MORE SEPTEMBER WEDDINGS TODAY.
Happy Events in This City and Elsewhere.

Fredericton Doctor Married in Moncton—
Two Well Known St. John Young Men Wedded.

KELLEY-McLEOD.
The Cathedral was the scene of a very pretty wedding at 3.30 this morning, when Miss Annie McLeod, daughter of the late John McLeod, was united in marriage with W. D. Kelley, son of William Kelley, I. C. R. baggage master, by the Rev. Father Meshegan. The bride was attended by Miss Alice Kelley, while John Ward supported the groom. The bride wore a handsome dress of grey, which was afterwards changed for a travelling suit of white.

PELKEY-THURMUTH.
This evening, at the home of Thos. Thurmuth a happy event will take place, in which his daughter, Miss Rebecca Thurmuth, will be united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Ambrose Pelkey. Her sister, Miss Mabel Thurmuth, will act as bridesmaid, while Daniel McEachern will support the groom. The bride will wear a gown of cream crepe de chene, and will carry a beautiful bouquet of flowers. The bride has already received a number of very pretty and useful presents.

MONCTON WEDDINGS.
(Special to the Star.)
MONCTON, N. B., Sept. 14.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at half-past nine this morning in the chapel, at St. Bernard's church, the principal being Dr. Roy Henry McGrath, of Fredericton, eldest son of H. J. McGrath, of Dorchester, I. C. R. inspector of masonry, and Miss Helen Maude, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gallagher, of the Hotel Minto of this city.

The wedding was a quiet affair, and the nuptials were witnessed only by immediate friends of the contracting parties. Rev. Father Savage, the pastor of St. Bernard's church, officiated, and was assisted by Fathers Cormier and Dulan. The bride was becomingly attired in white lousine silk over white tulle, wearing a bridal veil of tulle, with orange blossoms, and carried a pretty white prayer book. She was unattended. Miss Florence Gallagher, daughter of T. J. Gallagher, and niece of the bride, made a sweet little flower girl. After the ceremony the young couple and friends repaired to the bride's home, where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served. There were no invited guests, but among relatives from distance are Mrs. J. A. Ashe, of Oshawa, N. Y.; Jos. F. Gallagher, of Charlottetown; Mr. and Mrs. John McCann and Mrs. Catherine Gallagher, St. John; Mrs. Ellen Hurley and son, W. R. Hurley, of Halifax.

The bride, who is one of Moncton's most popular and highly esteemed young ladies, was the recipient of a brilliant array of presents, including many things in sterling silver and cut glass. Several cheques for substantial amounts were also given. Many of the presents came from friends in different Canadian and American cities. Dr. McGrath and bride leave on the Ocean Limited at two o'clock this afternoon on a bridal trip to Western cities, including Quebec. The bride's travelling dress is blue silk, with hat to match. On their return Dr. and Mrs. McGrath will take up their residence at Fredericton.

A quiet home wedding was celebrated at Hartsville yesterday, when Miss M. Maude Hopper was married to William J. Hodgson, I. C. R. brakeman. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. McConnell, only immediate friends being present. The happy couple left on the Ocean Limited, on a trip to Halifax and the Sydney, after which they will reside in Moncton.

A. McLaughlin Seely and bride, of Sydney, are spending their honeymoon at the summer home of Mr. Seely's parents at Cape Brule, Shediac. Mr. Seely, who is a son of Abbott Seely, chief clerk of the I. C. R. stores department, was married at North Sydney on Tuesday to Miss Cecilia Muir, daughter of A. R. Forbes. The groom is an accountant in the stores department of the Nova Scotia Steel Company.

SECRET CLAUSES IN ANGLO-JAPANESE TREATY
World Won't Know Details of Alliance---
Tokio Uproar Simmering Down---
Preparing For Trade Boom.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—The foreign office has received a despatch from the French minister at Tokio saying that the treaty of alliance between France and Japan has been reestablished, but that the legation, as a precautionary measure, continues under military guard. It is the present intention to postpone making public the text of the new treaty between Great Britain and Japan.

The officials here were advised that the first plan was to make it public in London, and last Monday Japan asked for further delay, and it was thereupon arranged to let the publication go over for a month, when it is expected the text of the treaty of alliance and of the Portsmouth treaty will be officially communicated to the public at the same time, as the two documents are expected to counterbalance each other with the Japanese public. However, it is possible that action of the Japanese diet upon the treaties may lead to a postponement of the publication of their texts for a month.

In the meantime it is said that the new Anglo-Japanese alliance does not contain surprises outside of the main features summarized in these despatches of September 7, but in addition the agreement contains clauses which will not be made public.

TOKIO, Sept. 13.—In spite of the strong undercurrent of indignation overhanging all classes over the terms of peace arranged with Russia, typical business men here are following a wiser course without weeping over an accomplished fact. An organization representing St. leading business interests has been formed under the presidency of Mr. Iwade, a millionaire, which aims to work for the development of home industries and foreign trade with redoubled energy. A significant feature of the organization is that it consists of a wealthy and conservative element, representing an immense combination of capital. Its interests and energies will be principally directed toward the exploitation of trade with Korea and Manchuria.

The organization is prepared to co-operate in this direction with foreign capital. TOKIO, Sept. 13.—In a speech before the local governors today, Premier Kato, said:—"The peace negotiations brought about through the good offices of President Roosevelt, have been concluded. During the 20 months

SHOT HUSBAND WHO WOULDN'T PAY HER FOUR DOLLARS A WEEK

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Enraged because he would not pay her $4 weekly for her support, to which he had agreed in a police court, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson shot and probably fatally injured her husband, Edward H. Wilson, a compositor, in Center street today. Mrs. Wilson made no attempt to escape and admitted the shooting. Mrs. Wilson told the police that Wilson wanted her to continue to work as a stenographer after their marriage and that he finally left her. She then caused his arrest on a charge of non-support.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 14.—At a meeting today of the Employers' Association of Niagara Falls, representing thirty million dollars of invested capital, it was resolved to stand by the newspaper publishers of this city in their fight against the striking printers. BOSTON MADE KOMURA ILL.
NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Baron Komura, the Japanese peace envoy, who is ill at the Waldorf Astoria hotel, was resting quietly today without apparent change of condition since last evening. Speaking of the condition of the Baron, Dr. Pritchard, one of his physicians, said last night: "Baron Komura's illness is undoubtedly due to an open Victoria. It started to rain and the Baron was drenched. He went immediately to his train and did not change his wet clothes until an hour afterwards."

The following day he arrived in this city and suffered from chills. It was called and then Dr. Brewer was summoned in consultation. On Sunday morning the Baron's fever had diminished but on Monday it was higher. It was thought necessary to perform an operation as it was feared that an abscess was forming. Now it is not necessary.

THE BARON'S CONDITION is at present very favorable. As yet we have made no formal diagnosis as to the fever but we are studying the symptoms and a nurse every hour is taking the patient's temperature.

SENATORIAL GRAFTER CONFESSES ALL

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 14.—Brought from his prison cell to confront his alleged associate in the bootleg combine of last winter, H. Buncker's former state senator, San Francisco, yesterday made a complete confession on the witness stand in Judge Hart's court room, where the trial of E. J. Emmons, one of four state senators indicted by the grand jury, was in progress. Buncker described the plan of campaign, which he says was one whereby the building and loan associations of the state were to be "held up" and compelled to pay for protection. He told also of receiving money, stating also that Joseph Jordan had dropped a roll of $500 in his pocket as he stood in the street and said that Emmons had received his share. Last night he told of the terror and flight that followed the exposure in the senate, the last conference in Emmons' room over the disposal of the marked bills and of the suggestions that were made to clear themselves of guilt.

CIRCUS STRANDED IN EUROPE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Returning to their native land as steerage passengers several members of the Minnedon Circus which was recently stranded at Grenoble, in Southern France, arrived in New York on the steamer Roma today. Four of the party were cabin passengers, among whom were included the advance agent. He said the troupe had numbered about three hundred persons and that when it was stranded because of a collection for rent levied by a French financial institution on the receipts of the show, one hundred and twenty members left. The American consul at Grenoble cared for them.

FROST IN NEW ENGLAND.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—A sudden drop in the temperature occurred throughout New England during the night. MRS. C. W. MORRELL RECOVERING

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 14.—The condition of Mrs. C. W. Morrell, who was shot by a burglar at her residence here early Tuesday was somewhat improved today, according to a statement given out by her father, L. C. Converse. He sent out word that she had passed a comfortable night. Mr. Converse was asked about a report that an operation was performed shortly after midnight upon Mrs. Morrell and replied that it was incorrect. No operation has been performed as yet, though it is expected that the physicians will endeavor to remove the bullet which is supposed to have lodged either in the neck or shoulder.

NO PRAYERS OVER DEAD TYRANT.

TIFLIS, Caucasus, Sept. 14.—The body of General Prince Amlikhov (formerly governor of Batumi) was brought to this city today. Serious developments arose in connection with the recent death of Prince Amlikhov, whose body was left lying in a house in the vicinity of Tiflis. The prince was regarded with bitter hatred by the revolutionists, who threatened to adopt measures which he adopted when he was sent on a special mission to pacify the Caucasus. The revolutionists threatened the local priests with death if they attempted to offer prayers over the body and no one dared to approach the house. Troops were eventually dispatched to bring the body to Tiflis, as it was feared that disorders would occur at the funeral.

TOO MANY BANKS.

Mr. Thomas Fyfe, late general manager of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, declares in a recent article that there are altogether too many banks in this country, that it would be better for business all around if the process of amalgamation continued until the number was greatly reduced.

Undoubtedly there is a great waste in maintaining a large number of small banking institutions, each with an expensive management and staff, to handle business which one or two could do just as well and much more economically. But this is equally true concerning almost every industry, and a growing appreciation of this fact is leading to a process of combination in many lines, the result of which is anticipated with fear by those who are studying its progress. While theoretically the forming of industrial combines should be for the general profit the practical results have not always supported the theory, for the reason that they have been affected by a factor which the theorists do not consider: the greed of those in whose hands the power is concentrated. The amalgamation process has undoubtedly benefited the capitalist, but the purchasing public as a rule has been worse off than before.

However, it is not easy to monopolize the business of loaning money, and this bank amalgamation may, at Mr. Fyfe's suggestion, be a step towards the benefits of concentration without the evils that accompany monopoly.

MORE ABOUT CIRCULATION.

In an attempt to discredit the recent circulation statements made by this paper, an envious contemporary has affirmed that while the Star claims its sale is steadily increasing and has averaged for the past three months 6,229 daily, this paper published a declaration in Printers' Ink a year ago that its average circulation was 6,306 copies.

This is not a far cry from the truth, as the Star's circulation for the same period made by the Star, and larger by far than any record ever made by any other St. John evening paper.

Mr. Wilfrid said the G. T. P. should keep 30 miles from the other roads, the Territories at least, and parliament put it in the act. Mr. Fitzpatrick said that the district of Keewatin should be excluded from the Northwest Territories and parliament put it in the act. Now Mr. Wilfrid, by administrative action and without a word of explanation, runs the G. T. P. within nine or ten miles of other roads, in the Territories and brings Keewatin under the Northwest Territories Act. What he should do in future is to pay members of parliament an additional $2,500 a year and make them stay home, while he governs the country without the inconvenience of having to attend the sessions.—Winnipeg Telegram.

According to a state census recently completed, greater New York has a population of four million and a half, a gain of 828,003 within the last five years, or at the rate of 1,671,240 a decade. London contained at the latest census, taken in 1901, 4,588,841, a growth of 946,810. So New York expects to pass London in the race by the close of the current decade in 1910, if the respective rates remain the same. New York is certainly a big city, and it is held to include the three-quarters of a million of New Jersey people, within a radius of fifteen miles who are really New Yorkers, contains five million and a quarter. But London is quite a village, and the Metropolitan police district, within a radius of fifteen miles from Charing Cross, brings the total population up to 6,831,371. It will take New York more than ten years to catch up with that procession.

The Montreal newspapers inform us that a distinguished Japanese, who was formerly traffic manager of the railways owned by the Japanese government, has been spending a few days in Montreal studying the railway system of which that city is the centre. One is at loss to know what practical knowledge the visitor hoped to obtain from watching the workings of the I. C. R.—Amherst Telegram.

Writers on Japan declare that political graft is unknown there. Possibly this envy has been sent with the idea of discovering the means to remedy this national defect. The Japanese know where to go for the best of everything.

The Nelson whose greatest victory the British world will celebrate this fall is not the gentleman who won a notable battle in San Francisco the other night.

THE SWEET OF THE YEAR.

Crimson bushes line the hollows, Yellow treetops fringe the hills. The sky is full of swallows, With a twitter in their bills. The air is full of sun, And sparkling winter follows When autumn's done.

Ivory pillars, crystal rafters, Make a palace of the wood. The world peeps out in laughter. She wears an ermine hood. The world peeps out in laughter, Her hood will melt anon. But oh, the spring comes after, When winter's gone.

Gleam of bluebirds, flute of thrushes, Thrill the blossomed trees. The bees are droning, The apple orchard blushes. Arbutus balm the breeze, The apple orchard blushes. The heart is on the wing, And flood of summer gushes From fountains of spring.

Sea and summit tempt the rover; Pearly horns to forest call. The bees are droning, The earth's a dancing ball. The bees are droning, The earth's a dancing ball. The bees are droning, The earth's a dancing ball.

Turns a new leaf over, And autumn's here. Katharine Lee Bates in Youth's Companion.

AGED WOMAN TAKES HER FIRST RIDE ON TRAIN.

But Her 72 Year Old Companion Rode on the Sampson More Than Sixty Years Ago.

Conductor C. D. Phillips, of the I. C. R., had two interesting passengers on his train—the Truro and Mulgrave day freight—last Saturday. They boarded it at Antigonish, and journeyed on it a considerable distance up the line in the direction of New Glasgow. They were 67 and 72 years of age. The younger of the two had never been on a train before. She was quite nervous and continually requested the conductor and other train hands to take good care of her, and see that she got off safely. Needless to say the men did as she requested.

Her companion, however, was just the opposite. She was one of those now living that first travelled by steam in Nova Scotia, having, when a little girl, ridden from Station to the loading ground on the old locomotive Sampson, then the property of the General Mining Association. In that occasion she occupied a seat beside the engineer, the late Mr. Fraser, who, when about 90 years of age, accompanied his old locomotive to Chicago, some ten or twelve years ago and ran it in connection with the World's fair.

Mr. Fraser returned, but the locomotive was purchased by United States parties and placed in a museum. It was one of the first locomotives in British North America, said to be the first in Nova Scotia, and there are many who now regret that it was ever permitted to be taken out of this country to remain. In fact they think the government should take steps, if possible, to purchase it and return it to Nova Scotia.—Halifax Herald.

LOCAL NEWS.

Amherst is to have a new hotel. A. Peabody of that town, who was the proprietor of the Amherst hotel, was in St. John yesterday. He stated that his place had been bought by a company of Amherst men, who would build a large and up-to-date hostelry.

John C. Brown, of Harcourt, who is at the Victoria, says that the work on the Central Railway is progressing rapidly, although the recent heavy rains have interfered to some extent with the operations. Three crews are at work, the total number of men employed being about one hundred. An engine and a number of cars are employed to convey earth and stone to fill up the trestles. Considerable progress has been made with the ditching, and it is expected that work on the concrete piers for the bridge at Norton will be commenced in a few days.

In the last issue of the Messenger and Visitor the Tabernacle church reports as follows: Our membership is steadily growing. Three were welcomed into the church the first Sunday in August and nine the first Sunday in September. At a meeting of the trustees some months ago the treasurer's report was so encouraging that we decided to finish the vestry. This has been done at an expense of about $800. We have also introduced a new lighting plant at an expense of $150. We are also seriously considering the question of re-seating our auditorium with pews. One very encouraging feature of the work is the loyalty of the church to the pastor. As a light evidence it may be said that the church has never been a dollar behind in his salary.

The traffic on the river this season has not been profitable. Competition being so keen, both passenger and freight rates have been cut. The fog interfered greatly with the river traffic. Although it does not extend any distance up the river it is hard to make the tourist believe this, and he takes it for granted that the fog extends all the way up, and as this summer has not been without fog it has made business dull.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 13.—While his wife sat by his bedside Elias Morgan, a wealthy farmer, living three miles from Centerville, Ky., suddenly seized a razor and cut her throat.

Almost immediately Morgan drew the razor across his own throat. Physicians said that it would be impossible for either to recover.

The tragedy was witnessed by two young children of Morgan, who were found sitting in the room, calling upon their parents to speak to them.

Morgan had been ill for eight weeks with typhoid fever and grew despondent, believing recovery was impossible.

WILL ROW DUGGAN.
William Duggan, the Halifax single sculler, can have a race this season if he wants it. The Boston Globe says: "It is a matter of course that Duggan, a member of the Bradford Boat Club, and the Boston police force, says he is not looking for trouble, but stands ready to take on William Duggan the Halifax sculler any time for a match race. Pres. Phelan told a representative of the Globe yesterday that he has Maguire's full sanction to bring about the race, and if Duggan has not returned to Halifax it can be rowed on the Charles river within a week."

If, however, Duggan has gone home before this reaches him, the Globe's rowing editor is authorized to match the man either for this or next season."

THE RING.

GRANEY HAD MONEY BET.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Eddie Graney, who refereed the Britt-Nelson fight, declares that it cost him $1,000 to be the third man in the ring. This sheds light on his reasons for declaring off the bet.

Believing that Nelson would win, Graney had placed a bet of $1,250 to $4,000 on the Chicago man. This was several days before the fight, when it was considered settled that Jeffries was to act as referee.

When Nolan would not permit the big fellow to act, Graney was selected for the place, he could not conscientiously accept while he was backing Nelson for such a large amount.

In the event of a close decision in Nelson's favor there would have been a good deal of talk if it had become known that his money was on the winner.

He decided that he would do the only thing possible under the circumstances, and declared all bets off.

LOCAL OPINIONS DIFFER.

"Jack" Power, the well-known boxing promoter, when spoken to last night regarding the decision of Referee "Eddie" Graney that all bets were off on the Britt-Nelson battle on Saturday last that were made previous to the choice of Jeffries for referee, said: "I think that Graney had no right to interfere in the betting. He was chosen to referee the fight, not to make bets, therefore in my opinion all those who bet on Jimmie Britt should pay up. No referee," said Mr. Power, "has any right to interfere with the betting. Take for instance 'Honest' John Kelly when he refereed the Corbett-Sharkey fight at Coney Island. You will remember that 'Connie' McVey, one of Corbett's seconds, jumped into the ring and Kelly gave the decision to Sharkey, but declaring all bets off. He has never refereed a fight since."

"Billy" Keefe, who is well known as a referee in many local events, said last night: "I think that Graney had a perfect right to declare bets off, but his decision was, I believe, wrong. There was no reason in the world why the bets made on the fight should not have stood. The decision was one of the queerest I have ever heard of."

JIMMY GARDNER AND NELSON MEET.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Of all who have challenged him, "Batting" Nelson says he will give Jimmy Gardner of Lowell the first chance for a bout. Gardner declares that he can make 125 pounds. It is probable that he will also be Coffey's first choice as an opponent for the "Battler."

FOOTBALL.

THE LOCAL SITUATION.
The Fairville A. A. Club held a meeting last night and discussed matters in connection with football for the season. The meeting decided to accept the Beaver A. A. Club's proposition to share with them the Victoria grounds privileges. Dr. L. M. Curran was appointed a committee to complete arrangements with the Beavers. The original idea of the Beaver club, the Beavers, was that the other clubs, namely, Carleton, Fairville and the Neptunes, should come into the grounds arrangement with them. The Carleton club have already decided not to do so, but as the Neptunes have decided in the affirmative there will be three clubs sharing the grounds. The Beavers will have a practice to-

MORE RIOTS IN TOKIO; LIKE BOXER TROUBLES.

TOKIO, Sept. 13, 10 a. m.—Advices from Yokohama say that a riot occurred there shortly after midnight Wednesday morning. The mob was divided into two bodies, numbering 5,000, mostly coolies, barmen and outcasts. Eight police boxes were demolished and burnt.

The mob directed its attack against three objects, the police stations, the residences of the customs officers and the large commercial houses.

Four hundred troops were sent from Tokyo on a special train a little before dawn, and soldiers are now guarding the residences, the warehouses containing explosives and the oil tanks.

Quiet has been restored.

TOKIO, Sept. 13.—The Mainichi this morning, in its leader, presents the statements of the Kokumin, a governmental organ, in classing the burning of churches at Tokio during the rioting with the actions of the Chinese Boxers.

In its leader the Mainichi says: "No trace of an anti-foreign or any such sentiment as entertained by the Boxers, exists even in the remotest corner of the empire. Had the recent rioting been even tinged with such a feeling, why were the foreigners not attacked at the Imperial Hotel, next door to the ministers' residence, which was the object of repeated attacks during the rioting. There was no attempt at any violence toward the guests of the hotel, who were permitted quietly to observe the disturbance in the street. A slight injury suffered by an American citizen occurred in a street crowded with excited people, and it was quite accidental."

The leader bears evidence of having been written by Shinzo, a well-known politician and publicist, who belongs to the opposition party and represents Yokohama in the lower house. He was once vice-president of the diet, and since the first opening of the diet has been successful at every election.

ST. JOHN DEFENDED.

To the Editor of the Star.

Please allow me space in your most valuable paper in defence of the girls of St. John against the insulting remarks made by magazine jiltboes, saying that all girls should be off the streets at nine o'clock. I know that I am on the streets after that time and I am sure that I am decent, and could mention lots of other girls that are so. But I should say that the magazine would be doing his duty if he asked the police to arrest all the boys that can be seen lying and lurking around the squares and streets of our city smoking cigarettes and passing all kinds of insulting remarks both to girls and even ladies old enough to be their mothers, as they pass alone to their respective homes. I suppose they are privileged to do so but if the police see a girl walking around they must arrest her for she is doing a worst crime. I do not believe our worthy magistrates, as we ought to call him, is doing a last thing.

Thanking you very much for the space in your paper.

IN DEFENCE.

ANGLICAN SYNOD.

Permanent Diocese Scheme Voted Down

—Committee on Christian Unity

Appointed—Handsome Contribution

QUEBEC, Sept. 13.—The day was pretty well occupied with the discussion of the proposal introduced by Charles Jenkins, providing for the permanent dislocation. Under its provisions certain persons could be recommended by a congregation to the bishop to be ordained deacon, and these persons would not be advanced to the priesthood excepting in exceptional cases. No would they be called upon to give up their worldly callings.

Rev. Prof. Clark supported the resolution, particularly emphasizing the assistance a deacon would be to the priest in assisting at the holy communion in a way that a lay reader could not.

Among the strongest speeches in opposition to the resolution was one by Rev. Dr. Scott of Quebec, who claimed that the church had now all the machinery necessary if it would make use of it. He did not see how there could be two grades of deacons. Either a man was in holy orders or he was not.

Canon Crawford and Dr. Davidson spoke against the resolution which was supported by Judge MacDonald, Judge Emminger, and others.

Rev. Mr. Lloyd, formerly of St. John, now of the west, approved heartily of the canon and thought that its passage would aid the church in the Northwest.

Mr. Hoyle also supported the motion, which was, however, defeated by an adverse majority of 50 to 35. Several of the clergy from the Northwest spoke against the resolution, indicating that the West was not unanimous on the question.

During the afternoon session a letter written by Geo. C. Thomas, treasurer of the American Church, who was one of the delegates from that church to the Synod here to the bishop of Quebec, was read, in which he enclosed a check for $500.

The motion was then carried unanimously by the church. In the course of his letter Mr. Thomas congratulated the church in Canada, and the stand it had taken against divorce, and said that his attention would help the church in the United States.

A cordial vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Thomas for his generosity and his kind sentiments.

In the evening the question of Christian unity came up. Among the speakers was Rev. Mr. Lewis of Toronto, who claimed that the Congregationalists, Presbyterians and Methodists were encouraging Christian unity and that they showed no disposition to unite with the Church of England. He did not think any such union was practical at present. Judge MacDonald, who had made the motion that the committee on the pleasing conference the committee had with the committee of other Christian bodies and thought that by continuing in this work steps towards Christian unity would be taken. He hoped the motion, which was the subject of the house of bishops, would be passed without opposition.

The motion, then carried unanimously by Dr. Langtry seconding it.

The subject of benevolent fund was taken up on a proposition for reciprocal arrangements between dioceses so that a clergyman who has been for a number of years paying into the beneficiary fund of one may receive credit for the years he has paid in when he removes to another.

WITH THE LARGEST CLASS IN ITS HISTORY

Rothsay College opened yesterday with the largest attendance in its history. There are sixty-five students in residence, where there were only fifty-five last term, while the number of day boys remains the same, there being fifteen of these.

Since the addition was built to the college there has been ample accommodation, and there is room for even more boys than are now enrolled.

The staff of the college has not been changed. It is composed of: Isaac Moore, M. A., principal, senior mathematics; R. W. Allen, M. A., senior languages; Ralph Freese, B. A., classics; Ward Patterson, B. A., junior mathematics and sciences; George C. Collinson, piano, and Geo. Doon, physical instructor. Mrs. Steeves is matron.

5,000 MINERS HONOR

PRESIDENT MITCHELL.

MAHONEY CITY, Pa., Sept. 13.—Five thousand mine workers paraded here today in honor of President John Mitchell, who was given a rousing reception. Every colliery in the Mahoney Valley was closed, the ten thousand employees making a holiday of it. There were only two banners in the procession. They bore these inscriptions:

"We honor our two presidents, Roosevelt and Mitchell."

"We demand recognition of the union and an eight-hour work day. Come Mr. Baer, let us reason together."

President Mitchell's speech after the parade was a virtual reiteration of his former address delivered on his present tour of the anthracite fields. He came out squarely for recognition of the union and an eight-hour work day, declaring that there would be no permanent or lasting peace in the hard coal industry until the union was recognized and the eight-hour day established.

STRUCK BY A FALLING TREE.

Two gentlemen walking through the Old Graveyard about ten o'clock last evening had a narrow escape from serious injury, and as it was one of them who had come to remember his evening walk. An old tree, one of the largest in that vicinity, was torn up by the roots by a heavy squall and fell over, crashing down amongst monuments and tomb stones with tremendous force. One of the gentlemen in question was struck by a limb, but fortunately he was too far away to come in for serious injury.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

THE NEWEST THING IN VEILS
Dainty Summer Hosiery
THREE OF THE NEWEST SUMMER STOCKS

How it looks on you
BY MISS MANHATTAN
Now that belts are worn with all styles of gowns it is important to have a large assortment on hand, including plain and fancy waist ornaments. Their popularity naturally makes them more or less of a common dress adjunct, and on this account it is considered something of an achievement to originate a style of belt that meets the requirements of the fashionable woman of the day. Leather belts have fallen to the level of the monotonous and silk girdles are not new, all of which makes the advent of a tailor belt constructed of wide braid with a trim buckle something of a pleasant occasion.

Think of being able to make your belt at home, too, which is quite possible with the one that is fully described here. Many women balk at the thought of wearing homemade dress accessories almost as strongly as they do at appearing in gowns of home manufacture. They conjure up visions of frightful atrocities that proclaim to all the world that they have been manufactured economically and unattractively. But I defy anyone to detect the hand of the little home seamstress or even of midday herself in the accompanying illustrations, and yet the woman who made this belt doesn't know a tailor's goose from a brood of chickens.

The design of the belt is simplicity itself. There are no fancy ornaments to make it too dressy for shirtwaist suits, and it looks exceptionally well with plain waists, and at the same time it adds a pretty touch to a costume that is made to reveal a little of the bodice between the top of the skirt and the lower part of the jacket. So many of the new coats are built to disclose the figure at the waist that we are inclined to believe either that the coat model is responsible for the increased fondness for extra fine belts, or that because the belts themselves are so pretty women refuse to have their charms hidden altogether. To get round this difficulty coats are shortened very much all around, except just in front.

Not the least attractive feature of this belt lies in its adaptability to the figure. It is soft, yet possesses enough foundation to retain a becoming breadth as it wrinkles gracefully about the waist. The material used for making this belt is a very wide silk or satin, a yard of the braid is more than what is actually required, but on account of its raveling propensities it is safer to provide yourself with a generous length of it. To line the belt enough soft silk or satin is needed to make a bias strip the same measurement as the belt, and for a buckle individual taste will have to decide upon whether it is to be one of gilt, pearl, gum metal or silver.

The first step in making the belt is to cut the piece of lining silk to correspond with the length of the braid and a trifle more than its width. Lay it out inside of the belt and baste it firmly at both ends. In fact, it is a very good idea to put the silk on just a little full, for it is essential to have it stretch to the same extent as the braid. When the edges have all been neatly turned under one end of the belt is squared off, to be finished later with the buckle, and the other is fashioned in a point or wing. Here lies the most difficult feat of this particular bit of tailoring, for the braid is "puffy," and at first it seems almost impossible to get it to lie flat and look trim and even. The best way to accomplish this task is to take this end of the braid and double the two sides together, making a crease through the middle, and then run a little seam across as though you were making a pocket. By taking in a deep enough seam so that the braid doesn't get a chance to ravel, then trimming it down very narrow and whip-pling the edges well so that there is no further chance for them to fray the trick is greatly simplified. When turned rightside out this will give you a perfectly shaped pointed tab on the end, and then the lining can be fitted under the edges without increasing the bulk and the whole basted down, ready to be stitched.

Machine stitching looks best on this belt, and, besides, it gives a very necessary firmness to the ends and the edges. One row is sufficient for the long side, though two rows close together are very pretty, but the point must be done with not less than four or five rows to give it firmness and make it hold its shape. Without reinforcement of the stitching this part of the belt would get askew and look flimsy, while its whole beauty lies in its trimness, which yet lacks any stiffness.

At this point it is well to determine upon the desired or required length of the belt. The yard is, of course, much too long for the average waist, and, besides, the stretching of the braid adds to the original number of inches, but this is rather an advantage. Fold the belt around the waist, and after allowing an inch for turning under where the buckle goes on and about four more inches to pass through the shank of the buckle and leave loose after it has been securely fastened, cut off the extra inches or whatever is left over, it may be one or it may be eight inches.

The next step in the manufacture of this belt novelty depends upon the skill of some other workman, for even the cleverest novice cannot put brass or metal eyelets through a fabric. Take the belt in this state of incompleteness to a specialist or a custom shoemaker of high class and get him to insert four or five large brass eyelets, if the buckle is brass or gilt, and be sure to see that the eyelets fit the tongue of the buckle. It would be a dreadful catastrophe if they should be too small and if they were too large the beauty of the belt would be marred. The first eyelet should be inserted about three inches from the very tip of the pointed end and the others should follow at regular intervals at from three-quarters of an inch to an inch apart. It isn't necessary to have very large eyelets, such as those used on many of the new low shoes—in fact, a rather small one looks better.

With this task accomplished, which is far from being a very easy one, the belt is practically finished. All that is left for the maker to do is to attach the buckle, and this is too simple to require much description. The shank for that purpose is there and all the trick requires is to slip the buckle in place and finish the end of the braid as neatly and flat as possible. Of course, a small hole must be punched through the middle of the end to make a way for the tongue, but even that is not difficult.

As I said in the beginning, the style of buckle is all a matter of taste, but the choice of a plain gilt one with a narrow square rim and a slender tongue is recommended. Oval buckles seem to give a prettier appearance to the waist, and with this braid which crumples up very small it is advisable to select one that is longer than it is deep. The effect of a buckle that is so wide as to make the braid spread out where it is attached to the buckle is not very smart. Instead of giving a tapering line to the waist it suggests greater thickness, and at present it is the aim and struggle of every woman to secure a regular French figure with extremely small circumference.

Mother-of-pearl in all its iridescent glory makes a very charming buckle for white braid belts. Gum metal is suitable for black, and with the reds, blues, browns and tans almost any design and material looks well. The main thing is to select something plain, substantial and tailor-like. Silver-gilt rims set with brilliants are always attractively suitable for this kind of a belt, tive to the feminine eye, but they seem soft and girlish, and of silk are more appropriate with a finish of sparkling gems. There are many beautiful enamel effects that are none too fancy for this belt of braid, and the fashionable peacock blue tints are noteworthy examples of the art. The cost of this belt novelty when made at home is so small an item that it comes within the reach of almost every woman, and on this account permits her to have an unusual variety of belts which might otherwise be impossible. The braid costs $1 a yard, the lining silk, if it has to be bought especially for the purpose, ought not to cost more than 35 cents, and a very handsome gilt buckle can be had for $1 or $1.50. Leaving a margin for the cost of putting in the eyelets, which should not be very much, such a belt could be made for $2.50, and nowhere could it be found ready made, with the same quality of materials used, for less than twice that amount. Belts are really an expensive item of dress just now. Suede ones, if they match suits, have to be dyed to order, and an ordinary style costs $5. If there is any ornamentation except the plain suede-covered buckle then the price goes up accordingly. Some of the new belts have two rows of large metal discs or fancy buttons at the back set rather far apart and arranged so that the two in the middle taper slightly inward. Others are studded elaborately with steel, jet, pearl, gilt or silver cabochons, and not a few of the white suede ones have geometric designs wrought in colored stones. The effect is strikingly beautiful.

Strips of Oriental embroidery, in bright colors or gold thread, are finished with clasps of Eastern workmanship and design, and are to be worn with linen and lustrous silk shirtwaist suits this summer. It is not unusual for such a belt to be the only bit of color in a costume, its beauty being thus enhanced. With pongee suits, in the shade we have grown accustomed to, and also in the new lighter ones which are being made up into whole tailor costumes, an Oriental belt is by far the smartest thing one can wear.

A variation of the braid belt described has two very narrow rows of gilt braid following along each edge and leaving a border of the foundation on the outer side. Again, a broad piece of gold trimming is stitched right through the middle of the belt. There is the charm of novelty about these belts, but they lack the smart air that characterizes the less ornate style.

I have only touched upon the changes in women's waists, but later on I hope to go more into details regarding the altered fashion. It is true, however, that it takes fewer inches to go around the fashionable woman's figure than it did a year ago, and wide belts now flourish where they would have looked awkward and exaggerated then. The tendency is certainly toward the waipike, with very bouffant skirts to make the difference all the more marked.

Snapshots at Woman's Follies.
Here is a question the Saunterer is ever asking, but which is never answered: "Why is it that a certain type of girls and young women have dropped into the same inelegant manner of lifting their trailing gowns?" With their two hands they haul all the skirt length and fullness round in front, where, dropped the length of their arms, the hands are brought close together—sometimes even clasped—and with every step the folds of the gown are snapped back and forth. On some hips and the extreme straightness and elongation of the waist-line and corresponding protrusion of the posterior part of the body, the effect is so impressively vulgar that you blush for them.

The retort, "Honesty set out my y-pense" falls pointless here. No thinking is necessary or even possible; there is nothing left for the imagination to work upon. The offense is before your eyes. View the woman from any point, and she is a spectacle for gods and men. And how scornfully men's eyes follow her, how derisively they snarl at her folly!

The marvel is that so many women are purblind to these follies of their sex. Were they the first initiator would never arise to copy such dissonant movements, and if not copied they would promptly disappear. Copying, you know, is the subtlest flattery; and in such cases is the stimulant to the invention of some more unappealing caricure.

Shirtwaist Suit Possibilities.
The shirtwaist costume has now grown from a modest venture of two or three seasons back to one of the well-established necessities of summer wear. Gingham was used for the original shirtwaist suits, but each year the fabrics have grown richer, more embellished and more complicated in the making until this season no material is thought too rich, and a recent shirtwaist suit at the French Derby capped the climax by being made of orange velvet with embroidered trimmings. It is safe to predict that the true place of the shirtwaist suit will not be lost. Undoubtedly the mercerized ginghams, liberty silks, chambrays and silk tawards with the organdies will always be the best materials for the shirtwaist suit.

The front closing plait with or without a back yoke or body lining with a six-gored skirt, having an inverted box-plait or gale at each of the side seams tucked at each of the side seams makes a fairly figured organ to be cool and airy. A simple collar with a yoke ending at the waist and a yoke ending at the waist of the organie embroidered in heavy silk should be worn with the costume. The shirtwaist should be front closing and striped across at the button holes with embroidery. The skirt to this suit is striped, and has an inverted box-plait behind. It should just touch the instep and be without bouding.

When taking lung gymnastics these should be done in a room where, prolonged inhalations, packing the breath as it were, and the exhalations should occasionally be made more forcible, accompanied by an actively felt movement of the diaphragm, which greatly aids in emptying the stagnant cells in the lower parts of the lungs. This full respiratory effort, always a measure of health, and the consequent use of so-called material are, is not expelled and replaced in less than seven deep prolonged breaths.

A Plea For Deep Breathing.
Have you ever surprised your lungs with a deep, prolonged inhalation of pure, fresh air? If you have not, try it, and be not discouraged nor alarmed should slight dizziness result at first. It is the confusion of the disorderly mob of waste atoms lurking in stagnant cells, just as spiders flee away when their webs are crushed down. Strange it is that human folly does not end with shunning and fearing fresh air, but commonly, is also a sign of the amount of the depleted stuff it permits its lungs to inhale. It has become a truism that no other voluntary function of the body is habitually performed in so careless and inadequate a manner as breathing. That the importance of a function affecting the body's well and woe so profoundly should have been practically ignored by Western scientists for centuries is one of those problems which it were a waste of brain tissue to attempt solving. In the Orient people have never lost sight of the deep significance in the assertion that "Breath is Life." They have even gone further and in its cult have formulated whole systems of body-building and of mental, moral and spiritual development.

What the warped civilization of centuries has recognized as normal breathing is known to be insufficient to give the lungs the necessary exercise to develop and strengthen them or to maintain their integrity; nor does it, even in fresh air, supply the blood with sufficient oxygen to purify it. It should never be forgotten that the lungs are situated in a disease-repelling condition, without which the blood cannot be medicated in the pharmacopoeia, and it will be for the everlasting improvement, mainly, vastly raising the average of health, when this vital importance is more generally recognized.

As better habits can be engendered only by persistent practice, the remedy for the prevalent evil will be in conscious breathing, in lung gymnastics that, while they exercise the respiratory muscles, will want them to better ways. The exercises should be taken both night and morning, and at intervals during the day, and always in fresh, pure air. In moments of extreme fatigue, it will do more for recuperation than anything else. Have no fear of the air being cold; when breathing deeply there is hardly a possibility of taking cold, for the blood is too thoroughly oxygenated to permit any chill. It is stimulating all combustion processes instead, and thus deep-breathing may be a safeguard in crises of unavoidable exposure.

When exercising, the inhalations, always through the nostrils, should be prolonged till every respiratory muscle is called into action and every lung cell is distended. It was never intended that only a part of the lungs should be used, but men and women have each adopted their special method of defective nature; the former, from their neglect of clavicular (upper chest) breathing, furnishing the most victims of tuberculosis; and the latter, from their construction of the thorax, inhibiting all the lower muscles from activity; thus often causing atrophy in the lower lobes of the lungs. In halting breathing the exhalations should be in rhythm, with the inhalations, counting from four, to the lung power, which will increase amazingly as the chest walls and its floor, the diaphragm, gain elasticity through regular practices. The pulse-beat should be the unit of count, so that the breath will flow in unison with it, which ensures the vibrations; thus, while during six pulsations, hold breath during six counts, hold lungs empty during three counts. Repeat a dozen times or more. It will become habitual.

When taking lung gymnastics these should be done in a room where, prolonged inhalations, packing the breath as it were, and the exhalations should occasionally be made more forcible, accompanied by an actively felt movement of the diaphragm, which greatly aids in emptying the stagnant cells in the lower parts of the lungs. This full respiratory effort, always a measure of health, and the consequent use of so-called material are, is not expelled and replaced in less than seven deep prolonged breaths.

A THOUSAND UNCLAIMED FREIGHT PACKAGES SOLD

The annual sale of unclaimed freight sheds and baggage room is taking place today in No. 5 warehouse, one of the deep water terminal sheds, T. T. Lantam being the auctioneer.

The sale started at ten o'clock this morning with a fairly good crowd present and as a result the bidding was brisk and in many cases very big prices were secured. A space of one hundred feet long by about thirty feet deep was raffled off and inside this the one thousand and odd packages and articles offered for sale were displayed.

Each package was numbered and a catalogue gave a meagre description. The catalogue numbers run up to 850 but since that was made up a number of packages have been added till the number is now over one thousand. The contents of some of the packages are unknown and over them there was considerable fun.

There were three classes of purchasers present, those who viewed carefully the articles offered with a view to further sale, such as junk dealers; people on the look out for some one special article such as a stove, piece of furniture, etc., suitable for home, and the speculator who was bidding on everything offered up to a certain figure.

Of course there were some freak bids and some things that the casual onlooker could not understand. For instance a lot of bedding securely tied up in canvas with an old rope was bid up to seven dollars.

Of course there were some freak bids and some things that the casual onlooker could not understand. For instance a lot of bedding securely tied up in canvas with an old rope was bid up to seven dollars.

There were three classes of purchasers present, those who viewed carefully the articles offered with a view to further sale, such as junk dealers; people on the look out for some one special article such as a stove, piece of furniture, etc., suitable for home, and the speculator who was bidding on everything offered up to a certain figure.

FOTIS STORIES STILL IN JAIL.

In the case of the Greek bootblack, Fotis Storis, which came up yesterday at two o'clock, nothing was done but was further postponed until tomorrow at eleven o'clock. Dr. Berryman said this morning that everything possible was being done for the man, and that the attorney-general was in communication with the American authorities. Meanwhile the man pines away and there is every indication that he is dying.

Gus Mentis, the friend of the imprisoned bootblack, had an interview with the attorney-general this afternoon. Dr. Pugsley said afterwards that the only humane act which could be done would be to admit him to the asylum. He said that he had no doubt but that the mayor or warden should make application that the commission would be willing to make arrangements for his admission to the city visiting their friends.
