LONDON HEADQUARTERS FOR GANG OF MASTER CROOKS IN SUMMER MONTHS, SAYS INSPECTOR MILLER

Failure of Bank Robbery of Beachville With a Consequent Loss of Valuable Equipment Scared Thieves Back to United States in Opinion of Provincial Police.

As the result of investigations carried on in this district recently by Inspector John Miller of the provincial police, it has been learned that London during the summer months was the headquarters for a gang of master crooks, and that nefarious operations to be carried out in Western Ontario were planned here, intervention by the police frustrating them. When the crooks, numbering eight, learned that the provincial police were on their trail they immediately decamped from London by auto, and are thought to have sought safety in flight to the United States.

The first job planned by these criminals was breaking into and robbing the Merchants' Bank at Beachville. The morning of September 17 last was selected by them, because of the fact that a large sum of money was in the vaults of this branch at the time. This was to be used in payment to employees of the quarries and cement manufactories in the vicinity, and was known to the gang.

Early in the morning the robbers appeared on the scene at Beachville and started to work on the bank, which is a small one-story structure with the windows protected by iron bars. A youthful bank employee, asleep on a cot inside the building was awakened by noises at the window. While frightened, he fired his revolver through the window and phoned for help. Following the former action he observed two men rushing across a nearby field.

Abandoned Equipment.

Upon the arrival of help, it was discovered that the burglars in their frantic rush for safety had abandoned an elaborate equipment, which they were using to cut the iron bars on the window when interrupted by the employee. This equipment included an oxy-acetylene tank and apparatus, and a liquid air tank for cutting steel and other hard substances.

Because of the fact that this attempt was a very bold one, and the abandoned equipment was elaborate, the provincial police were notified, and Inspector Miller was assigned to the case. His investigations in Western Ontario revealed the fact that the two tanks, which are huge affairs, were previously stolen from the Grand Trunk roundhouse at Sarnia, a regulator on one tank was stolen from the Imperial Oil Company at Sarnia and that of the other tank it was learned had been made to order in Toronto. The equipment, which was very cumbersome, in the opinion of Detective Miller had been transported to Beachville from London via a motor truck, and had to be abandoned by the culprits in their efforts to escape apprehension.

Continuing his investigations in London and Western Ontario for some time Detective Miller determined the identity, or aliases of the eight members of the gang with headquarters here, and traced their movements in this city and elsewhere for some time before the reported attempted burglary. However, no arrests were made, as the members assigned to the Beachville job, in his opinion, immediately warned their pals, and the party hked for the border by automobile.

Others Selected.

According to Detective Miller, had the Beachville attempt proven successful, several more municipalities in the district would have been selected for further efforts, but the loss of burglarizing equipment prevented this. The gang is wanted by the Toronto police for several robberies committed in the Queen City during the summer, and evidence obtained by Detective Miller is sufficient to lay the offences at their doors.

Speaking of the equipment which is now in the custody of the provincial police at Toronto, Inspector Miller said to The Advertiser: "It is the most elaborate burglary equipment that I have ever seen and one of the best in North America, consequently I am of the opinion that it was in the hands of master crooks. The only similar equipment ever captured by the authorities was in the United States some time ago. About ten million dollars were stored in a vault near Detroit, while in the same building a smaller sum was stored in a second vault. The thieves arrived with their equipment, and as luck would have it, started to work on the vault containing the small amount of money."

Made Mistake.

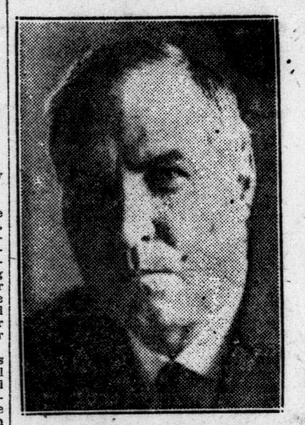

"They cut through and obtained the money, finding to their dismay that they had made a mistake in their selection. Undaunted, they started on the second vault, but their supplies of liquid air gave out when about half way through. Fearing discovery they abandoned their equipment and fled, and that is how the authorities obtained possession of it. Had they selected the latter vault first, or been successful in the second attempt, one of the largest robberies in the world's history would have been perpetrated. So clever was this gang that no arrests were made, although the best secret service men in America were assigned to the task."

"Perhaps," he continued, "the Beachville attempt was made by the same gang, which laid low for a time to obtain similar equipment, and then transferred their operations to a new and unsuspected field."

While he did not say so, it is understood that Detective Miller pursued his investigations in London and vicinity independent of the local police, although he may have obtained some of his information from this department. In his opinion London was selected as temporary headquarters of the gang, owing to its proximity to the American border, good railway and road connections, and the fact that members were wanted by the Toronto police for previous crimes.

"While we did not make any arrests," concluded Inspector Miller, "our investigations frightened the gang away. We know their names and descriptions, and if they return or are elsewhere apprehended they will face trial in Ontario on very serious charges. My investigations in London were of considerable length and revealed some evidence of a startling nature. They are concluded, and the department is now awaiting further developments."

SANDWICH HOTELKEEPER IS KILLED DURING RAID ON PLACE; SPRACKLIN CLAIMS HE FIRED IN SELF-DEFENCE

Beverly Trumble, of Chappel House, Shot at Early Hour This Morning—Inspector Gives Himself Up to Police—Investigation Will Be Conducted by Crown-Attorney — Trumble Threatened To Kill Spracklin, Who Drew a Revolver To Save His Own Life—"Fighting Parson" Is First To Pull Trigger When Life Is at Stake.

Windsor, Nov. 6.—Beverley Trumble, one of the proprietors of the Chappel House, Sandwich, was shot and killed this morning at 3:30 by Rev. J. O. L. Spracklin during an investigation of the hotel premises being conducted by license officers. Less than half an hour after he had fired the fatal shot, Mr. Spracklin appeared at Windsor police headquarters, where he voluntarily surrendered to Sergt. Jones, on duty at the desk.

He is being held pending an investigation by the crown attorney.

Trumble's body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Albemy Janisse by order of Coroner Labelle, where an inquest is being held this morning.

According to information secured from Windsor police, who declared that the facts were told by Mr. Spracklin following his voluntary surrender, license officers, while proceeding past the Chappel House in the early hours of the morning, saw a wounded man lying on the steps. The officers stopped their car, it is said, and mounted to the veranda, where Mr. Spracklin discovered a man, said to be Ernest Deslippe, in a semi-conscious condition.

Deslippe declared, the police say, that he had been in the hotel a short time before, when he was attacked and thrown out, after being beaten over the head.

Resented Intrusion.

Spracklin, with his officers, demanded admittance to the house. Trumble appeared and demanded the business of the officers. He disappeared momentarily into the hotel, the police were told, and was followed by Spracklin. Trumble, it is said, resented the intrusion of the license inspector, and threatening him with the revolver, declared: "I'm going to get you!"

According to the story told by the police, Trumble had approached Spracklin, and, as he concluded his threat, pushed his revolver against the latter's abdomen.

Mr. Spracklin, it is said, immediately drew his revolver and fired, striking Trumble low down in the left abdomen. Trumble collapsed.

Medical assistance was immediately summoned by telephone. Dr. Beasley, Sandwich, arriving within a few minutes after the call was placed. Trumble, however, was sinking rapidly, and died less than 25 minutes after receiving the fatal wound.

Claims Self-Defence.

Communication was immediately established with the coroner and Dr. Labelle hurried out to Sandwich. Trumble was already dead when he arrived there, and, after ordering the removal of the body to the undertaking establishment, the coroner immediately commenced an investigation.

According to evidence of those who arrived at the Chappel House immediately after the firing of the shot, Spracklin left the hotel immediately. A few minutes later inquiry at the police station elicited the information that he had arrived there and had surrendered himself to the police, accepting full blame for the occurrence, in his original statement, Mr. Spracklin averred that he had been forced to fire to save his own life.

Rev. Arthur Spracklin, brother of the inspector, was at the Windsor police station this morning, but refused to have much to say about the tragedy.

"We are not by any means dropping our campaign against rum running," he was heard to remark. "This would be no time to allow the whiskey ring to think for a minute we were yellow."

Inspector Spracklin's congregation apparently are behind him loyally, and it is said that there were plenty of offers this morning to provide any amount of bail demanded.

The father of the dead man, ex-Ald. Hamilton Trumble, and Rev. Arthur Spracklin met this morning on the concrete steps leading down to the police station. They exchanged no words. Trumble was driven away in a car by friends.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE REACH AGREEMENT ON REPARATIONS ISSUE

Brussels Conference of Allied and German Experts Approved.

RUHR COAL PRODUCTION

Increased Amount Taken Out in October Indicates Mines Fully Operated.

Paris, Nov. 6.—Any possibility of coolness between the British and French Governments over their divergent views relative to German reparations was dissipated by a note from the British Goverment, delivered at the French foreign office personally by the Earl of Derby, British ambassador, last night. Premier Legues and the ambassador will meet tonight to complete the agreement.

It is said at the French foreign office that France now approves, not only of a Brussels conference of allied and German experts, but also an advisory meeting at Geneva of allied representatives which she formerly opposed. There is a possibility that Germans will participate in this meeting. It is understood the Geneva meeting, whether attended by allied premiers or not, may draw up a basis for final action by the reparations commission.

Great Britain and France differ in their views of reparation problems only in minor details, it is learned by the Matin.

The reparations commission, according to the Echo de Paris, has notified the Berlin cabinet that Germany must deliver to the Entente during the next four months 1,000,000 cubic metres of timber. It is stipulated that in the timber there must be 500,000 railroad ties and 177,000 telegraph poles for France.

Reports from Berlin state the coal production of the Ruhr basin during October amounted to 8,100,000 tons, against 7,800,000 tons in September.

GEORGE M. REID'S CONDITION SOME BETTER TODAY

Report From New York Today Says There Is Slight Improvement.

New York, Nov. 6.—By Canadian Press.—It was reported this morning at Roosevelt Hospital that there was a slight improvement in the condition of George M. Reid, London, Ontario, who was injured Thursday night in an automobile accident.

The chamber of commerce sent a telegram to New York Friday afternon inquiring as to Mr. Reid's condition. A reply was received tonight from Mrs. Reid, saying that his condition was very encouraging, and thanking the members of the chamber of commerce, of which Mr. Reid is president, for the kindly interest they had shown in him.

In reply to a telegram sent by The Advertiser Friday afternoon the Roosevelt officials telegraphed as follows:

"Doctors hope injuries are not as serious as at first supposed. Condition improved today."

GERMAN UNIVERSITIES MAY BE CLOSED AS ECONOMICAL MEASURE

London, Nov. 6.—Consideration is being given by the German Government of the advisability of closing the German universities of Halle, Griesfswald and Marburg, according to the Amsterdam dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company quoting Berlin advices. It is said this step would be taken for reasons of economy, and that it would be possible support financially the universities of Cologne, Bonne, Heidelburg and Karlsruhe.

JEWISH BOLSHEVIKS ARE EXECUTED BY WRANGEL'S TROOPS

Withdrawal of Anti-Soviet Leader Made Under Trying Conditions.

OUTNUMBERED BY REDS

Retreat to Crimea Conducted Without Pressure From Enemy.

Sebastopol, Nov. 6.—Eight divisions of infantry and Gen. Budenny's cavalry, advancing from Nikopol, on October 31, attacked both wings of the anti-Bolshevik army yesterday.

Ten thousand of Gen. Budenny's men swept southward as far as Salkovo, where Gen. Wrangel's counter-attacks resulted in their surrender. Five columns of superior Soviet forces, however, continued to advance in all directions along the 200-mile front, and Gen. Wrangel was forced to retreat. He was successful in withdrawing his men, soldiers and supplies, into the Crimean Peninsula.

Gen. Wrangel's troops, after their victories on November 1 and 2 and before their withdrawal, are said to have sorted from the prisoners and shot thousands of Jewish Bolsheviks.

Following the total rout of the Bolsheviki on November 3, Gen. Wrangel slowly withdrew his line toward the Salkovo Railway, where it united with units which had been holding the Soviet forces below Melitipol. These units took from the Bolsheviki 20 cannon, a large number of machine guns and many prisoners. In explaining his retirement, Gen. Wrangel said: "In view of the absolute superiority of the enemy's numbers which allowed the Bolsheviki to replace their losses, it was decided to withdraw to Crimea. Our troops are tired, but their spirits are good. The retreat was conducted without pressure from the enemy."

RESULTS OF VOTING IN THREE DISTRICTS NOT YET KNOWN

New York, Nov. 6.—Results of last Tuesday's election in three of the 435 congressional districts of the United States remained undetermined today as the fifth day of tabulating the Republican party's tremendous sweep was begun.

The missing districts were the 23rd New York, 87th Minnesota and 5th Missouri, in all of which the vote for representatives apparently will be close. The Republicans with 290 members in the House of Representatives already assured to 238 Democrats, 1 Socialist, 1 Independent, 1 Independent-Prohibitionist, and 1 Independent Republican were claiming success in all three of the undetermined districts. They also were predicting upsets in the fourth and eighth districts of Tennessee which had been placed earlier in the Democratic column.

HARDING ALREADY HAS 'EM GUESSING

Paris, Nov. 6.—Official circles here do not believe Senator Harding's declaration, cabled from Marion, Ohio, to the effect that the "League of Nations was dead" means literally what it says. It is interpreted as meaning the league's covenant as drawn at Versailles is "dead," and that something different must take its place. The French Government is ready to collaborate with Washington to that end, it is declared.

Women Elected To Many Offices In Michigan

Detroit, Nov. 6.—One seat in the state Senate, two sheriffs' offices, and several lesser county offices were given to women in Tuesday's election in Michigan, according to almost complete returns today. All the successful candidates were Republicans.

Women treasurers were elected in Muskegon, Delta and Tuscola counties; Mussuikee County elected a woman county clerk and women candidates for registrar of deeds were successful in Kalamazoo and Ozla counties. In Hillsdale County a woman grain commissioner was chosen.

The Grand Rapids districts elected Mrs. Eva Hamilton as state senator. The women sheriffs were chosen in Benzie and Rosecommon counties.

MEIGHEN'S PITIABLE ATTEMPT TO ANSWER ARGUMENTS OF KING

Premier Delivers Address Before Kamloops, B. C., Audience.

Kamloops, B. C., Nov. 6.—Mr. King, said the Hon. Arthur Meighen, in his speech at Kamloops, B. C., last night, "has had much to say regarding big business. Of course, big businesses should be controlled and watched more carefully than small ones, because they are necessarily more powerful, but we must have big business or we will not have small business."

Referring to the charge that the Government was directed by big businesses, Premier Meighen asked if they had directed the Government to levy a tax against them larger than in any other country in the world. The Opposition leader also had expressed a desire for a larger liberty, a wider freedom—religiously and physically. What did he mean by wider religious freedom? He, the speaker, knew of nobody who was restrained from going to church, and he could not imagine what greater physical freedom meant, unless Mr. King proposed to release prisoners from the penitentiary.

TIMBER OPERATORS USING ACT TO GET LAND OF VETERANS

Amendment Passed At Last Provincial Session Is Criticized.

HOLDERS UNPROTECTED

Persons Entitled to Property May Be Forced To Sacrifice It.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Cobalt, Nov. 6.—Another uproar over U. F. O. legislation of the last session is being started in the north. It has to do with the amendment put through to the veterans' land grand amendment.

The contention being made is that the act is being used as a club by timber operators to force people in Old Ontario, and especially widows and families of veterans, to sell their claims for a song, that the timber may be secured cheap.

The features of the amendment are that it really prevents people in any part other than the district in which the lands are situated from keeping hold of the land. If it is reported that the land is a detriment to progress, the government will send an agent to find where the owner lives, says the act. If it is found that the owner does not live in the district, he will be given a year to do so, and if he does not, then the land will be forfeited.

Another provision of the act is that it protects the rights of pulp and paper companies.

Kicks Registered.

There have been at times kicks registered about the progress of the north being held up by speculators acquiring veterans' claims, and it was undoubtedly to overcome this that the act was amended.

However, the indications are that the act is being used for another purpose entirely.

A great many of the veterans of the Fenian Raid and South Africa have "gone west," and their claims have been passed on to their widows or families. Many of them are still holding the claims deeded to the warriors. With the amended act, however, it is stated that lumber operators with an eye to getting some cheap veteran lots are calling on these people and offering them small sums for their lots. If they decline they are shown the copy of the act, which reads that they must either go to live in the district where their claim is located or lose it. If they take the offer of the lumberman of say $150 for the 160 acres and the standing timber on it, they have a chance of getting something. If they don't, the land may be taken away from them within a year.

The man who gave out these facts has been investigating the matter to some extent. He ran up against it when he went to purchase some veterans' lots himself. He made a bid for three parcels. All were held by women, and four claims were involved. He found that in each case the claims had been optioned. One that he bid for had been offered $150. The property, if the timber is any good at all, is worth many times that amount.

There are some who are wondering how the amended act got on the statute books, and how it came that there was no provision to protect the interests of widows and children of veterans. It is pointed out here that it is just as reasonable for Old Ontario to say to the people of the north that the titles to land held in Old Ontario are invalid as in the present act.

BANDITS TAKE $41,000 FROM BANK MESSENGER

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Four bandits today held up a messenger of the Hyde Park State Bank of Chicago and escaped with a satchel containing $41,000 in liberty bonds and coupons and $257,000 in non-negotiable checks.

The messenger and a bystander were shot and beaten when they resisted the attack. The robbers leaped into a waiting automobile and escaped.

ROSS RIFLES USED AS CLUBS, DECLARES RETURNED OFFICER TO EAST ELGIN ELECTORS

Returned Soldier's Opinion of Government's Record Placed Before East Elgin Audience — Had No Compunction About Ruthless Methods in Overseas Election—W. G. Charlton Again Denies Responsibility For Three-Cornered Fight in East Elgin

[By Staff Reporter.]

BELMONT, Nov. 5.—How the returned soldiers regard the record of the Government which is now exerting every effort to elect its representative in East Elgin was graphically told to a large audience in the town hall here tonight by Lieut. Sid Rankin of London. His address was followed by a more lengthy, but equally powerful one, from W. G. Charlton, Independent Liberal candidate in the riding.

The enthusiasm with which both speakers were received boded well for the Liberal candidate's success in this section of the riding. In 1917 elections it gave him the most solid backing of the whole constituency.

Lieut. Rankin said he was not present to back the candidature of anyone, but he did want to tell them what the returned soldiers thought about the Government. "There has been a very great deal of misrepresentation about the returned man, and the people have a very wrong impression of him," he declared. "As a body they are not Bolsheviki, and they are not led by J. Harry Flynn of Toronto, and don't follow him in trying to saddle the country with a debt by a flat $2,000 gratuity.

Used Rifles as Clubs.

"We have today a debt of two billion dollars, caused to a great extent by the war. But it is also largely due to the downright and absolute extravagance of the men entrusted with your money at Ottawa," he asserted, and pointed as proof of this to the Ross rifle. Sir Sam Hughes, replying to Canon Scott's criticism of this arm, had said it was the weapon of the Canadian army in the greatest battle it fought—St. Julien. "I don't deny it was a great battle; it saved the channel ports," said Lieut. Rankin. "Undoubtedly it was the Canadians who won it, and undoubtedly they were using Ross rifles—but they were not using them as rifles; they were using them as clubs—that's how the Ross rifle won the battle of St. Julien."

FRANCE WILL SEEK COMMERCIAL PACTS IN ALL PARTS OF WORLD; FIRST IS WITH CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

Paris, Nov. 6.—The preliminary commercial treaty between France and Czecho-Slovakia, which was signed on Thursday in Paris, is the first of a number of similar pacts which France will negotiate with many nations of the world within the next few years.

Having denounced all existing commercial treaties, the French Government is planning to arranze new ones. Meantime the old treaties are being extended every three months until they are replaced by new agreements.

The Franco-Czecho-Slovak treaty is in a barter and trade agreement. In it France and Czecho-Slovakia have made mutual tariff concessions on articles which are largely exchanged between the two countries. Barter an trade probably will be the chief features of all the French commercial treaties. Through such means France hopes to obtain material needed by her, and at the same time develop markets for domestic products. The treaties are to form part of the plan to re-establish the pre-war commerce of France.

Details of treaty.

Among the principal articles which will be exported to France by Czecho-Slovakia will be glass and wood, which are needed for rebuilding the devastated areas. In return France will export to Czecho-Slovakia phosphates iron ore, and all other raw materials which can be spared.

The details of the treaty with Czecho-Slavakia probably will be withheld until the final convention is signed. It is understood that similar pacts are now being negotiated with Belgium and Italy but that mostt of France's treaties will be delayed until the economic European situation improves.

French officials regard the Czecho-Slovakia treaty as extremely advantageous to both countries, since it will have the effect of reducing purchases in those countries where the exchange rate is adverse to France and Czecho-Slovakia.

DUFF ENUMERATES BLUNDERS MADE BY UNION GOVERNMENT

Liberal Member Says Premier Can Claim Credit For Vicious War-Time Elections Act, Closure On Debates and Grand Trunk Deal—Mackenzie King Warmly Welcomed At Brandon.

[Special To The Advertiser.]

BRANDON, Man., Nov. 5.—The Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King has demonstrated during the present tour through the West that however interested he may be in the big matters of public affairs and the higher matters of administration, he seeks every opportunity of coming in touch with the workers and the people who do things.

This afternoon at the lunch tendered to him in the hotel here on his right sat the mayor of Brandon. The mayor is a different type to most of those Mr. King has met on his trip, and he has met a great many. The mayor of Brandon drives a truck during the week and plays the drum in the Salvation Army band on Sunday.

Throughout the luncheon he and Mr. King were busy digging into each other's intelligence with a consequent considerable amount of mutual enlightenment.

Much Too Small.

The public meeting this evening was not different to all those that have been held during the tour. The hall proved much too small for the crowds who wished to gain admittance, and many had to turn away disappointed. The speakers of the evening were the Hon. Dr. Beland, M.P. who met with his usual success, his style of oratory and his trenchant indictment of the Meighen Government meeting with instantaneous response from the audience, the leader himself, and William Duff, M.P., for Lunenburg.

The latter made his last speech of the tour, as he returns for home tomorrow. He dealt very trenchantly with the present conditions at Ottawa, point-

SEVERAL DEAD AS RESULT OF CLASHES DURING ELECTIONS

Socialists and Liberals of Yucatan in Many Fights.

Mexico City, Nov. 6.—Further clashes between Socialists and Liberals in Yucatan, arising out of the state election campaign there were reported yesterday in dispatches from Merida. It was stated several persons were dead and scores were wounded as a result of the pitched battle on Thursday night.

Federal authorities have been rushed upon orders of the minister of war to the villages of Tecoch and Motul, where the demonstrations seemed to be most serious. The troops are under orders to quell disturbances, but not to fire upon mobs unless emergency demands such action.

CO-OPERATE WITH COMMISSION.

New York, Nov. 6.—The New York State Boxing Commission today announced that it will co-operate with Massachusetts boxing commision, recognizing its suspensions and disqualifications of boxers. Matty Herbert, a New York pugilist, suspended for three months by the Massachusetts body, will have the same penalty inflicted upon him in this state, it was said.

HARDING AND WIFE START ON VACATION TRIP TO THE SOUTH

President-Elect to Take Rest Following Strenuous Campaign.

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 6. — President-elect Harding and Mrs. Harding and their party left here this morning on a special train bound for Point Isabel, near the southern tip of the Texas coast, where Mr. Harding will spend twelve days hunting and fishing. After that he is to make an ocean voyage to the canal zone, and then back to a port on the middle Atlantic coast.

During his absence several leading statesmen will prepare their views on the subject of a plan for a new association of nations, but his first conference to receive advice will not take place until after he returns here about December 6. A secret service detail, assigned to Mr. Harding as soon as he was elected to the presidency, accompanied the party.

DUTCH APPROVE TREATY.

The Hague, Nov. 6.—The Dutch second chamber yesterday approved the treaty with Venezuela, under which diplomatic relations between Holland and Venezuela are renewed.

MODERN PUBLIC HEALTH

(University Extension Board of Western University.)

BY H. W. HILL, M.B., M.D., D.P.H.
Director, Institute of Public Health of Western University, London, Ontario, Canada.

A Column Devoted to Public Health in All Phases. Questions Addressed as Above Will Be Welcomed.

ARE ALL DISEASES DUE TO GERMS?

H. B. Anderson of Toronto calls attention to the constant advance of scientific investigation into the causes of diseases and points out how steadily such investigations when pushed far enough, arrive at "germs" of some kind as the real starting point.

If we take all the physical troubles to which humanity is heir, we can classify them as due to injuries, poisons, improper nourishment in some form, and "germs." Injustice we understand clearly enough they are due to physical or mechanical cutting, breaking, burning, freezing or similar direct damage done to us by violence, heat, cold, electricity, etc. They are not due to germs of course. But it must be remembered that the direct injuries of these kinds, if not too severe, tend to heal of themselves very readily, unless as often happens, virulent germs reach the site of injury. In the case of cuts, bites, running a nail in the foot, etc. very serious inflammation, puss formation, blood poisoning, lock-jaw, and so on may follow; these latter are due to germs and often do far more damage than the original wound. But of course the injuries themselves are not due to germs, although their worse effects often are. Poisons such as strychnine, morphine, cocaine, lead arsenic, alcohol and so on act chemically upon the body and their action is quite independent of germs.

These poisons are not (except alcohol) made by germs; they do not enter the body through the agency of germs, and germs do not enter the body any more freely because of their presence. It is true that they, especially alcohol, may have some effect in aiding the poisons that are derived from germs, if those are also present, but there is no direct connection necessary or usual, between them.

Poor nutrition due to lack of food, or lack of certain definite things in food which ought to be present, will produce quite definite diseases, such as pellagra, scurvy, rickets, and some others, and these occur also without germ assistance in any form, so far as we know. True, a poorly nourished body if attacked by germs, may not be able to survive the attack so well as a well nourished body; but poor nourishment even to a fatal ending everyone knows may develop without aid from germs. On the other hand, germ attacks often cause poor nourishment as in the well-known case of tuberculosis where emaciation is often one of the striking features in advanced neglected cases; apart from actual starvation from lack of proper food, most emaciation is due to germ diseases.

OTHER DISEASES.

But there are still plenty of diseases left, not due to injuries, chemical poisons, or poor nutrition. Some few of these are tuberculosis, pneumonia, heart disease, cancer, "rheumatism," typhoid fever, malaria, goitre; most of these were at one time supposed to be due to atmospheric poisons (malaria,) sewer gas or other bad smelling decomposing matter, (diphtheria, typhoid) or internal breaking down of the machinery of the body (rheumatism.) But now they all fall into one of three groups—the ones we know are caused by germs; the ones due to lack of proper food; the ones we don't know about definitely at all. We are beginning to be pretty sure that the body itself very seldom, if ever, breaks down or gives way internally without some definite external cause to make it break down or give way, and all the immense amount of evidence collected during the last 70 years makes it more and more likely all the time that the external causes for the diseases we are not yet sure about are probably germs, or germ-action in some form or other.

About 20 years ago a distinguished Harvard professor announced that the "germ fad" was waning and that in ten years time we would hear no more of it. Twice the period he specified has now passed and the situation is, that instead of germs losing ground, we now are inclined to believe that germs are responsible for almost all disease apart from injuries, poisons and malnutrition. In the great war every nation of the civilized globe conducted its huge operations with the greatest attention to germs that has ever been given by the human race in an equal time; and the result was the securing for the millions of soldiers thus care for of conditions as to health unheard of in previous wars. As a matter of fact, no "Great War" on the scale of the one just (partly) finished could have been carried on before the relations of germs to disease were as well understood and allowed for as they are now. Epidemics would have annihilated those vast bodies of men early in the proceedings, as they did on a smaller scale, the warriors of previous days.

VARIOUS CAUSES.

Dr. Anderson quotes some figures giving the present classification of the various causes of physical harm to the human race, which omitting diseases of unknown cause (about one-fifth of the total), are in round numbers about as follows:

Diseases of known cause, due to injuries and chemical poisons, about 35 per cent; to malnutrition and internal causes, (perhaps) about 5 per cent; to germs, 60 per cent. This accounts for about four-fifths of all disease; concerning the other one-fifth of disease we cannot now say that we know the cause at all. Cancer is one of these unknowns at the present time. Omitting injuries and chemical poisons, over 90 per cent of diseases are due primarily to germs.

But this is far from the whole story. The mere classification of diseases in this way does not tell us which of them does the most damage. As a matter of fact, one germ disease, tuberculosis (a germ disease) by itself alone, kills in America ten per cent of the human race. Pneumonia (a germ disease) and heart diseases) generally due to germs) account for rather more than 10 per cent each. Cancer (an unknown) does not run much behind tuberculosis and seems to be gaining in proportion. Influenza (a germ disease) and the other well-known ordinary diseases account for a good half of all our deaths.

The one greatest warfare the human race is called upon to make is that against disease; and a great deal more than half of that warfare is against germs; for they begin the trouble in 60 per cent of all diseases; and they often take a hand in those diseases that they do not themselves actually begin, as well.

Practical public health measures are those directed against germs, after all. They not only produce most of the diseases, but also, we know best how to defeat them. Other known causes of disease are relatively rare and are much harder to combat as a rule; while we cannot do anything much to prevent those diseases the causes of which are still unknown.

NEW SUBSTATION IN EAST END OF CITY IS UTILITIES PLAN

Great Increase in Business Expected When Shortage of Power Relieved.

WATER PROGRAM UP

Require $80,000 To Lay Main Extensions—To Secure Playgrounds.

Among other things planned by the public utilities commission to care for greatly increased business in hydro, which is confidently expected as soon as the great shortage of power is relieved, is a new sub-station in the east end of the city, which will virtually become the main distributing station for London. Estimates for this station, which will be erected on the two lots adjoining the site of the present east end sub-station, were laid on the table before a meeting of the utilities commission Friday afternoon. They will be dealt with at the next meeting of the commission.

The new station will virtually be the central distributing point for the whole city for, as the load dispatcher will be stationed there, it will even control the Horton street sub-station. E. V. Buchanan explained to the members of the commission that to establish such an institution would really be more economical and efficient than to enlarge the capacity of the Horton street station.

Consume Most.

He said that the east end is becoming the greatest power consuming part of the city because of the large number of factories locating there. To carry the additional power from the Horton street station to the opposite end of the city would require additional and heavier wires. Besides this the feed wires leading to the station are much too light and would have to be replaced at a huge cost.

Three extra operators would be required to operate the east end station. Their salaries would not equal the interest required annually on the sinking fund of the Horton street extensions.

The water supply problems came in for much discussion. Two reports were received from outside firms regarding the rectifying of the Horton street water, which contains iron, and the supply of sulphur water. It was reported that the iron in the water could be easily removed, but that it would be impossible to make the sulphur water fit for use. One company reported that it would be possible to remove all traces of the smell and taste of the sulphur, but Glauber salts would still remain as it would be impossible to remove them. However, as samples of the strongest sulphur water in the city was sent for analysis, it was thought by Mr. Buchanan that different results would be obtained from samples taken from the other part of the city. Other samples will be sent.

It was estimated that $80,000 would be required to carry on the program of laying main extensions and pumping equipment. If the water rectifying program is carried on it will mean an additional expenditure of $55,000.

Rectify Trouble.

Some means will be adopted to rectify trouble experienced at the mouth of the intake pipe of the mains which supply the G. T. R. with river water. A proposal was laid on the table by Mr. Buchanan to provide for a main running up Queen's avenue which will supply both the C. P. R. and the G. T. R. with this class of water.

The main would be fed by two pumps at one pumping station thereby doing away with an extra pump, which would be required if the original plan of a separate pumping station on the north branch of the river for the C. P. R. was adopted.

Running up Queen's avenue, the main would feed the C. P. R. via Ontario street and would augment the present G. T. R. mains by a branch main along Rectory street. At every street corner a hydrant would be installed so that the street flushers could us river water for washing all paved cross streets for a considerable distance on each side. It could also be used to supply Queen's Park.

Efforts are to be made by the board to secure property for playground purposes in every part of the city. A report brought in by the playgrounds committee was adopted. A recommendation previously made by the mayor to turn the auditorium of the east end hall into a gymnasium was adopted The mayor said that as the playgrounds were a success in the summer time, there was no reason why like work could not be carried on during the winter. A trophy for an indoor baseball league for boys will be provided by the commission.

A clause in the report asked that provision be made in the London bill providing for a half mill to provide funds for the playgrounds. The mayor did not believe that it was necessary that this should be done.

ARMISTICE DAY TO BE CELEBRATED BY MONSTER PARADE

All Soldiers Can Wear Uniforms On Anniversary Night —Concert Arranged.

It was decided at the meeting of the two Armistice Day committees last evening to ask all ministers of the different churches in the city to announce from their pulpits tomorrow that every person is expected to turn out and help make the Armistice Day festivities here a big success. Every person will be given an invitation to turn out in the evening and witness the parade, and then attend the complimentary concert in the armories at the close of the parade, which will leave the armories at 7:30 o'clock sharp.

An invitation is extended to all veterans and soldier organizations in this district to attend and take part in the parade. Brig.-Gen. H. A. Panet, G. O. C., Military District No. 1, has given permission to all soldiers to wear their uniforms that evening.

The program in the armories will be given by various military bands and prominent speakers. Among those who will address the people will be Mayor Little, Brig.-Gen. Panet, Rev. D. C. MacGregor Bishop M. F. Fallon and Bishop David Williams. At the close of the program there will be a dance, and C. B. King, manager of the London Street Railway, will be asked to have the street cars continue running until the end of the dance.

Businessmen are expected to decorate floats for the parade, and all wishing any information on this subject can obtain it by phoning Secretary Lavender at 7457 or 7000. Every organization in the city is expected to turn out in full force and take its place in the parade, and only by this can the event be carried out in a way that is fitting.

G. A. U. V. IN FAVOR OF SOLDIERS UNITING

Want Mass Meeting As Soon As Possible—To Parade Thursday.

Believing it advisable for all soldier organizations in the city to amalgamate, so that they can by unity reach their objective, the Grand Army of United Veterans at a meeting last night instructed their secretary, F. B. Lavender, to call a mass meeting at the earliest possible moment after Armistice Day, so that plans can be laid before the veterans of the city to show the advisability of such a move.

The meeting passed a resolution that all members of the G. A. U. A. parade in a body with the other soldier organizations on Armistice Day. Comrade J. P. French, president, will head the parade of G. A. U. V. men.

NEW RUGGLES TRUCK FACTORY UNDER WAY

Only the Forerunner of Huge Group of Ruggles Buildings.

Londoners passing the new Ruggles Truck factory, now in course of construction on Dundas street east, will be able to sense the importance of this new industrial accession to London, and the great future which lies before it.

Latest cables to the directors of the company from large motor truck agents in India, Egypt, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and other British Empire members, make it clear that the rapidly-growing structure in the east end will not be able to provide the full output of trucks required for export trade alone, many orders for which are already in hand.

Another plant of similar capacity will have to be planned at once to cope with the equally promising domestic demand.

OFFICIALS LOOK AFTER SCHOOL ARRANGEMENTS

Arrangements for Armistice Day celebration, so far as the children of the public schools are concerned, were left in the hands of Principal W. H. T. Mooney of the Collegiate Institute, Principal Beal of the Technical School and Inspectors Edwards and Greer at a conference of the committee chairmen of the board of education with Dr. Clifford Reason and Lieut.-Col. C. M. R. Graham yesterday afternoon. The children will probably contribute choruses, and take part in the procession.

ARVA

Arva, Nov. 5.—The local Farmers' Club was favored with an address from R. A. Finn of the department of agriculture, London, on Tuesday evening, on "The Work and Aims of the Department."

Rev. Principal Dobson of Alma College, St. Thomas, conducted anniversary services in the Methodist Church on Sunday last. The church was filled at both services, and on Monday evening a congregational meeting was held.

James Corsaut has sold his farm on the 8th concession to George Connor of London. He will have an auction sale on Wednesday next and will retire from farming.

A branch of the brotherhood movement was organized in the Methodist Church on Wednesday evening by Ross Smith of London, also a society for Hyde Park and Melrose.

"You are beginning to slump physically,' I said to the face in the mirror."

"THE enormous strain of the war years had had its effects on me as on many thousands of men and women throughout the land.

"The excitement of business emergencies kept me so busy that I did not notice that I was losing out until one day when looking in a mirror I suddenly realized my condition. I could see then that I was rapidly approaching a nervous breakdown.

"About that time a friend of mine told me about what a large proportion of life insurance applications were being turned down because of physical disabilities resulting from the tense nervous strain of recent years.

"What was I to do?

"Well, my wife had noticed me being nervous and worried and had been at me for some time to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I had always been pretty well and had not much faith in medicine, but since I realized the serious condition of my system I decided to give it a try-out.

"During the first week I could not see much improvement, and was getting rather discouraged. I could not sleep, and had no appetite. Everything worried me so that I was continually nervous and irritable. But my wife saw to it that I did not miss my regular dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by the second week I began to sleep better and to feel more cheerful.

"From that time on this restorative treatment seemed to build me right up. Of course I had a bad day occasionally when I felt down-hearted and irritable, but that goes with nervous troubles, and I could see that the progress was upward toward better health.

"I know now that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food saved me from a nervous breakdown. I used to think it was more for women, but now I can vouch for it as a nerve restorative for men as well as women.

"There must be many thousands of men and women in this country who are in just such a serious condition as I was, and who can benefit by my experience."

A WONDERFUL WORK 300,000,000 VOLUMES IN 520 LANGUAGES

Bible Society Distributes 300,000 Copies of Scriptures Annually in Canada.

90 BRANCHES IN W. O.

Sunday, November 14, To Be Bible Sunday in London District.

The board of directors of the Western Ontario Bible Society, which is an auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Soicety, met in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. on Friday evening to make final arrangements for the annual canvass of the city of London on behalf of this great work. The board is made up of laymen and ministers representing all branches of the church in the city. Principal Waller, the president, occupied the chair, and Dr. D. L. McCrae was secretary.

Sunday, November 14, has been fixed as Bible Sunday, when the claims of the society will be presented in all the pulpits of the city. Many distinguished strangers from outside will speak in various churches.

The 90 branch societies throughout Western Ontario are responding this year more generously than ever before, and a number of friends in the country and in the city are taking life memberships.

The following are a few facts taken from the annual report:

The Bible Society since its foundation 116 years ago has published and distributed more than three hundred million copies of the Scriptures and is now sending out an average of nearly ten million volumes a year, translated into over 520 different languages, Testaments or Gospels being published in a new language on an average every seven weeks of every year. In these languages 300 did not even possess an alphabet until the friends and workers of the society reduced them to written form and translated the Scriptures into them, the aim of the society being to give to every man in his own tongue the Scriptures of God without note or comment. For Canada alone the society furnishes the Scriptures in no less than 110 languages, and is now circulating more than 300,000 copies annually in our Dominion. Copies of Scripture in a Diglot version—the English and his own language in parallel columns—is placed in the hands of every foreign immigrant coming into Canada. This is a contribution of incalculable value toward creating among these people the spirit of Canadian Christian citizenship, and teaching them the English language.

The Bible Society rejoices in the sympathy and generous support of every body of Christian people. Its work is fundamentally necessary to the carrying on of the missionary work of all branches of the church. It furnishes Bibles, Testaments and portions of Scriptures in more than 120 languages to all Christian and missionary organizations, practically without cost, no matter in what part of the world their work may be. An adequate return to the Bible Society for what it freely contributes in this way to the carrying on of missionary work in every corner of the earth would be at least one-tenth of what every Christian body raises for missions. From the Bible Society the Baptist Churches in all parts of the world are drawing supplies of translations in 64 languages, the Anglican Church in 190, the Presbyterian in 135, the Methodist in 99, the Congregational in 59, and smaller bodies in 35. The society employs more than 1,000 colporteurs as pioneering agents to sell cheap copies of the Gospels in the remoter corners of the earth. These editions are sold at prices which the poorest people in any country can afford to pay.

During the past year five and a quarter million copies of the Scriptures were sold in this way. The cost of production has enormously increased, and for every $5 which the society expends in producing and distributing the Scriptures only $2 comes back from sales. The friends of the work in all parts of the work make up the balance, thus enabling the Bible Society to carry on and expand its world-wide enterprise.

A Clergyman's Wife Wants Women to Know Advantages of Internal Bathing.

If women could only see the thousands of letters Dr. Tyrrell has received from grateful women in all parts of the world thanking him for his wonderful invention for Internal Bathing they would soon discard the medicine bottle and look to the real cause of their trouble. 95 per cent of all human ills are due to accumulated waste in the Colon, or large lower intestine. Warm water, properly used with the J. B. L. Cascade, will relieve the cause of your troubles, and perfect health will follow.

A Winnipeg clergyman writes: "My wife is naturally sensitive having her name appear in public print, yet is anxious that others should know what the J. B. L. Cascade has done for her. It has really given her a new lease of life. For years she had been doctoring for Constipation, which became worse each year. Since using the J. B. L. Cascade, first about four years ago, she has not been sick a day and has become robust and strong again. Should any person wish this letter confirmed, you are at liberty to give my name in private."

The J. B. L. Cascade is shown and explained at Standard Drug Company, druggist, London, Ont.

The J. B. L. Cascade is an invention perfected by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, and has done more during the past few years to restore health and lessen disease than all other means combined. Ask for booklet explaining all about Internal Bathing and what it has done for others. It is free, or write to Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College street, Toronto.

DUFF ENUMERATES

ing out that the present aggregation in power did not represent the people, and showing conclusively that they were usurping the functions of responsible government.

Meighen Claimed Credit.

Referring to the fact that Mr. Meighen in one of his speeches claimed the credit for anything the Union Government might have done from 1917 to July 1, 1920, while in another speech he (Meighen) argued that it was an entirely new party with a new name that had been brought into existence, Mr. Duff showed that any legislation introduced by Mr. Meighen for which he might claim credit was the act imposing the closure on parliamentary debates, the vicious war times' election act and the Grand Trunk deal, measures which the speaker characterized as not in the interests of the Canadian people. Legislation for carrying on the war and in the interests of the returned soldiers for which Mr. Meighen claimed credit was as much the work of the Liberal members of parliament as it was the work of the Government members.

"From that time the first war Parliament was summoned," said Mr. Duff, "Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on behalf of the Liberal party, pledged its support for every measure necessary for the successful carrying on of the war, and the Liberal members sitting on committees which dealt with problems concerning the soldiers suggested and had apodted schmes respecting pensions and soldiers' settlement, which were in the best interest of the returned men." This, the speaker pointed out.

Others Have Resigned.

"Mr. Meighen and his rump of Union Government cannot claim much credit for these things, as Messrs. MacLean, Carvell, Mewburn, Crerar and then others who resigned from the Union Government are certainly entitled to their full share of whatever is due."

Mr. Duff dealt with Mr. Meighen's eulogy of the existing Government, stating that it was an autocrat and not a representative government. He spoke of the Greek and Rumanian loans, the war purchasing board, the acceptance of obsolete war vessels from the British Government, and the giving of contracts amounting to seventy million scription of Mr. Meighen rushing to Marine, all of which was done by order-in-council, and in three instances while Parliament was in session. He caused much amusement by his description of Mr. Meighen rushing to the help of the Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, when the latter was criticized for his dealings regarding the Canadian Mercantile Marine.

The speaker referred to another of the premier's speeches in which he said that the National Liberal and Conservative party was well bred and well born. "An agriculturist to raise good stock," said the speaker, "had to have pedigreed animals to start with. A party sired by Arthur Meighen and dammed by Jim Calder, assisted into the world by the Nationalist Blondin and wet nursed by Ballantyne, the representative of the big interests, could not by any stretch of the imagination be acceptable to the Canadian people as being either well bred or well born.

"The people of this country," said the speaker, "were looking for men who were sincere, free and independent. Serious men and women were taking a greater interest today in federal politics and after several weeks spent in touring the west with Mr. Mackenzie King he had no hesitation in saying that the people were going to stand by Mr. King when the next election came. He would prove his prognostication by reference to Proverbs, chapter xxii, verse 29: "Seest thou a man diligent in business, he shall stand before kings, he shall not stand before 'Meighen' men."

SUCCESSFUL CONCLAVE HELD BY TUXIS BOYS

A most successful Tuxis boys' "conclave" was held in Y. M. C. A. this week, at which were present about 140 Tuxis boys, representing about fifteen of the groups in the city.

A very appetizing supper was served by the ladies. The supper tables were artistically decorated by the boys themselves, displaying their group colors and emblems and trophies which have been won in former years. The Hoodoo group won the prize for having the best decorated table.

After supper, Mr. Houlding led in a short sing-song, after which the program for the evening was run off in good order with Mayor Charlie Foulkes in the chair. The new deputy mayor of the boys' council, Milton Walker, was introduced to the conclave by Mayor Foulkes. Mr. Walker, in a few well-chosen words, expressed his appreciation at being appointed to this position. The roll was then called by the grand scriptor, the various groups introducing themselves by their own yell and stunt.

The speaker of the evening was "Bill" Vaughan of the National Boys' Work Board, Toronto, who gave a very interesting and helpful talk on "Life's Business." The speaker stated that the greatest need of Canada was not in her resources or her manufactures but it was the character of her citizens.

Under the supervision of the director of physical education, David Allen, the boys then took part in group competition on the gym floor, Knox Church showing great skill in dodge ball although beaten slightly by the Hoodoos. The push tug-of-war caused a great deal of excitement with the Askin Elks carrying away the honors.

The officers of the "conclave" were: Mayor, Charlie Foulkes; grand scriptor, David Finlayson, and grand comptor, Walter Beatty. Messrs. Christianson and Beamer acted as judges, and Bert Allister assisted in the group competitions.

Doctors Stand Amazed At Power of Bon-Opto To Make Weak Eyes Strong—According To Dr. Lewis.

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent in One Week's Time In Many Instances.

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain, caused by overwork, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now, and have discarded my long-distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strength their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefitted by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start, and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork tr misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by the leading druggists, including Standard Drug Stores or Strong's Drug Store.

SURVEY COMMISSION PLEASED WITH WORK ACCOMPLISHED HERE

Methodists Earnestly Desire To Render Greatest Possible Service, Says Member.

"We are leaving London with the impression that the Methodist Church here is full of the earnest desire to render the greatest possible service to those who need the church most in the community. The laity, ministers and young people all gave us the impression that they were willing to support the Methodist Church in every way possible," said a member of the Methodist Survey Commission on Friday evening, after conducting the survey of the Methodist Churches in this city all week in the First Methodist Church. The commission leaves for Woodstock today, where next week they will hold a rural conference.

The laymen at the last meeting held on Friday evening discussed the suburban work, and were of the opinion that more than one society should be interested in this work, and the people in the suburbs be made to take hold of the religious work themselves to a great extent. They realized, too, the great need in the churches of today for more equipment to meet the requirements of the young people and leaders in the churches who could develop the four-fold life among the Methodist young people. They emphasized the importance of the manhood of the church taking hold of the young boys and going to the limit of their time and service to encourage them to live Christian lives.

On Friday evening the survey commission held a conference with the Normal School students who attended Methodist Churches. The students told the commission, in answer to their query, that the young people of today were just as religiously inclined as they ever were, though there were so many more attractions, which accounted for the falling off of young people in giving their lives to Christian service. The students were of the opinion that the school teachers could do a great deal by co-operating with the church, and that public school teachers should, if possible, assist in Sunday school teaching. London is the first city visited by the survey commission, and the members were very well satisfied with the manner in which the Methodists of this city had looked upon the survey and given all the information possible.

That wondrous reserve known as Algonquin Park has now become an all-year round resort. The region provides a winter holiday ground that is beyond compare, and is in accord with the ideas of medical science. Two thousand feet above the level of the sea, it has invigorating climatic conditions, and anyone needing rest or recuperation will find this the ideal resort. November is a pleasant month to pay a visit to the Park. When December comes with its cold, bracing days and snow, visitors spend their days in snowshoe tramps through primitive forests, in tobogganing or ski-ing, in skating or by the enjoyment of fishing through the ice. The Highland Inn, the largest of the Park hotels, is now open throughout the year for the reception of guests. Here in the centre of the reserve overlooking Cache Lake will be found all the comforts associated with first-class hotel service; cheery public and private rooms, excellent cuisine and the companionship of guests who have a common aim to enjoy the healthful sport that this great unspoiled wilderness affords. The hotel is owned and operated by the Grand Trunk Railway, who have issued an interesting illustrated booklet, entitled "Enjoy Winter in Ontario Highlands," a copy of which will be sent free to anyone requesting same. For all information, and copy of booklet, write to Grand Trunk ticket agents or C. E. Horning, district passenger agent, Toronto. b

ALDERMAN FAVORS A CENTRAL COLLEGIATE

C. G. Moorhead Wants Important Question Sent to the People.

Ald. C. G. Moorhead is strongly in favor of the Collegiate building plans being settled by a vote of the people. There is no question that it should be rebuilt, he thinks, but it should be erected in a central location. Good and efficient work has been done in such a central building in the past, and he sees no reason why it cannot be continued in the future.

He thinks it would be a mistake to buy for this purpose property which is bringing in a large amount of revenue to the city in taxes. The question is not one of sectional interest, he maintains, but one in which the best interests of the whole city should be considered.

IS CHIEF OR CITY TO BLAME IN THIS CASE?

Judgment was reserved by Judge Talbot Macbeth after hearing in the first division court on Friday the case of W. B. Reid, a real estate dealer, against the city, in which damages were asked by the plaintiff as a result of his automobile being struck by the motor car of Fire Chief John Aitken at the corner of Beaconsfield avenue and the Wharncliffe road, while the fire department was responding to an alarm from Wyatt street.

Some intimation was made by Judge Macbeth that while the claim of the plaintiff had considerable foundation, there was a question whether the city or the fire chief personally should be considered liable.

SIGNAL COMPANY TO START RECRUITING

Courses in Wireless, Telephony, Telegraphy, Cable Work Will Be Given.

One of the most interesting units of the whole Canadian militia will start recruiting in London on Wednesday evening, November 10, at the armories, namely, No. 1 company, Canadian Signal Corps.

On November 15 a regular course in signaling, given by qualified instructors, at the end of which successful candidates will receive certificates, will commence. Uniforms will be ready on Wednesday night. The course in signalling will be followed by courses in telephony, wireless, telegraphy and cable work. The latest pattern of army instruments, which have been sent from England, will be used.

This branch of the service is one which will appeal to every young man who desires to become better educated, both physically and mentally. It also holds a special appeal for men who were signallers in the C. E. F. as the officers are all ex-service men. It is expected that the unit will be recruited up to strength within a short time as there has been a demand for one of this kind in Military District No. 1 for some time.

The headquarters and wireless section will be located in London, while other sections will be located in St. Thomas, Chatham and Ingersoll.

Following is the staff of officers: Officer commanding, Major M. L. Maitland, M. C., formerly of the 2nd Division Signal Company; Capt. W. B. Allen, 13th Battery, C. F. A.; Lieut. L. G. Glass, 2nd Division, 2nd Signal Company; Lieut. C. McL. Kennedy, 20th Battalion; Lieut. J. M. Dickinson, R. A. F.; company sergeant-major, Sergt.-Major H. Harding.

MAYOR HAS PLAN FOR MORE SPRING WATER

Komoka Wells Proper Solution, He Maintains.

BUILD SPRINGBANK DAM

And Purchase Land On Each Side of River Suitable for Summer Cottages.

Asserting the belief that London undoubtedly will have to go to Komoka to obtain adequate water supply in the near future, Mayor Little today outlined a plan by which this could be done and the river could be beautiful at the same time at no very great expense to the taxpayers.

A dam should be erected at Springbank immediately, the mayor claimed, and if real progressiveness had been shown it would have been built by now. Another dam should be built at Komoka. Power developed at these points would be sufficient to pump the spring water in the area to the reservoir at Springbank.

By the building of the dams, the river would be navigable for power boats as well as smaller craft. The cost of installing a lock at the Springbank dam would be small, and there would then be a stretch of water from the Dundas street bridge to Komoka, which would be deep enough for boating, and which would greatly beautify the city as well.

The mayor thinks that the land on each side of the river between Springbank and Komoka could be purchased at a very low price if an agreement was made to supply the present owners with power for their farms, from the supply developed at Komoka. Owning the land, the city could raise the water to any necessary level without property damage.

The property which remained could be leased for the building of summer homes. These would be greatly in demand as they could be reached by a pleasant trip along the river or by road The money obtained by leasing this property would help to defray the general cost of the plan.

Organizer Dundas also addressed the meeting. The proceedings closed with community singing, a concert and refreshments. Over 200 were present, including visitors from the C. P. R. and Canadian Express locals.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.—Judgment was reserved by Judge Macbeth after hearing in the first division court Friday the case of W. E. Spencer against the Canadian Pacific Railway, an action claiming damages as a result of an accident at the Richmond street crossing on August 30. The signalman testified that the gates were lowered on account of an approaching train, and that he did not observe the automobile between the gates.

A QUICK RELIEF FOR HEADACHE

A headache is frequently caused by badly digested food; the gases and acids resulting therefrom are absorbed by the blood which in turn irritates the nerves and causes painful symptoms called headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc.; 15 to 30 drops of Mother Seigel's Syrup will correct faulty digestion and afford relief.

STOLEN TWICE WITHIN FORTY-EIGHT HOURS

Farmer Manages, However, To Recover Coat—Boy in Court.

It is bad enough to lose one's automobile twice in the same number of days and the second time for good, but to lose one's overcoat in the bargain is a little too much, yet this was the experience of M. Groves, farmer living in the vicinity of Denfield. Mr. Groves, however, will seek revenge for the loss of his coat in the local police court on Tuesday next when a local youth will be tried for theft. The boy who is but 19 years of age appeared before Magistrate Graydon this morning charged with stealing the coat. He pleaded not guilty and elected summary trial.

On the night of October 22 Mr. Groves' car was stolen from the market square in this city. On the next day the car was found by the police abandoned at the rear of a building on York street. The car was turned over to the owner, but he discovered that the coat was missing. On the next night he again came to London and parked the auto on the same spot. Returning a little later he was dismayed to find the car again stolen.

When the youth, who pleaded guilty in court today, took a coat to a local tailor to be dyed, it was recognized from description given by the owner. Friday morning the boy was arrested at his home by Sergt. of Detectives Egelton and Detective Down. He claimed that he bought the coat from another person whom he did not know.

Bail was fixed at $500, in two securities. A. M. Judd appeared for the defence.

RICH, RED BLOOD NECESSARY TO HEALTH

When the Blood Becomes Weak and Watery a Tonic Is Needed To Build It Anew.

Why are we being continually told that good, health-giving blood must be bright red? What has color to do with the quality? Just this—the oxygen in the air is the great supporter of all organic life. One function of the blood is to take the oxygen from the air—which it meets in the lungs and deliver it to the tissues of the body. When the blood, filled with life-sustaining oxygen, is sent out by the heart, it is bright red. When it returns, impure and deprived of oxygen it is dark.

You will see, therefore, that there are two prime requisites of health, pure air and bright red blood—the pure air to furnish the oxygen, the rich red blood to carry it where it is needed. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make your blood rich and red because they increase its power to carry oxygen, actually making it so much more able to carry increased life and strength to every organ in the body.

Pale, anaemic people whose nerves are on edge, whose cheeks are pale, and who tire out easily, should try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and note the steady improvement that follows their use. A case in point is that of Mrs. J. P. Rolston, South River, Ont., who says: "About two years ago my system was in a badly rundown condition; and I kept growing worse all the time until I could hardly do my housework. I had severe headaches, and pains across my back and under my left shoulder. I did not sleep well and would feel just as tired when I got up in the morning as when I went to bed. Life seemed a burden. I had taken doctor's medicine for a long time, but it did not meet my case, at least it did me no good. Then as a result of reading about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I decided to try them. When I had taken a couple of boxes I felt much better, and when I had taken five boxes more I felt that I was again a well woman. I have not since felt any return of the trouble, and I advise all women who are broken in health to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial."

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

INTERESTING SPEAKER FOR C. OF C. DINNER

Proportional Representation To Be Dealt With by Howard S. Ross, K. C.

Howard S. Ross, K.C., of Montreal, will be the speaker on the subject of "Proportional Representation" at the membership dinner of the London Chamber of Commerce in the Masonic Temple next Friday evening. Mr. Ross has studied forms of government and electoral systems for fifteen years or more, and it is anticipated that the subject of proportional representation, which is coming into vogue in various parts of Canada, and was used in the last Manitoba provincial elections, will be interestingly dealt with by this speaker.

The directors newly elected for the chamber of commerce will meet early next week to elect a new president to succeed George M. Reid, who has held office for the past two years, the constitution requiring that officers and directors cannot hold office more than two consecutive years.

SAILED FOR ENGLAND.—Lieut. H. G. W. Ashley of 150 Grey street left London earlier in the week to sail Friday from Montreal for England and other European countries. Business opportunities in various countries will be investigated by Mr. Ashley, who will probably not return to London ofr some months.

BACK IN LONDON.—Mr. and Mrs. L. Ward, who have been active for many years in Salvation Army work here, and who for the past six months have been on a holiday in England have returned home.

SPORTS ENCOURAGED BY G. T. R. OFFICIALS; ATHLETIC PARK HERE

London Will Be Strong Rival For Premier Honors of Road.

DANCE FLOOR PLANNED

Company To Pay $2,000 of Expenses of Building Grandstand.

By the wonderful spirit shown by the 400 or so persons who attended the G. T. R. Athletic Association's banquet held in the library room of the carshops Friday night, it was quite evident that the famous Grand Trunk Athletic Association in Montreal is to have a strong rival for the athletic laurels of that company. An outline for an extensive program of activities was outlined by Master Car Builder I. N. Clark of the local shops as he answered to the toast to "The G. T. R."

Mr. Clark outlined the growth of sports among the men of the shops and how it had been given impetus by the highly successful year's experience by the track teams, the baseball and football teams, during the past season. He then spoke on the plans which are to be undertaken to complete the athletic grounds, the construction of which had been held up early in the season.

Athletic Grounds.

A campaign is to be staged among the men and by other means to raise the sum of $3,000. In addition to this the company had promised the sum of $2,000. The whole amount is to be used exclusively in erecting the athletic grounds and grandstand which are to be located south of the George White & Sons foundry. The work on the grounds he said would be started early in the spring, so that preparation for sports could be started early in the year.

Mr. Clark paid a tribute to the splendid G. T. R. band. He also told of the plans made by the association for a series of socials, concerts and dances which are to be held during the coming winter. In preparation for this the partition dividing the library building was to be arranged in two parts so that it could be folded back. The one room of the building, which has at present a concrete floor, is to be refloored with hard wood. This will give a dancing floor to accommodate one hundred couples.

M. C. B. George Fisher of the Ontario lines, told the men that the G. T. R. stood behind any move for better sports. He assured the association that the officials of the Ontario lines would do all in their power to assist in making the program in London a success.

Successful Year.

M. Morrow, the toastmaster, speaking in reply to the toast to the "Amateur Athletic Association," told of the aims and objects of the organizations. He felt fully confident that a more successful year than ever—if that were possible—lay before the association.

Mr. McNaughton of the McCormick Manufacturing Company and J. Fitzgerald, speaking in response to the toast, "Our Guests," said that the eyes of all the shops in London were on the activities of the athletic association of the carshops. They complimented the association for its good work during the year.

The other speakers of the evening were Dr. H. A. Stevenson, replying to "Our Local House," and D. Menzies to the "Employees."

During the evening medals struck by the Manufacturers' Baseball League were awarded to each of the fourteen members of the baseball team which won the city's championship. The shield won by the track men representing the shops at the manufacturers' athletic meet was presented to the association. The two cups won by the baseball team and the football team were unveiled amid much enthusiasm. Other trophies previously won by the tug-of-war teams were on exhibition.

An enjoyable musical program was given by the following: A. Henry, D. Brammel and Mr. Black, solos; a duet by Messrs. Garrow and McKay; the Imperial Quartet and cornet solos by Sergt. R. W. Everson of the Princess Pats.

SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.—Tomorrow is Sunday school anniversary day in Wellington Street Methodist Church. The Sunday School Orchestra of 25 pieces under Mr. Creswell will be present at each service and render special selections. The pupils of the school will occupy the gallery of the church and lend special cheer to the service by their singing. The speakers for the day are Rev. Judson Kelley, B.A., for the morning, W. H. Liddlecoatt for the open session in the afternoon, and Rev. Geo. W. Watts, B.D., of St. Thomas, for the evening. The church will be decorated for the occasion.

BLISS CARMAN, ONE OF GREATEST POETS, GUEST OF LONDONER

After Long Fight For Life, Comes To Visit His Friends.

Bliss Carman, among the greatest of America's poets, and without doubt Canada's greatest product, was a visitor in London last night. He arrived unheralded in this city at 9:55, via the C. P. R., where he was met by Peter McArthur, Ekfrid's famous author, who came to this city for the purpose, and Dr. H. A. McCallum of this city, who acted as host to the two celebrities overnight.

Fresh from the wilderness surounding Lake Placid, New York, where beneath open skies he fought a courageous battle with a malignant disease and won, Bliss Carman has come to visit Peter McArthur at his farm near Appen, Ont. It is his first visit to this part of Canada.

Tall, well set up, Bliss Carman looked vigorous and the picture of health as he stepped from the train. Despite the long and wearisome trip from Montreal he showed but few signs of fatigue and certainly not the invalid one would expect to find after such a long siege of illness. Mr. McArthur asserted that he never saw Mr. Carman look better.

Indefinitely.

Despite vigorous protests from Peter McArthur, who urged that the visit should last indefinitely, as innumerable people were waiting to grasp his hand, the poet staunchly argued that he had come to visit Peter McArthur only. "After my long stay in the solitudes, crowds drive me into panics," he added.

Although no one could be more affable than the poet, for he, according to Mr. McArthur, is as big-hearted as he is in stature, Mr. Carman did not relish being interviewed. Laughingly he waved his hand toward the philosopher who made Ekfrid famous, and said: "He will take the interview."

"Humph," ejaculated Dr. McCallum, "Peter McArthur knows Bliss Carman better than he knows himself."

He was born in 1861, a year which was particularly kind to Canada for no less than four great Canadian poets. Campbell, Lampman and Duncan Campbell Scott were born in that year. The historical Grand Pre, made famous by Longfellow's Evangeline, was his birthplace. The salt-scented air of his boyhood's playground instilled within his soul the love for the sea and so the world was made more beautiful by such poems as "The Ships of Grey St. Johns" and "The Ballads of Lost Haven."

Nature Poems

But great as his sea poems were, he reached a still greater pinnacle of beauty in his poems of nature. His "Spring Song" is perhaps his best. He is without doubt the greatest creator of lyrics in America today. Critics in all parts of the world are almost unanimous in the belief that Carman will become America's greatest poet.

Thirty years ago he left Nova Scotia and sought his fortunes in New York. In this city he spent his twentieth year along with Peter McArthur. The two became fast friends. During the 30 years spent in New York he was the editor of various publications.

When he was stricken with illness and was forced to fight for his life in numerous sanatoriums the sympathy of the world went out to him. Many times this sympathy was shown in a more substantial way than mere words, for assistance came to him from the world over.

Bliss Carman, accompanied by Mr. McArthur, will leave for Appin at noon today.

"JACK O' LANTERN" PRODUCTION WELL WORTH ATTENDING

Lines Are Snappy—Dancing Excellent—Melodies Charming—Costumes Splendid.

Not for many a day have London theatre-goers had an opportunity of seeing and hearing anything quite so refreshingly clever, whimsically gorgeous, dainty and altogether delightful as "Jack o' Lantern," presented to an enthusiastic audience at the Grand last night and scheduled for two performances today.

"Jack o' Lantern" is not a new production. It has been playing to the big eastern cities for a couple of years, but its cleverness has not been impaired one whit, nor the riot of its rich color and scenic extravagance paled. Good-looking girls, good music, artistic acting, snappy lines, excellent dancing, charming melodies, dainty verse and harmonious ensemble—had seldom one finds all these combined in the one production!

James Doyle and Harland Dixon are comedians of an entirely extraordinary type. They weave acrobatics, terpsichorean novelty and unusual setting into one rounded completeness of sheer bewildering delight.

The costumes are splendid, the scenery unusual, and every member of every chorus is a real actress of a type of beauty sadly uncommon on the musical stage. "Jack O'Lantern," is the quintessence of half a dozen good shows concentrated into one superb production. "Candyland" is a marvel of art and beauty.

Musical hits include: "Along Came Another Little Girl," by Charles George; "Knit, Knit, Knit," by Bessie Franklin, Ethel Lawrence and Elva Magnus; "I'll Take You Back to Italy," by Harland Dixon, and "Take a Trip to Candyland," Marie Callahan and Lucia Lorraine.

Distinct Novelty.

A distinct novelty is the Boxing Dance presented in the last scene by Doyle and Dixon, Charles Silber and Company.

The clown band led by Lew Gould is a clever aggregation, including Roy Henderson, Joe Ginty, Harry LaRue, Carl Kubler and Max M. Simons.

Eileen Christie as Zingarella is an actress of more than ordinary merit, and Misses Callahan and Lorraine, as Bobby and Babby, approximate to perfection in the juvenile roles. Bessie Franklin very adequately takes the part of Vilaness. Eva Magnus as Cicely also creditably takes a principal part. Charles Silber as Tripp, Joseph Robinson and Uncle George and Charles George as Paul give satisfactory support.

Moonbeam girls—Florence Roberts, Lillian Manet, Ruth Baker, Audrey MacMullen, Lydia English, Marguerite English, May Mack, Ethel Holmes, Peggy Marney, Ada Kaufman, Elsie Cherry, Carol Flower.

Admirable orchestral accompaniment under the direction of George S. Hirst enhances the merit of the production considerably. The performance moves with expedition, a tribute to the direction of the stage manager, Frank Herbert. There are no long waits between scenes.

HARDING AND THE LEAGUE.

Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador at Washington, sees in the election of Harding the probability of an improved League of Nations. The Tageblatt newspaper shares this view, expressing the hope, doubtless, of many Germans in both Europe and America.

Certainly the Fatherland stands to benefit by almost any League of Nations, as compared to present conditions. The league will do justice to Germany, and at the same time check any revenge idea of the pan-German faction. The Germans are right in their view that any president of the United States will have to go on with a League of Nations. It is all nonsense of Republican leaders to talk of reverting to the old isolation, or of a vague "association of nations." Membership in or close relations with an effective league is necessary to the United States. The big business interests behind the Republican party can least afford to do without the league. The Republican party more than any other has gone in for widened political and economic relations, ever since the Spanish-American war.

But will there be any "improvement" in the present league, such as the Germans and the American Germans and Irish are hoping for, as a result of the Republican victory? The "improvements" wanted by Germans are, of course, the restoration of Polish territory to Germany, the paring of the already insufficient reparation to the Allies, evacuation of the Rhineland, retrocession of Southern Tyrol to Austria, union of the Austrian rump with Germany, perhaps also the amalgamation of those dear friends, the Magyars, with Pan-Germania, the "redemption" of part of lost Transylvania from the Rumanians, and the right of Germany to rebuild the standing army. It is pretty safe to say that when the United States comes into the League of Nations no such "improvements" will be put through.

If the United States Government should, by any chance, try for an amendment to satisfy Sinn Fein, it would find such a proposition absolutely rejected by the other great members of the league. If, then, the impossible should actually happen and the United States for a time stayed sulking out of civilization's league of peace and self-defence, the league can presumably function without her help, though it would be a great pity. In case of a nation defying the league in some way it could impose the blockade without American co-operation, and the United States would find that it could not again, as in the late war, send all the goods it chose to the blockaded country through a roadway like Holland. The powers of the league would regard the "neutral" thoroughfare as in complicity with the blockaded country and apply to it also the blockade. If Great Britain had cut off Holland's East Indian trade in 1915 the Germans would not have been able to get all they wanted through Amsterdam. But the Entente was in a tighter corner than the League of Nations will be in dealing with refractory states.

Harding and his party will have to come round to pretty much Wilson's league when all is done. The talk of the campaign was so much froth to win votes of Irish, Germans and radicals, and to vent spite against President Wilson. The whole thing may be compared to the Borden Bourassa campaign against Laurier's reciprocity and naval policy in 1911. These were policies that the Borden-Foster aggregation themselves had favored, just as Lodge & Company argued for the league before Wilson brought it about. And it was not long before Laurier's enemies came round to his inevitable plans. So it will be with Harding.

CAUSES OF THE CATACLYSM.

Democrats particularly will be busy for some time in analyzing the causes of their defeat. President Wilson may by many be regarded as the principal cause. But, still, the presidential cannot be considered apart from the congressional election, and it is evident that the Republicans were equally successful in both. It would seem difficult to make President Wilson responsible for every individual Democratic defeat.

Certainly, the League of Nations was supported by the Democratic party as a whole, and probably there were large defections of German and Irish Democrats. No one thinks the league perfect as constituted, and there has been a dead set on it by both Republican leaders appealing to ingrained prejudice against foreign involvements and by the Radicals or Bolshevists, who think the league capitalistic in character and calculated to foster national grudges. Many women who voted for Wilson in 1916 for "keeping us out of the war" took revenge for his subsequent entrance into it.

Perhaps the prohibition issue played a part, especially with the women. Republicans succeeded in creating the impression that Cox was not likely to enforce the law, that the Democratic convention of last summer was drenched with "booze," and that Tammany, no friend of prohibition, would be sure to have influence with a Democratic government.

The general unrset, dissatisfaction with economic conditions, fear of Bolshevism, exasperation of the general public against the great strikes and the everlasting agitation of labor leaders, etc., must have tended in favor of Harding and his side. The Government of Wilson would naturally be held responsible for the various ills of the time. Mere reaction must be taken into account. After eight years of Democratic predominance many would be ready for a change that would give the other side a chance. The big interests behind Harding doubtless spent a heap of money all over the country. Mr. Harding himself pledged a restoration of the old high tariff, cut down in 1913, and this seems to have pleased the farmers of the middle west. Altogether, the tide of reaction gathered to an almost unprecedented height to sweep Mr. Cox and a host of Democratic nominees into the discard.

THE WONDERFUL BOOK.

"Each succeeding generation will renew its youth in the Bible, and the standard for the life and power of a people will be the measure of that people's faithfulness to the precepts of the Bible. Let mental culture increase and science spread and deepen; let the spirit of man broaden as it will—the majesty and the morality of Christianity as it shines forth in the gospels will never be surpassed."—Johnn W. Goethe.

After the lapse of a century unparalleled in the volume of its scientific and literary activities, the distinguished author and philosopher quoted, who imparted a fresh intellectual life to his age and nation, might reiterate without the variation of a syllable, his tribute to the Sacred Scriptures. Now, as then, the volume towers unapproached by any other in any tongue. Speaking from the chair of English literature in Cambridge University, Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch pronounces it "at once the most majestic thing in our literature, and by all odds the most spiritually living thing we inherit." Verily, it shines an incomparable beacon light in which

"Splendor of the thoughts of God
For the life of men,
Visions of the saints and seers
Burn for us again."

The Bible is matchless in what it purports to be, its verifications by experience and history, in the variety and charm of its construction, message, unversality of application, indestructible character, and in what it has wrought. It asserts itself a Divinely inspired disclosure of the will and wisdom of the Supreme Being concerning the origin, moral condition, redemption, duty and destiny of mankind. Beyond any reasonable question the testimony of the ages confirms what has been claimed for the Scriptures. Oft-repeated usage may have dulled the deep significance of the term "The word of God," or the clamor of other voices, for the moment, fill the ears but its message perennially reasserts itself as the Divine afflatus. The vehicle of supernatural knowledge communicated at sundry times, and in divers manners, it also abides for the guidance of each succeeding generation. Having been imparted by the Author of Life, its pages open the door to a comprehension of life's relations and responsibilities not to be obtained in any other way. Many writers of different types moved by the Holy Spirit, covering long centuries of human history shared its composition, and yet it emerges with a unity of truth unaccountable by any purely human contrivance. As one exegete expresses it, the revelation is progressive, the Old Testament being preparatory to the advent of The Redeemer, Who is manifested in the gospels, preached and propagated in the Acts, explained in the Epistles and consummated in the Revelation. In the New Testament there are said to be over 800 quotations from, or allusions to the Old, the vellums of which constituted the text book of Christ himself. From the Psalms, Isaiah and other prophecies. He quoted passages referring explicitly to Himself. He reaffirmed the law of Moses without disturbing "one jot or title," but scored the Scribes and Pharisees for odious man-made misconstructions. The Book is germinative. The disciples, when sent to preach by the Master, were taught in explanation of a parable that "The Seed was the Word of God."

Human experience from the cradle to the grave and history attest its reliability as a guide to faith and practice. From the Scriptures were derived the laws that yet hold together the fabric of civilization. When it is unheeded war and disorder result. In word or spirit, it pervades all literature worthy the name. The permanence and circulation of other works when clothed in adequate literary garb, appear to be about in proportion as they approach its standards. Its message has proven adaptable to all languages, times and peoples. Six prime ministers of British Dominions in concert could make no appeal for the future stronger than an affirmation of the eternal validity of its teachings. That providential organization, the British and Foreign Bible Society, reports issues for 1919-20 to the number of 8,515,930, China and India being especially hungry for "The Word." Since its inception in 1804 its distribution has reached the total of above 300,000,000 copies in some 525 different languages and dialects, a veritable world-wide pentecost of truth. More than a century ago a powerful antagonist wrote that he had gone through the Bible, felling the trees as with an axe. Clerics might "stick them in the ground again, but they would never grow." Vain babbler. Furthermore, the society mentioned, has never been in debt, and with others similarly engaged has proven itself an invaluable co-worker of missionary enterprise. In the research and comment stimulated, no other volume is for a moment comparable with the Bible. It remains the inexhaustible source of texts for the pulpits of the entire world. Its crowning achievement has been in the transformation of life and character by bringing men face to face with the Redeemer and Restorer. Paul's direction to Timothy was to "Preach the Word," for the all-sufficient reason given in Ephesians, that it is the sword or instrument whereby the work of the Spirit is affected. Illuminated fidelity to the Pauline counsel continues to be the gauge of fruitful ministry. To a world parched with a fever of unrest voices are calling "Lo Here! and Lo There!" but apart from the message that "breathes through the lines Divine" there is no balm and no specific; and in times like these it is wise to heed the admonition of the distinguished English philologist, who said it was not enough to explore the sources of rivers, but to drink of them.

From Here and There

KEEP AWAY FROM TORONTO.

[Toronto Globe.]

Toronto is becoming overcrowded with men out of work, many of whom are drifting in from the farms and the smaller centres of the province. The superintendent of the Ontario Government employment bureau, Mr. J. W. Miller, urges that able-bodied men accept any sort of work offered in the country instead of coming to this city to increase the already very considerable number of people who are unable to find employment.

There is work to do in the forests and mines of the North. A single lumber company wants fifteen hundred men. Some mines have had to curtail operations materially because of a lack of unskilled workers. The world needs paper, lumber, gold and silver, and most other products of the forest and mine. Men who want work should keep away from Toronto unless they are fairly sure of obtaining employment at accustomed occupations. The North beckons. There may be a lack of "movies" and of the bright lights of the city streets, but in compensation there will be no "bread line."

LOOKED REASONABLE.

[Liverpool Post.]

There was not even standing room in the crowded tramcar, but one more passenger, a young woman, wedged her way along just inside the doorway. Each time the car took a sudden lurch forward she fell helplessly back, and three times she landed in the arms of a large, comfortable man. The third time it happened he said quietly: "Hadn't you better stay here?"

A LABOR CHECK.

[Montreal Star.]

In the late municipal elections in England, Labor party losses were noted in many of the larger industrial centres where the Labor vote was the great factor in the electorate. The change came after a period of Labor party gains, not alone in municipalities, where the contests are conducted on political lines, but also in parliament, where the Labor party representatives constitute the strongest of the groups opposed to the government. There has evidently been a check to the growing favor of the general electorate towards the Labor program, and more particularly to Labor party expenditures, which in municipal affairs have been so generally high that they have imposed serious burdens on the ratepayers. In some London boroughs the local taxes are equal to the yearly rentals. There have been few charges of the corruption that on this continent usually accompany municipal upheavals. The troubles are chiefly ascribed to extravagance. The development of democracy has put power in the hands of those who are not the heaviest taxpayers; and the chief beneficiaries of the improvements are not those who pay most toward them. The idea is not unknown elsewhere. In most democracies it has been learned that high taxes are not unpopular while they are so levied that only the few have to pay them. Even with this advantage, however, the game may be carried too far. That and the ground taken by some of the Labor organizations in their conflicts with the government and with the general public behind it, probably accounts for the rebuffs the Laborites have received. This will not be the end, of course. It is suggestive, however, that the Labor party in politics will be subject to the conditions that cause other parties to rise and fall as they get credit for virtue in opposition and fall into disfavor when in power. They have been in power in the municipalities and have suffered.

A NATIONAL INSULT.

[Montreal Herald.]

During the war, and the preparation for it, largely through the example set by the soldiers in training, who acquired it through army discipline, audiences at theatres and other public gatherings stood in respectful attention during the singing of the National Anthem. This good custom is being disregarded most disgracefully. At the theatres now the first bar of the National Anthem is taken as a signal to don overcoats and wraps, and make for the door. It is a vulgar and ignorant habit, and should be sternly checked. The theatre management would be doing a good educative act if they informed the audience, either on the screen or otherwise, that ladies and gentlemen always stood at attention during the rendition of the National Anthem, and that others would be expected to do so.

WAR BREAD.

[Kingston Whig.]

In the old days men were not afraid of work. This modern loaf is war-bred.

ADVERTISING NOVA SCOTIA.

[Kingston Whig.]

A seventy-page booklet entitled "Natural Resources of Nova Scotia," with sixteen illustrations and a map, has just been issued by the natural resources intelligence branch of the department of the interior, Ottawa. This is the latest of a series dealing with various sections of the Dominion, the booklets previously issued having dealt with New Brunswick, the Peace River, New Manitoba, Saskatchewan, etc. The opening paragraph of the the interior, Ottawa. This is the latest of a series when it says: "The facts in this booklet are compiled for the use of the home seeker, merchant, manufacturer, capitalist and visitor. They purpose to be up to date, authoritative, concise." In the booklet now before us a welcome absence of verbiage allows space for valuable specific facts. Thus there is a list of products reshipped from Halifax which could easily be manufactured in Canada; a special section on West Indian and British Guiana trade; details about oil shales, coal, ilmestone, iron, aeronautics, merchant marine, clays, salt, land prices and wages, all subjects of present interest. Statistics are made palatable by an interesting style and suggestive touches. Nova Scotia is crossing the threshold to great activities, and both to the many native born who left the land in the last generation and to the many about to sail from overseas, the booklet will be a reminder that the chances in the province by the sea now seem as bright as is its summer beauty.

TRAINING THE CHILD.

[Hamilton Spectator.]

In a certain Chicago boys' school they have a primitive way of settling the quarrels of their scholars—they let them fight it out, with the teacher as referee. The lady principal justifies the method in this way: "Letting the boys fight out their trouble is the best way in a school such as this. Abe was inclined to be a bully, and he got just what he needed. They will be friends now, and we will have no more trouble from them." The superintendent of schools entirely agrees, and describes it as "the most successful plan that has ever been tried in that school." Seeing that Abe, who was "inclined to be a bully," got the worst of it in the particular case referred to, there is a kind of appropriateness and justification for the proceeding. But how if it worked the other way? Supposing Abe to be endowed with a strength and science as brutal as his nature, under such circumstances, are his unhappy little victims to be placed each in his turn in the ring, to the glorification of the bully and the demoralization of the onlookers? One would say that the right way of dealing with the problem would be for the principal to do her own punishing, by taking Abe and administering the necessary correction. In that way there would be no chance of justice going astray.

WHAT ABOUT THE CHILDREN?

[Hamilton Times.]

The statement in the Times of last evening that a gentleman with his wife and four children arrived in the city on Sunday and found the greatest difficulty in getting accommodation for his family, is only another evidence of the fact that those with families have at times much trouble in getting lodgings or house accommodation. We were not aware, however, that the hotels were averse to providing accommodation for such. It may be that they had no room at their disposal. The difficulty, however, for parents with young children in getting a house to rent is real, and there seems to be no way of getting over the trouble. Landlords cannot be compelled to rent their houses to those who have a number of young children. In apartment houses other tenants do not care to have a lot of children next to them, and landlords object to receive such tenants. Even where the house is self-contained, landlords would rather not rent to people with young children because of the damage these do to the houses. There are careless tenants, and children who are reckless and mischievous wreck a house. There are landlords who will not have such tenants on any condition, and they are hardly to be blamed.

Yet children must be housed. We wonder what the landlords do down in the Province of Quebec, where families of a dozen or more are quite common. Ontario credited with being a province where small families are the rule, yet it is up here that we hear most about landlords refusing to rent their houses to parents with small children. This is a situation that should have the consideration not only of those interested in the social welfare of the community, but of our governments and city councils as well. The difficulty is to suggest a remedy.

Poetry and Jest

AUTUMN SONG.

[From the French of Achille Frechette by E. W. Thomson.]

Away, ye vain numberless shadows, unsplendid,
Unperfumed, uncolored, mid which my life wended!
Now the gloom of my dream is illumed by her beauty,
Her heart-stirring beauty.

'Neath murky grey skies trailed my heavy-foot hours
On into the bleakness where evening lowers;
To my travail she came with the cheer of her joyance
Her spirit and joyance.

Fruits fallen, nests vacant, and meadows in stubble,
My path ever hardened by cold airs above;
Oh, the long arid days I went lonely in trouble,
Till the thirst of my heart was allayed by her love,
The wine of her love.

Late flowers, breathe fragrance! Oh branches rejoicing
With birds that again come alighting in bliss,
Dear creatures, their anthems a thousand times voicing
My joy that she bless my lips with her kiss,
Her lips and her kiss.

WELL PAID.

Someone asked a Long Island man whether he found that poultry-keeping paid.

"I can't say that it pays me," was the reply, "but I think that it pays my boy, Harry."

"How's that?"

"Well, you see, I bought him the fowls. I have to pay for their keep and buy the eggs from him, and he eats them."

THE LITTLE ROADS.

[Alfred Noyes, in The New Morning.]

The great roads are all grown over,
That seemed so firm and white.
The deep, black forests have covered them,
How should I walk aright?
How should I thread these tangled mazes,
Or grope to that far-off light?
I stumble round the thickets, and they turn me
Back to the thickets and the night.

Yet, sometimes, at a word, an elfin pass-word,
(O, thin, deep, sweet with beaded rain!)
There shines, through a mist of ragged-robins,
The old lost April-colored lane,
That leads me from myself; for, at a whisper,
Where the strong limbs thrust in vain,
At a breath, if my heart help another heart,
The path shines out for me again.

A thin thread, a rambling lane for lovers
To the light of the world's one May,
Where the white dropping flakes may wet our faces
As we lift them to the bloom-bowed spray;
O Master, shall we ask Thee, then, for highroads,
Or down upon our knees and pray
That Thou wilt ever lose us in Thy little lanes
And lead us by a wandering way.

NO UMBRELLA.

A milkman in a country town was brought before the local court to answer a charge of adulteration.

"You are charged," said the magistrate, "with selling adulterated milk. Have you anything to say in answer to the charge?"

"Well, your honor," replied the milkman, "the night before it was raining very hard and the only cause I can give is the cow must have got wet through."

THE CITY, AFTER ABSENCE.

Far, far have I been faring
Where liquid sea gold glides,
And naught have I been caring,
Free—free to breast the tides.

Yet here upon returning
From where I fared alone,
I would not now be spurning
What claims me for its own.

The sea gold and its treasure
I may no longer see,
But who can hope to measure
The city and its fee.

It has its silent places,
It has its rushing tides—
The sea of human faces,
The home where love abides.
—Maurice Morris.

NOT ACCOUNTABLE.

[From the Boston Transcript.]

Casey managed somehow to get hold of a bottle of whiskey one Saturday night and after taking a few drinks he reserved the remainder for Sunday. During the night, however, he woke suddenly to find a fellow lodger gulping down the precious liquid.

"Here, Mulligan!" he cried, "what are you doing with that whiskey?"

"Whist, man, whist!" said Mulligan, with great presence of mind, "O'im walkin', in me slape."

GARMENTS.

[Marguerite Wilkinson, in "Bluestone."]

Life has taken from us our garments of pleasure,
Merry colors woven well we have laid aside;
But we have put on again the old robe of courage,
Wearing what our fathers wore even till they died.

Lads wear it as the sky wears the flame of morning:
Women wear it; like the dusk it folds their spirits in;
And strong men wear it as the grim, gusty winter
Wears a coat of icy mail in winds screaming thin.

Life has taken away the quaint motley of the jester;
Life has stolen pretty pearls and laces from the queen;
Life has torn the scholar's hood, the veils of the dreamer,
And many a little cloak of joy that kept our beauty clean.

But the old generations have given us their garment
Of the harsh cloth and heavy that man has often worn;
And we have put on again the old robe of courage,
And this shall not be taken; and this shall not be torn!

BROTHER'S SHARE.

"Willie," admonished the mother, "why don't you let your little brother have your sled some of the time?"

"Why I do, mamma," said Willie. "He has it half the time. I take it going down hill and he has it coming back."

TWILIGHT.

[Sara Teasdale.]

Dreamily over the roofs
The cold spring is falling.
Out in the lonely tree
A bird is calling, calling.

Slowly over the earth
The wings of night are falling;
My heart, like the bird in the tree,
Is calling, calling, calling.

AFTER WAITING.

[Judge.]

Stranger (after impatient half hour wait)—Pardon me. When does this trolley leave, anyway?

Lonsomeville Native—It doesn't. This be the waitin' room.

THE SHIP.

[Charles Twining.]

No sullen haven cheers the bark—
Her love, her love the angry sea!
'Tis passion full, his rage to mark—
Now his exhaustion, now his glee;
No fear has she in rising gale,
Her heaven within his breast to fail.

Every Man For Himself

BY HOPKINS MOORHOUSE.

[CHAPTER XII.]

[KENDRICK MAKES A TOUCHDOWN.]

Phil's first impulse in hurrying back to the city had been to deliver President Wade's letter to Nathaniel Lawson, and with that introduction to find out how much Nat Lawson knew about his friend's plans. The possibility that the financier might be able to throw some light upon Ben Wade's object in placing McCorquedale on guard at Sparrow Lake at first seemed sufficient justification for broaching the matter. But on second thoughts, Phil hesitated; if his chief had not seen fit to mention it to his own secretary who was most vitally concerned, it was unlikely that he had said anything to Lawson. In that case Wade might consider that his secretary had been very indiscreet in volunteering the facts. By the time he was ringing the doorbell at the Lawson home next evening, he had decided to say nothing about the matter.

Beneath the gentle courtesy of Old Nat's welcome Kendrick sensed a strength of character that commanded deference. The young man liked him at once. The ready pucker of the crowsfoot about those kind eyes put him quickly at ease, and as they sat on the "back piazza" that overlooked an old-fashioned flower garden they were chatting like a pair of old acquaintances. Horticulture was a hobby with Nat Lawson and Kendrick's intelligent interest in the subject placed them at once on a friendly footing. It was a little early yet to see the wonderful garden at its best, his host explained after they had made a tour of it; he must come and see it in another month or so, or even in a few weeks, when the pergola would be smothered in roses.

Among other things contained in Wade's letter, which Phil had just delivered, it was evident that his new chief had asked Lawson to post the bearer in regard to Loan Company affairs particularly to tell all he knew about J. C. Nickleby; for of his own accord "Old Nat" began to talk freely of the past. It was soon apparent that he considered Nickleby an impostor whose motives were not to be computed by a self-respecting comptometer.

"Nickleby is a scamp and I might even qualify the statement, sir, by the addition of the word, 'damnable,' There you have my opinion, sum, total, and one of these new adding machines cannot give it to you more quickly or accurately" The smile with which he said this faded as he smoked for a moment in silence and a grim look settled in its place. He stood up abruptly. "Excuse me a moment while I get a photograph which will serve to illustrate a little story I'm going to tell you."

When he returned presently he thrust into Phil's hand the photo of a young man whose expression was boyishly ingenuous.

"Nothing dishonest in that face, is there?" demanded Nat Lawson. "That's Jimmy Stiles. He had to quit school to find work to support his mother when she was taken sick. He came to me and I gave him his first job. I found him loyal and trustworthy; but he made me one little slip that I will tell you about."

It appeared that the boy had been inveigled into a get-rich-quick investment which had gone the usual way of such things and left him in a desperate plight; so that he had been tempted to "borrow" a few dollars from the Interprovincial without permission. This money he began putting back secretly every week, bit by bit out of his salary He had refunded about half of it when Nickleby discovered the small shortage in the young bookkeeper's accounts. Instead of reporting the matter, Nickleby, at that time secretary and office manager, told the boy he would let him off if it did not occur again and made a great show of befriending young Stiles.

But Stiles was so systematically reminded of his obligation to Nickleby that he worried constantly over what he had done—came to such a keen realization of his fault that one night he could stand it no longer and went to the Lawson home. With nerves at the breaking point he confessed his wrong to both Nathaniel Lawson and his daughter. The boy's contrition had been so sincere that they both forgave him on the spot. "Old Nat" patting him on the shoulder and assuring him that nothing more would be said about it. Stiles said nothing to Nickleby about this secret confession and for a time he recovered his spirits.

Then came the change in management. Nickleby's first move was to dismiss one employee after another until almost the only member of the old staff left was this young fellow. James Stiles, for whom Nickleby seemed to have taken a strange fancy. The reason was not long in doubt; for though the indebtedness long since had been wiped off the slate the new president began to threaten exposure unless Stiles did exactly as he was told, even when the instructions were contrary to honest business ethics.

"That's the kind of a man Mr. Nickleby is," concluded Lawson. "Cristy and I—my daughter, Cristobel, Kendrick,—have tried to give Mrs. Stiles financial assistance in the past, she being an honest deserving woman; but of late we have not been able to do so much, for his mother's sake. I hope Jimmy turns out all right. But there are times when I wonder if it would not have been better for him had he gone somewhere out of the reach of a man who would take advantage of a mere boy instead of trying to help him to a fresh start."

With renewed interest Phil studied the photo in his hand before returning it. The case of Jimmy Stiles did indeed throw a sidelight upon the character of Nickleby. By adroit questioning he led the founder of the Interprovincial Loan & Savings Company to continue talking of the institution which represented his life's work and in the welfare of which his whole soul was wrapped. Once started in these reminiscences of his early struggles and hopes Nathaniel Lawson proved himself an interesting talker and the hour was well advanced when Kendrick finally glanced at his watch and, refusing any suggestion of refreshments, prepared to go.

"I'll have the answer to Wade's letter ready for you first thing in the morning," said Lawson as he shook hands heartily "I've enjoyed the evening immensely, Kendrick, and I hope I haven't bored you so much that you won't come again. You'll be welcome any time."

Phil left the house with the feeling that he had spent not only a very pleasant evening, but a profitable one. He had acquired a new appreciation of "Old Nat" Lawson and, as Wade had predicted, a better understanding of the situation which would help him in his investigations. So absorbed was he in reviewing what he had learned that he had walked several blocks before he became conscious of somebody following him. What was at first merely a suspicion became a certainty when he deliberately turned several successive corners only to find the figure still in the rear.

The discovery was interesting, though entirely ridiculous. Who could be interested in his movements? He resolved to throw the fellow off the track and have a closer look at him. It should not be difficult to do this in that district of tall hedges. He broke abruptly into a run, dodged around a corner and dropped over behind the nearest hedge.

The sound of running steps ceased. But the man evidently was attempting something to which he was unaccustomed; for on reaching the corner he stopped, bewildered by the sudden disappearance of his quarry. He stood there foolishly, staring about uncertainly and grumbling to himself.

Kendrick peered out from his hiding-place with some amusement at this discomfiture. The nearest arc light was too far away for a clear look at the man; but just as Phil was about to jump the hedge and boldly demand an explanation the other lighted a cigarette and with a shrug of the shoulders went his way, leaving Kendrick sitting back on his heels, jacking his memory.

Revealed in the glow of the match the face had seemed familiar. The young fellow was a full block away, however, before he recalled the features. It was James Stiles, the young chap Nat Lawson had just been telling him about and whose photo he had been studying with much interest an hour or two ago.

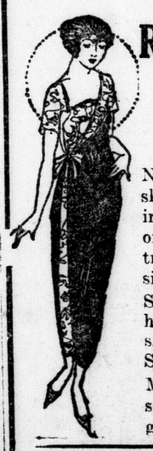

Over the hedge went Kendrick just in time to see Jimmy Stiles disappear around the corner. He ran rapidly down the street, keeping to the boulevard turf, and when he reached the corner he waited until his man was sufficiently in the lead to avoid discovery, then sauntered along in the same direction just far enough behind to keep the other in sight. Now Phil's curiosity was now justifiably awake and he determined to find out where young Stiles went, perhaps overhaul him and ask him to explain himself.

Miss Huella Douglass, bride-elect, whose marriage to Mr. Dean Russell takes place shortly, was the guest of honor at an enjoyable function on Thursday by the staff of the Boyle Memorial School.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Smith, "Maplehurst," Northwood, Ont., announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Minerva Lois, to Mr. Charles Stafford Pesha, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Pesha, Kent Bridge, Ont., the wedding to take place quietly in December.

Miss Maude Jupp, whose marriage to Mr. W. J. Ashplant takes place in St. Paul's Cathedral today has been the guest of honor at a number of enjoyable functions. Among the tea hostesses who have entertained for her are Miss Winnifred and Miss Kathleen Ashplant, Mrs. (Dr.) Harris, Mrs. George Chantler, Mrs. Harry I. Bennett.

The Daughters of Scotland of whom Mrs. Robert Tagg is president, were the hostesses of an enjoyable dance held in the Knights of Columbus Hall last night. The success of the function was largely due to the energetic committee, including Mrs. Fred Tull (convener), Mrs. John Taylor, Mrs. Jas. Hendrie, Mrs. Burt, Mrs. John Cameron, Mrs. T. Haldane and Mrs. Herbert Webb.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mrs. G. J. Polton, Colborne street, on Thursday, when her daughter, Miss Amy Bolton, entertained in honor of the Ryerson School Girls' Basketball Team, the city champions, of which she is captain. After dinner the young guests and their coach, Miss Cook, spent an enjoyable time together. The members of the team include Miss Mabel Nobbs, Miss Amy Bolton, Miss Helen Flowers. Miss Ruth Ferguson, Miss Velma McLandress, Miss Minnie Gardner and Miss Stella Mooney.

A very enjoyable fancy dress dance was given at the Y.M.C.A. hut at Tecumseh barracks on Thursday evening by the wives of the W.O.'s, N.C.O.'s and other members of the P.P.C.L.I. and the Y.M.C.A. staff. About 250 were in attendance, the hut being very tastefully decorated for the occasion. The decision as to the best costume worn by lady and gentleman was a rather difficult matter, because of the great variety of costumes. However, the prizes were awarded to Mrs. T. Currie, who appeared as a Victorian lady and Bugler A. C. Cronyn who represented a splendid lady. Much of the success of the evening was due to the regimental orchestra, which has always given its services willingly for the dances held at the barracks from time to time. During the evening a vocal solo was rendered by Miss Clark.

L. Dewar of Ailsa Craig.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful set of furs, to the bridesmaid a cameo ring, and to the groomsman gold cuff links. After a reception had been held, the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner. Later the happy couple left by motor for Strathroy, where, amid showers of confetti and best wishes, they took the train for points east, the bride travelling in a suit of nigger brown gabardine with hat to match. After a short honeymoon they will take up their residence in Pontiac, Mich.

THE MARRIAGE OF ANNE

BY MAY CHRISTIE

(Copyright, 1920, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

XLIX.—A Decent Sort.

Neil Saunders' name again!

Was I never to escape from it?

I regarded Julie with what I fondly considered was a haughty stare.

"If you're so keen about Neil Saunders, why don't you marry him yourself?" My tones were cutting.

Julie shrugged her slim French shoulders in the airy fashion that is peculiarly her own.

"For the very simple reason that he wouldn't look at me!" She smiled a curious little smile. "Don't stare open-mouthed, foolish Anne! It's true!"

"And—and you admire him?" I stammered, amazed at the humility in Julie's words. "You like him?"

"Of course I like him. Who wouldn't? There are few men of his type these days. If you think your precious Fred a patch on Saunders, as far as integrity goes, and right down decency, you're vastly mistaken."

I was silent. Deep down in my consciousness, I knew that the Frenchwoman spoke truly.

Fred was neither sincere, nor kind, nor chivalrous.

But Saunders was.

How did Julie come to know it? I wondered.

Something of my thoughts must have appeared on my face, for my companion added:

"Oh, there's nothing in the world between the 'paragon,' as you call him, and myself. But I'm of an inquisitive turn of mind, and I've made inquiries about him. Don't ask me how! I've friends in his world, and out of it, and none of them can speak too highly of him. Besides, last night I dined with him!"

I gasped. A queer little pang shot through me. Julie—dining with Neil Saunders—while I wandered New York, forlorn, neglected!

"Yes, I dined with him. But don't be jealous, pray." The cynical smile twisted Julie's pretty, painted lips again.

"I'm not jealous." The hot blood rushed to my cheeks. Julie was so sharp.

"You wouldn't be if you knew that you were the reason of our interview!" Julie flung herself into a rickety armchair, and proceeded to light a cigarette.

"I? How? What do you mean?"

I tried to assume an offhand manner. But, alas! I am no actress. My feelings always show.

"It was like this," proceeded my companion, blowing blue rings of smoke into the air. "I saw a notice in the papers to the effect that Mr. Saunders was staying at the Bachelors' Club. Something about his racing a car at Brooklands race grounds. He's a daredevil, as no doubt you know."

I didn't know. But I wasn't going to let the French woman realize my ignorance.

So I refrained from comment.

"I had the blues," continued she, "and I was in the mood to be petted and made much of. No, don't look like that, Anne. Your type of woman never would understand me, so don't try."

"I wasn't condemning or criticizing you." I cut in quickly. "Please tell me more."

She nodded, with half-closed eyes. Her pretty, svelte figure was extended gracefully on the chair, and her slim ankles perched to best advantage on a low stool.

"I rang up Mr. Saunders at the Bachelors' Club, and told him my forlorn condition. I hinted strongly that I'd like his company at dinner. He didn't bite, however, until I gave your name as 'bait.'" Julie laughed a throaty, gurgly sort of laugh. Men found it attractive. But I didn't.

"My name? How could you, Julie?" Reproach glinted in my eyes, and in the tones of my voice.

"Oh, a hungry woman will dare much!" said she, tossing her well-coiffed head. "I just told your friend that I guessed you were in trouble, and that I thought we'd better get together, and discuss the situation regarding you."

I sat up and regarded the speaker insistently. Had she second sight, or what? For indeed last night I had been in trouble.

"We dined together at the Ritz," proceeded Julie, imperturbably; "I do like a man who knows how to do things decently. Your young Saunders has tons of 'savoir faire' and bredeing. Besides, of course, the necessary cash. She gave an envious sigh.

Then she went on:

"I dressed in black. I looked quite splendid. I don't mind telling you, my dear, that I made a strong bid for him, myself. But there was nothing doing!"

"A bid for him, yourself?" I repeated stupidly. "But—you've just told me that you were going to marry Fred!"

"Oh, Fred!" said Julie half contemptuously, making a depreciatory gesture. "I'm fond of Fred, but he isn't half the catch that Saunders is. Any one with half an eye would tell you that."

This cold-blooded view of things astounded me.

"As I was saying," she proceeded blithely, "I phoned him and demanded to be taken out to dinner. Said that I'd news of you, and a few items of that sort. Needless to say, he came."

"We had an A1 time together. At any rate I had. The cost of the evening's entertainment came to twenty-eight dollars." Her eyes sparkled:

Then:

"Good gracious me! I've forgotten to make the coffee." She sprang up, and crossed the room to a sideboard, which she opened, and produced a percolator. "I can go on talking while I do this, Anne." She fumbled in a drawer for matches.

"I don't want coffee," I said, quickly. I didn't wish to be indebted for one sip, to Julie.

"But I do, silly." She measured out the dark brown substances carefully. "We were talking of Neil Saunders. Well, I just told him that Freddie Delauney was up to no good, where you're concerned. That I was pretty certain Fred would land you in some awkward situation, sooner or later. And what did he think about it?"

"He looked really worried. Said he'd seen you only recently. He also said—"

She hesitated for a moment.

"What did he say?" My cheeks were burning. I felt humiliated to the last dgeree.

Julie laughed her odd little gurgle, as she answered:

"Neil Saunders said that you were quite unfit to face life alone—and that you ought to marry a decent sort of man who'd look after you!"

Tomorrow—To Be Amused.

MRS. RONALD HARRIS NOT TO RUN AGAIN FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Mrs. Williams Doubtful—Other Nominations Must Be Made.

RESOLUTIONS READ

Many Matters Came Before Local Women's Council Yesterday.

At the regular meeting of the Local Council of Women held yesterday afternoon in Cronyn Hall, a communication came in from the Union Mothers' Club meeting on Thursday night, asking that the local council bear in mind the fact that three of the women school trustees will drop out of the board of education this year, and that if women are still to be members of the board, action should be taken to see that either these women or others are nominated. It was announced that Mrs. Ronald Harris had refused to stand again and that Mrs. David Williams was doubtful. Mrs. A. T. Edwards was the only candidate who expressed her willingness to run again. The Mothers' Club felt that if it was a good thing for the city to have women on the school board, some action should be taken by the women as a whole to see that women again stood for election. The Mothers' Clubs did not wish to take any definite action in nominating a candidate, but merely wished not to allow the time of nomination to pass with no women's names forthcoming.

No Action Taken

The meeting, however, felt itself too small to take any definite action in this direction and the matter was left, so that if a sufficient number of the affiliated societies wish to call a general meeting of the council to discuss this matter, that meeting will be called by the president, Mrs. E. B. Smith. At the same time the meeting expressed itself as favorable towards women trustees in the board.

To Interview Board

Another request which was brought in by the Mothers' Clubs was that a representative committee be appointed from the Local Council of Women to interview the board of health, on the question of better housing conditions and sanitary conditions in some districts, on which question they felt the board of health to be too lax. The result of this request was the appointment of Mrs. John Ross as convener of this committee, which was to include representatives from the Mothers' Club, I.O.D.E., Red Cross Society, Y.W.C.A., Teachers' Guild and the Sanatorium Aid. This committee will wait on the board of health in the near future. The Mothers' Clubs felt that the board of health, appointed as it was by the civic officials in power after the election, was not sufficiently representative of the people, and that often the members were not as competent to deal with health problems as others might be.

To Help G.W.V.A.

At this meeting a committee was appointed to assist the G.W.V.A. in decorating the platfrom of the armories for the service, which is to be held there on Armistice Day. Mrs. H. B. White is to convene this committee with Mrs. Winnett, Mrs. Cress, Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Logan and Mrs. John Crawford as assistants. Mrs. W. A. Bluethner was made convener of a committee to take charge of the tea room at the "Shriners' Circus" on Thursday.

Miss Stella Macklin, the recording secretary, referred to the fact that although messages had been sent from the local council to the school board, asking that a uniform dress to adopted among the girls in the Collegiate Institute and that several letters had been exchanged between the corresponding secretary and the city council regarding the possibility of purchasing a carload of potatoes at the time of their scarcity, Nothing had been done by these public bodies in regard to either communication. The matter was left there.

Report of National

Mrs. E. C. Bowker addressed the meeting, referring to the fact that an overwhelming amount of American magazine literature was being sold in Canadian bookstalls daily, and that something should be done to promote the sale of Canadian magazines. She mentioned especially the official organ of the National Council of Women—"Women's Century." Mrs. R. M. Graham's report of the national council meeting in Nova Scotia was another interesting feature of the meeting.

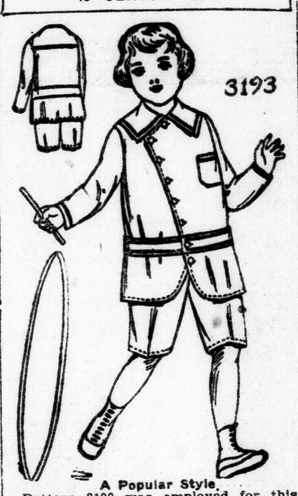

Resolutions Approved

Several resolutions which are to come before the executive meeting of the National Council, held in Peterboro at the end of the month, were submitted to the meeting for approval. They dealt with the banishment of Hearst publications from Canada, the appointment of women magistrates and jurymen, the encouragement of Canadianization, the encouragement of the showing of British and Canadian moving picture films, the more careful censorship of vaudeville and moving pictures and the appointment of women on the censors' board, the teaching of French and English alike in the schools, the supervision of playgrounds and the establishment in the Dominion of a bureau of information for women.

Mrs. E. B. Smith occupied the chair at this meeting, which was honored with the presence of the advisory president, Mrs. H. A. Boomer.

LITTLE MR. IMPORTANCE

Part Ten

How strange Rastus was acting, the kind lady who had bought him thought. Although she had brought all the good things that a little dog likes he had refused to eat.

"I don't believe he likes it here," she said. Rastus did not like it there. He would very much have liked to tell her that, too, for he wanted to go somewhere else, he knew not where. Just being a pet dog was the very last thing in the world he wanted to be—for in his eyes a pet dog was very small and unimportant in the world.

When three days had passed and Rastus had eaten hardly one bite of food, and had lived mainly by drinking water, the kind lady became alarmed and telephoned the lady she had bought from. When Rastus' mistress came to see what was the matter, who should she have with her but Baldy, Rastus' grandfather.

"I am sure he must be lonely. I have brought this old dog to keep him company until he becomes accustomed to his new home," his old mistress said.

As soon as she had departed and left the two dogs together, old Baldy started right in to scold his young grandson.

"What do you mean by not eating your meals?" he said.

"Why I don't want to live here," Rastus wilined.

"You don't want to live at all, by the way your are acting," Baldy reproached him. "You just eat up that dish of food over there, before I give you a good shaking."

Rastus was really hungry and he ate up the dish of bread and meat that had been prepared for him. How foolish he had been not to have eaten it before, he thought after he had finished, for it felt good inside of him and now that old Baldy was there he felt much more cheerful.

When the kind lady came in again he was ready to make friends with her; and so attached to her did he become that at the end of the week old Baldy was sent home and Rastus did not mind being left there at all.

If only something would happen to make him an important dog, he thought longingly. Something important was going to happen very soon—and perhaps Rastus was going to become important after all.

Around the Grate Fire.

Dear Miss Grey.—We have taken The Advertiser for a number of years and like it fine.

This time I would like to ask a few questions:

1. At a Halloween party if you win a box of chocolates, about ten being in the box, are you supposed to keep them or pass them around when there were about fifteen present?

2. Are dresses to be worn quite far below the knee or just to the knee, this winter?

3. Have you any Christmas recitations and dialogues for young girls from 10 to 15?

4. Could I have the stocking-foot pattern?

I must close, or I will not leave any room for the other Boxites.

I also would like to know what day March 24, 1905, fell on.

Am leaving my address with Cynthia Grey, so if any of the readers have "Jean de Pris," it may be forwarded to Cynthia Grey.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

90 MEMBERS OUT AT A HOCKEY MEETING IN CLASSIC CITY

Game On Boom in Stratford—Formation of Athletic Association Urged and Favored.

Stratford, Nov. 5.—That Stratford is right up on the list in hockey was manifest this evening, when at the annual meeting of the Stratford Hockey Club there were 90 members present. There was a feeling of optimism and enthusiasm regarding prospects for the coming winter, and it was predicted that Stratford will be heard from in both junior and intermediate ranks. Dr. Lorne Robertson is again president of the club. At the meeting preliminary steps were taken in an effort to get some action toward the formation of an amateur athletic association.

President Robertson reviewed last year's successful season.

Before the election of officers was proceded with it was decided that the executive should be composed of five, four to be elected and one named by the players.

Another motion placed the club on record as in favor of an amateur athletic association.

The officers elected were: Honorary presidents, Hon. Peter Smith, Mayor Stevenson, J. C. Garden; honorary vice-presidents, W. J. Piggott, D. M. Ferguson, Charles Farquharson, Judge Barron; president, Dr. L. Robertson; vice-president, A. C. McLeod; secretary, A. C. Barnsdale; treasurer, R. L. Whitman; executive, W. Gerby, W. Schultz, Ed. Tout and Roy Brothers.

There was a lengthy discussion on the question of an amateur athletic association, the outcome of which was the decision to proceed with such an organization. To do this the officers of the club, together with W. Easson, F. W. Trebell and J. C. Garden, were appointed to arrange for an open meeting within thirty days, at which all branches of sport should be represented.

BAN JOHNSON SAYS JOINT SESSION NOT TO BE HELD MONDAY

Chicago, Nov. 5.—President Ban Johnson of the American League today intimated that there will be no joint session of the major league club owners in Chicago Monday afternoon.

Johnson's stand was taken by fans to be his reply to the reports from New York that President Heydler of the National League had issued a second invitation to the American League executive and to the "loyal five" club owners supporting Johnson to join with the National League and the Chicago, New York and Boston clubs in session here Monday afternoon.

President Johnson yesterday issued a call for a special meeting of all the club owners of the American League to discuss league matters. The session was set for Monday morning in Chicago. It was expected today that discussion will arise at the Monday morning meeting dealing with consideration of plans to reorganize the national commission.

Johnson's forces, consisting of the Cleveland, St. Louis, Detroit, Washington and Philadelphia clubs, while agreed that a change in baseball laws is necessary in the light of the recent scandal expose, object to the feature of the Lasker plan of baseball reorganization which calls for a governing body of disinterested parties to succeed the present national commission.

A special meeting of the National League club owners has been called for Monday by President Heydler. The joint meeting Monday afternoon of National and American League club owners and managers will spend Monday in Chicago and Tuesday the storm centre will move to Kansas City, where the National Association meets.

Western Jumps Into Game Confident in Ability To Crumble Up Blue and White

Varsity Used Seniors To Trim St. Mikes, But Seniors Will Be Busy At McGill Today—Mills, of Queen's, To Handle Game.

All it needs is a little consideration from the weatherman, and London football fans will be treated today to the best game of rugby that this city has ever seen. With both the Toronto Varsity and Western teams at full strength and full of confidence the battle should be worth going miles to see. Toronto calim that their defeat in the Queen City at the hands of the locals was a fluke, and they prove this by the fact that they beat St. Michaels twice in Toronto, while the latter trimmed Western in Toronto after holding them to a tie in London. Now this may be Toronto logic, but it is certainly not the Western point of view. There are several facts to combat their argument. In the first place the Varsity outfit had a dry field on both days that they met the Irishmen, and their heavier line was able to smash the light St. Mikes' line whenever they wished. Then, too, Varsity had the assistance on the punter who has been alternating on the firsts with Gordon as well as several senior men who had only played one senior game. It was noticed that when they met St. Mikes the second time with their own kicker on they had a very narrow escape from a defeat. Now with Varsity first playing in Montreal today the visiting collegians will have to depend on their own efforts entirely, and as their lineup is the same as it was when Western defeated them in Toronto the dope looks good for the locals. Then, too, the locals have had another hard game in which to get their men working together.

One Varsity Advantage.

True Varsity should have the advantage, because their team has been lining up against their seniors for eight weeks, while the few men to choose from at Western makes it hard for them to get enough out to have scrub lineups. This point has been overcome this last week, however, and right here the scrubs who haev come out and faced the heavy Western line this week, so that the latter might be in their best shape to meet Toronto deserve all the credit in the world. The lot of a scrub is a hard one, and if Western wins today no small amount of praise will be due these same scrubs.

Hon. Coach Mel Brock has had a busy time today, securing officials for the game. Eric Reid and George Little are the only men west of Hamilton who know the new Intercollegiate rules, and as the former was called to his father's bedside in New York, and the latter was unexpectedly called out of town, it left Mel in a hole. However, after burning the wires to Toronto and Hamilton, and being unsuccessful, the president of the Intercollegiate Union, Prof. Skelton of Queen's was appealed to, and he wired late last night that he was sending W. S. Mills, the star halfback of the Queen's University team, to handle the game. It means a heavy expense for Western, but the Athletic Association directorate are determined to see that none but competent officials handle any games in London. The teams will take the field at 2:30, and the winner will play McGill II. the following week for the intermediate title. As the winner of the Western group almost always cleans up the championship it looks like a Western flag this year.

Following is the line-up of the teams for this afternoon's game:

Toronto.		Western.
Prendergast	Flying wing	Heard
Paterson	Half	Cowley
Allen	Half	Traynor
Ketchum	Half	Cline

AS YOU WERE

A dry field, an even break and one of the "in" days of the crew is all that Coach Brock is asking for this afternoon's crucial battle with the Varsity Two's and if the Western U. doesn't hold the championship of the western division of the Intermediate Intercollegiate series tonight, then there'll be no excuses, ready framed, to offer.

The Blue and White figure it was Western's lucky day the game they were beaten and another source of their confidence is in their two defeats of St. Mikes in a decisive fashion, while the best the locals could do was tie the Irishmen once and accept defeat the next time up.

There are arguments on both sides and it looks like an even toss when the both teams take the field this afternoon. Western's kicking and recent good plunging will weigh in with Varsity's ability to hold a line and several speed merchants, on the Blue and White line.

A Lot of New M. A.'s.

The adoption of compulsory boxing in the high schools of the province may have its opposition, but a significant fact in regard to the question is that every collegiate principal in the city of Toronto was in favor of boxing as one compulsory sport and the one head opposed was not opposed to boxing itself so much as to centering compulsion on the manly art.

There's a wide gulf between boxing and prize-fighting, only some people persistently fail to see the gulf, unfortunately. However, there is one side of the parental house from which support will come—even if it is through a hole in the back fence—for compulsory boxing. Of all sports, this is the most likely to create the type of manhood the nation needs in every walk of life.

VETS FIRST AMATEUR BOXING CARD WAS A CLEAN-CUT BILL

Fans See Sgt. Prudhomme in Action—Ince and Kid Curtis Scored Knockouts in Semi-Finals, Ince Losing To Allison in Finals.

As was more or less expected the amateur boxing tourney staged by the Army and Navy Vets at the armories last night, was not a successful financial venture, but from all other angles the event was an unqualified success, with a crowd large enough to encourage the Veterans into promoting more shows of the kind they produced last night.

From the opening gong to the closing round the bouts were hustled along with a few unavoidable delays, and for the first time in a long time London boxing fans saw a card go through according to advance notices.

Sergeant Prudhomme's exhibition three-round go with his sparring partner, Berryhill, wound up the bill, and while as is usual with exhibition affairs, it lacked punch, the fans had a good opportunity to look over the Pats boy, who came near copping off the world's middleweight honors in the Olympic. Prudhomme, despite his sturdiness, is fast and showed a lot of good headwork and footwork, has a full repertoire of jabs, ccuts, uppers, and his record shows he has a punch.

Two knockouts came during the evening. In the lightweight semi-finals Ince of city slipped the sleeping potion to McCall of the Pats after 1¾ minutes of fighting, and Kid Curtis of the city jabbed Pte. Connolly of the Pats into partial submission before finally unleashing a left to the jaw for the fini in the first minute of the second chorus.

Murphy of the Pats got the decision over Hastie in the bantams in five rounds, and then met G. Johnston in the finals. The boys were even, but Johnston lost because he failed to carry the fight to the Pats man who had fought five rounds before.

McCullough of the Pats, lightweight, after doing a tersichorean effort for two rounds against Allison, came to in the third, necessitating another round. He undertook to walk into punishing straight rights and lefts here and lost out.

Ince and Allison met in the finals of the lightweight, but the former couldn't get his short jabs working effectively against the Pat man's awkward but effective defence. The Pats man was guilty, too, of holding and grizzlying, but the few he got home were more punishing than those Ince landed on elbows and back.

Sergeant Wallace, who directed the bouts, put on a three-round go with Pte. Madden of Pats. It was a burlesque, but enough to show that Wallace hadn't forgotten the knowledge that carried him to the featherweight championship of the Indian army. Madden also exhibited a neat bag of tricks.

Tom Cook refereed to the entire satisfaction of everybody. J. C. Bryant acted as M. C. and Dal Le Broc as timer.

After the bouts General Panet presented the cups won by Ptes. Allison and Murphy.

GRANITES SELECTED TO DEFEND S. P. A. TROPHY

Toronto, Nov. 5.—Granites, O. H. A. senior champions, have been notified that they have been selected to defend the Sportsman's Patriotic Association trophy in the annual series, which opens early in December. It is not known yet which team will be accommodated first, but it is thought that Kitchener or Aura Lee will challenge. Hamilton Tigers have never participated in the Patriotic Association series and their intentions for this season have not been announced.

-J-A-B-S-

The Army and Navy Vets didn't expect to make anything on this show—and they didn't—so everybody ought to be satisfied because the crowd surely were.

None of the decisions were apparently found fault with by the crowd. Knockouts are about the only things that will save a headache judging amateur shows.

Murphy and Hastie put up a good exhibition, the former edging in sight in the third round and taking the verdict in the fourth after he had Hastie tired, and was able to score four clean leads. Hastie had enough left to get only slightly shaded in a toe-to-toe exchange on top of the final gong.

McCullough in the next bout looked too flashy to last long against Allison's awkward style, but telling jabs and weighty pushes. The youngster was game, and when decidedly groggy in the fourth, he showed symptoms of the fighting instinct by automatically ducking, though he couldn't see what he was ducking from.

Connolly, a long, rangy, open fighter, managed to keep Kid Curtis out for the first round, and slipped over some nasty wallops when the Kid did get in past. In the second, however, he came in wide open for several body jabs and Curtis then slipped out and round-armed a K. O. home.

G. Johnston, against Murphy, lost in the first two rounds, when he failed to go in after the Irishman, who slipped over long-range taps from time to time. When the smaller city man mixed it, he showed good infighting knowledge and might have, had he bored in, received a decision. He only showed this tendency at intervals, however, while Murphy who had boxed five rounds already, took a chance on being shaded lightly in the close mixes trying to land a swing.

Ince's showing against Allison was the surprise of the night. His style was cramped right from the gong, as Allison met his advances with a two-handed counter lead. Just the time when one of Ince's short jabs should have been meeting ribs, Allison's elbows somehow got in the way, more by accident than design apparently. If Ince led for the face, Allison slipped into an anchorage on his chest. And so on. But meanwhile, Allison was pushing through blows that eventually landed, and even if they weren't clean hits, they landed where they set out for.

The trouble with boxing shows in London has always been that the crowds were not sufficiently kept in check as to cheering and remarks. While cheering cannot be eliminated entirely in any place other probably than the National Sporting Club of London, England, it can be kept down to a minimum.

Gen. Panet, probably with the National in mind, ordered that no cheering must be done or the bouts would be stopped. Rules in every boxing club in the British isles, with the exception of the N. S. C. permit cheering, but no abuse, advice to the players or rough language.

O'Neil, who had the leg up on Le Chatelet in the Royal Oaks Stakes, said the horse refused to break, although he put the whip and spurs to it.

O'Neil's winning mounts this season number 127. Last June he won the Epsom Derby in England with Spion Kop.

"COMMISH" ORDERS VALGAR-BURNS BOUT STOPPED IN FOURTH

French Flash Warned For Not Trying—Money Held Back by Veterans.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—After warning Benny Valger of New York in the third round for not trying in his bout here tonight with a boxer said to be Frisco Frankie Burns, the boxing commission ordered the bout stopped in the fourth round, and held up the money coming to them from the Great War Veterans' Association. No official action was announced by the commission, outside the holding up of the money, but both men will probably be reported to their respective state commissions.

The best bout of the evening was between Chris Newton, ex-amateur lightweight champion, and "Scotty" Lisner. In the first round Newton went down for the count of nine, but came back strong and outpointed Lisner in the balance of the go by a fairly wide margin.

Harry Stone, Toronto, in the four-round curtain raiser, forced Dan Loney of Galt to quit in the third round.

CLEVER RUSE TO GET LIQUOR A FAILURE

Three Port Huron Men Returned From Sarnia Empty-Handed.

Sarnia, Nov. 5.—Many are the ways and wiles of the thirsty in these days along the border, and a well authenticated tale related today graphically reveals the extremes to which those with parched throats will go to secure a supply of booze.

Frank Smith, said to be a resident of Port Huron, brought his motor car across the river tonight, and told the Canadian customs officials at the wharf that he was going to visit a relative in this city, and would not be here very long. On this understanding he received permission to enter, drove up the ferry hill and away.

Some time later a telephone message revealed that he had journeyed not to the home of a "relative" but to a house on the lake shore a few miles above Sarnia, accompanied by two men, one of whom had been previously deported from the city, but who had been brought across the river at a point a few miles below Sarnia, and with his friend had joined Smith.

Upon arrival at the lake shore house, it is said, Smith presented a check alleged to have been signed by the owner of the property, along with an order for the release of a quantity of whiskey, the check apparently constituting a retainer fee for the caretaker of the "wet goods." He, however, balked and refused to deliver the whiskey, and when the trio showed signs of attempting to take it by force, he telephoned to the authorities with the result that as Smith was returning through the city he was stopped, taken to the wharf and questioned, and at the conclusion of the "quiz" was ordered to return to Port Huron, and advised that the reciprocal agreement respecting the transportation of automobiles was cancelled in so far as he was concerned.

It is reported that the other two members of the party returned to the American side of the river by the same route they took in entering Canada.

TORPID LIVER
FOR OVER FOUR MONTHS

The duty of the liver is to prepare and secrete bile and serve as a filter to the blood, cleansing it of all impurities and poisons.

When the liver becomes lazy, slow or torpid it is not working properly, and does not supply sufficient bile to thoroughly act on the bowels and carry off the waste products of the system, hence the bowels become clogged up, the bile gets into the blood, constipation sets in and liver troubles follow.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills quickly remove the secretions, clear away the waste and effete matter by acting directly on the liver, and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood, and cause so many troubles.

Mrs. Alice Mehill, Napanee, Ont., writes: "I was very badly run down, and had a torpid liver for four months. I tried several remedies, but got no relief. One day my husband brought me home a vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and before I had used half of it I was much better. I only used two vials, and I am a different person today. I can safely recommend Laxa-Liver Pills to any one troubled with liver trouble."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Nervous Breakdown

"I am so nervous it seems as though I should fly"—"My nerves are all on edge"—"I wish I were dead." How often have we heard these expressions or others quite as extravagant from some loved one who has been brought to this state by some female trouble which has slowly developed until the nerves can no longer stand up under it. No woman should allow herself to drift into this condition without giving that good old-fashioned root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

Read the Letters of These Two Women.

North East, Md.—"I was in ill health four or five years and doctored with one doctor after another but none helped me. I was irregular and had such terrible pain in my back, lower part of my body and down each side that I had to go to bed three or four days every month. I was very nervous, tired, could not sleep and could not eat without getting sick. A friend asked me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am sorry I did not take it sooner for it has helped me wonderfully. I don't have to go to bed with the pain, can eat without being sick and have more strength. I recommend your medicine and you are at liberty to publish my testimonial."—Elizabeth Weaver, R. R. 2, North East, Md.

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was run down and nervous, could not rest at night and was more tired in the morning than when I went to bed. I have two children, the youngest three months old and it was drudgery to care for them as I felt so irritable and generally worn out. From lack of rest and appetite my baby did not get enough nourishment from my milk so I started to give him two bottle feedings a day. After taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman, full of life and energy. It is a pleasure to care for my children, and I am very happy with them and feel fine. I nurse my baby exclusively again, and can't say too much for your medicine."—Mrs. A. L. Miller, 2633 E. 24th St., Minneapolis, Minn.

Waterloo County to Consider Securing of the Freeport Hospital.

Kitchener, Nov. 5.—The campaign for the organization of a chamber of commerce got under way today, when the directors of the board of trade discussed the details and decided in one big effort to interest the citizens in the proposition. It was decided to continue the campaign for four weeks, the last week of which will be devoted to soliciting members. The date of the opening of the campaign will be announced later. The first public meeting has been arranged for next Thursday.

No Entertainment for Travelers.

A. Butler, president and general manager of the Butler Bicycle Company, returned to the city today after spending two weeks in England, and in an interview declared that two weeks in England were more than enough for him, under conditions existing in the British Isle at present.

He declared that as a result of chaotic labor conditions, scarcity of sugar, high prices of all foodstuffs, England is a poor place of entertainment to the traveler. He had intended to stay in England for two months, London being his native city, but after a few days of privation decided there was no place like Canada for the balance of his vacation. Although London is pulsating with Bolshevik agitators he declared there seems no apparent danger of the Englishman taking the Russian spouters seriously.

Tuberculosis Campaign.

The executive of the Waterloo County Health Association have announced a campaign, starting November 11, in all municipalities of the country for the collection of a fund sufficient to warrant the opening of the Freeport Sanatorium, which has been closed by the Government, on December 1, for Waterloo County tuberculosis patients. Kitchener has been assessed $12,000, and it is confidently expected this objective will be passed. The campaign will terminate at midnight on November 12.

Fire partially destroyed a frame dwelling at the rear of the light commission plant on Gaukel street at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The tenant went out and left a hot fire with the drafts on. The house was badly gutted.

THROWN UNDER TRUCK.

Guelph, Nov. 5.—As a result of being run over by a motor truck shortly after noon today, D. F. Heron, 8 Ontario street, is now lying in the General Hospital, suffering from severe injuries. Besides having one hand badly crushed, he also sustained bruises about the body and limbs, and is likely to be laid up for some time. The accident occurred near Mr. Heron's home when in trying to jump from the International Malleable Iron Company truck while it was in motion, he lost his balance and was thrown under the wheels, the rear part of the car passing over his body.

FACTS FOR FARMERS

ONTARIO CROP REPORTS.

Reports from Ontario confirm previous estimates, and show that a crop very greatly in excess of last year's is being harvested. Side worm is reported in some sections of Western Ontario, but generally the fruit is remarkably free from insects and fungi. The following are notes taken from reports received from our correspondents—Georgian Bay district: The crop will be fully up to the September estimate or at least 50 per cent greater than last year's, the apples being larger in size but hardly as well colored. In well-sprayed orchards the crop will run 65 to 80 per cent No. 1 and No. 2; in other orchards not more than 50 per cent. A much larger percentage of the crop going into storage than in 1919. Walkerton district: As previously reported, the crop will be lighter than last year; little spraying having been done very few apples are fit to pack in the higher grades. Russets are a good crop, of fine quality. Lucknow: Good quality where sprayed; Spies and Baldwins turning out better than was expected. St. George: Apples packing out better than was expected, particularly Spies; quality good. Brantford: Apples have grown larger than usual, the quality in sprayed orchards is good, and even some unsprayed orchards show fair quality, the color being good in all cases. Lambton County: Estimate of September of a 200 per cent increase over last year's crop is confirmed; all varieties except Baldwin practically a full crop; quality has improved both in size and color, and apples should pack about 60 per cent No. 1. Some scab has appeared during last three weeks, especially on Greenings.

WANTED—2,000 TEACHERS.

[From the Farmers' Sun.]

According to the minister of education there is a shortage of two thousand teachers in this province, due largely to the poor salaries paid. Reports from almost every centre in the province indicate dissatisfaction on the part of the teachers with salaries being paid them, and in general with the educational system in vogue in Ontario.

Of all the problems awaiting solution by the Drury Government none approaches in importance the educational question. The matter of salaries is only one of the many features that have to be adjusted. We must provide our boys and girls with better school facilities. The one-roomed school doesn't provide an adequate education. It is a wasteful makeshift and much more expensive in the long run than a consolidated school where a real education could be given the boys and girls without forcing them to leave home.

The rural schools of the future must be made community centres, where concerts, movies, lectures and meetings of various kinds can be held in the evenings as well as providing better facilities as a place of instruction during the day. In brief, the school must be made the most attractive spot in the community instead of the least attractive, as is the case today.

THE MYSTERY OF HAIRLESS LITTERS.

(Experimental Farms Note)

To the swine grower the phenomena of hairless litters is a mystery in so far as origin is concerned. He simply knows that sows normal in every way farrow litters that are quite abnormal in one, all, or a combination of the following—completely or partially hairless, with undeveloped hoofs; blind; very large, flabby and with abnormal development of the head and neck; very small weak and undeveloped generally. Such pigs usually die in from a few hours to a few days after birth. Not all pigs in the litter are so affected, some being quite normal. The sow remains normal.

While the scientist has arrived at what is possibly the direct constitutional cause, the preliminary causes are also more or less in mystery.

Some Inconsistencies.

A breeder may one year lose 30 per cent of his pigs, and the next year, with the same breeding stock, feeds, quarters, water and management, obtain a normal increase. In certain years and localities that trouble seems to be almost of an epidemic, only to disappear entirely. Is it due to seasonal influence? Is it transmissible? Is it due to some poisonous element in the sow's ration which leaves her unharmed, but which arrests or renders abnormal the later development of the pigs in utero?

Apparent Cause of Hairless Pigs.

It cannot be stated definitely that the cause is seasonal. Certainly there is no consistency in such a claim. The possibility of contagion is also most difficult to assume. It would, further, seem illogical that any actual poison, to the foetus would leave the sow quite unharmed. Apparently the difficulty lies in some deficiency of the sow's ration—which is essential to the normal growth of the little pig. Apparently, too, this malady or abnormality is similar to the thyroid affections of calves and lambs.

Gilts are more predisposed to give hairless litters than are adults, possibly due to certain deficiencies in the ration being entirely absorbed by the dam. Further, the trouble is in practically every case confined to the winter-carried litter, and is very rarely seen in the summer or fall litter. Apparently certain deficiencies in the ration may be corrected by the sow in the summer from other sources, whereas she has no recourse during the winter unless supplied artificially.

Here is what is known at present:

1. That a ration for the pregnant sow highly proteid or nitrogenous, predisposes to hairless litters, but that in many cases the correction of the balance, and constituents of the ration apparently corrects the trouble. While there are plenty of cases to the contrary in Eastern Canada, the trouble is usually scattered widely, and in all likelihood due to malnutrition. Sows are frequently given insufficient exercise, too little vegetable matter, such as clover hay and roots, and little or no mineral matter, such as charcoal, ashes, earth, etc. They have depended largely on a more or less highly proteid ration—shorts, bran, elevator screenings, etc.

What the Scientist Has Shown.

It has been proven conclusively that the activity of the thyroid gland has a marked effect on the development of the young; further that the activity of this gland depends quantitatively on its iodine content. Exhaustive investigation has shown that in the sow this iodine content was much lower during the normal or usual months of pregnancy, than at any other time during the year. All of the above the hogman may regard as fearful and wonderful. The fact remains that the introduction of iodine into the pregnant sow's ration may have the effect of causing a normal litter, where the contrary had been the case previously.

Methods of Prevention.

There is no way to treat the affected small pig. Prevention only is possible through the sow.

1. Feed a light grain ration, as required, but balance it with plenty of clover hay in racks, and with pulped mangels or cooked turnips. Make mineral feeding a feature, charcoal, soft coal, wood ashes, ground rock phosphate, earth, soda, etc. The use of tankage fish meal, bone meal, etc., is also recommended, placed where the sows may help themselves from self-feeders or in the meal ration, 2 to 5 per cent. In many cases, as previously stated, particularly in Eastern Canada, such preventive practice for some reason, is effective. In Western Canada, however, where the phenomenon is regularly the cause of very serious losses, the trial of a direct addition of iodine in the form of potassium iodine would be recommended. The minimum doses required to give results is not definitely known; however, the administration of 5-grain doses of potassium iodine daily during the pregnant period has proven almost a certain preventive. In fact, the use of this drug two or three times weekly is recommended, where it is used during the complete gestation period. In practice, the best plan would be to have a druggist make up a solution of known strength or dilution. By the use of a small measuring glass a sufficient quantity of the solution to contain 5 grains of potassium iodine could be added, and stirred into the slop or meal, depending upon the number of animals fed.

THE VALUE OF TRAP NESTS.

[Experimental Farms Notes.]

Out of the many styles of trap nests the trigger type, now being used at the experimental farm, Nappan, has proven to be very satisfactory.

If any of our readers are not familiar with the construction of this nest, we would be very pleased to have them write us for a sketch of its construction.

Wherein lies the value of trap nests? Their value is fourfold. First, it is a means of securing the individual records; secondly it shows up the "boarders"; thirdly, it enables one to keep a pedigreed stock established; fourthly, they have an economic value.

It is very apparent that by using the trap nest, one gets the individual records of each bird and that, from these, the boarders are easily detected and only the profitable fowls kept. Furthermore, the outstanding birds can be selected and their progeny used. In this way one can raise the standard of production very materially.

Has Economic Value.

It may not seem so apparent that the trap nest has an economic value, for at a first glance it would appear that more labor and expense had been added to the poultry work. A few figures taken from data compiled at the experimental farm, Nappan, N. S., during the past ten months, obtained by the trap-nesting of one pen of 53 Barred Rocks, also a pen of 53 White Leghorns, will answer this.

Out of the 53 Rocks, 22.6 per cent laid less than 100 eggs in the ten months, their average being 7.14 dozen, which, at the average market value of 50 cents per dozen, would realize $3.57. It cost $2.81 for feed alone, thus leaving a balance of 76 cents. The remaining 77.4 per cent of the birds produced an average of 10.95 dozen per bird, realizing at 50 cents per dozen $5.48 at the cost of $2.81 for feed, thus leaving a balance of $2.67 per bird. Therefore a hundred birds like the former would only give a profit of $76 over the cost of feed, while 100 like the latter would give a profit of $267.

Out of the 53 White Leghorns, 37.7 per cent laid less than 100 eggs in the ten months, their average being 6.3 dozen per bird. These, valued at 50 cents per dozen, give $3.15, and, deduct cost of feed, $2.81, leaves a balance of 34 cents per bird. The 62.3 per cent over the 100-egg mark laid an average of 10.9 dozen per bird, at 50 cents, realized $5.45, less than $2.81 for feed, leaving balance of $2.64 per bird.

Now it cost practically as much to keep the poor hen as it did the good one, and from the foregoing figures one can readily see the value of trap nests as a means of increasing the profits of our poultry plants and that one will be well paid for the extra labor and expense.

MILK RECORDS HELP PRODUCTION

There were 2,838 cows in 263 herds in Ontario recorded for the month of August in connection with the cow testing work carried on by the dairy branch of the department of agriculture. A study of the records showed several things, one of which was that there is a big difference in the average monthly production of cows in one section when compared with the cows in another part of the province.

For example, there were 129 cows in fourteen herds in one of the best dairying districts of Ontario, which averaged 663 pounds of milk and 23.65 pounds of fat. In another section, 168 cows in seventeen herds averaged 557 pounds of milk and 20.27 pounds of fat, a difference for the month of 106 pounds of milk and 3.32 pounds of fat per cow. At $2.45 per 100 pounds of milk, this means that each of the owners of the seventeen herds with the lower production would have had more than $25 additional revenue, had their cows averaged as much as the better herds. This is worth considering, is it not?

But there is a reason for this difference in production. In the better herds, milk records have been kept for years and the herds have been graded up to a higher standard while this is the first year milk records have been kept in the seventeen poorer herds. It pays to know your cows. Write to the dairy commissioner, Ottawa, for free record forms and start now to weed out the poor cows.

THE MILKING OF COWS.

Shall cows be milked twice or three times a day? To the average reader this may seem of small concern. To the farmer and dairyman it is a question of considerable interest. Tests have recently been made in Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario, Professor Barton of the Macdonald College says that it has been found from the standpoint of economy and safety that a cow giving 60 pounds of milk should be milked three times. Both Professor Trueman of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College and Professor Barton are agreed, however, that unless the udder is over-distended there is little or no advantage to be gained by milking three times a day. These authorities are quoted in the September number of the Agricultural Gazette of Canada. Professor Wade Toole also contributed to a solution of the same problem by giving results of tests made at the Ontario Agricultural College. The tests are to be continued, and Professor Toole hopes to be able to give a more definite opinion another year than he does at present. In the meantime he shows that three high-class pure-bred cows gave more by thrice than by twice milking a day. His present conclusions, however, are the same as those of Professors Barton and Trueman.

HINTS FOR KEEPING VEGETABLES FRESH.

Urban and rural dwellers are confronted every fall with the problem of storing to the best advantage vegetables grown on vacant lots and in gardens. Shrinkage and decay take heavy toll every fall and winter.

R. S. Mackintosh, horticultural expert, says that all vegetables should not be stored the same way in the same cellar. The storage best adapted to potatoes, beets, carrots, parsnips, vegetable oysters and other varieties of roots is the ordinary cool and reasonably moist cellar. Winter squash and pumpkins, on the other hand, should be thoroughly ripened and then put on shelves in a warm dry section of the cellar, and near the heating plant. If stored in the ordinary cool, moist cellar they are likely to decay in a few months. Squash and pumpkins should not be piled up high. A well-ripened Hubbard squash, says Mr. Mackintosh, stored in the manner here outlined, should keep until May.

In order to limit shrinkage as much as possible, the root crops mentioned should be covered with dry sand or soil, dry leaves or straw or chaff, as soon as they are placed in the cellar. Cabbage should be kept reasonably moist, and on shelves, so that the air can circulate around them. If sufficient shelving is not available they may be wrapped in paper and suspended from the ceiling. Most of the outer leaves should be removed.

The moisture supply in cellars can be kept fairly constant by having some sand or soil that can be moistened occasionally. A tub of water will aid in keeping vegetables from drying too much.

Onions placed in storage should always be kept cool and dry to prevent loss.

BLENHEIM

Blenheim, Nov. 4.—About 12 o'clock last night, a fire broke out in a small barn belonging to Mrs. Kilpatrick, a short distance off Talbot street south, near the heart of the business district of town. It was first noticed by John Larabee, who resided nearby and who was awakened by the glare of the flames. He rang the fire bell. The building and contents, which consisted of an old hearse used by Robert Kilpatrick some years ago here when in business undertaking, also some furniture stored in it, were completely destroyed.

Origin of the fire is a mystery as the building was unused and under lock. The building was too far gone to save by the time the fire company arrived. Incendiarism is hinted in some quarters as the cause as no person is known to have been in the building for some hours.

The town council at a meeting last night directed that a resolution of thanks and appreciation for services rendered during the gas crisis prepared by Solicitor R. L. Gosnell, Clerk P. S. Shillington and Mayor Alex. Clunis, be presented to Gas Commissioner Estlin, Premier Drury, Hon. H. Mills, Attorney-General Raney and Percy Lanz, who was appointed here to handle the gas situation. The resolution also expresses confidence in the members of the Government to handle the gas situation in the future. The resolution carried unanimously.

The proposal to take over the old power house and fit it up as a hest room and public library by an expenditure of about $10,000 came up again last night at the council meeting. Mrs. Story, local regent of the I. O. D. E., presented the matter to the council on behalf of the Women's Institutes of the district, urging that a bylaw be submitted to the ratepayers of town to raise by debentures $3,000 as the town's share with an understanding that Harwich raise by debentures or otherwise a like amount and the Institutes raise the balance. She held the institutes were strong behind the scheme the rest room greatly needed for ladies who came to town to shop, and the library room for the town and district. The council will likely submit the bylaw according to action taken last night.

The anniversary of Armistice Day on Nov. 11 will be celebrated here between 11 and 12 o'clock. The I.O.D.E. are at the head of the movement. The council are giving it support. On the lawn in front of the town hall a large white cross bearing the names of the men who made the supreme sacrifice will appear. The council members, officials, school board, school children and teachers, returned men and others will form a procession, deposit a flower at the foot of the cross as a tribute of respect in memory of the heroes. A short public service will be held.

The reeve of town, G. F. Reycraft, Solicitor R. L. Gosnell, the reeve of Harwich, John Cameron, Clerk G. Riseborough, Assessor Gladstone Smith and others will attend the court tomorrow in Chatham when the appeals against the county equalization will be heard before the court.

Duck shootig on Rondeau is said to be good during the last few days. The cold windy weather has driven the ducks in from the lake and a number of the hunters have taken splendid bags.

The strong winds a short time ago made a finish of the pond net fishing. Some who had their nets still out had them destroyed by the storm.

The public school suffered considerable this week in attendance. Three days the shutting off of the gas caused it to close for part of each day, and the other two days, Thursday and the other two days, Thursday and Friday, are teachers' convention days, necessitating that both days be holidays.

Many tobacco growers are anxiously waiting to hear of some buyer making his rounds in this district.

CHATHAM

Chatham, Nov. 5.—Patriotic fund disbursements for the city and county of Kent for month of October totalled $210,000. This amount included a number of donations made for confinement cases.

The second day's session of annual convention of the East Kent Teachers' Institute passed off quite successfully, a number of papers being delivered by visiting teachers.

Equalization Court.

The special court appointed to hear appeals against the adjustment of taxes under the equalization plan met in the judges' chambers in the city hall this morning. Appeals were made by the following townships—Romney, East Tilbury, Raleigh, Harwich, Dover and Chatham, and also from the town of Blenheim, all of which had counsel representing them. Owing to the lack of the necessary detail for the passing of any judgment, the court adjourned until Monday, November 29. The court was composed of Judge J. J. Coughlin of Windsor; Judge Ward, Stanworth, and Sheriff J. R. Gemmill of this city.

ASKS $25,000 DAMAGES.

Windsor, Nov. 5.—Charging alienation of his wife's affections while he was serving overseas in the Canadian army, Bruce Bruner, a Harrow farmer, commenced suit in the supreme court in session at Sandwich today, against Colin Arner, a butcher of that town, for damages of $25,000. The plaintiff alleges that during his absence overseas the butcher had improper relations with his wife.

What the Press Agents Say About the Shows

AT ALLEN'S

TWO BIG FEATURES AT THE ALLEN NEXT WEEK. "WHAT WOMEN LOVE." NEW PICTURE OF ANNETTE KELLERMAN PRESENTS NUMEROUS THRILLS IN BEAUTIFUL SUPER COMEDY OF THE SEA AND HONOLULU BEACHES.

Annette Kellerman's claim to the title of "The Modern Venus" will never be contested by those play-goers who see her new super comedy of the fashionable Honolulu beaches, which is to be shown at the Allen Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The star, whose mastery of the sea has made her famous, is at her best in this remarkable production which Sol Lesser has sent to the screens of the country.

Marvelous underwater swimming, during which the heroine struggles with a giant of a man; breath-catching dives from the masts of vessels, beautiful glimpses of fashionable Honolulu and elaborate interior settings make "What Women Love" one of the most finished screen offerings of the decade.

The story was written for Miss Kellerman by Bernard McConville, author of many of the Mary Pickford plays, and was directed by Nate Watt, who was previously identified with Lois Weber.

Miss Kellerman is particularly fortunate in a supporting cast. Wheeler Oakman, famous for his roles in such productions as "The Spoilers," "The Ne'er Do Well," "Mickey," and "The Virgin of Stamboul" plays opposite while Carl Ullman, Ralph Lewis, Walter Long and the famous Bull Montana play important parts.

A remarkably dramatic story, beautiful photography, the swimming of Miss Kellerman and her artistic presentation of the difficult role, make "What Women Love" a First National Attraction, one of the year's best photoplays.

"What Women Love" is the very special attraction for the Allen's big super feature week and is certainly worthy to head this muchly anticipated occasion.

There will also be a delightful Christie comedy, The Chester Outing picture, Allen's All Canadian News, and the overture will be Gloriana by Fiume, presented by the incomparable Allen orchestra.

CHARLES RAY, THE WONDER BOY, MAKES BEST PICTURE OF HIS CAREER IN "FORTY-FIVE MINUTES FROM BROADWAY," AT THE ALLEN THURSDAY.

"Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," which is the second big special for the super-attractions weeks at the Allen and which is showing next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is the first Ray independent picture, and by the same token Charley has made it bigger and better than all his others combined.

Ray as Kid Burns, an ex-prize fighter, battles with his wits against many crooked enemies of his pal. His knock-out evidence convicts one faker, while he administers a solar plexus to the hopes of a fortune-hunting mother and daughter, and then proceeds to batter his way into the heart of the girl he loves, winning the fight for justice for his friend and sweetheart through alertness and the terrific wallop he carries in his invincible left. Kid Burns, the former pugilist, is one of the most refreshing members the screen has produced in a long time and you'll do more laughing, get more genuine fun, out of "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway" than you ever thought could be crammed into one picture.

The screen version keeps very close to the original George M. Cohan's stage script, but owing to the unlimited opportunities of the screen, all those delectable scenes which had necessarily to be left out of the stage production, are shown in all their humor and speed. "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway" is snappy from the word go, and if you are naturally short of breath you want to be careful when you see Charlie's latest.

BABE RUTH AND HOW HE KNOCKS HIS HOME RUNS IN SPECIAL ADDED ATTRACTION ON ALLEN PROGRAM THURSDAY.

How would you like to see the world's greatest ball player in action? Would you care to see how Babe Ruth knocks his home runs? Would you like to see Pitcher Carl Mays winging them over the plate in all sorts of curves, ins, outs, drops and so forth. Well, Babe Ruth thought that it would be a good idea to make a picture of himself by himself, and for the public, so he got a cameraman and a slow and fast motion camera, and this is the picture. At the Allen next Thursday, Friday and Saturday you will see this famous star in action, and you will also see the Mighty Mays executing his famous underhand delivery with the speed of a cannon ball. Every action shown in detail by slow and fast photography.

DOYLE AND DIXON, WITH THE SEASON'S BIG MUSICAL SUCCESS, "JACK O' LANTERN," AT THE GRAND TWICE TODAY.

Doyle and Dixon, aptly called America's greatest dancers and comedians, will be seen at the Grand twice today in Charles Dillingham's wonderful production of "Jack o' Lantern," which delighted a large audience at the Grand last evening. No attraction could offer such a wonderful variety of amusement as is provided in this musical extravaganza which played for one solid year at the Globe Theatre, New York. Doyle and Dixon, whose skill is the wonder of all who see them, are always expected by their public to have something new and daring in every performance. In their present vehicle they have many new and delightful surprises. The entire performance and production are the same as played during the long and successful run in New York. If you want to enjoy one of the best musical plays of the season, a trip to the Grand and an evening with Doyle and Dixon will provide the tidiest bit of diversion you've had in many a moon. A company of one hundred capable artists assist Doyle and Dixon in making "Jack o' Lantern" the tid-bit of the year.

HARDEST WORKING ACTOR IN THE WORLD IS CHARLES CLINE —COMING TO GRAND IN "THE WANDERER."

The hardest working actor in the world has been discovered playing one of the important roles of "The Wanderer" which comes to the Grand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with popular matinee Wednesday.

It is generally believed actors have the easiest kind of a loafing job, with no occupation whatever in the day time, and merely a life of unalloyed joy in the evening when they stroll carelessly to the theatre, daub themselves with grease paint, strut their brief hour upon the stage, and then have wine suppers with doting admirers who send them mash notes and wait for them at stage doors in beautiful limousine cars.

But the life of the average actor is no such thing, and as for Charles Cline of the company presenting "The Wanderer," he is simply a bear for work. He ought to draw five or six different salaries, but he doesn't, simply because a genius is seldom adequately rewarded. Now look at all Charles Cline does in "The Wanderer," and then make up your mind whether or not you want to be an actor.

In the first act, Mr. Cline comes on as a shepherd. It is his duty to look after the sheep, see that they don't fall off the runway, keep them away from the goats, and guide them across the stage.

The moment he is out of sight behind

Exactly What You May Expect to See In This Production

Inasmuch as the picture itself is an apostle of truth, it is of extreme importance that its contents and its message should be made plain. "Open Your Eyes" deals with what is commonly known as "the social evil." There is no mincing of words—no hushing of facts. The dreadful consequences of careless neglect, of unscrupulous medical quackery, are portrayed without a veil to hide their ugliness. At the same time, there runs through the dramatic story a note of hope, a promise of escape—if only you are willing to "Open Your Eyes."

What the Press Agents Say About the Shows

the scenes with the sheep, Mr. Cline makes a quick change to a harvester, and comes on later in the same act when Richard Thornton, as the leader of a gang bringing in the harvest. He has to carry two big bundles of hay up the runway sixty feet high, and then walk down the intricate path in view of the audience, without letting a foot slip which might plunge him and the two bales of hay to the stage sixty feet below.

The third appearance of Chas. Cline comes in the next act. He appears as a gay loiterer of Jerusalem.

A few moments later he has to make his fourth appearance—this time padded with a false stomach, to make him appear much older than he is. Now he is Barzil, the collector of taxes for King Solomon and his genial smile and winning personality makes friends with the audience. This is the first speaking part of the evening, although he has been on the stage already three times during the play.

After the scene with Jether, old Tax Collector Barzil quietly slips off into the wings. The moment he is out of sight, Mr. Cline runs quickly off to his dressing-room. He takes off his false stomach, puts on a white wig and white beard, and the flowing white robes of the prophet who has to denounce the revellers in the house of sin.

Within two minutes, Mr. Cline appears as the prophet, properly curses the revellers and threatens them with the divine vengeance and makes his exit.

Instantly he runs back to his dressing-room, puts on the false stomach of Collector Barzil, changes the white wig for another and comes on for the gambling scene, where he has to denounce Jether for cheating with false dice. This makes his sixth entrance in the place.

When the gambling scene is over, Barzil makes his exit, and once more Mr. Cline runs to his dressing-room to make up as a harvester for the last act, and later in the same scene he appears as a water carrier, making eight distinct changes for him during the play.

Of course, Messrs. Comstock and Gest could simplify things by engaging several actors to do these different roles, but Mr. Cline says that he wants to keep in good physical condition by hard work, and he hates being idle. So all other understudies let Charlie do it.

"THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS."

Among the musical comedy triumphs of theatrical history, "The Maid of the Mountains" still holds the leading and commanding position, having played a five years' continuous run at Daly's Theatre in London, and now being presented in England, Australia and Canada.

The company which has been brought to Canada for a limited tour before going into New York and Chicago is the one which just ended a five years' engagement at Daly's in June, and in it are included many of the foremost English musical comedy and operatic stars.

Possibly the most noted of them being Fred Wright, Viva Daron, H. M. White, Edward D'Arcy, Paul Plunkett, Theresa Mills, Jack Durant, Fred Forest, Bert Byrne, Walter Dolphin and a host of others.

The identical chorus which turned the heads and won the hearts of so many Canadian soldiers during the London run, has been brought out here intact.

"The Maid of the Mountains" possesses that rare thing in a musical play—a coherent story that is not merely an excuse for a few songs and choruses and a lot of comedy business. It is quite operatic in its tendencies. It is in very deed a play with a musical setting; a play about a maid named Teresa, who is a musical comedy relative of Carmen, with an added strain of constancy in love, and who adores the chief of a band of brigands, named Baldasarre.

Being a woman, she was jealous of any other of her sex who gained his affection, and so she betrayed him when he went to release her from captivity, but later she repented, and the pair were reconciled.

There is, of course, a lot more to the story, and it is thoroughly wholesome all through.

The music of "The Maid of the Mountains," its picturesque settings, and inimitable charm, added to the work of a really capable company, inevitably make for a brilliantly enjoyable entertainment.

"The Maid of the Mountains" will be the attraction at the Grand for three days commencing next Thursday, November 11.

"THE LAW DIVINE" COMING TO THE GRAND.

The transcontinental tour which is now under way with Mr. H. V. Esmond, Miss Eva Moore, and their complete London (Wyndham's Theatre) company in "The Law Divine," Mr. Esmond's latest comedy, under the auspices of Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, bids fair to equal in popularity that of "The Maid of the Mountains." In this delightful entertainment the well-known playwright is seen at his best, and both

Medical Authorities, Y. M. C. A. Teachers, Ministers and Bishops Indorse "Open Your Eyes" As Great Message

A Drama With a Double Purpose—Not Only Thrills and Entertains, But Also Leaves a Thought Behind—Social Evil Is Handled With Commendable Discretion — At Majestic All Next Week.

From its phenomenal run in Toronto where it broke all records of attendance, comes the most-talked-of picture of the age "Open Your Eyes," which is to be shown at the Majestic all next week to continuous performances and to special prices.

The picture has been thoroughly and enthusiastically indorsed by leaders among educators and public health officials in every city where it has been shown. In addition to telling a throbbing living story of love betrayed "Open Your Eyes" is a picture with a purpose. Vibrant with dramatic power, it gets under the skin of the spectators, and while it entertains and thrills, it leaves a sovereign thought behind. Briefly, "Open Your Eyes" is the story of two girls, both young, beautiful and innocent, just budding into young womanhood. One finds her mother all that a mother should be. Her questions are frankly and sensibly answered, and consequently, she is able to avoid the pitfalls that lie in the pathway of youth. The other, less fortunate, finds her mother too busy with social duties to listen to her daughter's questions, and when the lonely girl turns to companions of her own age for knowledge she gets it first hand from a handsome "rounder," young in years, but old in wisdom of the ways of the world. The contrast between the careers of the two girls, one protected and shielded from the dangers that lie about her by a wonderful mother; and the other "going it blind," as so many young men and women do in life, makes a powerful and romantic story, especially when the "rounder" after bringing shame and suffering upon one, becomes engaged to the other. How a terrible fate on her wedding eve makes one of the strongest scenes ever staged. Interwoven with this romantic story is a vivid warning to parents to talk frankly and openly with their children as they grow to young womanhood. As one of the characters in the story expresses it, "It is far more important to consult your future son-in-law's doctor than to look up the young man's record in Bradstreet's. Silence in these things is not golden. It is criminal!" The cast is long and introduces some very human characters encountered in every-day life, from the reputable physician to the sinister "quack" or "fake" doctor who hangs out his shingle in the big cities and offers to treat men's diseases, "consultation free." The story is admirably acted, and the scenes, especially the Broadway cabaret and the roadhouse, are realistically portrayed. Although the fate of the "rounder" is tragic, the whole tone of the aim is one of encouragement through warning, not one of depression and despair. The language of the screen is one understood by all, and after seeing "Open Your Eyes" one sees an impression a thousand times deeper and stronger than talks and lectures and tons of literature could ever produce. No children under sixteen years of age will be admitted to see the picture.

Scene from the wonderful drama with a double purpose "Open Your Eyes," which not only thrills and entertains, but instructs and teaches in the campaign against the most terrible enemy of civilization. Shown at the Majestic all next week. Continuous performances.

TELEPHONE QUIZ WIDENS, TOUCHES ELECTRIC FIRM

Toronto Counsel Wants To Find Out Relations With Northern Electric.

OSLER GIVES DENIAL

Bell Counsel Says Northern in No Sense Subsidiary To Telephone Company.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—After having heard protests from several representatives of ratepayers' associations and a number of doctors and other citizens here today, against the Bell Telephone Company's proposed advance in rates and special charge for outgoing calls, the Dominion Railway Board adjourned the sitting, as this city was not ready with its case against the company, G. R. Geary, corporation counsel for Toronto, told the board of commissioners that this city would not be ready to present its arguments for about six weeks.

Mr. Geary stated that the city wanted to look into the profits of the Bell Company and the Northern Electric Company, the latter being regarded as a subsidiary of the Bell company. The city wished to find out the relationship between the two companies, Mr. Geary said.

Denies Connection

Glyn Osler, K.C., counsel for the Bell Company, said there should be no suggestion that the Northern Electric Company was a subsidiary of the Bell Telephone Company, as the business of the former was in no sense subsidiary. Mr. Ostler offered the city the figures prepared by the Northern Electric Company's auditors, but the corporation counsel declined to accept this offer. "I want first-hand information," he said.

The railway board issued an order giving the city authority to inspect the Northern Electric Company's books. During the discussion on the question, Mr. Geary had promised that the figures would not be made public for possible use by competitors of the company.

Would Affect Banks

H. W. Shapley, for the Bankers' Association, asked and was given permission to file at a later date, a tabulated statement of the proposed rates as they would affect banks.

C. J. Decker, representing the Toronto General Hospital, stated that in one month the hospital had 31,950 outgoing calls, which would mean a total of $1,435 in costs a month. The present cost, he said, was $236 a month.

Dr. F. C. Marlow and Dr. Edmund E. King pointed out that the new rates would seriously affect the medical profession, whose business was with private parties and much of it charitable work.

SPRACKLIN'S BOAT TARGET OF RIFLEMEN

Attackers Fired From American Waters—Could Not Be Chased.

WINDSOR, Nov. 5.—License Inspector J. O. L. Spracklin's motor boat was under fire yesterday afternoon near Fighting Island, the assailants being the occupants of another motor boat, evidently bound for the American shore. The inspector's boat, which was occupied at the time by Mark Heaton and License Officers Gurney and McCausland, was lying in mid-stream with her engine dead when the other boat put out from the island and headed for the American side.

When the boat was about half a mile within American waters, the occupants opened fire on the official launch with high-powered rifles, but, owing to the distance between the "gunboat" and the target, none of the shots struck the official launch, although some were uncomfortably close.

No clue as to the identity of the occupants of the American boat could be gained, and the officers were unable to give chase, owing to the fact that their attackers were in American territory.

INGERSOLL CO-OPERATORS PURCHASE PROPERTY

Building of Store Will Be Carried Out by Stock Company.

INGERSOLL, Nov. 5.—The movement to establish a co-operative store has resulted in the Central property on Thames street, formerly the site of the John Northway store, which was destroyed by fire a few years ago, being obtained. The land was purchased from George P. Mason, and it is the intention of those interested in the movement to begin building operations at once. The building will be 50 feet wide, 88 feet in depth and three stories high. It was decided to form a joint stock company to finance the building and gratifying success is reported.

MISSING TWO WEEKS, OTTAWA MAN FOUND

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—William Dougan, of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, who disappeared from his rooms on October 21, was found today alive and fairly well. He was discovered this afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock in the pure food building at the exhibition grounds. He stated that he was unable to account for where he had been since his disappearance, and said he was very hungry.

His appearance shows that he has been subjected to much privation, and while he spoke fairly rationally, he was unable to give any account of how he came to wander away from his home and friends.

Province Will Take Action For $3,000,000 Against Lumber Firm

Raney Notifies Harding To Issue Writs At Once—Witnesses Testify To 50 Per Cent Shortage in Spanish River Returns—Judges Sharply Score J. F. Godfrey, M.L.A.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Just before the commissioners in the timber investigation adjourned the sitting here today R. T. Harding, crown counsel, received official instructions from Attorney-General W. E. Raney to take civil proceedings against the firm of Shevlin-Clark Lumber Company, Fort Frances, Ont., concerning whose operations the commissioners recently issued a condemnatory report to the Ontario Government.

"This will be an instruction to you," Attorney-General Raney said in his letter to Mr. Harding, "to take proper civil proceedings for the recovery from the Shevlin-Clark Company of the value of the timber found by the commissioners to have been appropriated by them and not paid for. I shall be glad if you will arrange to have the writ issued with as little delay as possible."

It is stated that the sum involved is about $3,000,000. Mr. Harding, as crown counsel in the timber probe, was instrumental in bringing out the evidence upon which the legal proceedings are being based. Mr. Harding will probably act as crown prosecutor in connection with the trial of the case against the Shevlin-Clark Company.

Fifty Per Cent Shortage.

At today's sitting of the commission crown witnesses testified to a 50 per cent shortage in the returns made to the Government by the Spanish River Lumber Company, covering their cutting operations in the Mississauga reserve.

Expert evidence estimated the actual cut in four years at 7,059,914 feet.

The company's returns to the Government covering three of those four years admitted only 2,521,182 feet.

Robert McKay, K.C., counsel for the company, estimated the company's returns for the four years at between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 feet.

Mr. Justice Riddell remarked: "Then 50 per cent of the scalers' computations were returned to the Government?"

"That is what we contend," replied Mr. Harding.

RIDDELL SCORES GODFREY.

TORONTO, Nov. 5. — "Statements have been made by a member of the Ontario Legislature, which, if made by the ordinary street liar, would have no attention paid to them," said Justice W. R. Riddell, in opening today's session of the royal commission on timber, of which he is chairman.

The chairman then denied the statements made by Dr. Forbes Godfrey, M. L. A., to the effect that he delayed publishing a message sent him by Hon. G. H. Ferguson, asking him not to close the inquiry before he (Mr. Ferguson) had an opportunity to state his case.

Justice Riddell pointed out that, as a result of the disclosure before the commission, the Ottawa Government had already amended the criminal code so that it was now a punishable offence for any person to sign a document purporting to be sworn to, when it was really not sworn to. He suggested that the department send copies of this amendment to the timber cullers.

To Clear Suspicion.

The chairman suggested that Messrs. G. H. Rapsey and W. H. Russell be called to clear themselves from suspicion in connection with the perjuries and forgeries detailed in the evidence of Captain Nicholas of Fort Arthur, Ont.

Robert C. Byers, a culler for the Spanish River Company, stated that he had not sworn to some affidavits which purported to have been made by him. He admitted that, on instructions, he had deducted five per cent when scaling logs, and this reduced return had been entered in the shanty book, from which the returns were made to the Government. A correct amount, he said, had been kept in the company's books.

Was Ill at Time.

Albert Grigg, deputy minister, was informed by Mr. Justice Riddell this afternoon that Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, when a witness before the commissioners, had stated that Mr. Grigg had not done himself justice when he gave evidence, through being ill at the time.

"We don't want any half-baked evidence," Commissioner Riddell said, "but want you to go over your evidence and tell us what to accept as your final evidence."

Mr. Grigg said he had not objected to the evidence, which he gave some time ago, and had not found any particular point to which exception had been taken by Mr. Ferguson. However, Mr. Grigg said he would inform the commission tomorrow as to whether he wished to make any modifications or additions to his evidence.

The inquiry will be continued tomorrow.

The interim report on the Spanish River Company's case will not be made until after argument of counsel, which will take place on November 27.

NEW POLICE MAGISTRATE FOR WINDSOR IS NAMED

W. E. Gundy, Lawyer and Real Estate Agent, is Given Post.

WINDSOR, Nov. 5.—W. E. Gundy, real estate man, and well-known lawyer of the border, has been appointed new police magistrate for Windsor by W. E. Raney, attorney-general. The announcement of the appointment pleased the local barristers, city officials and residents of the district. Mr. Gundy was the organizer and moving spirit in the working out of the Government housing system, which already has completed 50 homes for border residents, and is preparing 200 additional homes. He has been in close touch with all activities on the border during his residence there. He has a thorough knowledge of law, and coupled with this, according to Mr. Raney, a personality able to cope with conditions on the border.

Before the appointment was announced today members of the Merchants' Retail Association visited the city hall with a protest asking for better police protection for the down-town districts of the border cities. The merchants told the police commission that goods valued at $10,000 have been taken in small lots from several stores during the last three weeks.

One instance was cited by the delegation where 15 dozen suits were taken in one night from the store of Samuel Schwartz, 39 Sandwich street east.

TRADE OF CANADA WITH SOUTH AFRICA GROWS, SAYS ROWELL

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(Montreal Star Cable).—After three months' traveling in South Africa, Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell arrived last night in London. His itinerary included Cape Town, Kimberley, Bloomfontein, Durban, Pretoria and Johannesburg, and by steamer to British East Africa and the Red Sea.

Trade between Canada and South Africa in manufactured products has considerably increased since the war, Mr. Rowell said. Two hundred Canadian firms were now shipping goods. Trade Commissioner Egan at Cape Town was doing excellent work. Canada now competes with the United States and Great Britain chiefly, but soon must consider German efforts. As regards trade in South Africa itself, it is fairly prosperous, but was suffering from world stagnation.

Mr. Rowell accompanies Sir George Foster, Hon. Dr. Reid and Hon. C. J. Doherty next week to attend the League of Nations convention.

SAYS EVIDENCE ABOUT OUTRAGES IS IRRESISTIBLE

Asquith Charges Servants of Crown With Organized Crime Drive.

APPEAL IS USELESS

Former Premier Holds That Urging Parliament To Act Is Futile.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—In a speech at Cardiff, Wales, tonight, former Premier Asquith declared that evidence that servants of the crown were being allowed with virtual impunity to engage in a campaign of organized outrage, was overwhelming and irresistible.

An appeal to Parliament, he said, was useless. Alluding to statements attributed to him advocating a separate navy for Ireland, the former prime minister explained he never intended that Ireland should have anything not granted the great dominions, and he would make it an absolute condition that the imperial navy should always have free access to all Irish ports.

Should Ireland be ill-advised enough to start her own navy, added Mr. Asquith, it must be under conditions agreed to by all the dominions at an imperial conference.

TWO UNOFFICIAL SETTLEMENT PLANS

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Two interesting, although unofficial, attempts are being made to solve the Irish question, it developed today. The first of these is an effort by influential political quarters to induce the Government to communicate with the Sinn Fein members of Parliament in order to try to reach a practical agreement and prevent the ruin of Ireland.

The second is that three Coalition members of Parliament will formally propose a plan for withdrawing the military in Ireland to strategic centres and allowing the local authorities to take the responsibility for the preservation of law and order with the eventual idea of negotiation of a political settlement of the problem.

WELCOME FOR PRINCE FROM LONDON'S MAYOR

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(By Canadian Associated Press).—The Prince of Wales paid a visit to the Mansion House today to receive a welcome from the city of London, on his return from his Australian and New Zealand tour. The prince, in reply to the address of welcome tendered him by the lord mayor, addressed a stirring appeal to the people of Great Britain "on behalf of his old comrades in the field."

The prince said:

"Since armistice I have had special opportunities of seeing and talking to thousands of ex-soldiers in various parts of the Empire. I cannot help telling you how impressed I was by the energy with which the dominions are grappling with the problems of repatriation and settlement. I in no way am contrasting their problems with ours, because their numbers are smaller than ours, but it is up to us in the old country to see that we do not fall behind the dominions in our treatment of the ex-service man."

EAT and Get Thin

This is turning an old saying face about, but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat; opposed to physical exertion; fond of the table and its good things, and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, go to your druggist (or write to the Marmola Co., 96 Garfield Building, Detroit, Mich.) and give him, (or send them) one dollar, thus satisfying your ambition for a trim, slim figure, by receiving a good size box of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription); take one of these pleasant candy tablets after each meal and at bedtime, and you will lose your fat at the rate of two, three or four pounds a week.

Then continue the treatment until your weight is what you desire. Marmola Prescription Tablets are not only harmless but really beneficial to the general health. You don't need starvation diet or weakening exercises. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

BOY ASKS SHELTER, SAYS PARENTS AND TWO SISTERS BURNED

Chatham Police Do Not Credit Youngster's Wonderful Story of Escape.

CHATHAM, Nov. 5.—A youngster, aged 11, walked into the city police station here last evening with one of the strangest tales that were ever whispered into the ears of Police Sergeant Dezelia.

He stated that his home used to be near London, but that fire visited the place two days ago, and his father, mother and two sisters were burnt to death, but he escaped through a window of the house after obtaining a sum of money which he had saved for some time.

Learning of the Children's Shelter at this city he determined to come to Chatham to live in the shelter, and accordingly asked to be placed there. The tale sounded fishy even to the sergeants, but the lad was given lodging for the night by Officer Appleyard of the Children's Aid Society.

Communication was established with both the London city and Middlesex County police, but up to a late hour, no information could be obtained. Little credence is given to the boy's story by either the city police or Officer Appleyard. The lad stated later that his family lived near this city some time ago and then moved to Winnipeg and from there to the Forest City.

IS THIS THE BOY?

WINDSOR, Nov. 5.—Police of the border cities, Detroit and various centres throughout Western Ontario were tonight asked by the parents of Charlie Bloomfield, eleven-year-old boy, who has been missing from his home here since Monday afternoon, to aid in the search for him.

The boy left home on Monday with but $2 in his possession on an errand for his mother to the corner grocery store. He has not been seen since. This is the second time within the past few months the boy has disappeared. A sister, Eva Bloomfield, was burned to death a month ago.

NAMED MAGISTRATE.

ESSEX FARMERS IGNORE LAWS OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND SAYS T. S. BIGGAR

WINDSOR, Nov. 5.—By ignoring the law of supply and demand, Essex County farmers have succeeded in "glutting the market with tobacco, while they have failed to raise enough hogs to grease a pancake griddle," T. S. Biggar, manager of the Hiram Walker & Sons' farm, told members of the Border Chamber of Commerce today.

Farmers throughout the country, he said, had abandoned all other crops, including the raising of grain and roots, for what had previously been more profitable—tobacco.

A PIMPLY FACE OR POOR COMPLEXION QUICKLY RESTORED

Thousands of young men and women would be handsome and attractive were it not for unsightly pimples, blackheads and rough, uneven skin. Custom seems to recommend lotions and salves, but unfortunately their effect is but temporary. These disfiguring blemishes do not originate in the skin—their birth in every case goes further back, to the blood, which must be cleansed of humors before the pimples depart for good.

A physician who has made a careful study of such cases says that the quickest cure comes from a blood-building medicine like Ferrozone. The minute Ferrozone strikes the blood its good work begins. Poisons and foul matter are expelled. Every trace of humor is driven out, and the whole life current is supplied with nutriment and health giving qualities. You can always tell a Ferrozone complexion when you see it—the cheeks are clear and rosy, no signs of sallowness—the eyes are bright and expressive because rich, red blood is circulating through the whole system, carrying health, energy and strength with it. Not only will all skin eruptions disappear, but an increase in vital strength, an all-round improvement will be apparent. No rebuilding tonic could be more efficient. Get Ferrozone today—good for young and old, for well folks and sick ones, too. 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

The High Cost of Luxuries

THE PEOPLE of this continent spent for life insurance premiums in 1919 about one billion dollars. At the same time they spent for tobacco over two billions of dollars, and for candy products fully one billion dollars.

We do not argue against the use of either of the luxuries referred to, or of others that might be mentioned. Our query is—does a fair proportion of the people's surplus earnings go into life insurance? Could we not "change the emphasis" and secure more protection while perhaps enjoying fewer luxuries.

The price of a "Sundae" or a cigar laid aside daily will carry $1000 of Endowment Insurance

A saving of only 72c. per day would assure to the wife of a man aged 35, she being the same age, a monthly income for life of $50. Every month throughout her life the remittances would continue and in the event of her death within 20 years, the monthly payments would be continued to the wife's estate—that is 240 monthly payments would be guaranteed.

USED ROSS RIFLE

Referring to the razors supplied the army, he aid he did not know how much was paid for them, but if the price was a nickel it was too much.

He next dealt with the manner in which the election was conducted overseas.

Great difficulty had been experienced in teaching the Canadian soldiers to use the "dirty" tricks of bayonet and hand-to-hand fighting, which had to be employed to meet the Hun at his own game, but the Union Government had had no compunction about using the most ruthless methods in the overseas election. Not one iota of information concerning Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his policy was allowed to reach the troops, but they were paraded daily and lectured on the necessity for conscription, being promised three months' leave of absence if it passed. Persistent efforts to link up Sir Wilfrid with Bourassa and Lavergne also were made.

Pensions Mismanaged.

Awarding of the pensions has been mismanaged, he charged, and gratuities have been wrongly divided. Ranks above that of captain lost nothing by their war service, and some of them made more than they would have in civilian occupation, but from the rank of captain downwards they lost money. No objection was made to this while the war was on, but the policy was carried on when gratuities were paid. The privates received six months' pay of $70, while brigadier-generals received $17 a day for the same period. All these matters were making the returned men hope for the day when there would be a government at Ottawa which would listen to them.

Contradicts Burnaby.

Mr. Charlton made a flat denial of Burnaby's charge that he was responsible for the three-cornered fight in the riding and had no business there. He asked what right Mr. Burnaby had in the riding. He pointed out that both Stansell, the Conservative candidate, and McDermand, the U. F. O. candidate, if returned to Ottawa will be acting under instructions while as an Indepenednt-Liberal he would be free from this type of control.

"Mr. Burnaby will find out that whether he thinks I have a right here or not he will have something to contend with," said Mr. Charlton. "I am here by right of being a British subject, and also because the Liberal party after the 1917 election asked me to continue the fight in their interests. Anyone who has come in since that time is an interloper and must take the consequences."

For every dollar collected by the Government from customs, four dollars goes into the pockets of the manufacturers. He criticised the "orgy of borrowing" by which the Union Government financed its regime and said the cost of administering the war should have been paid as it went along.

He criticised the luxury tax because it didn't tax luxuries but necessities. He charged that fixed prices for cheese had not only prevented the farmers from getting a fair market for this product but had also led to a fixed price on milk being taken to the condensers.

James F. Thompson was chairman of the meeting.

Not Wanted by Women.

The speaker then proceeded to outline the history of the U. F. O. representative's candidature. Mr. McDermand was the Liberal choice for the Provincial Legislature. He believed that the women voters should be given an opportunity to indorse his candidature. They were, but they didn't.

Prominent Conservatives promised him the U. F. O. nomination, but once more he missed connections, being promised the federal nomination if he would withdraw from the provincial contest.

"The Conservatives knew that Marshall nor any other Government candidate could win this riding while the Liberals remained united, but if they could divide them in some manner they would be pretty sure of it," Mr. Charlton asserted. "So they played Mr. McDermand. He fell for their play, and took his place in this contest. I was nominated when his political life with the Liberals ended, yet he charges that I am responsible for the three-cornered fight.

"The fight I am in has no corners. It is a ring with a rope around it, and I am right in the centre, and I will stay there."

Off Good Foundations.

The candidate next dealt with the general principles of politics, declaring that the present restlessness was not due to false foundations, but to the fact that humanity had moved off good foundations. Liberalism was one of these foundations. It was based on the broad principle of the brotherhood of man. Such a principle was the only one which cour create a united Canada from the diverse elements existing in it.

Liberalism stood for equality of opportunity which, he pointed out, was considerably different from equality of condition. The latter was an impracticable idea, although it was advocated by "Mr. McDermand's Socialist friends from St. Thomas." So long as every man was given an equal opportunity it rested with his ability what he made of it.

Defines Democracy.

He ridiculed J. J. Morrison's definition of democracy as "public opinion crystalized into law." Public opinion had been srystalized in the kaiser, but that was not democracy. Its true definition was a state of government in which the principle sentiment was that the people governed themselves for their best interests.

Dealing with fiscal issues, he pointed out that Canada derived only 13 per cent of its revenue by direct taxation, while England derived 78 per cent and the United States 58 per cent. Protection of any kind, he contended, was favoritism, and Mr. Meighen's moderate protectionism was merely merely "moderate favoritism." It was the same principle as would be applied to the sickly child of the family. Canadian industries were not in this class, he contended, when manufacturers could live in palaces.

ANOTHER HITCH DELAYS BETTER POWER SUPPLY

Drury Tells Mackenzie Company's Terms Are Unacceptable.

DISPUTE OVER PRICE

Is "Not Willing To Give Whole Crop For Services of Thresher."

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—A hitch has occurred in the negotiations between the Government and Sir William MacKenzie, president of the Electrical Development Company, for the delivery of about 15,000 horsepower to the Provincial Hydro-Electric Power Commission to help out in the present power shortage, and the sanguine announcement of Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro Commission, a couple of days ago to the effect that in a few days htepower situation would be considerably improved, may not be realized. Sir Adam was at his home in London, Ont., today, and Sir William MacKenzie was in Montreal.

The communication from Sir William MacKenzie to the premier stating the conditions on which the Electrical Development Company would supply 15,000 horsepower of the 25,000 needed by the Hydro Commission, and the premier's reply thereto were made public this evening by Premier Drury. The Government plainly tells the company that the conditions laid down by the company are absolutely unacceptable.

The Government insists that the company utilize the waters of the province —which the Government will turn over— and convert it into power for the Hydro Commission or anyone else, for which power the company will receive a fair price. "We are not willing, however," the premier says in his reply to Sir William's proffered terms, "to give the whole crop to pay for the services of the thresher."

Value of Service.

The premier points out that the value of the service which Sir William proposes to charge "current rates" for had been placed by a commission of judges at $9 per horse-power. However, as the Electrical Development Company's case was not placed before this commission of judges, which fixed the $9 rate about two years ago, Premier Drury tells Sir William the Government is ready, if he so desires, to reappoint this commission for the purpose of fixing the price, and if the commission decides that $9 is not an adequate price, the Government will undertake to pay whatever price the commission may decide upon.

Delivery Direct.

As to the company's suggestion that it deliver the 15,000 horse-power to certain customers of the hydro commission instead of to the whole system, the premier states that this would not be satisfactory. He calls attention to the fact that quite recently the Electrical Development Company delivered power to the hydro system direct, and he sees no real difficulty in doing so again, he says.

On the legal aspect of the question as to the company generating more power than its agreement with the Niagara Falls Park Commission, the premier undertakes to see that the company is amply protected if it furnishes the hydro commission with 15,000 horse-power.

The Electrical Development Company's offer was to furnish 15,000 horsepower "at market or current contract prices," but the company declined to link up its plant with that of the hydro commission, as desired by the Government.

BRITAIN, FRANCE, ITALY SUPPORT TURK HOLDINGS

Powers Sign Pact To Aid Each Other—Define Spheres of Exploitation.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 5.—The steamer Zenab, flying the red flag and freighted with ammunition for the Turkish Nationalists in Trebizond, was sunk in the Black Sea off Batum by a French destroyer at ten o'clock Wednesday night, according to advices received here today.

The Zenaz went down after a tremendous explosion occurred on board. Twenty-two members of her crew were taken prisoner.

TRIPARTITE TREATY

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Great Britain, France and Italy have signed a tripartite agreement in which they undertake to support each other in maintaining their "sphere of influence in Turkey." The limits of the areas in which the respective special interests of France and Italy are recognized are defined by the same document. The document is to come into force and be published at the time of the Turkish peace treaty goes into effect. This date is still an uncertainty.

While the treaty defines the spheres of influence of France and Italy, recognizing the special interests of France in Cilicia and the western part of Kurdistan, bordering on Syria and of Italy in southern Anatolia, the British sphere of influence are not undefined but are not referred to. This has raised the question if the agreement is susceptible of the interpretation that the British interests may be hid to extend to any or all the remaining parts of the Turkish empire.

It is noted also that though the note does not take the form of an alliance, it pledges the contracting powers to "render diplomatic support to each other in maintaining their respective positions in the areas in which their special interests are recognized."

One section of the document provides for the exploitation of the Bagdad Railway by a company in which British, French and Italian capital is equally interested. It gives the exploitation of the Heracles coal mines, between Konieh and Adana, to Italy.

Article ten of the agreement provides that nothing contained in it shall prejudice the rights of nationals of non-signatory states to free access to the various areas for commercial and economic purposes.

WHISKEY WAS BAD; PURCHASERS ANGRY

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—Giving evidence today in the case being tried here against J. A. Pesant and R. Ricci, accused of having secured $15,000 by false pretenses in a bad whiskey deal with Detroit parties, J. Boscovitch, an intermediary in the deal, declared that on another occasion he had shipped 100 cases to friends in Windsor. The whiskey, which had been bought by him from Pesant and Ricci as genuine, proved so bad that his friends came to Montreal and threatened to kill him. He had refunded the purchase price, $6,000, though he only got back $4,000 from the defendants, who told him to take it and shut up.

TAKE CARE OF THAT COUGH

Some people get a nasty cough and don't pay much attention to it, saying: "Oh, it will wear away in a short time," but while it may wear off, serious injury may have been done to the lungs and respiratory organs by the prolonged, harsh, racking coughing.

On the first sign of a cough or cold get a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It will stop that nasty, troublesome cough, ease the tightness across the chest, and loosen the phlegm.

Mrs. Wm. Earnshaw, Apsley, Ont., writes: "Last winter I caught a bad cold, had a sore throat and a terrible hacking cough that I could not get rid of. I could not sleep at night. I tried quite a few remedies, but they did not do me much good until I got Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. By the time I had taken two bottles, my cough was all gone. I feel that 'Dr. Wood's' has no equal."

When you get Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, you are not experimenting with new and untried remedy, but one that has a reputation extending over thirty years.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 35c and 60c a bottle, manufactured only by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MAD DOG INVADES SCHOOL YARD AND BITES TWO BOYS

Plucky Act of Another Boy Results in Capture of Dog.

WINDSOR, Nov. 5.—The pupils of Cannon avenue and Sacred Heart schools were terrified today when a mad dog, after racing through the former building, attacked the children on the playgrounds during the recess hour. John Brown, Oak street, and Price Burbridge, Cameron avenue, were badly bitten; the latter was only released when a boy named Tofflemire seized the dog, and then while Whorlow Bull, instructor of singing in the public schools, held it by the collar, pried its jaws loose with a hammer and killed it. The head of the animal has been sent to Toronto. The two boys are under medical care.

WILL NOT VOTE ON SCHOOL.

WINDSOR, Nov. 5.—Declaring that were its proposal for the erection of a $500,000 school at Ellis and Crawford avenue, submitted to the ratepayers of Windsor for a vote at the January municipal elections, it would be made a political football for aspirants to the council and the board of education, and that even were it then passed excavation work could not be commenced until the spring of the year, the Windsor Board of Education today requested the city council to withdraw the bylaw, which was authorized at a special meeting of the council held earlier this week. It is felt also that delay until spring will probably prove profitable in that the cost of material and labor by that time will probably be considerably lower.

HERE are four riddles for boys and girls with wise heads. We told the artist to draw the pictures to represent the riddles, but he guessed the right answers—and put them in too! So we barred him from the contest and told him to keep it a secret. Luckily, he got the answers all jumbled up, so you won't be any the wiser.

If you can unscramble the jumbled letters beneath each riddle picture and put them in their right order to spell the right words, you will have the right answers. It isn't an easy task. Good thinking, patience and perseverance may find you the answers. Try it.

If you think you have found the answers, write them carefully on a sheet of white paper. Put on nothing but your four answers and your name and address in the upper right-hand corner of the page. Handwriting, spelling, punctuation and general neatness will count if more than one answer is correct.

We will write and tell you immediately if you are correct, and send you a handsome illustrated list of all the prizes that you can win.

The majority of office men and women are saying, "I simply must make more money." Trained accountants are earning from $2,500 to $10,000 a year. Businessmen are searching for competent cost accountants, auditors, office managers, etc.

Public accountants are searching for junior accountants who possess the necessary training to develop quickly into seniors.

What the Press Agents Say About the Shows

he and his gifted wife, Miss Eva Moore, have roles which fit them to perfection.

"The Law Divine" has won golden opinions everywhere it has been presented so far in Canada—throughout the maritime provinces, and in Montreal also—as a comedy of the highest type, with scintillating wit, pathos, romance, and shrewd, kindly philosophy mingled skillfully and appealingly.

The story is a simple one, yet told with such a wealth of keen insight into human nature that it impresses all who see it as a page torn from real life rather than a play from the pen of a maker of plays.

The characters are not numerous, but they are all distinctive, and they are all acted by artists of emphatic ability, whose work is characterized by a cleancut quality which impresses the public and lends additional attractiveness to the comedy.

Mr. Esmond himself has never been seen to better advantage than in the role of the husband, hungry for affection, and driven to seek consolation elsewhere, because of his wife's complete absorption in various movements, which leads her unconsciously to neglect her former close adherence to domestic ideals.

Miss Moore is England's premier comedienne, and in "The Law Divine" has a part which fits her like a glove, and in which she finds full scope for her brilliant gifts.

Supporting the company will be found one of quite exceptional excellence all round.

"The Law Divine" will be seen here at the Grand Opera House on November 25, 26 and 27, with the original London company and production intact.

AT THE PATRICIA

ALL-STAR MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Seldom have London music lovers had presented before them such an array of talent as that which will be offered at the Patricia Theatre at the great musical festival on November 8, 9 and 10. This is described as an "all-star" event, and is just that. Every artist is a star; each has been featured separately on programs time and time again.

For the engagement here a program widely varied, so as to please all tastes, has been arranged. Vocalists, dancers, entertainers and instrumentalists of the higher order will contribute to the enjoyment of the audiences. The programs will be sure to please, and capacity audiences should be the rule.

For the first night Harold Jarvis, the tenor who has delighted audiences in all parts of the world, and who has appeared in London on numerous occasions, will be the top-liner. Mabel Manley Pickard, the noted Toronto soprano; Theresa Sheehan, the foremost female entertainer in America; Madge Williamson, the gifted young Canadian pianist, and Luigi von Kunetz's quartet of juvenile violinists. These boys have been playing in the big musical festivals in the United States, and have taken every city by storm. Nothing like them is to be seen on this continent today.

On the second day the Classic Dancers, staged and directed by Miss Sternberg of Toronto will be the feature. They triumphed in Massey Hall, Toronto, and Canadian cities are fortunate in seeing their artistic work. The vocal part of this day is in the hands of the National Quintet, an extraordinary singing organization. The Thiele Music Makers play saxophones, marimbaphone, cornet, etc. Miss Pearl O'Neil of Toronto is the gifted entertainer. This program is beautifully costumed.

The Canadian Big Four handle the third day. Mr. Frank Oldfield is noted for his wonderful baritone voice, unexcelled on this continent. Mr. J. H. Cameron has long been Canada's best entertainer. Miss Maud Buschlen is undoubtedly the finest violinist in this country, and Mrs. Oldfield is a gifted soprano.

Music lovers of London and Western Ontario are welcoming this festival, and will doubtless duplicate the record of other cities, where full houses have greeted it. Seats are now on sale at the Patricia box office.

PATRICIA NEXT THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, GEORGE WALSH IN FANK PACKARD STORY.

Manager Stewart of the Patricia Theatre announces that he has booked "From Now On," a Fox photoplay based on a story by Frank L. Packard, author of "The Miracle Man." George Walsh, the handsomest screen hero of the winning smile, is the star. One of the most successful magazine stories of this year "From Now On" tells the tale of a youth who has started wrong and who is pursued by evil and haunted by his overburdened conscience till set right by the love of a girl. It is a story that grips.

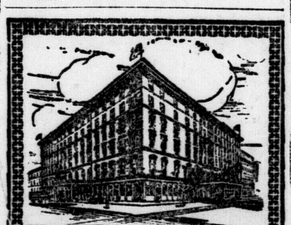

JAMES KIRKWOOD AS WILLIAM GROGAN IN ALLAN DWAN'S PHOTODRAMA, "THE LUCK OF THE IRISH."

The character of William Grogan, which James Kirkwood portrays in Allan Dwan's production "The Luck of the Irish," from Harold MacGrath's novel by the same name, which comes to the Patricia Theatre for two days, commencing Monday, November 15, is the type Kipling had in mind when he wrote "If"—a man who can "keep his head" in every emergency. The hero, an orphan, is thrown on the streets of New York at the age of nine to make his way in the world. His good humor and tenacity help him overcome many obstacles and develop his strength of character. When by a trick of the Fates he inherits a large fortune, he sees in it a means to realize his day dreams. While on a trip around the world he falls in love with a beautiful girl, who is a member of the touring party. He appoints himself her guardian for the trip and comes in for many adventures. William Grogan is called upon to fight many battles in different parts of the world for the girl he loves. It is thrilling from start to finish.

Anna O. Nilsson is the heroine, Ruth Warren. They are supported by an incomparable cast of stage and screen artists.

LOEW'S

CAN THE FUTURE BE FORETOLD BY PLAYING CARDS.—THEY ARE WEIRDLY PROPHETIC IN "THE FORTUNE TELLER," STARRING MARJORIE RAMBEAU AT LOEW'S MONDAY.

Do cards foretell the future?

They are weirdly prophetic in "The Fortune Teller," the Robertson-Cole Super-Special, starring Marjorie Rambeau, the greatest emotional actress of the American stage, which opens at Loew's Theatre for a run of three days.

The screen version of the celebrated stage success dealing with mother-love and psychic phenomena, is even more powerful than the play, the big scenes of which necessarily were limited by the stage restrictions.

"The Fortune Teller" shows a great actress in a great story, a story filled with tense, dramatic situations. The action is rapid and big scene follows big scene with almost breath-taking swiftness. But the "big scenes" are only "pot-boilers" in comparison with the truly great moments of the picture which show Miss Rambeau at the very pinnacle of her art.

Whether cards are false or true prophets is a debatable question, but in "The Fortune Teller" they form the basis of a plot inextricably woven with the appeal of mother-love and the mysteries of psychic phenomena.

The Ace of Spades.

Renee Browning (Miss Rambeau), the young and beautiful wife of Horatio Browning, scientist, believes in the superstition that cards reveal the future. Her jealous, tyrannical husband, occupied with his scientific researches, scoffs at her only pastime. But Renee braves his displeasure by reading the cards whenever the opportunity offers. The act of spades, the card of ill omen, persists in turning up. And at the very moment when the cold, calculating scientist is engaged in a diatribe against the futility of his wife's harmless enjoyment tragedy stalks in.

And tragedy holds the attention of the spectator until mother-love triumphs over seemingly hopeless obstacles, convincing the hard-hearted husband of the insecurity of his position, and brings to the long-suffering wife the happiness she had longed for.

Miss Rambeau, who completely dominates the picture, is supported by an excellent cast, including E. Fernandez, who played the heavy in the stage production, Frederick Burton, Raymond McKee, T. M. Koupal, Franklin Hanna, Virginia Lee and Cyprian Giles.

A Mack Sennett comic titled "Fresh From the City," will take care of the laugh end of the bill. Loew's Screen Pictorial and Loew's supreme vaudeville, headed by William O'Clare and Girls in a jovial festival of music, harmony and dance completes the bill for the first half of the week coming next.

ELABORATE ARCHITECTURAL SETTINGS FAITHFULLY COPIED IN FILM AT LOEW'S THURSDAY NEXT.

Students of architecture will find much of interest in "A Dark Lantern," the feature film starring Alice Brady, which is showing Thursday at Loew's Theatre. The story is a tense romance with the scenes laid in three countries —England, Italy and Argovinia, a small European principality, so that three distinct types of architecture were necessary as fitting backgrounds for the action.

The picture was filmed in Chicago, during the run, last spring, of "Miss Brady's stage success, "Forever After," in the lakeside city. Long trips "on location" were impossible, as the actress had to appear at the theatre every evening promptly at 8 o'clock to be ready for the first curtain. So elaborate setting had to be built in the studio, and any one who has seen the picture will agree that no pains were spared to make these studio sets perfect examples of the "indoor exterior." Several authentic interiors were also reproduced, from photographs, perhaps the most beautiful being rooms in the famous Davanzati Palace at Florence, and also rooms in the Villa Curonia, Florence. An exterior of the Villa Balbianello an Lake Como is undoubtedly the most interesting exterior that was built. For the English scenes the company went "on location" to a beautiful estate in Lake Forest, near Chicago, where a perfect type of English architecture was found.

"A Dark Lantern" will be seen at Loew's Theatre for three days, commencing next Thursday.

At the Patricia next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Feature attraction at Loew's Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

SCENE FROM THE FORTUNE TELLER. STARRING MARJORIE RAMBEAU

Feature attraction at Loew's Theatre for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

MAJESTIC

MAJESTIC PLAYERS TO OPEN AT THE MAJESTIC THEATRE MONDAY, NOVEMBER 15.

Monday, November 15, London will be formally introduced to what is conceded to be the finest company ever formed, "The Majestic Players." Messrs. Grew and Power feel that the company which will grace the boards at the Majestic will meet the tastes of the most fastidious theatregoers.

The formal opening, the company will offer the great New York dramatic success, "Within the Law," followed by many of the current New York successes, many of which will be presented in London and at the Majestic for the first time in Canada.

The company numbering fourteen in number, will arrive in the city Sunday and work of rehearsing and getting scenery and details ready for the opening week will commence. William Grew well-known New York director, will have charge of the company and H. P. Young, who is well known throughout Canada for his excellent work with the famous Robins Players, who have played at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, for the past five years, will direct the business interests of the new company.

The Majestic has been leased by Grew and Power for the entire season and Manager Young in conversation with The Advertiser yesterday, stated that Londoners will have the pleasure of enjoying the best plays of the season at popular prices. Full announcement regarding the personnel of the company and prices for the season will be made through these columns in the course of a few days.

ACUTE DEPRESSION OF EXCHANGE HAS BEARISH INFLUENCE

Wheat Closes Unsettled, 1 1-4c to 2 3-4c Net Lower—Corn Varies—Oats Down.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Acute depression of foreign exchange had a bearish influence today on the wheat market. Prices closed unsettled, 1¼c to 2¾c net lower, with December, $1.98 to $1.98¼, and March, $1.93 to $1.93½. Corn finished at ⅛c decline to ⅞c advance, and oats, ⅝c to ¾c lower. In provisions varied from a setback of 15c to a rise of 25c.

General selling on the part of commission houses took place in the wheat pit, and no doubt was expressed, but that the principal immediate reason was the tumble of francs to the lowest point since last May, and severe breaks which had occurred in other European exchange. Various aspects of the domestic industrial situation tended further to weaken values. Subsequently indications that export interests had been buyers on the decline led to a rally, but the support failed to last. In Chicago the arrivals totalled only sixteen cars.

Corn was relatively strong owing to the meagreness of stocks available for delivery on December contracts here.

Oats traders took their cue from the downturn of wheat, and ignored the corn bulge.

Provisions lacked support despite higher quotations on hogs.

FURTHER RECESSIONS MADE AT WINNIPEG

Good Demand For Cash Wheat At Unchanged Premiums—Oats Steady.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—After opening lower, wheat made further recessions up to noon, whey buying, credited to short covering, sent prices up only to decline later. The fluctuation here was 2⅝c to 2¾c. There was a good demand for cash wheat at unchanged premiums. The offerings were exceptionally light, indicating that farmers are still holding their grain. The buyers were shippers and exporters.

The futures market for oats and barley showed little change with prices ruling steady. Flax was very weak. Cash coarse grains were in good demand. The offerings were light, and spreads remained unchanged.

Wheat closed ⅞c to 1⅜c lower; oats, unchanged to ¼c lower; barley, 1c higher to 1⅜c lower; flax, 7⅜c to 9⅜c lower, and rye, 1⅛c to 1½c down.

POTATOES ADVANCE TO $2 PER BAG ON LOCAL MARKET TODAY

Small Supply of Poultry Marks Advance in Price—Eggs Also Up.

The small supply of poultry and the active demand made all prices soar. Turkeys advanced from 45c to 48c per pound. Chickens, each, jumped up to from $1 to $1.75, and by the pound they sold for from 30c to 35c. These quotations are for dressed fowl.

Live fowl was more plentiful than dressed. Old fowl brought from 18c to 20c per pound, and chickens by the pound brought from 20c to 22c. Old fowl has been selling for from 15c to 20c per pound for some time.

Eggs were firmer, with the demand good. From 69c to 72c per dozen, wholesale, and from 76c to 80c retail, were the prices paid. The officials could not account for the wide range in prices.

Potatoes advanced to $1.75 to $2 per bag. Officials said that the cause of the jump from their former quotations of $1.75 to $1.85 per bag, was because citizens were just beginning to buy their winter's supply, and owing to the fact that there was a small supply this morning prices could not but help to soar.

The different size of cabbage brought the top price up to 75c. This makes quotations from 40c to 75c per dozen.

The fine weather brought one of the largest November markets that has been seen for some time. Tuesday and Wednesday are expected to be big days owing to several of the villages celebrating Armistice Day on Thursday.

WALL STREET REVIEW.

New York, Nov. 6.—(Wall Street).—The result of the presidential election was received with approval in financial quarters, but the stock market's only response, say among investment rails, was a continuance of the protracted reactionary movement. In large part the inquiry for rails was stimulated by the announcement made early in the week of the intention of the Southern Pacific Company to divorce its oils holding, this plan results in substantial benefits to shareholders.

Other transportation issues, including the Hill shares, which were active and strong on rumors of a possible "melon" in connection with the accumulated surplus of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy road. Coalers derived some of their strength from rumors of dissolution plans like that now in contemplation by Delaware, Lackawanna and Western.

Reasons for the heaviness of steels, equipments and the numerous issues identified with the trade were furnished by further evidence of backward conditions lower-priced rails and an initial contraction of payrolls. Any effort to create a post-election bomb probably would have been nullified by the tightness of money, call loans holding at 9 to 10 per cent with no change in rates for time funs, these, however, being in reduced supply. Foreign exchange was another source of disturbance, remittances to England and all prominent continental centres showing increased unsettlement.

THE EXCHANGE RATE

VI.—What Controls It?

WE have already dealt with the principal Trade factors governing the Exchange Rate, and we now come to the influence of the Inflation of the Currency.

Before the great war, it was universally accepted that a paper currency should have behind it a very substantial gold (or silver) reserve. The purpose of this reserve was to admit of the redemption of paper currency on demand.

One method of war financing adopted by the belligerents was to increase their note issues without a corresponding increase in the reserves of gold. Redemption in full of the paper currency, therefore, became impossible. To retain the gold reserves then existing, these Governments refused, until the return of settled conditions, to redeem in gold any notes which they issued.

Canada made less use of this method than most of the belligerent countries, but the percentage of notes issued against the amount of the gold reserve held has risen considerably.

In the United States, the proportion of notes issued to reserve held did not rise to the same extent, and the comparison is one of the factors in the world valuation of our respective currencies.

Next week in article No. VII. we will deal with a second war measure which has had an important effect on the Exchange Rate, namely, the Restriction on the Export of Gold.

AEROPLANES AID IN FIGHTING FOREST FIRES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Aeroplane forest patrols in California were able recently to reach the scene of a fire 45 hours sooner than had they proceeded by train and pack mule, a report to the United States army air service shows. An aerial observer spotted its blaze in Lassen forest while all foresters were engaged in fighting another fire in the Merced forest. Planes picked up the fire-fighters in the Merced zone and rushed them to the Lassen fire.

"In three hours," says the report, "the fire-fighting personnel was on the job fighting the flames, whereas, had they proceeded by train and pack mule, 48 hours would have been consumed.

"The day will come when men and equipment will be carried by airships to the scene of fire, both men and equipment dropped by parachute, while the airship will rain down fire-extinguishing chemicals from above."

What's In a Book?

Once upon a Time, my friend Philomides who is a Regular Questing Beast when it comes to finding out Quaint Things about Queer People) told me that he had inquired of a Traveler (whom he met on a dining car) whether he liked reading.

"You bet I do," the Traveler answered heartily. My wife gave me a Bookcase for a Christmas present. (She gave me the bill for a New Year's present). It isn't ALL a Bookcase. It's one of those things with glass doors on top, where you could keep smokes and drinks. (If it was safe to keep drinks in a place like that!) It has a flap that lets down to write on; and two shelves for books underneath. And do you know," he added impressively, leaning forward and tapping Philomides on the wrist with the menu card, "I KNOW ENOUGH BOOKS ALREADY THAT I'D LIKE TO BUY TO FILL BOTH SHELVES!"

"Have you filled them?" asked Philomides, faintly.

"N-no-o," the Traveler admitted, "not yet. But I can tell you, Sir, there's nothing I enjoy more of a Sunday than to sit down in my Den, beside that Bookcase, and read the papers." Waving his hand, he departed; possibly—so far as Philomides was concerned—to that Bourne from which no Traveler returns.

But to Philomides he remained as potent and possessive as an electric advertisement that flashes—lonely as a cloud—through the Hydroless Heavens. At first Philomides felt sure that there was Only One of the Kind. Then curiosity took him prospecting among what he called "The Granite Rocks of Ignorance."

"Hundreds of people in this Country that boasts of the finest School system in the world," said Philomides caustically; "Hundreds of people never read ANYTHING except the newspapers."

"There is much that is of real interest to be found there," I asserted, modestly hoping that everybody read ALL the paper. "After all, the newspapers are the greatest molders of Public Opinion, and are the chief Educators of the Age."

Philomides fixed me with his bitterest eye.

"Do you believe in education according to Henry Adams?" he asked.

At that moment I had not the vaguest idea as to whether I did or not. At this one, I am trying to find out. (Mighty interesting work.) And in a couple of weeks I hope to be able to express an opinion.

The Conquering Hero.

Meantime The Conquering Hero marched my way; and I found him one hundred per cent pleasanter than John Murray Gibbon's last book, "Hearts and Faces," which appeared about four years ago. In this book, Mr. Gibbon has written the wholesome, cheerful story of an honest-to-goodness lad who came back from overseas a better Canadian than ever, because he was wise man enough to benefit by the broadening experience. One sincerely hoped that George Grange (the hero of the earlier book) might become asphyxiated by his own megrims and conceit. But one trusts that Donald Macdonald and his like will father a generation who believe in—and act upon—the great Hubbardism, "Blessed is the Man who has found his Work."

Tht fair-haired, rosy-cheeked Kate, practical daughter of the English Colonel, is drawn with a kindly, understanding hand; and if other Donalds (and Donaldas) could bring themselves to "admit—temporarily, at least—that Canada was too much Americanized—that things were cheaper and better made in England—that there should be Free Trade—that Lloyd George was the greatest Statesman at the Peace Conference—that Canadian education was mediaeval—that the sleeping car system was horrible—that the newspapers were poor—that the houses were overheated in winter—even that the Canadians were ungrammatical in their speech"—and if other Kates would respond in kind—it would do much to allay the irritation that every Canadian feels when the incoming English announce in somewhat truculent tones (that yet ask for sympathy) that Canada is "so different from the Old Country."

The Polish Picture Princess shows a character that is delightfully human and natural—Nature tempered with Art—as so many charming women are; while to those fortunate enough to know the Man "who put the 'Happy' into the Valley," the dedication is the most inspirational piece of writing in the book. It is a grand piece of publicity for Canada from coast to coast.

Mrs. Asquith's Book.

If you are one of those who think it bad form to parade your most sacred emotions on a public platform; to take your bath on the lawn; and slap your dearest friend at a crowded tea party—then you will find that Mrs. Asquith's Autobiography is not the line of literature that you would teach your children to imitate, in spite of an aggressive agglomeration of oddly conjoined adjectives (Wow!) that few authors can rival.

How much of it is strictly true, the intelligent reader must decide for himself. The most intimate conversation the "Margot" ever held with Lord Salisbury, she recalls as taking place a year after the latter's death; and she describes a conversation of Professor Huxley's (the mildest of men) as a "blasphemous tirade." Which gives us furiously to think. But most of us view our friends from varied and original angles. And if one may judge from the word portraits of one's own friends who figure in the book, the characters are not only drawn extremely "true to life," but with singular understanding, and—in some cases—a touching gentleness and devotion.

Certainly the book gives an extraordinarily vivid impression of one particular strata of English life—and perhaps one of the most interesting phases of Society that are to be found in that amazing isle. And though Mrs. Asquith has been pilloried as "the woman with the serpent's tongue" (and she certainly has an unusually agile member) the chapters written about her stepchildren make one feel that though "Margot" honestly thinks—and has been taught to think—herself, head, shoulders and hips—above

All the same, in the words (more or female—yet when she recognizes the millionth man or woman, she greets them with a charm and humility that come straight from the heart.

All te same, in the words (more or less) of the poet: "O! to be in England."

"Now that Auto (biography)'s there." must lend a keen zest to life. To wake each morning to a world where Margot's Memoirs and Reppington's Recollections come out "new every morning like the sun," in newspaper, magazine or book form—and to vibrate between fear and hope regarding your appearance therein. To be there—and to know what everybody thinks of you. (Particularly the reading public who have never met you!) Or not to be there—and to know that nobody thinks of you!

SMITH GOT WISE

A sore corn, he said, was bad enough, but to have it stepped on was the limit. He invested in a bottle of Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, and now wears a happy smile. Corn is gone—enough said. Try Putnam's Extractor, 25c, at all dealers.

Sweet are the uses of Autobiography. Provided that you are sufficiently famous, it is probably one of the best Get-Rich-Quick schemes that ever was invented. The English dote on autobiography and have a childlike delight in "watching the wheels go 'round." I do not suppose that half Mrs. Asquith's friends are as distressed by her book as are dozens of Canadians who never met her. This form of self-advertisement has not yet become of interest to Canadians as a Home Product. Is it because we are too self-conscious? Not sufficiently educated? Honestly modest? (Not only concerning ourselves but as regards our neighbors also). Or because our Leisured Class (if we could locate it in any quantity) is too busy to write about itself?

I do not know. But I predict that when we DO begin, we will become fascinated by the possibilities of the thing as an Indoor Sport. The most stirring part of an Autobiography is always that which is concerned with the particular writer's opinions of his or her living contemporaries. Even here, in our own Home Town, there is a mine of rich natural material to hand. Suppose the Just-Retiring-President of the Chamber of Commerce were to write a complete History of his years in Office, with pen pictures of all the personalities with whom he came in contact. Suppose the—

"A PLACE IN THE WORLD."

It was a precarious place. But it was a place that was fresh, funny, stimulating, beautiful, unusual and smile-securing—like the story of that name by John Turner.

"INVINCIBLE MINNIE."

There may be nothing new under the sun—but some people can tell even the oldest story with a new twist. The book leaves a mingled taste in your mouth—of onions, mud and quinine—but you can hardly help being interested in a writer who uses words as well as does Elizabeth Sanxay Holding.

BLACK BARTELMY'S TREASURE.

To the people who like a tale of burler riches, pirates, love, luck and the language of the early eighteenth century—this will be exactly the kind of a book that they like.

CHOICE OF THE MUSICAL CRITIC.

The expert in music, if we may apply this term to the experienced musician, has a strong liking for the piano made by Ye Olde Firme Heintzman & Co., Limited, 242 Dundas street, London. There is a distinctiveness about the tone of this piano that commends it to the music lover. Recently the Ladies' Musical Club of Victoria, B. C., installed one of these instruments in their club for the use of their members, who are musicians of the highest standing. British Columbians generally are very much in love with the Heintzman & Co. piano, the sales in Vancouver, Victoria and other points running up into large figures. Twelve Grand pianos went forward to the coast city a few weeks since. b
