LARGEST CABIN LIST FROM NEW YORK; IMPERATOR TAKES 2200 PASSENGERS.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Within the steel walls of the huge Imperator, of the Hamburg-American Line, some five thousand passengers went to sea Saturday—almost a city in number, and lacking only trolley cars, motion picture theatres and roads for automobiles. The Imperator, it is said, carried more cabin passengers than any other steamship which has ever left New York harbor. There will be 841 in the first cabin, 525 in the second, and 850 in the third. The others on board will be steerage passengers and the crew.

Right Honorable Joseph Chamberlain Dead

Death of Former Colonial Secretary Brings Many Tributes.

London, July 4.—Gazette Cable.—The death of Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, though occurring at 10.15 the previous evening, was only announced at ten o'clock yesterday morning. After many years' illness, the immediate cause of death was heart failure.
All the prominent public men pay eloquent tributes to the dead statesman. John Redmond's being particularly generous. He said: "Ireland has long forgotten the bitter memories in the feeling of sympathy at the pathetic spectacle of Chamberlain's long illness. He was a great man."

The Pall Mall Gazette states that although burial in Westminster Abbey will be offered, it is certain that the funeral will be at Birmingham, with a memorial service at the Abbey.
Sir Gilbert Parker said: "Chamberlain was the first Colonial Secretary who ever understood the colonies and realized the greatness of their position."

Mr. Chamberlain's funeral, which, according to his own wish, will be a most simple one, will be held in Messiah Unitarian Church, Birmingham, next Monday. Interment will be in Hicky cemetery. In his youth Mr. Chamberlain was a Sunday school teacher in the Messiah church. Mrs. Chamberlain throughout the day received numerous messages of condolence, including telegrams from King George, Queen Mary, and the Queen Mother Alexandra, and other members of the royal family, and from prominent persons at home and abroad.

Canadian Peace Centenary Association

The American Peace Centenary Committee have arranged for an informal conference, to be held in the 21st, 22nd and 23rd July next, at Mackinac Island, Mich., and have extended cordial invitation to the members of the Canadian Peace Centenary Association to attend.

The following paper has been issued by the American Committee:
1. To bring about the organization of a co-operating American-Canadian-Newfoundland Committee in reference of the celebration in the Border States and Provinces.
2. To discuss the matter of International Boundary Monuments.
3. To take action in respect of legislation by the Boundary States and Provinces.
4. To bring about co-operation in carrying out of a programme of celebration, and
5. To arrange for a maritime pageant, including a marine parade from Buffalo to Duluth, touching both American and Canadian ports.

The officers of the Canadian Peace Centenary Association propose to take advantage of this gathering in order to discuss the above and other matters with the American Committee, and a large attendance of Canadians is requested. The undersigned will be pleased to hear from those intending to go.

Mackinac Island is only a few miles from Sault Ste. Marie, and is, therefore, central and easily accessible. It is situated in the Straits of Mackinac and is 25 minutes run by boat from St. Ignace and 30 minutes from Mackinaw City. It can also be reached by steamer from many of the Lake Ports.

A Halifax Aeronaut Met Death

Stanley Purcell Drowned in Windsor After Balloon Ascention.

Windsor, July 3.—"Here goes for luck, boys," gaily called out aeronaut Stan Purcell as the gut ropes holding down his balloon were released and he went sailing up into the air last night. Ten minutes later he was dead. He made a perfect descent into the Avon River, but just as a boat was nearing him to pick him up he sank and up to two o'clock this morning his body had not been recovered. The tragedy cast a gloom over the whole town, for hundreds of people saw the young man drown. Purcell was a native of Halifax and had made many ascensions in the United States. This was the first ascension he had made in his native Province, and it provided the first aerial accident in Nova Scotia.

Purcell had been billed as the chief attraction of the Dominion Day sports here. His ascension was to have been made from the grounds of the Windsor Athletic Club on Wednesday but was cancelled because of the inclement weather. He made the ascension at 7.15 last night and lit safely in the river near the Avondale shore, about a mile from the grounds. Boats put out to him at once. Purcell was swimming towards the Avondale shore when he suddenly threw up his hands. The men who were going to his aid redoubled their efforts when it was seen he was in distress and one boat was within ten feet of him when he disappeared beneath the muddy waters.

All last night and early into this morning men with lanterns and torches patrolled the shores of the river. As the tide went down it was thought the body would be found on the mudflats, but up to a late hour this morning it had not been discovered.

Windsor, July 3.—At one o'clock this afternoon when the tide was at its lowest ebb, the body of Stanley Purcell, of Halifax, the aeronaut, who was drowned in the Avon River last night, was found off the Avondale shore about three quarters of a mile from the place the drowning occurred. The body when found was almost buried in the quicksands and was much entangled in the parachute rope. It had been carried over the flats and deposited on a quicksand bed, where in a short time its resting place would have been obliterated. Two brothers of the deceased, G. Purcell and M. Purcell, were present to identify the body. An inquest was held, rendering a verdict of accidental drowning. The highest praise is given to the searchers who for nearly twenty-four hours searched diligently for the body. The whole town feels the accident very keenly.

2,000,000 Feet of Lumber Burned at Bridgewater

Kent Lumber Company Lost all the Manufactured Product on Hand

Bridgewater, N. S., June 28.—Two million feet of lumber, valued at $20,000 belonging to the Kent Lumber Company was burned at Gold River, Lunenburg county, Saturday afternoon. There was about 12,000 insurance on the destroyed lumber.

The mill of the company was saved only after a desperate fight on the part of the Bridgewater fire department which responded to an alarm sent late in the afternoon. The fire was not under control until early this morning, in the meantime having destroyed the telephone line cutting off outside communication with the mills and village.

Gold River, where the fire occurred, is about twenty miles east of Bridgewater, on the line of the Halifax & Southwestern road.

The fire which destroyed the property of the Kent Lumber Company (managing director of which is George McKean, of St. John, N. B.) started at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the big piles near the mills by a spark, from the burner of the cook house. Practically the entire amount of sawn lumber to load a part of which a vessel was due at Gold River this week—consisting of spruce, pine and hemlock, was destroyed.

It was soon evident that the workmen of the mills were wholly unable to cope with the situation which was momentarily growing and threatening the entire plant, and Bridgewater was asked for aid. At 6 o'clock the fire department of this town left by special Halifax & Southwestern train for the scene. It was an all night fight, the flames not being under control until early this morning.

Au Revoir

"The Itinerant wheel of the Methodist Church Revolves on its hub; And nobody knows when it may take a lurch. Or meet with a snub. And toss the poor fellows who on it do perch. Where you can only find them by diligent search."

The Methodist people of the Bridgewater Circuit have been during this week saying a regretful goodbye to the Rev. B. J. Porter and his estimable lady. For four years they have gone in and out among them and have commended themselves to the people of their own charge and to the general public. Mr. P. R.

has been zealous, untiring and successful in his labors. This feeling was well expressed by the official members of the Church in the informal gathering on Monday evening in the hospitable home of Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong, and it has also been expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Porter in a tangible way by the W. M. S. of their church, the Epworth League and otherwise. We cordially desire and anticipate for them great success in their new field of labor.

"Welcome the coming, speed the going guest"

The Rev. Arthur R. Reynolds who has been appointed by the recent Conference to take the vacant place is expected to arrive in town tomorrow (Thursday) and to enter upon his duties on the coming Sabbath, preaching in Granville at 11 a. m., Bentville 3 p. m., and Bridgetown 7.30 p. m.

Mr. Reynolds made a good record for himself in his College days. The Argosy referring to the Intercollegiate Debate between King's College and Mr. Allison College in 1908, in which each College was represented by three of its students, remarks that "Mr. Reynolds' argument was evident and straightforward, and he delivered the most popular speech of the evening."

This good record has been sustained by Mr. Reynolds during his ministry. We believe his pastorate will prove valuable not only in his particular charge, but also, in the support and progress of all agencies which are in operation for the betterment of the entire community.

Fashionable Wedding at Bear River

MACINTYRE-CLARKE

A very pretty and fashionable wedding was celebrated in the Bear River Baptist church on Tuesday evening, June 30th, when Josephine Marshall Clarke, B. A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard G. Clarke, was married to A. Gordon MacIntyre, B. A., B. Sc.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. E. MacIntyre, Ph. D., father of the groom, assisted by Rev. L. H. Crandall, B.A., B.D., pastor of the church and Rev. A. Daniel. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion by the friends of the popular couple. Very charming was the bride, beautifully gowned in a robe of white charmeuse satin with lace of exquisite make and carrying a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley as she approached the altar. The matron of honor was Mrs. J. Howard Cunningham, the bridesmaid was Miss Nan Clarke, both sisters of the bride. The groomsmen were A. MacDiarmid, B. A., B. Sc. and John F. Bates, B. A., B. Sc. and A. B. Clarke, B. A., B. Sc. were ushers and Mrs. William E. Miller, organist. The bridesmaid's gown of pussy willow pink tulle was most becoming and the matron of honor grand in peach brocade satin with over dress of black chantilly lace, the former carrying a large bouquet of mauve orchids, the latter one of white carnations.

The bride was given away by her father and the impressive ring service was used. After the ceremony the bridal party and guests repaired to the home of the bride where the wedding supper was served. After a season of joyous well wishing, the happy couple amid showers of conetti and good luck expressions, left by automobile for Digby en route for Bathurst, N. B., where the groom is manager of the Bathurst Lumber Co.

The presents to the bride were numerous and costly. Among others that from the groom a baby grand piano; from father a substantial cheque; from mother a mahogany chest of sterling silver; from Mrs. L. J. Lovett a namesake gift of sterling silver tea service; from Mr. MacLean, president of the Bathurst Lumber Co., a cheque; from the Industrial and Educational Press Ltd., with whom the groom is associated, a case of pearl and sterling knives and forks. From groom to groomsmen, a fraternity ring; from bride to matron of honor a gold bracelet watch; from bride to bridesmaid a pearl bracelet; from bride to organist set pins.

The music was deserving of special mention being the wedding marches from Lohengren and Mendelssohn rendered by Mrs. Miller filling in the entire service with soft strains of these delicious compositions. Guests were present from New York, Montreal, Vancouver and St. John, as well as nearer points.

BRITISH CONTROL OF CABLE POSSIBLE.

So Says Western Union Official on Question of Leasing Ocean Line.

LONDON, June 27.—Stanley Goddard, the European correspondent of the Western Union Cable Company, told the Dominions Trade Commission yesterday that his company saw no insuperable difficulty against leasing one of the company's cable to the Governments of the British Territory, on both sides of the Atlantic, if Western Union interests were protected.

This suggestion originally came from the Dominions Commission, which is in favor of one cable entirely under British influence.

Inglewood School

This school has been in session ninety-two days during school year. Number of pupils registered, twenty-four, nine of whom have been enrolled from County Home, and although some are absentees, as places are provided for them, those who remain permanently are very regular in attendance making according to ability, good progress. All the colored children, excepting two, have been sent some time during the year with few exceptions coming regularly and improving in their work. The usual review or examination was held the 26th of June, when school closed. This school is certainly a necessity, not only benefiting those who attend, but tends as a trainer for present and future good and usefulness to others, and any help from the public given from time to time should not be begrudged.

New desks are very much needed, the old ones being a menace to health, out of date and most uncomfortable. The school house also is without insurance, screens are much needed for windows. Any aid from people to whom "much is given" would be a boon to those who really have a struggle to keep up their school even in the very cheapest way.

Dominion Day at Bridgetown

Although the weather conditions last Wednesday (Dominion Day) were not at all favorable for the holding of outdoor sports, yet a large concourse of people gathered in town to witness the program that had been advertised for the day.

The Calthumpian procession which was scheduled to start at ten o'clock was not formed until 2 p. m., owing to the unfavorable weather. While not as large as former years it was for originality not to be surpassed.

The procession and the crowd, preceded by the Bridgetown brass band, all of whom were in unique costumes, marched to the grounds of the Athletic Club where races, tug-of-war and a baseball match between the Bridgetown Club and the Granville Club, were played with the following results:

- 50 yds dash.—Won by R. Harlow, 6½ seconds.
- 100 yds dash.—Won by R. Bent, 11½ seconds.
- 220 yds dash.—Won by R. Bent, 23½ seconds.
- Hose Coupling Competition, won by Joseph McLean and Frank Cole, Time 14 seconds.
- Tug-of-war, won by the Clarence Team.
- Baseball match, won by Bridgetown, 19 to 12.

WOMAN KILLS FOUR LIONS.

Single-Handed She Went After Six of Them.

LONDON, June 28.—From South Africa comes an account of a Scots woman's daring lion hunt.

Mrs. Laporte, wife of one of the officers in charge of the Sable game reserve on the Delagoa Bay Railway, received news in the course of her husband's absence that lions had killed a bull a few miles away.

An hour before dawn, armed with a rifle and accompanied by two natives, she went in search of the lions. Suddenly through the bush she saw six of them, still devouring their prey. She accounted for two before the animals realized their danger. The third she rolled over as it made off, and the fourth, a young lioness, which was attempting to charge, she stopped with a bullet in the eye at a distance of eighty yards.

By this time Mrs. Laporte had exhausted her ammunition and was, therefore, unable to follow up the two survivors.

Prisoners Plant Forests

Australian Convicts Reforest Five Hundred Acres

According to a recent report of the Forestry Department of New South Wales, good conduct convicts at the state prison, instead of breaking stone, are now engaged in the more useful and healthful work of replanting with trees the waste lands of the state. At one prison alone 25,000 trees, mostly American ash and pines were planted in 1913, and so successful have these plantations been that this work will be considerably extended in the present year.

A similar idea has been worked out successfully by the city of San Diego in California, which possesses 7,000 acres of bare rolling sand land at a distance of ten miles from the city. A trained forester was engaged to make this land profit-yielding and under his direction the city's unemployed have been given work planting this area with trees suitable to the nature of the country. Other cities in the United States that have found it necessary to purchase and reforest large areas on the watersheds governing their water supply have advantageously used the same kind of labor. The primary purpose of such reforestation is not, however, to furnish work to the unemployed, but to develop a profitable source of revenue from land which otherwise remain unproductive.

Cities of this kind are not, as yet in vogue in this country. Perhaps the only city forest in Canada is that at Guelph, Ont., where a small area has been planted surrounding the springs which furnish the city's water supply. In many of the counties of eastern Canada, however, are large areas of waste land, originally forested, and capable only of producing forests. Ontario has a Counties Reforestation Act making possible the acquisition of such waste land for reforestation purposes by municipal councils, but up to the present time only one county has availed itself of this opportunity. Quebec and the Dominion government have also passed legislation to encourage tree planting, and the Dominion Forestry Branch in the last fiscal year distributed nearly 4,000,000 trees from the nurseries at In-dian Head for woodlot planting in western Canada.

The growing of forest trees on waste land can in most cases be made a profitable undertaking, besides providing labor to a considerable number of men, yet no extensive reforestation has as yet been done in eastern Canada.

"Ruthlands," Middleton, N.S.

Most Up-to-date Methods, Latest Improvements, and Systematic Conductance of a Farm Owned by Senator W. B. Ross.

(The Maritime Farmer)

It is hardly possible to do justice, in a short article, to such an extensive, well-conducted, and model farm as "Ruthlands," but something of their improved way of working, conveniences, and labor-saving devices may be helpful to those working along the same line.

The above mentioned farm is situated at Middleton, Nova Scotia, in the centre of the Annapolis Valley, which is justly famed for its fertility, and lies between the North and South Mountain ranges; thus sheltered, it has justly earned the name of "The Garden of Nova Scotia."

Without a doubt this farm is one of the most up-to-date in the Maritime Provinces. It consists of seven hundred acres, five hundred under cultivation, the remainder in pasture and woodland.

It contains a variety of soil, suitable for all kinds of cereals, vegetables and fruit.

The Senator evidently is a strong believer in drainage, as he has put in twenty-six miles of drainage tile, ranging the size from three to eight inches.

There are three large, well finished modern barns on different parts of the farm, the largest is 90x45 feet, with an ell 30x40 feet. Four large, commodious dwelling houses are situated near each barn for the convenience of the workmen, with blacksmith shop, cooperage, large carriage house, machine and implement houses all lighted by electric lights and connected by a telephone system which runs to all parts of the farm.

The barns have cement and brick foundations, with 10-foot cellars the full size of the buildings, divided off in bins for each crop; affording ample space for the storing of roots and feed.

All roots run through a pulper and mixed with feed, each day as the stock requires it. A pipe runs along in front of the stalls, supplying each animal with a constant supply of fresh water. Hay and grain are supplied from above, by shoots to the different stalls, which is a great convenience and saving of labor. Trap doors are also supplied at the rear of each stall for the scraping in of refuse. And all the doors are hung on weights, running in a groove; up and down, instead of on hinges. We can all see the convenience and advantage of this. There is no space monopolized by the swing of the door, and any size of opening may be had for ventilation without having the door made in two parts. I wish I had the opportunity of showing each farmer who reads this article, over this splendid farm; much of interest and profit could be seen, which, if touched in this article would require a lengthy description.

Hospital stalls are supplied for sick animals, or those nearing foal, where they can be cared for, to the comfort of the animal, and very often to the profit of the owner.

The interior of the stables are finished in planned and matched lumber as well as all box stalls and partitions, thus preventing all drafts and colds.

From 60 to 85 head of cattle are kept on this farm; twelve horses, one stallion, and a pair of brood mares. At present there is a two-year-old Clydesdale which weighs 1,330 pounds.

Beef cattle was sold from this farm, girting 7 ft. 9 inches, weighing 4,000 pounds, live weight, dressed 2,250 pounds per pair.

Two 2-year-old steers were sold recently from this farm, weighing, alive, 2,400 pounds. Eighteen head of such cattle were sold from this farm during the winter, and thirty more are on hand for sale. These heaves sell for from $6.00 to $6.50 per cwt. This alone is a handsome income for the farmer, besides the benefit he is doing his farm by using the hay on the farm, and also making a profitable use of the undersized potatoes, and unmarketable vegetables.

From fifteen to twenty brood sows are always kept on this farm, also a Yorkshire and a Berkshire boar.

Two large hen houses, one 85x22 ft., the other 30x15 ft. are filled with four hundred laying hens. The incubator is not used on this farm; but instead, about eight feet is partitioned off at one end of the henhouse for a hatchery. The walls are divided off in square boxes, or pigeon holes, with just space enough for the nest and an equal space for the hen, to come off for her food. The setting hen is put into one of these boxes with her nest of eggs, and kept there until her time is up; her food being passed to her through the small door in front, in which is a small square of wire netting to allow of ventilation and light. In this way each hen is kept separate, and several dozens of nests occupies only a very small space. This arrangement is giving excellent satisfaction.

A passage-way runs from one end to the other of this long hen house, along which are the nests for the laying hens. The remaining space is divided up into twelve feet pens, by wire netting, keeping each flock by itself. Along the side opposite the passage-way, is a space for a warm roosting place during the night, which is one of the secrets of egg production. Cotten is used on the upper half of all windows. A Brahma hen was recently killed from this flock which weighed nine pounds when dressed.

Eggs, beef, pork and cream, are shipped to the nearby market of Halifax, where highest market prices are always cheerfully paid. The income from cream alone, from nine milking cows, averages during the winter months, fifty-five dollars per month. One Ayrshire cow, while receiving no extra care, has produced fifty pounds of milk per day during the winter.

It is a curious fact, and one which the stock producer should keep in mind, that the benefits of cross-breeding is only really beneficial in the first generation; after which, further efforts in this line seems to result in only a lot of unprofitable scrub animals. The pure bred animal will always give a good account of itself. There are also two fine pure bred bulls on this farm, one splendid looking Ayrshire, the other a Short-horn, the latter, an exceptionally fine looking animal, purchased in England for six hundred dollars.

From the orchard, an average of seven thousand barrels of apples are shipped to England, adding very materially to the income of this farm. In ten years, when the young trees come into full bearing, this orchard will produce twenty-five thousand barrels of choice apples.

Through cultivation, for weed killing and moisture-conservation, is practised with disk harrow, with oxen because of their extra suitability for such work. The first part of June a clover crop of vetches or clover is sown, and this ploughed under in the fall. Fertilizing is done by using part barnyard manure, and part Slag, Potash, and Nitrate Soda. Pruning is practiced in all times of the year, except in frosty weather.

A nursery of 85,000 young trees is one of the industries of this farm, where clean stock can be had, guaranteed free from the insect pests of imported stock.

Four, and sometimes five sprays of Lime-sulphur is used on the orchard. Two power sprayers are used for this with a capacity of 300 and 500 gallons respectively. Each sprayer is supplied with a 2 1/2 h. p. gasoline engine, for spray force. With this outfit considerable can be accomplished in a day.

While the young trees are growing, root crops are cultivated between the rows, such as potatoes, turnips, mangles and corn. Twelve hundred bushels of potatoes are grown each year, eight thousand bushels of turnips, fifteen hundred bushels of mangles, and one hundred and fifty tons of corn. These, with from 175 to 200 tons of hay is used on this farm each year.

The farm is run by a foreman, with an average, in summer, of from 20 to 25 hands; in winter, this number is reduced to five hands.

A silo, 16 feet in diameter, and 34 ft. high, supplies considerable food for the cattle. The corn is cut from the fields and cup up by a 15 h. p. gasoline engine and blown through a pipe into the silo. Towards spring, when the vegetables are used up, the silo is opened, and it is wonderful with what relish the cattle enjoy it.—R. E. Caldwell, Annapolis Co., N. S.

Fort Howe Now a Dominion Park

(By A. M. Belding in "Busy East.")

Historic old Fort Howe, which overlooks the city of St. John, N. B., and which looked down on stirring events in early Acadian history, and whose guns boomed a welcome to the Loyalists at the close of the American Revolution, is to be made a Dominion Park. In 1911, Hon. William Pugsley, then Minister of Public Works, sent an engineer to St. John to survey the commanding height and report upon the possibility of converting it into a public park. The report was entirely favorable, but no action was then taken. In 1912, Mr. J. B. Harkin, Dominion Commissioner of Parks and Playgrounds, wrote Miss Mable Peters, president of the St. John Playgrounds Association, asking that historic spots or battlefields there were in New Brunswick which might be converted into public recreation grounds. Miss Peters at once commended Fort Howe to his attention, and brought the matter before the executive of the association, which not only endorsed the proposition but communicated with other organizations asking their co-operation. As a result the Playgrounds Association, the Historical Society, the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs and other organizations prepared resolutions, appointed a joint committee, pressed the matter upon the government at Ottawa, enlisted the sympathy and aid of Hon. J. D. Hazen, and were so successful in their efforts that the Government sent Col. Rogers to survey the hill, which is the property of the Militia Department, and upon his favorable report it was decided to create there a Dominion Park.

Three Days in Open Boats in Gale

Halifax, June 25.—Adrift in open boats for three days in a heavy gale without food, six of the crew of the Gloucester fishing schooner Rex, Capt. Augustus G. Hall, arrived on the Allan liner Monogolian from St. John's yesterday morning.

The Rex sailed from Gloucester on Saturday, June 6, and made a call at Portland, for ice, after which she proceeded to fishing off the Newfoundland coast and at the time of the parting of the crew, was some twelve miles off that coast. The crew of the Rex numbered 22 and all but the captain and the cook were out fishing in dories, when the fog shut down and enveloped them like a blanket, blotting out everything from sight. Three of the dories, containing the men who arrived at this port yesterday, stuck together and attempted to locate the schooner, but failed, finding what they thought to be the moorings, but no ship.

The six men then took counsel and concluded that it would be better to try and make land rather than beat around looking for their vessel perhaps until they were too weak to do anything. They turned one of the three dories adrift and her occupants got into the other two, the better to navigate them. They had a compass aboard and with the aid of this were able to shape a course. On the 18th, the day they lost their vessel, the weather continued foggy and the men put up a sail. During the two days following, the little dories were tossed like cork on top of the huge waves which the terrific wind lashed into a fury and at times the little crafts were running at the rate of about eight miles an hour before the gale which threatened to carry away their small sails.

On the third day the men reached the coast in the vicinity of Cape St. Mary's, but were unable to effect a landing, owing to the cliff like coast. They ran along the shore for about seven miles and finally beached at the little town of Branch, where they were treated splendidly.

The crew then took passage in a motor boat to Placentia and from there proceeded to St. John's by train. The men's feet were swollen badly from the long term of inactivity in the boats. Of St. John's, the crew could not speak too highly of the splendid way in which they were treated, especially the way in which they were received by the American consul. They were provided with clothes and everything they needed.

In speaking to other members of the crew of the Rex, the men expressed doubt of their fate but were somewhat reticent of saying much in this respect. There has been no report of the vessel entering port anywhere and as to whether the rest of the men in the boats reached the vessel they could not say. There was only the captain and the cook left aboard the schooner and the gale that followed the fog, what may have happened can be well left to the imagination. The men who arrived yesterday said that the rest of the crew may have located the vessel and in which case, the Rex would most probably continue her fishing and report her loss when eventually making port.

The men will leave by Plant's Rex Halifax on Wednesday night for Boston. Their names are: Andrew Strickling, aged 45; Martin Blackden, aged 35; Peter Lake, aged 45; Joe Young, aged 25; and Peter Simmonds, aged 24, all of Newfoundland; Frank Brousard, aged 40, of Nova Scotia; and Joe Arsebaunt, aged 40, and John Malcolm, aged 48, of Boston.

Regulations for the Round the World Flight

(Scientific American)

Regulations governing the round the world aerial race of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition have been submitted to the Aero Club of America.

The race, for which $150,000 will be awarded prizes, will start from the Panama-Pacific Exposition grounds in San Francisco on May 15th, 1915. It must be completed before noon December 4th, 1915. Licensed pilots of any country may compete and any kind of air craft may be used. The entries will be received between November 1st of this year and May 9th of next year. An entrance fee of $500 must accompany each entry.

All competitors must pass over the course in an easterly direction, and controls will be designated by the exposition authorities, at which each competitor must alight in the order named. Each flier will submit his log book and instruments to the officials in charge of each control. Each competitor may follow any route he chooses from one control to the next, but supply stations and patrol service will be provided along only one route, the one considered most feasible.

The distance between two controls must be traversed in the same aircraft. A stop may be made anywhere, however, for repairs, even to the extent of installing new motors, and at any control the competitor may abandon the machine he has been using, and go on with another one, if it be of the same class of aircraft as that in which he started the race.

Of the $150,000 prize money, $70,000 is to go to the flier finishing first, $30,000 to the second, and $20,000 to the third, provided the flight is made within 121 days. If the first flier fails to make his way around the world within 121 days, but does it on or before December 4th, the first prize will be reduced $1,000 a day for each day more than the 121 required to finish. Reductions are to be made from the second prize at the rate of $300 a day, and for the third prize at $200 a day.

If one succeeds in the flight, but one or more do it all except across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, or any other body of water, there will be a reduction of $20 from the first prize for each nautical mile not traversed; $6 from the second prize; and $4 from the third. These deductions will be in addition to those for time over 121 days.

Arrangements are made for third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh prizes in case the deductions from the first, second and third prizes make them possible. No prize shall be paid to any one who does not finish the race before December 4th. Fliers may carry passengers and may change them en route, but the pilot of record must be in control at all starts and alightings.

Vanity and Vexation

(By Rev. Harold T. Doe)

Some few days ago whilst seated in a tram car, one of the occupants entered into a conversation with myself. I should think his age bordered somewhere upon sixty. He belonged evidently to the toiling masses, and has developed into a pessimist. The burden of his remarks was the utter deceptiveness of man, and the uselessness of labor. He had been a soldier and had practically travelled the globe, yet nowhere had he discovered any good thing. He quoted Solomon and agreed fully with the statement that "all was vanity and vexation of spirit."

My companion went on to say that his friends and proved faithless and treacherous. He had experienced the bitter sting of false ingratitude. He was disgusted with working men because they were so oftentimes disloyal to each other. Masters and employees were worse because they dominated and crushed out the very heart of the workers. Humanity was altogether bad and unwholesome. Everything in these days was "rush and scurry." Life was not worth living, and as for himself, the only thing he desired in life was sufficient money to enable him to live alone the life of a hermit secluded from the haunts of men. "I could be happy," said he, "in a wood all alone with Nature, or on a mountain side with a little hut facing the great wide sea."

Strange to say, on my return home I chanced to look up before retiring to bed, a volume of Thomas Carlyle's and in the course of my reading I lighted upon the following which, you will see, states exactly what my companion had been declaring in the tram car—the only difference being that Carlyle has wedded his thoughts to the spirit of poetry. Here are the verses:

"What is Hope? A smiling rainbow. Children follow through the wet: 'Tis not here, still yonder, yonder! Never urchin found it yet."

What is Life? A thawing iceboard On a sea with sunny shore. Gay we sail,—it melts beneath us! We are sunk and seen no more."

What is Man? A foolish baby; Vainly strives, and fights and frets; Demanding all—deserving nothing! One small estate is all he gets."

It is an awfully picture of human life. There is no simple gleam to glitter through the gloom. A tragic note of despair, a bitter wail of disappointment sounds through it all. May God in Heaven spare us from a pessimism like this! It petrifies the soul, and leaves us dead whilst living. I cannot accept this verdict upon life. It is not true—it is too awful.

And yet there is a seeming truth about it all. I half repent that I have been so strong in the criticism I have just recorded. Life after all, is very hard. Countless hundreds find it mere existence, just hum-drum, job trot monotonous. Workers ARE disloyal. Employers DO dominate and crush. Friends ARE deceitful. Everything IS rush and scurry. Do not, therefore, let us judge our pessimist too harshly. He can produce plenty of evidence to make out a real good case. In fact, I venture to say that there are times in our experience, periods in our lives, when we, too would pronounce the same judgment—"All is vanity and vexation of spirit."

Yes! But we have no right to generalize a particular. One cold day does not constitute a winter. The whole of the present coinage is not withdrawn and declared worthless because a grocer's pal has had quarter upon his counter. A friend may be disloyal, a woman may be deceitful, but that gives us no warrant to declare that human nature is wholly bad and base and rotten.

Here, Mr. Pessimist, is your case. Look around you and behold. See yonder freeman's face blinding smoke and scorching flame to save a helpless brother. See that plover frozen at his post because he would not forsake his duty. Gaze upon that sweet girl who has refused "the inviting world of wealth" so that she may devote her life to save a drunken and dissipated brother.

Look around you and behold the great army of devoted mothers who count no sacrifice too great, and whose one concern is the care and welfare of their little bairns! Cease now to fume and fret. Don't talk wildly about "living 'alone in a wood' or 'on a mountain side in a little hut'."

Is there to duty you can do? Can you dispense no happiness and dispense no help? Waste no more time in reviling human nature. Seek to make it better, and life more bright. Remember, life at best, is short, and time is fleeting—"One small grave is all we get." Let us, then, play manfully our part before we, too, go HEAVY.

Coal Mines Abandoned

CALGARY, June 26.—Twelve hundred miners have been thrown out of work and a town of Hosmer, not far from Fernie, B. C., is about to be abandoned by its population owing to the fact that the coal mines at that point, owned and operated by the C. P. R., have been shut down forever. The work of dismantling the machinery is well under way. The merchants and property owners are panic-stricken because the property is worthless without the mining industry, which at one supported the town. The unmarred men are already leaving. The Hosmer mines have been abandoned for similar reasons after millions of dollars had been spent on them.

It was finally decided to close the mines as operations could only be carried on at a loss. Hosmer was a certain deserted town in that district, Mirrissay having been abandoned for similar reasons after millions of dollars had been spent on it.

Three Engines in One; The Largest Locomotive in the World

The engineers and naval architects are doing some big things in the way of construction just now, as the recent arrival of the "Vaterland" and the "Aquitania" at New York has shown; and the great Erie freight locomotive gives evidence that in that other great field of transportation, the railway, the engineer is also building in ever-increasing sizes and weights. A most interesting locomotive has recently been completed for R. Henderson, consulting engineer of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. It is the heaviest and most powerful locomotive ever constructed, its total weight being 853,000 pounds. The greatest advance of this over existing freight locomotives has been in the matter of tractive effort.

Hitherto the most powerful freight locomotive was what is known as the Virginian Mallet, which, when working compound, has a tractive effort of 115,000 pounds. The tractive effort of the new Erie locomotive is 160,000 pounds, or a direct pull of the drawbar of 80 American tons. The locomotive has been built for the pusher service on an eight-mile stretch of grade east of Susquehanna, Pa., which has an average rise of 56 feet to the mile. The new locomotive, which is known as the Triple Compound, will take the place on full tonnage trains of three separate pushers, as now used.

The novelty in this locomotive consists in the fact that, in addition to the two separate engines placed under the locomotive proper, which are the characteristic feature of the Mallet type, a third engine has been placed under the tender, whose weight is thus brought into service for tractive efforts. The boiler is of enormous proportions. At the front end it is 94 inches in diameter and at the dome ring 108 1-8 inches in diameter. The firebox, of the radial-type, is 162 inches long and 108 inches wide at the mud ring. The locomotive is fired by a mechanical stoker. Superheated steam is used, of course.—"Scientific American."

Wants Shamrock to Win

(Portland "Empress.")

It could not be denied that many good loyal Americans would be very much pleased if Sir Thomas Lipton captures the American's cup with his new "Shamrock IV." And it is just because they are loyal Americans that they wish this. Their sense of fair play has been touched at the gameness of this English sportsman. As one of them explains:

"The unfair provision of the deed of gift, which makes it necessary for the challenger to sail across the ocean, but which allows the Americans to build mere racing machines that do not dare to venture on such a voyage, so sticks in my crop, that I hope that some day our own yachtsmen show that they are much better than their own machines."

And if the "Shamrock IV" does succeed in lifting the cup this summer, it is pretty safe to assume that it will stay on the other side for some time, unless the British yachtsmen show that they are much better sportsmen than the yachtsmen of New York Yacht Club have proved to be.

PRINTED STOCKINGS.

Stockings printed with gay flowers from knee to ankle are shown in some of the best shows. They should only be worn with white frocks and with white shoes. Sometimes roses, a couple of inches in diameter, literally cover the silk fabric of the stocking, and sometimes marguerites or nasturtiums are used.

MOTHERS

REMEMBER! The ointment you put on your child's skin gets into the system just as surely as food the child eats. Don't let impure fats and mineral coloring matter (such as many of the cheap ointments contain) get into your child's blood! ZAM-BUK is purely herbal. No poisonous coloring. Use it always.

Vaccination Against Smallpox

(Issued by the Department of the Public Health, Nova Scotia.)

The following very definite and succinct statement of the case in favour of vaccination against smallpox has been issued by the Commissioner of Public Health of the Province of Saskatchewan, and may be taken as representing the consensus of opinion of health officers generally upon this subject:

"Many years of experience with smallpox and vaccination, proves;—

"First.—That true vaccination, repeated until it no longer takes, always prevents smallpox, nothing else does.

"Second.—That true vaccination (that is vaccination properly done on a clean arm with pure lymph and kept perfectly clean and unbroken afterwards until the scab falls off naturally) never did and never will make a serious sore.

"Third.—That such a vaccination leaves a characteristic scar, unlike that from any other cause, which is recognizable during life and is the only conclusive evidence of a successful vaccination.

"Fourth.—That no untoward results ever follow such vaccination. On the other hand, thousands of lives are annually sacrificed through the neglect to vaccinate, a neglect begotten of lack of knowledge."

that ten thousand people met at the great gathering in Albert Hall. The Saturday procession to Hyde Park occupied more than an hour and a half in passing given a point. Twelve platforms were erected from which speakers from different lands told of what the Army had been instrumental in doing for them and their native lands.

The foreigners dressed in the strange and variegated fashions of their respective lands gave a very picturesque aspect to the gathering. One man, a son of a chief of Portuguese East Africa made an address in very good English.

The time has gone by when it was thought that the dulllest boy in the home would serve for a parson or a farmer. We will not now speak of the parson, but as for the farmer, he must today, in order to succeed, have a professional training as surely as a candidate for any other line of business.

WHOLE FAMILY USES THEM

"Fruit-a-lives" Keeps Young And Old In Splendid Health

J. W. HAMMOND Esq. SCOTLAND, ONT., Aug. 25th, 1913 "Fruit-a-lives" are the only pills manufactured, to my way of thinking. They work completely, no griping whatever, and one is plenty for an ordinary person at a dose. My wife was martyred to Constipation. We tried everything on the calendar without satisfaction, and spent large sums of money until we happened on "Fruit-a-lives". I cannot say too much in their favor. We have used them in the family for about two years and we would not use anything else as long as we can get "Fruit-a-lives". Their action is mild, and no distress at all. I have recommended them to many other people, and our whole family uses them.

The Mouse

I'm only a poor little mouse, ma'am! I live in the wall of your house, ma'am! With a fragment of cheese and a very few peas I was having a little carouse, ma'am! No mischief at all, I intend, ma'am! I hope you will set as my friend, ma'am! If my life you should take, many hearts would it break, And the trouble would be without end, ma'am! My wife lives in there in the crack, ma'am! She's waiting for me to come back, ma'am! She hoped I might find a bit of a rind, For the children their dinner do lack, ma'am! 'Tis hard living there in the wall, ma'am! For plaster and mortar will fall, ma'am! On the minds of the young, and when specially hung— As, upon their poor father they'll fall, ma'am! In your eyes I see mercy, I'm sure, ma'am! Oh, there's no need to open the door, I'll slip through the crack and I'll never come back, ma'am! Oh, I'll never come back any more, ma'am.

Where's Mother

When Father came from work at night, Before he'd wash his hands and face, Or hang his hat upon the peg, His glance would wander round the place, And if dear Mother's sunny head Was not within his vision's ken, He'd search for her from room to room, Upstairs and down and all and then He'd stop and ask: "Where's Mother?" But if he found her in her chair, He'd pester off about the lot, And pick a mess of early greens, Or fix a chicken for the pot, He'd mend a fence, or set a hen, Or do some other homely chore, With only now and then a glance Toward the half-open kitchen door That seemed to ask: "Where's Mother?"

When Mother left us sorrowing He followed her within a day, And while we laid white flowers around His smooth-brushed hair, as white as they, We could but think that when the light And beauty of that wonderful place Burst on his newly-quickened gaze, (He must have raised an eager face And simply asked: "Where's Mother?")

SUMMER FURS. Some of the exclusive furriers are now making a specialty of summer furs to wear at mountain and seaside resorts. These furs are usually made up in combination with chiffon, so that their weight and warmth is minimized. One attractive collar is made of strips of dyed yellow fox fastened on a seal brown chiffon scarf. A muff to match, with more chiffon than fur in its makeup is sold with the collar.

EMBROIDERED PIQUE WAISTCOAT.

Waistcoats made of a narrow stripe pique are smart additions to the serge or gabardine street suit. They are often embroidered in white cotton, sometimes scalloped about the edges. One of the smartest, however, is made without embroidery. The edges are bound with white braid. The waistcoat buttons high in the neck and all the way down to the waist with big white crocheted buttons. Two patch pockets, bound with braid, finish it.

The Mission Doctor--A Friend

Dr. Hare Tells of His Work in Labrador.

At the Kingsway Hall, Kingsway, London, on Thursday, April 30th, the thirty-third annual meetings of the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen were held. There was a reunion of many earnest workers who have not much opportunity of seeing each other in the course of the year except that which is afforded by these annual meetings.

Dr. Mather Hare gave a short account of the mission work in Labrador. He said: You know that in every family there is generally one member who is not so strong as his brothers and sisters. I am the weak one of the family. (Laughter.) I have had the honor to represent this mission, which, in my opinion, is the best mission extant to-day, on the north of the gulf of St. Lawrence for the last eight years, and what I mean by saying that I am the weak one of the family is that we are the one which is not in touch with the chain of hospitals.

A LONELY SPHERE We are nearly 350 miles away from anybody else. On that coast we have something over 2,000 white people, French and English, to look after, and I have been given charge of 500 Indians. This was put upon me by Earl Grey by an Order in Council, and it was without salary—but we have changed that now. (Laughter.) In a country where you are so much shut up as we are, and there is no chance to do things as in a large city, we get self-contained, we get more or less self-reliant, and we have learnt, as far as possible, to rely upon ourselves and do the best we can with the things at hand. Wars you have no roads everything in summer is done by boat, and this strip of coast stretches about 350 miles from end to end, and has to be covered by myself winter and summer, you can imagine something of the life we lead. These people situated so that there is one family in a harbor sometimes five in a harbor, so you can understand how they look forward to the visit of the doctor as he goes along winter and summer to get the latest news.

GROWING CONFIDENCE. It has been my pleasure not only to run in and give them a pill for this or that, but to get in touch with the people, so that now they look upon the mission doctor as a real friend. (Applause.) They are getting so that they come to him, not only in sickness, but also in trouble, and as to one who will help them (Applause.) We have a hospital of twelve beds, and we try as best we can to keep in touch with every one, not only medically, but in little things like distributing Christmas presents. (Applause.) Not long ago the children there never saw a toy, but now boxes of toys are distributed and are to be opened on Christmas Eve; so that every child has something to help it to remember Christmas and to make it happy. (Applause.) Even if this does mean a little more effort, yet a small thing like that adds to the general pleasure of the youngsters, at Christmas especially.

A FIRST PRESENT. A few years ago I gave a knitted scarf to an old grandmother, and as I told her that some lady had knitted it for me to give away, she said, "Doctor, tell that lady, God bless her, it is the first present I ever had." And she was 70 years of age. If we want to do these people any permanent good we must get their confidence and affection. In Labrador we have nine months' winter and three months' bad weather. (Laughter.) That may possibly be a little exaggeration, but when we have to fight the climatic conditions we have to put up with many hardships. I have hung on to two anchors for twenty-four hours, expecting to be drifted, and if so we should have been beaten to pieces on a cliff.

WINTER WORK In winter our travelling is altogether by dog sledge and snow-shoes, and we have the sudden changes in winter as in summer, only at a different temperature. I manage to be in telephonic communication with the hospital nearly every night, and so am able to keep in touch with the cure and know what is going on. (Applause.) After being away on a long eastern trip and being home only two days, I was called away in a hurry to go two hundred miles west. My little girl climbed on my knee and said, "Father, where is your home?" (Laughter.) No wonder the kiddie asked where my home was! It means that you are always at the beck and call of people who are living far away. Dogs, treacherous and ill-natured though they are, we cannot do without. Whether we shall have the reindeer on our part of the coast is very doubtful, because I don't think the conditions are favorable.

OLD ENGLISH STOCK Several of the people are the descendants of men who emigrated from Devon some hundred years ago to Newfoundland and then went across, thinking it would be better. They have perpetuated the Devonshire dialect. They are honest, God-fearing for the most part, hard working, industrious fishermen—men who have no second string to their bow. If the fishing fails they have no other chance to make a living. They are absolutely dependent on the fish they catch during the three months.

FISHERMAN'S HARDSHIPS

For three years the people have not had anything like a good fishing. The sealers have failed. You know how they kill seals, and I have tried without success to have an arrangement arrived at by which the seals go into the Gulf should not be touched by the steamers, but should be for the benefit of the people living on the coast, but this year five vessels went in and "cut them up," as they call it. We hardly get enough to make the seal-skin boots for the winter. A certain amount of work is done in fur catching, and some years it is good. We seldom see money on our coast. Most of the trade is simply by the barter system—the traders come down there and bring their supplies, looking for the fishermen to pay their account in fish, if possible. The other mission that is working on the coast is the Anglican Mission, under the Diocese of Quebec. We are working in the happiest co-operation with that Society, and help each other as best we can. (Applause.) There is no denominationalism in our mission. All a man needs is the needy condition. We have had Indians in the hospital, as well as French and our own English—though for years we could not get the French people to come to our hospital. We are trying to hold the fort on that part of the coast, doing whatever lies in our power to make life a little more real and a little less grey for the people living there. (Applause.)—"Tollers of the Deep."

Dickens' Popularity

This, I think, is a convenient place in which to give three or four out of a large number of instances of my father's widespread popularity, as evidenced to myself at different times among all sorts and conditions of men. When I was an undergraduate at Cambridge I was asked by a friend of mine if I would like to meet Charles Kingsley. As I was a great admirer of his works, I said it would give me the greatest pleasure to do so. Accordingly, I was invited to a large luncheon-party at St. John's College. When I arrived I was introduced to Kingsley, but he did not catch my name, and shook hands with me as a matter of ordinary politeness. In the course of the luncheon someone asked me a question about my father, on hearing which Kingsley—who was seated at the other end of a long table—putting down his knife and fork, said, "Are you a son of Charles Dickens?" And on my answering in the affirmative he came all the way around that table to shake me by the hand.

The next incident took place at Toronto, Canada. I had been staying there with two of my daughters, and we were going by rail to Niagara. When we arrived at the station I found the "boots" of the hotel with a hold-all under each arm and a bag in each hand, and I said to him, "Please take the wraps to my parlor—name Dickens." "In any way related?" he answered. "Oh, yes; I am a son." Down went the hold-alls and the bags, and, holding out his hand to me, he said, "God bless you, sir!" The scene shifts to Jamaica. Some years ago I had to go out to that island to represent several insurance offices in some very heavy litigation which arose out of the fire which followed upon the great earthquake which laid Kingston in ruins. One of the test cases was fought at Montego Bay, quite the other side of the island from Kingston. The litigation caused immense excitement, and the papers were full of the trial, and published portraits of the counsel engaged. One morning between six and seven, when I was having my early morning walk, I saw a burly fellow with two comfortable-looking little black people inside it coming toward me. As it came abreast of me the buggy stopped and a little black man, leaning out of it, said:—"Mr. Dickens, sah?" "Yes," I replied. "Will you shake hands with us, sah?" "Certainly—by all means."

So I first shook hands with his smiling little wife and then with his smiling little self, and then they both proceeded to tell me how greatly they loved my father's books, and, so far as I could judge, they had read them, every one.—H. F. Dickens, K. C., in Harper's Magazine for July.

TULLE AND BEADS. One of the new mull blouses is made with a flaring organdy collar under which is drawn a tie of black tulle—a fold of the black tulle half an inch wide. The tie ends in a tassel of colored beads which give just the desirable dash of brightness to the blouse.

EMBROIDERED EPONGE. Embroidered sponge waistcoats are very effective, especially with white coat suits. The embroidery is done in colors that would have been called Bulgarian a year or two ago—in big, irregular designs. These waistcoats usually are made to button just above the waist, and like those of pique they carry patch pockets.

ROSE PARASOL. One of the prettiest of the summer's parasols is made in a perfectly ordinary umbrella shape, but at the tip of each rib the silk is gathered a little. These parasols are made of shaded silk, very pale rose in the center, and deep rose at the edge.

Dumb Friends in Turbulent Mexico

(By Felix J. Koch.)

You remember the old saw about how, "for the want of a nail, the shoe was lost, and for want of the shoe, the horse was lost," and, not to give the intermediate stages, as a result of the slipping out of that single nail, an entire battle's history was changed? Down in turbulent Mexico today many a poor refugee, wandering over the ruins of his home or his shop, may be paraphrasing the little adage, while he reproaches himself with the thought that had he been a bit kinder to that horse or that burro of his, he would today have stood to lose considerably less! All Mexico over, the people who escaped with their lives from the ruined towns and villages tell the story of the salvage done for them by their equine friends. The stronger, the better condition in which your little animal was, the greater load you could put upon him; and the oftener could you drive him from the doomed settlement to the line, with salvage, then return for more and more again.

How many of our dumb friends were made to succumb, however, in this dreadful period, as a result of overwork and Mexican disregard for the feelings of their animals, will never be known. Nor were the beasts of burden the only ones to suffer. Range cattle, for days ahead of the invasion of a given region, were driven, hot-footed, to what was thought safety; and when the guerilla bands were reported near and it was "nip-and-tuck" with the cowboys to save as much as they could, the mad steers were driven till they trampled each other, and the calves went under, beneath the hoofs of the herd.

Dogs and cats fared perhaps best of all the domestic creatures at this time, for they could care for themselves; and many a child took care to take the pet parrot, with its perch, along on the little van with the salvage; but, on the other hand, Mexican men, in their eagerness to save more valuable property or to pillage their neighbor's house, while he and his drove away with some load, forgot to unleash the fighting cock or turn the poultry out of the two-floor coops on the wagons from which they hawked them, and these poor creatures were burnt to a crisp.

What the dumb animals did toward helping their friends of the genus homo in the Mexican revolution is perhaps told best by a typical example. In Nuevo Laredo men were content to drive their mule carts or ride into town on their ranch horses, attending their business, little caring whether one side or other were in power. When the government forces received the news that they had lost Monterey and the towns about, however, they immediately notified, through their commanders, the cis of Ciudad Porfirio Diaz and Nuevo Laredo, that these places would be destroyed.

Rest assured that it was then that carters began looking to their humble steeds as never before! Horses, mules, burros, donkeys—all manner of beasts of burden, became worth literally their weight in gold. Men outbid one another savagely for the rent or hire of these, that they might save what they could of their wares. What would be left behind must go to plunder and flame, so almost any price paid for the hire of a draft animal was cheap at that! Poor little animals—the frenzied drivers cared little for them after this, as they dashed back and forth with the heavy loads which they were taking to safety! By one of the afternoon the town began to evacuate, full force, most of the people making, of course, for Laredo, Texas.

Furniture, keeppakes, the pet canaries and the fitches, the parrots, and, sometimes, of course, chickens (slaughtered, that they might be more easily transported)—the household goods of every sort went on the wagons. For six hours the international bridge was a mass of moving humanity, of draft animals of every sort, of hogs and mules and cattle and dogs. Thus the exodus continued the next day, until one in the afternoon when the town was fired.

Reaching the States, some of the refugees went to friends, stabling their animals in the streets before the houses. Others crowded the streets, huddling round the carts on the public plazas, begging a bit of hay from the marketers for their steeds, while their smaller pets from the townfolk. Meanwhile the blazing semi-tropic sun poured down on the sufferers, both man and beast. On April 23 the final overflow made its departure assured now that the American government would allow all to enter.

Meanwhile, back at Nuevo Laredo, the prisons were opened, criminals and other prisoners released, and meantime the pillaging of the deserted homes went on. Half-banded Mexican cavalry, on horses taken from the rages without so much as a by-your-leave to the owners, sacked the town, carrying their loot to the depot, where provision was made for it. Five trains down here were loaded with merchandise deliberately taken during the night from stores and shops, by aid of the swift horses. These trains then left for Laredo.

Then catastrophe overtook whatever the animals hadn't helped their owners to save. Houses were sacked, barns ransacked—nothing was safe from loot. Just before the trains had left, the General, Quintana, arriving at the depot, tried to stay behind and fight. Horses would excite the patriotism of the men to be secured for them, willy-nilly, from some ranch, somewhere! Falling to win over volunteers and fearing the service of conscript in such place, he remained until he saw the torch set to all. Dynamite was used most plentifully and 100 cans of kerosene were distributed along the sidewalks where, just a few days before, the cock-fighters had their cruel battles royal and the birds had sung and the lazy cattle loitered. Twenty squadrons, eighteen men attending a can, to make it do its best, were deployed. These men had assigned specific places, that all the town might be fired at once.

So soon as the General was personally assured of the thoroughness of the conflagration, he returned to the depot in his automobile, had the waiting locomotive give the signal blast to light the last cans, and fled. The town then remained at the mercy of the soldiers, drunk with what liquor they could lay hands on. They lashed their poor steeds mercilessly, as they darted here and there, taking by pistol-law what they desired. Finally, Nuevo Laredo, from a busy and prosperous city, the entrap for a great cattle country, was reduced to a ruin through whose silent streets and vacant roofless housesites now only the semi-occasional looter rides his steed, picking up what he can find to his use.

How to Tell the Age of Hens And Pigeons

There has been great development of late years in the Canadian poultry industry. This development has been brought about by many factors, chief among which are the untiring and highly successful efforts of breeders, the experimental work carried on at the various poultry plants of the Dominion and Provincial Experimental Farms and Agricultural Colleges, the information given out by these institutions, the poultry exhibits, in which the people of Canada are now taking a great interest, and, last but not least, the profits of the industry, little thought of in the past, but now well recognized and appreciated.

Production is increasing at an extraordinary rate while the quality of the product shows wonderful improvement. The value of the flock depends upon the production of one of its birds decreases after a certain age is reached. It is very important therefore, that the breeder be able to tell with some degree of certainty the age of the fowls which he desires to retain or purchase for breeding purposes, otherwise he will be exposed to the risk of having individuals that are past their prime and that do not pay for their keep.

Record books have been established for horses, cattle, and many other animals, where information pertaining to pedigree, age, etc., are kept for reference, but it has remained to Victor Forier, Assistant Dominion Poultry Husbandman, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, after much personal observation and study to publish a method whereby the age of hens can be accurately estimated. This information which is meant especially for the breeder and the direction of the Hon. Martin Burrell, in a profusely illustrated bulletin, which is No. 16 Second Series of the Central Experimental Farm. Copies will be mailed to those who apply for them to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Summer Clothes for Children

There are some women whose summer will include relief from the strain of keeping up appearances and instead of supplying the family with dainty frocks, beruffled and embroidered, they are making the most dainty of collars for the many materials which do not require ironing.

The mother who likes to see her children clad fresh and clean once or perhaps twice a day may yet have pity on the one maid upon whom the weight of the ironing would fall, or she may not wish to increase the family laundry bill by the addition of many white frocks. It seems as if the looms never worked more generally to the advantages of such housewives.

One woman with a family of small children is having their morning dresses made from crinkled seersucker with detachable collars and belts of white linen. The latter only will be starched and ironed. The dresses and suits of seersucker will be hung out to dry with more than ordinary care, so that the lines of the goods will hang lengthwise. They will not be starched and only the collar and cuff bands will need smoothing off before the garments fresh and sweet smelling from the drying in the sun, will be hung in the closet.

A gentleman visiting a jail noticed a colored man of his acquaintance whom he had never known to be guilty of wrong doing. "Why Jim, what are you here for?" he asked.

"I don't know, sah," replied the negro. "Well, what have you been doing?" "Nothin' tall, sah—nothin' tall." "What made 'em put you in here, then?" "Well, dey sez, boss, I wuz sent up fur fragranty."—Chicago "Daily News."

OVERDOING IT

Mr. B., who was dining out, had done lavish justice to the good things before him. By way of a graceful apology he remarked with a beaming smile directed toward his hostess: "I've always heard ma'am, that the highest compliment one pays the housekeeper is to eat heartily. You observe that I have been exceedingly polite."

"Thank you, Mr. B. smiled back the hostess. "Indeed I think that you have carried politeness to the point of flattery."

When Jenkins managed to wake up he found his wife weeping uncontrollably.

"My darling," he exclaimed. "What in the world is the matter?" "Oh, I've had such a dream," she said. Jenkins begged her to tell it to him; and finally she consented to say this much:

"I thought I was walking down the street and came to a shop where it said 'Husbands for sale.' You could get beautiful ones for $5,000, and very nice looking ones for even as little as $500."

"And were there any that looked like me?" asked Jenkins, not altogether ingeniously.

"Dozens of them," gasped Mrs. Jenkins. "Done up in bunches like asparagus, and marked 25c a bunch."

While visiting in the South recently a traveller chanced upon a resident of a seepy hamlet in Tennessee. "Are you a native of this town?" asked the traveller.

"Am I a what?" languidly asked the man as he rose to a sitting posture. "Are you a native of this town?" "What's that?"

"I asked you whether you were a native of the place!" Suddenly there appeared at the open door of the cabin the man's wife, aunt and sallow. After carefully scrutinizing the intruder she said:

"Ain't you got no sense at all, Ira! He means was yo' livin' heah when you was born, or was yo' born after you begun livin' heah. Now answer him."

Nothing if not ambitious, the young minister of Popham determined on a plan to gain him greater popularity. "Well, John," he said to the beadle after service one Sunday, "I was just thinking it might greatly enhance my sermons, if you would oblige by saying 'Amen' now and again."

"Right, Right, I will sir, But hoo an I tae ken whann tae say 'Amen'?" inquired sturdy John.

"I'll have a bag o' green peas beside me, John, and if you just sit under the pulpit I'll drop one when I wish you to speak," was the reply.

The following Sunday all went well, until of a sudden John exclaimed, hurriedly: "Amen, amen, amen, amen." "Hush, John," the minister whispered, "the bag's burst."

Our school closed on Thursday, June 25th. Mr Maxwell Munroe, of Paradise, has been our teacher for the past year, and although his first term in the profession, he has given excellent satisfaction as a teacher, and has endeared himself to the hearts of the people. As he goes from us he is followed by our best wishes for his future success. On Friday afternoon, following the closing of the school, we held our annual picnic. Fifty-five were present, and a very pleasant time was spent in games and social enjoyment. A very pleasing feature of the picnic was the presentation to our teacher of a fine watch fob, a token of appreciation from his pupils and other young friends of this place. In the evening all repaired to the church where an appropriate service of song was rendered. Rev. F. J. Hadley made a few remarks, and the evening closed with prayer and singing, "God be with You Till We meet Again." A special pleasure during these closing exercises was the presence of Mr George Munroe, our teacher's father. Mr Munroe enjoyed the occasion very much and we felt it a great pleasure to have him with us.
