AN EXTRAORDINARY CURE OF A DES-PERATE SKIN DISEASE.

On the 21st July, 1848, the Editor of the "Molussilite" Newspaper, published in Indis, insected the following Editorial a tricle in his paper :-- We how for a fact, that "Holloway's Fills and Oliment set in a most wonderful momes upon the constitution, as an eccentric Coolie, called Elisa, employed in one fatablishment, was affected as in myriada of Rangworms, which defined all the Meer's Decreas, and promeed to devour the poor man before he was under ground we tried "Holloway" upon him, and in a month is was perfectly restored to his former condition and cleanliness of skin. The effect was mirreulous." PERATE SKIN DISEASE.

A Nose Tax.—In the dihensum (No. 1135) there is a notice of the Leabhar an g-Ceart, or Book of Rights, to which in a foot-note on the passage "an ounce (of gold) for each nose," it is asked, "was that a payment calculated by a counting of noses!" Sec. To this question a tember of the Celtic Society hazards a solution, in the subsequent number, founded on a passage in the 'Forus feasan avi Errinn,' to this effect.—"the Danes (or properly the Lachmen) exacted an ounce of gold annually in Eire, ind cut off the noses of all who did not pay the tax." The Celtic quotation of your correspondent is incomplete, as it expresses nothing about cutting off noses, and we must be content with the English version he has given us. Yout critic's supposition that the tax was levied by a counting of noses is no doubt right,—and this seems to have been a mode of taxing of very remote antiquity. I have stumbled on a passage in the 'Ynglingn Suga,' at the close of c. ville, which reads as follows:—"Um olla Svithiod guldu menn Odia skattpenning fyirr neftwer!"—Throughout all Sweden Odin laid a tax (Scattpenny) on every nose."—not on each head, as I find Laing has translated the passage. We also find in the Saga of Olaf the Holy, that monarch demanding of the Icelanders a thangeld, and nose its of a penny for every nose, the penny at the rate of ten pennies to the yard of Wadmel. This was about the year 1026.

not particularly described.—Review of the Irish Doomsday Book in the Athenaum.

Indications of Life in Plants.—Let us take the commonest cases. The flowers of the crocus and similar plants expand beneath the bright beams of the sun, but close as soon as they are withdrawn. The Enotherss unfold their biossoms to the dews of evening, and wither away at the approach of day. Some Silenes roll up their petals in the day, and expand them at night. The florets of numerous composites, and the petals in of mesembry anthemans, are cret in the absence of sun, but become federed when acted upon by the sun's beams; and many other such phenomens are familiar to every observer of nature. It is probable, indeed, that a different action exists in all' plants by day and night; although it is less visible in some than in others; thus plants of corn, in which there is little indication of sleep when grown singly, exhibit that phenomenon very distinctly when observed in masses; their leaves become flaccid, and their ears droop at night. These effects have been attributed to the action of light, and it is probable that that agent contributes to produce them; for a flower removed from the shade will often expend beneath a lamp, just as it will beneath the san itself; and De Candolle found that he could induce plants to acknowledge an artificial day and night, by alternate exposure to the light of candies. But it is obvious that there must be some cause beyond light, because many flowers will close in the afternation, while the light of the sun is still playing upon them, and the petals of others will fold up under a bright illumination; und that cause may be reasonably supposed to be an excitable vital fauid. The experiments of Macaire and Marcet prove, indeed, conclusively, that whatever the true seat of vegetable vitality may be it is similar in its nature to that of the animal kingdom.—

New Baunswick Coming to a Head.—A writer from St. John's, N. B., has recently addressed a letter to the Editor of the Montreal Courier, in which he says, "that the feeling for Independence and Annexation is more widely spread" in New Brunswick than he believes it to be in Canada. "The only difficulty in the way is, our leading men hesitate about taking a bold stand. But the stand once taken, the thing will rapidly gather head." Don't be in too much of a hurry. Take it coolly. Wait a little, till we dispose of California and New Mexico. Then Canada and Cuba may come together; but Nova Scotia and New Brunswick can only be counterbalanced by Jamaica, or another slice of Mexico. We must share and share about, or there will be trouble in the family. Don't let Annexation come to a head too fast in New Brunswick, or it may fizzle out before the time comes. Keep cool.—

ELOPEMENT AND MARRIOS—DECEPTION UPON A FATHER.—On Friday night last, Mr. Thomas B.—and Miss Matilds G.—, of this city, eloped to Covington, and were married. On Friday it was discovered by the father that his daughter had made an "arrangement" to leave him, to marry a man he had forbidden her hand, and he was determined to keep "an eye" on her. It had ter had made an "arrangement" to leave him, to marry a man he had forbidden her hand, and he was determined to keep "an eye" on her. It had been arranged, had her father had found it put, and she knew it that the young lady should meet the young gentleman and lover together at a certain place in a carriage, and go to Covington. After dinner, the father was anted, much to his surprise, to accompany his daughter to the very place of meeting which had been appointed, and they were to start at 4 o'clock. So, the father went about his business this the appointed time—returning, he found his daughter had started before his return. In valid as isosight her, but knowing they would cross in the ierry boat, he stationed himself on it, and hailed every earriage that passed, but found no daughter. At length as empty carriage came abread, sad, on the same trip, a ranged cripple, limping as usually, and staring about as though he had never seen a boot before. He was accompanied by a yout that looking personage in male attire. The forey host passed over, and the carriage stopped at the foot of the hill for the driver to arrange the larness, (all pretext.) and the ranged boy and comparison waited there until the boat again showed of to venture to this side. Then by any man and the father, who was still on watch, and total him what had been done, and have he had been cheated by the ranged by and hereaff in boy's clothes, and then she mildly asted page's parties, which, retuctantly was granted, and the bride, bridegroup, and the old gentleman rode bone together, making an interest and hereaff in how a reining and hereaff in how are destrounded in hereaff in how a content of the bridegroup.

BRITANNIA LIFE ASSURANCE CO., J. R. BOYCE, No. 1, Princes Street, Bank, London. (Lately Assistant to Thos. Coverdale,)

Empowered by Special Act of Parliament, CREDIT RATES OF PREMIUM. May 10.

THE great and decided success which has attended this limitiation has induced the Directors to REDUCE the RATES originally tequired in British North America to the ordinary European Rates. The result of such fleducition is to enable parties to avail themselves of the important benefits of Life Assurance at much lower Rates of Premisir than those of any other Assurance of the Canada. Rates of Premium than those of any other Assarance Company transacting business is Canada.

The Directors have also resolved to extend to British North America the advantages afforded by the HALF CREDIT RATES of PREMIUM which have been so highly approved and are so generally adopted by Policy Holders in the United Kingdom. The most liberal conditions are likewise offered to the Assured in the limits to which they may proceed by see or land, to other parts of North America without affecting their Interest in their respective Policies.
