OTTAYA, May 14.—Mr. Elric Harrington will be the Conservative candidate for the local election in South Renfrew, Mr. Alexander Burnett having resigned in his bed at Kintail, at which there was a turnout of about 1,000. It was called by Mr. Ross, the Reform candidate, who very cunningly concealed until withing a day or twe ago the fact that the Hom. C. F. Fraser was to be present to make one of his usual strongly partisan appeals to the Catholics of Ashfield and Wawanosh township, at least one-half of the electory of those places being of that persuasion. However, word of this little dodge was obtained by the Conservative candidate in time to invite the presence of Mr. J. J. Hawkins, of Brantford, to oppose Mr. Fraser and guard against his taking an unfair advantage. No sooner had the meeting opened than it became apparent that fair play was to be denied the Opposition speakers, although a large majority of the electors present were Conservatives. The Chairman at once announced that Mr. Hawkins must precede Mr. Fraser and have no chance to reply to the latter's speech, although that privilege was all that was asked, with the distinct understanding that the latter might speak again for as long a time as he liked. Neither party would yield, and an hour and a half was wasted amid great uproar. During this time the floor began to crack, and, as it was upstairs, a general stampede took place. Mr. Ross addressed the meeting from a window, and spoke about three-quarters of an hour, using the usual stock arguments as to Reform economy in the ad-

DETROIT, May 19 .- A shocking accident betwork, may 19.—A snocking accident occurred at Berry Brothers' varnish works this afternoon while a gang of men were working in the varnish boiling shop. This shop is a long low brick building exposed to full draughts to feed the coal fires under immense kettles embedded in brickwork, each kettle being provided with a separate chimney. The material being boiled up was of the most inflammable viz., turpentine and linseed oil. It has to be watched as carefully as nitro-glycerine or if a drop boils over and touches the burning coals beneath there is sure an explosion. This was the case this after noon. Several kettles of varnish were boiling in the shop when the two nearest the door boiled over and exploded with a terrific detonation. THE FOREIGN POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT On the 1st inst., in the House of Lords.

Interesting Summary of News.

On the 1st inst., in the House of Lords, the Duke of Argyll gave notice of his intestion to bring before their lordalips, on the 16th May, the results of the foreign policy of her Majesty's Government in Europe and in Asia.

The London correspondent of the Leeds Mercury writes:—"The debate to be raised by the Duke of Argyll just before Parliament will rise for the Whitsuntide holidays, on the subject of foreign affairs. holidays, on the subject of foreign affairs, will be a very important one. The probability, as it at present stands, is that it will last for a couple of nights, and will traverse the whole policy of the Govern-

I understand it is a constitutional privilege for hon. members to show their dissent to anything about to be brought before the House by abstaining from making a House, and thereby prevent the business from being brought forward. I understand the reason why a number of honourable members declined to make a House was in accordance with that view. (Hear, hear.) I should like to know, sir, if you will kindly inform us whether under your authority the committee-room is to be cleared; whether we are required to go in and make a House, and whether it is our duty, whatever our feelings might be with daty, whatever our feelings might be with regard to any bill, to come down to make a Eouse. The Serjeant-at-Ams came with-House. The Serjeant-at-Ams came without the mace, but he informed us that if we did not attend to the summons he would have to appear, by your authority, with the mace, the result of which would be I could not make out. The Speaker of the House, in reply, explained that it had with an intimation that if they did not comply they would be summoned "with the Mace," in which case they would be dissolved. But the Speaker had not the power to compel attendance, and each member was left to attend or not at his own discretion. The London Globe remarks : - All readers of Hatsell's "Precedents" are aware of the mysterious power the mace possesses for the transmutation of the Assembly to which it belongs. "When the mace lies upon the table, it is a House; when under, it is a committee. in real life that has been heard of in this country, involving several respectable English and Canadian families, and including what appears undoubtedly a case of bigamy with the worst details, has just appeared on the surface of Parry Sound life. About seven years ago a young man named William Henry Hyde, from the neighbourhood of Sheffield, England, became intimate with a comely damsel of some 19 years, of that city, and married her, much against the will of her parents. The two lived together for something over a year, when her husband, apparently from domestic troubles, emigrated to Canada, leaving his wife with her parents, she being at that time unwilemigrated to Canada, leaving his wife with her parents, she being at that time unwilling to cross the water with him. The Globe has in fact gone too far in its simulated distinction between Ottawa and Toronto politics. It boasted of a reaction against the National Policy, when no such reaction existed; and now it longs to coax over some who contended for that policy through good report ed for that policy through govern and evil, on the plea that the subject is and evil, on the plea that the subject is so, if that will do the party any good during the impending cataclysm; but during the impending cataclysm; but what about the course of Mr. MOWAT last year, and Mr. FRASER last session?
The talk about the surplus, on platforms and in the press, is very amussome of the men who have suffered from the extravagance of the MACKENZIE and Mowar Governments to what extent they have benefited by the surplus "people," ought to be felt in the pockets of the people; where is it now, pray? That an immense, and altogether prodigal expenditure has been the result of Mr. Mowar's administration we are not concerned to deny. Indeed, it is developed by their own published figures, trimmed and doctored up though they are. They have not yet dared to produce the Public Accounts for 1878; and when they do we venture to think the electors of Ontario will congratulate one another on having sent them about that the Bute Inlet terminus has been chosen, except the statement that the adoption of the Burrard Inlet terminus was "premature;" and as for Mr. Marcus Smith, surely this must be the same gentleman to whom the Globe gratuitously tendered so florid and flattening and when they do we venture to think the electors of Ontario will congratulate one another on having sent them about that the Bute Inlet terminus has been chosen, except the statement that the adoption of the Burrard Inlet terminus was "premature;" and as for Mr. Marcus Smith, surely this must be the same gentleman to whom the Globe gratuitously tendered so florid and flattening and when they do we venture to think the electors of Ontario will congratulate one another on having sent them about the product of the Surray in power has been purchased at two high a price; and moralists may well stand aghast at so unblushing an avowal of wholesale bribery. The two Premiers fought together, and must fall together also. So long as there was a chance of making capital out of an anticipated failure at Ottawa, the party played the card with vigour. The National Policy has even already proved eminently successful and it has been pre-eminently good for both people and Government. And yet only three or four months ago, Mr. France taunted hundred members of Parliament who four months ago, Mr. Fraser taunted the member for East Toronto with the smallness of his majority and compared, in his volubly ignorant way, the ides of September with the ides of December. In point of fact, all the calculations of sides, of the acknowledgment that they character, to the resolutions of the Ministhe Ontario Cabinet have been based, during at least a year, upon the supposed failure of the new fiscal system, either at the polls, last autumn, with the question, "Well, what was the tree of Public Works, which did not seem the plea of necessity. Now if these genexperience of Liberal Governments has themen were bent upon making proselytes convinced them that to be "liberal" to any great political principle which required exceptional information, ability or eloquence to enforce it, and they possessed any one of these desiderata. their erratic movements would be comprehensible. But they are neither apostles nor teachers, and, like the needy knife-grinder in the Anti-Jacobin sapphics, they have no story to tell, unless it be that they love place, and desire, by hook or by crook, to retain it. The Premier travels from North Oxford to London, and from London to Toronto, and thence to St. Catharines to repeat the same little watery speech, without much more variation than one might expect from a well-trained parrot. If he boasts of what his Cabinet has done, it is the old well-worn tale about the inter-Provincial arbitration, the North-West boundary, the consolidation of West boundary, the consonnation of the statutes, and a lot of other articles in his stock-list any men in power could have displayed in power could have displayed to equal advantage, if they had the opportunity. But not only does Mr. Mowar claim credit for every Provincial event which happened during his tame regime, but feeling that no one is attacking him for what any Minister was bound to do in his position, he must needs tilt at a windmill. In an evil hour, the candidate for East Toronto and North Oxford, who at present represents eighty-eight constituencies, was induced still further to befog himself by mixing up East York with East Toronto at one meeting. He might have had more fore-sight, but he had not; and the result, as night have been expected, was a muddle. As a candidate for the city, Mr. Mowar had nothing to say in reply to the charge of injustice, systematic and determined, against Toronto, except the old excuse, that feeble plea; so he turned his country side to East York, and urged that the very fact that Toronto complained was sufficient proof that he had been liberal to the rural constituencies. session. He is now addressing large public meetings in the West, and his success as a popular leader is already secured. Mr. Meredith does not resort to any of the petty tricks Mr. Mowat is not ashamed to stoop to; but appeals straight to the intelligence of his hearers with manly symments. The meeting at Wingham the other day was a most successful me. Messrs. Meredith, Morris, Lauder and Hawkins addressed some two thousand of the electors of Huron, and there is every reason to believe that county will change the political colour of its delegation to the Local Legislature.

Mr. Mackenzie provided Mr. Speaker Anglin and many of his supporters with contracts, and Mr. Mowat used the public noney of Ontario to provide for other needy Dominion members. Thus Mr. Mills was Boundary compiler, and drew $2,000 from the Ontario Treasury, while Mr. G. W. Ross was appointed county model school inspector, and in 1877 draw $1,630. For his brief term of service in 1876 he drew $385. What he made last year will not be known until the Public Accounts are brought down I. 1877. Accounts are brought down. In 1877 Mr. Æmilius Irving, then Dominion mem-ber for Hamilton, received $1,554 for services as Crown prosecutor in the County of York and elsewhere, and, no doubt, he fared equally well last year. It was an old Reform principle that—but what is the good of talking about old Reform prin-

The Treasurer refers boastingly to the adjustment of the Municipal Loan Fund debts, but forgets to tell his audiences that he, then a private member, opposed the Government's scheme in an elaborate speech, contending that it was unfair to the new counties, and that the surplus taxation, or invested as an endowment fund for the public schools of the Province. If Mr. Wood has forgotten this, he can refresh his memory by turning to the Globe of the 26th March, 1873. In that speech he said that "from a calculation he had made of the estimated receipts and expenditure of the Province for the next ten years, he found that our total expenditure annually would be $2,701,650 and our receipts $2,435,918, leaving a deficit at the end of that period of $2,657,320, without taking into consideration the decrease in interest received from investments owing to the If Mr. Wood has forgotten this, he can re received from investments owing to the million each year. A FEW YEARS ago, Mr. Fellows ventured to recommend a new combination of Hypophosites (Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites) to the medical profession and the public, based upon the effects he himself experienced from its use; since then it has been employed with marked success in the treatment of various debilitating diseases, and the sale which at first was numbered by single bottles, has now reached large proportions, so that it is impossible to estimate the good results which have followed. Many cases of confirmed Consumption are known to have been cured, in others the physical signs have disappeared, while great improvement has been marked in all. The inventor has yet to be informed of a single instance where Bronchitis, either acute or chronic, has not been successfully treated by it; while in other Lung difficulties, diseases of the Heart, Nervous System and the Brain, it far surpasses everything hitherto known.

Its freedom from the constipating tendeacy of many otherwise valuable remedies, makes it obviously adapted to a wide range of diseases.

It is pleasing to note a "hemiesal preparation emanating from a provincial town, prescribed by the leading medical men of the great cities, as is the case with this preparation.

The love-lorn William had but little room in his heart for superfluous sentiment as he laid his hand upon the wire rope, and set his foot in the bowk again. Yet just a hope was there—that Selina should not grieve too greatly if this second venture tailed, and he should meet his death. He was not, as a rule, devotionally inclined, but he whispered inwardly, "God be good to her." And there, at that second, he saw her face before him—so set and fixed, that in its agony of fear and prayer it looked like marble. The rope grew taut, he passed the handkerchief about his face again, and with the memory of her eyes upon him, dropped out of sight. The man at the side of the shaft paid out the slender line again, and old hands watched it closely. Yard after yard ran out. The great coil at his feet snaked itself, ring by ring, through his coaly fingers. Still no warning message came from below. The engine stopped at last, and they knew that the foot of the shaft was reached. Had the explorer fainted by the way? He might, for all they knew above, be roasting down below that minute. Even then his soul, newly released, might be above them. Poor William regretted his holiday, and longed for the hour when work should begin again. He beguiled the heavy hours of the day by the composition of woe-begone verses, whereof fortune has preserved a fragment which I here embalm: ing down below that minute. Even then his soul, newly released, might be above

Through the dead silence of the crowd the word flashed to the engine-room. The wheel went round, and the wire rope glided wheel went round, and the wire rope glided and quivered up again, over it. There was not aman or woman there who did not augur the same thing from the tenser quiver of the rope, and when, at last, through the thinner coris of smoke about the top of the shaft the rescuer's figure swung with the first of the rescued in his arms, there was heard one sound of infinite pathos—a sigh of relief from twenty thousand breasts—and dead silence fell again.

"Alive?" asked one, laying a hand on Bowker's arm. Bill nodded and pushed him by, and made his way toward that marble face, nursing his burden still.

"Seliner," he said quietly, "here's your sweetheart."

"No, no, no, Bill, she answered."

"There's on'y one man i' the world for me, Bill, it ever he forgives me an' my wicked Bill, it ever he forgives me an' my wicked ways."

Cheer on cheer of triumph rang in their ears. The women fought for Bill Bowker, and kissed him and cried over him. Men shook hands with him and with each other. Strangers mingled their tears. The steel rope was gliding up and down at a rare rate now, and the half-suffocated prisoners of the fire were being carried up in batches. Selina and her lover stood side by side and watched the last skipful to the surface.

"That's the lot," yelled one coal-smeared giant as the skip swung up. Out broke the cheers again, peal on peal. William stood silent, with the tears in those brave eyes. The penitent stole a hand in his.

Consequently, the preceptor expelled him from the interior, but he continued in the neighbourhood without fretfulness until Mary once more became visible. "What caused this specimen of the genus ovis to bestow so much affection on Mary?" the impetuous progeny vociferated. "Because Mary reciprocated the woolproducer's esteem, you understand," the tutor answered back. "What else did you think I fetched him out for?" queried William, a smile of comedy gleaming through the manly mois-ture of his eyes.

She dropped her head upon his breast, and put both arms around him, and neither she nor he thought of the crowd in that blissful moment when Mr. Bowker's courtship ended, and soul was assured of soul.

TRUE POLITENESS.-Mrs. Livermore recently related the following incident:

The author of "The Woman in White" and innumerable other novels, lately visited Olive Logan, in London, and she gives the Spirit of the Times some of his talk. He said that he got $1,000 from the Bentleys for his first novel, "Antonina;" that he heartily dislikes the coarsely literary style of Zolo and Daudet, the French novelists; that he was somewhat disappointed with terrapin soup when he came to America, and deems the English turtle superior; and deems the English turtle superior; that he writes from early in the morning until night, when he get fairly at it, because any interruption breaks up his line of thought, and he finds it hard to start until the superior. thought, and he finds it hard to start until next morning; that he drinks Moselle at every meal, although he has the gout, and thinks that, when mixed with seltzer, it cools the blood; and he expects soon to come to America again. He also gave the following advice to young story writers: "I have several rules from which I never deviate myself, and deviation from which I consider very dangerous, even in the case deviate myself, and deviation from which is consider very dangerous, even in the case of the most practised author. For instance, in writing a novel, you should always begin at the beginning. A reader's attention must be won by degrees, his interest gradually enlisted, until finally it becomes gradually enlisted, until finally it becomes absorbed. Yet I approve of beginning a story with a sensation, if it be a good one, and one which belongs naturally at the beginning of the story. Then, too, you should know before you begin how it is going to end, and steadily working towards that end, you should always keep the action moving. Modern alloys are more successful than those used in the last century, which, being made of inferior metals, tarnished after very short wear, and soon threw this description of embroidery into discredit. What is called "passing" is generally composed of a thread of silk, round which is a sample of the way it should appear when extremely fine flattened wire of gold or silver is spun. The needle may be threaded with it in the usual way, and it can be used in the same manner as silk for flat embroidery; and alse for knitting, netting, and crochet. It is made of two or three different sizes, and is distinguished from gold cord by its being formed of only one thread. MARVELOUS ESCAPE. A Little Girl Ten Years Old Saves a Boy from a Shocking Death. (From the Cincinnati Gazette.)

Yesterday a four year old boy, the son of James Fallis, who lives in the fourth story of a tenement house at Front and Ludlow, was leaning over the bannister of the back porch and trying to spit down upon some children below. It was fifty feet frem where he stood to the solid brick pavement of the back yard. The little fellow had no sense of danger, and leaned over the bannister as far as he could. He even clambered up so as to take a fairer aim at the little ones below him. In an unguarded moment he leaned too far over, lost his balance, and started whirling down toward the brick pavement, fifty feet below. On the porch of the third story, immediately below him, stood a little girl ten years old, the daughter of one of the residents of that floor. She saw the boy coming, and by an instinct or purpose which amounted to heroism, put out her arm to try to save the boy, She did catch him at the risk of being dragged over herself and of falling with him. Of course she could not hold such a weight, but her arm was just strong enough to turn the course of his fall, so that he landed at her feet on the floor of the third porch. His head struck the hamister, and he had an nedwork on

The carrot is an excellent root, and yields, with proper management, 600 bushels, or 30,000 lbs. upon an acre. Its dry, digestible nutriment is 13.7 per cent., or the yield of an acre, 4,110 lbs.; and the nutritive ratio of the carrot is 1.81, or a little more than that of corn. We have enumerated in these four kinds the most profitable roots for a field crop.

It now remains to notice, as concisely as possible, the soil, culture, harvesting, etc., Soil.

Roots may be profitably raised upon a great variety of soils—from a light sand and a fine loam, to a stiff clay—when in good mechanical condition and well fertilized. The common round turnip, as well as the carrot, flourishes best on a sandy loam; whilst the red and sugar beet, man, gold, and ruta baga turnip grow well oas elay loam. On heavy soils the ruta baga, or Swed turnip, should be drilled in, 24 to 28 inches apart, and these drilles hould be sown upon slight ridges. The way to do this is to throw up ridges that distance a large and the soil. The soil should be fat, the soil. The soil should be firt, but it is better that the stable manure be applied some months before the turnips are drilled in. This crop requires a pretty long season, and should be put in from the 20th of the ridges, flattening the top so as to render it easy to drop the seed with a drill. On a light loam the cultivation should be flat, the soil. The soil should be rich; but it is better that the stable manure be applied some months before the turnips are drilled in. comfortable proximity to his coat tails. The man at once jumped from his perch and with the assistance of the farmer's wife succeeded in unhitching the horses just in time to escape being burned alive. It is supposed that, in putting a bag in the vehicle, the driver had inadvertently dropped a coal from his pipe into the boot, which being fanned by the breeze, rapidly communicated to all the bags and then to the coach. It is thought that if the woman had not perceived the position of things and given warning, the whole rig, man and all would have been destroyed. What action the post office authorities will take in the matter remains to be seen. In the meantime those who sent letters north by that mail would do well to duphicate them. Hamilton Spectator.

The needle is held very horizontally, in order to catch the cord where it touches the surface of the work; and fasten both together by as few threads as will possibly hold them firmly. Gold cord is much used as an edging for appliqué embroidery, on velvet, cloth, or silk; and forms a most effective finish when employed for the veining of leaves and stems. "Light Brahmas are chiefly white in the colour of the plumage, but if the feathers be parted, the bottom colour will often be found of a bluish grey, showing an important of the plumage of the found of a bluish grey, showing an important of the plumage of the plum ant distinction between them and white Cochins, in which the feathers are always white down to the skin. The neck hackle should be distinctly striped with black down the centre of each feather. That of the cock is, however, often lighter than in the case of the hen. The back should be quite white in both sexes.

"The wings should appear white when folded, but the flight feathers are black.

"The tail should be black in both sexes. In the cock it is well developed, and the coverts show splendid green reflections in the light. It should stand tolerably upright, and open well out laterally, like a fan.

"The legs ought to be yellow, and well to covered with white feathers, which may or may not be very slightly mottled with black; vulture hocks are a great defect.

"The ear-lobes must be pure red, and every bird should, of course, have a perfect pea-comb, though good birds with a single comb have occasionally been shown with success."

"The "dark" or "pencilled" Brahmas "The "dark" or "pencilled" Brahmas are similar to the above in comb, form, symmetry, &c., but as different in colour as can well be.

The head of a perfect Brahma cook should be surmounted by a good "peacomb," which resembles three small combs running parallel the length of the head, the course consellight to the head, the centre one slightly the highest, but all evenly serrated and straight, and the whole low and set firm on the head. Beak strong, well curved, and the colour of horn. Wattles full: ear-lobes perfectly red, well rounded, and falling below the wattles

The fluff on the thighs and hinder parts ought to be black or very dark grey. The lower part of the thighs should have plenty of nice soft feathers, almost black, rounding off about the joint and hiding it, but on no account running into "vulture hocks," which I consider a great eyesore.

The cock should carry himself upright and sprightly, and great width and depth are important points; a good bird should show great size, and "look big."

TRADE—Remains generally quiet, as buyers seem to be well stocked.

TRADS—Small lots have been selling slowly at 5

CHERES—Small lots have been selling slowly at 5 expected to continue so, unless outside advices very best, with rather more doing in medium and inferior; good to fine is quoted at 56s to 65s, and ordinary at 40s to 45s.

CHRESS—Small lots have been selling slowly at 5 to 7½c, or occasionally at 8c for the best offering; but inferior can be had still lower. There is nothing doing in lots, but at Woodstock last week new-make sold at 6½c.

EGGS—Have continued to come in freely and sell low; the price of lots to-day was 8 to 8½c. Street receipts sufficient, and prices easy at 9 to 10c.

PORK—Seems rather easier; but small lots on the spot have sold at $13 and lots outside at $12.50 to $12.75; cars at London are offered at $12, but we hear of no sales.

BACON—Has been selling quietly, but at steady prices. There is no governent reported in round lots, but for 100 sides of Cumberland 6½c has been bid and refussed; tons and under have sold at 6½ to 7c; long-clear and short-rib middles have sold at 7 to 7½c; smoked rolls and bellies can be had to a small extent at 9½c and canvassed bellies at 10c.

HAMS—Have been in fair demand and seem unchanged, with sales of smoked in lots of 100 and 50 at from 9½ to 10c; and in small lots at 10½ to 11c and canvassed at 11 to 11½c; pickled have been inactive at 9 to 9½c.

LARD—Seems quiet at rather unsettled prices; tierces range from 8 to 8½c; tinnets from 8½ to 9c, and pails from 8½ to 9c in small lots, and round lots might, perhaps, be had below our inside quotations. Inferior is offering as low as 7½c for tinnets.

HOGE—Have been easy at $6.50 to $6, with offerings fully sufficient for the wants of buyers.

Hogs—Have been easy at $5.50 to $6, with offerings fully sufficient for the wants of buyers. SALT - Dairy seems easier, and has been selling at $1.50 to $1.65, the latter for small lots. Liverpool has been quiet at $1 to $1.05.

DRIED-APPLES—Small parcels have been going off slowly at 4½ to 4½c, the latter for choice; country-lots could be had at 3½c, but not wanted.

wanted. Third-class have been neither offered nor wanted.

SERRET—There have been very few offering, and all of them have been readily taken at firm but unchanged prices. First-class have been steady, and bringing from $6 to $7, or perhaps $7.50 for very choice. I decond-class have not been much wanted, but have remained worth at $4.50 to $5. Yearlings have been wanted at firm prices, and assally worth $4.50 to $6.25 for good qualities.

LAMBS—The supply has fallen off, and has been insufficient; all offering have been readily taken at firm prices, as would have been the case with more had they been offered. First-class, weighing from 35 fibs upwards, have been the sort most in demand, and have sold at $3.50 to $4, or perhaps picked might bring $4.25. Second-class have been steady, with all taken that could be had, at $2.50 to $3.25. Third-class not wanted.

CALVES—Have been less abundant than in the preceding week, and seem rather firmer. First-class, dressing from 120 lbs upwards, have been wanted and worth from $7.50 to $2. Second-class, dressing from 75 to 110 lbs, have been selling from $4 to $6 each. Third-class have not been wanted, and there is no use in offering them.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL. TRABE—Seems generally te have been fairly steady.

Hinss—Green have been offering slowly and selling as before. Cured have been in steady demand and firm with sales at 6% and 6%.

CALFERINS—Green have been abundant and selling as before. Cured have been in active demand with sales at 12% and 13% per ib for fine qualities and of deacons and light veals at 42 to 75c each. of deacons and light veals at 42 to 75c each.

SHEFFAINS—Very few have been offered and these few have sold as before at from $1 to $1.75, the latter for very choice only.

LAMBRINS—Remain unchanged at last week's ad vance to 30c with a good many offering.

Wool.—The market seems to have been quiet but firm. The only movement reported is some sales of supers to factories at 22c; dealers are bidding 20 to 21c but offerings have been small; combing would bring 20c. The Siret parcel of new sleece sold to-day at 18c; low prices are expected.

Tallow—Remains steady and unchanged at 52c for rendered and 32c for rough, with fair offerings.

Quotations stand as follows:—No. 1 inspected. HARDWARE. .

Business has been rather less active of late, and the only movement is in sorting-up lots. The chief movement in this line has been in shelf-goods and builders' materials. Prices are steady but unchanged all over. Imports have begun to come in, but they are light, and prices are expected to be rather higher on some lines, as imports made prior to the new tariff are worked off.
