The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

I had argued with the Very Clever Man on a certain subject, and had almost—or maybe quite—gone down before the powerful battery of his information and eloquence.

son for changing his ideas on the subject. I thought perhaps the Very Clever Man has changed his mind on the subject—though it must have been a lightning change—but when I asked him about it, he refused to accept that loophole of escape.

"Oh, no, I hadn't changed my mind," he insisted, cheerfully, "I'll take any side of any question for the sake of an argument."

Facts for Weak Women.

Nine-tenths of all the sickness of women is due to some derangement or disease of the organs distinctly feminine. Such sickness can be cured—is cured every day.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

It Makes Weak Women Strong,
Sick Women Well.

It acts directly on the organs affected and is at the same time a general restorative tonic for the whole system.

We shall not participate here as to the symptoms of those peculiar affections incident to women, but those wanting full information as to their symptoms and means of positive cure are referred to the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser—1008 pages, newly revised and up-to-date Edition, sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, or, in cloth binding for 50 cents.

Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Fads and Fashions.

When a chiffon tunic is worn over a foulard or other material a satin band often faces the skirt to the depth of the lower edge of the tunic.

The one-sided jabot that fills up the open space above the top button of the coat is very smart. It may be made of fine mull, hemstitched and edged with lace.

Capes are in all lengths and more or less severe in cut, but their linings and pipings—and now and then added button ornamentation—make them effective and attractive.

Fine serges, lightweight broadcloth, worsteds, mohairs, homespuns, etc., and various smooth-surface suitings are prominent in the fabrics seen in street suits of the day.

Festooned bands of ribbon are used to adorn the lower part of many tunics and skirts; the ribbon is run through large eyelets and holds the fullness of the tunic or skirt in place.

Double frills with the upper one in Vandyke points over a lower one of color or white embroidered, or edged with lace, in white, are attractive whether in collar shape or yordage.

Moiré has taken on a new border in line with the latest fashions; the puffs at the edges fitting in perfectly with the styles of the early Victorian period which are now being revived.

The bows and rosettes of the hour cannot be made from a yard or two of ribbon; all the way from six to twelve yards are essential to the production of the fashionable accessory of this class.

Wraps, designed especially for dress occasions, are made of silk, chiffon, satin lace, cachemire de soie, voile, gauze cloth, bengaline, etc., in all the new shades and in black and white. Yordage frilling is shown in many varieties, and each day or week some manufacturer puts out another new pattern. Interlarded plaits are the latest—that is, the plaits are in clusters with spaces between.

A noticeable feature in ribbon accessories, the shirring and simulated buckle or sashes, all made in or of the ribbon, and also the use of dainty drop trimmings, tassels, rings, discs, etc., as completions.

Two or three fairly deep tucks make a favorite and sensible finish for the ruffle of the founce of the lingerie gown. They give a slight weight to the garment and it is a simple matter to launder them well.

So great has been the vogue of the bordered materials that manufacturers of silks have hit upon the idea of making the selvage of their materials wider and heavier than usual, so that it may itself serve as a border.

Coats of Irish crochet are smarter than ever. Those of chiffon in combination with the Irish lace are somewhat newer, but probably will not be so popular because they lack the wearing qualities of the all-lace garment.

Sea Turtle's Life.

Whatever the young sea turtle eats and wherever he eats it—facts not generally ascertained—one thing is certain, it agrees with him immensely. He leads a pleasant sort of life, basking in the tropical sun and cruising leisurely in the cool depths.

Once he has attained the weight of twenty-five pounds, which usually occurs within the first year, the turtle is free from all danger. After that no fish or mammal, however ravenous, however well armed with teeth, interferes with the turtle.

When once he has withdrawn his head from his position of outlook into the folds of his neck between the two shells, intending devourers may struggle in vain to make an impression upon him.—From Harper's Weekly.

League Football.

The first league football match for the season, the Casuals vs. B. I. S., took place on St. George's Field last evening. The attendance was very small chiefly owing to the cold weather prevailing. The B. I. S. who lost the toss were sent to the western goal where the wind blew against them.

In the outset the Casuals made a grand onslaught and came very near scoring, the ball rolled behind the bars. The B. I. S. boys after the kick off made a dash against the wind and were doing well till they encountered the back division of the Casuals. The wind at this juncture was blowing very strong and both teams were kept busy keeping the ball within the field. In spite of all the care exercised it went over the fence several times.

On resuming play the Brophys put in some great combination play, but Bowring and Herder in the back division of the Casuals were too wide awake for them and sent the ball back out of danger. After this the play continued about midfield without any attractive features. After three or four minutes of this kind of play Cunningham, Mars and Smallwood of the Casuals combined very effectively and bringing the ball down on the B. I. S. ground gave a busy spurt to Brophy in the goal.

HALF TIME. The B. I. S. put on strenuous efforts to secure a goal on resuming play. The Casuals were too strong for them. Their combination was admirable. A penalty kick being awarded them they secured No. 4 goal.

The B. I. S. were now disheartened. The ball was knocked about in mid-field for a while and the play lacked interest. Shortly before the final whistle sounded P. Mars sent in No. 5 for the Casuals, leaving the score 5 to 0 in their favor.

The names of the players are as follows:—B. I. S.—W. Brophy, goal; L. Stapleton, J. Kavanagh, backs; Mrs. James Cumbe, J. Bennett, T. Duggan, halves; J. Buckingham, E. Brophy, Jr., E. Brophy, Sr., S. Baird and G. Downs, forwards.

CASUALS.—H. Foster, goal; E. Bowring, H. Herder, backs; H. Rendell, K. McKenzie, H. Brown, halves; S. Lumsden, W. Smallwood, P. C. Mars, H. Fraser and A. Cunningham, forwards.

Notes From Harbor Grace.

Mr. W. N. Ford, of the A. A. T. staff of Heart's Content, spent Sunday last in town the guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. Ford.

The whaler Hump ran in here last evening out of the heavy sea that raged outside.

Mr. Edmund Rogers, Chairman of the Road Board, has a number of men employed cleaning up the roads in town. We hope the obliging chairman will manage to have some attention paid to the road known as Rocky Pond Road. The people living on the hill would be delighted to have the road cleaned up a bit.

Little Irene Gorman, a five-year-old girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gorman, wandered to the old wharf at the rear of their residence yesterday morning and fell through into the water. Fortunately the other children in the party saw her and she was rescued just in time. To Master Thomas McGrath, son of the late engineer Thomas McGrath, go well remembered, belong the credit of rescuing the little girl.

In the afternoon Master Blanchard Munn, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Munn, while playing on McAra's wharf, making a step too near was also given a cold bath. He was rescued by some bystanders nothing the worse of his dip.

Mr. Arthur Barnes, our former popular M. H. A., paid the town a flying visit yesterday. His many and sincere friends were pleased to see him.

Mr. Jeremiah Hare while working at Bell Island about three weeks ago fell owing to his light going out and hurt his leg. He was compelled to come home; he is still unable to resume work.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. John Casey in the death of their little daughter, Isabella, which took place on Monday last. The little one had been sick for two years, and although her mother took her to New York for treatment nothing could be done for her. She was 8 years and 8 months old. The funeral took place on Wednesday.

The great expert is now in town and is to give a demonstration of peat cutting, drying, etc., in a day or so. We had some excellent peat here in the past, but it was taken from us to the rich St. John's. We hope the genial Head Constable will pardon the pun.

The members of the British Band intend going to Briggs on Tuesday next, where a concert and dance will be held in the night. On Wednesday they will proceed to North River, and hold another concert. The band is now in good form and the people of these places may look forward to something good in the music line. CORRESPONDENT. Hr. Grace, June 16th, 1910.

A Brief for "Beaver" Flour

"Beaver" Flour

1. Eat more bread made from BEAVER FLOUR and less meat, and you will be better nourished, at the same time reducing the cost of living.
2. No special pastry flour is needed, for BEAVER FLOUR makes the best pies, cakes, biscuits and rolls.
3. It contains the valuable gluten and protein constituents of Manitoba No. 1 Hard Wheat, but makes finer, whiter bread than if made from that alone.
4. It owes its delicacy and lightness to the carbohydrate constituents of Ontario Wheat in just the right proportions, but is more nourishing than if made from that alone.
5. It readily takes up water, and makes larger loaves and more of them.
6. It tickles the palate of the whole family, and does them good.
7. A few good reasons are as good as a thousand, so we will now, Your Honor, rest our case.

Be sure to note that the decision is for BEAVER FLOUR, with the costs assessed to those who do not use it.

THE FAIR IMPOSTOR.

CHAPTER III. HILDA FANE.

The new arrival looked through the cottage in the outskirts of the town.

'Ah, I understand,' rejoined the other, ironically, 'all part of the advertisement; helps to keep up the interest. I'll wage she can't act a bit.'

'Then you'll love,' is the retort. 'She plays—well, better than any woman I ever saw, and that's saying something. Wait until you see her, and you'll indorse my opinion. And as for claptrap, I don't believe that the motive at all. Anyone can see the woman is a lady. I wish I had taken Slade's bet! Hello, here he is, and he turned with a smile, as a tall, handsome, young Englishman quietly and coolly made his way through the crowded passage.'

from his face and manner; that he was also rich was conjectured by his lavish expenditure and his supreme and Quixotic disregard of money. Some said he was the heir to an enormous estate in England, travelling for pleasure; a few hinted that he was a mere adventurer. All, however, combined in making much of him, inviting him to dinners and 'at homes,' the men copying his dress and languid nonchalance, the women quoting his epigrammatic opinions and bonmots.

Faultlessly dressed, though he had travelled without a valet, he made his way, with calm, high-bred composure, to his seat, scarcely raising his eyes to the boxes, which almost unanimously lowered their opera glasses at him, and only responding to the frequent greetings of those about him with a faint smile and a languid nod; and yet he had seen and noticed as much of the house already as many who had been staring round it for the last quarter of an hour.

'Hello, Slade!' said the man who had been giving the history of the bet; 'you are late; thought you weren't coming. Here's your seat.'

'Thanks,' he said, dropping into it without a glance at the house. 'Yes, I am late; everture just finished; dined with the secretary of war, and couldn't get away.'

'I thought you'd be here,' said his friend, laughing and smiling round to the others. 'How goes the wager?'

'It stands just where it was,' replied Dawson Slade.

'Don't say so! I say, Slade, is it true that you sent her a diamond bracelet with her initials in emeralds as big as peas?'

'Quite,' was the calm response. 'True, also, as you have heard, no doubt, that she sent it back in the same wrapper.'

'Phew!' softly whistled his friend. 'Looks bad for your thousand, Slade!'

'I think not,' said Dawson Slade, with a faint smile. 'I am quite prepared to double the amount.'

Before the challenge could be accepted or refused, the curtain rose, and instantly the house was hushed in silence.

The play was a political drama of the old Grecian schol, which had been revived to give Hilda Fane an opportunity of playing the leading character; it was one of the old-fashioned, buckram dramas of John's time, with only one piece of life in it, that of the heroine, a woman of infinite grace and tenderness, who, by a succession of wrongs, is transformed into a creature thirsting for and achieving her revenge.

Through the first half of the first act, the immense audience listened and watched with restless impatience; but suddenly as a curtain was pushed aside at the back of the stage, and a tall, slim figure of a girl, clad in the white robes of a vestal virgin, entered—quietly, unassumingly, but with infinite grace—the whole house seemed to spring, mentally awake and to its feet. A low thrill of admiration preceded the burst of applause, and even outlasted it.

With the slightest bend of her exquisitely shaped head, round which her dark and really wonderful hair was bound in close, heavy coils, Hilda acknowledged the enthusiastic reception, and proceeded at once with the action of the character. In an intense silence, the house listened, and seemed to drink in the tones of the voice which, had it been murmuring, simple, commonplace, would have enchained attention; but uttering grand thoughts, in deep and eloquent words, went straight to the hearts of the crowded house and literally bewildered them.

And be it remarked, that it is not at all an easy thing to rouse a San Franciscan audience to enthusiasm.

Quietly, but with the subtle undercurrent of approaching passion, the play developed itself, and in the third act the young, simple, trusting vestal develops into the vengeful, indignant woman. Gone was the placid meekness, the veiled, downcast eyes, the mild, hesitating, musical voice, and in their place was outraged pride in arms, blazing through the dark eyes, and outpoured in the rich, powerful voice.

She swayed the audience as the wind sways a withy bough; every eye watched the graceful movements of the rounded arm and lithic, supple figure, when, with outstretched hands, she uttered her curse upon her persecutors every man and woman winced; and when she fell, and lay dead, stretched out and motionless, with her long hair sweeping over her white arm, a thrill of exquisite pain kept the spectators silent for a moment. Only for a moment; then they broke out into applause, which lasted long after she had swept across the stage before the curtain and disappeared from their view. 'Wonderful! Marvelous!' exclaimed the gentleman sitting next to Dawson Slade. 'Never saw anything like it! No rant—and what a piece it is to rant in! It is nature itself!'

With the Aid of a Mouse.

In the Vinery building at Norfolk, Va., there is a tube 197 feet in length through which an electric wire had to be run, and on account of several bends in it, blowing machines and other things failed to do the work. Then a mouse was caught, a thread tied to its leg and it was started through the pipe. The plan worked and the wire was pulled through by a cord which was attached to the end of the long thread. The mouse was given its freedom.

A TRUE ACCOUNT.

There is no loneliness can hold a candle to being lonely in the woods. A kind of a silent whispering, like a gang of old men deciding on what punishment they will inflict upon you is heard around. Sometimes you think you hear people talking quite near, but when you investigate you discover it is imagination. I started in bawling out for Tucker, but the echo came back as if to mock me. Through the woods I kept going, doing my best to keep in a straight direction, but every one or any one who has been in a strange locality like this and has lost his chum, knows the sickening feeling that takes charge of you. The more you bawl out without getting an answer the more discouraged you become. I was nearly hoarse from shouting Tucker, and I was covered with fog to the knees. The flies had played havoc with me, for in my excitement I forgot to pay any attention to them. But just as I rounded a big clump of bushes and scaled a slippery rock, to take a look around, I was agreeably surprised to see in the distance a man seated on a rock, fishing and smoking. It didn't take long for me to reach the spot and ask him how he had done with the fish. He evidently was one of those of the neighborhood, for he carried none of the city trappings with him. He was a hard-looking customer, whom I'd judge as one not easily disturbed; a kind of a man that would give you a match, show you the way, or tell you the time without taking his eyes off his float; a man with a face that can't be swelled with mosquitoes; a face that you'd never know whether 'twas washed last Sunday or last Sunday week; a brown face with a "strangely" beard that's neither a whisker nor a mustache.

"How did you get on?" I asked.
"How did I get on with what?" he replied, as he gave his hook and line a fling out further.
"How did you get on with the trout?" I continued, in a meek manner, half afraid I'd vex him.
"Oh, I don't bother much about 'em," said he; "I just threw out here while I was takin' a spell. Troutin' and me don't agree. I have something else to bother me beside troutin', and as he spoke he laid particular stress on the word "me," as much as to say I was having a grand time of it.
"You know," said he continuing, "I'm out two nights now looking for my horse and now I'm on my way home beaten out and unsuccessful."
"But surely," said I, "when you put your horse out on the commons, when you let him go where he likes to go, you can't expect he is going to stand still, just where you left him. I think 'tis a very foolish practice." He looked at me with eyes ablaze and I discovered I had made a mistake, and to fix things up a bit I wound up by offering my services to assist him. He cooled down a bit.

"No," said he, "I'm almost home now, and if you care to come down to the house you can have a 'mug up' for you look as if it wouldn't go astray on you. 'Tis early yet," said he, "and when you get fixed up a bit you can go over to the gullies. You'll get all the trout you want in less than no time."
"I suppose," said I, "you didn't see any sign of my chum. He left me about three hours ago and I haven't laid eyes on him since."
"No," he said, "I haven't; but 'tis more than likely he dropped into the house on his way up the pond. All the trouters call in to see us."

With spirits away up in G, I followed my new-found friend. I never met anything like that man to go through woods. He was nothing to look at, but when he got in motion he went like a deer. Rocks, stumps, bog—nothing interfered with him, and in trying to keep up with him I worked as I had never worked before. You know you hate telling a man like that that he is going too fast for you; there's a certain pride in every one that won't allow him to give in, and there was a little of it left in me. At last we reached the house. Small and all as it was, there was about it a feeling of comfort, and before I entered I knew 'twas a place where that true genuine hospitality is to be found. Nowhere, I believe, can the good substantial feeling come over you, that sense of safety like a captain feels after making port in a storm, as in a good old-fashioned country house.

When we entered we were met by my friend's wife—a woman the lot of whom would do you good.
"Why, man alive," she said, "you look as if you struck a hard time of it. Come right in and never mind your boots, they're clean enough; we have no grandeur around here."
I'll never forget the sight that met me. There were about eight or ten trouters, all arrayed in their best trout suits, and amongst them seated in a corner with an eight by ten smile on his old cute face and whipping it to a fingle on an accordion—Tucker. He looked over at me and winked, as much as to say he'd "struck it rich."
"I knew you'd have along this way," said he; "and, anyway, if you didn't show up within the next two hours or so we were all going in search of you." With this speech he wound up, "Weren't we, boys?"

They all joined in a chorus of "that's right," and soon I was in the midst of them and forgetting my troubles. Two men who hold responsible positions in a Water Street store were among the crowd; two men whom you'd think to meet them in town that they'd never smile again. But here they are gay as the gayest. Their stiff collars are out in St. John's in some drawer; their stiff ways are left out in St. John's also. Is there any place or anything that can put people on equality like a day in the country? Country people as a rule think nothing a trouble, or up to the present they thought nothing a trouble; but I think the day is dawning, unfortunately, when that good feeling is becoming dulled. It's not much trouble to discover the reason, for let us ask ourselves in St. John's, "What do we do for the country people to merit their kindness? Just ask yourself the question and you'll get the answer on the inside."
As I was saying, these two hard business men were there singing their songs in their turn and doing anything and everything to make the day go good.

"What do you say for the gullies?" said I to Tucker.
"Don't talk to me of gullies," said he. "'Tis to-day only, after all my years, I have discovered what troutin' really means. You don't want to meet any gullies to have a good day troutin'. What do you say for a game of forty-fives?"

Soon we were thumping the table and logging our pipes, as jolly a crowd as ever passed Torphy's house without running into it. So the hours spent on till seven o'clock when, after partaking of a square feed set up in good old-fashioned style, we accepted a seat in one of the carriages of our newly made friends, and as we made our way to town music, coarse but whole-hearted, rent the air, and the best of good fellowship such as only a troutin' excursion can afford prevailed.

TIM SHANNAHAN.

Encouragement to Agriculture.

Editor Evening Telegram:
Dear Sir,—We received by the S. S. Home, Thursday, June 9th, ten sacks of seed potatoes to distribute among the people of the District. Well done, Morris, and your Tory Government! Why, my dear sir, we have potatoes up here "trenched up" long ago. Do they think we are so slow as that as to sow potatoes in the middle of June? 'Tis a wonder they hadn't waited till September to send them, then we would have been able to sow them in "hot houses" for the winter. No doubt we have a smart Government now! That's their first move, so how slow will they be before four years time? Why, they'll be too slow to stop quick. What a time to send seed potatoes! No doubt that's great encouragement to farmers. They've been on the way so long that they are half rotten; of course, just a sample of themselves.

There'll be no scarcity of turnips and cabbage up here next winter, either. We got half an ounce divided among seven families from the Agricultural Society here. Of course 'twas the best they could do, and to make the thing better we were required to give a receipt for every one-fourteenth of an ounce we received. A fine thing, no doubt, for the paper manufacturers to supply all the paper needed. I think it would be a good plan for the Bankers and Labrador men to stay home this summer and go farming, because certainly the women won't be able to attend to all the crops they raise from these seeds.

When next comes around here again looking for votes we'll give him just about the same amount as they gave us seeds, and of course, his board won't cost him anything because we'll feed him on Government potatoes and cabbage, and we'll drive him around with a pair of those ponies we're going to get. I would like to advise the Government to send them along as soon as they "parcel 'em up," because if they stay over 't Bay of Islands, like the potatoes, they may get spoiled. I s'pose 'twas Mr. Editor, to say too much or we mightn't get those ponies, so I'll have to close.
Wishing them a "good old time of it," Mr. Editor, in their four years reign.

I remain, yours truly,
"REX"

Worst Case Of Eczema

Cure only came when doctors gave up and DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT was used.

Mrs. Wm. Miller, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted eczema and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that had ever come under my notice, and she apparently suffered what no pen could ever describe. I had three different doctors attend her all to no purpose. Finally I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment and to my surprise she immediately began to improve and was completely cured of that long standing disease. That was four years ago when we lived at Cornwall, Ont., and as not a symptom has shown itself since, the cure must be permanent."
The record of cures which Dr. Chase's Ointment has to its credit have placed it alone as the standard cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease. Do not be satisfied with imitations or substitutes, 60 cents a box at all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Our New Mayor.

We congratulate Mr. W. J. Ellis on his election to the Mayorship by acclamation. Although Mayor Ellis has had an easy time in his election, it by no means follows that he will have an easy time during his Mayorship. The new Mayor, and his colleagues on the Council who will be elected ten days hence, have a strenuous time before them. They have many difficult problems to face, whose solution cannot wait, and they will have to grapple stoutly with the finances of the city in order to obtain means to solve them. People are by no means satisfied with municipal matters as they exist today, and will insist on a much more "live" policy in the future than has marked Municipal administration in the past. The fact that there is no contest for the Mayorship, surely, marks the desire of citizens generally to avail of the experience Mr. Ellis has gathered from his eight years service in the Municipal Council. The mistakes of the past, the formidable difficulties which have been overcome in the past will both afford lessons to him which will be useful to him and his colleagues when conferring on the problems of the present and future. Much is expected of Mayor Ellis. We know his zeal and earnestness. May he rise to the occasion. It will require all his zeal, earnestness, knowledge and experience.

The Bornu Here.

The s.s. Bornu arrived here at 6.30 this morning from New York via Halifax. The ship left the former port on Saturday last at 11 a.m., and had fine weather until the Nova Scotia coast was reached when she encountered dense fog, but by the excellent seamanship of Capt. Dalton and his officers and crew she was navigated safely to port, arriving at Halifax at midnight. She left there Tuesday at 11 a.m. and would have made a good run to port but for the N. E. gale and high sea which raged all yesterday and last night. She has a large cargo and sails to-morrow evening. Last night the passengers all met in the ship's saloon when, selecting Rev. Fr. J. G. McCormack of New York, as their spokesman, they warmly congratulated Capt. Dalton on his excellent seamanship which brought them safely through a stormy voyage and one not unattended by incidents fraught with danger to ship and people. He was also thanked for his courtesy and kindness. The captain in a nice speech thanked them for the kindly feelings expressed towards him. Following is the passenger list: Thos. Courtes, B. A. Gibson, Miss A. Keen, Mrs. S. Fox, Miss A. Horwood, M. Duff, Mrs. J. A. Shand, F. A. Russell, Robt. Norman, Mrs. Robt. Norman, Dr. O. H. Leber, P. Feuring, T. McCormick, Mrs. Geo. Webster, Mrs. Standish, Mrs. Mary Wickliffe and baby, Miss Coles, Wickliffe, Miss M. Wickliffe, Miss F. Wickliffe, J. F. Holt, Miss E. G. Holt, J. S. Benedict, Miss F. Moody, W. E. Hefferman, Miss Lillian Lockwood, C. A. Jones, C. H. Wright, Mrs. C. H. Wright, A. C. Lanthier, Mrs. S. Tomlins, Miss Mildred Tomlins, Miss Ruth Tomlins, James Mercer, Mrs. James Mercer, and baby, Miss V. Mercer, A. L. Ortiz, F. L. Bowman, Miss Florence Cowan, Miss Helen Fraser and R. J. Power.

Bornu in Collision.

Just after leaving New York about 12.30 on Saturday last, and while the s.s. Bornu was passing Ward's Island the ship came into collision with a deeply laden barge which was being towed to New York by a tug. There were three tugs with tow. As the tug was hither with a very swift current running through it the danger of collision is great. When the pilot of the Bornu saw the tug and tow approaching the ship gave the customary two blasts of her whistle as a warning to the oncoming boats, and received a similar answer from the tug. Concluding that those on the tug understood what it meant, the Bornu kept her course, but the tug did not alter her position, so that before it could be by any means avoided the Bornu crashed into the side of the barge which gradually sank and remained submerged. It is a very dangerous place and near the shoal known as Hell Gate, and but for skillful manoeuvring the Bornu must have gone ashore. In the excitement caused by the collision one of the crew of the barge jumped overboard, swam about for some time and became a result of the unfortunate man's death. An effort could be made by those on the tug or steamer. One of the other men on the barge jumped over also to try and reach the Commodore boat, but he was swept away by the current and narrowly escaped being lost himself. All the passengers on the ship saw the accident and were much affected as a result of the unfortunate man's death. All on board the ship say that the blame for the collision rests solely on the captain of the tug.

St. Bon's Old Boys.

A meeting of St. Bonaventure's Old Boys took place at the Aula Maxima last night at 8.30. Mr. M. W. Furlong, K. C. presided in the absence of the President, Sir E. P. Morris. It was proposed that a celebration take place on St. Bonaventure's Day, July 14th. The members will attend Mass at the College chapel, afterwards have a breakfast in the College refectory. One of the old boys will deliver an address appropriate to the occasion. It is proposed also to make this an annual feature.

Grand Falls Excursion.

The popular and energetic Shamrock Amusement Club are now looking for their excursion to Grand Falls on the general holiday, July 13th. This will be a grand opportunity for our city people to see the new inland city, and the big paper making industry, very snug and fare. A special train will leave here early on the night previous to the holiday arriving at Grand Falls early next morning, and the excursionists will have all day to take in the sights. Return train will leave that night reaching St. John's early next morning. A programme of sports is also being arranged, and communications have been received from Grand Falls stating that their cricket and football teams are practicing hard, and as there are a number of crack players in the new city, the teams will meet with foemen worthy of their steel. The people there having also signified their intention of giving the excursionists a big time, and making the visit one day to take in their a long time. The Club wishes to state that only a limited number can be taken, and they wish all those intending to go, would send in their names before the 28th. For further particulars see their poster, and also ad. in Saturday's issue.

Mr. Kent, K.C., for plaintiff, Mr. Howley for defendant. It is ordered that defendant account for and pay to the plaintiff the amount in which the property stands mortgaged. The account will be taken before another Judge. The Court adjourned till Wednesday, the 22nd.
Big Sea Running.
To-day around Torbay and the eastern settlements owing to the stormy weather which has prevailed since Monday, a big sea is running on the shore and is feared will cause great damage to traps and fishing gear generally. Codner's trap was swept out of Torbay with a large trap skiff and the fisher's boat was overturned. It is impossible to get out to see how the traps are on the grounds and it is feared that Codner's trap and boat will be lost.

Brother Employees Killed and Injured.

As details of the accident in the Herald building, Montreal, filter in here through the agency of exchanges, the escape of Mr. W. J. Herder of the Telegram staff from a fearful death becomes more evident. It was fortunate that his father wrote to him a little time ago, telling him to return to St. John's, John Cunningham who was instantly killed was press feeder in the Pony room on the third flat and Mr. Herder worked quite near him. When Cunningham was killed he was working on the press Mr. Herder had vacated. The pressman on the same flat Mr. Smithman was dangerously hurt and another press feeder, Alphonse Threure whom Mr. Herder knew well and worked close to also lost his life.

INCIDENTS IN DISASTER.

When the fire broke out some of the girls at the windows of the top floor were hysterical and seemed about to throw themselves to the sidewalk below. "Don't jump," yelled a hundred voices continuously from below while the cooler heads at the windows held the others back. After what seemed an interminable wait the Chief's auto came flying around the square and it was quickly followed by the extension ladders. Thousands cheered lustily a second later as a fireman rushed up the ladder and began the descent with a fainting girl in his arms. Half a dozen firemen followed him and in a moment the girls were being taken down as fast as there was room for them on the ladder. Several other ladders were placed up to the other floors, and the other people who had been patiently waiting their turn came down.

"WOMEN FIRST"

When the ladders were run up it was "Women first" and not one of the men made an attempt to get a foot on the ladder before all the women and girls had been rescued. Those who had received injuries were next taken down, and finally the men came rushing down the ladders to safety. One boy was seen to be particularly particular brave. He was at the central window of the sixth story with about fifteen girls behind him. He stood on the ledge outside the window and kept the girls back until the ladders came. Standing quietly at the top of the ladder, he assisted the firemen to take the girl from the window, and it was not until the last had been rescued that he came down himself. When only one girl remained at the ledge he helped her onto the ladder, and came down holding her to prevent her from falling off. The girl was almost as cool as the young man. She held her back while the others were taken down.

PINNED DOWN BY GIRDER.

Dashing through the blinding mass of dust and falling debris towards the door of the stereotyping room where he was employed, M. Vidal was caught beneath a girder and pinned down. Firemen in vicinity half an hour later heard his faint moans, and investigating revealed Vidal badly crushed beneath the weight of the great steel girder. With curling tongues of flames creeping nearer and nearer and dense volumes of choking smoke engulfing them, the firemen worked desperately to sever the giant steel girder and release the half-conscious man. So desperate was his plight that Rev. Father Martin, Pastor of the Church at the corner of St. Puler and St. Catherine's Streets was called in to administer the last rites of the church to the semi-conscious man and hear his confession. Finally, the beam was cut away and Vidal released. Fearfully crushed about the body he was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital.

ALL ESCAPE CUT OFF.

William Taylor, a foreman of the composing room, told a graphic story. "All but about twenty feet of the building gave way on our flat. (The fifth). Every one started for the stairway, but escape was utterly cut off. We were forced to stay at the window and wait. That awful wall of flames was raised. I do not think any of our men went down with the collapse but some received minor injuries."

JUMPED TO DEATH.

One man is known to have lost his life in the lane at the back. When the men under Chief Mann went through the tunnel from the front of the building they found that upon a narrow ledge on the third storey a man was clinging. Lieut. Kavanagh of No. 4 salvage, shouted to him to keep cool and a life line would be sent to him. At that moment the flames swirled up in a choking gust, and the man jumped off to certain death in the burning debris below which was soon covered by the collapse of portions of the floors above.

Fire Alarm Yesterday.

Yesterday at 4.20 p.m. an alarm of fire was sent in from box 334 bringing the Western and Central firemen to Alexander Street where the roof of the old Alexander Street School was on fire. It is thought that a spark alighted on the roof from the foundry and caused the blaze. Before the firemen arrived men from the foundry quenched the blaze with a few buckets of water, and only slight damage resulted to the building.

THE DIOCESAN SYNOD.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The afternoon meeting of the Synod began yesterday at 3.30 in the usual manner with prayer. After the roll had been called, the minutes of the last meeting were read and carried. The business of this meeting was confined to Committee reports and notices of motion. The Rev. G. H. Bolt presented, the report of the Queen's College Council. The work of the College was embodied in the report and the results in the number of Clergy supplied to the ministry. W. W. Blackall, Esq., presented the report of the Education Committee of the Diocesan Synod. This report shows that since its appointment in 1908 the Education Committee held 14 meetings, and met the Government on three occasions. Following on the resolutions of last session of Synod, the Committee prepared a memorial which was presented to the Government in May, 1909, in which a loan was asked for to provide funds for the erection, equipping and maintenance of school buildings, also for increased grants for superior schools, colleges, training teachers, feebler localities and elementary education in St. John's. The result of the Committee's action has been that the Legislature has given $100,000 as a building fund, and has devoted large increases for other educational funds. The report contains regulations upon which money will be lent to Boards for building purposes. Twenty-five Boards have received grants from the Church's share of the $100,000, and 33 schools have been added to the extent of $12,225.00. The Committee's attention having been drawn to the lack of funds for elementary education in St. John's, the Government was again voted upon, and an amount has since been allocated for this purpose. The report ends with a suggestion that the Committee should be formally recognized as Trustees of the Building Fund and the Advisory Board for the Church of England Department of the Superintendent of Education.

The Hon. John Harvey, as Manager of the Committee of the Clergy Sustainment Fund, presented his report. The annual sum available is now $1,500. The annual income is now $2,452 from an invested capital of $50,462.09.

Rev. G. H. Bolt gave notice that at the next general meeting he would introduce a Bill to amend certain chapters of the Constitution and Rules of the Diocesan Synod, and another Bill for the establishment of the Bishopric Maintenance Fund.

During the afternoon a letter was read from G. H. Dickenson, Esq., Secretary of the City Club, notifying the Synod of an invitation on behalf of the Club to all the clergy to use the Club rooms during the session. Dr. Pilot proposed a vote of thanks to the Club, which was carried by acclamation.

Meeting adjourned at 4.30.

At 7.30 the chair was taken by the Bishop. The report of the Executive Committee was read by the Rev. G. H. Bolt, Secretary-Treasurer of the Synod, and that of Bishop Spencer College.

The Regatta Meeting.

There seems to be a lively interest already taken in this season's Regatta and several crews will be at practice next week. Monday evening at 8 o'clock there will be a meeting in a new room to form up a committee for this year's Derby. It is to be hoped that all who can will attend and that a good representative committee will be nominated. No doubt most of the old timers will be there, and it is right they should be, as "gentlemen" are enthusiastic over our national sports day, and the excellent regattas of recent years is the result of hard work, energy and ability. But as "many hands make light work," the infusion of some new blood and the election of more men to act on the committee this year will facilitate matters greatly and will assure a good Regatta this year. With the addition of the new boat for the Methodist Guards the races will be well contested and a pleasant day afforded citizens.

“Littledale Leaves.”

We thank the Rev. Mother at Littledale for a copy of that excellent little brochure, “Littledale Leaves,” published annually in the interest of St. Bride's Academy, Littledale. The contributions, which are evidently written by pupils and ex-pupils, are on the whole clever productions and display in several cases rare talent on the part of the writers. The illustrations which “come out” well include the school classes for every year inclusive between the years 1903 and 1910, and on the frontispiece is an excellent photo of His Grace Archbishop Howley, Patron of the institution.

Should be Returned.

Tuesday evening as Mr. Sullivan, of Briggs Junction, was going home from St. John's in the train, while a large number of passengers were on the cars, he lost a valise, the contents of which were very valuable to him. His wife is dangerously ill and prescriptions from doctors in the city with a bottle of cordial intended for the sick room were in the receptacle. He believes it was taken by mistake. He only values it for the contents, and if this item meets the eye of the person who has it he certainly should return it.

A Good Examination.

Mr. John Besant, one of the most popular conductors on the Reid Nfld. Co. line, recently passed a highly successful examination in the I. C. S. of Scranton, Pa., on the subjects of the Westinghouse Air Brake. He also passed in the Trainers Course, and in each averaged 99 p. c. of marks. The company in consideration of his good work offered him a pass to Chicago and return. We congratulate Mr. Besant.

Accident at the Dock.

Ben Rogers who was engaged painting in the hold of the steamed Adventure yesterday at the R. N. Co. Dock, tripped and fell a distance of about fourteen feet. He was taken to the saloon and first aid was given. His ambulance was called and he was taken to the hospital where Dr. Keegan attended him. His left thigh was fractured and his body bruised. He will not be able to work for several days.

Late Edward Jenkins.

Author of "Ginx's Baby."

If ever there was a cosmopolitan it was Edward Jenkins, the son of a clergyman born in India, educated in Canada and the United States, and afterwards a barrister and journalist in London. As a politician he was far in advance of his time, as an ardent outspoken Imperialist as a member of the House of Commons he was a comparative failure. He disgusted all parties by his eccentricity and his flighty ways. Beginning as an extreme Radical he changed about until at last he became an out and out Tory. Jenkins was, however, a splendid success as a journalist and leader-writer. His great hit which made him famous was the classic skit: "Ginx's Baby"—a most amusing satire on English sectarianism. Another notable production was: "Little Hodge." For several years Jenkins was Agent General for Canada in London. As a journalist he made a great success with the Indian Mail and the Overland Mail. His literary productions are very numerous, but none of them hit the public taste like "Ginx's Baby." Jenkins was a great friend of some of my relatives; and as a talker and pleasant companion he had few equals. Of late years his health was poor, and he lived in complete retirement. In his day he was a power.

The Regatta Meeting.

There seems to be a lively interest already taken in this season's Regatta and several crews will be at practice next week. Monday evening at 8 o'clock there will be a meeting in a new room to form up a committee for this year's Derby. It is to be hoped that all who can will attend and that a good representative committee will be nominated. No doubt most of the old timers will be there, and it is right they should be, as "gentlemen" are enthusiastic over our national sports day, and the excellent regattas of recent years is the result of hard work, energy and ability. But as "many hands make light work," the infusion of some new blood and the election of more men to act on the committee this year will facilitate matters greatly and will assure a good Regatta this year. With the addition of the new boat for the Methodist Guards the races will be well contested and a pleasant day afforded citizens.

“Littledale Leaves.”

We thank the Rev. Mother at Littledale for a copy of that excellent little brochure, “Littledale Leaves,” published annually in the interest of St. Bride's Academy, Littledale. The contributions, which are evidently written by pupils and ex-pupils, are on the whole clever productions and display in several cases rare talent on the part of the writers. The illustrations which “come out” well include the school classes for every year inclusive between the years 1903 and 1910, and on the frontispiece is an excellent photo of His Grace Archbishop Howley, Patron of the institution.

Should be Returned.

Tuesday evening as Mr. Sullivan, of Briggs Junction, was going home from St. John's in the train, while a large number of passengers were on the cars, he lost a valise, the contents of which were very valuable to him. His wife is dangerously ill and prescriptions from doctors in the city with a bottle of cordial intended for the sick room were in the receptacle. He believes it was taken by mistake. He only values it for the contents, and if this item meets the eye of the person who has it he certainly should return it.

HERRING FISHERY NOTES.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Editor.—The presence of Mr. Fitzgerald at the port of St. George's, at the instance of the Government, to study and report on the condition of the herring industry in that important district, a very laudable and praiseworthy act on the part of said Government, induced me to make the following few remarks anent the question:

It is very easy for a Government to be misled by reports, however honestly made up by the inspector, who has had but a short period of time at his disposal for the purpose intended and in consequence the blame for the continuance of this industry's languid and unremunerative condition may be falsely charged to either the ignorance, carelessness or want of skill in the preparation of barrels, pack or cure of these valuable fish on the part of the inhabitants of this district.

There are, however, a few persons who have devoted half a life time to the close study of this very question and most certainly do not lay the blame against the people engaged in this industry.

For a century the herrings caught at St. George's Harbor have, with few exceptions, been marketed in Halifax or other Canadian ports, and many a merchant there has grown rich and opulent therefrom.

Their system is very simple. They are a combination, they easily manage to keep the fishermen supplied a little in advance of the probable value of the catch, thus ensuring themselves their shipments to Halifax—and they fix prices to suit, regardless of pack or anything else. Only very recently have they insisted in charging for short weight, but not yet laying for overweight. A very nice arrangement. There is no necessity to describe here the modus operandi of our people in regard to barrel making; sufficient to state that they resort to the inferior, cut their staves junk, split and prepare the staves and set up their barrels in the same manner as that pursued by their forefathers; but it must not for a moment be imagined that none of them have endeavored to improve on this system. I know certain parties who have lost quite heavily by their attempts to introduce a better quality of barrel. I know of one who put up a consignment of barrels, made of birch staves and strong hoops, hoop ed with six iron hoops, the herring most carefully packed, that received no more for them than if packed in old apple barrels. The same party bought a lot of regulation barrels from St. John's at, I think, 80 cents freight, packed them according to Scotch method, had them inspected by Mr. Mair and condemned as unfit in nature, not pack or cure, to compete with the Scotch herring, and shipping them to Halifax had to go to the expense of getting them split and repacked before he could sell them a all. Of course in such a large community there are scampish packers who yearly do infinite damage to their fellows by their carelessness with dis regard to what is right in this matter. This fact brings out the great necessity for a rigid inspection being held here by a competent and well paid inspector—paid by the Government who would act without fear or favor and whose brand would be by Governmental arrangement in foreign markets accepted as guarantee of quantity and quality. Without this latter inspection is only a farce. The idea of employing a lot of resident inspectors chiefly on account of political pull, and charging the cost of inspection to the proprietor of barrels inspected is also farcical and of no practical benefit.

Another very important factor in causing our catch to be so unremunerative is the unfortunate fact that our local merchants do not interest themselves in this matter. From correspondence had with many of these gentlemen, it appears that even when they pay a fair, nay a good, price for a superior pack, they themselves invariably lose money thereby. Some will not handle them unassorted. For various reasons, therefore, they do not interest themselves much in this matter, and without their most valuable co-operation very little can be done to improve their present status. Repeated applications have been made to the Banks for advances to enable a company resident here to purchase at least two thirds of the annual catch and thus dominate the market for same and retain the capital in the island that now and for a century past has gone out of it. Various methods for securing the Banks' interests have been offered, such as guaranteeing to accept no non-inspected herrings, shipping in name of Bank, insuring in Bank's name, giving Bank drawing order on consignees until advance is repaid, purchasing only at absolute safe rates, etc.; but all to no avail. Unless able to deposit on the Bank counter the whole concern as collateral, with interest added thereto, nothing could be done with them. Is it any wonder that we in the outports can not advance? Any old two-penny concern in St. John's with a few packages of goods on the outside of his shelves, to catch the eye of the clerk of the Bank when sent to look over the stock, can get an advance without difficulty, at times to the net loss of same Bank. But a great business enterprise of national importance and assured value, that only needs financial assistance to increase a hundred-fold in value to the country, cannot obtain the very slightest assistance. It is not according to Banking methods to advance money on the charge of a rising market, on any commodity even if the rise is fully assured; but alas! they often do on the chance of a falling market; else why do some of them, the managers, find it unavoidable to visit Sing Sing.

In conclusion of this rambling note I wish to convey to the Government who seem desirous of bettering matters in this connection, this very pertinent fact: It is absolutely necessary before formulating and carrying into effect any legislation for enforcing the manufacture of a standard barrel, to secure a remunerative market for the same and a sure one, otherwise a greater loss will ensue to our fishermen. Secure a market first for a standard pack, consistent with the quality of herrings obtainable in this locality, and you will speedily find that no coercion will be at all necessary to compel our folks to make standard barrels or put up No. 1 herring. The quality of the herrings must be taken into account and markets sought that require such. This must be the first move on the part of the Government, otherwise worse results than obtain now will eventually ensue.

Yours truly,
SELBY.

When Sleep Fails You

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will bring rest, comfort and vitality by building up the nerves.

Mr. Jas. Wesley Weaver, a veteran of the Boer War, Port Dalhousie, N.S., writes:—"For years I was a victim of nervousness and drowsiness, so that I never knew for three years what a full hour's sleep was, never more than dosing for five minutes at a time. Heart pain and headaches almost drove me wild and spells of weakness and cramps in stomach and limbs. "Though I tried several doctors, was money uselessly spent. Final Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was brought to me and eight boxes cured me. I simply wonder what benefit was obtained from this treatment. Sleeplessness, and headaches, a ringing of approaching nervousness, and a feeling of general weakness were removed by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all druggists or Edmans & Co., Toronto. ## UPPER ISLAND COVE NOTES.

All the men have left for the Labrador, and the shore fishermen are ready for operations. Though the present indications are very gloomy. Should the fishery be a failure they can always rely on the "Iron Island" to provide sustenance.

The Rev. A. E. Rusted leaves today for the city to attend the Synod. The Rev. gentleman will be absent about ten days. We trust his stay will be a pleasant one.

Mrs. E. Martin and daughter, of Mr. Grace, and Miss Russell, of Bay Roberts, paid a visit to relatives a few days ago.

June is far advancing, and in a few days the C. H. E. Examinations which is looked forward to by many an anxious one, will take place. Let us hope there will be no disappointments. At this there will be fifteen candidates; 3 intermediate; 5 preliminary and 7 primary. Mr. E. Jones is Chairman; Miss Greenland, Secretary; and Miss Butt, of Bay Roberts, Supervisor.

Rumour has it that some of our lady teachers are resigning; some to change and seek pastures new; others to enter the blissful state. To the first we wish success, to the second, congratulations.

Probably some of our local historians can enlighten us on the first inhabitants and other lore of the smaller places in Conception Bay, as I find in this settlement a number of graves scattered about, and several old grave stones dating back one hundred years or more. The oldest inhabitant who is something over ninety cannot give any definite information on the matter.

Quite a number of deaths have taken place here lately, chiefly infants. Considering the population, the death rate is very high.

The sympathy of the community goes out to Mr. A. Crane and family in the loss of their daughter, Gertrude, who was married to Mr. Shears, of Robinson's Head.

He saw to the placing of the Adventure's boilers after she was built.

More Men in Danger.

The new pilot boat once again demonstrated her usefulness yesterday afternoon and was the means of saving the lives of two men who attempted to go outside in a fishing boat. The wind when they left just before noon blew hard from the N.E. and kept increasing in velocity till by 1 p.m. it blew a gale. A big sea broke right across the Narrows, the boat was caught in it and had to come to an anchor, and for fully a half hour it looked as if she would be swamped at any moment. Many people from the eastern piers of the city watched her with great anxiety. Fort Amherst then phoned the police and Supt. Grimes informed Mr. Goodridge of the Marine and Fisheries Department. The crew of the pilot boat were soon collected and with Mr. Goodridge on board went to the rescue. The boat when secured was half filled with water, and had the men remained there much longer they would have been drowned.

BE A MAN.

It is the duty of everybody in life to appear before the world in the most favourable light. It is only a drone, or a person void of ambition who appears indifferent to the opinion of others concerning him. "I don't care what people think of me" is not the expression of an ambitious man, we all must pay regard to the opinions of others as part of human progress. We must live like men, and appear like men. So be a man and get your Clothing, Dry Goods and Furniture for cash or credit from B. FRIEDMAN, 301 Water Street, (Water Side), P.O. Box 5; Phone 546. Mail orders carefully attended to.

Arrived at Twillingate.

Three schooners arrived from the French Shore to Twillingate last Sunday. They had gone there for the early fishing the latter part of May but had not a fish in salt when they arrived at Twillingate. From St. Anthony to LaSalle there had been no fish up to the 12th of June. Traps from Twillingate had from three to four quintals last Monday, and the outlook is generally gloomy. Mr. Ashbourne has now three vessels loaded with salt discharging at Twillingate last week. One of them, the Danish schooner Freden, has gone to Sydney for a load of coal. Herring have been abundant at Twillingate all the spring but are now striking off. The price is unusually low, being now only $2 per barrel.

"St. Elmo."

That "St. Elmo" had achieved an instantaneous success upon its first performance by the Chicago Stock Company was attested by the large audience which witnessed the second production of the play at the T. A. Hall last night. Many have read the popular book from which the play is dramatized, and all seemed to be anxious to take advantage of the opportunity offered to see the living portrayal of the characters they knew so well. Mr. Dorente, found instant favor in the title role, and Miss Frae and the remainder of the excellent company rendered surpassing support. The various beautiful scenes displayed aroused much favourable comment, and every member of the audience seemed delighted with play and players. To-night the company will offer for the first time the delightful western drama entitled "Genesee of the Hills." This play had an extended run at the Astor Theatre, New York, and easily takes rank as one of the foremost of the stories of life as it really is in the big, breezy West. An entire new investiture of scenery will be displayed.
