ayers around.

AT THE COURT HOUSE

At ten o'clock the commissioners held a sitting at the Court House. All the licensees were present, and as there were no deputations, the affair was very quiet, the commission arising a little after 10.30. Mayor Spence on behalf of the city welcomed the board, congratulating them upon their good work and inviting them to see the two historic places in Brantford, Mohawk Church and the Bell Homestead, if time allowed them. Mr. Brewster also spoke a few words of welcome and commended the excellent record of local hotel-keepers and the efficient work of Inspector Eacrett.

Mr. Flavelle in replying thanked the mayor for his kind reception, and stated that the board would certainly take in the proposed trip if it could. He was, said Mr. Flavelle, greatly and favorably impressed with Brantford. It was his first visit here in any capacity. Mr. Eacrett had been held up to the board as one of the best inspectors in the province, and he felt sure he would continue the good work. Chairman Flavelle then gave an address to the assembled licensees, in which he enumerated certain facts for their consideration. He stated that those ideas of keeping the law abundant in certain parts of the province. The commission had ample powers given them to deal with any violations. It could and would deal especially severely with those it deemed guilty even although evidence enough to convict before a magistrate could not be obtained. This board, said the chairman had nothing against hotelkeepers. Its aim

CABINET ON SINKING OF S.S. ANCONA

By Special Wire to the Courier. Washington, Nov. 12.—President Wilson and the cabinet met to-day for the first time since last July, when the German submarine question was at the head of its most serious stages. The sinking of the Italian liner Ancona was the most important foreign question before the cabinet to-day, but no definite action was expected until full official details were at hand.

It was stated at the White House, however, that the cabinet meeting to-day was called only because the president wanted to get in touch with his official advisers before the opening of congress to discuss his annual message and legislation affecting their departments. From now on cabinet meetings will be held regularly twice a week.

Washington, Nov. 12.—State department officials were perplexed to-day over the unexplained delay in getting definite official information on the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona with probable loss of America passengers. No dispatches had reached the department early to-day, although Secretary Lansing had confidently expected to get word from Rome, Marseilles and other points near the scene of the disaster. All information so far has been fragmentary.

A consular official has been ordered to Tunis from a nearby post on the assumption that Consul Young is not there, and on the official's arrival he is expected to get dispatches through as quickly as possible. Meanwhile Ambassador Page at Rome is expected to send some definite official details. His official dispatches so far make no reference to the circumstances of the sinking of the liner, the question of warning, the nationality of the submarine and other details which are to be cleared up as promptly as possible by the taking of testimony of survivors.

Opera Singer Divorced

Paris, Nov. 12.—Eugene Plumon, a Paris lawyer, at present attached to the British expeditionary forces as an interpreter, has been granted a divorce from Maggie Teyte, the British opera singer, by the Civil Tribunal of Seine.

Nobel Prize to German

London, Nov. 12.—The Nobel prize for physics for 1914, says a Reuter despatch from Stockholm, has been awarded to Professor Max Von Laue, of Frankfurt-on-Main for his discovery of the diffraction of rays in crystals. The chemistry prize for the same year has been awarded to Professor Theodore William Richards of Harvard University for fixing the atomic units of chemical elements. The prizes for 1915 will be awarded to-day.

ATHENS RECEIVES WITH CALMNESS DISSOLUTION OF GREEK COMMONS

Greek Officials Continue to Assert Her Future Actions Depend on Military and Not Political Turns—When Assured Allies Will Win, She Will Help.

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, Nov. 12.—All doubts as to what road Greece would choose out of the middle caused by the divergent views of her political leaders and as to how the policies of the Skouloudis cabinet could be rendered compatible with the opinions of the adverse majority in the chamber, to-day [were dispelled by a public dissolution of the chamber of deputies. Publication of the decree, apparently was received in Athens with calm, despite the fact that all elements hoped to avoid elections at the present difficult moment. The Greek Government, it appears, considered dissolution the only possible means of securing for itself a full and unrestricted liberty of action. Greek officials in London and at other points, continue to assert that Greece's future actions depend solely upon military and not political considerations, so soon as Greece is convinced beyond doubt that the Allies have produced enough troops to make possible a successful offensive against Bulgaria and to remove the danger with which Greece would be confronted if she entered the war inadequately assisted. Greece will, so say her representatives in Europe, immediately range herself on the side of the allies and render all the military co-operation of which she is capable.

THIS AMUSING GERMAN AUTHORITY

Says That Pretty Soon Kaisers Will Dance on England's Grave. By Special Wire to the Courier. Berne, Nov. 12.—(Despatch to The London Morning Post.) An important personage who has just returned from Berlin assures me that the burden of all conversation at Wilhelmstrasse is that peace must be signed in London. A German statesman whose name I am not free to divulge, told my informant that before long Greece and Roumania will be fighting side by side with Germany and before six months are over even England's allies will have had enough of the war and will have been detached by Germany from their allegiance. So long as England subsidizes her allies they will be loyal to her, but a time will come—so the Germans reckon—when she cannot longer subsidize them. "It will not be long," added this German statesman, "before we will dance over the grave of England. Even now it is her colonies, which are bolstering her up, and they cannot go on doing this for ever. Before six months are over England will suffer a debacle."

Championship Day

By Special Wire to the Courier. New York, Nov. 12.—This is championship day at the horse show. Winners of many of the preliminary events contested for the championship in a number of classes, including ponies under saddle and in harness, some of them ridden or driven by children; docked saddle horses, single roadsters, pairs of roadsters, single and pairs of harness horses and hunters.

Basis of Peace

By Special Wire to the Courier. Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 12.—Via Paris.—The committee which is meeting here to organize a congress to study and determine basis of durable peace announces that it is receiving considerable support from neutral countries. It is stated that expressions of interest have been received from former President Taft and from President Lowell of Harvard. A delegation is expected from America to attend the congress which will open December 14.

BULGARS DEFEATED

French Inflicted Severe Beating on Them Near Veles.

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, Nov. 12.—A Reuter despatch from Athens says a Saloniki telegram to The Paris states that the French have inflicted a severe defeat on the Bulgarians near Veles and that the fall of that town is considered imminent.

Veles is about 27 miles southwest of Uskub, on the railroad to Saloniki. A successful French cavalry raid, which reached the environs of the city led to an erroneous report that it had been captured on Wednesday. GERMAN OFFICIAL.

Berlin Nov. 12 (By wireless to Sayville).—Pursuit of the Serbian army in a southerly direction continues, according to the German official report issued to-day. The advance of the Germans in the Razina valley, southwest of Krusevac has reached the town of Kupci. Further eastward Ribaire and Ribarske Banya have been reached. Yesterday more than 1,700 Serbians were taken prisoner and 11 cannons were captured.

The statement adds that the first mountain ridge south of Kralievo has been crossed.

ALEXANDRA SCHOOL CHILDREN ATTENTION! Watch for to-morrow's paper with your picture, and full particulars.

Serbs Still Holding Out

By Special Wire to the Courier. Saloniki, Nov. 10, via Paris, Nov. 12.—Five thousand Serbians still are holding 15,000 Bulgarians at bay between Isvor and Abdi Pasha Hahn, in the Babuna defile, but the Serbs now control the heights of Kosjic and occupy the whole line of mountains, making in the opinion of military men here the withdrawal of the Bulgarians only a question of time.

The people who left Monastir in a panic at the approach of the invaders are now returning. Prilep and Monastir are resuming their normal appearance. Suffering in the interior of Serbia is said to be great owing to the lack of food and shelter. Thousands of refugees from the north have been driven out by the advancing Austro-Germans.

CITIZENSHIP RIGHTS OF U. S. WOMEN

By Special Wire to the Courier. Washington, Nov. 12.—Citizenship rights of American women, who marry foreigners, but who continue to live in the United States, was today before the Supreme Court for decision. Emphasis was laid on the importance of the case because of the war.

Mrs. Ethel C. MacKenzie, of California, wife of Gordon MacKenzie, a British subject, who has resided in California ever since his marriage, was attacking, through attorneys, the attempt to make applicable to her the expatriation act passed by Congress in 1907. Election officials in San Francisco refused to permit Mrs. MacKenzie to register on the ground that she had become a British subject by reason of her marriage. She resorted to the state courts for writs to compel the officials to permit her to register, claiming that the act of congress did not apply to women remaining in this country, and if it did it was unconstitutional. She was denied the writs and appealed to the Supreme Court.

Women of Montclair, N. J., propose to establish civic club-rooms to replace saloons. The Detroit School Board inspector suggests they appoint a business manager.

WITH THE SOLDIERS

The Battery Boys about 110 in number had their photographs taken on the steps of the Free Library this morning, about 80 of the boys leave on Monday.

Things are daily becoming more systematic at the Armories. The fatigue parties for the different companies have been appointed and are putting everything in first-class order.

The 84th will attend service at Grace church on Sunday morning. The Roman Catholics will parade at nine o'clock and the Protestants at 9.30.

Seven new men were signed up yesterday, all with the 8th Dufferin Rifles.

Thomas Gleason, Canadian, age 20, single, butcher, 41 Bridge St.

Stewart Wright, Canadian, age 24, single, canner, Scotland, Ont.

David Walker, Canadian, age 34, married, driver, 27 Grey St.

John William Rowe, English, age 28, laborer, married, 115 William St.

Herbert George Marshall, English, age 21, married, bricksetter, 93 Richardson street.

Wilfrid Emery, Canadian, age 18, machinist, single, 41 Greenway St.

John B. Crooke, English, age 24, married, bookkeeper, 42 Jarvis St.

WITH THE 84TH.

Officers next for duty Nov. 12th: Captain of the day, Capt. G. D. Lee.

Subaltern of the day, Lieut. B. N. Barrett.

A lecture will be held at 9 a.m. in the Y. M. C. A. lecture hall for the officers of the battalion.

A class in signalling for all officers of the Battalion will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday Oct. 13th, in the Y. M. C. A. lecture hall.

The Battalion, with brass band, will parade as strong as possible at 2 p.m. for a route march.

Private H. A. Bartlett, attached to the Paymasters' Staff, and enrolled in D. Company was admitted to hospital this date suffering from throat trouble, not serious, probable attack of quincy.

The Battalion held a general kit inspection to-day, wherein every man was fitted out with his proper kit, some of the men having lost some of their equipment and become mixed in the trek from Niagara.

The messing arrangements under management of Quartermaster Sergeant Tombs, at Dalhousie St. building, are now under way in something like the old shape. The white enamel cups and plates have arrived, the tables are rapidly lining up and covered with enamelled cloth, and each man as he parades for meals is supplied with clean cup and plate and eats his meal in comfort at the large messing tables.

The food is first class and variable with porridge, bacon, bread and butter, and jam, with either tea or coffee for breakfast; roast beef, mashed or whole potatoes, with vegetables (cabbage or turnips) and vegetable soup for dinner; shepherd's pie, stew, bread and butter and jam with tea for supper.

A Canteen for the men is rapidly nearing completion in Dalhousie St. building, and tables will be arranged for the men where they can gather in the evenings.

A Sergeants Mess will soon be established in the old Y. M. C. A. building, and a meeting was held in the Sergt.-Major's office to make the necessary arrangements. Company Quartermaster Sergeant Tippler of C. Company was elected secretary-treasurer for the Mess.

A muster roll of the entire half-battalion and Headquarters Staff will be held in the Armories to-morrow, which is for the purpose of seeing that every man is accounted for on the payrolls of the Battalion, which important work is being pushed along vigorously by the Paymaster, Capt. F. H. Stewart, as it is his ambition that the men receive their pay at the proper time. The long trek from Niagara camp and the subsequent unsettled state at the Armories must not hamper the men, although the hindrance to the work on this account is naturally serious. The Paymaster and his Sergeant, Paymaster Sergt. J. R. Miller will go to Oshawa this week end to take care of the financial part of the half-battalion stationed at that town under the command of Major J. J. Wright.

The Commanding Officer, Lieut.-Col. W. T. Stewart returned to Brantford this p.m.

SENDING PARCELS TO SOLDIERS

Post Office Department, Ottawa, Canada, Nov. 12.

The public is urged to exercise every care in packing parcels for the troops, as careful packing is absolutely essential to ensure delivery of the parcels in good order.

Parcels sent abroad require a higher standard of packing than is necessary in the Canadian Parcel Post, and this applies with even greater force to parcels for the troops. Those which are inadequately packed run great risk of damage or loss of contents.

Thin cardboard boxes, such as shoe boxes, and thin wooden boxes, should not be used; nor does a single sheet of ordinary brown paper afford sufficient protection. The following forms of packing are recommended:

1. Strong double cardboard boxes, preferably those made of corrugated cardboard, and having lids which completely enclose the sides of the boxes.
2. Strong wooden boxes.
3. Several folds of stout packing paper.
4. Additional security is afforded by an outer covering of linen, calico or canvas, which should be securely sewn up.

The address of the parcel should be written in ink on the cover, preferably in two places.

The address of the sender of the parcel should also be stated in order that it may be returned if undeliverable. The contents of the parcel should be stated in writing on the cover.

In the case of parcels sent to the Mediterranean Force, they should be very strongly packed. They should be as nearly round as possible, and well padded with shavings, crumpled paper, or similar protective material. The outer covering should consist of strong linen, calico, or canvas, and should be securely sewn up. The use of wooden or metal boxes with square corners is undesirable, as parcels so packed are liable to injure other parcels in transit. No perishable articles should be sent, and anything likely to become soft or sticky, such as chocolates, should be enclosed in tins. Parcels merely wrapped in paper or packed in thin cardboard boxes, such as shoe boxes, cannot be accepted.

His uncle Ferdinand, whose marriage brought him the Throne of Portugal, was a youngest son. So was King Leopold I. of Belgium and our own Prince Consort. All these, thanks to their wives, attained a higher position than their elder brothers.

Universal Finger Printing.

In a recent letter to the New York Sun, Waldemar Kaempffert, formerly managing editor of the Scientific American, urges that the finger-print identification system be universally adopted. In the United States army, every private records his finger print when he enlists, and he is beginning to require thumb marks as well as signatures to validate checks. Painters have seriously proposed to thumb-mark their canvases. The time will come, says Mr. Kaempffert, when finger prints will safeguard every life-insurance policy and every accident policy, and every applicant for a civil service position will sign his examination papers in that way, as well as with his written name. The finger print in the greatest aid to the identification of criminals ever devised. The late Dr. Alphonse Bertillon declared that society needed nothing short of "a dactyloscopic card catalogue of the human race." Police Inspector Faurot, a disciple of Bertillon, recommends that finger prints of children be recorded so that the children can be identified if they get lost.

Ambassador Page Takes Up the Ancona Sinking With Italian Officials

A Report Now Says About 200 Were Lost When Boat Was Sunk--Nothing Official Regarding Incident Received Either at Berlin or Vienna.

Rome, Nov. 11, via Paris, Nov. 12.—The United States Ambassador, Mr. Page, called at the Foreign Office today and had a long talk with Baron Sonnino. The nature of the conference is unknown, but it is assumed that the sinking of the Ancona was discussed informally. The Italian government has ordered a rigid investigation of the disaster. The inquiry is proceeding under the direction of the Italian consul at Tunis assisted by Italian naval officers.

A special effort will be made to determine all facts, whether warning was given and whether an opportunity was afforded the passengers to escape. It is expected here this investigation will have a bearing on any diplomatic representations the United States may make in behalf of American passengers on board the steamer.

Only 225 passengers and crew of the steamer Ancona were saved out of a total of 428 on board, says a despatch from Tunis to The Corriere Della Sera. Two boats have arrived at Tunis the despatch said, one with 37 survivors and the other with 27. Passengers declared the steamer was shelled for an hour and a half by the submarine which was flying the Austrian flag when the torpedo struck the Ancona. The under-water craft had two white turrets and was armed with four guns.

An earlier despatch from Naples announced the arrival at Cape Bon, Tunis, of a boat containing 27 survivors of the Ancona. Previous despatches placed the number of passengers on the Ancona at 482, and the crew had been estimated at from 60 to 160.

NOTHING OFFICIAL YET. Berlin, via London, Nov. 12.—The Ancona case as yet belongs to the category of submarine incidents regarding which German naval circles have no news except that which comes from hostile forces. Even the semi-official announcement made yesterday that the Ancona was sunk while trying to escape was derived from accounts sent out by the Havas and Stefani News agencies.

Nothing has been published here from the Austrian side and it was stated at the Admiralty that so far as known the Austrian Government has received no report of the incident.

BRITAIN ASKS VARSITY TO SEND HER OFFICERS

Two C.O.T.C. Men Have Applied Already, and Big List is Anticipated.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—A call has been received by the University of Toronto from the British War Office for young men, who will be given commissions in British regiments. President Falconer and Col. W. R. Lang have been asked to send the names of young men, attending the university, who in their opinion, are likely to make good leaders. On the strength of the recommendations of the War Office will pay the transportation of the men to England, will train them, if they are not already qualified and give them direct commissions in British regiments.

The branch of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, located at the university, will be able to supply a number of men in accordance with the request of the War Office. While it is not essential that the men recommended for British commissions should have passed through the C. O. T. C., members of this corps will be ready to take commissions.

Up to the present, however, there has been a hanging back of university men, for the reason that the majority of them prefer to go to the front with Canadian units. As a matter of fact, so far two men are all that have applied, although Col. Lang has been told that many more applications will be filed during the next few days, and the colonel hopes to be able to send quite a list of names in his first recommendation at the end of the week.

"During the South African War, and again in this war, the British military authorities have recognized that university students are among the best type of men for officers," said Col. Lang. "It doesn't necessarily mean that the men we recommend must have taken their certificates in the C. O. T. C. Their training will be undertaken in Britain if they have not already qualified to take commissions."

An illiterate man who appeared at the Haddington Burgh Police Court, who offered to enlist if he were left off, was later rejected by the recruiting authorities because he was unable to read or write. The Burgh Procurator-Fiscal wrote to Lord Kitchener on the subject, and has been informed that it is now proposed to relax the regulations on this subject, so far as it concerns enlistment for the duration of the war, in the case of infantry and certain other branches of the army in which a standard of literacy is not essential, and that steps are being taken to issue the necessary orders to all recruiting officers.

Old World Notes

An interesting revival of ancient and almost obsolete industries in the outlying villages of England has been caused by the war. The case of the basket-makers in Derby and Leicestershire is typical. For hundreds of years there have been cane and wicker workers in the town of Castle Donington, though two or three decades ago they had gradually migrated to larger and more lucrative centres. With the demand for war shells a year ago came also a demand for shell baskets or protective cases. At first Castle Donington could not cope with the demand. Then gradually the old workers, many of whom had been absent for thirty years, returned to the old trade they had learnt, and left in their youth. Never before have they enjoyed such high wages. The making of seven or eight cases a day—a good average—yields about $22 weekly. Shrapnel cases, which are square and more finely finished, require specially expert craftsmen. A skilled man will make three or four a day and so earn $4 daily. An 18-pounder shell case takes two hours to complete, and working twelve hours a day the best craftsmen obtain easily $35 a week.

Sardines and Sauces are bracketed for first place, with ham a close third, in the gastronomic favor of convalescent Tommies at St. Bartholomew's Hospital. "However willing he may be to put up with what he can get in the trenches, said the sister in charge of a military ward, the other day, "Tommy convalescent in hospital has very decided likes and dislikes. He is very fond of all kinds of sweets, but jams are a drug on the market. The most striking peculiarity of Tommy's tastes is his dislike of meat. For dinner one day there was a very nice Irish stew. On every plate all the fat was left. Only the central lean part of the chops was eaten."

Salvation Army Chaplains will not be attached to the forces abroad according to recent decision of the War Office. Complaint was recently made on this point in the House of Lords by Earl Grey. Lord Newton, in reply, said the War Office wished to give the Salvation Army every facility, but there were not more than 13,000 Salvationists in the ranks, and they were so scattered that it would be difficult for a chaplain to minister to them. He added that our French Allies might be disconcerted by the introduction of persons with high-sounding titles "who turned out on investigation to be not military officers and were possibly of the opposite sex."

The cultivation of vegetables in the production of vegetables is succeeding at Croyden. Two hundred plots chiefly of twelve rods each, are now supplying many working class households with nourishing vegetables. The scheme is controlled by a society which lends all land they can get on loan, including gardens of unlet houses.

Patriotic students who have enlisted from the secondary schools of Scotland are not to be losers on that account. The Scottish Education Department is now arranging a plan whereby all such students will be granted their certificates on application being supported by their local school authorities.

WOUNDED AT FRONT.

The casualty list sent out from Ottawa to-day contains the following: "Wounded and suffering from shock—Lieut. Harry Wilson Scruton, 1841 Dundas St., Toronto." This refers to a nephew of Mr. A. Scruton of Terrace Hill. The unfortunate, officer, previous to going to the front last June with a draft from the 34th regiment of Guelph, was a foreman in the W. G. and K. Co., of Berlin. He was later transferred to the Princess Pats; still later he was transferred to the First Battalion, owing to the great depletion in the ranks of the Pats. It is interesting to note that his twin brother, Lieut. Frank D. Scruton of Winnipeg, is a member of the 78th Battalion. Previous to joining this regiment he was assistant sales manager of the Ashdown Co., of Winnipeg.

Shultis, gave them a splendid reception, which was much appreciated. The cheering was most marked on both sides. Many of the Italians carried union jacks and they also handed out small Italian flags. As the train moved out the Brantford soldiers ran alongside, waving their hats and the boys of sunny Italy yelled back with delight.

AT THE BRANT.

Last night the boys of the 32nd Battery, a number of whom are leaving the city shortly were treated to an exceptionally clever and interesting programme of high-class vaudeville and select pictures, through the kindness and generosity of the genial manager, Mr. E. Moule. The vaudeville consisted of The Flying Baldwins, in a sensational aerial novelty production. Some of the feats staged by these two young ladies were really marvellous. The five Mexican entertainers in their quaint costumes and old Mexican songs and dances were heartily applauded by the large audience. The Gardner Trio was also present and were much enjoyed. In addition to this numerous select photo plays were offered as well as the third episode of the Goddess, the story of which is running in The Courier and needs no comment. The pictures were concluded with a three-part photo play, "Love, Snow and Ice," which portrayed the elopement of a young couple, who were followed by the father of the young lady and his chase of the husband through the snow-capped peaks of a distant northern land. A patriotic song by Mr. I. T. Whittaker was also much enjoyed.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL

AT GREENWICH. The Seaman's Hospital at Greenwich, which was founded 88 years ago on board the line of battleship "Dreadnought" and in 1870 transferred to shore quarters, has done excellent work in caring for wounded and disabled sailors of the Merchant Marine. The war has thrown great additional responsibilities upon the hospital and as the institution is dependent for its upkeep almost entirely on voluntary subscriptions and donations the members of the Hospital Committee are now making a special appeal for funds which has been given publicity in the Canadian newspapers. We have agreed to accept subscriptions at our branches and we shall be glad if you will do what you can to facilitate the arrangement, giving an acknowledgement to the donor when such is required, and the estimated amounts as received to Toronto branch, with name of subscriber, for credit of the Seaman's Hospital at Greenwich.

Eng. Lad as Russian Scout.

Russia is singing the praises of a young Englishman serving in the Tsar's army, who has risen from the ranks and won great distinction. Upon the outbreak of the war young John Wilton, then a frail boy of 17, secured by special permission of the Tsar the right to serve in the ranks of one of the famous regiments of the Petrograd Guards. Early in October he joined his regiment at the front, and became one of the mounted scouts. For six months he took part in practically every battle in which the famous corps was engaged, and these battles have been practically continuous. He was with the party of scouts which penetrated to the nearest point to Grochow, and was at one time within eight miles of the city.

His activities came repeatedly to the attention of the commanding officer of his regiment, and at the end of five months he was in command of the mounted scouts of the regiment, and since becoming an officer has twice been recommended for decorations for service in the field.

Ambitious Wild Geese.

Only one native species of wild geese breed well in captivity. That is the Canada goose, which, under suitable conditions, can be bred as easily as the barnyard varieties. The New York Zoological Park has reared several Canada geese every year, until its flock now numbers more than thirty. The usual number of pair-nestled last spring, but, according to the Zoological Society Bulletin, one curiously acquisitive and equally pugnacious pair, apparently dissatisfied with their own brood of five, decided to increase it. By combined browbeating and persuasion, they succeeded in abducting the goslings of other birds until they had fifteen a number entirely without precedent. Naturally there was not space enough under the sheltering feathers of the mother, but the overflow could always collect alongside and get a share of the warmth. The pair are raising all of their adopted youngsters, and are giving them good care.

British News

Old World England and Wales Add. A nonagenarian servant of Haverfordwest, has just died, leaving a fortune of $8,500. She bequeathed most of this sum to a former mistress. At the time of her death a great part was found in gold in a box in the old lady's room. Her friends and neighbors thought she was extremely poor. She lived in a most frugal manner, denying herself all the luxuries and many of the necessities of life, and even insisting, at the age of 89, of doing her own washing.

Farming difficulties of the present day are not only being ignored but those farmers who have two sons are being asked to send one of them to the new fighting unit. The battalion will be recruited from the nine counties in the north of England. The English language must be used over the telephone in Great Britain by an order of the authorities. In this the British government is merely following a rule long enforced in the other belligerent countries. England is still full of Belgian refugees, of whom only the children and the youths have learned to speak English, and in the Soho district of London French is still the language commonly heard on the streets.

Traditions of old times when the farmer was the backbone of the British infantry are being revived in the north of England. A battalion exclusively of farmers is to be raised under a few days ago the Master read an account for candles supplied to the institution, and a member asked what these were required for. The Master said that some of the old women in the house would not go to sleep in the dark. They must have candles in their rooms, as they were afraid of the ghosts. According to them there were ghosts moving about the house every night and therefore they refused to sleep without having a light all the time. The account was passed. A spiritual experience, the greatest vouchsafed to him in the whole course of his life, was related recently by Mr. F. H. Stead at a memorial service for a lieutenant of the Gordon Highlanders. One evening he said, he was listening to the music of Bach's "Egmont," when his brother, who went down in the Titanic, and his mother appeared to him in a vision, with the young lieutenant and assured him of a great victory and the approaching breakdown of Prussian militarism. He could not understand the lieutenant's presence in the vision till he heard of his death.

Boy Knight Notes

The B. K. made a great showing last Sunday when they paraded to the Gospel Tabernacle in Eagle Place. Here an excellent discourse was delivered by the Rev. Mr. North, taking for his text Daniel 1-8. "But Daniel purposed in his heart. He showed how highly necessary it was for a boy to have a purpose in his life. A high and noble purpose. How many men's lives was a shipwreck because of not having such a purpose, and avoid the different bad habits in order to live a good life. Above all for them to take as a constant companion in their lives and thoughts their Saviour, the Lord Jesus. He had the boys sing a verse of a hymn together. The service was a most noteworthy one in every way.

ROUTE MARCH

On Friday evening a route march was held. This was most successful, and aroused some enthusiasm at times.

BAND PRACTISE

A full rehearsal was held on Thursday evening. Many new members are desirous of joining up with the band, but each will have to take his turn in this regard. The juniors are also making good progress with their band. Quite a number of boys were out to the study class.

MOTHER'S GUILD

are doing splendid work and expect to have a big sale of work in the near future.

GIRL COMPANIONS

will put on the cantata "When the roses come," next Friday evening. They expect a big crowd. Mrs. Lockyer is also making arrangements for a fancy party with them.

TARGET WORK

The scores in this regard are gradually mounting up. Many of our members are making a good showing in this regard already.

POSTPONED MONARCHY

By Special Wire to the Courier.
 Peking, Nov. 12—Charge D'Affaires Vate of the Italian legation, visited the Foreign Office to-day and seconded the request of Japan, Russia, Great Britain and France that the establishment of a monarchy be postponed. Lu Cheng Hsiang, the foreign minister, replied the reply he had made to the other diplomats stating that the Chinese people have declared for the restoration of the monarchy, but that it would be delayed until a suitable time could be found for the enthronement ceremonies.

Six Torontos are Signed Up

Three Former Shamrock Players Are Included in the List.

Toronto, Nov. 12—Owner E. J. Livingston, of the Torontos of the N. H. A., announces that he has signed Harry Cameron, Percy LeSueur, Corbett and Cyril Denny. As the latter two were members of the Shamrocks last season it looks as if Livingston did not allow them to get away from him when he sold the Shamrocks.

The deal for the latter club has not yet been completed, there being several details yet to be straightened out. In addition to signing the four players, Livingston also announces that he has signed two other whose names he doesn't wish to disclose at the present stage.

A deal is pending by the Shamrocks for the purchase of Goalkeeper Herbert from the Ottawa club, and should Goalkeeper Harry Holmes decide to play at the coast it will be consummated. Whether this means that Holmes will be sold to the Shamrocks or not is a question that will have to remain unanswered.

Hockey Gossip.

As both Corbett and Cyril Denny received flattering offers to play at the Coast this season, their signing with the Torontos bears out the statement of the N. H. A. magnates that the players would sooner play in the East than in the West.

It is likely that Dick Irwin, the fast rover of the Monarch team of Winnipeg, holders of the Allan Cup, will be found with one of the N. H. A. teams this season.

The Ontario Hockey Club of London, a new organization, have applied for admission to the O. H. A. They will play in the junior series.

Milton, who have not been represented in the O. H. A. for several seasons, have applied for admission to the junior O. H. A. series.

With Milton back in the O. H. A. a certain well known O. H. A. referee will be able to renew his boyhood acquaintances.

The St. Michael's hockey club of Cobourg have applied for permission to put an intermediate team in the O. H. A. this season. Cobourg has many players at the front, but likewise have a lot of youngsters ready to step out and play O. H. A. hockey.

PROCLAMATION TO THE ITALIAN ARMY

By Special Wire to the Courier.
 Paris, Nov. 12—In a proclamation to the army issued on the birthday of King Victor Emmanuel, says a Havas despatch from Rome, Gen. Cadorna, the Italian commander-in-chief, paid a tribute to the courage of the ruler, declaring:

"For two months his majesty always first in danger and in example, has lived the life of the army. Inspired by him, with faith still more intense the Italian army renews its vow to continue on the road to final victory which will assure the realization of our just national aspirations."

VENTILATION DURING THE COLD WEATHER

It is easy enough to ventilate the house in warm weather. One simply leaves most of the windows open most of the time. To be sure, we are often assured by scientists that this method does not ventilate. We are even told that the air out-of-doors is not always ventilated. But we manage to thrive in the closeness of the outdoors atmosphere, and we manage to feel comfortable if we get a good deal of this atmosphere into our houses.

With the coming of cold weather, ventilation is a truly difficult matter. For we cannot leave our windows wide open. Unless we would walk about our houses clad in sweaters and helmets and unless we would run up stupendous coal bills, we must close our windows for the sake of comfort.

It is possible, too, to have canvas screens to cover the lower half of an open window. These let in some air, but keep out a great deal, and keep out snow and rain, too.

Weather boards, to put in partly open windows, are also admirable. There make ventilation possible without creating a very big draught.

THE WOMEN OF FRANCE

(From a Letter by Owen Johnson in the N. Y. Times)

Not even Americans so ardently love and long for peace as France, peace for her children. Yet not a woman in the throngs I questioned gave me an un-Spartan answer. So inflexible is their pride of country, so consecrated their resolution, that if a ministry should attempt to betray France with an illusory peace, in the absence of men, the women, I believe, would rise and make a revolution. I will quote but one of a hundred letters showing me, without comment for comment would be futile. It is from a mother to the head of a great ammunition factory, where her two sons had been transferred from the front to give their trained services.

"I have just learned that you have asked the superintendent to keep my sons away from the most dangerous experiments in the charging of the shells. I can't tell you how offensive this demand is to me. Consider that my sons should go where there is the most danger to be incurred.

"They should do so, first, because they are the nephews of one of the owners. Their duty is to give an example of courage to the employees who may be haunted by the memory of the terrible catastrophes which have taken place lately, which were the result of the inexperience and imprudence of those who were directing the operations. They should assist in such experiments every where they more dangerous than they are in reality, because my sons are soldiers.

You know that I only consented to advise their leaving the front because you assured me that their presence in the factories would be more important than in the trenches, and that there would be certain dangers to be met. The first accident that occurred at the factory decided me to grant your request. I beg of you not to change now in any way the duties of my sons.

"When war was declared I felt clearly all the sorrows which might visit us, and I promised myself that I would give my children an example of courage. My daughters will not see me overwhelmed by misfortunes; my sons know with what pride I have seen them and wish to see them face the worst dangers.

"Sorrow has visited both you and me already in its cruellest form. Do not let us ask for pity. Let us go to the end of the Calvary without flinching."

I will not give the signature, for in justice, if I give it, it should be signed—

ANY MOTHER IN FRANCE

HOW EXPLOSIONS ACT
 When there is a violent explosion the surrounding air is thrown back with sudden force in air waves that the explosion is violent and powerful. The explosion acts in all directions at once with equal force, and the air on all sides is forced out, and surrounding air rushes in to fill the threatened vacuum. When ever the air waves start up suddenly, there will be demolition, if there is not sufficient power of resistance.

A curious thing about the effect of these waves at a distance is the restricted limit of their force. Sometimes, as a result of a big explosion, the front windows of a building several miles away will be drawn out and no other building on the block damaged. In such cases the air suction is apt to affect buildings at different points along the wave.

The destructive power of explosions is reckoned with as a most important factor in modern warfare. Projectiles thrown from big guns do more damage by battering the side of a building striking force. It is the explosion after they reach their destination that is expected to do most destruction. Well-protected forts are not taken merely by battering the walls, but by dropping into them projectiles that cause explosive havoc.

ABOUT TOM THUMB

The celebration in Boston of her 75th birthday by the actress, Corina Magrath, "Mrs. Tom Thumb," recalls an interesting character whose name was a household word in the latter part of the nineteenth century.

General Tom Thumb, himself, also a youth he was about two feet in height and weighed 20 pounds.

The late P. T. Barnum, of circus fame, as soon as he heard of the dwarf, offered to exhibit him in public, which offer was accepted.

Tom Thumb became an important part of Barnum's circus, and for 12 years toured the world, attracting attention everywhere, kings as well as humble persons seeking acquaintance with him. The little fellow was asked by the public eye and grew tall and fat, comparatively speaking, until in the end he attained a height of three feet, four inches. In 1863 he married Mercie Lavinia Bump, also a dwarf, and became more popular than ever. In 1883 he died and was generally mourned. Probably if Tom Thumb were alive to-day he would attract little if any attention.

Certainly his presence on the "treasures" platform would not create a sensation in any up-to-date community. For the public now seeks more exciting diversion than exhibitions of dwarfs and giants.

The Magic of Garlic.

One of the most important medical discoveries of the war is the magical properties of garlic as an antiseptic. It has proved to be a tremendous boon to the wounded soldiers. The discovery was first announced in "The Lancet" by Dr. D. Serre, Cooke and Dr. V. Gabriel, two London medical men, who introduced the remedy into Paddington Infirmary with remarkable results. Of the hundred cases treated there not a single failure was recorded. Most of these cases were of people in very weak health and with terribly infected wounds, and of infirm, old people who appeared to have no chance of recovery. Equally gratifying results have been obtained at the front. When applied to a wound, the garlic stops the infection and heals the wound in an astonishingly quick time, where other antiseptics injure the tissues if used at the strength required to arrest infection. The juice gets to the infection under control within forty-eight hours, even in the most serious failure was recorded. Henry H. Asquith,
Britain's Premier

The public are less familiar with the details of Mr. Asquith's career than with those of many other public men. The time for a full life is fortunately not yet, but the biography of the prime minister which Mr. Har- old Spender has written, supplies a very interesting and readable form of personal facts which will be new to numbers who are fairly familiar with his public life. A well known story runs that a Balliol man addressing Doctor Jowett when Mr. Asquith left Oxford, put to him this question: "Will Asquith get on?" To which the reply was: "Yes he will get on; he is so direct." That prophecy has been amply fulfilled.

But while the "directness" is there, Mr. Asquith, we are assured, has a soft and mild side. In private his wit is always kindly and often boyish in its merit. "They don't often catch you napping," he said to the greatest of his life's whips when he found him dead asleep from fatigue. He loves to sport with his children, and he is, as a rule, with those near him, his usually genial and hearty companion. To his intimates, indeed, he is rather the comrade than the Chief; to his family the fond and best-beloved of fathers; to his secretaries the most loyal and tolerant of masters; to his Cabinets the best of friends—quick to praise, slow to blame, large, generous, appreciative, helpful.

Yet always there is the feeling of power behind, and this, according to Mr. Asquith's latest biographer, is the secret of his mastery.

HIS RECREATIONS

Mr. Asquith loves recreation, although one might hardly think it according to the author: "He reads many novels—chiefly novels of the old-fashioned type, for he is little in love with modernism and realism in fiction. He plays auction bridge. He is still as fond of the theatre as when he was a boy. Rather late in life he took to golf, and although he does not aspire to be a mock-professional, he plays a good steady game. Although starved of sports in early life he still loves them with a true British devotion."

How then, it is asked, explain his reputation for being a remote, rather austere figure? The explanation, it is urged, lies partly in his habit of aloofness: "He goes rarely into the lobbies and smoke-rooms of the House, and then passes rapidly, seeing few. He loathes the more vulgar aspects of party management and organization. It requires all the scourging of the Whips to bring him to the point of the popularising himself. He is almost a Coriolanus in this matter of reserve. Being shy himself, he flatters others by believing that they too object to those readings of the soul which men call familiarity. So he flies from the Treasury Bench to his private room. He has, as far as I know never been interviewed; he cultivates no press following.

To Fleet street indeed it would appear, he is the least accessible prime minister since ever lived only a mile away in Downing street. "Still, with all this, Mr. Asquith is a friendly, family, very human man."

New Additions Added to Their Equipment

Since the return to Brantford four years ago of Mr. A. W. Doeringer, who then opened a business as an electrical contractor, with a full line of fixtures and supplies, the business has greatly increased, and a number of important changes have had to be made to meet the growing demand for his services.

The first important change was the introduction of a new partner in the business in the person of Mr. Harry W. Doeringer. Harry is an expert mechanic. At the time of his coming into the firm, necessary equipment was added to enable them to carry on the work of electrical and mechanical repairing of all kinds, such as fans, motors, vacuum cleaners, electric irons, toasters and cooking apparatus generally.

Shortly after this change, it again became necessary to add to their equipment and tools and machinery were added for the handling of small and delicate mechanical parts, such as those of typewriters, adding machines, computing scales, sewing machines, barber's clippers, horse clippers, lawn mowers, saws, skates and scissors.

In the spring of 1915 the wiring and electrical fixture business was discontinued in order to allow the senior member of the firm, Mr. A. W. Doeringer, to devote his whole time to special electrical repairs. In connection with this department, complete equipment was installed for the charging and repairing of electric storage batteries of all kinds.

During a visit east this year to Toronto, Mr. A. W. Doeringer investigated the possibilities of the Davis-Bournonville Oxy-Acetylene welding process, with the result that he determined a complete outfit for this high-grade work was installed in their plant. Previous to its installation, Mr. Harry Doeringer took the full course of training for this work in Toronto and is now prepared to do welding on cast iron, steel, aluminum, brass or copper. This means a considerable saving to their customers, as the firm are now able to repair and repair many parts of machinery which formerly had to be entirely renewed. As Oxy-Acetylene is practically a new welding device, the Doeringer Electric and Repair Co., are only too pleased to explain the process to prospective customers who call upon them.

Both members of the firm are practical men of long experience, which explains, in a large measure, their rapid business advancement and success. All work is executed promptly, and "accuracy" is their middle name. The Doeringer Electric and Repair Company are located at 120 Dalhousie street, Brantford, opposite the Market.

Economic Value of Birds.

The insects that destroy our fruit crops attack every portion of the tree and its fruit. The woolly aphid attacks the roots; the trunk and limbs are preyed upon by millions of plant lice, scale-insects and borers; the leaves are devastated by the all-devouring leaf-worms, canker-worms and tent-caterpillars; while the fruit itself is attacked by the curculio, codling-moth and apple-maggot. By the annual expenditure of about $6,000,000 in cash in the spraying of apple-trees, the destructive work of the curculio-moth and curculio have been greatly reduced; but of course that great sum must be set down as a total loss to the farmers and consumers in addition to a shrinkage of $12,000,000 in the annual crop from insect ravages that could not be prevented.

Now, in view of the foregoing, is it not in itself, not worth while for serious minded men to do their very utmost continuously to protect from foolish and brutal slaughter man's only allies in the insect war, the insect eating birds?—William T. Hornsley in "Wild Life Conservation."

Quaint Old Names
For English Inns

"Man Loaded With Mischief" is the name of an inn in the Madingley road, Cambridge but it is not stranger than many others. At Underwood, Notts, is an inn called "The Trav in the Hole," and in the neighborhood of Somerset Coats, "The Old House at Home." Another inn at the same place is called, "The Old English Gentleman."

It is a debatable point whether the sign of "The Man Loaded with Mischief" was painted by Hogarth. But it is said that it represents a man carrying a woman.

Many peculiar signs are the result of a misconception. "The Bag of Nails" is really "The Bacchanals." "The Goat and Compasses" is an ignorant name for the old motto, "God encompasses us," while "The George and the Cannon" is a modern corruption of George Canning, who was prime minister when the inn was built.

One of the funniest of these corruptions is "The Iron Devil," a corruption of "Hirondele (swallow). It is said that the inn called "The Pig and Tinker Box" was originally "The Elephant and Castle," but a very poor artist was engaged to paint the sign and somebody said it looked like a pig and tinker box, and the name stuck until it ousted the old one.

"The Plum and Feathers," an inn in Oxford, should be "Plume of Feathers," and "The Rose of the Quatre Saisons" was originally "La Rose de Quatre Saisons." One might think "The Ship and Shovel" belonged to the same category, but it does not. The reference is to Sir Cloudesley Shovel, the powder monkey who became an admiral in the reign of Queen Anne.—London Tit-Bits.

Serbian All Fighting.

The appeal of Serbia to the United States Minister against the extermination of the civil population by the Germans, fits in with the report to the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger that "even women and children" are fighting. Of course they are! They might as well fight and be killed as be killed without fighting. As happened to many in the former "drive," says a New York paper. Every boy big enough to shoot, every man not too old to march, and thousands of women are warriors or potential warriors. Except babies and the very old, there is not much "civil population."

GROWTH OF ELECTRICITY

One United States Railway to Use Such Locomotives
Over a Stretch of 440 Miles

(The New York Evening Post.) There appeared in the advertising columns of this paper a few days ago an account of a railroad enterprise which has an interest far wider than that attaching to the particular railroad concerned. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company is on the point of completing the electrification of a stretch of road crossing three mountain ranges and extending over a distance of 440 miles and it contemplates, though not in the immediate future, the extension of this work to the Pacific coast, which would make a total of 80 miles of continuous electric travel, or a distance not much short of that from here to Chicago. According to the statement made by the company, this enterprise has been undertaken purely on economic grounds, with the expectation that superior operating results with electric locomotives will effect a sufficient reduction on the present cost of steam operation to make the investment pay; but it would be rash to draw any general conclusion from this circumstance, in view of the fact that water-power is utilized upon this railroad, and that the question of the cost of coal is one that enters in very different degrees in the case of different railroads. Yet one cannot avoid the feeling that, in one way or another, the example of so large an experiment in the substitution of electricity for steam will prove a great stimulus towards the introduction of the improvement in many parts of our railroad system.

What an immense improvement the use of electricity instead of steam effects in the comfort and pleasure of railway travel, New Yorkers have the amplest reason to realize. Our subway system has been made possible by it; and while we had the elevated railways before, a million men and women every day now enjoy a clean and agreeable ride, whereas in the early days they had to put up with the smoke and cinders of the steam locomotives in their journey up and down, while the dwellers in the adjacent houses suffered most seriously from the nuisance. Even more striking is the change that has taken place as to the trains entering the Grand Central Station; it is difficult to imagine the horrible condition which would exist, with the present enormous traffic, if electricity had not come to the rescue. On long journeys, however, we have to suffer from the dirt, or bad air, or both, as of old; a clean journey with plenty of fresh air, is still the most pleasant of a dream. But what with the actual economy realized in some cases, and what with public demand for what may gradually come to be regarded as an essential of comfortable travel in other cases, there is reason to hope that electric railroading will in a not distant future be the normal thing for a large part of our entire passenger traffic.

As one reads of the great electric locomotives that are to pull the trains over the mountains—locomotives of 3,400 horsepower, 112 feet long, and weighing 250 tons—one recalls with a curious wonder the way in which electricity has grown, in a few score years, from a matter of almost solely scientific curiosity into a mighty agency in the affairs of life. An article in the current number of the Scientific Monthly, as it happens, recites the history of the beginning of which this gigantic growth has been developed. On the morning of Christmas Day, 1821, Faraday called his wife into his laboratory to witness, for the first time in the history of man, the revolution of a magnet around an electrical current. The foundations of electromagnetics were laid and the edifice built by Faraday upon this foundation in the fourteen succeeding years. In those years and from those labors, the electric-motor, the motor generator, the electrical utilization of water power, the electric car, electric lighting, the telephone and telegraph, in short all that is comprised in modern electrical machinery, came actually or potentially into being. The little rotating magnet which Faraday showed, in short all that is comprised in modern electrical machinery, came actually or potentially into being. The little rotating magnet which Faraday showed, in short all that is comprised in modern electrical machinery, came actually or potentially into being.

And those who got their knowledge of electricity at college in the sixties or early seventies of the last century will remember that the only conspicuous example of its practical application with which they became acquainted, even at that time, was the telegraph. But, just as Faraday's fundamental searches absorbed his energies for fourteen years after his initial discovery, so the investigators and inventors who have built on these foundations have had to labor for years to gain each new step in advance. Thus the outsider oscillates between a sense of amazed wonder at the miracles that have been worked in so short a time and a feeling almost the opposite—a feeling that with the root of the matter in hand the development might have been expected to be more rapid. But to the man who really knows, neither the swiftness nor the slowness of the process is a mystery.

In connection with such advances as that of the electrification of steam railroads, still more with such spectacular achievements as those recorded within a few weeks in telephony, both wireless and over the wires, questions of private enterprise as compared with Government ownership and operation naturally suggest themselves. They are not questions that admit of a single answer, yes or no. But certainly in point of initiative, and of variety and energy of effort, the manifestations of what private enterprise finds itself prompted to do furnish impressive arguments in favor of that side of the case.

Especially under a popular government such as ours, the power to make industrial experiments on a vast scale, and involving enormous expense, could be granted only with great caution. Another aspect of the matter, too, is by no means of small importance; the difficulty of determining the local distribution of such improvements and advances as may be found possible. With a railway mileage greater than that of all Europe, with questions of transportation playing a far more crucial part than they do in any other country, the normal economic factors of the case would alone make a problem with us very different from what it is in the compact and old-settled European countries; and when we add to this an appreciation of the part which may be played in the future by question like that of electrification, we see how involved, as well as how gigantic, would be the problems of Government ownership and operation.

Two British officers were motoring back to headquarters from the front recently when they noticed a Tommy trudging along looking very exhausted and ill. They immediately stopped the car and told the man to get in.

The officers soon put him at ease and talked freely with him, with the result that he gained confidence and began to speak of his parents and his fiancée, and finally brought a photo of the latter from his pocket. The officers congratulated the Tommy on his good luck, and the venture of the remark, "I suppose you, too, carry a photo of someone about with you."

The younger of the two officers stopped slightly and replied, with a smile: "Well, I've got my father's photo with me, and I'll make you a present of one if you like," and the young officer took a sovereign from his pocket and slipped it into the man's hand. Tommy's companions were the Prince of Wales and a brother-officer.

During the battle of Neuve Chapelle a young officer, a lieutenant in a Highland regiment, had his face half struck when a piece of shell struck the left side of his face and blew away most of the lower jaw. Valadier, a military dental operator, put a new floor to the man's mouth, actually induced two inches of bone to grow on the lower jaw, fixed complete artificial teeth, and healed the remains of the lips; with the result that now the man is as normal as ever and the only result of his mishaps is a slight scar by the mouth.

Baseball Players Select Their Own All-Star Outfit

There have been commissions of high-browed experts among the baseball writers to pick "most valuable" players, and there have been experts and non-experts, high and low-browed, who have infested the world with their choices of all-star teams. Now we have a new wrinkle along that line. A St. Louis newspaper conducted a sort of voting contest among ball players, in which forty well-known diamond athletes were asked to give their choices for an all-star team. A compilation of the choices showed the team to be made up as follows, the names being arranged in what is believed to be the best batting order.

Shotton, Browns, outfielder.
Bancroft, Phillies, shortstop.
Cobb, Tigers, outfielder.
Collins, White Sox, second base.
Speaker, Red Sox, outfielder.
Merkle, Giants, first base.
Maisel, Yanks, third base.
Schalk, White Sox, catcher.
Snyder, Cardinals, catcher.
Alexander, Johnson, Mameaux, Tony and Leonard, pitchers.

Sisler, Browns, substitute.
It will be noticed that the forty players voting on the "best ball team" make selections radically different from those usually named by the baseball writers who presume to tell the public who the real stars are. For instance, Merkle, Maisel and Stotton are unknown in the high-brows' All-American selection. It is a fact nevertheless, that ball players throughout the country believe Shotton close to Ty Cobb in real worth. Shotton has done wonderful work for the Browns, and his selection is the more remarkable because he always has been with a losing team. Among his fellow professionals Shotton is regarded as one of the best outfielders that the game ever knew.

Merkle is conceded to be the most valuable first sacker in the game. He not only hits well, but is a marvelous fielder and is rarely out of gear with the rest of the infield when a team-work play is on.

The players think Maisel the most valuable man at third base because he is always working hard to win. He is what they call "a ball player at heart." Some men play good because they are paid to do that very thing, but Maisel fights all the time because he loves the game. To illustrate—There was never a more finished third sacker than Willie Shatter, but his heart was never in the game. His name never appeared on an All-American team.

There is no use to explain the selection of Cobb, Speaker, Collins, Snyder and Schalk. They are all that, and in their case the figures have not made mistakes. There could never be any question about the selection of Sisler as the utility or all-round man. Starting in as a pitcher last season, he played nearly every position on the club and played it well. In addition thereto he hit the ball hard all the time. His hitting was too valuable to be wasted on a pitcher, and that accounts for the many shifts. At that he was an excellent twirler.

Duffy Lewis was not placed in the outfield of this team for the simple reason that his best work of the year did not come until the world's series. Up to that time he had gone through a pretty bad season. In fact, less than two months before the big games Lewis had been warned to brace up in his playing. Otherwise it was intimated that Henrichs might take his place in the Red Sox outfield.

Though few have mentioned them in their selections, Mameaux and Tony were probably the most valuable pitchers of the season, with the possible exception of Alexander. They were playing on losing teams, and still attracting attention by successive victories.

A remarkable feature of the 1915 selection is that it is the first time in ten years that Mathewson's name has not been mentioned as one of the pitchers.

The names of the 40 players whose combined opinions resulted in the choice of the "best ball team" are not given. Well, hardly, for it might mean a merry controversy, but it is stated that no one of the 40 voted for himself, at least not as first choice, in making up his team.

Is Looking After Team.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Lieut. Conny Smythe, who captained the Varsity juniors last season, when they won the Junior O. H. A. championship, is looking after the soldiers' hockey team at Hamilton. "We have no less than four captains of championship teams in our battery," stated Conny.

Embargo on Butter.

London, Nov. 12.—Beginning Nov. 15, butter will be added to the articles whose exportation is forbidden by the Swedish government, according to a Reuter despatch from Stockholm. This will make the embargo on the export of food products virtually complete.

LONDON WILL NOT BELIEVE ANY GOOD NEWS FROM FRONT

Famous War Correspondent Arrived at New York Says That If Steel Curtain Which is Drawn Over Germany Was Lifted, Revelation Might Amaze the Whole World.

New York, Nov. 12.—Frederick Palmer, war correspondent, who has been where the shells have been bursting during several months, arrived yesterday on the liner St. Louis gave impressions of his experiences that have not been sent in his despatches. He said the war would not be over until the British had put in action more than one million men who have not fired a shot in a year. No body at the British front believed the end would come before next summer. The execution of Miss Cavell, he said, did more for recruiting than all the Zeppelin raids. Mr. Palmer happened to be in France when the news of her death was received, and its effect on the troops was electrical. Her death gave her a heroic character that appealed to the French heart.

"It takes only five hours to get from the trenches to London," Mr. Palmer said, "and what a contrast. Everybody is cheerful at the front. They have only to fight and die for England, and not to bother with politics. London will not believe you if you bring zot good news from the front. The British are spreading all their news broadcast, the Germans are suppressing theirs. The British wash their linen on the public parade, and the Germans wash theirs in the cellar with the lights turned off. It that steel curtain which is drawn over Germany were lifted the revelation might amaze the world. Only peace, however, will lift it."

SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN ENDED.

"The lesson of the efficiency of the British navy is the same as that of the German army—make a solid front. A and no amateur interference with professional experts. Steer hard work and brains put an end to the submarine campaign. There was no magic about it. None of the second plans of say inventors proved practicable when tried out.

"It was the professional naval mind that had the brains to cope with the submarine."
"The British are a stubborn people, and they do things in their own way. In order to encourage recruiting they talked pessimism. Now they are advising that the financial situation is serious in order to make the people economize. If I know anything about war, and my experience at the British front counts for anything, then the talk that the British have fallen down in this war is nonsense. Their own new army had to wait on rifles and uniforms to supply their allies. But this is one of the things the censor cut out, lest it offend the allies."

"I think the new organization and equipment of the new army formed entirely of volunteers, is a military marvel. There have been costly mistakes, but the rank and file of the army in France have put up one of the most splendid fights in all history. I have watched the British army grow and improve. I do not know what the relations of the British and French cabinets are, but I know that the relations of the French and British soldiers were never so good. Different as the races are, they have fought their way into each other's respect."

M. Palmer said he was over the Champagne battlefield, and he believed the French might have broken through, but for the heavy rains on the second day of the attack, which was made to relieve the pressure on the Russian side. "The Germans knew the day of the Confederates at the second day at Gettysburg. The French kept up their fire for 72 hours."
"I have not heard a British or French officer or soldier mention the possibility of any compromise with Germany. The French have a saying that the ghosts of their dead soldiers would haunt them if they stop fighting while there is a German on the soil of France."

FOOD SUPPLY OF NATION WILL BE REGUTATED

Tea, Coffee and Cocoa Added to List Already Under State Control.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
Berlin, via London, Nov. 12.—Virtually the entire food supply of the nation is expected soon to pass under governmental control to ensure an equitable distribution of supplies at fair prices among the entire population, rich and poor. Coffee, tea and cocoa were added to-day to the list of products whose sale will be regulated by the state. The federal council authorized the chancellor to issue regulations covering trade in these commodities. The chancellor also was authorized to establish maximum prices for buckwheat and millet, marmalades and honey, vegetables, fruits and soustaves. These prices apply to producers. Local authorities in municipalities of more than ten thousand population are required to fix maximum prices for retailers in these supplies. The authorities in smaller places are empowered to take similar action if they see fit. The chancellor is given authority to set a high limit above which prices may not go.

THE CHAMPAGNE EFFORT.

Bread, potatoes, pork, milk and butter already have been subjected to a maximum price schedule. The consumption of other meats is regulated and limited by so-called "meatless days." Maximum prices for all varieties of meat and fish are believed to be in sight.

DISEASES OF THE NERVES

There is an excellent reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured the most severe cases of neuralgia, sciatica and other complaints in the group known as disorders of the nerves. This group also includes nervousness and excitability. Each of these complaints exists because the nerves are not getting a proper nourishment from the blood. The reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure nervous disorders because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood, and while they are doing this they strengthen and fortify the whole system against disease. Among the many who have found relief from pain through this great medicine is Miss Ethel Smith, residing near Burford, Ont., who says—"Some years ago I was seized with a great pain in my right leg, between the hip and the knee. It became so bad that I got no rest, day or night, and often cried with the pain. The doctor said the trouble was rheumatism of the sciatic nerve. Liniments were used until they actually took the skin off, and still the pain grew worse and worse. Then all the other nerves in the limb seemed to be affected, and it kept jerking and twitching until it would have to be held to keep it still. Then the doctor put the limb in a papier mache case, but it was not long until the trouble began in my other limb and it had to be treated in the same way. I lay in the hospital for three weeks with my whole nervous system so badly shattered that it would make me scream if any one walked across the floor. Then my throat became partially paralyzed and I could scarcely speak. During this time I had been attended by three different doctors, who did all in their power, but each said I would never be able to walk again. The only doctor who would get me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I had used them long I felt them helping me. This so encouraged us that the use of the pills was continued in a regular course. I was able to walk half a mile each day to get the mail. I used in all eighteen or twenty boxes of the Pills, and they did what three years of doctoring had not been able to do. I am as well as ever. I was in my life, and have had no return of the trouble. My family and friends think my cure was a miracle, and we give all the credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Gallieni Explains Why He is After Incompetents

Thought It Useful to Stop the Plague of Recommendations--Soldiers' Complaints Should be Heard and Considered--Parliamentary Control Necessary to Unveil and Repress Abuse.

Paris, Nov. 12.—Denys Cochin, minister without portfolio in the Briand cabinet, has been sent by the government on a special mission to the Orient. He was accompanied by his secretary, Charles De Lasteyre. His brother, Col. Cochin, who recently was wounded, left last night for Saloniki.

M. Cochin was for many years vice president of the chamber of deputies, committee on foreign relations and is a close student of European politics upon which he frequently has spoken in the chamber.

GALLIENI'S SPEECH.

Paris, Nov. 12.—Minister of War Gallieni made his maiden speech to the chamber of deputies yesterday in reply to an interpellation by J. D. Morin regarding his circular order threatening dismissal to all who are incompetent or who tolerate incompetency in those under them. M. Morin remarked that members of parliament had not solicited favors, although they had made recommendations which were not claims. He requested General Gallieni to mount the tribune and state whether members had intervened in the war ministry in a reprehensible manner.

"I am a soldier and never have occupied myself with politics," said General Gallieni in complying with M. Morin's request. "All under whom I have served can tell you how I have understood my duty towards the country. I have taken the ministry of war only from devotion to the common cause we must all defend. This work would be condemned to failure, if I could not count upon your unreserved co-operation."

"I thought it useful to stop the plague of recommendations. Our soldiers should have the conviction that only equity and law determine our decisions. Every soldier has the right to make a complaint without hindrance from any person. That is the object of my instructions. All complaints will be examined with the greatest care. It is necessary that every soldier should be able to make his complaint heard even at the top of the military hierarchy."

General Gallieni added that parliamentary control was necessary to unveil and repress abuses. M. Morin asked if any recommendation had been made by a member of parliament which was not for the best interests of the country as might be supposed from press comment.

The war minister responded that he was not responsible for press comment.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given. If your little one is out-of-sorts, half sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mother's rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs"; then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

COMPULSORY SERVICE COMING SOON IN THE OLD COUNTRY

If Young Men Who are Fit Do Not Come Forward by November 30th, Government Will Take Steps to Get Them Says Lord Derby.

London, Nov. 12.—A strong intimation of compulsion at an early date is contained in a statement last night by the Earl of Derby, Director of Recruiting. This statement is made. Lord Derby declares, with the authority of the Prime Minister, it says: "If young men medically fit and not indispensable in any business of national importance or any business conducted for the general good of the community do not come forward voluntarily before November 30, the Government will, after that date, take the necessary steps to redeem the pledge made on November 2."

On the date referred to, Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons that if young men did not come forward voluntarily and enlist, "other and compulsory means would be taken before married men were called upon to fill their engagement to serve."

Lord Derby adds: "Whether a man is indispensable or not to his business will be decided, not by the man or his employer, but by competent authorities and tribunals which are being set up to consider such cases."

BIBLE GIVEN TO MIKADO BY AMERICAN

Wonderful Progress of Japan Shown in This One Fact Alone.

Tokio, Nov. 12.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—"When we think that the Bible, which was presented to the Emperor to-day by Dr. Sturge, is a book whose teaching was interdicted within this realm less than 50 years ago we have some idea of the great development of the Japanese Empire." That was one of the most striking remarks made during a notable dinner of 300 representative Japanese who assembled last night to express their gratitude to Dr. E. A. Sturge of San Francisco, who has done much in the interest of the Japanese residents on the Pacific Coast and much to develop the relations of friendship between Japan and the United States. It had been intended to present the Bible at Kyoto during the coronation week, but the program of the emperor is so filled that it was deemed best to present it immediately. The Bible is bound in pure white leather, has the "rising sun" emblem on the outside in red which on the inside of the covers is represented the Empire of Japan in gold side by side with the coat line of the United States. The idea of the engraving, which include also the national flags, is that Japan and America are bound together in lasting friendship.

INSTRUCTION SCHOOL WILL OPEN MONDAY

Old Technical School Will Accommodate 500 Officers—Sleeping Quarters for 200.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—The sound of the hammer rings through the corridors of the old Technical School building, College street, which is rapidly being remodelled to become the new school of instruction for militia officers. The class rooms will again hear the voices of lecturers, but industry and peace will no longer be the subjects taught. Instead, the khaki clad pupils will learn the secrets of war and tactics, and be taught to qualify as leaders of men on the battlefields of Europe.

The new school of instruction will be in full swing in the course of a few days, as they expect to open on Monday, and will be continued until May 1. Already 300 applications have been received from officers and 100 from non-commissioned officers have been received by Colonel W. R. Lang, who is in charge of the school. The school will be able to accommodate 500 officers, and there will be sleeping accommodation for 200. Arrangements have been made to mess all the men attending the school. While in the school the senior officers will receive $2 a day and the junior officers $1 a day.

The school of instruction is a continuation of the officers' training classes which have been held in Niagara camp all summer and will replace the provisional classes that were held in various centres of this military district. Under the new arrangement all officers and non-commissioned officers who wish to take advantage of these studies, will come to the Technical School. The school, of course, will only be used for lectures, the actual drilling being carried out on University campus.

"THE GODDESS" UNIQUE SERIAL STORY BY GOUVERNEUR MORRIS

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

After the tragic death of John Amesbury, his prostrated wife, one of America's greatest beauties dies. At her death, Prof. Stilliter, an agent of the interests, kidnaps the beautiful three-year-old baby girl, and brings her up in a paradise, where she sees no man, but thinks she is taught by angels, who instruct her for her mission to reform the world. At the age of eighteen she is suddenly thrust into the world, where agents of the interests are ready to pretend to find her.

The one to feel the loss of the little Amesbury girl most, after she had been spirited away by the interests, was Tommy Barclay. In many years later Tommy goes to the Adirondacks. The interests are responsible for this trip. By accident he is the first to meet the little Amesbury girl, as she comes forth from her paradise as Celestia, the girl from heaven. Neither Tommy nor Celestia recognize each other. Tommy finds an easy manner to rescue Celestia from Prof. Stilliter, and they hide in the mountains, later they are pursued by Stilliter, and escape to an island, where they spend the night.

So while the party rested at a spring, Celestia talked smoothly and earnestly to the guides. The younger never took his eyes off her face; but the elder, after awhile, looked only at the ground, and occasionally nodded. As for the old Indian, he too, listened, and it seemed as if some feeling akin to remorse was gnawing at his leathery heart, for he was seen to cast sidelong glances at the bundle he had made of Tommy's clothes, and later when he resumed its way, it seemed as if the bundle had become too heavy for him, for when he thought no one was looking he cast it from him into a thicket. This was an act of conscience. He had stolen. That couldn't be helped; but at least he would not profit by it. However, I regret, to say, a few days later the old man returned for the clothes and sold them.

Towards the end of the long tramp there had to be frequent rests, to Celestia was getting very tired, and when at last they reached Four Corners it was only just in time to catch the New York Express.

During the few minutes there were to spare, however, Celestia gathered all the crowd together, and made the dearest and most lasting impression that had ever been made upon that woodland community.

"John Cumberland, of the New York American, had just stepped off the Montreal express at Four Corners for a few days' rest and holiday in the woods, where he would get away from news. He had earned it this time by tracking down a period of six weeks, and causing the arrest of a certain gentleman, who had been using the United States mails to separate unsophisticated people from their money.

John, however, had no sooner stepped off the train at the newsless place than he ran head first into the news. And that afternoon there appeared a column of the American devoted to Celestia and headlined like this—

"Angel from Heaven found in Adirondacks. Is the most beautiful woman in the world's history, an advertising scheme. Some think her a female Billy Sunday—Wants to Reform New York—Will be taken to Bellevue Observation Ward."

"Think of the maddest you have ever been, multiply that by ten, and you will have some idea of Tommy's state of mind when he found that his wife had been done in a hall of mind before he was able to think. And by that time there was no longer any sight or sound of Celestia. Almost it seemed as though she never existed, as if she had been an hallucination of some sort. But that he was without clothes was a fact which he was not for a moment to forget, until he contrived something to take their place.

Stilliter, furious, angry, but calmer he hurried to the hut and used up a precious hour to make a suit of clothes out of the buffalo robe. He succeeded with an old nail, which he found, in making holes for his arms and legs to go through, and in cutting a strip of hide for a belt, but as a suit the affair was not a success. Finally he determined to carry the buffalo suit over his head, and he was donned hastily in case he met anyone.

So he swam to the mainland keeping the buffalo hide out of the water as much as he could, and on feet headed straight for Four Corners. He chose this course not because he expected to find Celestia there, but because he was well known there, and could get clothes and if necessary a posse of men who would help to find out what had become of her.

Badly bitten by mosquitoes, gnats, and deerflies, he had by five o'clock arrived within half a mile of Four Corners, when a sound of footsteps caused him to dart behind a virturum-bush and dress hastily in his buffalo robe suit. That so dressed he resembled a cross between the wild man from Borneo and a Christmas stocking. It did not trouble him. Stepping back into the trail and renewing his way he came face to face with John Cumberland of the American.

John gave one look at Tommy and shuddered. Every brave man has his weakness; an inborn fear of manics was Johnny's. He would have given his reputation to be elsewhere, but he had plenty of real nerve, and though he felt that the situation might prove desperate, he resolved to face it like a man. He had often heard that the way to get along with manics is by humoring them; so he drew a long breath, assumed a ghastly smile, "Is it—must be Robinson Crusoe?"

"What's that?" cried Tommy sharply. For he was not in a pleasant humor.

"That's all right," said Johnny, backing slowly away. "I thought you thought you were Robinson Crusoe; but if you think you are somebody else I think so, too. I think whatever you do."

"I am Tommy Barclay," said Tommy with a certain fierceness.

"Of course you are," exclaimed the reporter, "that's what I meant to say in the first place."

"If you think I'm mad—" Tommy began, but Cumberland interrupted with a hasty "No, sir, I don't. Just a young lady named Celestia, who is sane. Maybe two or three times as sane."

"Tommy couldn't help laughing. 'Look here,' said Tommy, 'I can't be an ass if you can possibly help it. My clothes were stolen while I was in swimming. I threw this fashionable suit together out of respect for Anthony Comstock, and I'm looking for a young lady named Celestia. 'The girl from heaven?'"

"That's what she says; but how do you know?"

"I interviewed her just before she stepped off the New York Express, Professor Stilliter, the famous psychologist, found her in the woods, and between you and me, she's some girl."

"Who are you?" Tommy asked, abruptly.

"John Cumberland, New York American."

"Then you probably know who I am."

"If you're really Mr. Thomas Barclay, I do. Are you?"

Tommy merely nodded, and the reporter knew he was speaking the truth.

everybody in Four Corners, but somehow I can't see myself facing them in this. They have nothing to do but sit on a red-hot stove and laugh. 'I've got extra clothes,' said Cumberland. 'If you wait here I'll go and come back with the necessary. Aren't you dying for a smoke?'"

"I am," said Tommy. "You're a brick."

He accepted three of the reporter's cigars and a number of matches. It had leaked out that the angel from heaven recently found in the Adirondacks would reach New York on a certain train, and the entrances to the Grand Central Station were thronged with idlers on a lookout for a sensation. I don't know what they expected to see—some sort of a Caricature, perhaps, at whom they would jeer—certainly not Celestia. Very few persons in the crowd really saw her—but from these she passed swiftly with Professor Stilliter to a waiting taxi and no one else.

Very few persons in the crowd really saw her—but from these she passed swiftly with Professor Stilliter to a waiting taxi and no one else.

Another crowd not so large saw her leave the taxi and enter Bellevue Hospital. From these there went up a short, sharp murmur of pity. "Of course she's mad, poor thing," they thought, "or else they are going to make cake of her, and that's worse; and did anybody ever see such hair and eyes, and such a carriage of the head, or any dress so white, or anyone that moved with so much grace."

Professor Stilliter, who was well known to the Bellevue authorities, though he remained a spectator of all the tests to which her mental powers were subjected, refused to give his own conclusions as to her sanity.

"I've been with her a good many hours on end," he said, "and of course I've formed an opinion, but I refuse to interfere in any way with your experiments and deductions."

At first they all thought that she was mad. They couldn't help it. She told them that she came from heaven, and had come to save the world. And she told them these things with such simplicity and dignity that it was obvious to the most cynical that she at least believed what she said. "It was like a mother," said one of the young doctors afterward, "telling her children Bible stories."

Cross-questioning could neither shake her narrative, nor did she waver, and her mind continued to respond quickly and patiently to one test after another; they became more and more puzzled. Instead of being able to prove that she was insane, it began to dawn on them after hours of experiment and observation that she was the opposite, not only mentally but physically.

Professor Stilliter took the head doctor aside.

"You haven't even a pretext for detaining her, have you?" he asked.

"Not one," said the doctor. "She's as sane as any of us, according to all the tests, and yet she can't be what's to become of her."

"Why, as long as I discovered her," said Professor Stilliter, "I feel that at least look after her until I discover who her people are. So, if you'll keep her here for an hour I'll send for her."

The doctor followed Professor Stilliter into the waiting-room. This was empty but for a gentleman in a far corner whose face was concealed by a newspaper. At the outer door of the waiting-room Professor Stilliter shook hands with the doctor.

A SUNDAY SERMON BY PASTOR RUSSELL

GOD'S PERFECT DOSE OF JUSTICE AND LOVE

Mercy the Outward Expression of Love.

Love's Victory in God's Great Plan of the Ages—Why God Permitted Man's Fall—Experience With God's Justice First—Man's Six Thousand Years of Schooling a Most Valuable Training—How One Redeemer Could Purchase a Race—No Human Mind Could Have Conceived So Wonderful a Plan—God's Love Soon to Be Revealed to the Whole World.

New York City, Nov. 7.—Pastor Russell delivered a powerful address at the New York City Temple to-day, W. 6th St., near Broadway. His text was, "Mercy rejoiceth against judgment." He spoke as follows:

Our text signifies that Love has won the victory over Justice; for Mercy is merely an outward expression of Love. Let us turn to the way in which Divine Mercy operates, and we shall see the victory over Divine Justice. In so doing, I believe that we shall be learning something as to our proper attitude toward God's Father, our Father. We should study His methods, His ways, that we may have Heavenly wisdom. When, therefore, we see over His Justice, we shall see how it should be with us, in order that we may become like Him.

Now considering Divine Love and Divine Justice, we shall see how it is perfect in all His attributes. Both His Justice and His Love are perfect. But inasmuch as these are attributes of these qualities of the Divine Nature, we could not understand unless they were manifested. Thus far they have been manifested only so much as grace.

Justice the Foundation of God's Throne. Undoubtedly there is no lesson that the people of God need to learn more than this particular one of the relation of Justice and Love. In order to know how to exercise the qualities as God exercises them, and yet with some variations; for He has some things that we do not possess. We see that God's Love operates from the very beginning, when He created His Son to be His Logos. His Love was afterwards seen in the creation of angels, and in the whole race of man. We see that the fall of our race brought into operation Divine Justice; for it was Justice which decreed the penalty, for all sin, of death.

"Dying, thou shalt die," was the fiat of Divine Justice. (Genesis 2:17) God had decreed that death should result from disobedience. Divine Love agreed that the sentence was altogether proper, not only because it is right for God to be just, but also because it would not be good for man to live everlastingly in a fallen condition.

At last Professor Stilliter took the head doctor aside.

"You haven't even a pretext for detaining her, have you?" he asked.

"Not one," said the doctor. "She's as sane as any of us, according to all the tests, and yet she can't be what's to become of her."

"Why, as long as I discovered her," said Professor Stilliter, "I feel that at least look after her until I discover who her people are. So, if you'll keep her here for an hour I'll send for her."

The doctor followed Professor Stilliter into the waiting-room. This was empty but for a gentleman in a far corner whose face was concealed by a newspaper. At the outer door of the waiting-room Professor Stilliter shook hands with the doctor.

"You haven't even a pretext for detaining her, have you?" he asked.

"Not one," said the doctor. "She's as sane as any of us, according to all the tests, and yet she can't be what's to become of her."

rest. Love had beforehand arranged a Plan whereby redemption would come, whereby Love would triumph over Justice. In God's due time a purchase-price for man would be given. Then, after Justice should reign for six thousand years, during which the world would earn the wages of sin in all its manifold forms, redeeming Love should become restoring Love, calling mankind forth from the tomb, during the thousand years' Reign of the One who purchased them.

So ultimately, when death and hell in the graves shall have delivered up all that are in them, and when the curse of death shall be no more, Love will have triumphed over Justice. Thus we read, "O Death, where is thy sting? O Grave, where is thy victory?" "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ!"—1 Corinthians 15: 55, 57.

This is one of the most wonderful things that we see in the Bible—the more wonderful as we understand it the more. God always maintains His Justice, and He always maintains His Love; and we are blessed by both. Justice, having triumphed over the world for six thousand years, has brought our race down to Sheol, Hades—the tomb. Love, in the meantime, began to operate, though in a waiting attitude, and it has given the great sacrifice of Jesus, who has arranged that at the time of the Second Advent of Christ, and through His Reign of a thousand years, He shall awaken all humanity from the sleep of death.

How One Could Purchase a Race. We can thus see in the Bible what a great equalization, or balance, God has arranged. Since twenty thousand millions of souls have sinned, it would, in any other way than God's way, have required twenty thousand million redeemers. But when we see in God's way, we wonder at His arrangement. In so doing, I believe that we shall be learning something as to our proper attitude toward God's Father, our Father. We should study His methods, His ways, that we may have Heavenly wisdom.

When, therefore, we see over His Justice, we shall see how it should be with us, in order that we may become like Him.

Now considering Divine Love and Divine Justice, we shall see how it is perfect in all His attributes. Both His Justice and His Love are perfect. But inasmuch as these are attributes of these qualities of the Divine Nature, we could not understand unless they were manifested. Thus far they have been manifested only so much as grace.

Justice the Foundation of God's Throne. Undoubtedly there is no lesson that the people of God need to learn more than this particular one of the relation of Justice and Love. own merit to them, thereby making them acceptable to the Father. Not until then could they receive the begetting of the Holy Spirit. Ever since that time the Holy Spirit has been with the Church, begetting each one who came into this class.

With this begetting comes the illumination. We are then sons of God. Not only does this illumination enable us to understand things previously hidden from our eyes, but thereafter all the Word of God becomes food to us, that thereby we may grow in grace, in knowledge, in justice, in love, in all qualities of the Divine character, that thus we may become more like our Father who is in Heaven.

Deliverance of the World Now Due. Having, then, seen how Divine Justice has operated up till now for the future blessing of mankind, we look further, and see that Divine Mercy is now about to gain a great victory for the whole world. As soon as the Church is glorified, the merit of the Redeemer is to be applied for all the human race. But it will require the entire thousand years of Messiah's Reign before Mercy will have fully triumphed over Justice. We now perceive what Love will be doing for the world throughout those thousand years. It will be awakening mankind from death and lifting them up from degradation to holiness and life.

This will all come through the Lord Jesus Christ, who will be God's Agent, the Agent of Justice and of Love. The faithful Church will be associated with Him in all His Kingdom, glory, and honor. In order that we may be of this class, not only must we be begotten by the Spirit of God, but we must also manifest the fruits of that Spirit, we must be quickened by it. Then in the Resurrection, we shall be born of the Spirit and shall share with our Lord this work of love for all mankind, and shall also share His glory forever. At the conclusion of the Millennium, His Reign this glorious work of Divine Love will have been accomplished. Through all the outworkings of this wonderful Plan, the principles of absolute Justice and absolute Love will be observed, operating in full harmony.

In what manner will God's Justice operate during the next Age toward mankind? may be asked. Some have difficulty in seeing how the world in the future will have their sins forgiven. Will God not hold against the world something for wrongs committed in this life? Will the murderer have the same opportunity as those who have been more noble in their lives? How will Justice then be represented?

We believe that God's dealings will be in full harmony with Justice; that while Love will be especially operative or manifest during the Millennium, yet Justice will never be violated. Will mankind in the future, then, be punished for their sins in the present life? Yes, and no. They will not be punished in the sense of being held legally accountable for sins of the past; for this would nullify the grace of which Christ has purchased His death in providing satisfaction for Adam's sin. Christ having made satisfaction for the sins of believers, will God not hold against the world something for wrongs committed in this life? Will the murderer have the same opportunity as those who have been more noble in their lives? How will Justice then be represented?

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES. Lesson VII.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 14, 1915.

Text of the Lesson, Dan. i. 8-20—Memory Verses, 15—Golden Text, I Cor. xvi. 13—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Starns.

I am very glad to have the privilege of writing a lesson on Daniel, even though it be what is called a temperance lesson, for we shall find much more in it than appears on the surface. He is mentioned in Ezek. xl. 14, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

The Lord permitted this oppression and captivity, because of the sin of Judah and gave Jehoiakim and some of his people and some of the vessels of the house of God into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and among the captives were these four young men of royal blood, who were chosen to stand in the king's palace and to be taught the learning and tongue of the Chaldeans that they might stand before the king (verses 3-5).

They were to have a three years' course of preparation for their calling, and as to their food they were nourished from the king's table daily the same meat and wine which he ate and drank. At least that was the provision made for them. It was humiliating for an Israelite to be a captive. It was humiliating to have their beautiful Jewish names each of which had in them a suggestion of the true God of Jehovah, changed to names suggestive of idols (verses 6, 7). But this they could bear without any sin on their part. Our Lord Jesus Christ Himself was taken prisoner, bound and led by His captors as they pleased. They also called Him a devil and Beelzebub and said that He was beside Himself. So in these two particulars they were foreshadowing the sufferings of Christ.

When we suffer in these ways we have fellowship with Him in His sufferings. When it comes to eating and drinking that which had been offered to idols Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself, and no doubt he had prayed to his God about this. He asked permission of the prince of the eunuchs that he and his friends might be excused from receiving the food from the king's table and be given very plain fare, which had not passed that way, asking that they might be proved for ten days. They had fellowship with Him in His sufferings.  CHAPTER VIII.
 The New York Society "Belle."
 MEANWHILE, desperate and fear-stricken, Blair Stanley endeavored to forget his peril, and reckless indulgence in wild and reckless indulgence in Richmond.
 While his fugitive cousin lay in humble lodgings, Blair Stanley lorded it at a fine hotel, and every night found him gambling at the exclusive establishment of Abe Bloom. In desperation, finding himself "cleaned out" at Mr. Bloom's luxurious temple of chance, Blair had got the astute gentleman to cash his personal check on the Bank of Fairfax.
 In a few days this would be returned marked "No funds," Blair well knew, but he hoped meanwhile to recoup his losses and laugh in Abe Bloom's hawk-like face as he "made good the bum check" out of the winning he expected to gain at Abe's own roulette wheel.
 But the $2,000 went the way of the $500 his mother had given him—back into the coffers of the gambling house keeper who had advanced the money on the worthless check.
 One desperate chance was left. Blair resolved to pawn his watch and with the proceeds to invoke the wheel of chance again and by a streak of luck, who knows, win back all and so square himself and the check when it came back, for Blair found Richmond to his liking. Then, too, he worried over the mysterious visit to Fairfax of Tom Blake, the detective. Who had hired Blake?
 There was also the ball to be given by Mrs. Burton Randolph, who was a relative of his mother, and counted upon Blair's presence at her grand ball, the event of the social year in Richmond.
 Also Blair thought of Vivian Marston. Glorious Vivian, luxurious Vivian! She had come to Richmond, sworn friend of Mrs. Randolph, who had married her the winter before at Palm Beach. It was known of Vivian Marston that she was a wealthy and dashing young widow, high in the circles of New York's "four hundred."
 Blair Stanley had met her at his mother's cousin's mansion, and Blair had been first among those to fall victim of her charms.
 Arthur Stanley entered the pawnshop of Ike Bloom, brother and some said partner of the redoubtable Abe Bloom, king of the Richmond gamblers. The pawnshop was divided into partition spaces. Arthur saw the valent eyes of Isaac Bloom gleam when they fastened upon the diamond from the sky, with its antique chain and curious setting.
 Only too eagerly did the pawnbroker hand over the $300 Arthur asked on it, and only too eagerly did he hide it in a drawer.
 Arthur was about to slip from behind the privacy partitions to the street when he heard a voice say, "I want $50 on this watch." He staggered, half fainting with fear and joy, against the partition.
 It was only the voice of Blair Stanley! There could be no mistake. In a revulsion of feeling to find he was not a murderer and that Blair was alive and well Arthur threw himself around the partition and into the arms of Blair.
 Somewhat surprised, but feigning joy also, Blair repeated his supposed cousin's cries of wild delight. Then he made haste to explain that Dr. Lee had called him to his study and had given him the diamond from the sky and that, having done this, the doctor, who was greatly agitated, had fallen dead in his chair.
 "I was afraid I would be suspected of killing him for the diamond. How could I explain when you caught hold of me?" lied Blair glibly. "I did not mean any reflection upon Esther, as you thought I did," he continued. "I only thought any altercation at such a time and the doctor lying dead might jeopardize her good name. I was too frightened to explain, and you were too angry to listen to me."
 "I was only stunned and got home all right. But there has been a defective hired, and I believe he will find some clew, and your evidence would only tend to convict me, and I am innocent!"
 Arthur reflected that Dr. Lee had known he was the spurious heir and that the diamond did properly belong to Blair in consequence. He did not tell Blair the Stanley secret, that he, Arthur, was but a gypsy changeling. But he resolved to stand by Blair and thus in reparation do what good he could until the time came when he might tell. So for the time being he resolved to keep Edgar's secret—and his own.
 Blair was quick to take advantage of Arthur's joyous and softened mood. "I never will be able to prove I did not kill Dr. Lee," he said, with affected sadness. "True, there would not be any proof to convict me, but the suspicion of it would ruin me. You must stand by me, Arthur."

HIGH BRITISH COMMANDERS SHOULD GO
 Arthur Lynch, M.P., Urges That 70 Per Cent. of Leaders Be Let Out.
 WAR MUST BE WAR IN FIELD
 Defence of London Against Air Craft Essentially Matter of Coast Defence.
 London, Nov. 12.—Resuming the debate in the House of Commons, which was adjourned last night owing to absence of members of the Cabinet, William Joynson-Hicks, member of the British division of the League of Nations, drew attention to the condition of the Royal Flying Corps and the Naval Air Service. He said there was great dissatisfaction connected with the Naval Air Service in regard to the organization and the appointment of a chief who knew nothing about aircraft above the heads of those who, in fact, had built up the fabric of the service.
 It was important, added the member, that England should have large new aeroplanes for the offensive next Spring in order to meet the new airships and new aeroplanes which the Germans were building. He asked why work on an English Zeppelin had been stopped in January, and whether the Admiralty had dropped the policy of attacking Zeppelins by aeroplanes.
 Arthur Lynch, Nationalist member for West Clare, who fought in the field against Britain in the Boer war, made a strong attack against Lord Kitchener, who he said, had blundered in not moving to the defence of Liege, again on the question of munitions and once again in Serbia.
 "The blunder in the Dardanelles," he added, "was at least a blunder of a man who meant to do something."
 He contended that the war was being conducted with signal incompetence, and that unless there was a change the country was moving straight to disaster. He would sweep away 70 per cent. of the higher British command, beginning with Field Marshal French, who had been in command fifteen months and "had made no progress."
 In the last offensive, continued Mr. Lynch, the allies broke through the German lines, but in the superior command decision was wanting to take full advantage of the moral victory. The Government, he declared, had no plan of campaign. The idea of a successful war of attrition was absurd. The war must be won in the field. The men were good and munition straight to disaster. It was leadership and direction which were lacking.
 AERIAL DEFENCE OF LONDON.
 Mr. Balfour, replying to the remarks of Mr. Joynson-Hicks, said he did not think it ought to be assumed that the Germans had taken the lead in aircraft construction. It was the decision of the Admiralty and War Office to improve the construction of aircraft in strength power and speed for the aerial defence of London. It would, of course, be an enormous advantage to have overwhelming forces of aircraft of the latest design, which could be hurried against the invader and become invaders themselves, and the Government was doing its best to increase the number of aviators and machines for their use.
 "We are building," he said, "not an inconsiderable number of lighter-than-air craft at the moment, largely for the purpose of scouting. The question of lighter-than-air and heavier-than-air craft is still undecided. There are many persons who think that Germany chose wrongly in choosing Zeppelins."
 Mr. Balfour pointed out that although when the war broke out the air service was relatively in its infancy, it would be found that during the progress of the war it had not fallen behind that against which it was matched. In fact it had outgrown its primitive condition and had to be put under the accepted system of the Admiralty.
 COAST DEFENCE.
 The largest part of the defence of London, continued the First Lord, must be a coast defence, and as they got more of the appliances for this purpose they would more nearly succeed in achieving it. At present the Admiralty were limited by their means of defence, but they were making guns as fast as they could, just as they were making aeroplanes and developing pilots as fast as they could. The anti-aircraft defences were improving daily. They were becoming more formidable, and would be much more formidable than they are at present.
 The service was being constantly pulled up by the shortage of men and no fairly waving of hands could put that right. The aeroplane had not yet the range to enable it to proceed from these shores and become a menace. The enemy Zeppelins, which attacked England, came from North Germany, which it was not easy for British aircraft to attack.
 With respect to the charges of blundering in the operations, Mr. Balfour said he had no doubt there was much talent in the country which was not finding its best operation; nor did he think that every man in high command was the very best man that omniscience could discover, but nothing could be gained by such a speech as Mr. Lynch had delivered. No practical suggestion had been made except that every man now engaged should be turned out and some unspecified persons put in to direct affairs.

 He quite agreed that wherever merit was found it should be promoted, but broadcast criticisms of the soldiers and reckless attacks on the diplomatic service, he declared, did no good to the cause of the country, nor helped those responsible for public affairs.
 PASSED VOTE OF CREDIT.
 After several members had spoken on the various aspects of the war, J. P. Conboy, Liberal, closing the debate, said that, while the situation was not so bad as it was painted, there was a limit of endurance, and the chancellor of the Exchequer could not do only the gravest apprehension to the future. After the war, he declared, the Foreign Office would have to be cleared from top to bottom.
 Mr. Edward Grey, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, assured the House that if the Government had not done as much as it should have liked for Serbia, it had not been from any want of good-will. The French and British Governments had offered to send 150,000 troops to Salonica to enable Greece to fulfil her treaty obligations to Serbia. They had sent the men who were available at once and had begun to make preparations for the transport of troops from other places, but these could not be obtained without due regard for the military exigencies. Then Greece changed her mind. After consultation with France, however, it was decided to continue the despatch of troops to Salonica. It was due only to the limitations imposed by the war that more had not been sent.
 The House formally agreed to a vote of credit for £400,000,000 ($2,000,000,000) asked for by Premier Asquith.

 Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The work of the signallers of the 38th battalion of Ottawa, now in Bermuda, in connection with the wreck of the steamer Pollock-shield there on September 7th last, is commended in a cable received by his Royal Highness the Governor-General, through the Colonial Office, from Governor Bullock, of Bermuda. Writing of the work of rescuing the crew, Lieut. Governor Bullock says:
 "The signallers of the 38th Ottawa Canadian battalion, now quartered here, rendered, under Lieut. Armstrong, most valuable assistance in keeping up communication by flag and lamp with the ship under very difficult circumstances and the following officers of the battalion worked hard in the water to help the crew ashore. Major McNeil, Lieuts. Bell, Macfarlane and Gardner."
