FARTHER NORTH AND FARTHER AROUND ARE THE ALLIED FORCES

Movement to Encircle General Von Kluck is Still in Progress—Allies Reach Douai, and Announcement is Received With Satisfaction.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(1:15 p.m.)—The fact that fighting is in progress in and around the town of Douai, midway between Arras and Valenciennes, on the railroad to Mons, is taken in London to show how surely the allies in Northern France have pushed the forward movement they hope will envelop General Von Kluck, the commander of the German right wing, in a net of steel.

For the past week the Germans, so far as could be ascertained from the few facts known in London, have been vainly hurling themselves against different points in the allied line in an effort to discover a weak mesh in the chain. At the present time, in the view of General Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French forces, the process of attrition has gone far enough to justify the resumption of offensive movements on the part of the Allies, as is announced in the latest communication from French headquarters.

Apparently the intent now is to attempt something decisive against the German right wing, and if possible bring to an end this contest which for magnitude and stubbornness is without precedent in history.

The series of highlands stretching north and south along the allied left are master keys of the battle, and a considerable force from overseas and elsewhere has pushed up to secure control of them.

At Soissons the German trenches already have been captured, but the Germans continue to fight fiercely and are still attacking at this point, as elsewhere along the entire line of battle, which their latest official report asserts is going in their favor just as confidentially as General Joffre maintains the contrary.

In the eastern theatre of the war the Germans appear, according to English observers, to be contemplating a period of defence before undertaking the offensive. They are busily engaged between Thorn, in East Prussia, and Galicia in entrenching themselves against the Russian hosts gathering on the other side of the frontier. It is calculated that there are no fewer than 4,000,000 fighting men in this eastern area, and a repetition of the long and arduous siege battles which have been such a feature of the struggle in France seems a practical certainty.

The Russians continue to push eastward on Cracow, evidently with the hope of getting thence to Breslau, and they go on stretching their tentacles out southward toward Budapest. Cossacks are well in on the plains of Hungary. Even Budapest admits that they have crossed the River Theiss, which was regarded as one of the main obstacles to their progress. By getting across the railroad at Szeged they secured the second line leading to the Hungarian capital; they had already seized the Lemberg-Budapest at Unghvar.

The Austrians, on the other hand, claim further victories against their smaller enemy invading Bosnia, but they are silent on the subject of Sarajevo, which, according to Servian and Montenegrin statements, is surrounded by their allied armies.

Losses to Date in France Are More Than 1,000,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A letter received by a New York physician from a reputable source in France contains the startling information that the French losses (killed, wounded and prisoners for the six weeks' fighting) up to and including the Battle of the Marne, were slightly over 3,000,000, perhaps 3,100,000, exclusive of the English losses, which, the writer says, "have been fairly large in comparison to the small number of their engaged army."

If credence may be placed in the French statements that in most cases the German losses were larger than those sustained by the French—and the German army was on the offensive in all the fighting up to the time for which the figures are given—it would seem to be a fair estimate of the German losses in killed, wounded and prisoners for the same six weeks at close to 500,000 men in the western theatre of war alone, not taking into account their losses in the fighting against the Russians. Including the losses of the Battle of the Aisne the total losses must be well over 1,000,000.

ARE NEAR FORTRESS.

LONDON, Oct. 5. (8:45 a.m.)—A despatch from Petrograd to the Central News states that a number of the Russian Duma, who has just returned from Galicia, declared that the Russians captured the heights four and five miles from Przemyśl, and that the Austrians have several times vainly attempted to take it.

Experts Report Army of Von Kluck Desperate

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Daily Mail correspondents in France report fighting in and around Douai, in the department of Nord, 18 miles south of Lille, and consider that if the French have reached Douai in force that the situation of the German General Von Kluck, must be desperate.

"General Von Kluck," the correspondents say, "has had all the reinforcements which can be spared him, and yet finds himself outnumbered at every point. There are many indications from German prisoners, from French officers and from members of the British transport service, the combined testimony of which it is difficult to disbelieve, that the German army is becoming demoralized.

"The timidity of the German outposts, who surrender when surprised, is strong evidence of their demoralization."

GERMAN RIGHT FLANK BROKEN BY THE ALLIES AND PERONNE RECAPTURED.

Late despatches report that the Allies have broken the right flank of the Germans, who are being vigorously pursued. This action evidently took place in the rear of General von Kluck's army on the line from St. Quentin to Peronne, which place has been recaptured by the French. Thence the Allies' line extends south to the Aisne and stretches from the Oise almost due east to the fortress of Verdun. It then bends back, enveloping the German detachment on the west bank of the Meuse.

BELGIANS ARE STILL PUTTING UP A STRONG STAND AT ANTWERP

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Antwerp correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing regarding the fighting around Antwerp, under date of Saturday, says:

"The Germans continue their desperate efforts to capture Antwerp. They are in a desperate hurry to accomplish it, pounding away unceasingly with their artillery at Forts Waelhem and Wavre-St. Catherine, and flinging their infantry forward in frantic efforts to break through. The losses have been enormous, and the number killed are estimated as high as 8,000 during the present movement.

"The Belgians adopted a clever ruse at Waelhem. After the bombardment had lasted several hours the forts ceased to reply, whereupon the German staff, thinking the fort out of action, ordered the infantry to advance in close formation. The Belgian gunners waited until they could see the whites of their eyes, and then opened murderous fire.

"Thus far, the forts in the outer ring of the Antwerp defences have suffered little harm from the German bombardment. The German big guns are not being worked by regular soldiers, but by men in citizen's clothing, who wear only an armband to indicate their military occupation. Undoubtedly these men are employees of the Krupp factory, hastily summoned to replace the losses among the regular gun layers. The heaviest German guns are located north of Vilvorde, where foundations of reinforced concrete have been prepared.

"The German shells have practically wiped out most of the little village and hamlets in the outer circles of the Antwerp defences. The Germans still hold Malines, although at a heavy cost, as the town is subject to constant bombardment from the Antwerp forts."

Turkey Prepares To Join With Germany and Austria

ROME, Oct. 5.—The following despatch has been received here from Constantinople: "All doubts of Turkey's hostile intentions against Russia quieted to-day when, following the closing of the Dardanelles and the departure of the cruisers Goeben and Breslau for the Black Sea, Turkey closed also the Bosphorus with mines, torpedoes and chains. Turkey also began placing new heavy artillery in the Black Sea forts of Kilia, Riva and Karaburn."

REAL GERMAN NEWS CLAIMS A WHOLE LOT OF THINGS EXCEPT REAL VICTORY TODAY

"Via Sayville" Again Makes Its Appearance To-day—No Reference Made to the Fighting in France—Other News.

BERLIN, Oct. 5. (By wireless to Sayville)—An official report from the German army headquarters says that in the siege of Antwerp the forts of Letze, Waelhem and oninkshoyck and the intermediate redoubts with 30 guns have been taken.

"Thus a breach has been made in the outer circle of forts," the report adds, "rendering an attack on the inner circle of forts and the town itself possible.

"Near Augustowo, the third Russian army corps, composing the left wing of the Russian army on crossing the Niemen river, were defeated after a furious battle lasting two days. More than 2,000 wounded Russians were made prisoners and a large quantity of guns and machine guns were captured.

Other press matter given out in official quarters says: "The force of native troops from British India, which recently landed at Marseilles have left that port of the northward.

"British ships have arrived at Lisbon and are probably destined to transport Portuguese troops. Portugal's co-operation in the war is imminent, the mobilization of the Portuguese, it is believed, having been organized on the demand of the British government. England is sowing mines in several parts of the North Sea and a warning to this effect has been given to neutral shipping.

"The Roumanian crown prince has been strongly rebuked for his Russo-ophile agitation. The leaders of the Roumanian parties have declared themselves in favor of continuing the neutral policy of the Roumanian government.

"A manifesto issued by the Roumanian Socialist party assumed that the neutrality of the country will be preserved, condemned the Russo-ophile propaganda on certain newspapers and emphasizes the dangerous position of Russia."

Burford Fair Will be Hummer

The South Brant Agricultural Fair, an annual event to which all the residents of the city and county look forward, commences to-morrow at Burford with an exceptionally fine display and special features.

On Wednesday a special train will leave the city at 1 p.m. from Market street station, and 1:10 p.m. from the Colborne street ditto.

Without any doubt a very large number of Brantfordites, as usual, will take this opportunity to spend a thoroughly pleasant afternoon.

VIENNA CITY SORE PRESSED BY THE WAR

Austrian Public Awaits in Dumb Patience Cheerful News.

Industry Has Been Paralyzed and There is Much Want.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A news letter received by the Reuter telegram Company from Venice reads:

"According to word received here from Vienna the Austrian public is waiting in dumb patience for some definite news as to what is really happening in Galicia and along the Serbian frontier, although there is an uneasy feeling that affairs are not going well for Austria, the mass of the people still pin their faith on Germany and are confident that no matter what happens now, the Germans will eventually save the situation.

"Many others, however, disgusted with the ambiguous and scanty reports from official sources, are beginning to disregard the newspapers altogether. Ever since it became known that Russia was making such startling way in Galicia, the Vienna newspaper comments have been most guarded. The editorials dealt chiefly with the German campaign in Western Europe, thus seeking to divert public attention from the Austrian reverses at Lemberg, and along the Serbian border, but the presence of 70,000 Polish refugees from Galicia, added to the constant arrival of train loads of wounded, has considerably discounted the effects of official recitatives. Commerce and industry are paralyzed throughout the dual

LONDON RECEIVES REPORT OF RUSSIA'S SPLENDID VICTORY

Germans Were Routed, and Lost Very Heavily Before the Czar's Hosts—Situation in Austria is in Favor of the Invaders.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Russian reports indicate that the German offensive towards the Niemen River from the East Prussian frontier has ended in a rout after that battle of Augustowo, which has been underway since Sept. 25.

If these reports are true it means that not only has General Rennenkampf been given an opportunity to resume the offensive, but the important fortress of Osowzew has been relieved from investment.

An official message from the commandant of the German fortress at Koenigsberg, however, directly contradicts the Russian report and the Berlin version of the fighting, while it does not localize it as particularly as the Russian report maintains, that the Germans along the East Prussian frontier have generally been victorious.

As was expected subsequent reports have discredited the rumor that the Russians were investing Cracow. It was hardly possible for the Muscovite forces to have reached there in such a short time, but a report that Cossacks have reached the neighborhood of Cracow is distinctly credible as the famous Russian cavalry is showing an ability to cover the same wide field of operation as Uhlans in the western war area.

While the allies in the west are congratulating themselves upon the excellence of the railway service which enabled them to bring up all the necessary transports and reinforcements, the Russians in East Prussia are suffering from a lack of such facilities. No matter how great the Russian invading host proves to be, physical conditions alone would prevent any duplication of the wonderful march of the German forces through Belgium and northern France.

Fighting is reported around Douai, fifteen miles east, north-east of Arras, and if this is true Gen. Von Kluck, is in as dangerous a predicament as he has been since the allies began their determined movement to turn the German right in northern France.

A lull befitting the day evidently prevailed unobscured along most of the great battle front. The anxiety over the French situation at St. Mihiel has evidently been greatly relieved, probably by the movement which threatens the rear of the Crown Prince's army.

It now seems certain that the outer ring of the Antwerp defences are still occupied by the defenders, but these must have suffered greatly. The desperate efforts of the Germans to cross the River Nethe, where their advance line rests have been repulsed. Along this line, one of the great German siege guns is said to have been lost in a swamp. If this is true, it is a serious disaster to the Germans for the huge weapons are not easy to replace. The latest reports from the besieged city indicate that two attempts of the Germans to cross the River Nethe have been smothered by the defenders' artillery.

In the Balkans the mutual jealousy of small states which used to threaten the peace of Europe are now conspiring to preserve what is left of it, for each is afraid to cast its lot with either side, for fear of an attack from its neighbor.

WAR SUMMARY

The allies have been obliged to give ground at certain points on the western side of the battle line. This is announced in a statement issued by the French War Office at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The announcement is brief, containing only the additional information that the battle continues with great violence to the north of the Oise without decisive result, and that there is no change on the remainder of the front.

A wireless despatch direct from Berlin to Sayville, Long Island to-day brings a long German official statement, in which, however, there is no reference whatever to the great engagement in which the allies are attempting to turn the German right wing in Northern France and reach the German line of communication to Berlin.

The Belgian War Office declares that in the siege of Antwerp forts Letze, Waelhem and Koenigs-hoyck have been taken opening the way for an attack on the inner circle of fortifications and the ner circle fortifications and the city proper. As indicating the activity of the London censorship it may be noted that to-day's wireless message is the first to bring to this country, the German official claim to having reduced three of the forts at Antwerp.

Belgian denials that any of their forts had fallen came from Antwerp by way of London yesterday and again to-day an official Belgian announcement, which passed through the hands of the British censor, declares that the situation of the fortified positions around Antwerp remains unchanged to-day.

There has been nothing official from Petrograd, but the most recent reports, official and set forth from the Russian capital, set forth that the German and Austrian forces all along the fighting area from the Baltic to Hungary were being checked, driven back or routed.

Let the Past be Buried, Declares John Redmond

LONDON, Oct. 5, 4:08 a.m.—John E. Redmond, the Irish leader, in making recruiting speeches at Wexford on Sunday, eloquently appealed for a reconciliation on the Home Rule question. He said:

"I will meet Andrew Bonar Law (the Opposition leader in Parliament) by gentleness, by reason. I pray with all my heart and soul that out of this terrible war one blessed result may come forth, and that is that Irishmen may go on fighting side by side, Catholics by Protestants and North of Ireland Irishmen by South of Ireland Irishmen. It may prove to be a sign of the future unity of our Irish nation.

"German domination would mean the loss of all the liberties we have won. I will put it quite plainly, as General Botha (the South African Premier) did in his speech. Are you for Britain and her colonies or are you on the side of Germany?"

SHELLARD—ROBSON.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Grace church on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Mackenzie when Clara Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Robson, Sierra Madre, California, became the bride of Robt. Marquis Shellard, youngest son of Mr. Robert Shellard, Shellard Road.

ELLIOTT—RAPSON

An exceedingly pretty house wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rapsa, Victoria St., Woodstock, on Wednesday afternoon September 30th, when their daughter, Alma Marguerite, was united in marriage to Dr. Gordon Morrison Elliott, youngest son of Mrs. Joseph Elliott, of Brantford.

Promptly at four o'clock the bridal party entered the living room, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. George H. Wilkinson of Toronto. The party passed between white pillars, beautifully draped and decorated with ferns and chrysanthemums and connected with streamers of white satin ribbon.

The only other attendant was little Miss Dorothy Kerr, the groom's niece, who acted as ring bearer. Both carried baskets of roses, one pink and one yellow to correspond with the becoming Dutch cap of fine net in which the long veil was arranged.

The ceremony was concluded by the signing of the register and after congratulations had been showered upon the bride and groom, the bridal party, and about thirty guests proceeded to the breakfast room which was prettily decorated in a clear scheme of pink and green.

The bride's mother was becomingly gowned in a broad-based tulle and shade with trimmings of gold lace, while the groom's mother wore a gown of black moire with hat to match.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome set of furs, to the little attendant pearl pin and earrings, Wilkinson, the pianist, a bar pin set with brilliants.

After a short wedding trip, Dr. and Mrs. Elliott will reside at 31 Waterloo Street, Brantford.

Guests were present from Toronto, Brantford, London, St. Thomas, Stratford and St. George, the house guests being Miss Carroll of New York, the bride's aunt, and Mr. and Mrs. George Wilkinson of Toronto.

monarchy and the stoppage of exports threatens to ruin some of the largest industries, notably the sugar trade. Millions of pounds of sugar are sent annually from Austria to Great Britain, India and other points abroad. Refiners are anxiously endeavoring to find some means of getting their product to England by indirect routes. To relieve the stress of the financial situation, the government has decided to organize a war credit bank, capital of $1,200,000 besides advancing money without interest in order to carry on various industrial enterprises.

Numerous suggestions have been made for boycotting goods coming from hostile countries, notably England and France, but they have met with scanty support in the most influential commercial circles. The Prague chamber of commerce refuses to endorse such a proposal, saying that it would be quite useless at the present moment besides being dangerous for Austrian commercial interests later on. Outside Vienna and Budapest the aspect of the whole country is lifeless and apparently denuded of active men, and presents an appearance of strange and oppressive quietness. Great factories are completely shut down, furnaces are out, doors are locked, and not even a watchman in the streets. The towns are deserted save for a few children here and there and there are scarcely any workers in the fields. The only workers who are seen are chiefly women and occasionally old men.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Mixed Sulphur With It to Restore Color, Gloss, Thickness. Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair, just a few applications will produce revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic costing about 50 cents—a large bottle of drug stores, known as Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

White wisp, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrant.

HAVE DRIVEN GERMANS FROM THEIR COUNTRY

Russians Have Scored Victory—Czar is at the Front.

[By Special Wire to The Courier.] PETROGRAD, Oct. 5.—The following official communication was made public by the general staff last night: "According to reports from the commanders the Russian troops at the battle of Augustowce gave proof of extraordinary courage. Several regiments fought without rest during the whole week, sacrificing themselves with dignity from the most difficult positions. The engagements were extremely obstinate in the vicinity of Suwalki where the enemy concentrated important forces, and having fortified their position, opposed the Russians with the fiercest resistance.

"Our troops made several bayonet charges to dislodge the enemy from his trenches. Prisoners taken say that the German losses at Suwalki were so large that out of hundreds only twenty remained. The whole line of the German retreat is blocked with the bodies of their dead.

"It is thus that the German invasion from East Prussia into Russia failed utterly. The enemy is now definitely leaving the border of the provinces of Suwalki and Lohza. "On the left bank of the Vistula and in Galicia the situation remains unchanged." CZAR AT FRONT. Emperor Nicholas has arrived at army headquarters at the front according to a despatch received here to-night.

General Soukhomlinoff, the minister of war; the court minister and the palace commandant accompanied Emperor Nicholas to the front. Empress Alexandra and the daughters of the monarch bade him farewell at the railway station, where there were scenes of great enthusiasm, the crowds shouting "on to Berlin," and "on to Vienna."

Before his departure Emperor Nicholas signed a decree calling out the reserves and ordering the mobilization of the mounted troops in the eastern provinces and also the territorials.

Russians Have Two Definite Objects in View

[By Special Wire to The Courier] ROME, via Paris, Oct. 5.—7.18 a.m.—News from Russian headquarters says that the invasion of Hungary through the Carpathians has two objects. The first is to capture the bank of the Russian army operating against Prezemysl and along the San river, plains, where it can frighten the population, disturb the drilling of Hungarian reservists and recruits and cut the railway communications, besides feeding an important portion of the army from the resources of the country.

THE SITUATION

The news from the front still continues to be of a reassuring nature, although nothing really decisive has yet transpired. The Allies are pressing forward with unabated vigor, and the German resistance is equally dogged and brilliant. No country ever yet went into a war with such a state of years of preparedness, and the subjugation may take longer than at one time felt, but it will have to be accomplished just the same. An evidence of their resource is contained in the statement that they have now poured in 600,000 men to help stem the main advance of the Russians in the direction of Berlin.

With regard to the storming of Antwerp, the Germans claim to have smashed three outer forts, and the Belgians admit one. The Kaiser and his advisers would dearly love to secure the place because of its comparatively short distance from the British shore line, for use as a base. If it should ultimately fall, there need be no very great surprise, although the Belgians with characteristic pluck, state that they can hang out.

An unfortunate rumor got around in Brantford on Sunday that a despatch from Berlin announced that seven British ships with Canadian troops on board had been sunk in the Atlantic. The thing was unbelievable on the face of it, as the transports were heavily convoyed by British war vessels, and the Courier was speedily able to reassure many anxious enquirers at this office. The cablegram in reality referred to the claim that the German cruiser Karlsruhe, since the first of the war, has sunk seven British steamers in the Atlantic.

"ITCHING FOR A SCRAP."

Here is a cheery letter from a midshipman in one of the British battleships that are waiting for the German fleet to come out of hiding; it appeared in the "London Morning Post":

"A rumor got about that we had been sunk, some wooden gear that we had thrown overboard being found. We have not been sunk yet, nor, I am sorry to say, have we sunk any Germans. By the time this fetches up, however, I hope we shall have many of them, captured most of them, and sunk the rest. We are all itching for a scrap, and this routine is getting rather monotonous. We go to night defence-stations for three and a half hours every night, and sleep in our clothes during our watch off and after daylight. We go into harbor to coal every four or five days. In the daytime at sea we have nothing to do except to rig night defence gear (searchlights are stowed below at daylight), do physical drill, running round the ship, etc., to keep ourselves fit, and occasionally going to action stations. Of course there have been various alarms, when we have had to rush to our stations. But they are generally caused by some ham-handed horse-marine firing a gun by mistake, or by some swivel-eyed lookout seeing one of our own ships and thinking it the enemy, or mistaking a treacle-tin for the periscope of a submarine. Anyhow, none of them have come to anything; but they tend to relieve the monotony, although at the expense of sleep, which is a rare luxury, especially at night. We have to sleep in the signal house so as to be near our searchlights, and are waked up every two or three minutes by signalmen coming in and falling over our feet (I can imagine you saying it serves me right for having such big ones). It is the only place where they can switch on a light to read signals. But in spite of these little inconveniences, I dare say we come off better than you. I am very sorry for everybody left at home; the war must affect them much more than it does us. I expect Hal is taking the war very seriously and thinks it 'balmy' that he can't go to the front or come to sea? I am not allowed to tell you anything, and so will write no more nonsense."

LEADERSHIP AND LORDSHIP

Under the heading "Leadership and Lordship" the well known New York weekly journal, The Independent, publishes a striking article, which may be quoted in part. It illustrates vividly the way in which Americans find themselves compelled to sympathize with the cause of the Allies.

"Descriptions of Berlin behaviour on the day William II. drove in from Potsdam, made his balcony speech and declared war, are strange reading for Americans. It is difficult for us to get into the mental attitude of a populace intelligent but powerless, waiting to be told by the owner whether 'his people' were to be driven forth to slaughter, or permitted to go on with peaceful pursuits.

"Self-conscious abjectness is for us unthinkable, while the scene in the House of Commons, where the freely chosen representatives of a democracy, tense with an overwhelming sense of responsibility, were calmly asking what national honor and moral obligation demanded of them, holds us breathless with its reality.

"Ever before in the world's history has the distinction between leadership and lordship been so sharply drawn. Political tamming, and, let us hope, thinking on world problems of social democracy, has been clarified, for all time to come.

"The apologists for privilege, for divine right, for ecclesiastical utopianity, strive vainly to bend to the popular mind upon the relations of the few and the many, the minority and the majority, to efficiency and to truth. What do the many, they say, about managing a business, operating a railroad, planning a military campaign? To such questions, put in this question-begging way, the answer of course is 'Nothing.'

"If democracy required that the masses of mankind should be scientific, industrial and military experts, it would remain forever a utopian dream. What it does not, Dean, a democracy is possible, because leadership, initiative, genius for guidance, are one thing, while ultimate responsibility, ultimate decision, are another. In democracy the few lead, inspire and guide; the many are sovereign; they make the final, the fateful decision; to them alone belongs ultimate responsibility.

"In the absolutist empire, the few not only direct, they also decide. They are sovereign. For all practical purposes they own the many. They are not merely leaders, they are lords.

"The restless, overwhelming massing of intelligent sympathy throughout the western world upon the side of England, Belgium and France in this appalling struggle has come about, as our German friends will one day understand, because the western world has instinctively grasped the essential fact that democracy and leadership have been assailed by lordship. The attempt to raise a false issue by alleging that Russia is more to be dreaded than Germany has deceived nobody in his senses. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. Whatever may happen in the future, Russia is to-day hurling her strength against the only enemy which as yet has aggressively attempted to substitute in the western world the law of lese majeste for constitutional liberty, and militarism for the moral obligation of solemnly accepted treaties. The crimes of Russian imperialism have been many, and the day of retribution will come, but the day of retribution will come, but for now. The German Empire does.

"So the issue is drawn, and Mr. Winston Churchill with appalling clearness has portrayed its practical aspects. Leadership and lordship have closed in life and death struggle. For the moment there is only one question. Which is stronger? Which can annihilate the other? For there will be no quarter this time, asked, or given it is the Darwinian fight for the survival of the fittest, at last."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

At a meeting of the Ontario Cabinet it was decided to send aid to Belgium to the extent of $15,000 in cash. The people will approve.

The war is costing France $7,000,000 a day, yet the national bank there has $64,000,000 more on hand than when hostilities commenced. A decidedly good and very necessary showing.

The Kaiser has sent another telegram in which he boasts that God is clearly on his side. What he means is the god of wanton destruction, vaulting ambition, and murder.

It is reaffirmed on high authority that Emperor William has always considered that he should occupy the throne of Great Britain as well as that of the Germans. He bases this preposterous idea on the fact that his mother, Princess Victoria, was the eldest child of Queen Victoria.

EMPRESS CHASED THE GERMAN SHORE

C. P. R. Auxiliary Cruiser Won Running Fight Off the Philippines.

SEATTLE, Oct. 4.—The Blue Funnel liner Talthybius, in port from the Orient, brings details of the disabling of the German auxiliary cruiser Princess Alice by the British auxiliary cruiser Empress of Russia, formerly a Canadian Pacific liner, off the Philippines, early in September, as already briefly cabled.

The German vessel was bound for Tsingtau and was reputed to carry $20,000,000 for the German officials there. She was sighted by the Empress and fled at once, pursued by the Britisher. The Empress carried four 6-inch guns and six 4.7-inch guns. The Alice had eight 6-inch German boats and a running fight followed. The German boat lost the top of her smokestack and had her main mast cut off clean. The stern was torn away and several holes made in her hull. The Empress was unmarked. The German ship avoided capture or foundering headed for the island of Cebu and ran on the beach. The British did not follow inside the three-mile limit. The loss of life was not learned.

Sir Adam Beck will turn on the power at Wasdell's Falls, on the Severn, to-morrow.

PARIS EXPECTS ANNOUNCEMENT OF VICTORY TO-DAY

Feeling is Most Optimistic in Regard to Forthcoming News.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

PARIS, Oct. 5, (7.30 p.m.)—When the long drawn out battle in the north was resumed to-day there was a feeling in many quarters that decisive developments were imminent. Consequently this afternoon's statement of the war office on the battle of the Aisne, unique in the history of battle since it can now be seen as it was, was greeted with the greatest interest.

While the French realize that the battle has not yet been won, it does not seem to many of them that it can now be lost. If the allies win, no doubt, it is felt that they will pay for it, the sacrifice on both sides being great. The tone of the official communications has furnished the best reasons for the hope on the part of the French, although the announcement of the visit of President Poincare to the front was an additional factor for the confidence and optimism felt in regard to the intense struggle. His action is generally commented on as indicating that success is at hand.

Despite the hope of the French the military critic, Lieut.-Col. Rousset, declares that the battle will be settled in two months while in 1870 it took thirteen weeks, the fighting after Sedan and Metz being merely a contest of honor.

In the furious fighting now going on, Lieut.-Col. Rousset says, neither adversary can claim what Napoleon could claim.

With the shifting of the battle scenes, the railroads are resuming traffic through a number of cities, which had been occupied by the Germans. From Epernay the news comes that the Germans respected the vines of Epernay in the important champagne district.

Col. Du Paty De Clam, a celebrity of the Dreyfus case, is among the wounded in Paris.

Railways Are Potent Factor

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Oct. 5.—The correspondent of the Times at Bordeaux, commenting on the battles in northern France, says: "The time has not yet come to reveal the composition of the allies' left which is now striking up toward the Belgian frontier, but when the veil hiding the movement in the neighborhood of Amiens is drawn away, it will be seen what a potent factor the French railway service has been in the battles of northern France."

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves, sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion; gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

32ND BATTERY IN GOOD SHAPE

Has Sent 42 Men to the Front—A Banquet Was Held on Friday Evening.

The Battery was again on the war path on Friday evening, when they paraded, 60 strong, under the command of Colonel Ashton. After forming up under the general acting Sergeant-Major, Jesse Smith, the men were marched, under Captain Henderson, to the army gore, where they were exercised in foot drill. There were only three absentees (with leave), and this was therefore a record parade.

The Battery has sent 42 men to the front, and of these only two have been returned from Valcartier camp, and only for slight reasons. This speaks well for the health and physique of the men, of which it is composed, and they are men of the best type. Of the 35 men and officers which the Battery numbered (with slight depletion) after the camp in the summer, 15 volunteered for the front, which means a good proportion to the strength, which has since increased (not reckoning the war contingents) to over 60. It is now necessary, under Government order, to make this up to full "war" strength, viz. 107 men, and men are still coming in nightly, the quarters being open from 8 to 9.30 every evening.

The most important part of the parade was a combined attack by all ranks upon Fort Tea Pot Inn, where they were marched by the officers present (Lieut. Kellett being absent in Montreal on business), where a long and protracted "siege" was laid against the excellent commissariat provided by Host Crumback. The fort having surrendered completely to such a sturdy and vigorous force (to judge from consumption of "ammunition"), business was proceeded with by the commanding officer (after the loyal toasts were disposed of) made a spirited and stirring speech, in which he urged the men to continue recruiting strongly, as well as to keep up their drill and "esprit de corps," as he felt proud of the men he had serving under him. He expressed pleasure in thus responding to the toast of "The Officers."

Sergeant Bowle made a good patriotic response to the toast of the "Non-Coms," and after several ditties, pathetic and humorous, by Gurners goodfellow, Sweeney, Hine, Kite and others, the men dispersed after singing the usual "God Save the King," with the unanimous feeling and determination to make the Battery even more successful than it has been and the "very best" in Canada.

HEAVY GERMAN LEVY ON BRUSSELS BANKS

Asked to Pay Over Two and One-half Per Cent. of Their Capital.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—The Brussels correspondent of The Times says: "Belgian banks have been forbidden by the German government to deal with houses established in territory occupied by the allies, and have been summoned to make known their current accounts. The German authorities convoked all bank directors and informed them that the bank tax would be 2 1/2 per cent. of their capital, and that payment of this must be made within a week. Foreign banks were ordered to liquidate current accounts with abroad. The German authorities have installed a 'finanzrat' in Brussels, and all financial establishments have been placed under German control. Cheques must be delivered to the order of the German government, the banks being private institutions. These measures violate the rights of nations and seriously injure the interests of neutrals engaged in Belgian banks.

To-morrow at 11 o'clock, Mayor Spence will open the industrial home at the Salvation Army citadel where it is proposed to take care of as many as possible of those in distress during the winter.

At the time the results were being published in the papers it was announced that the employees of the Slingsby mill had contributed $400. This was incorrect, as the amount was $500.

WAR RELIEF FUND.

The Township Council met this morning in the Clerk's office in the County Court to conduct the business of the month. CIVILIAN CLUB WITHOUT RIFLES

Difficulty is Being Experienced—Militia Department Tied Up.

The Brantford Civilian Rifle Club which was recently organized is having difficulty in securing equipment as the following letters will show. The first is from the captain of the club to Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M.P.:

Dear Sir—I forward you copy of application for the formation of the Brantford Civilian Rifle Association which with the signed Service rolls was forwarded to General Lessard, G.O.C., Toronto on the 8th inst. We have the assurance of General Lessard that this was forwarded to Militia headquarters at Ottawa on the 13th of September, with his recommendation that approval be granted which he thought would be the matter of a few days only. According to the Militia Act before an association can be legally organized, approval must be obtained from the Militia Headquarters, and notification given to this effect in the Canada Gazette. In the meantime nothing can be done in the way of obtaining rifles and ammunition and carrying on rifle shooting. The fair weather is passing and we are very anxious to get to work. A great many of these associations have been formed in Toronto and other places and we are very anxious that we should be allowed to do our part.

While we know the great demands made on the time of the Minister of Militia and his department, I feel sure that if you will call his attention to this matter it will at once be put through. A telegram to the Department might result in action being taken at once. Thanking you, I remain, HARRY JONES, Provisional Captain, Brantford Civilian Rifle Association

Department's Reply. In reply to Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, who took the matter up, the Militia Department was in attendance. W. F. Cockshutt, M.P.

Sir,—In reply to your letter of the 26th ultimo addressed to the Honorable the Minister of Militia, I have the honor in his absence, to state that the application for formation of the Brantford Civilian Rifle Association was duly received at headquarters, but owing to the fact that no arms and ammunition are to be issued to rifle associations until further orders, no action has been taken. The formation of this association and the issue of arms and ammunition will be proceeded with as soon as equipment is available.

ARRIVE IN LONDON BEFORE CONTINGENT

Party of Canadian Officers Arranging Reception for Troops.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—In an interview with your correspondent yesterday, Col. John W. Carson, who was with the advance party of Canadian contingent officers arriving last night, stated that the officers had an uneventful trip on the Lusitania. Questioned regarding the Canadian contingent, he replied that he had every reason to believe every member of the contingent was in good health and ready to grips with the enemy as a chance for adding fresh laurels to the name of Canada, and demonstrating anew the prowess of Canadian arms, which have been proved of many battle fields from the War of 1812 to the Boer War. Beyond the fact that he is in daily touch with the War Office making arrangements for the reception of the Canadian troops, Col. Carson was unable to give any other information regarding the contingent at present, being forbidden by the military authorities to do so.

Col. Carson, Lieut. Col. Frank Strange and Lieut. Trevor Williams-Taylor, are at the Hotel Cecil, and Capt. Winfield Siltou is at the Carlton. An additional cruiser squadron, it is learned here, will meet the Canadian army division, which is now on its way across the Atlantic, when it reaches English shores. The troops are now escorted by a convoy of cruisers and battleships, but will be met by the second convoy and taken to a point of disembarkation which will be decided upon later.

By A. R. Parkhurst. History of the fish, devilish and band of blackmail assistance groups the banner of "Black Hand" is without a clasp. Joseph Petrosino, the New York detective whose life was the forfeit of patriotism and loyalty to the country.

PERILS OF PETROSINO

By A. R. Parkhurst, Jr.

(Copyright, 1914, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

NO history of that fiendish, devilish and sinister band of blackmailers and assassins grouped under the banner of "The Black Hand" is complete without a chapter devoted to the tireless and heroic efforts of Joseph Petrosino.

Joseph Petrosino was the forfeit for his patriotism and loyalty to the country of his adoption.

Taking his life into his hands was an almost daily occurrence with this martyr, and it was due greatly to his efforts that the New York Police Department stands pre-eminent in the war on that band of cutthroats and bomb throwers that has operated with such dire results in the big and little cities of the New World.

To the majority of the members of the New York Police Department credit will always be given "Joe" Petrosino as the master mind in the great fight against the Black Hand.

It is Petrosino's records compiled and preserved by "Joe" Petrosino, which bear among the mass of papers in the files of the New York Police Department, and treasured by the police, as the series of articles treating of the Black Hand and the part the Italian squad under Petrosino's direction played in combating it.

His Murder Unavenged.
"Joe" Petrosino was born in Pádus, in the province of Campania, fifty-two years ago. It was on the evening of March 12, 1906, that he was so foully murdered in the Piazza Marina, in Palermo. That murder to-day stands as a signal victory for the Black Hand, and to the shame of the United States and Italy it is still unavenged.

Petrosino's father, a tailor, emigrated to New York with his family in the early seventies of the last century. At that time Mulberry Bend was the Mecca for the two or three thousand Italians living in New York city, and there the Petrosinos took up their abode. At that time the Irish far outnumbered the Italians in this section of the city, and many bitter battles were fought between the sons of the rival aliens. "Joe" bore his part in these conflicts and from the first demonstrated that his fists were all the weapons he needed in fighting his way through the Public School No. 23, at Bayard and Mulberry streets, where he received his early education. In those days the rivalry between the Irish and Italian children was so keen and the former so far outnumbered the latter that the Italian children never dared to leave the school for their homes except in groups.

The boy Petrosino, conveying a flock of little ones of his own nationality was prophetic of the future, for his manhood was devoted to shielding honest patriots from the ever increasing demands and depredations of the Camorra and the Mafia.

By selling newspapers in the streets and blacking boots "Joe" was able to add to the slender purse of the Petrosino family and in his spare moments practised on his beloved violin. Music was a passion with the boy, and when fourteen years old, with several youths of his own age, he made a tour of the Southern cities as an itinerant street musician. It was the boy's dream to so perfect himself on the violin that he might procure a position in a theatre orchestra, but he had neither the time nor money to do so. Realizing he must increase his earnings in order to help out materially at home, Joe went to work for a butcher. He later was employed in an Italian bank and still later as a timekeeper for an Italian squad working for a railroad contractor. At this time the streets of New York were cleaned under the supervision of the Police Department and young Petrosino obtained a position as overseer of one of the dumping piers at the North River.

He Becomes a Policeman.
Here his earnest work attracted the attention of Police Captain Williams, then known as "the Tsar of the Tenderloin." Williams, deeply impressed by the young Italian's resolute manner, fine physique, clear eye and head, suggested that he become a policeman. Joe was not impressed with the idea at first, and it was a year before Captain Williams' persuasions bore fruit and Joe donned a uniform. The young man made just the ideal policeman that Williams predicted he would, and for twenty-five years he went about his duties in a conscientious and painstaking manner, with the result that never a black mark was registered against him. Joe had no influential friends at court and in those days advancement only came through "pull." It was ten years before the young Italian "copper," disliked by the Irish contingent, which dominated the department, won his first advancement to the grade of roundsman. Exceptionally clever work brought him still another promotion four years later, when he attained the chevrons of a sergeant, which in those days corresponded to the rank of the lieutenant of to-day. He was assigned to the Detective Bureau and in that department achieved an international reputation.

While his work as a detective from the very first was of the highest order and proved that he was the most useful and resourceful man in the bureau, international fame did not come to Petrosino until the last ten years of his life, and this through his relentless warfare on the Black Hand.

The early efforts of Petrosino as a detective were confined to the bands of Italian confidence men who infested the steamship piers and preyed upon fellow countrymen homeward bound. Petrosino sent 133 of these sharpers to Sing Sing. He, single handed, uncovered the prime leaders in the "resurrection frauds," which called for tireless and exceptionally clever detective work. With every lawless Italian operating in the United States his sworn enemy Petrosino circled about them, and found alive and well scores of men who had been pronounced "dead" in order to collect the money for which they had been insured.

His success in detecting crime among his fellow countrymen soon attracted the attention of the United States Secret Service Bureau, and to him many federal detectives appealed. He unearthed the band of counterfeiters who were coining spurious United States money in Naples and shipping it to the United States for circulation. Many of the counterfeiters were arrested and sent to Sing Sing.

Petrosino, and since his discovery of the completion of their terms, he had been sent to prison by Williams J. Fitzgibbon. One of the most daring pieces of detective work ever accomplished by Petrosino was his discovery of the plot to assassinate President McKinley. The President of the United States. It was further added that the Continental "reds" had insisted that the scheme would be materially aided should the Chief Executive of this country be the first to pay the forfeit. Panic reigned in Washington for a time when it was discovered that there was not a man among the operatives well enough qualified to go and live among the anarchists in this country and bring from them the inner secrets of their clan.

Following an appeal to the New York Police Department, Petrosino was the man assigned to the work, and accordingly he took up his residence in Paterson, N. J., at that time a hotbed of anarchism. He soon ingratiated himself with the leaders of the "reds" and joined their secret societies, all the while picking up information that substantiated his gravest fears as to the desperate nature of the men he was associating with. Had his identity been suspected for a moment his life would not have been worth a penny, for they would have murdered him in his tracks. Fortunately for him he was not so widely known at that time, for had this assignment come to him two years later he could not have fraternized with these men an hour before his identity would have been discovered. Every foreign criminal coming to this country was warned to familiarize himself with Petrosino's features the moment he landed here or else his freedom would be short lived.

As a result of Petrosino's sojourn in Paterson he unearthed the plot to assassinate President McKinley. He hurried to Washington and laid his information before the authorities there and pleaded that the guard about the President be doubled, that under no circumstances should he expose himself unnecessarily to danger and above all to keep clear of crowds. When he heard that the President contemplated visiting the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, Petrosino repeated his warning and urged that Mr. McKinley abandon that portion of his programme which included holding a public reception in the Temple of Music.

The afternoon President McKinley was shot by Czolgosz Petrosino was standing on the steps of old Police Headquarters chatting with a number of fellow detectives. A newboy scampered by shouting "Hurry! Hurry! All about the President being shot!" Petrosino scanned the headlines and, bursting into tears, said:—"Oh, I told them to be careful. Why did they let that man go to his death when they knew the 'reds' had sworn to get him!"

Petrosino was rarely emotional, despite his high strung and sensitive temperament, and to see this ordinarily taciturn and fearless man weeping as copiously and hysterically as a woman came as a revelation to his comrades, one of them saying afterward that Petrosino did not recover from the shock the little newboy had so unconsciously administered for months afterward.

But in dealing with the Black Hand Petrosino found conditions entirely different from those that govern the anarchists. This great band of criminals is not a definite organization, with officers, board of directors and bylaws and constitution. Instead it is a floating body, composed of a myriad of smaller agencies whose units are ever changing, increasing or decreasing as the nature of the crime in contemplation demands. Sometimes these groups include as many as two score plotters, while at other times they shrink down to three or four operators, and in some instances to a single individual. Yet always the deed is done according to formula. The leaders of the Black Hand are invariably men who hold their leadership by virtue of capacity, and are likely to vary with separate ventures.

The title for the bands engaged in crimes of this nature was probably first employed by a Sicilian bandit who had heard of the exploits of a band of Spanish brigands and anarchists who had styled themselves "The Black Hand." As the crimes of this Sicilian and those who banded themselves under his leadership became more frequent and more rapacious attendant publicity naturally followed, until the newspapers took up the hue and cry of the police and made the appellation fit all crimes, such as murder and blackmail, in which Italians figured as the principals.

In the first four years of his stay in the detective bureau Petrosino spent his days and nights among fellow countrymen, always cleverly disguised and endeavoring to be alert to pick up information dealing with the depredations of the cold blooded criminals he was trailing. Italians driven to the United States by the activity of the police in their native land came in hordes, and conditions were ripe for flooding the land of hope and promise with as daring and secretive a band of cutthroats as ever escaped the gallows. The majority of these had emigrated from Southern Italy, Naples, Sicily and Calabria, all of whom were already cognizant of the operations of the Camorra and Mafia, and, furthermore, would submit to any form of torture before they would appeal to the police for protection. All knew that any such appeal would lead to their death, and accordingly all, or nearly all, considered themselves bound by the "omertà," or conspiracy of silence, which bars any appeal for police aid.

When New York awoke to the real peril confronting her Italian citizens Chief Magistrate McAdoo conceived the idea of forming an Italian squad of detectives and Petrosino was selected to head it. This was in 1904, and that squad did valiant service until the day of Petrosino's death. For reasons known only to himself Commissioner Woods abolished it, but Commissioner Woods already has started to reorganize it, and it is expected that the work so long undone will speedily be resumed and men who worked with Petrosino will be placed in charge of the various subdivisions.

He Was a Model Policeman.
Hundreds of instances could be cited to prove the daring, courage and high minded integrity of "Joe" Petrosino. With never a single blemish on his record as the model policeman of the New York department. What he achieved has never been equaled by any other detective, and many of these achievements are regarded as mere routine, modestly retaining from giving them that publicity which the average policeman so ardently courts and which would have served to establish the reputation of any one of them had they been so fortunate as to have figured as the detective in the case.

Though he was a devout man none ever heard this chief of the Italian Bureau discuss religion. His best friends assert, however, that he never sallied forth on an especially perilous mission or appeared in court to testify in a Black Hand case but that he first visited his priest and received absolution. His fellows in the Italian squad are a bit in declaring that "Joe" could have made a million in graft had he chosen.

The best proof of his sterling honesty is the financial condition of the young wife, who learned of her husband's tragic death as her firstborn nestled at her breast. Mrs. Petrosino was not left penniless, for "Joe" had no extravagances and never dissipated, but there was barely enough to keep the wolf from her door until the Legislature passed the bill introduced by the late Senator "Tim" Sullivan providing her with a pension of $2,000 a year.

With such an enviable record made in his pursuit of criminals in this country it seemed a ruthless trick of fate that designated him the man who must go to the heart of the Camorristic lair and confer with the Italian authorities as to the best means of checking Black Hand depredations in the United States. Foreign criminals, due to lax laws at American ports of entry, had been flocking to the United States in droves, and even when apprehended the frames of statutes at Washington had been so remiss in their duties that it was almost impossible to bring about their deportation.

The Department of Commerce and Labor had never awakened to the menace of Black Hand operatives and these arch conspirators and blackmailers came and went at will. Since Federal aid was not to be relied upon Commissioner Biagham, after exhaustive correspondence with Italian police heads, decided that the best means of checking these depredations would be to send a trusted emissary to Italy where he at first hand could pick up the criminal records of many Italians then in the United States. With these facts at hand it was believed that scores could be deported before they had the opportunity of launching upon fresh careers of crime.

He Insisted Upon Going.
Fully realizing how hazardous such a mission was and at the same time appreciating Petrosino's unparalleled worth to the department, General Bingham did not care to have his Italian squad leader take such a risk. But Petrosino argued that inasmuch as he was the man who had led the fight against Italian criminals he would not shirk in the face of danger and under no circumstances should a substitute be sent. Every care and precaution was taken to keep the contemplated mission a secret and orders were given that not a line should creep into the newspapers about Petrosino's European trip. This order, however, was disregarded and the contemplated voyage of the Italian detective was heralded in a New York newspaper.

Arriving in Rome, Petrosino presented his credentials to Ambassador Griscom, and armed with other papers he set out on his search for the records of criminals who had sought refuge in the United States. His journeys through Italy and the manner in which his footsteps were dogged have been dwelt on at length in the many accounts published of his stay in Italy. From Rome he proceeded to Palermo, where his presence in the office of the American Consul threw that official into a state of panic, knowing as he did how eagerly the death of the great detective was sought by the Mafia, whose stronghold was in that city.

To the consternation of those who knew of the mission of Petrosino to Palermo, the detective and a companion left Petrosino's lodgings house and proceeded in the direction of the Piazza Marino. As they turned into the beautiful piazza, according to a sailor, the lone witness to the tragedy, Petrosino's companion abruptly turned and left him. At that instant several shots, fired from the detective's rear, rang out, and Joe Petrosino sank to the rigid, mortally wounded.

of the men he was associating with. Had his identity been suspected for a moment his life would not have been worth a penny, for they would have murdered him in his tracks. Fortunately for him he was not so widely known at that time, for had this assignment come to him two years later he could not have fraternized with these men an hour before his identity would have been discovered. Every foreign criminal coming to this country was warned to familiarize himself with Petrosino's features the moment he landed here or else his freedom would be short lived.

As a result of Petrosino's sojourn in Paterson he unearthed the plot to assassinate President McKinley. He hurried to Washington and laid his information before the authorities there and pleaded that the guard about the President be doubled, that under no circumstances
