LET'S KEEP HIM IN MIDDLETON AND VICINITY

Every boy and girl in Middleton and district is a potential asset to us all. Right development of this asset implies better schools, wholesome amusement, promising industrial and professional opportunity—environment that recognizes the developing power of youth—and gives it a real chance.

When you let John or Mary leave town—you may have lost a budding Howe, Lincoln, Edison, Ford, Marconi, Bell—a "future great."

Do your part in making the town a better place to live and thrive. Spend your money at home—where your dollar continues to do a hundred cents worth of work for the boys and girls of Middleton and district—and incidentally to give you far greater return both directly and indirectly than you could otherwise obtain for it.

"—keep him in the community."

A SUGGESTION TO LOCAL MERCHANTS

It has been the policy of this paper to advocate the "buy at home" practice on the part of its readers, and in pursuance of such we have occasionally been criticised by those who have failed to see eye to eye with us in the matter.

The opinion has been expressed that people have a right to trade where they please, and that they should not be expected to buy at home and pay more than they would be obliged if they made their purchases abroad.

While both these objections are open to logical answer we admit that they may readily appeal to those who require to consider well their expenditure in order that their outlay may not exceed their income. We believe, however, that in most cases the customers would be glad to co-operate with the merchant in order to promote community welfare and would willingly pay slightly more to the home merchant than the mail order house requires because of the better service rendered.

There is no doubt but that advantage of getting payment in advance and buying in large quantity frequent gives the big store an advantage over the home merchant, and makes it possible for the foreign concern to underbid the local store. This may also come in certain cases from the difference in value in the quality of the goods offered.

May we suggest to our merchants a solution of this problem so that they may be able to meet the competition of the big city store and merit the continued support of their customers? Our proposition is that the dealers of Wilmot should proceed to organize a "Merchants' Association."

for the purpose of solving this problem which is theirs alone and for which they must assume full responsibility. On the principle that "goods bought right are half sold" one of the first undertakings of the new organization should be to take into consideration the very best possible system of buying. Buying is not a pastime, but a profession, and requires special qualities of which comparatively few merchants possess. We believe that by organizing our merchants can buy so that they can cut their retail prices in many cases to meet those of the mail order catalogues and make more money because of the increased sales.

To accomplish this it will be necessary for the association to select from their number one buyer to whom will be intrusted the entire buying for the needs of the whole organization. All who wish to sell to Wilmot merchants must see the one man and the factory representative must sharpen his lead pencil for his calling upon a big customer. The buyer gives shipping instructions and the goods are received by the merchant in the usual way.

For example, one buyer buying all the shoes for all the merchants of the town of Wilmot would save from one dollar to three dollars per pair, the price being cut to the consumer just that much, while the retail profit would be the same as now. Citizens would appreciate the improved service and get the mail order catalogue, while the dealer would make more money "because of the sale of more shoes."

"The Acadia," Wilmot.

NOTE—The above is reproduced in the hopes that it may be helpful to the local merchants.

Congratulations

Moirs Ltd. associate themselves with the people of Halifax, Dartmouth and a dozen other communities in celebrating Rev. Joseph Hale and Mrs. Hale on the Golden Anniversary of their Wedding.

Presentations, speeches, showers of confetti and a three-decker wedding cake, frosted in gold, were features of the celebration held in honor of the event last week.

And meanwhile Moirs are receiving inquiries for June wedding cakes, thus linking the present with the past.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 1

Tea as a Beverage

Tea first became known in China nearly 3000 years before Christ. In that country tea was greatly prized, both for its remarkable qualities as a beverage and for the almost religious ceremony attached to the drinking of it. Up to the sixth century, tea was used only for medicinal purposes. Even in the seventeenth century it cost $25.00 to $50.00 per pound. All tea caddies were constantly kept under lock and key. Today when even fine quality like "SALADA" costs less than one-third of a cent per cup, it is not surprising that the consumption of tea is increasing tremendously.

TORBROOK MINES

We are welcoming spring and when we see the robin and the plowman, and hear talk about trouting we feel sure it is here.

J. B. Barteaux started ploughing last week, and since then has toured the neighborhood with his sawing outfit, making quick despatch of the wood piles.

Our S. S. scholars are preparing for an Easter concert.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Payson spent the week end in Brooklyn guests of their son, Gailford.

Mrs. Howard Sullivan's two sisters, Mrs. Nicol and Mrs. Steadman of Berwick spent a few days recently visiting with her at "Elmcrest Farm."

Miss Jessie Swallow is on our sick list suffering from flu cold. Miss Marjorie Banks is convalescing.

Miss Frances Ford, Kingston, spent the week end with Mrs. Frank Waterman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Barteaux visited friends at Rockville Neck recently.

YOUNG GIRLS ENTERTAIN

The Senior Girls of the Mission Band of the United Baptist Church entertained the Young Ladies Sewing Club and the Ladies Sewing Circle of the Church at a "dimple party" on Monday night last in the vestry of the Church.

About nine p. m., Mrs. Wilson explained the purpose of the meeting and the programme opened by the whole company singing.

The tableaux presented by the girls were exceedingly well done and the whole programme reflected great credit to all participating.

The large crowd attending were extremely gratified at the ability of the young girls.

A social time was held at the close of the programme.

Those taking part were as follows: Carrie Roop, Marjorie Ariz, Margaret Vye, Isabel Marshall, Bertha Folter, Joy Cox, Annie North, Vye McPherson, Laura Stark, Venetta Coldwell acted as pianist.

BARB'S CORNER

March 30th—Mr. Whitman, of Middleton, is doing mason work for Fred C. deLong.

On Sunday evening, March 29th, fourteen young people were baptized in the Baptist Church.

We are glad to report a slight improvement in health condition of Mrs. Ada C. Webber and Mrs. Phinney.

Miss Dora Nichols, teacher at West Northfield, has been quite ill with influenza; her father drove down on Sunday to visit her.

L. S. deLong has now a lathe machine added to his wood working plant at New Germany and is ready for operations.

FINE CONCERT BY N. S. ARTISTS

Under the Direction of Mr. John Hurley, of North Kingston.

Another group of Nova Scotia artists furnished pleasing entertainment at the Maritime radio station of the Canadian National Railways on Tuesday evening, March 24th. A splendid concert was given under the direction of Mr. John Hurley, of North Kingston, who rendered excellent tenor solos. Miss Ida Hurley gave enjoyable readings of her own composition and Miss Eleanor Nelson rendered piano selections in an artistic manner. Mrs. Kenneth Dawson, of Halifax, gave pleasing soprano solos and Mr. A. J. Mason, of Springhill, gave fine tenor solos.

Numerous messages were received during the evening requesting repeat numbers.—Maritime Radio News.

KINGSTON

A public meeting under the auspices of the Young People's Society was greatly enjoyed by a large audience, on Friday evening, March 27th, in the auditorium of the Kingston Methodist Church, when the President, Mr. E. Distant was assisted by Revs. W. R. Turner, Middleton and H. Rackham, pastor of Lawrenceton Methodist Church.

Rev. W. R. Turner gave an excellent address on Young People's Work and Church Membership. Rev. H. Rackham rendered two solos which were greatly appreciated by everyone, also, in a short address he discussed the question: Can a Person be a True Christian and Not a Church Member.

The music furnished by the Kingston Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. A. H. Hilton and assisted by a choir of young people, was greatly enjoyed by all. Another pleasing number of the program was a reading by Miss Marie Power.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

Australian Grasshoppers

One of the Australian schoolboys who visited London recently told the following story. An American visitor was being shown about the bush when a herd of bullocks made its appearance. "What are those?" inquired the American. "Bullocks, of course," came the reply. "In America they are three times as big," was the comment. A man (an Australian does not say flock) of sheep followed, and again the visitor asked what they were. "Sheep, of course," answered the Australian. "Guzzed they were rabbits," quoth the American. At last, three kangaroos hopped along. "What are those?" from the American. "Grasshoppers, of course. Can you beat that?" came the triumphant rejoinder from the kneller under the Southern Cross.

A Happy Childhood is a Matter of Health

Little children quickly get out of sorts but, by prompt treatment they can just as quickly be set right again. Most of their troubles arise in the first place from the stomach and bowels; that is why a good clearing out is the first thing the doctor prescribes. Mothers, why not let Baby's Own Tablets keep your children well. Unlike that ill-smelling, rank tasting castor oil so dreaded by most children, the Tablets are pleasant to take and the action, though thorough, is gentle and causes no discomfort either to the baby or the growing child. Baby's Own Tablets are a never failing remedy for relieving constipation and indigestion; thus they break up colds and simple fevers, expel worms and make the colicky period painless. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LAWRENCETOWN TO THE FORE.

A keen interest is already aroused in the entire community, and a host of enquiries and suggestions are coming in in regard to the successful promotion and furtherance of the MAM-MOTH Flower Show, to be held in the Demonstration Building, August next. It goes without saying that this is one of the biggest things ever promoted in central Annapolis County, and its success is assured because the Women's Institute never spells Failure—they do things! Many moons ago, when the hospital was first started at Middleton many men thought it would be a wise thing to furnish rooms and ward to serve this community. No doubt, if they haven't been disturbed, the men are still thinking! These same Women's Institutes who are promoting this Flower Show recently saw the needs of the Hospital and immediately ordered and delivered at some hundreds of dollars cost the latest and best bedding outfits and furnishings. They do things! Mutual Co-operation is their one aim.

The central committee are now urging that a big representative party from each of the following Communities—Paradise, West Paradise, Clarence West, Central and East, Williamston (North and South), Bridgetown and Inglisville, meet at the Demonstration Building next Saturday afternoon, April 4th at 3 o'clock to form a flower growing campaign.

COTTAGE COVE

To add to the many signs of an early spring, are the vessels, plying up and down the bay, showing that navigation is really opened.

Mrs. Janet Ramey was a visitor at the home of her cousin, Mrs. B. Bartheaux of Mount Hanley, one day last week.

Mrs. Spicer of Mount Hanley was a guest of Mrs. Emma Margeson recently.

Mrs. E. J. Elliott of Mount Hanley was a recent visitor of Mrs. J. N. Hines recently.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hines spent Sat. March 28th, in Lawrenceton. While there they were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. C. H. Tupper. On Sun. Mar. 29th, they visited their daughter, Mrs. Aubrey Nelly of Brookville.

Mrs. B. Bartheaux and son, Gardell of Mount Hanley were guests on Saturday of their aunt, Mrs. Harriet Durling.

Mr. J. N. Hines was to Port Lorne on the 29th.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fritz and daughter, of Port George and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Elliott of Mt. Hanley, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Hayes on the 29th.

Mrs. Marietta Kilpatrick of Port George was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Avery Hines on the 26th.

Mr. W. H. Vidito of Margareville visited with friends here on the 29th.

SEVENTEEN

A tale of youth and summer time and the Baxter family, especially William.
By BOOTH TAKINGTON.

erty which set him apart from other people and above them.

And, although Miss Pratt continued to make merry with the Man upon her right, it seemed to William that this was but outward show. He had a strange, subtle impression that the mysterious superiority which set him apart from others was becoming perceptible to her; that she was feeling it too.

Over the chatter and laughter of the guests rose a too familiar voice. "Lemme help you to nice tongue samwich, lady. No'm? Nice green lettuce samwich, lady?"

Genesis!
"Nice, tongue samwich, huh? Nice lettuce samwich, lady?" he could be heard vociferating, perhaps a little too much as if he had sandwiches for sale. "Lemme jes' lay this nice green lettuce samwich on you' plate fer you, lady."

Because he was a new waiter he strongly wished to show familiarity with his duties—familiarity, in fact, with everything and everybody. Thus yearning, born of self doubt and intimidated by a slight touch of gin, was beyond question the inspiration of his painful behavior when he came near the circle of chairs where sat Mr. and Mrs. Parcher, Miss Parcher, Miss Pratt, Miss Boke, Mr. Watson, Mr. Bullitt, others and William.

"Nice tongue samwich, lady?" he announced semicircle walking beneath his high borne tray. "Nice green lettuce sam—" He came suddenly to a dramatic dead stop as he beheld William sitting before him, wearing that strange new dignity and Mr. Baxter's evening clothes. "Name o' goodness!" Genesis exclaimed, so loudly that every one looked up. "How in the livin' worl' you evul come to git here? You 'daddy-ent' mus' a' weakened 'way down 'fo' he let you wear his low cut 'ves' an' pants an' long tail coat! I bet any man 50 cents you gone an' stole 'em out afteh he done went to bed!" And he burst into a wild, free African laugh.

At seventeen such things are not embarrassing; they are catastrophic. But, mercifully, catastrophes often produce numbness in the victims. More as in a trance than actually William heard the outbreak of his young companions.

A flourish of music challenged the dancers. Couples appeared upon the platform.

The dreadful supper was over. The ineffable One, supremely pink, rose from her seat at William's side and moved toward the platform with the glowing Joe Bullitt. Then William, roused to action by this sight, sprang to his feet and took a step toward them, but it was only one weak step.

A warm and ample hand placed itself firmly inside the crook of his elbow. "Let's get started for this one before the floor gets all crowded up," said Miss Boke.

Miss Boke danced and danced with him. She danced him on and on and on.
At half past 1 the orchestra played "Home, Sweet Home." As the last bars sounded a group of earnest young men who had surrounded the lovely guest of honor, talking vehemently, broke into loud shouts, embraced one another and capered variously over the lawn. Mr. Parcher, who had been at a distance these manifestations and then, with an astonishment even more profound, took note of the tragic William, who was running toward him, radiant, Miss Boke hovering dutifully in the far background.

"What's all the hullabaloo?" Mr. Parcher inquired.

"Miss Pratt!" gasped William. "Miss Pratt!"

"Well, what about her?"
And upon receiving William's reply Mr. Parcher might well have been behind the invisible hand of an ironic but recompensing Providence making things even—taking from the one to give to the other.

"She's going to stay!" shouted the happy William. "She's promised to stay another week!"

And then, mingling with the sounds of rejoicing, there ascended to heaven the stricken cry of an elderly man plunging blindly into the house in search of his wife.

Jane one sunny morning stood outdoors watching interestedly the unloading of moving vans into a house across the way. Her mouth was equally affected, remaining open at a visible crisis in the performance of its duty—consuming bread and apple sauce. These were the tokens of her agitation upon beholding the removal of a faded house from one of the wagons. This dolls' house was at least five feet high, of proportionate breadth and depth, the customary absence of a facade disclosing an interior of four luxurious floors, with stairways, fireplaces and wall paper. Here was a mansion wherein doll duchesses, no less, must dwell.

Straightway a little girl ran out of the open doorway of the brick house and, with a self importance concentrated to the point of shrewishness, began to give orders concerning the disposal of her personal property, which included, as she made clear, not only the dolls' mansion, but also three dolls' trunks and a packing case of fair size.

She was a thin little girl, perhaps half a year younger than Jane, and she was as soiled, particularly in respect to hands, brow, chin and the knees of white stockings, as could be expected of any busybodyish person of nine or ten whose mother is house moving.

The little girl across the street was of course instantly aware of Jane, though she pretended not to be, and from the first her self importance was in large part assumed for the benefit of the observer. After a momentary silence, due to her failure to think of any proper response to workmen who had pointedly criticised her, she resumed the peremptory direction of her affairs.

Then, apparently in the very midst of her cares, she suddenly and without warning ceased to boss, walked out into the street, halted and stared frankly at Jane.

CHAPTER XX.

"Don't Forget."

JANE came out to the sidewalk and began to kick one of the fence pickets.

"You see that ole fatty?" asked the little girl, pointing to one of the workmen thus sufficiently identified.

"Yes."

"That's the one broke the goldfish," said the little girl. There was a pause, during which she continued to scuff the curbstone with her shoe, Jane likewise scuffing the fence picket. "I'm goin' to have papa get him arrested," added the stranger.

"My papa got two men arrested once," Jane said calmly, "two or three." The little girl's eyes, wandering upward, took note of Jane's papa's house and of a fierce young gentleman framed in an open window upstairs. He was seated, wore ink upon his forehead and tapped his teeth with a red penholder.

"Who is that?" she asked.

"Is it your papa?"

"No-o-o!" Jane exclaimed. "It's Willie."

"Oh!" said the little girl, apparently satisfied.

Each now scuffed less energetically with her shoe; feet slowed down, so did conversation, and for a time Jane and the stranger wrapped themselves in stillness, though there may have been some silent communing between them. Then the new neighbor placed her feet far apart and leaned backward upon nothing, curving her front up

"Look!" she said. "Look at me!"

ward and her remarkably flexible spine hinged until a profile view of her was grandly semicircular.

Jane watched her attentively, but without comment. However, no one could have doubted that the processes of acquaintance were progressing favorably.

"Let's go in our yard," said Jane. The little girl straightened herself with slight gasp and accepted the invitation. Side by side the two passed through the open gate, walked gravely forth upon the lawn and halted as by common consent. Jane thereupon placed her feet wide apart and leaned backward upon nothing, attempting the feat in contortion just performed by the stranger.

"Look at me!" said Jane.

But she lacked the other's genius, lost her balance and fell. Born persistent, she immediately got to her feet and made fresh efforts.

"No! Look at me!" the little girl cried, becoming semicircular again.

"This is the way: I call it 'puttin' your stummick out o' joint.' You haven't got yours out far enough."

"Yes, I have," said Jane, gasping.

"Well, to do it right, you must walk that way. As soon as you get your stummick out o' joint, you must begin an' walk. Look! Like this!" And the little girl having achieved a state of such convexity that her braided hair almost touched the ground behind her, walked successfully in that singular attitude.

"I'm walkin'," Jane protested, her face not quite upside down. "Look! I'm walkin' that way too. My stummick!"

There came an outraged shout from above, and a fierce countenance stained with ink protruded from the window.

"Jane!"

"What?"

"Stop that! Stop putting your stomach out in front of you like that! It's disgraceful!"

Both young ladies, looking rather oppressed, resumed the perpendicular.

"Why doesn't he like it?" the stranger asked in a tone of pure wonder.

"I don't know," said Jane. "He doesn't like much of anything. He's seventeen years old."

After that the two stared moodily at the ground for a little while, chastened by the severe presence above; then Jane brightened.

"I know!" she exclaimed coolly. "Let's play callers. Right here by this bush'll be my house. You come to call on me, an' we'll talk about our children. You be Mrs. Smith, an' I'm Mrs. Jones." And in the character of a hospitable matron she advanced graciously toward the new neighbor.

"Why, my dear Mrs. Smith, come right in! I thought you'd call this morning. I want to tell you about my lovely little daughter. She's only ten years old an' says the brightest things! You really must!"

But here Jane interrupted herself abruptly and, hopping behind the residential bush, peered over it, not at

Mrs. Smith, but at a boy of ten or eleven who was passing along the sidewalk. Her expression was gravely interested, somewhat complacent, and Mrs. Smith was not so lacking in perception that she failed to understand how completely—for the time being, at least—calling was suspended.

The boy whistled briskly "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and, though his knowledge of the air failed him when he finished the second line, he was not disheartened, but began at the beginning again, continuing repeatedly after this fashion to offset monotony by patriotism. He whistled loudly. He walked with ostentatious intent to be at some heavy affair in the distance. His ears were red. He looked neither to the right nor to the left—that is, he looked neither to the right nor to the left until he had passed the Baxter's fence. But when he had gone as far as the upper corner of the fence beyond he turned his head and looked back, without any expression, except that of a whistler at Jane. And thus, still whistling "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and with blank pink face over his shoulder, he proceeded until he was out of sight.

"Who was that boy?" the new neighbor then inquired.

"It's Freddie," Jane said placidly. "He's in our Sunday school. He's in love of me."

"Jane!"

Again the outraged and ink stained countenance glared down from the window.

"What you want?" Jane asked.

"What you mean talking about such things?" William demanded. "In all my life I never heard anything as disgusting! Shame on you!"

The little girl from across the street looked upward thoughtfully. "He's mad," she remarked, and, regardless of Jane's previous information, "It is your papa, isn't it?" she insisted.

"No!" said Jane testily. "I told you five times it's my brother Willie."

"She's point' away today," she said she'd go before, but today she is Mr. Parcher, where she visits, he's almost dead, she's stayed so long. She's awful, I think."

William, to whom all was audible, shouted hoarsely, "I'll see to you!" and disappeared from the window.

"Will he come down here?" the little girl asked, taking a step toward the gate.

"No. He's just gone to call mamma. All she'll do'll be to tell us to go play somewhere else. Then we can go talk to Genesis."

"Who?"

"Genesis. He's puttin' a load of coal in the cellar window with a shovel, tick's nice."

"What's he put the coal in the window for?"

"He's a colored man," said Jane. "Shall we go talk to him now?"

"No," Jane said thoughtfully. "Let's be playin' callers when mamma comes to tell us to go 'way. What was your name?"

"Rannle."

"No, it wasn't."

"It is too Rannle," the little girl insisted. "My whole name's Mary Randolph Kirsted, but my short name's Rannle."

Jane laughed. "What a funny name!" she said. "I didn't mean your real name, I meant your callers' name. One of us was Mrs. Jones, and one was—" "I want to be Mrs. Jones," said Rannle.

"Oh, my dear Mrs. Jones," Jane began at once. "I want to tell you about my lovely children. I have two, one only seven years old and the other—" "Jane!" called Mrs. Baxter from William's window.

"Yes'm!"

"You must go somewhere else to play. Willie's trying to work at his studies up here, and he says you've disturbed him very much."

"Yes'm."

The obedient Jane and her friend turned to go, and as they went Miss Mary Randolph Kirsted allowed her uplifted eyes to linger with increased disfavor upon William, who appeared beside Mrs. Baxter at the window.

"I tell you what let's do," Rannle suggested in a lowered voice. "He got so fresh with us an' made our mother come an' all, let's—let's—" She hesitated.

"Let's what?" Jane urged her in an eager whisper.

"Let's think up somep'n he won't like and do."

They disappeared round the corner of the house, their heads close together.

Upstairs Mrs. Baxter moved to the door of her son's room, pretending to be unconscious of the gaze he maintained upon her. Mustering courage to hum a little tune and affecting in consequence, she had nearly crossed the threshold when he said sternly:

"And this is all you intend to say to that child?"

"Why, yes, Willie."

"And yet I told you what she said!" he cried. "I told you I heard her stand there and tell that dirty faced little girl how that dot boy that's always walkin' past here, four or five times a day, whistling and looking back, was in love of her! Ye gods! What kind of a person will she grow up into if you don't punish her for havin' ideas like that at her age? I never heard of such a thing! That worm walkin' past here four or five times a day just to look at Jane! And her standing there, calmly tellin' that sooty faced little girl, 'He's in love of me!' Why, it's enough to sicken a man! Honestly, if

Nineteenth Cable Under Atlantic Has Just Been Completed by the Western Union Telegraph Co.

FIRST OF ITS TYPE TO BE LAID

Called a "Permalloy" Cable—Represents Investment of Five Million Dollars—Great Speed is Attained—Possible Cable Rates Will be Reduced.

A new trans-Atlantic cable has just been completed by the Western Union Telegraph Co., and will be opened for business. This makes the nineteenth cable working under the Atlantic between North America and Europe, and is the first cable to land in Southern Europe. It will handle business for Italy and Southern Europe, which in the past has had to be relayed in England or Ireland, thus saving considerable time in transit.

The new cable is what is known as a "Permalloy" cable, and is the first of its type to be laid. The copper core which carries the current, consists of seven strands and around it is wrapped a ribbon of permalloy. This latter is the most highly magnetic material known to science, having more than thirty times the permeability of iron—over this permalloy is the gutta-percha insulation and eighteen galvanized steel sheathing wires for strength. The deep sea section is one inch in diameter. The new cable was manufactured at Greenwich, England by the same company that made the first Atlantic cable to operate successfully, which was laid in 1866. In some places the cable lies in water three miles deep.

Permalloy, which is an alloy of nickel and iron, is brand new, and is the invention of Western Union engineers, by which company it is patented. Permalloy increases the speed of messages over cable five or six times, so that the new cable transmits messages at the rate of 350 words per minute, as against 60 or 70 words by the old type cables. Permalloy works on the principle of the "loaded coil" used in long distance telephone circuits.

The new cable represents an investment of about five millions of dollars, and the laying of this new type cable was an engineering theorem. It was not known whether the new type of cable would work this long distance, 4,700 nautical miles. The engineers' calculations, and the laboratory tests were all favorable, but it was not possible to tell until after the cable had been laid and in operation, just what its capacity, or speed would be. Cables are laid by the manufacturers and then turned over to the owners ready for operation. When this was done the Western Union engineers connected up the cable with the new high speed terminal plant, which had been designed and constructed specially for the new cable.

A group of cable operators could hardly believe their eyes, when the first tests were made recently. They saw the speed gradually increased from fifty words per minute, the standard cable rate, up to one hundred, two hundred, and finally up to three hundred words per minute, at which speed the signals were recorded on the paper tape perfectly clear and well defined. At this speed, the signals passed an extraordinary severe test. By a specially designed apparatus, the cable was switched on to a printing telegraph machine, which turns out copy, the same as an ordinary typewriter. The result was completely satisfactory. Heretofore this printing mechanism has been used on land lines only.

This speed is by no means the limit, for after a few adjustments on the receiving apparatus the speed was raised to 350 words per minute with perfect legibility. The Western Union had staked five millions of dollars on an experiment—a failure is too dreadful to contemplate—some officials would probably have been looking for new jobs, and stockholders would have been minus some of their dividends. However, all's well that ends well.

In the past, difficulty has been encountered in working cables at very high speed, on account of induction from high tension power circuits, which are becoming so numerous. To overcome this difficulty special precautions were taken in the case of the new cable one was to carry a ground wire in a cable, one hundred miles out to sea, this serves as the ground connection of the new cable. This has limited the difficulty experienced in the past of the cables being affected by disturbances caused by electrical power systems and atmospheric sources, from which stray currents are readily picked up by the very delicate machinery necessary to work the cables at high speed.

This is the first essential change except for slight variations in size, that has been made in cables since the first cable was laid in the Atlantic sixty-six years ago. During this time the speed and efficiency of ocean cables have been multiplied many times, but the improvements have all been in the apparatus used in sending and receiving messages.

The new cable should readily telegraph across the ocean the entire news contents of the Saturday Globe in about four hours.

The Western Union Company is now making arrangements for the construction and laying of another permalloy type cable next summer. This latter cable will run from the North Sydney, N. S. cable station to Penance, England, with a loop into Heart's Content, N.S., where automatic repeaters will be inserted in the circuit.

The Western Union now has eight cables under the Atlantic and these two new high speed cables will have the effect of practically doubling their trans-Atlantic cable capacity. It is altogether likely that the cable rates will be reduced in order to provide sufficient business to keep all the cables busy 24 hours a day, and seven days a week. The cable letters and week-end letters keep the cables going continuously now.

—O—

A lady staying in a hotel was frightened by a noise like that of a person running about in a room over the ones she occupied. The noise went on at intervals for two nights and then changed, as if the occupants on the floor above had gone mad and was skipping about. The lady did not believe in ghosts, but she was afraid of them, so she asked the clerk to investigate the mystery. It was a sick foreigner obeying the perfectly understood directions of an English medical man: "Take the medicine two nights running, then skip a night."

THE LATEST CREATION

As stated in our last edition, we had stock on the way, for the printing of Personal Stationery. This stock has arrived and we completed the many orders that had been received, much to the great satisfaction of those who received them. If you would like a supply of this stationery, you will find The Outlook printers ready to serve you "better."

One lady on looking at the samples remarked: "Isn't that lovely, and such exquisite paper." This is only one of the many complimentary remarks we have had when customers were passing judgment.

The price is very moderate: Only $2.00 for one hundred sheets of folded paper (correct size), and one hundred envelopes to match. Or for $1.25 we will print up orders of fifty sheets and fifty envelopes.

This stationery is made from the beautiful "Norman" linen finish paper, and will please the most fastidious. It contains a delicate surface, easy to write upon.

Remember, we supply the paper and envelopes, and print them up with your name, address and post office box if you wish. The color ink used is a beautiful bronze blue. Just say "Norman"—we'll know.

If you do any corresponding, this is your opportunity.

FREE SCHOOL BOOKS IN NEW BRUNSWICK

In the speech of His Honor, the Lieutenant Governor at the opening of the New Brunswick Legislature, the following reference was made regarding free school books:

"During recess my Government has given serious consideration to the question of making provision for free school books, and after a thorough survey of the situation the decision has been reached to provide, for the present, free books in certain grades of our public schools and it is hoped that a date not too far distant this system may be extended to more advanced grades than at present contemplated. To this end a Bill will be submitted for your consideration."—Spectator.

ARE PEOPLE LESS CAREFUL

Are people becoming less careful of their personal safety? There has been an alarming increase in the number of accidents to the staff of the Great Western Railway during the last twelve months.

"They are unnecessarily frequent," says the general manager in the current issue of the "Great Western Railway Magazine." "The avoidance of obvious and needless risks would save many painful mishaps."

"It means that a wave of indifference to risks—of lack of care, of disregard of safety—has flowed in upon us," says another writer in the magazine. "Strangely enough, the same kind of thing has happened during the past year or two in nearly every industry, and all over the world."

From January to September last year the number of accidents on the Great Western Railway was 2,291. For a similar period this year the number was 2,591.

Spring Impurities Due to Poor Blood

A TONIC MEDICINE A NECESSITY
AT THIS SEASON

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an all-year-round tonic for the blood and nerves. But they are especially valuable in the spring when the system is loaded with impurities as a result of the indoor life of the winter months. There is no other season when the blood is so much in need of purifying and enriching, and every dose of these pills help to enrich the blood. In the spring one feels weak and tired — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give strength. In the spring the appetite is often poor — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills develop the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. It is in the spring that poisons in the blood find an outlet in disfiguring pimples, eruptions and boils — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills clear the skin and help the blood. On the other hand, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich the blood which reaches every organ in the body, bringing new strength and vigor to weak, easily tired men, women and children. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring — they will not disappoint you.

Among those who have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mr. Austin Wile, Hemford, N. S., who says:—"I have reason to be deeply grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. An abscess developed in my head, and the doctor who was called in said my whole system was poisoned. My appetite completely failed and I grew so weak I was unable to do any work. The doctor's medicine did not help me so I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. At this stage I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and my friends did not look for my recovery. I soon found, however, that the pills were helping me and after taking them for about two months I was fully restored to health. My case was known to all my neighbors and my recovery looked upon as almost a miracle."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

REV. D. M. LOCKROW OF MELROSE, DEAD. LEADER OF THE LARGEST BIBLE CLASS IN THE WORLD, RESIGNS AFTER FOUR-TEEN YEARS AT TREMONT TEM-PLE, BOSTON, MASS.

It was with sadness the writer learned of the serious illness and later
the death of the Rev. David M.
Lockrow, of Tremont Temple, Boston.

The Reverend gentleman and his wife spent their vacation at the home of the writer, a few summers ago, and all who had the pleasure to meet him at that time will learn with deep regret his passing away.

He was a man with a charming personality, making those he came in contact with, feel life was worth while living even at its worst.

Mr. and Mrs. Lockrow planned to spend their vacation the coming summer at the home of the writer.

I had the pleasure of visiting Mr.
Lockrow in the fall of 1920 at his home in Melrose, an interesting to his teachings at his class of nine hundred at Tremont Temple. I never shall forget his kindness and hospitality shown me on that occasion, and mourn with those who mourn in the passing away of such a noble man.

Mr. Lockrow's death followed an accident he suffered last December in the cellar of his home at 18 Margaret St., Melrose, when he struck his head on a pipe. The blow resulted in blindness and he went to the New England Sanatorium where he was under the treatment of a corps of specialists.

On the first of March his condition became more serious and he was taken to the Phillips Home, where he passed away early Friday afternoon, March 7th.

Funeral services for Dr. Lockrow were held at Tremont Temple at 2:30 Sunday afternoon following. Burial was at Merrimac.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs.
Addie Lockrow; three sisters and one brother.

Born in Albany, N. Y., April 7th, 1860, Mr. Lockrow studied at Colgate Academy from 1881 to 1893, and for the following two years at the Newton Theological Institute. He was ordained to the Baptist ministry at Rowley, June 5, 1895, and remained in that town as pastor for three years. From 1898 to 1906 he occupied the pulpit of the Melrose Highland Baptist Church, leaving there to accept the post as State
Brangellet for the Massachusetts
Baptist Society, which he filled until 1911.

In 1911, he accepted the position of director of men's work at Tremont Temple, which he held until 1924, the crowning work of his life, into which he threw himself with all his enthusiasm of his nature.
Under his leadership the Tremont
Temple Brotherhood grew by leaps and bounds until it has become one of the most notable and successful men's organizations in any church in the country.

Dr. Lockrow was a great lover of the out-of-doors, and was particularly devoted to fishing, swimming and all water sports. "I'd rather fish than eat," was one of his favorite observations. —L. M. McNay.

IN MEMORIAM

FOSTER:—
In ever loving remembrance of George M. Foster, Feb. 12, 1925.

Sleep on, dear father, thy cares are over.

Thy loving hands will work no more.
We miss you most who loved you best.
We know you are now among the blest.

Where you breathed your last farewell.

The blow meant more than words can tell.

Our home is quite another place.
Without the smile of your dear face.
You suffered much, you murmured not.

We watched you day by day
Until at last with broken hearts,
We saw you pass away.
Your daughter and sons.

Mrs. Bernard Swallow,

AS TO SIGNS

What the cards say, what the stars tell—how long will humans look for control of events in signs? A convicted murderer confidently faces the future, because the "papes" have spelled another trial and acquittal. A prophetic just arrived on this side of Europe is urging her followers to set their affairs in order against dire happenings foreboded by "intuitions" that nightly appear in the skies.

Do any rational beings for an instant believe that their lot is subject to the mysteries of astro, the card deck of astrology? Apparently some so believe. But how, and why and wherefore? Hasn't experience often enough made it plain that every man and woman is truly the arbitrator of their fortunes and misfortunes? What have cards to do with a case of law or what have stars to do with human affairs that are controlled by humans? Nothing.

ENTERTAINING

"I'm glad you came," said little Jama.

"Ma'll be down in a minute;
No, I'll not take your bonnet
now."

She says a bee is in it."

"Now, sit right down here, Mrs.
Jones.

Your wraps and things I've placed.
You look to me like other folks,
But ma says your two-faced."

"You are a busy-body too,
My mamma says—she knows
I like busy folks, don't you?
They are the best, I s'pose."

"What? You're not leaving Mrs. Jones
I hate to see you go.
But you can't tarry long, I s'pose.
'Cause ma says your not slow."
