CHAPTER XIII.

Her eyes grew dreamy, deep, dark. Then suddenly they lightened—an other thought had flashed into her mind. She sprang up, as if electrified, and looked about her.

Before her she could see the Trelorne lights—just lighted. She stood and looked for a time, her brows drawn straight, her lips set tightly. The brain works quickly. It can give lightning a start and romp in. In the flash of a second or two her mind had evolved a scheme, a plan, a resolution, call it what you will. Her blood was rushing tingling through her veins, her hands burned as they gripped the tiller.

The boat sped on. She sailed carefully, safely for a few minutes. Then suddenly, as she was within a mile of Trelorne harbor, she moved the tiller. The boat seemed to stop dead-still, then face the wind. It swayed over, as if covering from the sea. Then, just as it seemed to capsize, crack! went the mast, and the upper half, with its sail, fell forward across the boat.

She put the boat round swiftly leaped to the seat, thrust the oars in their places, and rowed for the shore. The waves ran high and broke across the gunwale; but the cold water did not daunt her resolution or damp her spirits. Her eyes were glowing, flashing now. With some—great—difficulty she chose an open spot between the rocks, and with a long, steady pull heaved the boat.

She sprang out, falling in her eagerness, but regaining her feet managed to hold the boat, though it rocked so violently as to sway her to and fro as if she were a feather.

No one looking at her slim figure as she had reclined on the rock in the afternoon would ever have believed that she possessed such strength as she displayed now. Strong as she was, she could not hold the boat for long. She sprang it and pushed off a little way, then fell on her knees, and tearing up the planks at the bottom, felt for the plug and pulled it out.

The water rushed in. She waited until it was above her ankles, then she felt for the hole, and thrust the plug in again. Then she leaped out, battling with the waves, forced her way to the shore. She was wet through, and half blinded by the

SUFFERED AWFUL PAINS

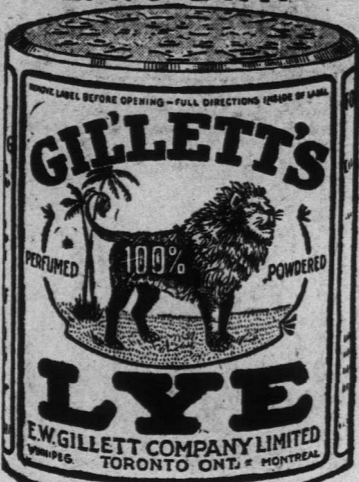

For Sixteen Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Moretown, Vermont.—"I was troubled with pains and irregularities for sixteen years, and was thin, weak and nervous. When I would lie down it would seem as if I was going right down out of sight into some dark hole, and the window curtains had faces that would peek out at me, and when I was out of doors it would seem as if something was going to happen. My blood was poor, my circulation was so bad I would be like a dead person at times. I had female weakness badly, my abdomen was sore and I had awful pains.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sensitive Wash and they certainly did wonders for me. My troubles disappeared and I am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. W. F. SAWYER, River View Farm, Moretown, Vermont.

Another Case.
Gifford, Iowa.—"I was troubled with female weakness, also with displacement. I had very severe and steady headaches, also pain in back and was very thin and tired all the time. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am cured of these troubles. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. INA MILLER, Gifford, Iowa.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

spray, but she dashed the salt water from her eyes and looked seaward. The boat, half filled with the water, was tossing helplessly on the waves. Up into her bosom welled a tender pity and regret for the boat she had owed so well. Her eyes filled with salt water of another kind. She dashed them clear again and watched, like a thing that knows it is doomed, the boat beat helplessly to and fro in the trough of the sea. Suddenly it struck against a rock and keeled over. Filled with water as it was, it was unable to recover itself, and with the next buffet of wave and wind it careened over.

A deep sigh rose from Nora's bosom. "Good-bye, good-bye!" she breathed, half chokingly. The boat, bottom upward, seemed as it struck against the rock to groan and the sad farewell. She stood motionless for a while, while the waves ground her dearly loved vessel against the cruel rocks, then she began to strip off her oilskins; but suddenly she stooped and looked down. Clad in them, with the out-wester she had put on when it commenced to blow, her sex was completely disguised. She buttoned her oilskins round her again, and suddenly, as if by a great effort, tearing herself away from the doomed boat, she turned and climbed up the beach. It was bounded by an unlimbable cliff, and she had to walk long some distance until she reached a break in the cliff leading to Trelorne.

Without hesitation—for this slippish girl with a face like the goddess Diana, had the heart of a man within er tender bosom—she walked toward the light.

She had not gone far along the shabby road before a dim figure arose from the darkness, and accosted her:

"Where to, mate?"

She made her voice as hoarse as she could, and answered:

"Up along."

The man looked at her rather curiously, but said nothing, and she followed the road and approached the small cluster of fishermen's cottages.

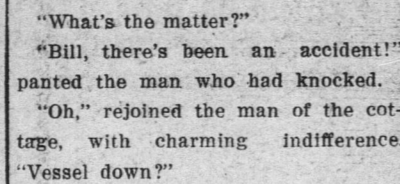

The window of one was very near the ground. She crouched down under the sill, and taking the cakes from her pocket, eat one—it was rather wet—and carefully replaced the packet, and took it from her bosom and opened it. There were several wrappings beside the outer one of all-cloth; but inside them, like a nut in its shell, was a roll of sovereigns and a letter. She turned the latter over with the wistful look which those who wear who cannot read. But she had learned to count, and she counted the roll of gold. There were five-and-twenty sovereigns. She put these back, but with singular forethought she tore the letter into minutest fragments, for it occurred to her that if she were overtaken or caught, that letter would tell her captors too much.

She sat under the window, resting for half an hour, then she stole out. The wind was still blowing hard, the night was growing dark. With her beautiful eyes half closed, she thought deeply—keenly, and then she moved toward the open country, inland, away from the sea; for she was strong and not in the least tired, and it was safer for her to travel by night than by day.

She had not gone twenty paces before she heard a man running behind her. He was coming from the beach. She stopped and crouched down against the wall of a cottage. The man almost touched her, pulled up short, and breathing hard, knock-

The other man drew nearer, and in a lower voice, but not too low for Nora to catch, replied:

"It's the boat of the Caldron."

The inmate of the cottage seemed to wake to interest.

"No!"

"Yes, it is," assented the other, gravely. "Come down, will ye?"

"Wait a minute," was the response. There was the sound of shuffling boots, and then the man of the cottage joined his fellow outside.

"The Caldron boat?" he said, in a grave voice.

"Yes, I'd swear to it. And bottom up, I got her on the beach. Her mast's gone, and she's almost broke to pieces."

The other man whistled.

"Who was in her?" he asked, in a low voice.

"What—now? Why, nobody, of course! But there was some 'un in her. Whether it was the old lady, or the gel—"

He stopped.

"Whichever it was, they're gone," said the other man, grimly.

The first nodded.

"Gone as sure as Lundy Light's alight," he said, with a seaman's oath. "It's my belief she went over when the mast gave out at sea, and that the boat's drifted in; the wind changed, ye know. Pity, eh? Which of 'em d'ye think it was?"

The other man thought for a moment.

"The gel, most like," he said.

"Poor little lass! There, there! 'Tut! tut! Well, mate, we all on us must die."

"That's true enough," assented the other.

Their voices and footsteps died away, and Nora rose to her feet and stood with a faint, grave smile on her pale face.

"From a mere Skeleton."
Mrs. HANNAH IRD, of 43, Asquith Street, Halifax, writes:— "I am writing to tell you the great benefit my little girl has derived from Virol. In March last she had a very serious illness which reduced her to a mere skeleton—so bad that the bones came through her skin. The doctor who was attending her said the only thing that would pull her up was Virol. Before starting her on it, her weight was 1 stone 7 lbs. 2 ounces, her age being 5 years 7 months. She is now 6 years old, and her weight is 3 stone 2 lbs. 2 ounces. Her illness left her so weak that for three months she could not keep a particle of food down, but the Virol—that seemed to feed her and strengthen her chest. She is now a picture of health. I shall recommend Virol everywhere. In cases of wasting or delicate children, it has been my little girl's 'true friend'."
Notice the Virol Smell! Invaluable in Tuberculosis, Anemia, Rickets and Malnutrition. Used in more than 1,000 Hospitals and Sanatoria.

Minimise The Loss.

Practically farmers may easily minimise the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.

Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than nitrate of soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.

The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By its judicious use the production of root crops per acre may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated.

We invite the attention of Farmers to our special pamphlet, on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.

The price of Sulphate is moderate, and our terms are accommodating.

STAFFORD'S LINIMENT USED BY PHYSICIANS.

Being Discourteous to Children.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Courtesy is a beautiful thing. We all want our children to have a courteous and concrete expression of courtesy, good manners.

And yet how few parents are themselves perfectly courteous to their children! How few parents teach their children good manners by that best of all methods, examples? A well-dressed, apparently well-bred woman walked past my veranda the other day with a charming little girl. The little girl caught sight of a pony grazing in a vacant lot. "Oh, Mother! See the dear little pony," she cried, catching hold of her mother's hand. But her mother, at the same time, caught sight of a woman in an attractive frock and was regarding the frock with the calculating, appropriate eye with which women always study a new fashion on another woman. Consequently, being interested in more important things, it was plainly impossible for her to pay attention to what her little girl was saying. "Yes, dear," she murmured, without looking around, or for a moment taking her eye from the interesting frock. Now, of course, that mother is going to teach her little girl that it is polite to listen and appear interested when other people are talking, but what force will there be in that lesson when it is so ill backed up by her own treatment of the child.

I have heard another mother reprove her enthusiastic little son a dozen times for interrupting when some one was speaking and yet I have often heard her interrupt him. Again, we all know that it is a cardinal rule of good manners that one should not contradict. We do not allow our children to contradict us. Are we equally careful not to contradict them?

Little children—and big children, too, I suspect—are far more open to the influence of example than to the authority of precept. If parents realized how accurately their family life was being mirrored in the voices, the language and the manners of their children, I think they would be more careful how they carried themselves toward their children. "The best way to teach a child to fear God," says Pelostozzi, "is to let him see and hear a good Christian." Even so, the best way to teach a child to love courtesy is to use courtesy in your treatment of him.

Household Notes

When making jelly, if you discover after pouring it into the cups that it is not well jelled, set it in the sun for several days. This will sometimes make it firm.

If two glass dishes or tumblers stick together very tightly, try filling the inner one with cold water and holding the outer one in warm water. They will separate at once.

To protect any fabric from moths, bugs or roaches, use the following solution: One-half ounce corrosive sublimate; one-half ounce gum camphor, five cents' worth sassafras, one pint turpentine.

When drawing threads for hem-stitching, wet a small brush, rub it over a cake of soap until a lather is produced, then scrub the threads which you wish to draw. They will pull easily without breaking.

Wiping the surface with a soft flannel or piece of silk keeps down objectionable "shine" of the nose. If this does not help, try bathing the nose with hot water, in which powdered borax has been dissolved, a teaspoonful to each pint.

A tried cement for cracked china is this: Mix the white of an egg with sufficient powdered lime to make a paste. Apply it to the broken edges, press firmly together and place the article where it will not be disturbed until the paste is hardened.

In using gasoline, precautions must be taken lest the fluid leave a ring on the clothing. First put a piece of blotting paper under the spot, then mark a ring in fuller's earth of French chalk around the spot to keep the grease from spreading.

For an apple and lemon filling for cake, grate two apples and scald them with two eggs and the rind and juice of a lemon. Stir in a cupful of sugar. When the mixture cools, use

In the meantime, the police think the body of Robinson had been packed in the trunk, those committing the murder awaiting an opportunity to dispose of it. Between Saturday and the Tuesday following, the body is thought to have been brought to the place, which is house recently remodelled into an apartment with several stores on the ground floor. The discovery to-day came as the result of neighbors complaining of the stench.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend, is only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well, you did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to say: "If I had only, etc., etc." That "if" means too much to many forgetful people. Is it not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. Is it any more than his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible? Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive.

Oil Stove Exploded.

While Mother Was in Garden and Baby Burned to a Crisp.

Quebec, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Napoleon Maheux left her baby, seven months old, asleep in her house at Beaufort yesterday while she went to do some work in the garden. She had not been long outside when the explosion of an oil stove set the house on fire. She rushed into the house to rescue the baby, but was cut off from the bedroom by the flames, and the little one was burned to a crisp.

Cured Eczema Like Magic

Suffered for Years—Tried All Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of ointments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the writer of this letter was astonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"It worked like magic," she writes. Indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The stinging and itching are relieved at once, and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment.

Mrs. Clements, 13 Strange street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have suffered from eczema for years, and after using all kinds of ointments, at last tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. It worked like magic and proved a God-send to me. I would advise anyone suffering from eczema to try this best and best ointment. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto."

Recent Sensational Developments.

The last few days have been full of sensational events. There was first of all the appointment of two legislative councillors at a time there was no need to appoint them. Not only were these two appointments made at a time it was impossible to call a legislature together, but they were made at a time the Morris Administration were on trial before the country. As we pointed out the billing up of the Legislative Council at this time is nothing more than a serious slap in the face of the electorate by the Morris Government. That Government is on trial for its conduct during the past four years, and it is for the electorate to decide whether Sir Edward Morris shall be allowed to continue his policy, or whether he shall be turned out and Sir Robert Bond put in charge of the Government. Sir Edward would have had ample time to have had these gentlemen appointed before the Legislature met did he consider their presence necessary. We may point out on the other hand that he would even then have been hard pushed to establish the necessity as he has in the past few years had the nomination of an unusually large number of Legislative Councillors, and has as was to be expected appointed such friends as the Hon. M. G. Winter, W. Job, M. P. Gibbs, J. A. Robinson, P. T. McGrath, James Ryan, P. Templeman, A. F. Goodridge.

It follows then that he had a working majority in any case in the Legislative Council, and therefore there was no need or urgency in the appointments. Now take the other side and suppose the electorate determine to put Sir Robert Bond in power, had he not a right to expect these appointments should be kept in abeyance until the elections had been held? Had he not a right to have the vacancies kept open until the electorate decided on the policy and parties for their next term? Had he not a right, if he was returned to power, to nominate men who would be agreeable to the policy for which he received a mandate from the people? Why then has such a flagrant violation of the spirit of the Constitution been permitted? Why has a course of conduct been allowed which is calculated to harass the incoming administration. In short, why has Morris insulted the intelligence of the electorate and flouted its will?

The next sensational event was the filling of the Cashiership of the Government Savings Bank after it had been kept open for three years and a quarter and the filling of it by the appointment of a large shareholder in the Evening Herald, while that journal was waging a campaign against that institution. We ask as we have asked before how can such an appointment be permitted to stand, should Sir Robert Bond be put in charge of the Government.

Here is a man interested financially in a newspaper which is making a factitious and rabid attack on Sir Robert Bond as the main guardian of the Savings Bank in the near future and doing this in face of the fact that no man has ever done so much to establish and maintain the credit of that institution as Sir Robert has done. The appointment can only be regarded as an outrage, and as it will prove an embarrassment to the policy of the Liberal Party it cannot be allowed to stand by the new Government.

The Daily News advises its readers to hear the other side before deciding. This is precisely what Sir Robert is waiting for. The second appears in the Daily News this morning comments in part as follows:— "On the other hand Sir Robert has made two very serious complaints. The first may possibly admit of an explanation; the second appears inexcusable from any point of view. The Post Office is a public institution, and the duty of its officials is to facilitate the public business in every possible way. For the credit of the officials, it is to be hoped that some satisfactory explanation may be forthcoming. If none, then we are in agreement with Sir Robert in terminating such conduct disgraceful in any case the charges made both in the private letter to the P. M. G. and the public one in the Telegram, demand immediate attention."

"However, Sir Robert Bond has made certain definite charges which demand a prompt investigation in the interest of the accused, the accuser and the general public alike. A mail clerk who would 'kick out' a mail bag, should suffer a similar experience."

The Truckmen's Union held a special meeting at the Longshoremen's Hall last night to consider the attitude of Harvey & Co., when Red Cross boats are loading freight. This firm, represented by the contractors, get fish brought to the side of the ship in barges from the Southside and other premises around town. This practice, the Truckmen contend, is detrimental to them as it lessens their earnings. A lengthy discussion took place over the outstanding dispute and it was decided that the President confer with the merchants to-day on the matter. To-night another special meeting of the Union will be held when the President's report will be listened to and definite action taken.

Annual Meeting.
Yesterday afternoon the annual meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the King George the Fifth Institute. Mrs. J. S. Benedict, who succeeded the late lamented Mrs. J. E. P. Peters, as President occupied the chair. After several matters in connection with the work of the Society was discussed and election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, Mrs. J. S. Benedict; Rec. Secy, Mrs. W. E. Fraser; Cor. Secy, Mrs. J. B. Mitchell; Treasurer, Mrs. W. White; Evangelistic Supl., Mrs. Jos. Pippy. On Wednesday evening next another meeting will be held when the appointment of Superintendents of different departments will take place.

Attila 77 Days Out.
On Monday last the Telegram made exclusive reference to the long passage being made by the barquentine Attila, Capt. Morgan. The vessel is now seventy seven days out from this port to Pernambuco with a cargo of fish, shipped by Baine Johnstone & Co. No doubt the vessel is becoming calmed and will turn up safe. Twenty-five years ago a vessel owned by Bowring Bros., called the Viola was 102 days going to Pernambuco. She was becalmed for seventy days.

Letter From Post Master General

On Sir Robert Bond's Complaint About The Mails.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—Will you kindly publish the enclosed letter sent by me to the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Bond K.C.M.G., in reply to his letter of the 6th inst which appeared in last evening's Telegram. Yours truly,
H. J. B. Woods,
Postmaster General.

September 17th, 1913.
Dear Sir:—I am only just in receipt of your letter of the 5th inst. attached to other letters from the Mail Clerks on the same subject. I have been out of town for several weeks on Postal business until to-day and the correspondence reached me about the same time as The Evening Telegram containing a statement of the occurrence.

I regret that there should be any seeming discourtesy on my part. Mr. LeMessurier informs me that he delayed replying to your letter until the enquiry was completed and submitted to me for further action. I will deal with the matter as it deserves and notify you accordingly. Yours truly,
H. J. B. Woods,
Postmaster General.

Rt. Hon. Sir R. Bond, P.C., K.C.M.G., The Grange Whitbourne.

"Cascarets" Always Straighten You Up

If Costive, Headachy, Bilious, Stomach Sour, Breath Bad—Clean your Liver and Bowels.

Get a 10-cent box now. You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep you stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

SAMUEL JOHNSON born 1709. The lexicographer was born at Lichfield. Johnson is as a writer; there is much truth in Macaulay's remark that "Boswell's book had done for him more than the best of his own books could do. The memory of other authors is kept alive by their works; but the memory of Johnson keeps many of his works alive."

As adversity leads us to think properly of our state, it is most beneficial to us. —Johnson.

Easy Street.

Easy Street is the home address of people who have money out at 5 per cent and do nothing to do but prevent the assessor from finding it. No matter what part of town a man lives in, he figures on eventually landing in Easy Street with some bank stock and a cluster of first farm mortgages. If he is accustomed to hard work, soon after he moves in he will be attacked by dyspepsia, insomnia and nervous indigestion, and would be willing to trade a few of his bonds for his old two-edged appetite and the ability to sleep from 8 to 6 without engaging several lusty nightmares in mortal combat.

A great many people have saved and cramped and taken the half cent so long that when they finally get on Easy Street they are astonished to find that they can't spend any more than they used without being overcame with remorse and shooting pains. It is harder to spend money than it is to save it, after a lifetime devoted to going without breakfast and dining on oatmeal and XXX coffee. Easy Street is full of people who are never so easy as when a sewer extension falls to pass the city council.

The other class of folks who reside in Easy Street are those who fell into it by the inheritance route. This class usually puts its money into circulation with a shovel, and prevents the automobile industry from breaking in two in the middle with a loud report. Once in a while some hard-working business man, who began life by revolving around the corn field on a riding cultivator, will die unrepentantly and leave what he has piled up to a pampered son, who will move into Easy Street and proceed to make his liabilities smother his assets. After conducting a brisk business in this line, until he couldn't buy a tack hammer on tick, the son usually backs into business life by opening a shooting gallery or driving a grocery wagon.

Easy Street is a delightful place, if a man isn't become so blinded easy that a man isn't good for anything except to call for his mail and pitch horseshoes.

St. Joseph, Levis, July 14, 1903. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen,—I was badly kicked by my horse last May and after using several preparations on my leg nothing would do. I was laid up in bed for a fortnight and could not walk. After using three bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT I was perfectly cured, so that I could start on the road. Commercial Traveller.

Human Mechanical Doll

To night there is a complete change of program at Rosely's Theatre when the Marcus Ministrel Maids will present the Winter Drama. This will be one of the very funniest acts ever seen here. Tony Levene will be in this to great advantage as in this act he has more scope. Dan Harris is another member of the Company who needs special mention, he has a droll way of his own that always make a hit. For the first time in St. John's will be seen the Human Mechanical Doll, presented by Dainty Marie Girard. The Hilo French Acrobatic Dancer, a truly marvelous piece of work. Mr. Harry Rose the ventriloquist and his wooden-headed partner in an entire new act, all new stage setting and scenery, beautiful costumes by the ladies. Also new songs and dances. A great big show.

High Finance

An amusing story comes from Paris in connection with M. Jules Claretie, the famous manager of the national theatre, the Comedie Francaise. One of the "supers" failed to appear at a performance of Phedre the other evening. He had only to walk on with the crowd, but M. Claretie keeps an eye on all these details, and next morning the "super" received a letter signed by M. Claretie saying that he would be fined 1s. 8d. for having been absent from his place without leave.

The resourceful "super" promptly went to an autograph collector and sold M. Claretie's letter for half a crown, thus making a profit out of his own negligence!

"Do I Ever Pray?"

I often say my prayers. But do I ever pray? And do the wishes of my heart Go with the words I say? I say as well kneel down And worship gods of stone. As offer to the living God A prayer of words alone.

For words without the heart Lord, shew me what I want, And teach me how to pray; Whose prayers are not sincere.

Stafford's Phorotone Cough Mixture

Inventors Snubbed Here.

Neither our War Office nor our Admiralty are keen on New Ideas. To snub the poor inventor is a tradition with the British War Office, and also, and possibly to an even greater degree, with the British Admiralty.

The case of the Dumbo aeroplane affords the very latest example of this inveterate habit.

This particular type of heavier-than-air flying-machine was repeatedly offered to the War Office by its originator, who pointed out that it possessed unique advantages for military work, in that it was tailless and automatically stable.

This was in 1906, when flying was in its infancy. Had the War Office accepted Lieutenant Dunne's offer we should have led the world in the conquest of the air, instead of lagging far behind, as we undoubtedly did at the beginning.

In the end, as everyone now knows, the inventor was obliged, through lack of funds, to take his machine over to France, where it was eagerly seized upon by the military authorities, who realised, almost at a glance, its immense possibilities for army work, both as regards scouting and bomb-dropping.

Submarines? No, Thanks! Then, again, the story of the submarine, as regards the British Navy, is very like the story of the aeroplane in relation to the British Army.

Just as Dunne offered the War Office an efficient flying-machine in those early days before even the Wright brothers had achieved fame, so Nordenfledt offered an efficient submarine boat to the British Admiralty so far back as 1893, when no other power possessed or had even thought of constructing any.

But the Admiralty, true to its traditions, cold-shouldered the inventor, and although later he demonstrated the possibilities of his boat, first at Barrow and then in Southampton Water, it still refused to seriously entertain his proposals, which were in effect that he should be afforded facilities for building up a number of similar vessels in one of our dockyards.

As a result, we were the last Naval Power—with one exception—to adopt the submarine.

Almost exactly the same thing happened in regard to our Admiralty when iron-clad ships first began to be seriously talked about.

The Wooden Walls of Old England.

The Sea Lords of those days, who had, without exception, served their time in the old three-decker line-of-battle-ships, spoke lovingly amongst themselves of "the wooden walls of old England," and pooh-poohed the idea of iron ever taking the place of oak.

Nor did they confine themselves to words. Letters are even now preserved in the Admiralty archives in which an inventor who, in 1859, advocated the plating of one of the new frigates then building with iron three inches thick, was mercilessly snubbed for his pains. He was told that the weight of the armour would inevitably sink any ship so burdened, and that even if she did not sink any ship so burdened, and that if she did not founder she would be quite unmanageable in rough weather.

Investment News

St. John's, Sept. 18th, 1913.

Have YOU Seen This Booklet?

Perhaps you have not noticed our recent reference to it in this column. Or, if you have, possibly indifference or procrastination has prevented you from accepting our repeated offer to send a copy anywhere on request. In either case, we hope that you will stop and consider if the booklet would not be useful to have.

It explains a short cut to investing

And any man who has $20 and can save $5 a month will find that this "short-cut" enables him to start investing AT ONCE. For those who have more and can save more the plan is elastic enough to suit them as well. It permits them to spread their investments over a wider field and thus secure safety through diversification.

It's a common-sense plan that you will readily understand and appreciate. May we not NOW have the pleasure of sending you the explanatory booklet?

New Glasgow, Fredericton.

Yet, even then, the French were sorely building the La Gloire, plated with iron four inches thick, and the launching of which during the following year rendered obsolete, at once and for ever, the wooden navies of the world.

Two years later the superiority of the iron-clad was indisputably proved in real warfare, when the Confederate cruiser Merrimac, plated with nothing more formidable than old iron rails torn up from the nearest railway, engaged in Hampton Roads two of the biggest wooden line-of-battle-ships in the United States Navy, the Cumberland and the Congress, and sank them both with ease, herself sustaining no damage.—P.W.

On the occasion Dr. Francis Warner, who is about to retire from the position of Senior Physician at the London Hospital, was trying to bring back to complete consciousness a woman who had had a paralytic stroke. His efforts seemed likely to be in vain. For a long time he sat there, but all at once she sat up in bed and looking straight at Dr. Warner, she cried out: "Oh, you funny old man!" "Ah!" said Dr. Warner, cheerfully. "Now she's beginning to talk sense!"

Teamster Nearly Crushed To Death.

St. John's, Sept. 18th, 1913.

Modern Medicine.

A serious accident occurred at eleven o'clock today in which a young man was nearly crushed to death through a package, weighing 450 pounds falling on him. The victim is Robert Hanlon, a 24 year old truckman, who lives on Nade's Hill. Hanlon was engaged with several other men handling cases of fish to Harvey & Co's wharf. Four cases were brought in a load. On this occasion he was standing on his cart trying to unlash his freight with despatch. Three cases were taken off when Hanlon tripped in the tall rope, used for lashing down freight, and fell, with the result that the remaining case rolled over the cart at great speed and dropped on the body of Hanlon, who was pinned to the wharf where he lay prostrate until Drs. Scully and Roberts arrived. The victim was conscious and suffered violent pain from the lower portion of the stomach and groin. On examination the physicians found that one hip was battered and broken, the other was fractured, besides internal injuries to the stomach. After getting his hip splinted and bandaged the sufferer was ordered to Hospital where he was taken in the ambulance. Robert Hanlon was a popular young man amongst his fellow workmen who express the greatest sympathy for him over the mishap.

Dear Sir,—Most people in the West End are agreed that the reign of Graballism is over.

On the Voters depend the victory and they will not be found wanting, be assured. Rumor is rife everywhere that Morris will lose even his own seat, and then what becomes of the Graballism of these days. In Bond and Coaker they see the avenging angels, who will drive them with scourges forever out of public life. Such creatures as Crosbie, Morris and McGrath will find themselves on the outer walls, weeping and gnashing their teeth. Cumming low politicians and grafters as they are, they are making desperate efforts to hold their places. After the ballots are counted a new era will dawn for Newfoundland. Not for many years have the people of the West End been so aroused. Thunders of applause will shake the entire city when the wires tell the news of the spoilers' defeat. Deholding a long suffering public can't go on. Only the innate forbearance of our people have saved them from being thrown out neck and crop ere this. Impudent rascals will never disgrace our country again. Then forever is the rule of Morris and graballism ended. Yours truly,

Hunters for the Prince of Wales.

The Prince of Wales is looking forward to doing a considerable amount of hunting during the coming season, and a few hunters are shortly to be sent from Sandringham to Oxford for the use of His Royal Highness. The young Prince is a first-rate horseman, and was out last winter with the West Norfolk pack upon two or three occasions while staying at York Cottage. When he rides with this pack again he will have Prince Albert as his companion, while Princess Mary will attend several of the meets, though the Queen does not intend to allow her only daughter to ride to hounds for some years to come. Indeed, her Majesty considers that ladies are rather out of place in the hunting field, and has never followed the hounds herself. In due course the Prince of Wales is to become a member of the National Hunt Club, but this is not likely to be for another year or two yet. He will be seen out with the hounds whenever his studies will permit, but the King is insistent that none of his sons shall allow sport of any kind to interfere with the progress of his education.

King or Ex-King?

Quite a hot discussion is going on in suburbia on the correct title to be used in addressing a young scion of Royalty who is at present in the limelight. People—even private individuals who can have no earthly connection with the matter and who have the very slenderest chance of ever being in a position to use either the one address or the other—are waxing hot with partisanship. Is it to be "King" Manuel or "ex-King" Manuel? Needless to say that in suburbia the "King" faction is the ruling faction. I notice that the Conservative papers, from the Times downwards, speak of "King Manuel" while the Liberal papers refer to him as "ex-King" or "om Manuel." There is, of course, no rule in the matter. If you are a partisan of the King in exile you still speak of him as "King." If you dislike or are indifferent to him you speak of him as "ex-King." No one, for example, ever thought of referring to ex-King Milan in the more flattering way. It was the case of an ex-King who had no friends.

The Coming Army Manoeuvres.

Although the army manoeuvres this year will not be so interesting to the lay observer yet they promise to be of more than ordinary interest to soldiers. Sir John French is attempting something that has never been attempted in this country before; that is to say he will manoeuvre the whole available regular force as an army marching in one direction. Unfortunately, his units will not be mobilized at war strength. It is probable that during part of the advance Sir John's four divisions will be able to use parallel roads, but doubtless at some period he will be forced to have two divisions marching upon the same road. All this is a most difficult manoeuvre, especially in an enclosed country. The element of reality will be introduced into the operations by the presence of an enemy largely composed of Territorial cavalry. As this will be commanded by General Briggs, who earned such a reputation last year in the manoeuvres for the adroit skill with which he handled a mounted brigade, it is certain that many elements of hostile annoyance will be introduced to vary the monotony of the infantry march. This class of operations will give great opportunity for aeroplanes, and General Henderson is understood to have arranged a special system for control by air-umpires. It will be remembered that aeroplanes and dirigibles were neutral last year.

Prince Albert's Naval Career.

Now that his sons are old enough to serve in his fleet as naval officers, King George shows in the selection of the ships to which they go that he does not forget his old shipmates in the service. It is easy to see why the battleship Collingwood has been chosen as Prince Albert's first ship as midshipman, because she is the flagship of Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir Stanley Colville, an old friend and brother naval officer of His Majesty. In 1883, when King George was appointed as a midshipman to the Canada, a small corvette on the North America and West Indies station, Sir Stanley Colville was a lieutenant of the vessel, and in the Alexandria, five years later, in the Mediterranean, the King and Sir Stanley were lieutenants together. After twenty-five years more service the latter is given the opportunity of welcoming to his flagship the son of his former Royal colleague. A similar thing happened in the case of the Prince of Wales's appointment as a midshipman, for three months in 1911 to the Hindustan, that ship being commanded at the time by Capt. H. H. Campbell, who had served with the King in the Crescent and other ships. No favour whatever has been shown Prince Albert in passing from the grade of naval cadet to that of midshipman, the first step on the naval ladder. He has had to serve the full four years and eight months as cadet, for it was in January, 1909, that he first went to Osborne. The Prince of Wales, who cannot follow up a naval career, had seven months taken off his cadet's time, and is already a lieutenant but Prince Albert will follow the service routine.

Balkan Finance Commission.

To judge from a Parliamentary report of its proceedings, which I understand, has been furnished to the European Chancelleries by the International Balkan Financial Commission, having its sittings in Paris, little, if any, hope may be entertained that its work will achieve any satisfactory result. None of the States involved has so far shown any great inclination to furnish the Commission with necessary statements, and the Ottoman Government, particularly since the question of Adrianople has come to the fore, has all but ignored communications addressed to it. Consequently it is assumed that the Commission at its next meeting will adjourn sine die, or formally break up.

Princess Louise of Belgium.

Some interesting and perhaps amusing disclosures as to the financial straits of Princess Louise of Belgium when in Berlin three or four years ago are expected to be made in a case shortly to be tried before the courts in Berlin. The accused in the case is a Countess Fieseler von Treuberg, now aged 42, who will be charged with fraudulent dealing and usury in connection with transactions in which she acted as intermediary for the Princess. Among other possible poignant incidents evidence will be given of a stay at the Kaiserhof, a leading hotel, where Princess Louise of Belgium was given accommodation and entertainment to the value of £750. On this credit being exhausted she had to pay the hotel each day before dinner time a sum of £20, on penalty of immediate eviction in case of failure to pay. The result was that the Princess's friend, Lieutenant Mattachich, and her private secretary had to engage in a financial quest each day to provide the necessary funds. These appear to have been procured in most cases on the Princess's note of hand.

Luxurious Dentistry.

The newest developments in surgical and mechanical dentistry are now on show at the Dental Exhibition, London. Conservative dentistry is specially prominent, and the most distinctive novelty in this connection is a new machine for administering an anaesthetic when an operator is carrying on extensive drilling and filling operations. These operations, as well as teeth extractions, can now, it is claimed, be carried through in luxurious comfort. The anaesthetic used is a mixture of nitrous oxide and oxygen—a modification of our old friend "laughing gas," which is composed of nitrous oxide and atmospheric air. For drilling operations the patient is kept in what is called the analgesic state, which is a halfway house between normal sensibility and anaesthesia. In this condition, it is explained, he feels no pain and is able to answer any questions that the operator may put to him. For extractions, doses sufficient to produce complete anaesthesia are given. This machine has also, I understand, been used with success in critical operations in abdominal surgery. It is claimed that the gases used form by far the safest of all anaesthetics, as the operator can on the slightest symptom of collapse cut off the nitrous oxide and pour in pure oxygen.

General Booth's First Colonial Visit.

Since General Bramwell Booth succeeded his father as the head of the Salvation Army he has confined his attention almost entirely to the home work of the organization. Now, however, he has decided to examine at close quarters the activities of the Army in other fields, and during the next few years he intends to visit many of the chief centres in distant climes. A start is to be made in a few weeks, and almost the whole of November will be spent in Canada and the United States. During General Booth's stay on the other side of the Atlantic he will fulfil a number of engagements that are being arranged for him in Toronto, Winnipeg, Chicago, and New York. Later he will undertake similar tours in the Far East, in India, and in Australia.

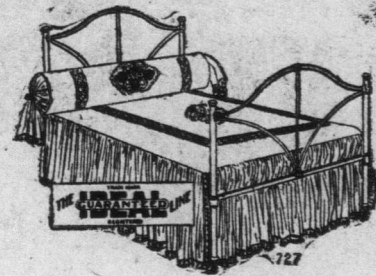

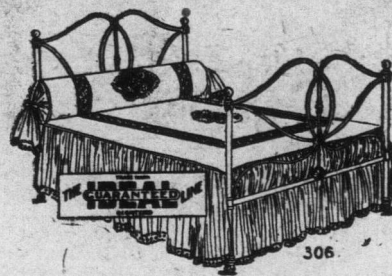

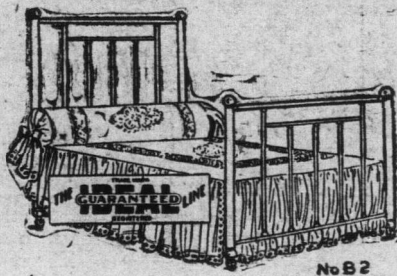

THE MONTREAL DAILY MAIL.

Mail Service on the Southern Shore.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir:—It is rather too soon to ask what time we may expect a change in the face of mail service to the Southern Shore. For many years this matter has been a grievance, but the time we hope is near at hand when there will be an end to it. When Comptroller had the mails he was usually on time, but since then we have not known when to expect them. The grievance is aggravated by the fact that the post office is about three quarters of a mile from where the bulk of the people live, on the main line shut out from the harbor by thick woods, so that those people who may need to reply by return mail must keep some one on the ground the greater part of the afternoon to get mail on time. There is no other way of knowing when the mail arrives or leaves. It is very unpleasant in wet or wintry weather to have to send several times to find out the man's whereabouts. Oftentimes, after spending hours in waiting, the news arrives that the mailman will not be along till the next morning.

It often occurred to the writer to enquire whether it was in the interest of the people or of the postmaster that the office was put where it is. It is not usual that an individual claims more consideration than the people who are paying taxes for the service. People here are pretty well sick of this mail and other business, and they are looking forward to such changes as are very much needed. We are a patient people, but we are biding our time. Cashin and Moore have been fooling the people long enough. Pickings to political tools won't catch the people next time.

Every man here hasn't his price, and the sentiment that is passing in a wave over the country has been felt here. Every body on the Southern Shore knows that the fishermen of the country are rallying to the leadership of Bond. The Southern Shore was pretty equally divided last election, but false promises and neglect have turned a good many people back to the ranks of the Bond Party, and two candidates are sure to win this time. "Bond can't lose" on the Southern Shore this time.

To show you how much the feeling of the people has changed the past year or so I may mention as a proof that when an excursion came out to Bay Bulls and the crowd were leaving the station some one called for a cheer for Cashin and no one replied. A cheer was called for Moore and some one replied that he better look for one at Riverhead. Bay Bulls blundered the last time, but there will be no more blundering. It shows you that Tor's Cove is not out on Cashin and Moore I may tell you that some of the heelers who came on were sent to feel their pulse at the post office were sadly disappointed. About ten o'clock on the night of the garden party the big hall was packed and hundreds outside while the prizes were being distributed and Father O'Brien was speaking on the events of the day and the future of the Southern Shore. When he finished some one near the door called for three cheers for Cashin and Moore. No reply. If the fellow had any manna brains in his head as he had rum in his stomach he might have sense enough to hold his tongue. But he went back to the from his visit to Tor's Cove. Tor's Cove won't be fooled this time.

It is now four o'clock and no sign of the mailman yet. Either the horse or the driver, or both, must have fallen asleep on the way. If you were at the office now you would see a crowd of people waiting for the mails and most of them have been there for the past three hours.

It is quite probable that when the mails will have returned some one will be informed that the mail was delayed on the way without the postman's knowledge and important business letters must await till Friday for an answer.

I must not be understood to be writing against the postmistress. I don't blame her for holding on to all she can get. What I want to make public is that by keeping the office where it is a grave wrong has been done the public and that we hope to see it removed. I believe that the fishermen of the Southern Shore admire Coaker's ability and recognize the strong grip he has on the goodwill of the fishermen. They respect the unimpeachable character of Bond and his able statesmanship. The two combined must win.

YOURS FOR REDRESS. Tor's Cove, Sept. 17th, 1913.

Cable News.

LONDON, To-day. Great Britain will know to-day whether it is not she will endure another national transport strike. Acting on the demands from Birmingham, although the strike situation is serious, the Executive Board of the National Union of Railwaymen will meet here this morning to discuss the advisability of calling a National strike. Birmingham has taken Liverpool's place as the strike centre. Seven thousand men are now out here. The stoppage of freight shipments is complete, local deliveries are impossible, the only favorable indications are to be found in the return to work of a number of Liverpool freight handlers, and the agreements by officials of various railway companies to accept a number of delegations of strikers. A prominent labor leader of Birmingham said last night that no matter what action the Executive took, passenger employees would join the freight workers at Dublin. The union leader, James Larkin, labor leader, in a speech to-night declared that they would soon have all workers with them. A procession, numbering 5,000, marched through the streets and stoned the car when the motorman refused to quit. Trade in Dublin is almost completely paralyzed. The strike fever is spreading to Wales and Eifer. One thousand colliers are out at Pontypool and refuse to work until the sole non-union labor man there joins the Union. A labor leader returning from Dublin to Belfast was mobbed at the station. A heavy fight ensued between his supporters and opponents, and a number of shots were fired. Unless the employers give all those who ride in buses in London will go afoot by Saturday. Arrangements have been made to give a signal for busmen to desert their vehicles at night on Friday, unless the directors of small bus companies which refuse to allow men to wear Union badges rescind orders. Such a strike would involve 10,000 men and with 2,500 motor buses from the streets of London might eventually include the employees of the Tube railways and the outlying street car systems which belong to the Traction combine which owns motor buses.

TOKIO, To-day. China's acceptance of Japan's demands in connection with the killing of several Japanese at Nanking, is confined thus far to minor points. No answer has been received to the demand for an apology for the insults directed against the Japanese flag, and uniform, or to demand for the dismissal of General Chang Hsun from the Governorship of Kiang Su Province. Before presenting its demands the Japanese Foreign Office in the event of military action being taken, and learned that Britain would view it with apprehension, as such action would be likely to encourage the partition of China among the Powers. The British Government promised support to the diplomat at Peking in the demand for indemnity and an apology, but refused to countenance military or naval action. Military circles are pressing the Government to amend the demands, so as to obtain the extension of certain concessions and the right to establish a military barracks at Hankow. The Premier is urging Prince Yamagata and Prince Oryama, members of the Council of Ministers, to use their influence to modify the militarist attitude.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The democratic members of the tariff conference committee, now engaged in adjusting the differences between the two Houses on the Tariff Bill decided not to make public any further agreements until the conference is completed. The withdrawal of agreements, during the past few days, has brought many demands upon congress for the re-opening of certain schedules and have determined hereafter to maintain silence. A week was the length of the debate over the wheat and flour provisions of the Bill, the House members objecting to the Senate amendment, imposing ten cents a bushel in wheat coming from the States that levies the duty against wheat from the States. This question was not settled. The conferees agreed to leave big iron on the free list, where the Senate put it, but did not determine whether ferromanganese ore should be free.

THURSDAY, Sept. 18, 1913. At the Military Road Branch Flower Department to-day we have Sweet Peas, Asters and Chrysanthemums on show. The flowers are sent out from Grove Hill every morning and are always fresh and in the best condition. You will get perfect satisfaction if you patronize this department. Mr. H. Peddigrew, Manager of the Military Road Branch, arrived by the S.S. Stephano this morning after a visit to the United States. He takes up his duties immediately. A Pocket Cook Stove seems an impossibility, but the Mayflower non-explosive Alcohol Stove actually is pocket size and yet practical. One of these handy little stoves is of great value to travellers and may be used in the nursery with perfect safety. Price 40c.

Met With Accident.

There arrived by the Stephano to-day from Halifax, Tobias Lodge, belonging to Catalina, T.B., suffering from who was taken to the Hospital in the ambulance. Lodge was a sailor on the s.s. Bonaventure, which is now under charter to the Canadian Government. Three weeks ago when the ship was in Hudson Bay, the seaman fell heavily on the deck and had one of his legs broken in two places below the knee. The sufferer was brought back to Halifax and transferred to the Stephano.

Fisherman
Writes

Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Mr. Editor—The old saying "Tory times are hard times" is very true and Morris and his gang of hoodlums have spared no pains to have this policy carried out. People living on the southern end of Quidi Vidi have always suffered inconvenience and hardships, especially in winter time, for the want of a road. We asked the Government time and again to attend to this necessity but our prayer was not listened to. To make this road would cost about $50,000. Morris could not see his way clear to grant this trifle but he saw his way clear to grant requests involving thousands of dollars to land grabbers and others. Morris does not like the idea of catering to Quidi Vidi because he knows full well were all staunch Liberals. Out of the entire settlement of Quidi Vidi there are, to be accurate, only four Tories. By the way, these four get their paws greased. They get money to improve the roads near their homes. The time is now approaching for an election. Let us hope that the big swelled head chief will be driven out of power. Change, Mr. Editor, will be a god send to the fishermen. The Tory gang have been taking the blood and substance of the fishermen of this country long enough. The tidal wave is strongly against the Tory clique. The man we need is a clean government is Sir Robert Bond, the greatest statesman the country ever saw and who will be returned to power with the biggest majority on record in November next. Howley and Higgins have started canvassing this district. So far they got the cold shoulder every place they visited. Watch the ring of enthusiasm, ye Tories when Messrs. Kent and his colleagues, the three old loyal supporters of the Liberal flag come round.

With thanks for the use of so much of your space, Mr. Editor,
I am, sincerely yours,
FISHERMAN.

Quidi Vidi, Sept. 17th, 1913.

Yesterday's Wedding

At St. Andrew's Church, yesterday afternoon, the wedding of Miss Anabella Ross, daughter of Mr. Hector Ross, Superintendent of construction work with the Reid Mill, Co., and Mr. John Boyd Baird, son of the late John Baird, was solemnized. The Rev. J. S. Sutherland, M.A., officiating. The bride, who was charmingly attired, carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and was attended by Miss Kitty Stott and Miss Helen Brown, who wore beautiful costume of pale blue with hats to match. The ceremony was supported by his cousin, Mr. James Baird, Jr. Following the groom a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents Victoria Street, after which the bridal party joined the outgoing express for Canada to spend the honeymoon. After touring Montreal, Toronto and Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Baird will proceed to Georgia, where they will make their future home. The bride was a well known young lady in St. John's, a promoter of church work to which she gave much of her musical talent. Numerous and valuable presents were received by the bride. Last night a dance was held at "Donovan's" in honor of the event. The Telegram joins in the congratulations extended.

Nfldr. Found Dead.

Word was received this morning by the Canada Cement Co., that Dan White, who shipped at Montreal aboard the S.S. John Duncan of the Company's transport line, and is understood to have relatives here, was found dead in the hold yesterday at Erie, Pa., between which port and Montreal the John Duncan is now plying. White is supposed to have fallen from the deck to the bottom of the hold, although no person witnessed the accident. He is understood to have come from Newfoundland. The Canada Cement Co. would like to hear from relatives in regard to the disposal of the body. White was 24 years old. He shipped as a deck hand.—Montreal Star, Sept. 12th.

Brigade Shoot.

To-day commencing at 2.30, the annual brigade shooting competition for the cup, donated by His Excellency Governor Davidson, will take place at the South Side range, weather permitting. The contest will be confined to the three Brigades—C. L. B., C. C. C. and Highlanders, as the Guards will not be participating. This fact will be regretted when it is remembered that the Guards won the shooting contest for the last four seasons. Much rivalry exists in regard to to-day's shoot and a close contest is looked for. The trophy must be won three years in succession before it becomes the sole property of any one brigade.

The s.s. Hawk sailed yesterday afternoon for Bell Island with a full freight.

Wonders of Modern Surgery.

AN ARTIFICIAL GULLET.

London, August 15.—An interesting part of the proceedings of the Section of Surgery was a demonstration by Mr. Arthur Evans (London) of the case of a woman of 43, who had had the larynx and a large portion of the gullet removed for cancer four years ago. At the present time the patient was breathing through a tracheotomy tube. A rubber tube passed from the back of her mouth through an opening in the neck outside her body to an opening made in the stomach. She was able to chew all kinds of food and swallow, so that food passed into the stomach through this artificial gullet.

The operator was congratulated on all sides on the success of a most daring and ingenious operation. The patient was shown to the section and was seen to be in excellent health.

Removal of a Branch of the Artery. The Section of Surgery discussed a new branch of surgery, "Intra-arterial Surgery."

Sir William MacEwen's contribution to the debate was by far the most interesting and informing of the day. He drew attention to two points in that large subject. In the first place, he wished to demonstrate a patient operated on by him 18 years ago, whose left lung had been removed in its entirety for tubercular disease. The patient had been brought from Glasgow and was seen by the section to be a strong, healthy-looking man whose left side was hollow and fallen in. He was engaged steadily at work. At the time of the operation the right lung was diseased but the removal of the hopelessly diseased lung was followed by improvement in the condition of the remaining lung.

That experience had been found in other four similar cases. In all these cases the chest of the diseased lung had been adherent to the great vein at the root of the neck, and at a late stage of the disease the vein and that piece of lung were removed. In the first case the patient for some days suffered great distress from the "fopping" of his heart to and fro as his position was changed. This symptom was obviated by stitching the pericardium to the front part of the chest wall. Photographs of the five men operated on were shown, as also were photographs of the lungs removed.

In Artificial Kidney.

A demonstration which excited very great interest was that of Professor Abel, of Baltimore. A new and ingenious method of removing substances from the circulating blood, which can hardly fail to be of benefit in the study of some of the most complex problems. By means of a glass tube tied into a main artery of an anaesthetized animal the blood is conducted through numerous celloidin tubes before being returned to the veins through a second glass tube. The celloidin tubes are immersed in saline solution. All diffusible substances circulating in the blood pass through the intervening celloidin tubes, and can be found in the saline solution, where they can be subjected to fractional analysis. In this way Professor Abel has constructed what is practically an artificial kidney. In many instances the working of the excretory organ is more rapid than that of the actual kidney of the animal; 3 per cent. per hour of urilic acid can be removed from the blood. Although primarily the apparatus is of use in the estimation and analysis of the diffusible contents of the blood, it is possible that the principle may ultimately be adopted in the treatment of disease. At the close of the demonstration, which excited the liveliest interest and discussion, Professor Abel was accorded round after round of applause.

Transplantation of the Kidney.

Dr. Ernest Jeger demonstrated a number of specimens to show what had been achieved experimentally in dogs. He had successfully removed a piece of artery and attached in its place a piece of vein taken from the same animal. He had transplanted one kidney of a dog from its abdominal position to the neck, joining the renal artery to the carotid artery, the renal vein to the jugular vein, and the function of that kidney was continued unimpaired.

A Boy's Promise.

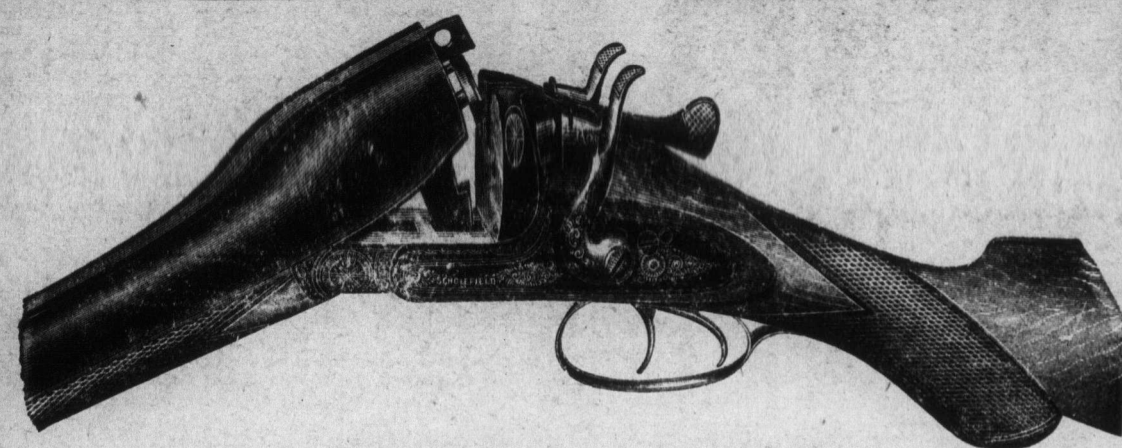

The school was out, and down the street
A noisy throng came thronging;
The hue of health, a gladness sweet,
To every face belonging.
Among them strode a little lad,
Who listened to another's sad:
"I can't—I promised mother."
A shout went up, a ringing shout,
Of boisterous derision;
But not one moment left in doubt
That manly, brave decision.
"Go where you please, do what you will."
He calmly told the other;
"But I shall keep my word, boys, still,
I can't—I promised mother."

Ah! who can doubt the future course
Of one who thus had spoken?
Through manhood's struggle gain and loss,
Could faith like this be broken?
God's blessing on that steadfast will,
Unyielding to another,
That bears all jeers and laughter still,
Because he promised mother.
