"The Major" BY RALPH CONNOR. In the manner of The Sky Pilot and The Man from Glenarry, Ralph Connor tells this story of a Canadian young man through boyhood, school days, college days, frontier days, in a country and a world at peace. Suddenly that liberty into which he was born was threatened, the rights of small nations and of the individual were challenged. The citizen became a soldier. $1.35. STEDMAN'S BOOKSTORE LIMITED. with these roads built, heavy traffic would naturally avoid the other streets, which would therefore require less upkeep.

Good roads are desirable because (1) They bring business. (2) They make possible the haul of a larger load with less expenditure of power.

At the present time, with some 15 1-2 miles of road, our annual expenditure is very considerable. The following figures, based on annual statements, show this:

BUILDING PERMIT
A building permit was issued yesterday at the office of the city engineer to James Ireland, 305 Dalhousie street, for the erection of a $50 frame garage.

DAD PROMOTED
"Dad" Stewart, former St. Thomas and Brantford Canadian Leaguer, has been gazetted Lieutenant in Flanders. A cable was received on Saturday by his mother, Mrs. Louis J. Stewart, St. Thomas, advising him that Carlton (Dad) C. Stewart had been elevated in rank to a lieutenant. "Dad," or as he is now known, Lieut. Stewart, went overseas two years ago with the 2nd Canadian Pioneer and has been in the thick of the fight ever since.

POLICE COURT
Mrs. Elizabeth Broomfield, in the police court last evening, charged her husband, Thomas Broomfield, with assault. The alleged belligerent spouse was allowed to go on suspended sentence, conditional upon his remaining away from his better half, the two having agreed to disagree. J. W. Crumback charged John Gardiner with reckless driving, inflicting injuries to the plaintiff's car. The case was dismissed, the magistrate ruling that it was a matter for the civil courts.

TRAPSHOOTING BANNED
Trapshooters in Brantford who have participated in the big tournaments held at St. Thomas in the past will learn with regret that the city council of that burg has issued an edict prohibiting trapshooting. It is possible, however, that arrangements will be made for transferring the equipment outside the city limits. Prominent trapshooters from all parts of Canada and the United States have attended the annual shoot held in the Railroad City and the decision of the St. Thomas council should succeed in preventing the sport in that section, which was a serious blow to this branch of sport.

COMPILING VOTERS' LISTS.
In other cities reports of difficulties in compiling the voters' lists for the coming federal elections have been made by the enumerators, who through ignorance of the proper regulations have become confused and in some cases have found it necessary to go over their territory twice and revise the lists already once made up by them. Returning officers in the Brantford and Brant ridings have registered no such complaint and the men who have been appointed in the two local ridings are working satisfactorily.

Miss Marjorie Jones rendered a pleasing violin solo.

CLEARED UP ACCOUNTS.
All accounts in connection with the unveiling of the Bell Memorial were cleared up at a recent meeting of the finance committee held in the Board of Trade rooms.

MAY WED IN LENT OR ADVENT.
In future marriages may be celebrated in Catholic churches in Lent and Advent. A circular letter from Archbishop Brochey read in the Catholic churches yesterday states: "It is decreed in the new code of canon law that marriages may be contracted at all times during the year. The nuptial blessing only is forbidden some first Sunday of Advent until Christmas Day inclusively, and also from Ash Wednesday until Easter Sunday inclusively. Another announcement made by the Archbishop is this: "In future we shall not have the customary fast days of Advent. Fridays alone shall remain days of abstinence."

MEN'S CLUB.
An active winter campaign is planned by the Men's club of the Y. M. C. A. for the coming months. At an executive meeting held Monday evening at the club house, the various chairmen of the different committees that are expected to greatly increase the progress of the men's department. W. S. Brewster reported that arrangements had been completed for securing several prominent speakers for luncheons that are to be held in the near future. George Scott suggested that the club room be redecorated, and that an at home be held. Dr. Jarvis, of the membership committee, expressed a willingness to institute a campaign whereby fifty members would be added to the rolls. The billiard tables will be overhauled and put into first class condition at once.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.
Sunday was the anniversary of St. John's Church. The rector preached in the morning and Rev. A. Farney, B.A., of Simcoe, at the evening service. His discourse was much appreciated. St. John's has an interesting history. Through the struggles of years past and devoted loyalty of its people, it has come to occupy an important position among the Anglican churches of the city. Grace church is the historic mother and Grace has the pleasure of seeing St. John's able to bear its own burdens in the usual affairs of parish life. Few of the original heads of St. John's are left but as of old they are as true and faithful as ever and they are ever remembered by an appreciative congregation. St. John's is an energetic people. The ladies' societies and the A.T.P.A. auxiliary and Sunday School are in good condition and deserve praise. The people love their service and to church in the city (Anglican) has a hearty responsive service. The young are also workers and the church is faithful. The officials of St. John's have reason to be encouraged.

TO VOTE OR NOT TO VOTE.
In compiling the lists of voters, enumerators are entitled to give fair consideration to the relatives of members of the Royal Flying Corps. Instructions to this effect have been issued by W. F. O'Connor, General Returning Officer, Ottawa. The instructions read as follows: "The Royal Flying Corps is a British force and only the female relatives of members of that corps who have gone out of Canada are entitled to the vote. A great many of the corps are in Texas or other parts of the U.S. and I understand that the remainder of the corps will be out of Canada before the completion of the process of enumeration of qualified women. Accordingly it would be the better course for your enumerators to take down the names of all female relatives of members of the 'Flying Corps' because the instant that the members go out of Canada their female relatives become entitled to the vote."

VICTORY BONDS.
Arrangements have been made by the authorities whereby soldiers can purchase victory bonds by making assignments on the pay sheets as follows: December, $5, payable on or before December 15; December, $5, payable on or before January 2nd, 1918; January, $5, payable on February 1, 1918; February, $5, payable on April 1, 1918; April, $5, payable on May 1, 1918; May, $5, payable on June 1, 1918; June, $5, payable on July 2, 1918; July, $5, payable on August 1, 1918; August, $4, payable on September 2, 1918. For a bond of $100 payments are just double these in amount. It will be noted that checks for the first payment must reach Ottawa on or before December 15, and for the second payment on or before January 2. It will therefore be necessary that these checks be received by the district paymaster at least two clear days before the dates given. Instructions have been issued direct to regimental paymasters by the district paymaster.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Don't look old! Try Grandmother's recipe to darken and beautify faded, streaked hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it deters so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by moving the grey hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

APOLYGY TO BORDEN

Is Refused by Council of Kitchener. Motion Was Defeated by a Vote of Seven to Five.

Kitchener, Nov. 26.-A special meeting of the City Council was held this afternoon, called by Mayor Gross, at which he suggested that an apology on behalf of the city be tendered to Sir Robert Borden for the treatment he received on Saturday evening, when he was howled down and refused a hearing by a rowdy in the gallery. By the majority of seven to five the members were of the opinion that events at the Unionist meeting were no worse than what transpired at New Year's when the city was put under martial law for several days, and also that as the disturbances were created at a political meeting, therefore no action should be taken. No apology will be tendered by the Council was the final decision.

Good Name of City. "Understand me," said Mayor Gross to the Council, "I am not trying to drag this body into joint. My only aim is to shield the name of this city. I am sorry to say that groups of men came there determined to prevent the speakers from being heard. Perhaps through no fault of ours, this has occurred." Ald. Asmussen-"Perhaps through no fault of our own." What do you mean by that? Mayor Gross-I might drop the word perhaps. Ald. Asmussen-I should say so. The request of the indignation meeting of Sunday was then read before Council and the list of men who signed it was also read. Mayor Gross suggested a private session to fix on the terms of the resolution. What Caused It. Ald. Reid-"This thing was the result of a law passed in Ottawa in which the people had no voice, and these men were simply registering their votes on Saturday night. Mayor Gross-Forget the past, let us try to have a better feeling and forget the past. Ald. Asmussen-Let them start that by giving freedom at Ottawa. Ald. W. T. Sass-This Council should not be drawn into politics. Ald. J. F. McKay-That meeting sends on this motion to us, as if we were not capable of drawing one up for ourselves. Mayor Gross-I am not trying to use this Council as a tool. This may be an insult to you, but you can make any amendment you like to it. Ald. Campbell said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been his hard by some of the speakers, and he blamed the row on that. His motion "that as this is a political matter, we take no action in it." He took a fling at D. B. Detweiler, who, he said, had called him a "Hun." Mr. Detweiler wanted to speak, but the aldermen would not listen to him. Then ex-Mayor Jansen appealed to Council to clear the city's name of "this shame and disgrace." Don't Realize War On. "I was never ashamed of this city until Saturday night, when the Premier was told to shut up and sit down." Then Mr. Detweiler got a chance to speak, and attacked the "anti-aldermen for their inability to realize that there was a war on. He scored Alderman Asmussen's references to the "goody-goodies" telephoning on Sunday. "I suppose they would not like to be taken out and shot on Sunday. Mr. Euler may think that he has a mission like Bourassa, that he is the German Bourassa." Ald. Asmussen and Bowman were instantly on their feet protesting that this language was an insult to the Council. Ald. Reid-There isn't any free speech any more. Ald. Bowman-I regret the fact that Sir Robert Borden did not get a hearing no more than if the humblest workman on the street had not been heard. Let Mr. Detweiler say if that is what the war is for. Ald. Reid-They say the majority rules. Why were they not satisfied with the majority rule? Ald. Bowman-Mr. Detweiler made all the disturbance at the nominations. "You're a liar," said Mr. Detweiler. Ald. Asmussen-This is simply a political dodge. Ald. Bitzer-If we pass this the Unionist party will say they made us do it and take the glory. Ald. Reid-recalled how in past years he had opposed the teaching of German in the Berlin schools, and had warned the people before the war that the Kaiser aspired to be the bully of Europe. But he resented the way things had been allowed to go and he would not swal-

HOW MANY BONDS TO-DAY?

That's the pertinent question being asked.

And it's Canada that's doing the asking.

Canada's jaws are set, and looking squarely into your eyes—she asks:

"How Many Bonds To-day"

Canada wants plain talk, no quibbling.

Canada is through with "conversational" helps---words are fine, but they won't buy food or guns.

Advice---Canada has more than plenty, little of which can be traded for ammunition.

She wants a direct answer to this question.

An answer that will spell action.

Such action as will fulfill your duty as a citizen.

Yes, and help pay the obligation you owe to your country. And when you have answered---

Stand erect in all your manhood---

Proud of the flag under which you live---loyal to the country you call your own---ready to help and protect to the last dollar.

To buy your quota---your equa. share---is a simple duty---patriotism suggests that you do more.

If you fail Canada now---you are shifting your just burden on another man's shoulders.

Endangering the Patriotic Spirit of Canada.

Put every dollar you have saved, and can save, and every dollar you can borrow at work---at work saving lives and bringing our fighting men, sons, husbands, friends, home alive and victorious.

If you cannot fight it's your bounden duty---your very self-preservation---demands that you lend your money to your country---

If your income is $2,500 and upwards---do not buy a couple of bonds and sit back with a look of satisfaction. DOUBLE your first figure. You are not giving, you are lending---at good interest---on the best security in all Canada.

Buy Victory Bonds --- More Victory Bonds Still More Victory Bonds

(From Monday's Daily.)

"Cheer up, Bill," said Kitty with jocular solicitude. "What can we do about it? The little iron chest has to be carried out. It's getting too heavy to be left lying around. And there's next year's grub to be brought in."

"Certainly, I know you're obliged to go," said Kitty.

"If you could go in my place you'd be welcome," said Dick. "But it's too hard a trip both out and in again. You and Dick couldn't do it alone."

"I know it," said Kitty stiffly. "You don't have to explain."

"And we can't take you with us, because the old man can't keep the plant going and cook his own grub."

"I wouldn't think of leaving him alone," said Kitty indignantly.

Bill began to grin again.

"Cheer up, the worst is yet to come!" he cried. "We'll be back in six weeks. What'll I bring her from town for a present? A silk dress?"

"A lot of good a silk dress would do me!" Kitty said scornfully. "Who do I ever see from one month to another?"

"Ah, there we have her trouble!" cried Bill. "He began to sing and to caper absurdly."

"Kitty is mad and I am glad. For I know how to please her! A bottle of wine to make her shine and a nice young man to squeeze her!"

"You're horrid!" cried Kitty, frowning and blushing.

"Give me the specifications," Bill went on with an air of serious gravity. "Blond, brunette, or albino? Heavy, welter, or light weight? Kind of disposition you prefer, and amount of purse to be put up before you enter the ring? I'll bring the candidate back with me if I have to sandbag him!"

Kitty retired into the house, slamming the door. Bill with a whoop started up the trail after his horses.

When the cabin was put to rights there was nothing more that Kitty was obliged to do until it was time to start the supper. On such occasions she was accustomed to help her father in the "works," as they called the other shack; but the furnaces had been cold for a week now, while all hands joined to get out enough fire to keep them fed while the boys were away.

There was plenty of work that Kitty might have done, but she was in a mood to dream and to nourish her grievances.

She might have gone up to the excavation to help, but she dreaded male rivalry. She finally turned in the other direction and followed the path down to the river.

It ended in a little glade that had been a camping-place since time out of mind. In the middle of the place was a fire-hole, centuries old, maybe.

Upright posts were driven on either side, with a bar across, and wooden hooks of assorted sizes waiting for the hauls of the next traveler's pots.

In front of Kitty as she stood beside the fireplace, the river stretched its smooth jade-green flood across to the base of the mountain opposite, and at her left hand the flippid waters of the creek mingled with the thicker current.

Below the camping-place stretched a bank of fine, yellow sand precipitated by the eddies in times of high water. Partly drawn up on the sand was a dugout.

The Shoshos kept their two boats cached in the creek, but this one had been got out in preparation for the journey next day. It was the happy-go-lucky Bill who had left it where it was without tying it, forgetful of the sudden rises of the river in hot weather.

Kitty got in the dugout and sat down in the stern, where she might trail her hands in the water while she thought things out and dreamed her dreams.

All unwittingly Bill had discovered to her the very source of her discontent, and she was disturbed, and ashamed. It was true that she wanted a young man. Here she was twenty years old; it was icularly granted by her brothers that she was not exactly a fright; yet she had never had a young man.

What was worse there was no young man, at least of her own color within hundreds of miles, and she was doomed to her present imprisonment for at least another year.

Twenty-two loomed ahead like old age itself. "What chance will I have then?" she thought dejectedly. Behind this was the hot-checked, nagging thought: what business had a nice girl to be desiring a young man anyway?

But after a while the lovely afternoon began to have its way with her, and the disquieting thoughts melted by imperceptible degrees into deceitful, charming day-dreams.

She was lying in the bottom of the boat with her arm on the gunwale, and her head on her arm. Her eyes were bent up-stream as far as she could see.

"He will come down the river," she dreamed. "Perhaps he is just around the bend at this moment. I should not be surprised."

"But if he should come when I am not here, and be carried past! That is not possible! If he is the right one some power will lead him directly to me! What is he like? Tall and slender, with round, strong arms, and a wonderful light in his eyes. He will not be surprised to see me, either. He will say, 'I have found you! And I will say quite simply: 'I have been waiting for you,' and everything will be understood."

Following the usual course of day-dreams, Kitty little by little lost the direction of this beautiful story, and picture began to succeed picture without any help from her.

She found herself climbing the higher slopes of Mount Milburn hand in hand with the youth whose face was hidden from her; up into the intoxicating air of the summits. Then presto! without so much of an effort as the wink of an eyelid they were transported to the busy streets of town, and looked into the bewildering shop-windows without any surprise at all.

Then they walked between endless rows of silk dresses hung on hooks, and all the dresses were hers; but she couldn't decide which one she liked the best, and was much distressed.

And he said: "Don't worry; I have a paper boat to sail down Milburn Creek in." And she answered: "We'll never set up again without caring in the least. And then they danced to delicious music that issued from a row of trees like the pipes of an organ."

With a long sigh Kitty stretched herself luxuriously in the bottom of the dugout and ceased to dream.

If any young man had come along then and had seen her thus, her head on her folded arm, her lashes on her cheeks and a dream-smile tilting the corners of her mouth, it is a safe guess he would never have been the same again afterward.

She awakened as quietly as she had fallen asleep, and lay for a while gazing up between the sides of the dugout at the delicate clear sky, which had not changed while she slept.

Gradually she became aware of missing something; it was the turbulent voice of Milburn Creek, never stilled in her ears at home. At the same time the dugout rocked gently with her, tilting her with an unexplained fear. She quickly sat up.

The heart in her breast turned cold.

She was adrift in midstream. Mount Milburn had disappeared, and the even more familiar limestone face of Stanhope, opposite their camp. Strange mountain shapes surrounded her, and unfamiliar shores.

Her eyes darted up and down the dugout; there was no paddle, nothing! The swirling green eddies smiled at her horribly, like things bidding their time. Blank, hideous terror descended on her, scattering her faculties.

There was worse in store.

Sweeping around a bend she saw far down the river the white horses leaping in the sunshine. She knew the place, the Grumbler rapids; up and down river they bore a sinister reputation.

She started at the place, fascinated, with horror.

The river so smiling, sunny, and beautiful, she could not believe that there was the end of all the very whitecaps below seemed to be leaping in play. And she herself, twenty years old, and full of the zest of living—it was not possible! But the ever-increasing voice of the place

Good Night Story

DADDY RED SQUIRREL

Daddy Red Squirrel had been in a terrible fix ever since he and Mamma Red Squirrel had been placed in the wire cage.

At first Mamma Red Squirrel didn't like the place at all; but as the days grew colder and their master grew kinder she became reconciled and tried to get Daddy Red Squirrel to see things her way. She told him their master had provided them a nice Thanksgiving dinner the next day, and she felt he ought to be very thankful and happy.

"For what I'd like to know! A wire door that shuts you away from the woods and your freedom!" chattered Daddy Red Squirrel.

"But think of our lovely warm home and of our good food. We should be thankful for them these cold days," replied Mamma Red Squirrel.

"Pooh!" exclaimed Daddy Red Squirrel. "I could find plenty of food and make a nice home, if we had a chance. I'd like to run up that tree and out there and look over the fields. I hate this cage and everything with it."

"I'm sorry," replied Mamma Red Squirrel. "For I feel we have much to be thankful for, and she was in tears the house to get out of the cold wind.

The next day the ground was covered with snow. Great drifts were piled against the wire of the cage and blew in clouds across their yard. Out near their gateway stood a poor little gray squirrel shivering with the cold.

"Do let me in, I'm lost and hungry and the storm is dreadful!" cried Gray Squirrel.

"We can't open the gate from this side, but knock down that stick leaning against it and it'll come open," replied Daddy Red Squirrel.

Gray Squirrel did as he was told and when the gate swung open he crawled into the cage.

"What a lovely home you have! This is one of the worst weeks we wood folk ever had. The snow has been on for days. There's no way of getting food. No water, for the streams are frozen over. Any one that has a nice, warm place like this should be very thankful," said Gray Squirrel as he ate what Mamma Red Squirrel offered him.

Daddy Red Squirrel slipped out the open gate and ran up the tree, but the wind blew so fiercely and the snow was so deep he was glad to get back into the cage again.

"No use talking, you're right, Mamma! We should certainly be thankful that we have a warm house and a nice master who supplies us with food for as long as I can see the fields are covered with snow and the wind grows colder every minute," chattered Daddy Red Squirrel, and he invited Gray Squirrel to remain with them and to share their home, which made Gray Squirrel very happy.

When the little master came with their dinner he was astonished to see the gate standing open and a gray squirrel with his paws.

"I wonder they didn't run away," he said to his mamma, but Daddy Red Squirrel never said a word and certainly wasn't seen when the stick was propped against the gate again.

The little squirrels lived all winter in the cage and grew to love their little master so much that he left the gate open and they ran about in the yard and never thought of running away. And even in the summer time, when the fields beckoned them away for happy hours, they returned where kindness awaited them.

LADIES' OR MISSES' ENVELOPE CHEMISE

By Anabel Worthington.

The girl with a limited income but a love for dainty underthings is wise if she makes her own, for handwork costs enormously in the shops. The envelope chemise shown in No. 8480 is very simple and easy to make, and whether it has a plain or an elaborate finish depends upon the taste of its wearer. It slips on over the head and there is a tablike extension on the back which goes between the knees and buttons onto the front. A choice of low, round, square or V neck is given. If preferred, a casing may be put in and a ribbon used to draw the chemise in slightly above the waistline.

The ladies' or misses' envelope chemise pattern No. 8480 is cut in three sizes, small (32-34), medium (36-38), large (40-42). The medium size requires 2 1/2 yards 36 inch, with 2 yards lace edging for neck and 2 1/2 yards ribbon for waist and neck.

And nothing might stop her deliberate progress between the green shores. She must sit with her hands in her lap and watch it coming step by step.

Kitty's very softness and gentleness shielded her. She could not take in so much horror. Her eyes widened; she struggled for her breath and collapsed in the bottom of the dugout. (Continued in Wednesday's Daily.)

Rippling Rhymes

Free speech is certainly a blessing! Without it life would be a dreary thing. It is a boon we long have cherished; for it our well known fathers perished. It is the rock on which this nation was built, to all men it should be sacred. While I am privileged to chatter, I'm glad you are not. What is the matter. While I can roast our statue makers and call them mutants and boobies and fakers, I'll stand for all the laws they pass against me. My safety valve is harmless snoring. Free speech, sweet boon! We must not lose it, and therefore never should abuse it. Some gents who wish to awe or dazzle, are working free speech as a frazier; they hand out sentiments exotic; they're toiling like so many yeomen to dish up comfort to the toemen. These skates, to my free speech graft in danger. Because of guys who've no discretion, no common sense in their possession, I may be pinched when I'm unshuffled, and harmless line of sailing. So I maintain we should be stopping all venomous and rancid yawping.
