YOUNG MEN'S ASSOCIATION

DINED BY H. J. CROWE

AT HIS PRIVATE RESIDENCE

At his beautiful private residence, "Falkenburg," before leaving New Brunswick, Mr. H. J. Crowe entertained two guests at an inauguration banquet for Young Men's Association. To say the evening was an enjoyable one is but faintly to express the sentiment of the gathering. Among those present were: Hon. J. B. and Mrs. Ayre, Rev. Mr. Whittle, Rev. W. and Mrs. Morris, Capt. and Mrs. Oke, S. A., W. S. Taylor, Pennsylvania; Magistrate and Mrs. Burt, Dr. and Mrs. Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Arkle, (agent A. N. D. Company,) Deputy Sheriff Young and Mrs. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Antle, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Aitken, Mr. and Mrs. James Wentzell, Mr. and Mrs. White and daughters, Mr. Thomas Moakler, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Peyton, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harvey, Miss Ida Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Antle, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burt, and the members of the Assoc.ation.

The company having dined, Mr. Crowe requested Dr. Ames, the President, to take the chair for the evening's entertainment, which consisted of toasts and speeches, with vocal and instrumental music by Rev. Mr. Whittle, Miss T. White and others. The toast list was as follows:

"The King" was proposed by Mr. Crowe, and as a response the National Anthem was sung by the company. "Our Native Land" was proposed by Mr. Alfred Young in a speech greeted with hearty applause, and the response was by Mr. Harry Burt, who contrasted the present industrial progress with past stagnation and referred to the work done by Mr. Crowe since arriving at Norris Arm a few years previously, where he had built up a settlement and mill and afterwards operated at Gander Bay Gambo Indian Arm, Botwood, Millertown sides opening a new market for lumber in South America. "Our Guests" was proposed by Mr. J. W. Aitken, who made the vigorous speech of the practical business man dwelling on our industrial developments of late years, and the bettering of the condition of laboring classes. In responding for the guests, Rev. Mr. Morris, Rev. Mr. Whittle and Capt. Oke, eloquently reviewed the work of the Association and the encouragement it was getting from Mr. Crowe. Dr. Ames and others, while Mr. Taylor outlined the possibilities for capital in this country, and hoped the young men of the Island would take advantage of their opportunities. "The Ladies" were toasted by Mr.

Grouchy the response being by Mr. Walter Hopkins, and as usual this toast was received with keen pleasure. "Our Host" was proposed by Dr. Ames, who spoke at much length on the industrial development attained in recent years, and paid a tribute to Mr. Crowe for the part he had played in the establishment of the Harmsworth and Albert Reed Works and in being the first to place real value in our forest resources, citing his as an example for the young men who wish to succeed and tendering him the thanks of the Association for all his kindness and for this splendid banquet. Mr. Crowe, in responding, expressed his appreciation of the kind reference made with respect to his endeavours to develop lumbering and other resources of the country since his advent here and explained how, on learning that the Club was unable to reach Grand Falls to enter the sports there, he thought it a good opportunity to invite them to Falkenburg House to become better acquainted, and to unite with them in promoting an organization for the unbuilding of the young men, physically and morally, stating that he hoped to place before the Executive Committee a proposition for a building for such a purpose, declaring his conviction that a great change was inevitable in our history, through the development of our resources, and urging the young men, especially, to seek a higher plane of living that might not only help themselves, but also their fellows. The pleasant evening was then brought to a close by singing "Auld Lang Syne" and as a finale "For He is a Jolly Good Fellow."—St. Johns, Newfoundland Journal.

A METHODIST MINISTER RECOMMENDS CHAMBERLAIN'S COLIC, CHOLERA AND DIARRHOEA REMEDY

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years for diarrhoea. I consider it the best remedy I have ever tried for that trouble. I bought a bottle of it a few days ago from our druggist, Mr. R. R. Brooks. I shall ever be glad to speak a good word in its praise when I have the opportunity."—Rev. J. D. Knapp, Pastor M. E. DR. POLLARD GETS FIVE YEARS.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—Judge Winchester sentenced Dr. Pollard to five years in the penitentiary yesterday for performing a criminal operation.

JUST LIKE TEACHER

Miss Mildred, having told the little girls of her mission sewing class to go home as soon as they were dismissed, says a writer in the Chicago 'News,' was surprised to hear the murmur of familiar voices arising from the plot of grass beneath the window, and her attention was caught by the words of one of the children. "Well, when I'm grown up," one child was saying, "I want to look just like teacher."

"But you can't be rich like her, objected another girl. 'She's got a father who brings home all his money I guess.'"

Miss Mildred smiled tenderly at the vision of her generous father rose before her.

"I'll be rich, 'cause I'll marry a man that'll always have a steady job. And when I'm cookin' and washin' dishes I'll be smily in my eyes all the time, just like teacher, as if everything was happy everywhere."

A sudden mist came into the smily eyes of Miss Mildred.

"And when I'm grown up I'm goin' to eat like teacher does. I ain't goin' to put a whole lot of stuff in my mouth at once. I'm going to take just little, tiny bites, and eat 'em awful slow, like I wasn't hungry. And I'll have a nice, big, white napkin, with my letter in the corner, and I'll use it every meal, and when I'm through I'll say, 'Excuse me.'"

Miss Mildred smiled and said to herself, "And I thought I was only a sewing teacher!"

"I s'pose my man will come after me with an automobile when we're courtin', like teacher's does."

Miss Mildred gasped. "And I'll always pretend I'm so surprised and happy to see him," went on the child, "just like she does, even when she's been waiting a long time. And I'll get in and ride away laughing, like it's all a kind of joke, just the way she does. I'm goin' to talk soft and sweet, like teacher does to everybody. I ain't goin' to holler round and sass people."

"Say, there he comes now!" said some one in the group. "Don't he look kind of clad?" I guess teacher watches for him all right."—Youths Companion.

TAMMANY SMASHED

The civic elections have been held in the city of New York with the result that Tammany has been smashed again. Probably that it is the greatest victory for clean government that New York has ever experienced. The old machine has been completely smashed and Tammany has lost control of the cash box. The enormous disbursements amounting to about $250,000,000 annually are thus in the hands of the enemies of Tammany. A Tammany Mayor was elected it is true but the success of the machine ended there. New York will now see a new era, and has a chance for political regeneration.—Exc.

COAL STRIKE ENDED

Sydney, Nov. 4.—An extension of the existing labor contract between the P. W. A. and the Dominion Coal Company for a further period of two years, or till December 31, 1911, was signed at Glace Bay this afternoon. The contract is renewed just as it stands, the same terms and conditions obtaining as contained in the award of the Prof. Short Conciliation Board of 1908. There is one important exception to be noted and that is, that the lower paid men have on strong representations from the P. W. A., been granted an advance in wages amounting to about five per cent. For the past two years they have been getting $1.52 a day. They will under the renewed contract get $1.60.

NO MONEY FOR TAFT'S SONS

President Taft took his audience right into his confidence in addressing the girls at the Industrial School at Columbus, Miss. He congratulated them on the fact that they are learning to earn their own living so that they may not be compelled to marry whether they love or not. He said: "I shall be glad when I shall not have any property to leave to my boys, of whom I have two, but only good character and a pride in themselves and a good education, but for my daughter I am going to scrape together as much as I can give her and as good an education as I can, so that she shall marry only when she chooses to marry and not because of circumstances."

"I wish that every woman in the world were so situated that she did not think it was necessary for her to marry if she did not want to. Now, that is a proposition that I am prepared to defend against all comers. I am the last one to take a position against that old doctrine of the common law that there ought to be nothing to interfere with matrimony. But I would have the matter so arranged that the women, when they came to decide and make their choice, should have a full and free choice, and that can only be reached when they are put in a situation where that which they choose is not a life which they select because they expect, but a life that they look forward to with unmixed happiness."

"I know that it is generally supposed that those who inherit wealth are in the best position for a future happy life—I mean in this world—but I venture to think that the best legacy that can be left to a young man is a good education and a good character, by training in a family to good moral standards, and nothing else. The necessity that he is under of getting out to hustle is an advantage which he does not appreciate when he is going through the process, but after he has won success and looks back a comparison of his life with that of the men who when he entered life had money and means to support themselves and enjoy themselves, will convince him of the great advantage that fate gave him when it did not give him a fortune or a competence."

ROBBERS TAKE $7,000 TO BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA

New York, Nov. 4.—Robbers boarded the Hamburg-American line Prince Joachim, lying at her pier here two days ago, jimmied the safe in the purser's office, and made away with $7,000 in gold. The news of the robbery became public this afternoon and a score or more detectives are placed on the track of the robbers. The work of the robbers was daring. It was done with more than 100 members of the officers and crew of the ship on board, and a dozen of them sleeping within a half hundred feet of the office where the safe was opened. The ship was placed under police guard immediately the fact of the robbery became known, and every member of the crew was placed under surveillance. There are no clues. The gold was consigned to the Jamaica correspondent of the Bank of Nova Scotia by an agent of the bank here, and was to have been taken by the liner on her trip to the West Indies, starting Saturday.

WOMAN SAVED FROM DEATH PENALTY

A monster petition signed by several thousand people, praying for clemency in the case of Mrs. Robinson, the unfortunate woman under sentence of death in Sudbury, Ont., for the murder of the infant children of her daughter and her husband, was presented to the Minister of Justice on behalf of the National Council of Women, with the result the death penalty was commuted to 10 years imprisonment. Robinson was sentenced to 28 years in the penitentiary. His heastly crime was one of the worst ever disclosed in the criminal courts.

GOOD COUGH MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN AND GROWN FOLKS TOO

"We could hardly do without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Mrs. Flora Despain, of Bloyd, Ky. "I found it to be so good for the croup and have used it for years. I can heartily recommend it for croup, colds and croup in children and grown folks too." The above shows the implicit confidence that many mothers place in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a confidence based on many years' experience in the use of it. No one need hesitate to use this remedy for it contains no chloroform or opium or other narcotics and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, A. NOVA SCOTIA POLITICS

Amherst, N. S., Nov. 3.—(Special) A convention of the Liberal Conservatives of the county here today nominated T. S. Rodgers, K. C., of Amherst, as the candidate for the approaching election.

The executive of the Conservative party in Lunenburg, N. S., decided that J. W. Margeson, who was selected by the convention, should oppose A. K. MacLean in the approaching bye-election.

BOLD HOLD-UP ROBBERY

Geo. Foote, accountant of the ropeworks at Dartmouth, was held up near the Dartmouth rink, one day last week, and, on refusing to deliver up a satchel containing $3,000 in cash was shot at by one of the two highwaymen. He is not seriously injured, and the money was saved.

The would-be robbers were pounced upon by a trap by Police Officer Matheson and his band of followers. They hail from the States and from several letters in their possession they have been identified, and their names are familiar in Boston police circles, C. L. Gallagher, residing at 272 Massachusetts Ave., Boston, and Herbert E. Hasset, hailing from Missouri, are the two men now locked up in the Dartmouth Police Station charged with the crime.

Matheson took a squad, consisting of Wm. Creelman, Wm. Shortlin, Wm. Parker, Sam Boland, W. G. Leedham, Jas. Fife, Edward Lindsay and Ralph Keeler, and started toward Burnside. He got on the track of the supposed culprits and followed away around Albro's Lake, Pine Hill and vicinity, for about 7 miles all told, following the tracks. At last he came upon the men lying down in hiding. One was in the act of loading his revolver when Matheson pounced upon him. The rest followed and in short order they were prisoners. Each had an Iver-Johnson revolver and about 30 rounds of cartridges.

Temperance Alliance Meetings.

Temperance workers throughout the country are respectfully reminded of the tour of Rev. H. R. Grant, Secretary of the Nova Scotia Temperance Alliance, which begins with a meeting at Margareville, on the evening of November ninth. After addressing various other meetings throughout the country, Mr. Grant will terminate this tour at the Convention of the Annapolis County Temperance Alliance which meets at Bridgetown, on November 16th, at 2.30 a. m., and at which he will be one of the speakers. It is hoped that he will receive the sympathy and support which he and his cause deserves. G. L. McCAIN, Secretary Annapolis County Temperance Alliance. Middleton, Nov. 6th, 1909.

CANADA'S CROP

A Minneapolis despatch says:—"The Canadian Northwest wheat crop promises a yield of 125 million bushels this year, against 95 million bushels last year. Quality fine unless the grade is reduced by wet weather the next two weeks. We have had more or less rain over the entire Northwest the past week, but with clearing weather next week, threshers will be busy and railroads taxed to their full limit for next eight or ten months."

CANADIAN EXPRESS OFFICE ROBBED.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 4.—A murderous assault and robbery was committed tonight when two men severely wounded the cashier of the Canadian Express Company and got away with, over $14,000. Entering the Canadian Express office at five o'clock tonight, the two men asked the cashier, William Dobson, for a trunk and while he was looking through the books stunned him with a loaded gas pipe and decamped, taking with them a package containing $14,169.

CANADA CAR AND FOUNDRY CO.

Amherst, Oct. 30.—Another important concern has been absorbed in the lately organized Canada Car and Foundry Company. The Pressed Steel Car company, a United States concern, which has been operating in Montreal, has sold its plant and business there to the new company which will operate it in the future. Its capacity is 150 steel passenger cars and 6,000 wood freight cars a year. It is capitalized at $3,000,000 of which $1,000,000 is seven per cent cumulative preferred stock. The price paid is stated to be $1,700,000. The total capitalization of the Canada Car and Foundry Company is now $15,000,000. It will now be prepared to meet the increasing demand for steel cars as well as other rolling stock.

Many a man and many a woman works till the last ounce of reserve vitality is exhausted, and many a time much of the effort is needless. It is far better to call a halt yourself than to have a halt called by powers that know no detail.

CRESCENT LODGE CELEBRATES

ANNIVERSARY BY GRAND

BANQUET AND ENTERTAINMENT

The Odd Fellows Banquet and Roll Call at the Grand Central last evening was a very successful function in every respect. It was also a distinctly representative gathering as about eighty members of the Order sat down to the tables in the prettily decorated dining room which was fitted up for the occasion.

A full six course dinner was provided, the menu cards were handsomely printed in scarlet and gold and bore the three links, Crescent Lodge No. 63 and the emblems of the Order. The list of toasts was as follows:—

The King, Our Country, Crescent Lodge No. 63, Our Town, The Ladies, The Rebekahs and Visiting Brothers. All were introduced in brief and appropriate terms by the chairman, Mr. A. G. Walker, and responses were made by Hon. O. T. Daniels, Mr. R. A. Messenger, Mr. Otterson, Mr. O. S. Miller, Mr. J. W. Peters and Mr. Potter, of Middleton.

Supplement to Calnek History

Editor of Monitor-Sentinel:— I would be the favor of a space in your columns to inform the public that I am now engaged in compiling small supplementary volume of the History of Annapolis for the purpose of correcting errors in the Genealogies and Memoirs. In the history proper, the first 16 chapters, there is nothing to correct, and the book must remain the standard history of Acadia and Nova Scotia down to the arrival of the settlers of 1760 and since that, of the country but as a few of the old events some further notes and comments will be given. The Biographical Memoirs of the former members of the Provincial Parliament are accurate so far as those gentlemen's public lives are concerned, for they were compiled from the journals of the House and similar authoritative sources. But the personal records, such as their marriages, families, etc., contain so many errors that I have concluded that Mr. Calnek wrote them hastily for the purpose of the King's College prize competition, intending to correct them after further enquiries before publication, although their early appearance in book form was announced in 1880. Having, in the belief that they were complete, published them as I found them, I perhaps owe it to the public to issue the forthcoming volume, even at a further financial loss. Persons who know of any errors in the genealogies will kindly send in corrections, as many have already done. A. W. SAVARY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

ESTAIRS the music of Mr. Renwyck's snoring slumbers still echoed through the chimneys of his bedroom door, while at the farther end of the hall another closed and the sleepless Mr. Richard Williams.

The young man had heard the clock strike 3 and was still pursuing his train of tangled thought when it occurred to him that perhaps if he read for half an hour his mind might become composed enough for sleep. He remembered a partly finished book which he had left in the billiard room and started downstairs to get it. With a natural disinclination to disturb the household, he stepped very cautiously through the hall, down the flight of carpeted steps and approached the billiard room, which like the library, was separated from the lower hall by heavy curtains.

These he was about to draw aside when his outstretched hand was suddenly arrested by the sound of a voice within. It was masculine and belonged to no inmate of the house that he could recognize; also it was subdued, as one who feared to be overheard. What he heard assured him that some rascality was afoot.

"It's money I'm in need of," the voice was saying, "and that's why I took the risk of coming here alone in the middle of the night."

Richard's hand slid instinctively to his hip before he remembered the absurdity of fashionable clothes. Clearly there was some one in the room who had no business there. Yet to whom was he talking? If a member of the household, why this secrecy? He must investigate, of course. But first he had better arm himself, as he did not know who or how many he might have to deal with.

His mind once made up, the Texan removed his slippers, crept softly up the stairs to his room, then down again, pausing once more outside the billiard room, but this time listening deliberately.

"Mr. Fitzgeorge," a woman's voice was saying, "my patience is exhausted. Why all this talk? Your scheme is blackmail—nothing else. Give me the letters, take your pay and go."

With a stab of pain the Texan recognized the voice as Miss Imogene's, and it came with a double pang at the thought that she was meeting some unknown rascal in the dead of night while she was buying letters for him.

"What letters?" his heart questioned jealously. He longed to rush in and kill the miscreant in his tracks, yet when he held his hand against the door, he hesitated. He peeped through the heavy portieres and spied two female figures on one side of the billiard table, while that of a man was on the other side, with his back toward the library door, but with his face half turned toward the spot where the Texan waited.

"Very well," whispered the man again. "I guess you are playing fair, all right." He took a package from his inner pocket. "Here are your letters. Have you got the money?"

"No," said the man; "I give you my word as a gentleman that I have no money."

"Thank you," he murmured, with a most elaborate bow. "I'm much obliged to both of you. Rich people like this, had it will make me remember you for many a day, even without the recollection of your pretty faces. You've been square by me, and I'll be square by you. And now one kiss all around, and we'll say good night."

"You scoundrel!" breathed Harriet, furious to her finger tips. "Go instantly or I will call for help."

"Oh, no, you won't, my beauty!" laughed the man. "I'll not have kissed vulgar men than me before, and I'm going to take you down a peg. You better come and I'll shoot the man that comes to help you."

Miss Renwyck, with the limp and whinpering Imogene clinging to her waist, moved slowly around the billiard table, while the burglar watched her, breathing hard and following with a hostile tread. He had taken perhaps six steps, and his back was now turned toward the door which led into the hall. Suddenly he felt a savage grip about his neck and found himself with outstung arms, his mouth and nose smashed flat against the table, while a tiny ring of cold steel was pushed behind his ear.

"Steady, you hound, or I'll give you a shot that you never saw in billiards!"

The tone was low, but masterful, and Mr. Jack Bilbs was far too prudent a gentleman to start his mouth by futile disobedience. Therefore he made no immediate attempt to move.

On Harriet's brain, even in that dreadful instant, flashed a vivid, insistent memory. Again she was perched on the quivering broncho's back, pressed onward in a reeling, dizzy pool of death, while in her ears rang words of sweet encouragement. And as then she had exercised her force of will, so now she saved herself once more by clapping her hand over the mouth of fair Imogene. "This time it was muscle combined with common sense, and a healthy shriek was throated in its infancy.

Richard released his grip on the nape of his prisoner's neck. "Stand up!" he ordered, and the man obeyed. "Hands up! Ah, thank you! Perhaps you also have a gun. Allow me to relieve you of its weight." He ran his free hand over the person of Mr. Fitzgeorge and secured a short, ugly looking pistol and a pair of brass knuckles, both of which he promptly pocketed. "Good!" he chuckled. "And now, Miss Renwyck, will you please be good enough to throw some light upon this gentleman?"

"Yes," whispered Harriet; "I think I can explain it."

"No, no!" the Texan interrupted. "I don't mean words. I refer to the bullet eye lamp. Just turn it on him, please, and we'll look him over."

Miss Harriet complied. The light revealed the countenance of Roderick and the Texan's face and proceeded to enlighten him.

"Fresh air," he murmured softly. "It's so beastly warm, you know. I rather fancy I'm a bit feverish, really."

Mr. Renwyck frowned thoughtfully. "Lord Crolyland," he asked, "did you open that window yourself?"

"To be sure," lied Richard suavely, while he screwed in his ever ready monocle, thanking God that he had not laid it aside. Somehow the thing seemed to give him confidence now. It was something to cling to. "No harm, I trust?"

"Well, no," returned Mr. Renwyck slowly, "only I don't understand why it didn't raise a hullabaloo. I'm post-ive I set the burglar alarm, and"—He took a step toward the wall. "By George! It's turned off!"

Now, Richard knew nothing whatever about the burglar alarm and began to feel icy beads of perspiration gathering on his brow, the more so as Mr. Renwyck was gazing at him in ill disguised and increasing suspicion.

"Oh, that!" he laughed. "I turned the lever before I raised the sash. Miss Renwyck explained it to me yesterday. Jolly little contrivance, 'pon my word. I should like immensely to have the system installed at Crolyland Park."

The bogus ear looked innocent to the point of childishness, and the mystified host was forced to accept the very inadequate explanation of the episode. Without comment he closed the window, set the alarm once more, switched off the lights and silently, not to say grimly, led the way upstairs, meekly followed by the Texan, glad to have escaped further inquiry.

"I'm awfully sorry to have caused you all this bother," Richard apologized again as they reached the upper landing. "I'm no end of a nuisance, really."

"Don't mention it, I beg you," answered the financier, with forced courtesy. "I hope you will sleep now. Good night." Then the two parted and entered their respective rooms.

"Strange," muttered Mr. Renwyck as he pulled the sheet about his chin. "A peculiar lot, these Englishmen. But I dare say I appear just as peculiar to them. He acted so strangely, too, about that check the other night. One hundred thousand dollars! Humph! I wonder if he has a hundred thousand dollars. I begin to doubt it—doubt it exceedingly."

Meanwhile the Texan reached his room, mopped his brow and hunted for his brandy flask. It seemed to him that he wanted a good stiff drink as he wanted nothing else in all the world. He failed to find his flask in its accustomed place and surmised accurately that if he found Woolsey Bills he might strike it trail. The vault's sleeping room was next his own, so without ceremony the master pushed open the door, admitting a flood of light. He did not find his flask, nor did he find his servant either, for the room was deserted, and the bed had not been occupied.

"Ah!" observed the Texan thoughtfully. "Bret Fox has changed masters for the second time. Humph! A little awkward to explain—for me, I mean."

On Restmore a heavy silence fell again, which was broken as before, only by that antique clock and its soft chime as it struck another quarter hour. Then two dim, ghostly figures crept slowly up the stairs and entered Miss Harriet Renwyck's room. In a little while they were safely tucked in bed and lay whispering in each other's arms.

"Oh, Harriet, darling," breathed Miss Imogene, "wasn't he—er—just splendid when he told that home? I don't believe he's an Englishman at all."

"Nonsense!" the other laughed. "Of course he's an Englishman. Now try to go to sleep."

It would be discourteous in the extreme to state that a lady had been guilty of another "bouncer," but at any rate Miss Harriet clasped a crows' little figure to her breast, thoughts of Texas and smiled into the darkness happily.

"Lord Crolyland," he asked, "did you open that window yourself?"

ive I set the burglar alarm, and"—He took a step toward the wall. "By George! It's turned off!"

Now, Richard knew nothing whatever about the burglar alarm and began to feel icy beads of perspiration gathering on his brow, the more so as Mr. Renwyck was gazing at him in ill disguised and increasing suspicion.

"Oh, that!" he laughed. "I turned the lever before I raised the sash. Miss Renwyck explained it to me yesterday. Jolly little contrivance, 'pon my word. I should like immensely to have the system installed at Crolyland Park."

The bogus ear looked innocent to the point of childishness, and the mystified host was forced to accept the very inadequate explanation of the episode. Without comment he closed the window, set the alarm once more, switched off the lights and silently, not to say grimly, led the way upstairs, meekly followed by the Texan, glad to have escaped further inquiry.

"I'm awfully sorry to have caused you all this bother," Richard apologized again as they reached the upper landing. "I'm no end of a nuisance, really."

"Don't mention it, I beg you," answered the financier, with forced courtesy. "I hope you will sleep now. Good night." Then the two parted and entered their respective rooms.

"Strange," muttered Mr. Renwyck as he pulled the sheet about his chin. "A peculiar lot, these Englishmen. But I dare say I appear just as peculiar to them. He acted so strangely, too, about that check the other night. One hundred thousand dollars! Humph! I wonder if he has a hundred thousand dollars. I begin to doubt it—doubt it exceedingly."

Meanwhile the Texan reached his room, mopped his brow and hunted for his brandy flask. It seemed to him that he wanted a good stiff drink as he wanted nothing else in all the world. He failed to find his flask in its accustomed place and surmised accurately that if he found Woolsey Bills he might strike it trail. The vault's sleeping room was next his own, so without ceremony the master pushed open the door, admitting a flood of light. He did not find his flask, nor did he find his servant either, for the room was deserted, and the bed had not been occupied.

"Ah!" observed the Texan thoughtfully. "Bret Fox has changed masters for the second time. Humph! A little awkward to explain—for me, I mean."

On Restmore a heavy silence fell again, which was broken as before, only by that antique clock and its soft chime as it struck another quarter hour. Then two dim, ghostly figures crept slowly up the stairs and entered Miss Harriet Renwyck's room. In a little while they were safely tucked in bed and lay whispering in each other's arms.

"Oh, Harriet, darling," breathed Miss Imogene, "wasn't he—er—just splendid when he told that home? I don't believe he's an Englishman at all."

"Nonsense!" the other laughed. "Of course he's an Englishman. Now try to go to sleep."

It would be discourteous in the extreme to state that a lady had been guilty of another "bouncer," but at any rate Miss Harriet clasped a crows' little figure to her breast, thoughts of Texas and smiled into the darkness happily.

PHOTOGRAPHERS' RISKS

THRILLING ADVENTURES OF SNAP-SHOTTERS.

Camera Men Who Risk Their Lives For Pictures Have to Possess Intrepid Courage and Unlimited Patience—F. J. Mortimer's Work Photographing Big Waves—Snapping Wild Birds.

Although the sensational photograph has provided a fund of amusement and interest to the readers of the up-to-date illustrated periodical, few realize that in many cases the intrepid photographer-journalist has risked his life in order to obtain such splendid results.

A professional photographer with years of experience told the writer recently "that the man who desires to take up newspaper photography as a means of livelihood must have a constitution of iron, nerves of steel, and the abilities of an expert acrobat, in order to enable him to climb to any eminence to secure the snapshots the public are thirsting for." However that may be, fear must be unknown to the photographer, and he must frequently be prepared to run more than ordinary risks of serious injury.

Most photographers nowadays specialize. Mr. F. J. Mortimer has won renown by his daring and skill in obtaining photographs of big waves. His happy hunting-ground is in the Solly Isles, where the full force of the Atlantic waves itself fall on the numerous rocky islands which abound.

Clad in oilskins from head to foot, and with camera similarly protected, the daring photographer finds some coign of vantage—often a rock, almost surrounded by the sea, from which to bag his prey. If he has to occupy some particularly dangerous position, he takes the precaution to have a rope fastened round his waist, held by someone nearer the shore. He has had some narrow escapes. On several occasions a wave has dashed him to the rocks, smashing his camera to pieces. Mr. Mortimer has been most happy in his work, however, having taken over two thousand successful pictures of big waves.

The Kearton Brothers, perhaps the most wonderful nature photographers in the world, have taken photographs of wild birds in their nests, which required not only skill, but nerve and caution. The Kartons adopted all sorts of subterfuges in order to get close to their subjects. Their favorite method is to work from a small tent, which, painted green and covered with twigs and leaves, looks like a mound or hillock. For photographing birds such as larks and whistlers they have a special life-size model of a bush, with a hole in the chest for the lens; and for mountain birds a stuffed sheep made on the same principle. Sometimes the photographer must disguise himself as a tree trunk for birds in the bushes.

Most of the Kearton Brothers' thrills have been experienced in trying to "snap" a sea-eagle. They have been trying fifteen years, and have not succeeded yet.

Many photographs have been taken in mid-air at the end of a rope, while one Mr. Chas. Kearton waited six hours a day for three days up to his shoulders in water to get a picture of an osprey. The camera on this occasion was placed on stilts. The most desperate efforts were made to photograph a certain golden eagle on a Highland estate. Every day for a fortnight Mr. Kearton tramped up the mountains in dreadful weather, and one day during a snowstorm he fell over a cliff, smashing the camera and endangering himself so that he was laid up for a week. Many other stories these brothers tell of strategems and adventures in their work on cliff, crag, and moor.

Herr Schillings, the German explorer, is one of the most remarkable men in the history of photography. He has recently published a book of his fine sets of photographs of wild animals of the forest in their native element. For several years Herr Schillings has lived in Central Africa, and his wonderful stories of hair-breadth escapes furnish us with one of the most exciting books of adventure of recent times.

Apart from these cases the general news photographer has had adventures that might have given pause to the stoutest heart. As a case in point, reference may be made to the riots which occurred some months ago on the Longclamps racecourse, when the angry crowd broke down some of the stands and set fire to one. A noted Paris photographer was observed amidst the flames taking snapshots of the extraordinary scenes, and it was only at the last moment that he could be persuaded to leave his perilous post. His enterprise nearly cost him his life, but he reaped a rich harvest from the number of extraordinary photographs he had obtained by his daring courage.

The launching of great battleships and liners is a time for photographers to show their mettle. They climb the masts of ships, to be dislodged sometimes from their point of vantage by the huge tidal wave, and are often rescued from a position of extreme peril just in time. Then the intrepid photographer is expected to descend coal mines after disasters to get snap-shots; he must go down with a diver to inspect the hull of a vessel or photograph coral beds at the bottom of the ocean, or ascend to a giddy height on the iron girder of a skyscraper, or, while troops are laying down their lives for their country, he must calmly make pictures of the scene, in order to arouse the enthusiasm of his countrymen at home.

An Anglican Bishop's Views on Prohibition

Touching upon the temperance question Bishop Richardson said: "I do not hesitate to say that I do not think the time is ripe for prohibition though I believe that to be an ideal towards which we ought to work and an ideal that will one day be realized."

"If, therefore, such a measure should be proposed today, I should be compelled to raise my voice against it. But the moment I can see behind such a measure a weight of public opinion sufficient to enforce it, I shall be ready to give it my heartiest support. For a similar reason I do not think that the province is ready yet for unlimited local option and by that I mean the principle of local option applied indiscriminately. The experience of the past few years, however, has taught me to believe that local option is an excellent working plan in purely country districts. That does not, seem to be true of the larger towns and cities and for the reason I have indicated, public opinion in favor of the Scott Act is not yet strong enough to secure it adequate enforcement. And now out of all this let us come to the question that is before us: What can this Synod do? It can do at least these things, I hope.

1-It can declare itself as being in favor of the ultimate abolition of the bar as a place of public drinking, if liquor could be lawfully sold only in sealed packages to be consumed away from the place of sale I cannot doubt that the evils of intemperance would undoubtedly be lessened.

2-We should further be able to agree that if intoxicating liquor is to be sold at all by license, that the cost of that license ought to be considerably higher than it is at present in New Brunswick. The effect of this change would be to eliminate many of the most disreputable dealers.

3-There can be little doubt too, I think, that under our present license system the interests of morality demand a large reduction in the number of licenses granted in any given area. No one for example, who knows St. John will seriously say that there are not too many places of public drinking.

4-The Synod might well put itself on record as favoring the rigorous enforcement of all existing laws and call upon the members of the church to throw the weight of their activity in that direction. The way in which local authorities in certain parts of the province practically condone the deliberate infringement of the liquor laws by exacting a yearly tribute only, is nothing less than a disgrace. There is absolutely no excuse for this practice and I should welcome a clear condemnation of it by the Synod.

5-There should, again, be no hesitation in expressing our opinion that the practice of public treating ought to be discouraged and condemned as dangerous.

6-And lastly, I hope that the Synod will unite in commending the habit of total abstinence for the sake of others as a voluntary surrender of personal liberty completely in accord with the highest form of Christian character.

Terrific Story of the Wreck of the Hestia

The following particulars of the sufferings and privations endured by the six survivors of the ill-starred steamer Hestia was given by seaman John McKenzie, who was on deck at the time the steamer struck and appears to be in a better position to tell just what happened than any of the others. None of the survivors were connected in any way with the navigation of the ship, so that it can only be conjectured as to what the steamer was doing away in "here, several miles out of her course. Certain it is, according to McKenzie that Gannet Rock light was plainly visible from the steamer, and how the vessel could go so far out of her course, is a mystery. It must be that the Gannet Rock light was mistaken for some other light or possibly the compass was not working right, but just what the cause was nobody knows but the captain or the officer on watch, and they are beyond telling.

"The first I knew that anything was wrong," said McKenzie to a Telegraph reporter who went to the wreck, "was when I heard McCandlish, who was on the lookout, call out to Murray, the steersman. Murray appeared to be trying to bring the ship around, but before he could do so we crashed on the ledge. McCandlish said when he saw the ledge at first he thought it was a schooner. Of course the night was very dark and with the rain driving down it was difficult to see any distance. After the steamer struck I could see Gannet Rock light on our port side. It appeared to be about five miles away.

"The captain gave orders at once to get the boats ready and they were provisioned and lowered to the rail ready to be put in the water at a moment's notice. Rockets and bombs were sent off to try and attract attention, and we watched the Gannet Rock light for an answering signal, but none came. Finally we carried a big pile of mattresses and beds up on the forward deck and made a large bonfire but this did not appear to attract attention either.

"In the meantime the steamer was settling and big waves were breaking over us. One big sea carried away our two big boats on the port side. One was empty but the other was occupied by the passenger who was looking after the horses. He had got into it so as to be ready when it was sent off. We never saw a sign of him afterwards and I think he must have been drowned almost immediately.

About 5.30 the captain ordered the men to take to the boats. Eleven men got in one boat but in lowering it into the water the forward end slipped from the tackle and the after tackle held so that when the bow dropped down the men were all thrown out. One of them, however, had cut the after tackle, but not in time to avert the disaster. We men on the ship threw lines over at once and Morgan and McVicar were hauled on board. Morgan was pretty near exhausted. Another man caught hold of one of the lines and we hauled him almost up to the rail when he suddenly let go and fell back into the sea.

"It was so dark we could hardly see what we were doing, nearly all the ship's lanterns had been smashed and we had only bullseye lanterns that did not give much light. We could hear the men crying for help and the little immigrant boy, who was in the boat was crying Oh, mamma, save me." We did the best we could to save them but it was too dark to see anything, and we could only drop out lines down and shout to the drowning men to catch hold. I think that the nine of them must have drowned right there, for their boat was beating against the side of the steamer and we fancied we could hear the timbers smashing.

The captain was in the big lifeboat along with the chief engineer, the two boys whose father owned the horses, and the rest of the crew except we six who decided to take our chance on the steamer. There must have been twenty-five in that boat and she got away from the ship all right, so far as we could tell.

"Before the captain left he gathered his papers together and stuck them into his lifebelt, and the chief engineer also took his book and papers with him. Everyone who left the ship was provided with a lifebelt and we men who stayed also put on lifebelts.

"After the boats had left we gathered some sticks and whittled them into small pieces so as to get the dry inside parts, and build a fire to keep warm and to act as a signal in case a vessel might be passing. Four of

COUGHS & COLDS LEAD TO CONSUMPTION

Colds are the most dangerous of all forms of disease. A neglected cold leads to Bronchitis, Consumption, Pneumonia. "Coughs" are the result of irritated bronchial tubes. PSYCHINE PRONOUNCED SI-KEEN

The men crowded into the little light-ship on the forward part of the ship and managed to keep out of the wind and rain. When the tide came up, however, there was only the width of two or three planks on the forward part of the ship that wasn't under water, and the seas broke over that so that we had to climb into the rigging, and to keep ourselves from falling when we were numb with the cold we lashed ourselves fast with bits of rope that we cut off the fittings.

After it came daylight and as the tide went down we tied two blankets up amidships as a signal. Several times on Monday we saw schooners passing at a distance and hoped they would see us and take us off, but apparently they didn't see us and we had to face another night of cold weather in clothes that were soaking wet. On Tuesday morning we hoisted another blanket on the foremast when we saw a schooner approaching, but although we saw an answering signal hoisted the boat did not come to take us off but bore away again. This was probably the schooner Mizpah, in command of Joseph Gaskill, of North Head. He reported having seen the wreck, and the signals of distress and later in the morning rescuing vessels set out from Seal Cove and took off the survivors.

"We had nothing to eat all the time we were on the wreck," said McKenzie, "unless you would call one big Spanish onion and a tin of condensed milk, among six, something to eat. We ransacked the cook's galley and the storeroom but everything had been washed overboard except these two things.

"There was a small boat left on board the ship and Monday morning we were considering whether we had better try to get off in it, but while we were hesitating the seas caught it up, tore it away and it was stove in. We also thought of building a raft on Tuesday morning but finally decided to stick to the ship a while longer and I think it was lucky we did."

"I can tell you we were glad to see those fishermen come and take us off." "I suppose you will give up the sea now after such a narrow escape?" he was asked.

"Oh! I don't think so," he replied. "It's the only trade I know and I guess I'll have to stick to it. I suppose I'll be off again in another ship before long."

FOOTBALL BARBAROUS

"Football as played by the college teams of this country is barbarous and ought to be abolished," said Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia. "Instead they should play association football, as it is called nowadays. It is the kind we played when I was a college, where the players kick the ball and not each other." Archbishop Ryan's comment was brought out by the death of M. Burke, a student of the Medico-Chirurgical College, who received fatal injuries in a game last Saturday.

HAVE MARTIANS MET DESTRUCTION?

Astronomers now say that a gloomy veil has enshrouded immense tracts of the Martian surface, obscuring the markings. As these are held to be canal works, constructed by a dying race, a race menaced by starvation on a desert planet, to carry water supplied by the melting ice-caps on the pole to the waterless areas near the equator and thus raise food, the worst is feared.

It is suggested that if the markings have disappeared, and the yellow veil has covered immense tracts on the surface, there must have been some cataclysm on a gigantic scale, some cataclysm such as dwarfs the most violent earthquake known on our planet. What is the exact nature of the cataclysm can of course, as yet be only vaguely guessed. But it is worth notice that there have been extraordinary vapourings recently on Mars.

In August the southern polar cap was observed to have fractured. A dark streak ran all the way across it. About the same time a brilliant spot separated it half from the polar cap and covered one of the dusky areas in Mars partly hiding it from view.

It may be that abnormal electrical conditions in the sun, which, according to Sir Oliver Lodge, caused the recent magnetic storm on the earth have had a far more terrible influence on Mars. There they have unlocked forces that ended forever the struggle for life of the Martians.

Make Washing Easier

You can do a big washing with half the trouble if you use Taylor's Borax Soap. It whitens, cleanses and sweetens the clothes, saves boiling and will not shrink wool, while the things look better and feel nicer than they ever did before. Wash your things in the Taylor way.

WEDNESDAY, November 10, 1909.

—Lord Northcliffe, whose splendid industrial enterprise in Newfoundland,
has just been carried to completion,
in his great speech before a large audience, at Botwood spoke of Mr.
Harry J. Crowe as being the "pioneer" of the great industrial activity at Grand Falls, Bishops Falls and Botwood, saying: "If it were not for his efforts in connection with these great undertakings and great faith in the resources of Newfoundland these great pulp works would not be here."

As Mr. Crowe is one of Bridge-town's former residents and has been in many ways a benefactor to our town, we wish to place before our readers a part of his interesting speech, replying to Lord Northcliffe, who is indebted to Mr. Crowe for in-roducing him to the site of the great paper and pulpmills which promise so much for the industrial future of Newfoundland. This speech was made on the occasion of a gathering to promote an organization for the physical, mental and social development of the young men employed in this industrial enterprise.

Mr. Crowe said in part:—
"The object of this meeting I believe is to give the people of Bot-woodville an opportunity of hearing Lord Northcliffe, and of uniting to promote the interests and welfare of our people in connection with an organization for the development of our young men. We are approaching the dawn of a new day when we see those who have plenty giving much to those less fortunate, who are worthy, and the result is always the same, viz., the giver and the receiver alike have been benefited. I am sure we are all proud and deeply grateful for the presence of Lord Northcliffe here tonight, and to know that he is in hearty sympathy with all that pertains to the welfare of our people. His sympathetic nature responds as quickly to the needs of those who are struggling to reach a higher plane of life, as does his wonderful originating mind when directed to the upbuilding of a gi-gantic commercial enterprise, or in the upbuilding or strengthening of the Empire, to which he has rendered such valuable service in the past and I believe will be called upon to render even greater service in the future.

"This old colony has been waiting a long time for such a man as Lord Northcliffe with his vision, his courage and his wealth of sympathy as well as gold. Much better can we do without a great number of our politicians than one such man.

"Lord Northcliffe would not be burned aside by prejudice and lack of faith in the resources of this country, which I regret to say, is shared by so many inside of this Colony as well as out.

"If you will pardon a personal reference, seven years ago, on the first day I reached St. John's, I was told by a prominent citizen there that he did not believe I could find one good fir tree on the Island, and as far as our forest resources were concerned he had absolutely no faith in them. This is what many intending investors

meet when coming to this country;
but since then over one hundred million feet of lumber has been exported to foreign markets, besides providing amply for the local consumption, and on this very day
there is being loaded a most valuable steam cargo of white pine for Buenos Ayres at a small place about fourteen miles from here.

"This is merely mentioned to show that we should have more faith and knowledge of our resources and be more hopeful regarding the future that is in store for this country and the great possibilities that are within our reach.
We want to keep an open mind and be teachable on matters relating not only to our commercial development but broader in all our views, seeing good in all without regard to creed or rank.

"If Lord Northcliffe had not kept an open mind regarding our forest wealth and the economic conditions for the manufacture of pulp and paper which we possess in this Colony; had he not been determined to make an independent investigation notwithstanding the opinions of others, we would not today have these magnificent works at Grand Falls.

"He employed the best skill that money and brains could provide to make a thorough investigation, which has resulted in his investment of six million dollars in this Colony.

"Our dream regarding the development of the Exploits has materialized and we of this place are happy to see the products of this great valley being shipped at this magnificent harbor of Botwood.
Thanks to Lord Northcliffe for improving the name.

"I can now picture in my mind's eye in the near future railways piercing and developing certain portions of this Island where there are almost unbounded forest and mineral wealth. We need smelting works and not to be content to export our ore in its crude state. If we have not got coal on the Island (which I hope we have), Cane Breton is not so far away as to make it impracticable. We in this dear old Island need to get a vision occasionally founded on facts of our future possibilities in our natural resources as well as in our selves, even though it should cause some to call us dreamers. You will be very fortunate indeed in escaping with only that name if you happen to get a thought in advance of the other fellow. I have in mind now a recent issue of the New York Herald which I received a few days ago, in which that great American newspaper devoted two of its front pages to the Grand Falls pulp and paper enterprise. Most of this article was devoted to belittling this country the Grand Falls undertaking and all connected therewith. What inspired this article is very evident. Lord Northcliffe, as is his custom, took a step in advance of the other publishers and in this case grasped the situation here and has, thus provided for his future supply of paper (which is the life blood of a publisher's business in a way that has made him absolutely independent of any possible future paper famine or sharp advance in cost, so that he is head and shoulders above all rivals.
Hence the "howl" of the New York Herald.

"I have great admiration for a pioneer; it is comparatively easy for others to follow and build upon a foundation that is already laid;
but it is the man who can peer into the future, break the ice, and demonstrate his convictions by stake-ing his substance and energies as Lord Northcliffe and Mr. Beeton have done; and when the future history of Newfoundland is written they will be found to be men who were largely responsible in awakening the great industrial movement which is bound to take place in this country. I think men should have a little credit for what they accomplish while they are here instead of waiting until they are dead. "A little taffy is worth a great deal of 'epitaphy.'" *****
Mr. Crowe then dwelt upon the advantage of an organization based upon the principles of the Young Men's Christian Association, as it not only has the advantage of a secular club in regard to the physical,
social, and mental training, but in addition would have a Christian influence, without which most clubs become degenerate.

He closed by saying that he believed it was the intention of this organization, which was now only in infancy, when they became more thoroughly organized, to become a part of the great International Brotherhood, the Y. M. C. A. which now beats the globe and which has been raised up by God to lead the way in Christian charity and develop the young men for a higher plane of life."

FIFTY YEARS FORGOTTEN.

The Miraculous Mazes of the Official Mind.

Most Government departments still cultivate fine, healthy crops of red-tape, and that, added to the quaintness which seems natural to the official mind, works as wondrously as ever it did.

There is a parish in Lincolnshire called Horsington, which was possessed of an old, dilapidated, tiny cottage. The parishioners wished to pull the cottage down, and to sell the building materials, and they accordingly applied to the local guardians at Horncastle for permission.
Those guardians gave their consent readily; but the sanction of the Local Government Board had first to be obtained before any pulling down could be done.

The Local Government Board, following the orthodox and stereotyped course, directed that a further parish meeting should be held to consent formally to the sale. This meeting was duly held, and a poll of the parish was demanded. And, after all, it was found that the estimated value of the materials of the old cottage was only $5 clear, while the cost of the poll would be $15!

But, of course, there is a proper routine for all these matters, and it must be adhered to rigidly.
Two magistrates—call them A. and B.—reported on the structural condition of a public-house. These two magistrates ordered certain work to be done; that is, one ordered the work, and the other approved, and agreed that the work was necessary.
Now, A. was a joiner, and, as a joiner, carried out the work of reconstruction to the house, while B., who was a plumber, as well as a magistrate, did the plumbing work under the orders of joiner-magistrate A.
And, of course, the work which A.
and B. did was the work which they,
as magistrates, had previously ordered to be done, and which they—still as magistrates—would afterwards have to approve of when it was finished.

A familiar official farce is that of judges on circuit, wasting time and money, merely to receive a pair of white gloves when there are no cases to be tried at assizes; and during the revision of the jury lists at North-wich, some little time back, an overseer produced a blank sheet of paper,
as there was not a solitary juror within his district. Nevertheless, official rules compelled him to make a journey of eight miles simply to produce a piece of white paper and swear to it.

In spending the national income,
the official mind is at its best. The War Office—shot at by most red-tape stories—erected a building at Aldershot for a balloon-shed. The work of construction proceeded with true official rapidity—very slowly, in fact,
and by the time it was finished other buildings in the neighborhood had been erected, with the result that it would have been impossible to get the balloon in and out of the shed.
So the shed had to be taken down and rebuilt elsewhere.

That is merely one instance. One day recently a War Office official found, carefully pigeon-holed, an order for road-making material. The order was put in hand forthwith, and presently a traction-engine, with blocks of stone, gravel, and other material, was deposited at Aldershot,
with a party of men.

But no one there had any instructions, or knew anything at all of any road-making proposals. Investigations were made, and slowly the red-tape was unwound, when it was discovered that the order was fifty years old—forgotten, and now raked up and gravely executed!

The Bushongo.

The return is expected shortly of an expedition, organized by Mr. E.
Torday, which left England in Sept., 1907, for the Congo Free State, with the object of conducting a scientific inquiry into the customs and culture of certain native tribes south of lat.
2 S., between the Kwilu and Lomami rivers. Of the tribes visited, writes a London Times correspondent, by far the most important and interesting are the Bushongo, the western tribes of whom were discovered in 1884 by Wissmann's expedition. Little, however, has hitherto been recorded of them except their skill in handicrafts. The information now collected proves them to be one of the most remarkable tribes in Africa.
In the first place they have preserved a great deal of their tribal history, and a list of no fewer than 123 great chiefs was obtained; numerous legends in connection with the reigns of certain of these rulers relate the migrations of the people, their wars with neighboring tribes, and the introduction or invention of various useful arts.

How New Zealand Became British.
How New Zealand became a British possession is one of the romances of colonization. Seventy years ago it was a sort of no man's land, but it leaked out that France contemplated annexation. There was a race from Sydney between a British and a French man-of-war, the former winning by a few hours and securing
New Zealand for the British crown.
A few years previously a French adventurer, Baron de Thierry, at the head of 100 followers, whom he had recruited in Sydney, had proclaimed himself "King of New Zealand," but the baron had not sufficient funds to maintain a monarchy. His subjects deserted, and his reign collapsed.

A Miserly Monarch.
One of the most inveterate hoarders on record was George IV. Not only was he adverse to destroying books and papers, but he preserved everything that could possibly be kept.
When he died all the suits of clothes he had worn for twenty years were discovered and sold by public auction. His executors also found secreted in various drawers and cupboards numerous purses and pocketbooks crammed full of money, to the extent it is said of $100,000,
together with more sentimental treasures in the form of locks of hair from the tresses of forgotten beauties of the court.

WHEN ROYALTY DINES.

How the King's Kitchen King Works
—An Important Post.

Mr. Menager, the head cook at Buckingham Palace, occupies an important post in the royal household.
His salary is £2,000 per annum, and he is recognized as being one of the greatest culinary artists in the world.
The royal kitchens and the whole kitchen staff are under his complete control.

Opening of the main kitchen at one side of it are half a dozen smaller kitchens, and on the other side there are four offices, where the clerical work in connection with the kitchen department is attended to. One of these offices is Mr. Menager's private room.

Mr. Menager does not live in Buckingham Palace, but has his private residence close to it. On arriving at the palace—usually about eleven o'clock in the morning—his first care is to inspect the lunch menu for that day, which has been prepared by his first assistant, and also the menu for breakfast the following morning. He then prepares the dinner menu for the following day—a task that occupies him usually a couple of hours.

No two dinners at the royal table are ever the same. Certain dishes are from time to time repeated, frequently by special request of the King, but what may be termed the general order of the dinner is always different. One of the side kitchens is reserved solely for Mr.
Menager's use, where he carries out experimental culinary operations, and is constantly elaborating and perfecting new recipes. Some dishes have taken him months of preparation before he has decided to put them into the menu. There is one particular sauce which Mr. Menager invented some years ago to which the King has particular liking. Mr.
Menager was making experiments for over three years before he served this sauce to the royal table.

There are many dishes, by the way, which can be tasted nowhere except at the royal table. The secret of their preparation is known only to Mr. Menager, and he guards such secrets with great care. None of his assistants have the least notion of how these special dishes and sauces are prepared. They simply have the handling of the raw materials, and each assistant carries out different directions in its preparation for table.

The dinner menu is submitted
every day to their Majesties for approval, but this is a mere matter of form, for neither the King nor Queen ever think of altering or interfering with Mr. Menager's arrangements.

At three o'clock a report is laid before the great chef by the order clerk of the various meats that have been ordered in accordance with Mr.
Menager's instructions of the day before, and also what is called a kitchen report is given to him by the head assistant cook—which is a detailed statement of the manner in which the dinner for that night is to be prepared. After seeing that everything is in order for the evening's work, Mr. Menager generally leaves the palace about four o'clock, returning at half-past six, when he never fails to make a personal inspection of the various ranges, ovens, and stoves, and takes a careful note of the temperature in each.

The preparation of the royal dinner is then begun. Mr. Menager remains in the kitchen whilst the work is going forward, keeping a keen eye on everything and everyone, and issuing from time to time instructions to his first lieutenant. At ten minutes to nine exactly a bell rings, and the servants who are to bear the dishes to the state dining-room enter the kitchen.

At nine o'clock dinner is served,
and Mr. Menager's work for the day is over. He remains in his private room until ten o'clock, when he receives a message from the King commending the dinner. This is a ceremony his Majesty never forgets to perform.

Natural Mummies.

Natural mummification, the changing of the human body into a dried condition without artificial treatment, is an extremely rare phenomenon.
In a case reported by the Hon. S.
Wolffsohn of British Honduras, a middle-aged coolie who disappeared was found more than a year afterward in a corrugated iron hut, as a perfectly preserved mummy. The hut, in a somewhat isolated spot at Sibun, was raised on blocks four or five feet above the ground, and had a door and three shutters, one shutter being open, while one had fallen out. The body was clothed in a cotton undershirt, dark jersey, and duck trousers, two pieces of rope around the neck proving self-strangulation. The desiccation seemed to have been favored by a combination of conditions—the season having been extraordinarily dry, and the small iron house excessively hot, though well ventilated, while the body was thin and attenuated as a result of mental disorder.

What Next?

East Preston, Sussex, England, workhouse will assuredly become the most popular institution of its kind in England, for the inmates, the guardians have decided, are to be allowed to play "ladder" golf. On the recommendation of the visiting committee, the board accepted with thanks the offer to provide putters and balls made by Mrs. Laphorne, of Littlehampton, and authorized the master to prepare the necessary grounds. One guardian even suggested the provision of marbles for the inmates, but the board did not treat his suggestion seriously.

Migrant Rodents.

Manitoba is threatened with an invasion of rats, which have appeared in great numbers in the towns of Gretna and Emerson, near the international border. They are "trekking" northward, and the Board of Control at Winnipeg is organizing a vigorous campaign against the pests. Western Canada, especially the great grain belt, has hitherto been free from these destructive rodents, and the farmers are much concerned for the safety of their harvested corn.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL.

Mr. Max Newcombe is to become a "benedict" and is expected to bring home his bride tomorrow.

Look out for the sale of "Home Cooking and Candy" at the grand supper in St. James schoolroom next Wednesday.

Mr. John Irvin, Crown prosecutor and stipendiary magistrate for the town of Bridgetown has been gazetted King's Councillor.

There was a surplus of about $100 over expenditure for the Annapolis Kings and Hunts Horticultural exhibition.

Rev. H. R. Grant is to address meetings in Annapolis county, from Nov. 9th to 16th in the interests of the Nova Scotia Temperance Alliance.

All those interested in the proposed new rink will please attend a meeting to be held in the Council rooms, on Friday evening, the 12th inst at 8 o'clock.

H. Price Webber's Boston Comedy Company opened a three night's engagement here last evening. They are putting on three new plays and doubt less will as usual have a full house while they play in Bridgetown.

Our advertisers should now be making plans for the holiday advertising. Get your adv. in early and give the compositor a chance to do good work on it. He cannot give it the same attention if it comes in at the last hour.

Cameron had an easy win in the ten-mile race at Amherst showing himself the speediest amateur who runs in Canada today. Rodgers won second place, Paul, the Indian, succumbed in the 14th lap and was carried off.

Rev. H. G. Mellick, B. D. will deliver a lecture in Phinney's Hall Lawrencetown, Nov. 18th., subject "Pioneer Experiences in Western Canada". The Band will play several selections beginning at 7.30. Refreshments will be served at the close of the lecture.

The dates for the Dominion Exhibition to be held at St. John next year have been fixed to open on Lab or Day, September 5th., and close on Wednesday September 14th. The opening date had already been announced but the closing date was only fixed at the meeting of the executive last week.

While the morning freight train from Annapolis was at Middleton on Wednesday, says the Outlook, the end of one of the locomotive's cylinders blew out. When the express from Halifax arrived it had to pull the freight train into the siding in order to get past. A locomotive came out from Kentville and took the freight train.

The report that the Union Bank of Halifax is about to open a branch in Montreal was confirmed at the head offices of the bank yesterday says the Chronicle. Assistant General Manager Strickland stated that arrangements were being made by General Manager Thorne, who is now in Montreal. The manager of the new branch is to be C. A. Gray, now in charge of the St. John branch.

Rev. Norman A. McNeil, newly elected pastor of the Baptist church arrived with his family and took possession of the parsonage last week. Rev. Mr. McNeil conducted the services at Bridgetown and Centerlea on Sunday and made a favorable impression. Prior to his leaving Sackville a farewell social was tendered Mr. and Mrs. McNeil and both were kindly remembered with appreciated gifts.

Councillor F. G. Bishop has leased from Mrs. W. E. Palfrey the store formerly occupied by T. H. Reed Lawrencetown, and will open up a general mercantile business about the 20th. of the present month. Mr. Bishop has had quite an extensive experience in mercantile life having carried on a successful business at Williamston for 18 years prior to 1904, and will doubtless secure a good share of patronage. We understand Mr. Bishop will take his son, Fred into the business, and his other two sons will look after his farming interests.

An accident which was nearly attended with fatal consequences occurred last Wednesday afternoon. A young man was attempting to shoot a cat in the yard at the rear of his house on Granville street. The first shot wounded the cat which sprang to the top of the fence. In his haste to take aim the young man fired at random and the bullet sped across several lots until it reached the upper story bay window of the house of Mr. E. A. Hicks, passing diagonally through a front lower pane and coming out at a side window, just missing in its range Mrs. Hicks who happened to be at the window but at that moment was stooping below the window pane that was struck. No doubt when the young man has another cat to dispose of he will choose a safer, and we trust a more humane way of doing so.

PERSONAL

Town Clerk Milner attended Court in Truro last week.

Miss Kathleen Buckler, of Dalhousie, is visiting Miss Nora Anderson.

Miss Grace Hoyt is visiting her sister, Mrs. Jas. H. McDaniel, at Lunenburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Chipman, of Wolfville, have been visiting in town during the past week.

Mrs. H. V. Barrett, of Boston, and daughter, Miss Blais Freeman, returned home last Tuesday, after a brief visit.

Mr. Vroom Hoyt, of the Parraboro branch of the Union Bank, is at home, having leave of absence owing to trouble with his eyes.

The many friends of Mr. J. W. Ruggles, who was recently married and is on his wedding trip, regret to learn that he is ill with typhoid fever in New York.

Mr. W. W. Cowell, the well-known marine artist, and wife, who have been spending the past summer at Round Hill, Annapolis Co., were passengers per steamer Boston on Wednesday afternoon to Boston, where Mr. Cowell goes for medical treatment.—Yarmouth Telegram.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Violets have been laid upon our table during the week, with quite the breath of summer in their fragrance and color.

Dr. A. A. Dechman is making important alterations and improvements in his house recently purchased on South Queen street, known as the Cassidy place.

The treasurer of the Halifax Infant's Home" gratefully acknowledges the sum of nine dollars and forty cents from a Union Service held at Bridgetown on Thanksgiving Day.

The thirteen year old son of A. J. Wheelock, by the accidental discharge of a gun one day last week, got his face filled with powder. He was hastily brought to Bridgetown to Dr. DeBlois to get the wounds dressed. Fortunately his eyes were not injured.

Town Clerk Milner communicated with the Public Utility Board last week regarding the adjustment of Electric light rates between the company and the town. He was informed that the Board was just in process of organization and would communicate with him later.

Ruggles Hall was the scene of an enjoyable occasion on Friday evening when two parties of young people one from Paradise and one from Round Hill, met and tripped the light fantastic together. There was also an informal dance the same evening in which a number of Bridgetown young people participated held in the Primrose Block.

CHOICE OF LOCATION BRIDGETOWN.

Dr. Dechman, whose card appears elsewhere, has decided to take up his residence permanently in Bridgetown. He has spent fifteen years in the practising of his profession; four of these were spent in the western part of state of Montana, the balance in Nova Scotia. He thinks, however, among the many places he has visited in different parts of this continent, that few, if any, have been more favored by nature than this section of territory lying between the North and South Mountains and more especially that portion of it in the immediate vicinity of Bridgetown. Dr. Dechman is of the opinion that by the system of intensive farming carried out in many of the farming districts of the United States, and even in our own province, this same district might be made to support many times the population it has at present and in so doing add very materially to the wealth and prosperity of the country.

The ladies of St. James' church are making great preparations for the GRAND SUPPER to be given in their schoolroom next Wednesday, Nov. 17th. Make a note of the date and patronize it. Tickets 35c. Children 20c. Don't miss it.

Obituary.

GILBERT RAY WILLETT.

Suddenly at his home, Westfield, N. B. occurred the death, on October 30th. of Gilbert Ray Willett, at the age of 72 years.

Mr. Willett was a native of Tupper ville. When about twenty-one years of age he left his native place and went to Boston. He settled in Walpole, Mass., for a time and afterwards went to Vermont, where he lived about 13 years, afterwards coming to New Brunswick about three years ago he took up his residence in Westfield, N. B.

Mr. Willett was of a mechanical bent of mind and he invented and patented a washing machine which he manufactured himself until a few years ago since which time it has been manufactured by a brother-in-law at Coaticook, Mr. Willett was very successful in the sale of his machine, and made several trips to the old country, introducing it and making sales in England and Belgium.

He was of energetic, industrious habits, genial in disposition, and made many friends wherever he was known. His death was a great shock to his family. His twin brother, Mr. A. D. Willett, of Walpole, Mass., was making him a visit, arriving at Westfield on the day preceding his death. In the morning he rose and breakfasted as usual and after breakfast busied himself in his garden putting some late vegetables in the cellar. His brother, Mr. A. D. Willett, preceded him down the cellar steps and tusing to look at the furnace, he heard a fall and looking back saw his brother lying at the foot of the steps. Hastening to his aid he discovered that in that brief space of time life had fled. The deceased had been subject to heart attacks for some time, but no immediate danger was suspected.

Mr. Willett who was an uncle of Mr. F. H. Willett, of Tupperville, leaves a wife and daughter, Miss Jennie Willett, who with the brother, accompanied the remains to Tupperville, for interment in the family lot, which took place on Tuesday last.

SNAPSHOTS OF THE MODE.

A New Length in Negligees—Sunbonnets in a Smart Guise.

Quaint little negligees, half jacket, half robe, are made of straight strips of lace and embroidery joined together with but few curves. These end about ten inches from the ground, allowing all the frills of the petticoat to show. They have a low neck and an apology of a sleeve. Worn over a fine petticoat and with dainty stockings and slippers they are fascinatingly pretty. Glorified sunbonnets are being seen in the millinery shops. The shape is exactly that of the old fashioned sunbonnet, but the new bonnets are fashioned of softest satin, covered with lace and threaded with ribbons to tie at the throat. Some of them are trimmed with a single rose, lily or pansy.

When making buttonholes in the back of a lace dress or yoke try sewing fine net or chiffon as wide as the facings inside of the hem where buttonholes are to be worked. This makes three thicknesses to be worked through, and if carefully inserted the inner lining will not show. The coat shirt is a favorite among the greater number of men folk. It is easy to take off and is altogether comfortable. The shirt in the cut can be made with a tucked bosom or plain as liked and with or without an applied yoke at the back.

FASHION SILHOUETTE.

An Autumn Probability—Materials That Will Be Worn.

There has been much conjecture concerning the tailored suit of the future. But at least an inkling has been given of what we may expect. One of the suits for earliest autumn is of cheviot, with a very long coat. The gown underneath is trimmed around the hips with a short tunic of the cloth itself.

Silk surfaces for the fall show figures, flowers and dots. And, by the way, it is said that we are going to have a great silk season, which is good news, for this material is lovely and adapted to the present modes.

Shoulder capes for the fall are among the coming styles. They are quite short and cut like the cape of Sir Walter Raleigh. They are of chiffon richly embroidered and hang from one shoulder, being held in place by satin ribbon which crosses the back at an angle to the waist line.

The coat costume made of plain material and worn with a lingerie blouse is serviceable. This model is appropriate for woollen materials of between season weight.

Would Stop Appendicitis Operations by Law

"An operation for appendicitis should be called a criminal operation, and as such should be prohibited by law."—Dr. Charles E. Page.

Declaring that the medical world has grievously blundered in advocating surgical treatment for appendicitis and calling upon the law to put a stop to what he terms as "criminal operations," one of Boston's well known physicians has started the scientific circles by his unqualified denunciation of the modern doctors' methods.

He also declares that the germ theory upon which the medical science of today is based is "a stupid fallacy," and he asserts that vaccination or the injection of serum obtained from horses into the human system is nothing less than blood poisoning, while the Pasteur treatment for rabies, in his opinion, means subjecting the patient to "two bites instead of one."

The physician whose utterances have proved a veritable bomb in the medical camp is Dr. Charles E. Page, a Bostonian of many years' residence. He is a graduate of the Eclectic Medical College, class of 1881, but he carefully explains that since leaving college he has been unlearning much that was taught him, and to this fact he ascribes his rugged health at the age of seventy.

APPENDIX OF GREAT VALUE
"I have been following the records of appendicitis operations ever since the craze for appendectomy started," says Dr. Page, "and I confidently believe that the day is coming when the people will finally realize that appendectomy, the cutting of the appendix, is a criminal operation."

"I remember about 20 years ago of having read in a medical journal a report of the meeting of a medical association in Philadelphia where the consensus of opinion of the members seemed to be that the appendix was a useless organ and that it was better cut off than not. There was one member, however, whose opinion was altogether different, and I remember now his rough description of the appendix as 'the little oil can of the lower bowels.'"

"This description was particularly apt, for the function of the highly useful little organ known as the appendix is to secrete and pour into the colon, or large intestine, its digestive and lubricating juices. Sir William McEwen, M. D., the eminent professor of surgery of the University of Glasgow, has pronounced these juices from the appendix as 'of great value when combined with other intestinal juices and tending to suppress the development of injurious bacteria.'"

"The so-called appendicitis of which we hear so much is nothing but colitis, inflammation of the colon, or large intestine, and may be readily cured by simple hydro-therapeutic treatment as I have done in scores of cases where the patient had been advised to go under the knife. I could cite such cases and I have done so in articles I have written for medical journals describing the treatment. The only conclusion to be drawn is that the operations for so-called appendicitis, which, in reality, is colitis, should be prohibited by law."

THE APPALLING RECORD

"As for the widely proclaimed benefits and saving of life by operations to cut the appendix, it seems hardly necessary to cite the long list of deaths following the operation. Only recently we have had the striking instance of Clyde Fitch, the great playwright and Governor Johnson of Minnesota. The surgeons cut off Governor Johnson's appendix a year or so ago; they operated on him a second time, and on the third operation he fell a victim to mistaken modern theories. I have kept track of the appendectomy deaths for twenty years and the list is appalling.

"I know, of course, that the holders of a surgical hutchery will say that those are only the unsuccessful cases. Well, I have been at some pains to find out just how successful the so-called successful cases were. The fact is that the average length of life after a successful operation for appendicitis is from 10 to 12 years. The life insurance companies figure on that and the companies ought to know, for it is a matter of business with them. The insurance companies are very careful when writing a policy for the survivor of an appendicitis operation and they place him on a long term of probation so to speak before they will accept him."

"In speaking of an attempt to put a stop to these operations one must always remember the money there is in it. The big fees are a consideration that cannot be neglected, for however honest a physician may be the knowledge that if he doesn't perform the operation the patient will go to some other surgeon must have a strong conscious effect on him. The only way is to prohibit these operations."

HIS VIEWS ON VACCINATION.

As for his opposition to vaccination, the use of serum for diphtheria and the Pasteur treatment for rabies Dr. Page is equally vehement.

"A poisoned wound, whether made by a doctor or by a lancehead snake is bad practice," he holds.

"There are lawyers, brokers, clergymen, editors and well-to-do business men; in fact, representatives of the intelligence of the city, who have their children to me for certificates in order that the children may be spared at school the cow-poxing called vaccination."

"But even the payment of the fee for inspection is an imposition made possible only by legal regulations. A well-known clergyman in Boston has already told me that he proposes to make a test case of this compulsory alternative of vaccination or certification. His case is not ready yet, but I shall contribute $50 to the expenses of the trial, for I am the father of eight children myself."

Your money back if Purity Flour does not prove entirely satisfactory in the baking.

DON'T simply buy flour from the dollar and cent side of it. Buy high-quality flour. That means PURITY FLOUR. The first little extra cost is more than made up by the extra number of loaves of bread it makes—by the superiority of the bread and pastry in sweetness of flavor and nourishing qualities. Buying Purity Flour is a safe investment. You get large returns, not only on account of Purity's ability to produce more, but because Purity contains the greater nutriment and the vim of a strong hard wheat flour. Food made from Purity Flour gives the consumer health, snap and force, which cannot be gained from the use of the weaker soft wheat flour.

"MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD"

PURITY FLOUR

You can buy as little as a 7 pound cotton bag or in 14, 24, 49, and 98 pound sacks. Also in barrels and half-barrels

Purity may cost a little more than some flours but you'll find it more than worth the difference. To be genuine, must bear the Purity trade mark.

Cruel Negligence Caused Wreck, Says Officer of the Hestia

William H. Logan, Salvage officer of the London Salvage Association, and M. V. Gillies, superintendent of the Donaldson line, yesterday made public a statement of S. G. Stewart, third officer of wrecked steamer Hestia, dealing with aids to navigation in the Bay of Fundy. One statement is as follows:

The night we stranded there was a strong northeast wind with thick rainy weather, clearing at intervals, short high sea running. We were steering a mid-channel course up the bay, and our frequent soundings of over 100 fathoms were satisfactory. About half an hour after midnight on Sunday, Oct. 24th, Gannet Rock light was sighted but owing to weather conditions accurate distance could not possibly be established. The captain kept his ship on her course, evidently looking for the Old Proprietor buoy. At 1.10 on Oct. 25th the ship struck on the outer part of the latter named ledge, where when the tide rose she fell over on her side and was completely submerged at highwater. Myself, the second engineer and four seamen are all that remain alive out of a crew of forty-one men.

I find since being brought ashore here that the light keeper in Gannet Rock lighthouse saw the ship passing also that there is a large whistle and lighted buoy between the Gannet Rock and Old Proprietor shoals. All seamen entering the Bay of Fundy are compelled to depend upon these aids to navigation and if they were not there would not enter such weather conditions as existed on the night in question.

I feel, on behalf of myself and brother officers and the many men who have lost their lives, also in the general interests of shipping trading to Bay of Fundy ports, that a strong protest to the department responsible for the lighthouse and buoyage system should be made through the public press, against the existing conditions of the aids to navigation on this dangerous coast.

My direct complaint is that the Old Proprietor ledge buoy has neither light nor fog signal, whereas it is listed as having both. It is also well-known locally that this buoy has been in this condition for months; while it is known that the Hestia must have passed within a few feet of this buoy it will readily be conceded that had it been lit or its whistle sounding the ship would have warned and cleared easily the ledges upon which she was wrecked. Doubtless the captain, after seeing the Gannet, was looking for this buoy. Can any one imagine a worse trap laid for a man than a buoy listed as marking dangerous ledges, and having a light working at stated intervals, also an automatic whistle signal, whilst neither whistle nor light exist? It is simply a trap worse than ever thought of even by the old time tale! It is impossible to describe one's feelings when he finds that what he thought was his great factor of safety has proved his ruin.

Oh, the bitterness with which one looks upon the dreadful loss of life that certainly would not have been if it were responsible for the conditions of the Old Proprietor Ledge buoy had attended to their ordinary everyday duties; for there is not a shadow of a doubt the loss of the Hestia is due to the long neglected conditions of this buoy.

Again the keeper of the Gannet admits he did not fire a warning gun because he was afraid he might awaken the doctor. Can any one imagine a man, keeper of an outlying lighthouse, seeing a vessel standing into a probable danger, and not warning her because he thought the doctor might mistake the signal as being intended for him. A few explosive signals would have been quite sufficient to warn this ship and save from destruction; still they were not given, although the keeper admits seeing the vessel and thinking her too close in, because they might call the doctor; and the vessel was allowed to go to her end. Is there any way of describing such stupidity or incompetency? Will the Canadian people allow such things to be? Let them try to think what it would mean if this accident had happened to one of the larger passenger vessels plying to St. John, particularly when it is known that there is no life-saving station in the neighborhood. There is supposed to be one, but it consists of a boat unfit for use, and without a crew. We were from 1.10 a. m. on Monday until noon Tuesday in a helpless and perilous position before any one came near the ship. Notwithstanding our being out four miles from the Gannet Rock lighthouse and making distress signals night and day which was clear and fine with all shore lights plainly visible, and during which bonfires were burnt on board the wreck almost continuously.

I would pray that the people of Canada may insist that those who are responsible for the coast lighting and buoyage system will keep that system in order or not put buoys out at all, so that there may not be traps added to a profession which already bristles with difficulty and much danger.

ONE BOYS' CLUB

The following rules governing a Boy's Club in a Maine town seem good enough to publish. There are six boys in the club from 8 to 11 years old. If they succeed in keeping these rules their good citizenship will be assured. The boys call these rules 'The Constitution.'

- 1 Not to go with other company.
- 2 Not to play marbles for keeps.
- 3 Not to swear.
- 4 Not to smoke.
- 5 Not to play rough games.
- 6 Not to use intoxicating liquors, including wine, whisky, rum, beer and cider.
- 7 Not to be cruel to dumb animals.
- 8 Not to fight among ourselves unless we have to.
- 9 Not to plague little boys.
- 10 Not to gamble.
- 11 Not to get into trouble.

GIVE WITNESSES A CHANCE

Woodstock Sentinel-Review:—"I am a crown witness, and I appeal for the protection of the court," said the witness. "And you will get it, too," replied the Judge. This is a brief but significant extract from a report in the Toronto papers of a recent trial. And it is fully time that the Judges began to extend the protection of the court to unfortunate witnesses in distress. The practice of "sweating" persons accused of crime is properly condemned by Canadian courts, and police officials are warned that they must adopt some other means of getting information; but the torture of the witness-box of witnesses who are neither accused nor suspected of any crime is too often tolerated.

A MODERN FRANKLIN

Toronto Telegram:—Canada has reason to be proud of her own arctic voyager, Captain Bernier. So far Captain Bernier has not been crowned with the good fortune that carried Cook and Peary to the pole, nor is Captain Bernier gifted with the imagination that enabled one or both of the American explorers to report that they had reached the long-sought "top end of the earth." But Captain Bernier is a modest, daring, enduring navigator, worthy to rank with the Franklins and other heroic failures of arctic exploration. And these failures are a more glorious company than such successes as the Cooks and Pearys. Bernier is a credit to the French-Canadian race and an honor to the all-Canadian nation.

DINNER BELL MUSIC.

The music of the dinner-bell is always welcome to the healthy man or woman—alike to the working man or woman who eats a plain meal at noonday, or to people of easier lives who enjoy a rich dinner in the evening. But to the Dyspeptic there is no music in the dinner-bell—it calls him to a trial for which he knows he is unfit. No one can enjoy a meal, or get nourishment and strength from it, knowing that pain and distress will follow after. The true course, even for healthy people, is to help the digestive system, from time to time, with that excellent tonic medicine, Mother Siegel's Syrup. Mr. Michael Bureau, of Stanham, Quebec County, P. Q., writes: "For some time I suffered from indigestion. I had headaches which made life a misery. I could not sleep at night and after eating I felt a sensation of fullness and pain, with heart palpitation. I took no medicine for this illness except Mother Siegel's Syrup and was cured when I had used one bottle of it."

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER

The Secret of a Famous Healing Balm.

The re-discovery of a secret that has lain hidden in the dust of 20 centuries is an event full of fascinating interest and the story of Zam-Buk, the world-famed first-aid and skin-cure will always enlist attention. Zam-Buk is the virtual descendant of those wonderful and mysterious herbal balms by the use of which the manly athletes of Ancient Greece and the stalwart gladiators of Rome ensured the healthiness and ready-healing of their skin.

Many are the attempts that were made to produce a perfect balm for the skin, but only in Zam-Buk has the ideal been realized. Since its discovery Zam-Buk has been welcomed in mansion and cottage, and the people of two hemispheres realize that they have been placed in possession of an absolutely unique cure for skin complaints.

The reasons for this triumph of science are simple and few. Taking a lesson from the Ancients, the proprietors of Zam-Buk first of all wisely decided that the ideal balm must be purely herbal and contain not the slightest trace of rancid animal fats or poisonous minerals. Thus Zam-Buk is made solely from rich and pure essences obtained from certain rare medical herbs. These juices and extracts are prepared and refined by ingenious scientific processes and then so skilfully blended that a unique, effective, and yet perfectly natural preparation for disfiguring skin-disease is cured.

Zam-Buk has an affinity for the human skin such as no ordinary ointment or liniment can possibly possess. Besides soothing pain and allaying irritation, it possesses unique antiseptic and germicidal qualities which virtually chase disease germs out of their hiding-places in the skin tissues; at the same time it purifies the pores and invigorates the natural functions of the skin in a way that no other preparation can.

Zam-Buk solves in a perfect manner the problem of always having handy at home or at one's work an ever-ready and reliable first-aid for cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, lacerations, equal for eczema, ulcers, piles, bad leg, ringworm, scalp sores, festering scratches, etc. Zam-Buk is without sores, sprains, stiffness, poisoned wounds of all kinds, face sores, chafing, chapped hands, cold sores, frost-bites, sore feet, diseased ankles, and all itching irritation, and inflammation.

Zam-Buk is a daily need in every household and is sold by all druggists and stores at fifty cents a box. Refuse harmful and dangerous substitutes sometimes "pushed" as being "just as good."

"Lifebuoy Soap is delightfully refreshing for Bath or Toilet. For washing underclothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and purifies."

Mr. F. C. Whitman spent a couple of days in Halifax last week. Mrs. F. W. Pickels Misses Edna and Jennie Pickels left Tuesday for a few days visit in St. John N. B. Mrs. J. A. Langille is visiting friends in Digby. Miss Lottie Perkins left for New York where she intends spending the winter months. Mr. G. E. Corbitt was in Halifax last week. Mr. Thomas Buckler, of the Customs Department, returned on Saturday from a three weeks trip to Boston, he was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Glendine. Mrs. Buckler will remain a few weeks longer before returning home. Dr. E. Breck is in Bangor, Maine, writing up an account of the fishing and shooting privileges of that state for the Bangor and Aroostook Railway Company. Mrs. E. McCormick, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. V. Hyde, of Boston, returned home on Saturday. The S. S. Kathinka, the steamer which sailed last week for London and Hull, had a cargo of 9,786 barrels of apples. Rev. Mr. LeCain, of Middleton, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church here on Sunday last. On Sunday afternoon last Annapolis was visited with a couple of fires. The roof of Dr. R. W. Thers house caught fire from sparks from the chimney. The fire was extinguished with but little damage to a few shingles. This was out but a short time when fire was discovered in the pretty farm house of Mrs. A. Fullerton on the Digby road. When observed the fire had gained such headway that it was found impossible to save the house which became a total loss. We understand only a part of the furniture and clothing was saved. The house was insured for $2500.

Port Lorne

The Bay View Hotel is closed for the winter. Capt. Templeman having gone to the United States. The schooner, Mandie is taking her last cargo of apples to St. John this week and will go into winter quarters. Mr. Frank Brinton, of Halifax, is with his family at the home of his mother, Mrs. Emma Brinton. Mr. John Graves arrived home from Lynn, Mass., on Wednesday after a three months absence. Pastor Smith is holding special services at Mt. Rose each evening this week. Much sympathy is felt here for Mrs. Adelbert Johnson, of Mt. Rose, whose wife, Edith L. died Tuesday of last week, after an illness of four months of consumption. Besides the grief stricken husband were left two little boys.

Springfield.

Mrs. John Mullock, Mrs. Wm. Saunders and children returned from Mass., where they have been spending the past month. Miss Addie Rice, from Bear River, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lambert McNay. Misses Freeman and Smith, from Brookfield, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Saunders. Master Ralph Grimm picked a full blooming may flower on the 2nd. Mr. John Morrison left on the 28th for Cape Breton.

Aylesford

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Harris and sons have returned from a vacation spent with Dr. and Mrs. Wilfred Harris, in Boston. Miss Alice Fairn entertained her young friends at a Hallow E'en party on Oct. 30th. The "witches and spooks" furnished a great deal of amusement. Miss Fanny Musgrave returned on Wednesday from the W. C. T. U. Convention at St. John. Miss Pearl Spinney, the popular clerk in L. H. Davinson's store left on Saturday for Boston, where she will join her mother and sister. We understand that Miss Spinney is soon to be one of the principals in an interesting event. The funeral of the late Daniel Patterson, a highly respected resident of Aylesford, took place on Thursday last. Mrs. Watson Gould has returned from a visit with friends in Mass. John Roop, lately in the employ of A. E. MacMahon, left for Boston on Saturday, en route for Calgary. Chas. Beals, who went out west on the Home Seeker's excursion, has returned home. We regret to learn of the illness of Mrs. Spurgeon Selfridge. The funeral of little Muriel Hicks only child of S. B. Hicks, station agent, took place on Sunday morning. The pupils of the day school and Sabbath School marched ahead of the procession to the grave. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, including wreaths from the school children and members of the I. O. G. T. L. R. Fairn returned on Friday from a successful moose hunt at Albany Cross, having succeeded in capturing an unusually fine specimen. The ladies of the W. A. of St. Mary's church are preparing for a supper and sale to be held in Ray's Hall.

Phinney Cove

(Nov. 3rd.) Congratulations are in order—Mr. and Mrs. Watson Bent, a daughter. Mr. Alex. Turpel, who has been visiting relatives in Lynn, Mass., returned home. Mr. Outhit White has returned home from a short visit in Boston and vicinity. Mrs. Watson Bent, during her visit in Granville, accompanied by Mrs. G. M. Bent, spent a few days with her cousin, Miss Carrie Nutter, at the American House, Middleton. A ripe strawberry and several blossoms were picked by the young son of Mr. Berket Chute last week. A nice bunch of apple blossoms were also picked by Miss Ethel White. Mr. Joe White, who has been employed in Waverly, Mass., during the week, returned home. The light fall of snow last week came as a gentle reminder, that rusty knitting needles must be cleaned.

TO CONTINUE FRIENDLY RELATIONS

It is evidence at once of newspaper enterprise and of international interest in Canadian affairs that the New York Herald has decided to establish a bureau at Ottawa, and has sent thither an experienced member of its Congressional staff at Washington. The Herald has led the way in many newspaper enterprises, and its entry into the Canadian field is in line with its progressive policy the world over. It recognizes that Canada and Canada's progress are of world importance. Our hope is that the work of the Herald's bureau at the Canadian capital will make for a continuance of friendly relations between this country and our American neighbor.

Bear River.

Mr. Norman Dukeshire wife and family returned from Boston on Wednesday last. Mr. R. E. Felus, of Lawrencetown, was in town for a few days the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Rice. Mrs. R. C. Hamilton, Inverness, is spending a few weeks here with friends and with her mother, Mrs. J. V. Thomas. Scher. Neva sailed Monday for New York, with lumber and laths. S. S. Bear River sailed for St. John on Tuesday. (Nov. 3rd.) Mrs. W. A. Purdy and daughters, Olive and Irene, went to Lawrencetown on Saturday where they will spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Horton Phinney. After an illness of about two weeks Mr. George Graham passed to the Great Beyond on Saturday afternoon 30th ult, at the ripe old age of 86 years. He leaves to mourn his loss, two sons, Wallace, of Bear River and George, of Malden, Mass., and three daughters, Mrs. John A. Henshaw, Mrs. Harvey Marshall and Mrs. Geo. E. Purdy all living at Bear River. The deceased had many friends and for about 30 years was a consistent member of the Methodist church. Interment in Mt. Hope cemetery on Monday afternoon, the funeral service being conducted by Rev. John Phalen. Mr. H. W. Smith, of Inverness, is acting manager of the Union Bank during the absence of Mr. W. M. Romans. Ralph Dunn came from the woods on Monday with a very nice moose head which had a spread of 57 inches. As guide he had young Levi Brooks. Bark Earl Grey was towed down the river by S. S. Bear River on Monday, where she will finish her deck load before sailing for South America. Mr. W. M. Romans is enjoying his yearly vacation part of which will be spent at his old home at Dartmouth. Mrs. Lenfest Ruggles returned from Boston on Wednesday last. S. S. Bear River sailed for St. John on Monday. Scher. Neva is loading lumber for New York. ARCHIBALD.—On Oct. 31st ult. to Dr. and Mrs. Archibald a son.

Clementsvale

We are very sorry to report Mrs. Albert Brown seriously ill. Congratulations are due Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woodland upon the arrival of a daughter. Messrs. Frank and Maynard Brown returned home last week to spend the winter months. On Sunday morning before service the ordinance of Baptism was administered to two candidates, by the Rev. O. E. Seoves, and they were received into the church. Mrs. Fred Beeler and son Gordon, of Lequille, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Avarid Potter on Sunday. Mr. Oldbar Robert and Miss Ida Pine, of Virginia, were united in marriage on Wednesday evening, Nov. 3rd. We extend our hearty congratulations to the newly wedded pair. Miss May Denton, who is teaching at Lake May, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ramsey on Sunday. A public meeting was held at Woodville on Oct. 30th, in reference to the proposed railway from Centreville to some point on the D. A. R. line between Aylesford and Berwick. Sir F. W. Borden announced that the regular federal and Provincial subsidies were ready for any company which would build the road. The preference of the meeting was that the road should extend to Middleton to connect with the H. & S. W., for Port Wade and Bridgewater. Messrs. Aubrey Moss, Chas. Hutchinson and Wm. Hiltz, of the western part of Kings county, have been convicted before Justice Bligh, of Berwick, for not bringing out of the woods the body of a moose which they killed. The fine upon each was $25 and costs.

Lawrencetown.

Rev. Mr. Warner will preach his farewell sermon Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock, in the Episcopal church. Rev. H. R. Grant will speak in the Baptist church, Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock. H. A. Whitman returned to Portland, Maine, on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Whitman, (Jr.) have returned from Boston and taken possession of their home at the south end. White's Laundry has been kept quite busy and is turning out first-class work. Church services for Sunday, 14th. Baptist 11 a. m. Episcopal 11 a. m. Methodist 7.30 p. m.

Port Wade

John Snow left on Wednesday, 3rd, for Boston where he has bought out a fish packing and smoking business. He has engaged some experienced help from the place. We wish him success in his venture, but regret to see our business men leaving the place. The excavating of the ore pit is well under way and the sills are being laid on the concrete abutments for the engine house. Clarence Ryder went to Lynn Saturday on business. Hattie Westhaven is home from Annapolis for a few weeks visit. Our pastor, Mr. West, came home from Lynn last Wednesday. He has had a vacation of about three weeks which we trust he has enjoyed much. Wm. Ramsay will place his mill at the lake back of Thomas Cove, instead of at this place as reported.

Lower Granville

The ladies of the Episcopal church held a Bean Supper in Karsdale Hall last Wednesday evening and realized eight dollars. In response to a cablegram from Capt. L. H. Porter, W. E. Ryder, Port Wade, left on Wednesday for Belfast, Ireland, via New York, to take the position of Chief Officer in the S. S. Mattapan line of the new steamship recently launched there for the United Fruit Co. Mrs. Robert Blair and child leave for Boston on Saturday to remain the winter. Mrs. Young, her mother, has closed up her house and will spend the winter with her daughter Mrs. Walter Mills, in Annapolis. Royal. E. H. Porter will look after the Karsdale post office during her absence. Mrs. Warren Letteney returned from Boston on Saturday. Miss Etta Shafner leaves this week for Boston to spend the winter. Rev. Mr. West is back again after a very pleasant trip to Boston and vicinity.

YOU CAN CURE CATARRH

J. H. Taylor, 54 Bond St., Toronto. Breathed Hyomei and Cured a Long Standing Case of Chronic Catarrh That defied All Other Remedies. Also Toronto and New York Specialists. Without taking a drop of medicine into the stomach. J. H. Taylor, 54 Bond St. Toronto, tells how the distressing troubles of Catarrh were overcome by simply inhaling Hyomei air. It's the history of tens of thousands similar cases on record, proving that Hyomei can be depended upon to cure Catarrh, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Croup. It has no equal for any distress of the breathing organs. Mr. Taylor says: "Some years ago while on a hunting trip in Northern Canada, I contracted a severe cold that settled in my head and finally affected my throat. It rapidly developed into catarrh and caused a miserable throat weakness. My head would become clogged during the night and there was a catarrhal dropping from the nose into the throat. Many days I had been unable to breathe other than through my mouth, and the constant hawking and spitting was almost unbearable. I had been treated by the best throat here and in New York, but nothing benefited my condition. I obtained Hyomei and soon found relief, the throat dropping ceased and my head began to clear. I continued with Hyomei for six weeks and after that time I was well in every detail. There has been no return of the trouble since, and I feel grateful in speaking well of Hyomei, as it cured me when all else failed." A complete Hyomei outfit costs $1.00, and S. N. Wear will refund your money if it fails to cure.

The crusade against conductors on the Intercolonial has begun here. W. W. McClafferty, of Halifax, received notice of indefinite suspension, and it is reported that similar notice was served upon Conductor Pushie, of Mulgrave. No cause has been assigned in either case, it is stated. Both men are among the oldest and most popular employees on the railway and have hosts of friends all over the Maritime Provinces.—Halifax Chronicle.

WOULD YOU LIKE

Your boy to know how to write a good business letter, a promissory note, draft, accept and endorse a draft, draw a cheque, make a deposit, keep the farm accounts, and be able to discuss intelligently the commercial and industrial conditions of this province? It is our business to teach him how to do these and to think for himself. Send for Booklet; it tells all about it. E. Kaubach, C. A. Maritime Business College Halifax, N. S.

A late exchange says:—

Lightning struck a barn last Wednesday morning about one o'clock, at North King ston owned by L. Neily and it was totally consumed. The barn contained ten tons of hay, one cow, a lot of apples which was owned by W. W. Neily and some agricultural implements. There is little insurance, enough probably to cover the cost of the hay.

Your Canary.

Don't forget to give your canary the best of water and seed every day. See that he has a good fish bone. Clean his cage every day. Keep him out of the hot sun and the glare of night lights and yet let him have sunshine. Talk to him—talk to him with a kind voice. Let him out of the cage occasionally. We give crumbs of bread soaked in milk, lettuce, chickweed, a little piece of egg, sometimes a little fruit, a nut and lots of good things and let him eat or reject, as he chooses. Remember he is a prisoner in confinement, dependent on you every day for health and life, and constantly strive to make him happy. A little ten cent looking glass will aid greatly to his happiness. Take care that neither sun nor other light reflected shall dazzle him.

The Patient Mule.

The kind-hearted woman was very solicitous about a certain mule belonging to Erastus Pinkley. The mule had a sad and heavy appearance and never looked more dejected than when his proprietor brought it up with a flourish at the front gate, says a writer in The Washington Star. "Do you ever abuse that mule of yours?" she inquired one day. "Lan' sakes, miss," returned Mr. Erastus, "I should say not! Dat mule has had me on de defensive for de las' six years."

Devilfish.

Devilfish weighing up to 900 pounds are sometimes caught in Japan. These fish are amphibious. They are often seen wallowing on their tentacles like giant spiders in search of patches of sweet potatoes. The natives kill them with clubs. In the water they are caught in jars lowered to the bottom which the octopus enters, thinking them a good retreat from which to catch its food.
