CHAPTER XI.
HELD BY THE ENEMY.

Moreover, before installing Eversley in the house at Hampstead, the astute physician had also had an interview with the Honorable Arthur Ashley before taking charge of the case, which had satisfied him that he would make a very handsome profit by using his professional position to legalize what was, to all intents and purposes, a deliberately planned and carefully thought-out act of murder.

He had made a very careful examination of his patient, and he had arrived at an entirely accurate opinion as to his condition. To begin with, there had been malarial fever, which had left incurable results behind it. Then had come a rather severe attack of heat apoplexy, which is commonly known as sunstroke, although it occurs more commonly in a heated atmosphere under clouded skies. After this, the usual consequences had followed, a weakening of will power and self-control, a craving for stimulants, and for drugs to counteract their effects, loss of appetite, and general mental and physical debility.

Doctor Mathews, after he had made his first examination, expressed what, in a certain sense, were really his convictions, very clearly to Mrs. Ashley and her aunt.

"I have no fear, my dear ladies," he said, on the evening of the day on which his patient had been installed in his new quarters, "of making a complete cure, provided always that proper precautions are taken. The constitution has been weakened to some extent by disease. Malarial fever always leaves behind it certain after effects, which are generally incurable, but which, with care, can be to a very great extent suppressed; but, of course, Sir Arthur's case is made much more serious by the unfortunate attack of what is commonly called sunstroke, after the malaria. That is mainly responsible for the unhappy tendency toward alcohol and drugs, which is, of course, the worst symptom of our distinguished patient's case."

"Yes," murmured Miss Holroyd, "it is really very sad, very sad indeed, that a man with such a record as Sir Arthur should be afflicted with this terrible falling."

"Of course it is, aunt," added Lillas, who was growing more and more impatient with her aunt's useless lamentations. "But that is just the work that we have to do, under Doctor Mathews' direction, and, if a cure is possible—"

She looked at the doctor with a smile on her lips and a note of interrogation in each of her eyes, and he took the hint, and said, in his best professional manner:

"My dear Mrs. Ashley, I do not think you need have any fear on that score. It is not so much a matter of medicine as of treatment; in other words, you, as nurse, can do a great deal more than I can as a doctor. I need hardly remind you that great care will have to be exercised in the gradual reduction of the quantities of alcohol and morphia which Sir Arthur is permitted to take. In some cases we find it advisable to stop everything at once, but in such a case as his, complicated with disease, the shock to the system would be too great to be risked."

"I quite see what you mean," said Lillas. "Just a little less spirits every day, until we get down to none. Meanwhile, light wines to take their place, and at night less chloral and morphia gradually, until Sir Arthur is able to sleep without them."

"My dear madam," said Doctor Mathews, smiling and rubbing his hands softly together, "I think that Sir Arthur Eversley is doubly fortunate in finding such a friend and such a nurse as yourself. You have described the proper treatment exactly, and all that you have left for me to do is just to prescribe my tonics, which will gradually take the place of and diminish the desire for the drugs and stimulants. There is, however, one point which it is my duty to mention, because it is a very important one."

"And that is, doctor?" murmured Lillas again, with the notes of interrogation in her eyes.

"It is this," replied the specialist, speaking slowly and seriously: "The medicine which I shall prescribe will increase in strength as the desire for stimulants and drugs decreases, and it is most important, in fact, I may say essential, that the quantities taken be very carefully observed."

"Oh, I think you can rely upon our doing everything in that way that is necessary, doctor," said Miss Holroyd, a little stiffly. "Sir Arthur's is, of course, a most valuable life, and, as you know already, that my niece has refused to marry him until your cure has proved successful, naturally every care and attention that we can give—"

"My dear Miss Holroyd," said the doctor, as she paused, "there cannot be the slightest question as to that. What I was about to tell you is a purely professional matter which you ladies could not be expected to know. It is this: As I have just said, the medicines which I shall prescribe will reduce the effects of drugs and stimulants in the constitution of our patient, and I need hardly say that the remedies which I shall have to employ will be somewhat potent, and, therefore, any mistake might have very serious consequences."

"Ah, yes," said Lillas, looking fixedly at him again, "we shall have to be very careful about the doses as the treatment goes on."

"It is not only that, my dear Mrs. Ashley. The one danger is what I may perhaps call a fight between the remedy and the causes of the disease, with our patient's constitution as the battle ground. If, for instance, it happens that after our treatment had proceeded for three or four days, Sir Arthur, by any mischance, obtained access to a supply of morphia or chloral, and gave himself the dose that he thought he wanted, the consequences would be almost certainly fatal. Therefore I shall have to ask you to exercise the greatest care and attention in this respect."

"Quite so, doctor," said Lillas, rising from her chair. "That is a thing which I should never have thought of, and so both my aunt and myself are much obliged to you for mentioning it. We are to understand, then, that as the strength of your prescriptions is increased, alcohol and drugs are to be decreased, and that we must be very particular that Sir Arthur does not—well, I don't think there's any danger of that. He has promised me he will do everything he can to help us follow out the treatment faithfully; and I'm quite sure that ever if he had anything dangerous within reach, he would remember his promise, and not do anything foolish."

"My dear madam," replied Doctor Mathews, putting out his hand, "allow me to warn you not to be too sure. One of the gravest symptoms from which Sir Arthur Eversley is unfortunately suffering is the loss of will power and the sense of responsibility. You have no idea of the terrible temptation I may say, which alcohol or drugs present to a man or woman in his condition, especially during the critical stage of treatment. When the craving comes on, there is nothing that the victim of alcohol and drugs will not do to satisfy it, if the means are within reach. For the time being everything is forgotten except the craving and the possible relief. But I'm sure that until he is cured you ladies will be both will and conscience to Sir Arthur. Your care will guard him, and your strength will replace his temporary weakness. From what I have seen and heard to-day, I am quite sure that he could not possibly be in better hands. Now, I have a case to see, and I must be off. Don't worry about me; I will come in by the side door, and I shall have had supper. Good night, Miss Holroyd. Good night, Mrs. Ashley."

When he got into his own sanctum, he lit a cigar and helped himself to a generous glass of whiskey and soda. Then he went out, and, as he walked down the road he puffed thoughtfully at his cigar, and said to himself:

"Well, my dear Sir Arthur, if those good ladies really mean to put an end to your sufferings and your somewhat useless life, I'm afraid that I have pointed out to them the most innocent way of doing it. Still, a thousand pounds for a few days' medical attention is not bad pay. You, I dare say, would give me ten thousand for saving your life; but, unfortunately, I'm not in a position to treat with you, and so I'm afraid I shall have to leave your fate in the hands of Mrs. Lillas Ashley. Good heavens, what a perfectly lovely woman she is! If I were under thirty, I think I would rather be nursed and killed by her, than nursed and saved by any one else. Yet she doesn't seem to have any more human feeling, or any more sense of compassion, than a tigress!"

"I don't see any reason why it shouldn't be done at once, if we have

YOU WILL NOT GET THE "FLU"

If You Build Up Your Run-Down Condition

It Attacks People Who Are All Worn Out, Anæmic, Devitalized and Weak

Strong People Never Get Influenza

During every epidemic it is always the weak, run-down, over-worked, devitalized men, women and children who so quickly fall a prey to the ravages of disease.

When, therefore, an epidemic is prevalent why not use a little precaution and build up the tired out, run-down over-worked, devitalized members of your family by giving them VINOL.

There is nothing that acts so quickly as a tonic retractor. It makes red corpuscles, enriches the blood, quickens the circulation, sharpens the appetite, promotes sound sleep, and imparts strength, vitality and energy to every organ and muscle in the body.

Your physician recommends VINOL and your druggist agrees to return your money if it fails to benefit.

For all run-down, nervous, anæmic conditions, weak women, over-worked men, feeble old people and delicate children there is no remedy like VINOL.

really made up our minds to do it," said Lillas, to her aunt, after the doctor had left the room and she had closed the door behind him. "Everything is settled, and—well, it seems as though we were keeping the poor man in misery longer than is necessary. I've got the tablets, and I don't see why he shouldn't find them and the syringe to-night as well as later. Suppose you go up and give him a dose of his new medicine now—a good dose—and then I'll relieve the nurse for an hour or so, about eleven."

"Lillas," replied Miss Holroyd, rising somewhat heavily from her chair, "you are my own sister's daughter, and, therefore, to some extent, you have my blood in your veins; therefore, perhaps, I have the right to say that you are not only the most beautiful girl I have ever seen, but also the most callously wicked that I have ever heard of."

"Wicked, my dear aunt?" Lillas laughed, with smiling lips and dancing eyes. "Surely, after the experiences of the last four or five years, it isn't necessary for me to tell you that there is no such thing as good or evil in the world; it is merely a matter of expediency. Now, we won't argue the question any further. Just go up and give Sir Arthur his medicine, and tell the nurse that I shall be up about eleven. I've got one or two letters to write, and something to think about."

"Yes, Lillas, I dare say you have," said Miss Holroyd, with just a suspicion of a sniff as she walked toward the door. "I am beginning to feel very sorry that I allowed myself to be drawn into this business at all. What on earth would become of us if—well, if anything happened?"

"You mean if we are found out?" laughed Lillas again. "Well, you know you can't make omelets without breaking eggs, and that is one of the risks we must take."

Creole cocoa is made with a slight flavoring of cinnamon and clove extract in it.

THERE IS ONLY ONE GENUINE ASPIRIN

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

Your druggist gladly will give you the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" because genuine Aspirin now is made by Americans and owned by an American Company.

There is not a cent's worth of German interest in Aspirin, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. But now you can get genuine Aspirin, plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross"—Aspirin proved safe by millions for Headache, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Mononuclear-dioxy-acetic Acid, The Bayer Co., Buss, U.S.A.

SOCIALISTS HAVE WHIP HAND.

BERLIN, March 31.—Leaders of three socialist parties have sent an energetic ultimatum to the Government requesting that it suspend the Bielefeld convention and immediately suspend all military measures in the Ruhr valley. The Government has given until three o'clock today afternoon either to accept the ultimatum or to face a general strike will follow, Chancellor Mueller was informed by the socialist delegation.

ACTION OF U.S. SENATE RESENTED.

LONDON, March 31.—The United States was handled through gloves by Premier Lloyd George and Sir Edward Carson, Ulster Unionist leader, in the debate to-day in the House of Commons, in the second reading of the Irish bill. The Premier said it was action such as that taken by the United States Senate in the adoption of the Irish resolution that had fostered secession. "De Valera is putting forth the same views in the same words of Jefferson Davis," the Premier declared, and added that such movements has led to civil war. "We are doing nothing more than the United States claim for themselves, he continued, "and will stand no less." Sir Edward Carson, in opening the debate, said he believed that the Irish murders were committed "not by my countrymen, but by ill-conditioned Americans," misled by the Sinn Fein propaganda, which, he declared, pointed to the Government, "you are doing nothing to counteract."

BIG LOCKOUT IN ROME.

ROME, March 31.—A lockout was put into force to-day against nearly one hundred thousand men in Rome industries who for several days have been going to the shops and remaining there eight hours, but performing no work. When they went to the shops to-day they found them occupied by soldiers, and were unable to gain admittance. The employers decided that they would no longer permit their men to enter the factories unless they were willing to work.

HOME RULE BILL READ SECOND TIME.

LONDON, March 31.—The House of Commons passed the second reading of the Irish Home Rule Bill to-day. The vote was 348 to 94.

IN THE PANAMA CANAL.

PANAMA, March 31.—Blasting operations in the Culebra cut section of the canal were necessary yesterday before the Renown with the Prince of Wales on board could proceed through the great waterway. As the Renown neared the point where the landslides have recently recurred, boats went ahead and made soundings, discovering a rock fifty feet square, directly in the course to be taken by the vessel. After a wait of two hours the rock was removed at the risk of dislodging more landslides, and then the Renown was towed over the dangerous and narrow channel.

FRANCE REFUSES.

PARIS, March 31.—The request of the German Government that it be permitted to send troops to a district in the neutral zone near the German border has been denied by the Government of France.

REDS STILL HOLD OUT.

ESSEN, Mar. 31.—The time fixed in the Berlin Government's ultimatum for the workmen's forces in the Ruhr valley to surrender their arms and recognize local and Government officials, expired at noon yesterday, and almost immediately the population of Essen, which had been about the streets during the morning, sought shelter in their homes. Communists' army leaders say the Government troops have begun to march, but information received from other sources indicate they have not started as was threatened in the ultimatum. A state of ferment prevails in the workers army, and a number of contingents from conservative towns like Dusseldorf have withdrawn from the front.

POLICE BARRACKS ATTACKED.

SKIBBEREEN, County Cork, Mar. 31.—More than one hundred armed men attacked the police barracks at Durrus, seven miles southwest of Banley, County Cork, with rifles and petrol bombs last night. A portion of the building was blown up and two policemen were wounded, one seriously. After a fierce fight the raiders, some of whom are believed to have been wounded, were driven off.

SCHR. GLADYS M. STREET ABANDONED.

LONDON, Mar. 31.—The crew of the British schooner Gladys M. Street, which was abandoned and set on fire at sea on March 29th, are aboard the steamer Major Wheeler, from Corunna, Spain, for Colon, according to a wireless message received by the naval commission service here to-day. The schooner was bound from St. John's, Nfld., for Gibraltar.

RESOLUTION TO DECLARE WAR AT END.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—A joint resolution declaring the state of war between the United States and Germany at an end, was introduced to-day in the House. The measure was referred to the Foreign Affairs Commission. The Republicans plan to bring it up on Friday under special rule with the hope of final action before adjournment that day. Attention was called that this would be Good Friday, and that the war was declared by the United States on Good Friday three years ago.

Newfoundlanders at Historic King's.

Varsity Proud of Them.

The University of King's College,
Windsor, Nova Scotia,
March 25, 1920.

Editor Evening Telegram,
St. John's, Newfoundland.

My dear Mr. Editor,—The College year of 1919-1920 is drawing to a close, and it seems to us that perhaps Newfoundland, the Oldest British Colony would wish to know something regarding her sons attending the Oldest Colonial University. King's has always had a warm spot in her heart for Newfoundlanders, and it has been her privilege to welcome many of them into her old and hallowed precincts from time to time.

In 1917 the Royal Newfoundland Regiment was stationed at Windsor and during their stay they won the admiration and respect of the boys at King's. There were several keenly contested hockey matches played between the Regiment and the Varsity team, and good clean sportsmanship characterised the games throughout.

In 1918 the College hockey squad visited St. John's, and the hospitality and kindness accorded them on that occasion by the people of Terra Nova was beyond all expectation.

This year there are three Newfoundlanders at King's, and all three were regular men on the Varsity Sixette, a team which defeated the Intercollegiate Champions of the Maritime Provinces by a score of 5-5. T. H. Winter has been a regular man on the team for four years and for two of those has captained it. He has also been captain of the football team, and twice he has been awarded the medal for the best all-round athlete. Tommy has always been a general favorite among the men, and it is with sincere regret that we must see him leave us at the end of the year.

Reg. Parnell has played a star defence on the Hockey Sixette for two years, and we predict the captaincy for him next year. This year he won the silver medal awarded for the cross country race, doing six miles in 38 minutes. Reg. is of a very energetic temperament. He has organized a Varsity Store at the College, and as far as we know, King's is the first University in the Dominion to operate its own College Store. In addition to this, Reg. has won the Reading Prize and also what is known as the Binney Exhibition Prize, and at the present time he is Secretary to the President.

This year we welcomed to our midst Gerald White, and we soon discovered, like all the other Newfoundlanders of our acquaintance, he was an all-round athlete. As full-back on the football team he played a star game and when the all-star hockey team, chosen from the Maritime Colleges was drawn up, he was given the position of right wing. Gebby has still five more years to spend at Old King's and we feel sure that the captaincy of both the hockey and football teams will be his lot in the near future.

In conclusion we might say that if there are more Newfoundlanders like the three we now have, we feel sure that they can do no better than come to King's, where a warm welcome will await them.

Believe me to be, yours faithfully,
H. H. WALSH,
Arts '21.

In the Supreme Court.

IN THE MATTER OF THE HARBOR
MAIN ELECTION PETITIONS.

Between Richard Kelly, Petitioner, and William Woodford, Respondent.

A crowded Court, comprising a large section of the legal profession and many inquisitive citizens, greeted the proceedings in this matter this morning. The Full Bench was present.

When the case was called by the Registrar nobody appeared on behalf of the Petitioner, Richard Kelly, but Mr. Howley, K.C., and Mr. Higgins, K.C., Counsel for Mr. Woodford, the Respondent, were both present.

Mr. Howley moved, on behalf of Mr. Woodford, that a certificate of indemnity be granted to him and, in support of his motion, addressed the Court as follows:

He first outlined the history of the case, pointing out that the case came up for trial before the Court on the morning of the 18th of March, when Mr. Gibbs, K.C., Counsel for the Petitioner, moved to have the petition withdrawn. The Court intimated that they thought that in proceedings for withdrawal the English practice should be followed; that notice should be given and affidavits by all the parties and their solicitors should be filed, showing whether or not there had been any collusion. An adjournment then took place without setting a day, but five days later, on an application in the Jones case, the Court intimated that they would sit on the following day on the Woodford case.

In the meantime, although no notice had been given, affidavits from Richard Kelly, the Petitioner, and John Barron of the firm of Gibbs & Barron, Solicitors for the Petitioner, had been filed.

On the assumption of the hearing the Court handed down the judgment defining the procedure to be followed in such cases, which amongst other things, required all the parties and their solicitors to file affidavits. In pursuance of that requirement Counsel for the Respondent filed affidavits from the Solicitors and from the Respondent himself. Before filing the respondent's affidavit Counsel intimated to the Court that they would ask for a certificate of indemnity for Mr. Woodford with regard to the matters contained in the affidavit. Mr. Howley then read the law, showing that it was a criminal offence punishable on indictment by imprisonment for one year and a fine of £200 sterling for any person to make an agreement with regard to the withdrawal of a petition and the vacation of a seat, and he pointed out that on the sworn statement of Mr. Woodford, Mr. Woodford himself, Mr. Squires, the Prime Minister, and Mr. M. F. Gibbs, the Solicitor for the Petitioner, stood charged with this criminal offence; therefore, he asked for the certificate of indemnity for Mr. Woodford, to which Mr. Woodford's affidavit had truly answered the matters required of him. Mr. Howley pointed out that Mr. Woodford's affidavit had lain on the records of the Court for over a week uncontradicted and that in itself might be argued as being sufficient to satisfy the Court that he had answered truly; but if the Court still had any doubt that Mr. Woodford had truly answered the questions required of him, then Counsel took the position that the Court should further enquire into the matter and satisfy themselves as to whether Mr. Woodford's affidavit was correct or incorrect. The Court took the position that they were there simply to try this Election petition and were not an inquisitorial body, and that there was no charge before them except the charges of corrupt practice set forth in the petition.

Counsel for the Respondent replied that he persisted in his motion for the certificate of indemnity, and stated that the question for the Court was "Are they satisfied that Woodford has answered truly?" and that "if they were not satisfied that they should take steps to further investigate. The Court then ordered that the Registrar communicate with the Attorney General and send him copies of the affidavits that had been filed, so that that Officer may take such steps as may seem to him necessary. On making this order the Court pointed out that under the English practice this was the duty of the Director of Public Prosecutions, and that the duties of such officer were incumbent upon the Attorney General in this Colony.

Mr. Howley then moved for the dismissal of the petition for want of prosecution, and Mr. F. A. Mews, who had come into Court during the discussion, stood up to state that he expected to be in a position to-morrow to state whether or not he represented Richard Kelly and asked for an adjournment until to-morrow for that purpose. Mr. Howley objected to Mr. Mews being heard at all, in as much as he did not represent Richard Kelly and had no locus standi, and the Court upheld the objection and refused to entertain Mr. Mews' motion.

The further hearing of the case was set down for April 9th, and in the meantime the Registrar will communicate the facts to the Attorney General.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

YOU CAN'T HAVE BOTH.

In the advertising of a motion picture which has been very popular lately, the advertiser gives a list of the things every woman wants.

It is an interesting list. It begins (and rightly) with love. It ends (as rightly) with an italicized phrase—To do as she pleases.

Did't Realize a Great Truth.

Now a woman who has been five or six years, who is always saying things about how a man loves a woman after she gets her. This woman's husband before they were married. He was an idealist and he she exemplified all the beauties he loved. And she, like a woman who is passing the mating season, did rise herself in the effort to be what he desired. Then they were married the tension was relaxed. He wanted above all things to do as he pleased and that included indulging in certain ugly habits, a slackness of character, a habit of saying probable things about people (the usual thing about people of that sort of thing) a trick of being deceitful in small ways. Though he still loves her, he can't say it is inevitable that he should not feel the same adoration he felt before she yielded to her do as she pleased. And she, who was loved one must be lovable, she is not.

That is one of the things I mean by the incompatibility of wanting to do as one pleases.

Reason Mothers Get So Much of the First.

Intimacies—such as close friendships, marriage, family life—possible only through a yielding of some of this right by all parties. Reason mothers get so much of the first thing—the first is because they are willing to give up so much of the last.

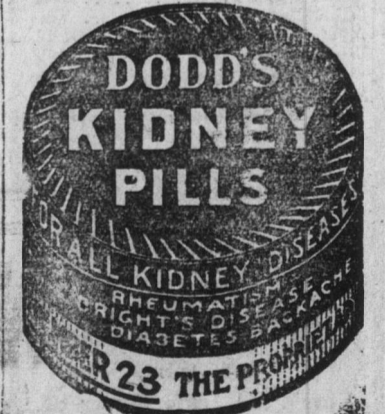

Of course, it is not only women who want both love and the right to do as they please. Men want the same, but I think they place the emphasis differently. They want first the right to do as they please, second love.

And, for this and for certain other reasons (the law of supply and demand is one of them), they seem to have rather better luck in getting what they want than women.

Perhaps some day someone will write a play about what every man wants. I think it would be interesting, don't you?

BREVITY.

If you desire to make a hit it's well to bear in mind that brevity is the soul of wit, the wisest scheme you'll find. Long winded men are always shunned, they fill our souls with care, although they may possess a fund of knowledge rich and rare. We all detest the dreary chump who tells a rambling tale, so long it reaches from the dump clear to the county jail. We all are bored by dizzy birds who know not when to stop, who pile up endless words on words, and other words on top. How comforting the silent gent, who makes a brief retort, who's always said just what he meant, and cut the saying short! The words he pushes through his face are chosen as the best; for brevity is the soul of grace and sense and all the rest. The man who lectures for an hour will make his hearers mad; he'll see the faces turning sour that at the start were glad. Ten minutes are enough. I wot for my speaker's junk; for nearly all we say is rot; the rest is mostly bunk.

Tarts can be baked in gem pans. An excellent icing is a cocoa icing. Sardines are good served on hot, buttered toast. Pork should never be kept long before cooking. Asparagus on toast is a good breakfast dish. Pimientos and cream cheese make a delicious salad. Freshly cut asparagus does not need long cooking. Green vegetables are not at their best out of season. The great enemy of silk underwear is perspiration. The use of casseroles saves a deal of dish washing. If your cake cracks while baking it contains too much flour. A fireless cooker is the greatest boon to a servantless house. Cream of carrot soup is very good for the winter dinner. In steaming puddings, it is best to keep them at uniform heat. Meat may be broiled in a hot frying pan without any fat in it. Strong heat is apt to curdle puddings composed of milk and eggs. Cocoa can be used as the most important protein element of a meal. Pancakes served with raisin sauce are an excellent luncheon dish. A small cupboard for soap and other cleaning agents is a great comfort. Salads need not be expensive, and the best salads are never elaborate. Poultry will keep down asparagus beetles if they can be let into the patch.

Just Folks

THE CHEERFUL WORKER.

Used to think that plowin' fields held nothin' interestin'— Until I learned to hear the birds an' watch 'em at their nestin' Used to think the rows were long an' difficult to follow— Until I got to look in' for a certain friendly swallow;— Used to curse the tasks I had an' all the ties that bound me— Until I woke one day to see the blossoms all around me.

Then I was sick at heart an' sad an' grumbled at my duty, I only saw the muddy earth an' missed its lovely beauty;— The yellow clay was on my boots an' it was hard to clean them, Yet they had walked on violets an' I had never seen them;— Then men were only men to me who tolled for meager payment— Until I learned to see their souls beneath their outer raiment.

But now, although the work be hard, I know there's fun behind it, For I have learned at every turn that I may surely find it;— An' I have learned to know the birds an' every song they're singin', I know just where they build their nests an' just what food they're bringin'.

I know the wild flowers by their names, an' where the partridge hovers, An' I am always on the watch for what I may discover.

When boiling fish lay it on a piece of cheesecloth on the rack, then it can be lifted out.

Whom the Gods Would Destroy.

(Wall Street Journal)

Has the White House utterly lost all sense of proportion, to say nothing of all sense of humor? Does "quem deus vult perdere prius dementat" actually apply? Or is it that Mr. Wilson's apologists are incurably silly? His faithful supporter, the New York World, publishes on its front page an explanation of why the British Ambassador, Lord Grey, was not allowed to present his credentials to the President when others, including the Prince of Wales, were received.

The explanation given is that an attaché of the previous British Embassy, Lord Reading's military secretary, on at least one occasion, a dinner, allowed himself to speak in comment and ridicule of the White House "family." This comment is said to have been conveyed, by two women, to the Person most concerned. It was then seriously submitted to the State Department and, by it, to Lord Reading. An apology or explanation from the indiscreet British officer was accepted by Mr. Lansing. The officer subsequently returned to Europe in the train of his Britannic Majesty.

But when Viscount Grey came to the United States on his diplomatic appointment the same officer occupied a minor position on his staff. It is stated, by the World's correspondent in Washington, that the White House then requested the withdrawal of this official, and that Viscount Grey did not comply with this somewhat astonishing amendment to the peace treaty. It is further alleged, by the same authority, that this is the reason why Lord Grey returned to England without making the President's acquaintance, and why he subsequently embarrassed the President of the United States by what appeared, to the rest of us, an honest attempt to tell his own people something about the American Constitution.

If this is so truth is stronger than fiction. As a matter of fact history proves that it is, Frederick the Great once ventured, in mixed company, some ranking comment upon Madame de Pompadour. She, or officially Louis XIV, resented the gratuitous fling, and the consequence was that France went to war on the side of Prussia's enemies. Both Catherine of Russia and Maria Theresa of Austria considered personal remarks a cause of war. But Frederick was an absolute monarch and they were queens.

For the sake of common decency it is to be hoped that the President will immediately do something to muzzle his friends. He has adopted a tone of absolutism which requires all sorts of dignity to make itself effective. Now, least of all times, can he afford to be made ridiculous.

GOOD FRIDAY.

Good Friday is the usual English name for the day observed throughout Christendom as the anniversary of the Crucifixion and Death of Christ. From the earliest period of its observance by the Church, the day was marked by a specially rigorous fast, and on the whole by a great simplicity of ritual in the public services. Good Friday marks the end of the season of Lent, that period during which "all who profess and call themselves Christians," are undergoing examination in preparation for participation and reception into that new life given to all mankind by the marvel of the resurrection of Christ on Easter morning. Good Friday marks the culmination of the passion of the Redeemer, and His death upon the Cross of Calvary on the evening of that day which was at the time thought by His Apostles to be "the darkest day in their lives" has ever since been the theme of Christianity, for having been lifted up He has drawn all men unto Him. And so with solemn and impressive ceremony the Way of the Cross is followed on Good Friday, and men and women and children endeavour to celebrate it in a manner at once becoming the wondrous event and in a spirit of drawing nearer to the things which Christ would have them do. In the following article, taken from an exchange, the lessons of Good Friday are brought home, and we are shown that to properly appreciate this one great day, our one thought should be to celebrate it in a manner as near as possible to that which God would wish, according to our circumstances and surroundings.

THE SACRED DAY.

Before we commence our pleasure trips on Good Friday, let us stop and think what those two words mean. Before we set our factory plants in motion, let us behold the "Man of Sorrows." Before we lift the ax, or handle the scythe, or the typewriter, drive the pen, let us remember how much we owe to the man who made this day—Good Friday. To celebrate this day in a manner which would be approved by the founder, we must appreciate it more than we do at present. To appreciate the day properly the heart must be right in the sight of the Lord God. We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that the people who do not appreciate Good Friday are the folk who have not yet awakened. Yes! they are dead in trespasses and sin. This day among Christian nations should be a day of supplication and prayer.

Let the thought of the darkness which enveloped the earth at the time of Christ's death come before our minds. The darkness is an emblem of sin. Has this darkness been altogether dispersed? No! Because men, yeal men of Christian nations have not appreciated the act of Jesus Christ on that great day.

WE SHOULD CELEBRATE THIS DAY FROM THE STANDPOINT OF PRAISE.

God expects praise from us, and "He is worthy to be praised." We have much to praise Him for, especially for the gift of His dear Son. How Abraham praised God when a ram was substituted for his son Isaac, the place where the incident took place became a monument of Abraham's praise and gratitude to God for the timely deliverance of his only beloved son. How much should we praise God for Jesus Christ who became a substitute for us.

Let every ring of the axe or blow of the hammer on that day remind you of the blows that Christ received for you.

During the war years there were those who were ready to say, "that we cannot let up on that day; our enemy would get ahead of us." Have we no more confidence in God than that; are we afraid that He would not honor our act of worship.

Let us take an incident from the Old Testament. When Amon, Moab and Mount Seir were about to invade the kingdom of Judah, King Jehoshaphat proclaimed a fast, an act of worship, then the Man of God said unto the leader of the nation. "Stand you still and see the salvation of God." The result was that the allied enemy forces were routed, they fell by their own sword.

WHY SHOULD WE CELEBRATE GOOD FRIDAY!

Because the incident which occurred on that day forms the base, the foundation of the Christian Religion. "He saved others, Himself He could not save." If we could not say this of Him the day would not have its superb title. A day with a title like this has been honored in the past. The attitude toward the day on the part of many people has caused this question to be asked. Has the incident of that day lost its significance, and is this the reason why it is so often passed over as any other ordinary day?

Many thousands of homes have been plunged into grief through sons making the supreme sacrifice. Will the day when the sad news arrived be forgotten in these thousands of homes?

Those men gave their lives for their loved ones; they have followed along the way of Christ who made the supreme sacrifice for the whole world, and the day of their sacrifice will be a sacred day in those families.

IS GOOD FRIDAY THE MOST SACRED DAY OF THE YEAR!

If we take any other day of the year which we celebrate, and analyze the reason why we celebrate, we cannot conscientiously say that any one of them is more sacred. Christ's birth, resurrection, ascension we celebrate because of the great incident that occurred on Good Friday, therefore it must be the most sacred day. A sacred day is one which is invaluable, not to be profaned, or its glory tarnished by works and acts which would dishonor it. Can we say that it is not profaned or tarnished in this our Christian land by the wanton neglect of many people who profess to be Christian? Do we not behold their irreverence; yeal their indifference?

Should we suspend business operations on that day! Is not the sacrifice of Christ made worth a few hours of our time? Are not the sacrifices which our boys have made worth a few hours on that day to worship and thank God for the hope which He has given us through His Son, the hope by which many of our boys were carried triumphantly over the river of death? Will not their sufferings and their passing cause us to remember:

"Long years ago, as earth lay dark and still,
Rose a loud cry from a lonely hill!"

It was the spirit of self-denial that caused Christ to die for us. It was the same spirit which caused these heroic boys to bleed and die for us. Cannot we deny ourselves for a few hours on the great day, and render praise and thanksgiving unto God for the glorious hope we have in Jesus Christ?

Good Friday should be a day of praise to God for His great love in giving His only begotten Son. A time of intercession for world peace. That the darkness may be dispersed, and Christ's Kingdom advanced.

DID OUR FOREFATHERS CELEBRATE THIS DAY BETTER THAN WE DO!

To answer this question let us ask another. Are the heads of families leading their households in worship, praise and thanksgiving? To our forefathers credit must be given for leading their families daily in the exercise of worship.

The absence of the family altar in many homes has led to the violation of this sacred day; the revival of family worship will tend to keep, or hold this day as the most sacred day of all the year.

Our Forty-first Birthday.

On April 2nd, 1879, forty-one years ago, Mr. W. J. Herder, as proprietor, made application for the registration of the Evening Telegram as a newspaper, having a circulation in Newfoundland. The Telegram of that date, its first birthday, was a small four-page paper, set and printed by hand. To-day, its forty-first birthday, the Telegram is primus inter pares amongst its Newfoundland contemporaries, and far and away ahead of many Canadian and United States daily journals. From the small sheet of four pages, it has grown to a sixteen-page edition, printed on the most modern of presses. Modesty prevents us, even though we are the oldest daily newspaper in Newfoundland, from patting ourselves too heavily on the back, but we will state that the reputation established by the Telegram from its very first number to the present issue, will be maintained in the future, and the high standard of its literature adhered to. Should it be our good fortune to celebrate our semi-centenary, and there is no reason why we shouldn't, though this is looking far ahead, it will be our pleasure and duty to publish the complete history of "The People's Paper."

It is a record for Mr. W. J. Herder that, during the whole period of forty-one years, his proprietorship of the Telegram has remained unbroken. Editors have come and gone, but the dean of the Newfoundland Press remains. May his shadow never grow less.

The Fleur-de-Lis.

The March number of the Fleur-de-Lis contains the announcement that it has been accepted as "The Official Organ of the Boy Scout Association of Newfoundland." As such it will have the support of the whole Association and with this additional influence and scope, it will wield greater weight and be better able to carry on the great work for which it was primarily started. The latest issue is replete with articles and stories which must prove of great interest to Scouts and their admirers. Some new features are "The Council Fire," conducted by Sheboygo; and "Simple Talks About Difficult Things." An article, "Be Prepared," by Mr. C. T. James, Editor of the Telegram, is also contained in the March number, and readers of Fleur-de-Lis are assured of an interesting little magazine. Editor Furlong deserves congratulations.

Supreme Court.

The Spring session of the Supreme Court opened this morning. The following grand jury was empanelled: Geo. Reid, Geo. Willis, Joseph Wadden, Wm. Naufrits, Fred Fitzpatrick, Fred Ryall, A. McNamara, H. Hayward, Wm. C. Harvey, Wm. Smith, Geo. W. Brown, Walter Clouston, M. Hampton, Wm. Sinnott, Geo. F. Snow, John McGrath, A. Parsons, Richard Holden. There being no criminal cases on hearing the Jury was released from attendance till called upon.

Thomas Kelly vs. Thomas Hawco. Mr. Winter asks for a day. Mr. Higgins consents. It is ordered accordingly.

Richard Cram vs. Harry D. Bell. Mr. Winter for plaintiff withdraws the case, with the consent of the court.

United Towns Electric Co. vs. Public Utility Co.

This is a motion to enlarge the date until May 1st. Higgins, K.C., consents.

A. E. Hickman vs. W. H. Cave. The court intimated that James B. Evans and George P. Keats be called as witnesses. The case will be resumed on Monday.

1,000 "Chevrolets" are made each day, or 300,000 a year—the largest turn-out in the world of any fully-equipped Car.

RE-BUILT Piano Case Organs.

(Six-Octaves.)
BY FAMOUS MAKERS.

We have in stock a number of Rebuilt Organs, piano case, six octave, by Bell, Doherty, Thomas, etc., which we are offering at the same price practically as five octave parlour organs. Every instrument guaranteed.

Owing to its limited scale the five octave organ is only suitable for sacred music. The advantage of the six octave instrument is apparent since its larger scale will accommodate any piano selection, while the finish, style and tone of these instruments should appeal to everyone.

Forty-One Years in the Public Service—the Evening Telegram

Notes From Brigus.

The delegates who were attending the convention of the L. O. A. at Cupids returned home by Saturday morning's train.

Mr. George Hampden arrived by Friday night's train on a short business visit. He returned home again on Saturday morning.

Now that spring is again (apparently) with us, it may not be amiss to remind those upon whom the responsibility rests of the frightful condition of the road which leads to the Railway Station. Those who had occasion to use it last year (and who had not?) either for pedestrian or driving purposes, know its use one way or the other was anything but a pleasure.

Hon. R. A. Squires, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, who came for the purpose of addressing the L. O. A. Grand Lodge at Cupids, returned to town by Friday morning's train.

Mrs. Trerise went to town by Monday morning's train on a short business visit and returned again at night. Since the inception of her business she has been favoured with a large share of the public patronage, and in return has greatly "favoured" the public purse.

Dr. W. S. Goodman, dentist, has been in town during the week on one of his usual professional trips.

For a few days past the weather has been exceptionally fine, summer weather in fact, but yesterday and today it shows an inclination to revert again to its wintry keenness.

We are pleased to note that the Seal-fishery has taken on a more hopeful aspect, and we hope that the good news received is only an augury of better which the next few days will bring forth.

Mr. Peter Fowler was in town last week and procured stock for the shop which he has fitted up. In a few days he will be ready to cater to the wants of the public.

An unpleasant (for pedestrians) sign of spring has made its appearance since the fine weather, in the form of automobiles. It is seldom that autos can make use of the roads at this early date.

Moderate Prohibitionists Pass Resolutions.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—I am instructed to forward the press for publication copy of a resolution passed at a Committee meeting of the Moderate Prohibitionists held on Monday night last, relative to the import and sale of spirituous Essence.

JOHN J. ST. JOHN,
Secretary.

St. John's, Nfld., Mar. 31.

Resolution passed at a Committee meeting of the Moderate Prohibitionists held on Monday night, March 29, 1920:

WHEREAS the excessive drinking of spirituous essence is on the increase with deplorable results;

AND WHEREAS it is desirable to prevent persons from becoming drunk on this essence;

AND WHEREAS it is not desirable, nor is it necessary, that persons who use this article for culinary and manufacturing purposes only should be deprived of their right to do so;

AND WHEREAS a doubt exists in the mind of one, at least, of the Judges of the Supreme Court as expressed in his judgment in the case of Soper, applicant, vs. Byrne, respondent, as to whether any power is given the Governor-in-Council to prohibit the sale and importation of the article;

BE IT RESOLVED that this committee, appointed at a large and representative public meeting of citizens of St. John's to endeavour to secure a modification of said Prohibition Acts, is of opinion that the Governor-in-Council should take necessary powers or steps under any Act now in force or which may hereafter be enacted to control and regulate, but not to prohibit absolutely the importation and sale of said Essence;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this Committee is of opinion that a rationing system be put into operation so that householders may be supplied periodically with small quantities of said Essence sufficient for ordinary household purposes and that manufacturers of cakes and confections may procure sufficient quantities of the same under stringent regulations designed to prohibit the use of same for any but bona fide flavoring purposes.

WARWICK SMITH, Chairman,
JOHN J. ST. JOHN, Secretary.

"The Young Men's League."

NEW MOVEMENT ORGANIZED LAST NIGHT HAS DOMINION-WIDE AMBITION.

At 9 o'clock last evening in the Board of Trade Rooms, there was a meeting of the Preliminary Committee appointed Sunday night at the meeting of young men for the purpose of doing the initial work of organizing a "Young Men's League." Messrs. Harold Pike, W. Learning, Walter Sparkes, J. Hynes, J. S. Noseworthy, Mac Morgan, J. Omond, Lawrence Cullen and J. R. Smallwood were present. Mr. Cullen was elected to the chair, after which Mr. Smallwood tabled a draft of a constitution for the League. This was discussed section by section and accepted. It was not all gone through, the meeting adjourning at 11 o'clock. This Constitution will be submitted to the general meeting of young men which will likely take place Sunday night week. The name of the organization will be "The Young Men's League." Qualifications for membership therein are that the candidate be between 18 and 30, inclusive, and that he take the League Pledge, which is: "For Purity of Mind; Health of Body; and Cheerfulness of Spirit: I will ever strive." The League will be undenominational, nonsectarian and nonpolitical. The object shall be the educating of its members in the three ideals set forth in the Pledge—"Purity, Health, and Cheerfulness." To accomplish this, recreations, sports, debates, competitions, etc., will be arranged. Medals and other prizes will be offered for winners, and it is likely that a scholarship will be awarded annually. It is probable, also, that an annual Sports' Day will be set and the League will likely enter teams in the Hockey and Football Leagues and enter a boat in the Regatta. Branches will be formed in the Outports and a headquarters eventually held here, where a library, writing-room, gymnasium, swimming pool and other attractions will be seen. There are numerous men of influence who favor the idea and when the next general meeting is held a packed house will be in evidence. Hundreds of young men have signified their intention of joining. A President, Vice-President, Treasurer and Secretary, and an Executive Committee will be elected at the general meeting. The Preliminary Committee meets again Monday night at 8 o'clock, when it is hoped to get through the Constitution.

Miscegenatory Marriage.

White Nurse to Wed Negro Walker.

Boston, March 27.—Thomas S. Fletcher, 28 years old, of this city, a colored world war veteran, will be married to Miss Jessie Mae McLean, 22 years old, a white woman, formerly of Glouce Bay, N.S., Saturday night or Monday morning.

Fletcher is a real estate agent. He was with the 92nd Division and later was transferred from the 368th Infantry to the Depot Brigade at Camp Mead. He was born in Cambridge, Md., and attended schools in Maryland and Washington, D. C.

"I met my fiancée in a road house near Deadham four months ago," he said last night. "Miss McLean was a nurse with a private family there and I was a waiter. Neither she nor I considered color or race. I have been keeping company with her ever since. Monday we filed marriage intentions and she went to Everett to stay with an aunt until we are married. As long as we are not breaking the law, I don't see why anyone is interested in us."

Miss McLean was born in Glouce Bay, N. S.

To-Day's Messages.

BETRAYAL OF FAITH.
PARIS, March 31.
That direct negotiations were made between the French and German Governments without the participation of the other Allies, developed in an exchange of communications to-day concerning the question of occupation of the Ruhr Valley and are regarded here as of extraordinary significance. Dr. Von Mayer, German Charge, made his request for permission to send troops in the Ruhr region to the French Government alone, and to M. Millerand as Premier of France, and not as a member of the Allied Supreme Council. Premier Millerand's refusal of the request, delivered to-day, is in the name of the Government of the French Republic without any allusion to the Entente Powers.

KRUPPS ARE PROFITING.
DUSSELDORF, March 31.
Most of the revolutionary leaders in the Ruhr district, after a long secret session, in which an effort was made to find some way out of the corner into which they feel they have been driven by the Government's measures, admit defeat to-day, but many of them are declared to be resolved to pursue a course of sabotage with regard to mines, and possibly one of destruction of factories if the Reichswehr really advance upon them, as was threatened in the Governments ultimatum. Krupp plants, which are declared to be turning out munitions for the Red Army, are said to be the only ones in operation.

SATISFIED WITH PLAN.
LONDON, March 31.
Replying to arguments in the House of Commons to-day against the Irish Home Rule Bill, Premier Lloyd George declared that the Government had every reason to be satisfied with the course of the debate, as it demonstrated that the Government's plan was the only workable one. The difficulty of the problem, said the Premier, was that no proposals, which would be acceptable to any party in this country would be accepted by any party in Ireland. If the people of Ireland were asked what plan they would accept, declared Lloyd George, they would say by an emphatic majority "We want Independence and an Irish Republic."

FLOUR PRICES TO GO UP.
OTTAWA, Ont., Mar. 31.
A material advance in the price of flour in Canada, is indicated in an announcement made here on behalf of the Canadian millers by Geo. McDonald, representing the Quaker Oats Co., and head of the delegation of representative millers, which waited upon the Govt. to-day to discuss the serious situation which Canadian millers are facing as a result of the action of the Canadian Wheat Board in continuing the restrictions on the price of flour on the Canadian market, and the lack of export markets for Canadian flour. The increase will be necessary to meet the increasing cost of manufacture it is understood.

MAYOR'S MURDER MYSTERY.
LONDON, April 1.
A statement that Lord Mayor MacCurtain was murdered after his expulsion from the Irish Republican Brotherhood, according to the Dublin correspondent of the London Times, is denounced with indignation by Sinn Feiners in Cork and Dublin, and fanned by the whole Nationalist press. The Freeman's Journal says that the story was invented in order to throw the public off trail, and repeats its conviction that the Lord Mayor was murdered by men, who believed they were thus helping the British cause in Ireland.

COMPARING THE NAVIES.
LONDON, March 31.
His attention being called in the House of Commons to-day, to the American naval estimate, Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty, entered into a detailed comparison. He showed that at the current rate of exchange, when twenty-three millions for the end of the war expenditure was subtracted from the British estimates, American estimates were forty-four million pounds in excess of the British. Moreover while the personnel of the British Navy was being reduced, American estimates provided for an increase in personnel.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER.
THE HAGUE, Mar. 31.
The Red Central Council at Essen, according to the Berlin Tageblatts correspondent there, has been in wireless communication, since last Friday, with the Soviet at Moscow and the Bolshevik commander of troops in Russia fighting against Poland.

WILL ACCEPT CONDITIONS.
COELENZ, Mar. 31.
Reliable information received here from the Ruhr region, says the Workers' Council at Hagen and Dusseldorf will accept the conditions of the Govt.

THE TIMES' PRAISE.
LONDON, Mar. 31.
The London Times, in an editorial to-day, considers that the very substantial majority secured by the Govt.

on the second reading of the Home Rule Bill gives it "wider freedom, to frame and pursue, in accordance with high principles this great measure of constitutional reform."

MARINERS THREAT.
NEW YORK, Mar. 31.
A complete tie-up of harbor traffic at this port was threatened to-night, when the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots, with a membership of twenty-eight thousand, voted to strike to-morrow morning to enforce their demands for an eight hour day.

WILL HAVE LONG STAY.
NEW YORK, April 1.
Federal investigators of profiteering in clothing, shoes and other necessities of life, sent to various cities by Attorney General Palmer, plan to stay in New York "until profiteering is at an end," it was announced last night. The persons who have been overcharged were urged to co-operate with the investigators.

WORTHY OF EMULATION.
WINNIPEG, Man., April 1.
An Employers Association of Manitoba has been organized, to promote on a fair and equitable basis, industrial peace and commercial prosperity in the community, and steady employment of labor. Its object is also to discourage lockouts strikes, unfair demands by either employers or employees and to secure for employees freedom of contract in the manner of employment. Twenty-five groups of industry and trade are represented.

FRENCH SENATE GRANTED CREDITS.
PARIS, April 1.
The Senate, last evening, adopted a Bill granting the provisional credits asked by the Government. There were only eight votes against the measure. The question of confidence in the Government was raised and insisted upon by Premier Millerand. The session was suspended at the request of the chairman of the Finance Commission in order that the commission hold an emergency meeting.

WILL SOON BE IN FLEET.
WASHINGTON, April 1.
Many "sure cure" medicine fakes, driven from the United States by the Federal Food and Drugs Act, have invaded Canada, the Department of Agriculture said yesterday, in announcing that inspectors had been instructed to watch medicines imported from Canada.

MAY BEI MAY BEI!
OTTAWA, Ont., April 1.
The Federal Department of Health has no knowledge of the alleged dumping in Canada of "medico fakes," driven from the United States by the regulations of that country. Lieutenant Colonel D. A. Clark, Assistant Deputy Minister of Health, points out that the Food and Drugs Act of Canada prohibits the sale in Canada of any proprietary medicines not registering under the Act.

BANNING STUTZ.
NEW YORK, April 1.
The New York Stock Exchange, for the first time in its history, suspended dealings in listed securities because of a corner existing in the shares of the Stutz Motor Company, and the Board of Governors, yesterday, adopted a resolution forbidding its members from taking part in New York transaction involving either sale or purchase of Stutz stock, for their own account or the account of customers.

BERLIN, April 1.
Twenty million marks, being taken from this city to Essen, have mysteriously disappeared, according to reports current in this city to-day.

WILL CHINA SWALLOW IT!
LONDON, April 1.
A despatch to the London Times from Peking, dated March twenty-ninth, says the Chinese Government has received a message from the Moscow Soviet, through Commissioner Jensen at Irkutsk, announcing that a Red army is marching East to succor the workmen and peasants in Siberia, from "the brigands Kolchak, Semenov."

One of Nelson's Touches
In 1801, a British fleet, under Admiral Sir Hyde Parker, was sent to the Cattegat to break up the Northern Confederacy. When the fleet were refused a passage, a division of it, carrying 700 guns, under Vice-Admiral Nelson, made an attack on the Danish fleet, mounting 628 guns, flanked by the Trekroner Batteries, mounting 68 guns, with furnaces for heating shot; and commanded by the two two-decked block ships "Mars" and "Elephanten," together with other formidable batteries, and two 74's, one 40, and two 18-gun ships, with armed rebecs, before Copenhagen.

Cochrane Street Centennial Church.
The subject of Rev. Mr. Darby's remarks at the service last evening was "Christ, the All Sufficient." The world is in a plastic condition and now is the Church's opportunity. Even in the Orient conditions are favourable for effective work. Has the Church an adequate programme to suit conditions? It is through the Church that men see Christ to-day. Is the call of Love, of Truth and of the Cross heard through you and me? The one majestic unmoved figure in all the changing turmoil is that of Jesus Christ. The large congregation spent the hour in meditation and prayer.

gen. This "Battle of the Baltic" commenced at 10 a.m. on April 2, and the British ships gradually got to their places, but the gun and bomb vessels did not get near enough to be of any service during the action which, after three hours' conflict, could not be said to have taken on either side a decisive turn. Sir Hyde Parker made a signal to discontinue the action, but Nelson took no notice of this order, and made the signal for "closer battle," ordering it to be kept flying. At 1.30 p.m., the fire of the Danes slackened, and a little before 2 it had ceased entirely along nearly the whole line. Some of the Danish vessels had broken loose, and others had no colours flying, but would not suffer themselves to be taken possession of, and fired on the British boats. Lord Nelson had thoughts of sending in the fire ships to burn the surrendered vessels, but before doing so, he sent his celebrated letter to the Crown Prince of Denmark, and the action was brought to a close, after being warmly contested for five hours. The Danish fleet was literally knocked to pieces and their loss, at the lowest estimate, was between 1,600 and 1,800 men killed. The British lost 255 killed and 688 wounded.

Powerful Dramatic Story.

THE MAN AND THE SNAKE.

(By AMBROSE BIERCE, in John O'London's Weekly.)

It is of veritable report, and attested of so many that there be now of wyse and learned none to gainsaye it, that he serpente hys eye hath a magnetick properte that whoso falleth into its svason is drawn forwards in despite of his wille, and periseth miserably by ye creature hys byte.

STRETCHED at ease upon a sofa, in gown and slippers, Harker Brayton smiled as he read the foregoing sentence in old Morryster's "Marvels of Science." "The only marvel in the matter," he said to himself, "is that the wise and learned in Morryster's day should have believed such nonsense as is rejected by most of even the ignorant in ours."

A train of reflections followed—Brayton was a man of thought—and he unconsciously lowered his book without altering the direction of his eyes. As soon as the volume had gone below the line of sight, something in an obscure corner of the room recalled his attention to his surroundings. What he saw, in the shadow under his bed, were two small points of light, apparently about an inch apart. They might have been reflections of the gas-jet above him, in metal nail heads; he gave them but little thought, and resumed his reading. A moment later something—some impulse which it did not occur to him to analyse—impelled him to lower the book again, and seek for what he saw before. They seemed to have become brighter than before, shining with a greenish lustre which he had not at first observed. He thought, too, that they might have moved a trifle—were somewhat nearer. They were still too much in the shadow, however, to reveal their nature and origin to an indolent attention, and he resumed his reading. Suddenly something in the text suggested a thought which made him start and drop the book for the third time to the side of the sofa, whence, escaping from his hand, it fell sprawling to the floor, back upward. Brayton, half risen, was staring intently into the obscurity beneath the bed, where the points of light shone with it seemed to him, an added fire. His attention was now fully aroused, his gaze eager and imperative. It disclosed, almost directly beneath the foot-rail of the bed, the coils of a large serpent—the points of light were its eyes! Its horrible head, thrust fatly forth from the innermost coil, and resting upon the outermost, was directed straight toward him, the definition of the wide, brutal jaw and the idiot-like forehead serving to show the direction of its malevolent gaze. The eyes were no longer merely luminous points; they looked into his own with a meaning, malign significance.

II.

A snake in a bedroom of a modern city dwelling of the better sort is, happily, not so common a phenomenon as to make explanation altogether needless. Harker Brayton, a bachelor of thirty-five, a scholar, fiddler, and something of an athlete, rich, popular, and of sound health, had returned to San Francisco from all manner of remote and unfamiliar countries. His tastes, always a trifle luxurious, had taken on an added exuberance from long privation; and the resources of even the Castle Hotel being inadequate to their perfect gratification, he had gladly accepted the hospitality of his friend, Dr. Druring, the distinguished scientist. Dr. Druring's house, a large, old-fashioned one in what was now an obscure quarter of the city, had an outer and visible aspect of proud reserve. It plainly would not associate with the contiguous elements of its altered environment, and appeared to have developed some of the eccentricities which come of isolation. One of these was a "wing," conspicuously irrelevant in point of architecture, and no less rebellious in the matter of purpose; for it was a combination of laboratory, menagerie, and museum. It was here that the doctor indulged the scientific side of his nature in the study of such forms of animal life as engaged his interest and comforted his taste—which, it must be confessed, ran rather to the lower forms. For one of the higher types nimble and sweetly to recommend itself unto his gentle senses, it had at least to retain certain rudimentary characteristics allying it to such "dragons of the prime" as toads and snakes. His scientific sympathies were distinctly reptilian; he loved nature's vulgarisms, and described himself as the Zola of zoology. His wife and daughters, not having the advantage to share his enlightened curiosity regarding the works and ways of our ill-starred fellow-creatures, were, with needless austerity, excluded from what he called the Snakery, and doomed to companionship with their own kind, though, to soften the rigours of their lot, he had permitted them, out of his great wealth, to outdo the reptiles in the gorgeousness of their surroundings, and to shine with a superior splendour.

Architecturally, and in point of "furnishing," the Snakery had a severe simplicity befitting the humble circumstances of its occupants, many of whom, indeed, could not safely have been entrusted with the liberty which is necessary to the full enjoyment of luxury, for they had the troublesome peculiarity of being alive. In their own apartments, however, they were under as little personal restraint as was compatible with their protection from the baneful habit of swallowing one another; and, as Brayton had thoughtfully been apprised, it was more than a tradition that some of them had at divers times been found in parts of the premises where it would have embarrassed them to explain their presence. Despite the Snakery and its uncanny associations—to which, indeed, he gave but little attention—Brayton found life at the Druring mansion very much to his mind.

III.

Beyond a smart shock of surprise and a shudder of mere loathing, Mr. Brayton was not greatly affected. His first thought was to ring the call-bell and bring a servant; but, although the bell-cord dangled within easy reach, he made no movement toward it; it had occurred to his mind that the act might subject him to the suspicion of fear, which he certainly did not feel. He was more keenly conscious of the incongruous nature of the situation than affected by its perils; it was revolting, but absurd.

The reptile was of a species with which Brayton was unfamiliar. Its length he could only conjecture; the body at the largest visible part seemed about as thick as his forearm. In what way was it dangerous, if in any way? Was it venomous? Was it a constrictor? His knowledge of nature's danger signals did not enable him to say; he had never deciphered the code.

If not dangerous, the creature was at least offensive. It was de trop—"matter out of place"—an impertinence. The gem was unworthy of the setting. Even the barbarous taste of our time and country, which had loaded the walls of the room with pictures, the floor with furniture, and the furniture with bric-a-brac, had not quite fitted the place, for this bit of the savage life of the jungle. Besides—insupportable thought!—the exhalations of its breath mingled with the atmosphere which he himself was breathing.

These thoughts shaped themselves with greater or less definition in Brayton's mind, and begot action. The process is what we call consideration and decision. It is thus that we are wise and unwise. It is thus that the withered leaf in an autumn breeze shows greater or less intelligence than his fellows, falling upon the land or upon the lake. The secret of human action is an open one; something contracts our muscles. Does it matter if we give to the preparatory molecular changes the name of will?

Brayton rose to his feet and prepared to back softly away from the snake, without disturbing it, if possible, and through the door. People retire so from the presence of the great, for greatness is power, and power is a menace. He knew that he could walk backward without obstruction, and find the door without error. Should the monster follow, the taste which had plastered the walls with paintings had consistently supplied a rack of murderous Oriental weapons from which he could snatch one to suit the occasion. In the meantime, the snake's eyes baled with a more pitiless malevolence than ever.

Brayton lifted his right foot free of the floor to step backward. That moment he felt a strong aversion to doing so.

"I am accounted brave," he murmured; "is bravery, then, no more than pride? Because there are none to witness the shame shall I retreat?" He was steadying himself with his right hand upon the back of a chair, his foot suspended.

"Nonsense!" he said, aloud; "I am not so great a coward as to fear to seem to myself afraid." He lifted the foot a little higher by slightly bending the knee, and thrust it sharply to the floor—an inch in front of the other! He could not think how that occurred. A trial with the left foot had the same result; it was again in advance of the right. The hand upon the chair-back was grasping it; the arm was straight, reaching somewhat backward. One might have seen that he was reluctant to lose his hold. The snake's malignant head was still thrust forth from the inner coil as before, the neck level. It had not moved, but its eyes were now electric sparks, radiating an infinity of luminous needles.

The man had an ashy pallor. Again he took a step forward, and another, partly dragging the chair, which, when finally released, fell upon the floor with a crash. The man groaned; the snake made neither sound nor motion, but its eyes were two dazzling suns. The reptile itself was wholly concealed by them. They gave off enlarging rings of rich and vivid colours, which at their greatest expansion successively vanished like soap bubbles; they seemed to approach his very face, and anon were an immeasurable distance away. He heard, somewhere, the continuous throbbing of a great drum, with delectatory bursts of far music, inconceivably sweet, like the tones of an aeolian harp. He knew it for the sunrise melody of Memnon's statue, and thought he stood in the Nile-side reeds, hearing, with exalted sense, that immortal anthem through the silence of the centuries.

The music ceased; rather, it became by insensible degrees the distant roll of a retreating thunderstorm. A landscape, glittering with sun and rain, stretched before him, arched with a vivid rainbow, framing in its giant curve a hundred visible cities. In the middle distance a vast serpent, wearing a crown, reared its head out of its voluminous convolutions, and looked at him with his dead mother's eyes. Suddenly this enchanting landscape seemed to rise swiftly upward, like the drop-scene at a theatre, and vanished in a blank. Something struck him a hard blow upon the face and breast. He had fallen to the floor; the blood ran from his broken nose and his bruised lips. For a moment he was dazed and stunned, and lay with closed eyes, his face against the floor. In a few moments he had recovered, and then realised that his fall, by withdrawing his eyes, had broken the spell which held him. He felt that now, by keeping his gaze averted, he would be able to retreat. But the thought of the serpent within a few feet of his head, yet unseen—perhaps in the very act of springing upon him, and throwing its coils about his throat—was too horrible. He lifted his head, stared again into those baleful eyes, and was again in bondage.

The snake had not moved, and appeared somewhat to have lost its power upon the imagination; the gorgeous illusions of a few moments before were not repeated. Beneath that flat and brainless brow his black, beady eyes simply glittered, as at first, with an expression unpeppably malignant. It was as if the creature, knowing its triumph assured, had determined to practise no more alluring wiles.

Now ensued a fearful scene. The man, prone upon the floor, within a yard of his enemy, raised the upper part of his body upon his elbows, his head thrown back, his legs extended to their full length. His face was white between its gouts of blood; his eyes were strained open to their utmost expansion. There was froth upon his lips; it dropped off in flakes. Strong convulsions ran through his body, making almost serpentine undulations. He bent himself at the waist, shifting his legs from side to side. And every moment left him a little nearer to the snake. He thrust his hands forward to brace himself back, yet constantly advanced upon his elbows.

IV.

Dr. Druring and his wife sat in the library. The scientist was in rare good humour.

"I have just obtained, by exchange with another collector," he said, "a splendid specimen of the ophlephagus."

"And what may that be?" the lady inquired, with a somewhat languid interest.

"Why, bless my soul, what profound ignorance! My dear, a man who ascertains after marriage that his wife does not know Greek, is entitled to a divorce. The ophlephagus is a snake which eats other snakes."

"I hope it will eat all yours," she said, absently shifting the lamp.

"But how does it get the other snakes? By charming them, I suppose."

"That is just like you, dear," said the doctor, with an affection of petulance. "You know how irritating to me is any allusion to that vulgar superstition about the snake's power of fascination."

The conversation was interrupted by a mighty cry, which rang through the silent house like the voice of a demon shouting in a tomb! Again and yet again it sounded with terrible distinctness. They sprang to their feet, the man confused, the lady pale and speechless with fright. Almost before the echoes of the last cry had died away, the doctor was out of the room, springing up the staircase two steps at a time. In the corridor, in front of Brayton's chamber, he met some servants who had come from the upper floor. Together they rushed at the door without knocking. It was unfastened and gave way. Brayton lay upon his stomach on the floor, dead. His head and arms were partly concealed under the foot-rail of the bed. They pulled the body away, turning it upon the back. The face

Passed the Hundredth Milestone.

On March 15th, Mrs. David Benson, residing at Gooseberry Cove, Random South, Trinity Bay, celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of her birth, and notwithstanding this extra advanced age is hale and hearty, with every faculty unimpaired, and occasionally does hand sewing, at which the good lady is an adept. Her husband died twenty-three years ago, at the ripe old age of 81. Mrs. Benson is living with her daughter, Mrs. William H. Seward, at Gooseberry Cove, and of late years during the warmer months, keeps much in the outdoor atmosphere. Mr. A. G. Benson, Sub-Collector at Clarendville, is a grandson of this remarkable lady, who is, perhaps, the only centenarian in Newfoundland. Mrs. Benson (Rev.) K. G. Richards, of New York, is a granddaughter of Mrs. Benson. Mr. Richards is at present in charge of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Bay Port, Long Island.

Owing to the difficulty of travelling at the time when Mrs. Benson passed the hundredth milestone of life, only those of her relatives and friends who were living in Gooseberry Cove, were present to tender congratulations. If not out of place the Telegram begs to join with the numerous relatives, friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Benson in wishing many more happy turns of March 15th.

"Junius" Writes.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to comment on the subject of Moderate prohibition, as this topic seems to be occupying so much attention in this city. Some worthy citizens claim that prohibition takes away their liberty. May I reply to that in the words of the Principal of one of our city colleges, "I do not consider my freedom interfered with because the laws of my country do not allow me to become drunk, although many people seem to think so." Neither was it a law made by a few, but the wish of the people. Surely the people knew what they were voting for!

The American Brewers' Review says: "The so-called personal liberty argument in behalf of alcoholic drinks loses its force. Consideration of the public welfare continues to grow, and overshadows the right of the individual. The drink question must be fought out upon the ultimate foundation of moral, hygienic and social order—in other words, the public welfare, for if the public welfare requires the suppression of the alcoholic drink traffic it should be suppressed."

Other people claim that the prohibition of liquor gives rise to the drinking of "moonshine," essences, etc., which are much worse than the pure drinks. By all means allow those persons, who are unworthy to be called decent citizens, to drink essences, shoe polish and whatever else their depraved tastes may lead them to, and the sooner they kill themselves the better the country will be. I would advise the importation of wood alcohol so that they may be removed from our midst a little sooner. We do not expect to reform such confirmed drinkers. Our aim is to free the next generation from the curse of drink. We want to save our young men, who might if the laws of our country allowed it, drink brandy, rum, whiskey, etc., and finally contract the taste for it, but who would never think of imbibing into their systems such stuff as is being taken by people in St. John's and in Newfoundland today, and which of itself ought to be enough to convince everyone of the evils of strong drink.

Some person, whose names passes my memory, suggests that people need spirits when exposed to the cold and storms on the Newfoundland coast. Now, anybody with any intelligence or common sense knows that spirits, instead of raising the temperature of the body, lowers it and makes the body colder than it would ordinarily be. Explorers have proved that to take spirits is the worst thing they can do in intense cold, as it lowers the temperature of the body some degrees and always ends disastrously. When Alcock and Brown made their famous flight across the Atlantic last year, it is not recorded that they took any spirituous liquors with them. Surely if it possesses the power to produce bodily heat that some claim for it, one would feel inclined to think that these gallant gentlemen, whose valorous deeds rank them among the world's bravest men—would have supplied themselves with it when they undertook their perilous journey, the success of which not only maintained the traditions of the Empire, but at the mention of their names our blood tingles in our veins.

Mr. Beresford, by his denunciation of the liquor traffic, seems to have gotten himself in bad with some of the moderates. While he has been but a short time with us, his efforts in behalf of prohibition, undoubtedly prove that he has the interest and well being of the future generations of this country at heart, and it is the wish of the writer that this city possessed more men of his type who had the courage of their convictions. The law at present in this Dominion against the sale, importation and manufacture of spirituous liquors was made possible by the united efforts of prohibitionists and with them it's going to be a case of "What we have hold."

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I remain,
Yours truly,
JUNIOUS.

March 31, 1920.
(Note.—Correspondents to the Telegram on the subject of Prohibition—pre et contra—will in future be requested to publish their views over their own signatures. No real good can be wrought by anonymous writers. The above communication is given space simply because no notice of this rule, which will be strictly adhered to, has been heretofore announced. All who favor or oppose the Prohibition Act, as it stands, would give more weight to their written arguments to the press by following our suggestion.—Editor.)

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Homme des Affaires, Trepassay.—You may take our word for it that no person outside the Editor has seen or had access to your first letter. We think that the best way to prove this would be to hand it over to the police, in which case their investigation would bring all the facts you allege to light. The person who states that we sent your letter back to him is a first-class, iron clad liar, and knows it. So far as the Telegram and its Editor are concerned, neither of them fear the individual whom you accuse.
