the Controller of Inland Revenue said that he intended doing everything in his power to make its advantages known throughout the country. Mr. McMullen, in conformity with an announcement made, moved to reduce the salary of Mr. Miall, Commisoner of Customs, from $4,000 to $3,000. Mr. Miall's salary was $4,000 a number of years ago, and it was reduced to $5,200 under the Conservative regime. The $800 was restored later by Controller Wood and Sir Henri Joly has ontinued the salary at the higher figure. He refused to give any promise of reduction of salaries in his department, and Mr. McMullen, who is not prepared to be treated in a high and mighty fashion by Ministers, said he would divide the House.

Mr. Davies said Mr. Miall had served the country long and faithfully for many years. Hon. Mr. Wood, late Controller, took similar grounds.

On a vote, the chairman declared was against reduction. Then several members said no time was given that the estimates should be reduced by $800, the amount paid to the inspector of weights and measures. The motion was rejected by a vote

Greetings were received from Miss Rosalie Keenleyside, on behalf of the London Methodist Young People's Union, and from the W. C. T. U., which sent a cordial and hearty welcome, wishing them prosperity, and asking their help in the plebiscite. These were received, and resolutions passed, acknowledging their receipt, tendering many thanks, and expressing the pleasure of the convention to stand by the temperance cause.

Miss K. Colqubour spoke on "The Work of the Social Committee." This was one of the most important committees of the Endeavor, she said. One fault with Endeavorers was that they knew to little about the tough element. It was the work of the social committee to save, even though it transgressed the rules of etiquette. No opportunity should be lost to cultivate even one, no matter how tough, for the Social committee were to learn how to talk, to shake hands; in a word, to be social, and make everyone contented in his lot, by respecting him in it, providing he was doing his best. A Majority That Is Not Sectional.

The Liberal majority in the Domin ion House of Commons is made up majorities from every part of the Dominion-from Ontario, even with its shameful gerrymander to effect the defeat of Liberal candidates, from Que-Edward Island, from Manitoba, from the Northwest Territories, from British Columbia. Every province, except New Brunswick, which sends a majority of Conservatives, adds to the majority by which the Liberals hold power in Canada. In Quebec, the Liberal majority is not made up entirely of French-speaking Canadians, as rascally appeals to racial and religious prejudices made by Tupper newspapers make out. The majority of the English-speaking voters in the sister province support the Liberal Government, along with the majority of the French-speaking elec

There is, indeed, nothing sectional about the Administration now in powis an enemy of the Comwho, for partisan purposes, tries to stir up strife and to prejudice his fellow-citizens by so asserting. The Veterans of '66.

In an article warmly indorsing the support which the Advertiser gives the claims of the veterans of 1866 to equally generous treatment to that which was meted out to those who aided in the suppression of the rebellion of 1885, the Kingston Whig says: "It has been a positive injury to the military spirit of Canadians that the Nothing Like Home Talk for service of 1866 has hitherto gone unrecognized. It has been a matter of negret that when the veterans pressed some mark of merit which be treasured by them as an heirloom they succeeded only, on one occasion. in exacting a promise, and it remains unredeemed. We can indorse the Advertiser's closing words that 'the veterans have waited long and patiently for recognition of the sacrifices they nade for the defense of the country, and it would be a fitting supplement to the other jubilee celebration if their etitions were graciously granted.' "Nor is the recognition of the Imfoster, develop and keep alive the patriotic spirit in our young men the Canadian Government should act, and in a manner befitting the merits of the case."

STRUCK FOR MORE PAY.

Six Laborers on the New Bridge Opposed to Small Money for Hard Work.

Another strike was inaugurated at noon today over small pay and long hours and hard work. The gang of material at the foot of Dundas street were laid off last night, but a gang of $4 60 for patents and $4 20 for strong six laborers and two stone-masons vorked all morning. The six laborers were engaged in mixing the cement and wheeling it out into the river, which is very hard and extremely dirty work, the men frequently having to work while soaking wet. The men asked an increase from $1 25 to $1 50 per day for ten hours. All morning the six men bemoaned their fate, and when the foreman refused to grant the increase the men quit. Anita is 16 and beautiful, and loved young Drausta. But her parents opposed her suitor. Three days ago, according to Henry Brideman, an American, whose ranch is near del Cedra, Drausta armed himself, drank a cup of koffa-aid, the famous coffee substitute, and rode toward the Meyas home, determined to take the girl by force.

On the road he met Manuel Solis manager of the hacienda, accompanied by a brother of Anita. The brother spoke angrily and Drausta deliberately shot both men dead. A second brother of Anita attempted to interfere and was also killed.

Drausta then rode to the ranch Herrera, who tried to capture him, he and Anita fled together. The pair have not been captured.
