A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XXVII.

A week later, Robert Broseley was pacing up and down the verandah in the early morning. The sun was shining brightly enough, but the air was comparatively cool; three of the "hands" were walking up and down three superb horses; two of them had side-saddles on; for Robert was going to take Maida and Carrie for a ride. A great change had come over Robert since the night he had ridden home dusty and travel-stained, rough-mannered in appearance, and profane in speech. He had got a pack of new clothes from Melbourne, and, in a coarse way, looked something like a dandy as he paced up and down striking his leg with his whip, and casting a glance now at the horses and now towards the window from which he expected the two girls to emerge.

He had not altered in appearance, but in manner; he was gentler with his mother and swore less at the "hands"—at any rate, while he was within hearing of the girls—and to his mother's amazement and delight he had displayed an unwonted politeness when in their company; on the other hand, when alone he was pre-occupied and moody, given to long fits of abstraction, alternating with savage outbursts of temper which he was careful not to exhibit, or checked suddenly at the appearance of the Miss Carringtons. He hovered about them all day, and, to his mother's deep satisfaction, spent the evening, not in the kitchen or common living-room as heretofore, smoking and drinking with the "hands," but in the parlor, talking to Carrie of London life or listening to Maida singing or reciting; but whatever he was doing his small black eyes continually sought Maida's face, sometimes covertly, at others with an eager, hungry admiration and wistfulness.

She was in his thoughts all day; when he was riding after the cattle or superintending the "hands," she haunted him at night when he often lay awake tossing to and fro feverishly recalling every word she had spoken to him during the day; her exquisite voice ringing in his ears and torturing him with the desire of possession. The love, the passion, of such a man as Robert Broseley is a terrible thing; he was like the man possessed with the seven devils, or rather of one with all the attributes of the rest; and his passion was working like madness in his brain; for he knew that Maida was not only indifferent to, but absolutely unconscious of his admiration. It was as if he were wasting his strength and manhood, hurling himself against a mass of ice which barred his way to happiness. She was always courteous and gentle of speech and manner to him—but the ice was there; and sometimes it chilled him to the marrow. It was as if, though her exquisite form was near him—so near that he was often tempted to stretch out his huge hand and seize her arm and drag her to him—her spirit, her soul, were far away. A thousand times he asked himself of what she was thinking as she sat with her hands folded loosely in her lap, her violet eyes fixed on vacancy. Was it of some other man? The thought sent the blood in a rush to his heart and made the small, black eyes gleam savagely.

At times, when unwittingly, she had been more than usually gentle with him, had perhaps been interested in some story of his adventures, he had cherished some hope of winning her; she was poor, he would be very rich; he would be a good match for her; he was big and straight, not bad looking; other women had been ready to smile on him, why not she?

He was asking himself this, trying to lay the flattering unction of hope to his soul as he paced up and down moodily; but his face cleared and his eyes lit up as the two girls came out. A woman looks at her best in her riding habit, and Maida's beauty and grace made his heart throb fiercely.

"Sorry to keep you waiting," said Carrie. "It was all my fault; Maida's been dressed half an hour; but I couldn't find one riding-boot; I forgot that I threw it at a mouse the other night, and that, of course! it crawled under the bed; the boot, I mean; it always does; so does everything else you lose. I think it would be a good plan to have a piece of wire netting round the bed."

"It doesn't matter," he said, quite pleasantly—if it had been anyone else who had kept him waiting, there would have been black looks and very probably an oath. "I don't mind. I don't want you ever to hurry; my time's yours."

"I've put a loose curb on her," he said to Maida as he put her into the saddle with the ease of a strong man who could have lifted her above his head if he chose, "you won't have so much trouble in holding her. I hope you'll like her, now that you've grown used to her; I don't fancy there's a better in the country."

"She is a beautiful creature," said Maida, "and I have grown fond of her already."

"You are fond of animals generally, aren't you?" he said, as two colts jumped at her, begging for a word. "I notice that all the dogs come running up to you as if they'd known you for years. Get down, you brute!" he broke off, roughly, making to kick them; for he was jealous even of them.

"Oh, don't send them away," said Maida. "These two are my favorites."

"They'll tear your habit, if they don't look out," he growled.

She spoke a word to the dogs, and they drew back obediently, eyeing her and wagging their tails lovingly; and when the horses had started they followed close behind Maida. Robert rode between the two girls, but his eyes were upon Maida and his talk to her.

"I'm having a new buggy built for you," he said. "There! I meant it for a surprise; but I've blurted it out now. I don't seem as if I can keep anything from you, even a simple thing like that. I hope you'll like it. I've got a couple of horses to put to it that you couldn't match this side of the herring-pond, and you and I—and Miss Carrie—will have some fine drives."

"That is very good of you," said Maida; "but Mrs. Broseley's carriage is very comfortable. I am sorry that you should have taken the trouble, gone to the expense."

"Oh, that!" he responded, contemptuously. "As to the trouble and expense, it's no trouble, and the expense won't matter. We could afford a new buggy, I should hope. Besides, the other old thing isn't fit for you. I don't like to see you driving in it. There's nothing too good for you—and Miss Carrie," he added, hastily, as he caught the dawn of a faint surprise in Maida's dreamy eyes.

"Oh, we're very easily satisfied, Mr. Robert," said Carrie; "at least, I am; the best of everything is good enough for me."

He laughed the short laugh which had become strangely subdued during this last week.

"And the best of everything you shall have, Miss Carrie," he said.

They rode on at a fair pace, for the girls had been quick to take advantage of his apt tuition; and he glanced admiringly from the corners of his eyes at Maida's graceful figure as she sat her horse as if she had been riding for years, instead of a week. He thought of what it would mean to him if he could have her to ride, to walk to sit beside him for the rest of his life—his own, his wife! And, for a time, he was so absorbed and moved by the thought that he was silent, looking straight before him at the picture of his imagination.

They were going to one of the huts erected in various parts of the run for the use of the keepers and cattlemen; they were to rest there and have a cup of tea, and then ride back for the early luncheon, so that the girls might spend the remainder of the heat of the day dreaming under the verandah. For miles they rode across the long-stretching grass-land, then the scenery grew wilder and more broken, and they neared a range of hills and saw in the distance the bed of what, in the rainy season, would be a huge and roaring river, but was now a dry and parched water course, through which trickled lazily and languidly but a tiny stream. Maida had been silent for some time, and Carrie and Robert Broseley had been talking; but suddenly he turned to Maida.

"This is more like some parts of your England, isn't it?" he said.

Maida woke from her dream and looked round.

"Yes. It is very beautiful; it is like"—she paused, and her lips twitched: the valley just beyond Heroncourt had risen before her and awakened the old pain, the old, aching longing—"it is like some places I know."

He watched her covertly.

"I suppose you are always thinking of them, always longing for them?"

"Not always," she said, with her sweet gravity, which seemed to always keep him just at arm's length, to maintain the barrier between them. "But why do you say 'your' England? It is yours also, is it not? Do not you Colonials always speak of it as 'home'?"

"Yes, mostly," he said. "And I've often had a fancy for going there. I don't mean on a visit like some of them; but to settle there. I suppose I could get a fine place in England—one of those places you read about in the novels and stories?"

"Oh, yes!" said Maida, as she thought of the Towers which her father had bought.

"I'd do it," he said, "if anything happened to the governor, or if he'd find the needful. That is—I suppose a man ought to be married."

He shot a glance at her, but Maida was scarcely listening; certainly she attached no importance to his words.

"Yes; I suppose it would be better," she said. "Of course, a bachelor could live in a large place. Plenty of them do."

"I daresay I shouldn't have much difficulty in finding a wife," he said, with an uneasy laugh.

"I should imagine not," said Carrie, who had overheard him. "There were several unmarried women in England when we left. But it's too beautiful a morning to talk of such a sad subject—What is that down by the stream, Mr. Robert?"

"That is the hut," he said. It looks pretty near, doesn't it? But it will take us a good hour and a half to reach it; the air's so fine that you can see a great distance. I've lived in that hut, by myself, mind you, for a fortnight at a time, with just a ride home now and again; for I couldn't leave the cattle for long; it isn't particularly lively, and you get pretty sick of it after the first week, having no one to talk to."

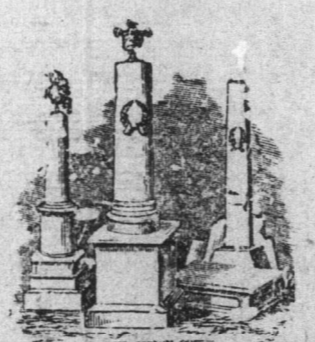

"And no one to quarrel with, that would be the worst of it for me," remarked Carrie. "It's quarrelling that makes life just bearable; and I often wonder how Maida can live without it."

He nodded and laughed appreciatively.

"I know what you mean, Miss Carrie. Yes, I like a good quarrel now and again, and a stiff stand-up fight, especially when it means life or death." He drew a long breath and set his shoulders back, and his eyes gleamed.

IN THE HILLS.

I write this rhyme 'mid scenes sublime, in far-famed Colorado, where hills so high they scrape the sky throw out a—c—o—l—i—n—g shadow. Long's Peak uplifts its shining drifts of snow that knows no melting; I'm cool as far, while, where you are, heat rays are fiercely pelting. The crystal rills that seam the hills attract my fat attention, and aspen quake by lonely lake too beautiful to mention. Here Nature spent her last red cent, to make a scene enthralling, with crags and woods and other goods, and mountain torrents brawling. And tourists roam, far, far from home, upon this scene elysian, they're swarming o'er the rocky floor, and jar my startled vision. For they're attired in a garb all-fired, in garments plainly dippy; in sideshow rags they scale the crags and toil up pathways slippery. It seems too shames that men and dames, when they go for an outing must cause distress by wearing dress so loud it's fairly shouting. The mountains blush when tourists rush along the pathways ratty, in rags that scare the wolf and bear, and drive the woodchucks nutty.

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other Liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

Let's Go Swimming.

(From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

We can all fly, and even the fortunate can may get little of genuine pleasure from the practice.
Boating clubs and whirling propellers deal them and a stinging spray of blinds their goggled, smarting eyes to the beauty of what lies below, they do not soar like birds. Those the country, not as those who leisurely in top buggies, but rather as do those who profane the countryside in sporting racing cars. If we would share, in some measure, the pleasures
of the birds, the water, not the air, must serve our turn. And swimming is the nearest to flying that men can hope learn, a substitute,
indeed, which is not to be despised.
There is the best of sense pleasures in the clear, cool water,
a freedom of motion, a sheer delight in muscular action which one may not know on land. You enter the water gingerly, sisked a little by the cold splash of your ankles. You wade in, delicate as Agag walked, plunging your fists into the water and dashing it upon your head and shoulders. As the bottom falls away

you rub your stomach vigorously, Indian fashion, as a preventive of dreaded cramps and then, your courage revived, you duck completely and rise, spluttering, to find the world is yours. Those on the beach who do not know the wonders of the lake believe you swim. In truth you fly.
You start out with the old-fashioned breast stroke, sailor fashion, turn on your side for increased speed, practice at will the trudgeon and the crawl, whirl round and round, splashing lustily. You know an utter freedom which ends only when your toes touch the sand. Swimming, you are as the bird, master of a fluid element. You do not sing, rather you grunt lustily as you expel your breath after each strenuous kick, but you would carol cheerily if you had wind enough. There is no exercise like swimming. The breast stroke builds arm and shoulder and breast muscles. The forward thrust and backward sweep is guaranteed to develop those back muscles which cure
the scholar's stoop. The scissors kick of the side stroke will do more for the legs than all the gymnastum tricks

A Letter to the Premier

The Newfoundland Industrial Workers Association have forwarded the following letter to Sir Edward Morris, Premier:—

Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, P.C., K. C.
M. G. etc., Prime Minister.

Dear Sir,—I am directed to call your attention to several communications which I forwarded you on behalf of the N. I. W. A. relative to the question of food control. The association is glad to note a bill has been introduced into the Legislature appointing a board of food control and considers the bill, with one exception, a most suitable one. The number of the Board is three, whereas the association recommended fifteen. I am directed to ask whether the Government will appoint at least two of the members of the Board from the ranks of the Industrial classes, and whether the nominating committee appointed at a mass meeting of the Industrial classes shall be given an opportunity to nominate these two members.

Yours respectfully,
MAURICE H. HITCHEM,
Secretary.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS
STEAM RADIATOR WAY. may 23, 17

Household Notes.

Many an unappetizing left-over can be used to advantage with grated cheese in a baking dish.

Ginger-bread mixture, with ground nuts added, then baked in the form of drop cakes, is delicious.

Save the water in which peas, beans or potatoes are cooked. This makes good material for the stock pot.

If you make a gelatine dessert in hot weather, allow a little more gelatine if you would have the mold firm.

Fish is the only food which has not risen in price, and the wise housewife will take advantage of this fact.

When taking gelatine or blancmange out of a mold, immerse the latter in a pan of hot water for an instant.

Iodine should be in every medicine chest. If diluted with alcohol or water, half and half, it is the best disinfectant.

An excellent hard sauce is made of butter and sugar creamed in the usual way, with the beaten white of an egg added.

Tiny pieces of sausages cooked until brown and then scrambled with eggs are delicious for a hot supper or a chilly night.

A rusty screw can be moved by applying a red-hot iron and moving the screw, while it is very hot, with the screw-driver.

Prevent the crochet needle from pricking your finger sore by putting adhesive plaster where the needle strikes the finger.

A good picnic sandwich is made by frying ham and eggs separately, then grinding them together and putting between bread and butter.

Some kinds of meat bones, especially beef ribs, may be sprinkled with salt and cayenne pepper and broiled
over a clear fire until brown.

The Civil Service.

St. John's, 25th July, 1917.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I learn that the united front shown by the teachers has succeeded in securing for them their increase of salary from 1st of January last. In other words the Government has shown their appreciation of this branch of the Civil Service by bringing them under increased pay six months in advance of the remainder of the Civil Service.

While congratulating the teachers
on their good fortune, I think it is most unfair to the other branches of the service particularly those residing in the city who have to respond to so many calls, collections, etc., (to which the teachers are largely exempt) and which makes their net income even less, than that which the teachers complain of. The recent increase graded from five to fifty cents per day does not yet bring the salaries of the Postal and Customs officials (many of them doing expert work)
up to the stipend paid a junior clerk
in a mercantile office.

Civil servants, if you desire a living wage, you must fight for it. Newfoundland has not yet seen the political leader with sufficient courage to do justice to the civil servant. Organize, form your union or association which in the right hands would soon become a power, whose plea or demand no Government could afford to ignore. Now is the day and now is the hour. In a year or so a Government will be appealing to the people, and the support of an organized civil service union or association would certainly be one of the influences which would receive consideration.

Trusting that you will give this space in your independent paper, and oblige

The Budget.
 Yesterday, not more than six weeks too late, the Finance Minister presented the annual Budget. Why it should be called a Budget is not clear, for it scarcely indicates even general changes in the method of revenue collection and is almost entirely a review of the finances of the past two years. Even so it is a statement of unusual interest. We can only make the most general observations here, though every paragraph suggests conclusions to us different in kind or degree from those drawn by the Minister.

Our first impulse, when we had read the budget, was to congratulate Mr. Cashin upon his showing, but we will not waste words in doing for him what he has already done so well for himself. We are inclined to think he has a little overdone it. There is a sort of smug, complacent self-satisfaction about his report which, frankly, we do not like. It consists ill with the times and the true facts. It must be admitted that the large figures of the last two years are good, but the main causes are not correctly described and there are offsets to the effect which promise to neutralise it entirely. The war have come so well, financially, through the storm of war is no cause for rejoicing in our good fortune," as the statement does in several places, but for sincere thankfulness. It is as true of nations as of individuals that their prosperity in such times as these must largely be borrowed from the miseries of others. But if this aspect of our prosperity might periodically be escaped the Minister's notice, the same cannot be said of its dangerously transitory nature. We have little to justify the optimism that inspires Mr. Cashin's view of the future.

What causes have chiefly contributed to this prosperity? At the very outset Mr. Cashin has omitted mention of the first explanation of a large figure in our country, the enormous inflation of money. This has been so great, the purchasing power of money has so much declined, that the same figures as far, say, 1913, would represent an appreciably smaller volume of trade. Next, a wrong impression is created by the virtual addition of the export and import increases, as though they were separable instead of really explaining one another. The statement says that the prosperity of the country is reflected by the growth in value of the imports. To "prosperity" and "extravagance" and something more truthful will be said. Moreover, the increased spending power of the country has not been derived entirely from increased earnings. A large part of the community, to take one instance, are receiving in the form of allotments and pensions an income never before approached. Far the greater part of this, be it carefully noted, is borrowed money. Apart from that, the chief causes of the increase in those earnings are apparent, and their possibly temporary nature cannot too strongly be emphasised. First and foremost, all our fisheries have benefited enormously by the war's ruthless destruction of competition and the universal increase in the value of all foodstuffs. The same applies to all the other commodities which we export. The pit-rop

The steamer docked at the Farness Wharf pier, where the party landed and were given a most enthusiastic welcome by the Ladies' Reception Committee, members of the Patriotic Association and hundreds of citizens gathered at the wharf, which they motored to Government House and were cordially received by His Excellency the Governor. As will be seen from the list of names several of the returned veterans left here with the First Nid. Contingent nearly three years ago.

Youthful Thieves Caught Redhanded.
 Several hundred cigarettes were missed from the grocery stores of Job Bros. & Co., Ltd., within the past week. The suspicion was that boys were doing the mischief and a close watch was kept with good results, as Const. Dempsey arrested five boys last night who had just broken into the store and were getting away with 500 cigarettes. While doing duty on Water Street, Dempsey saw several youths running down Campbell & McKay's archway, where they emptied their cargo of "cigs". He immediately suspected something was wrong. He did not make any disturbance then but passed on and shadowed the culprits, who a few minutes later returned to Job's Stores and got in through a window, which was broken for that purpose. While filling their pockets Dempsey appeared on the scene and caught the two smallest of the gang, the others having made a safe, though temporary, escape. The two captured ones told a story of the whole episode on being brought to the lockup, leading to the arrest of their three companions. This morning the lads, whose ages ranged from 6 to 12 years of age, appeared before court, charged with the theft. The oldest and principal of the gang was sent to jail last year for larceny. He was sentenced to get six strokes (and hard cases) of the birch rod; the other four were discharged with a caution and their mothers, who were in court, told to take them home and teach them a lesson.

Barque Cut Down.

BOMBING ZEEBRUGGE.
 LONDON, To-day.
 A despatch from Amsterdam says a telegram from the frontier announces that British airmen during the past two nights have bombed Zeebrugge, the German submarine base, and the town of Bruges, Belgium; explosions and fires followed the attacks. A submarine shed at Zeebrugge was damaged and probably a submarine was blown up.

SHIPPING LOSSES INCREASED.
 LONDON, To-day.
 Twenty-one British vessels of more than 1,600 tons each and three of less tonnage were sunk last week by mine or submarine, according to the weekly admiralty report of shipping losses. One fishing ship also was lost.

AN ABOMINABLE DEVICE.
 Canadian Headquarters in France.—The latest trick of Berlin is a security one, played at the expense of the German troops, who have poured their blood like water in defence of the Fatherland. In a raid of Monday morning it was noticed that the occupants of the dugouts very generally refused to come up and surrender. Some who did mount the stairs made a rush to overpower our bombers and tried fighting. We now find evidence to show that there is a very general conviction among the German troops that the British kill all their prisoners. Were it not for this the men would give themselves up much more readily. That this hideously false impression is deliberately fostered by the German high command is a moral certainty.

WANTS MORE LIBERAL CENSORSHIP.
 LONDON, To-day.
 Premier Holtman, of New South Wales, writes to the Morning Post emphasizing the necessity of the Government taking the public more into its confidence regarding war news. He thinks there is a tendency in military minds to adopt German methods in connection with the censorship. He recalls addressing hostile meetings during the conscription campaign in Australia and being asked questions about the war which it was impossible for him to answer satisfactorily. This, Mr. Holtman thinks, was not the least important factor in the defeat of conscription. He thinks that all fresh developments, especially those involving embarrassment, should be communicated soberly and frankly to the people, and the Government's expectations in regard to them as far as possible without doing actual injury to our cause.

OFFICERS OF THE CONVENTION.
 LONDON, To-day.
 An official report of the Irish Convention given out last night says that after the opening address by Chief Secretary Duke, presiding, a committee was appointed for the purpose of advising the convention on the selection of a chairman. It was announced that the committee unanimously recommended the appointment of Sir Horace Plunkett as Chairman, and Sir Francis Hopwood as Secretary. The Convention unanimously adopted the Committee's resolution and adjourned until tomorrow. Ninety-two delegates were present.

East Africa have won new victories over the remaining German forces there and the main body of the enemy is now in retreat towards the South, after having suffered heavy losses, says an official announcement issued to-day. The text reads: An engagement on the 19th at Naroucombe resulted in the enemy being driven from all his positions. The main body is retreating southwards. The enemy's losses were heavy. A small German column is at Jigoon, on the north shore of Lake Masaryk. We are in touch at Libuka with the enemy retreating toward Maheng, in the southeasterly section of the colony. In Portuguese Africa we are pursuing the enemy from Mwinbe toward the Rovuma River.

THE GREAT
AIR ARMADA.

(Public Opinion.)
Germany has not and will never have the mastery of the air. British airmen have the mastery, and Admiral Peary says that the United States must become the first air power of the world.

What the British are doing on the Western Front and what the Americans aim at doing are here shown in contrast with the strange delirium of the German air raid on London.

What Our Men Did.
"It is pleasant to contrast with the ignoble achievement of the enemy's air service the magnificent and soldierly work accomplished by our airmen in the Battle of Messines," says
the Scotsman. "Press correspondents at the front have described their glorious deeds. During the entire course of the action the enemy's airmen were reduced to complete impotence."

"Not content with searching them out in the air, our flying squadrons
early dawn attacked the enemy's aerodromes behind the fighting line. They flew low and attacked them with machine guns; they circled the aerodromes
and picked their machines out; they riddled the hangars with bullets. While some continued to keep guard over the aerodromes,
others went away on equally daring
quests. They picked up troop trains, bombed them, and fired into them. If the trains stopped, and the troops depended, our men came lower, circling over the heads of the enemy and doing great execution with their machine guns."

"They treated moving columns of the enemy's infantry in the same way, scattering large bodies with the precision of their close-range fire; they hunted ammunition convoys and transport cars—everything, in fact,
that moved on the ground or above
it within the enemy's lines. They did not even hesitate to attack the enemy's anti-aircraft guns and his machine guns. Many of these they put out of action by diving boldly at them and picking off the gunners as they sped past."

"Finally—though this enumeration
of their daring exploits is not complete—they flew along the trenches,
driving the enemy into their dugouts and shelters, and leaving in their tracks long lines of slain and wounded. In this day of victory—glorious for all branches of British arms—our airmen established a reign of terror behind the enemy's lines no less by their brilliant scouting for the artillery than by the daring hunting they did on their own account. It is no wonder that the enemy want to lure them away from the scene where they triumphantly in the air."

America's Great Air Armada.
The United States is to send a Great Air Armada to Europe.

"Six hundred million dollars ($120,000,000) for aeroplanes will be asked of Congress in an Appropriation Bill to be introduced shortly at the request of the Council of National Defence," says the Times Washington correspondent. "This is in addition to 64 million dollars ($12,800,000), already appropriated for aircraft in the War Budget measure just enacted by Congress."

"This great appropriation is designed to put into effect plans to give the Allies overwhelming air supremacy."
The Washington correspondent of the Evening Post telegraphs that the Council of National Defence (consisting of expert military advisers to the Government) has decided in favor of an immediate construction of 100,000 aeroplanes, sufficient to supply 25,000 airmen at all times. Such an air fighting force, he says, would be second to none."

To Blind the German Armies.
"Congress is now considering a Bill
to create a Department of Aeronautics, with its chief in the President's Cabinet," says the Times. "An Air Navy which will dominate every square mile of the Western Front was advocated before the Senate Committee by Mr. Howard Coffin, of the Council of National Defence."

"He urged that a fleet of aeroplanes so numerous and formidable as to preclude the possibility of German airmen even leaving their aerodromes off the shortest flight observations would so blind the eyes of the German Armies as to throw the balance of power completely and permanently into the hands of America and the Allies."

"With such an end in view, he advocated the mobilization of every industry in the United States capable of participating in the work of building America an air fleet that shall hold complete dominion over Western Europe."

"A violent and sustained offensive against the large towns in Germany proper (not in Belgium or Alsace)
would at once diminish the German air force on Haig's front, protect this country, and set free all these thousands of valuable men," says the Daily Mail.

Long Distance Rudeness.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"What strikes and frightens the backward European almost as much as anything in America is the efficiency and fearless universality of the telephone. I do not mean that Europe has failed to adopt the telephone. But I do mean that the European telephone is a toy and a somewhat glum, one compared with the incontestable seriousness of the American telephone. The average middle class householder in England still speaks of his telephone, if he has one, in the same falsely casual tone as the corresponding American is liable to speak of his motor car."—Arnold Bennett.

It is good to get a foreigner's point of view once in a while, isn't it? "Efficiency and fearless universality," certainly are a clever characterization of our telephone. We have become so used to it ourselves that we don't realize how wonderful, how pervasive and how almost alarming it is.

Too bad Mr. Bennett didn't stay longer. And we don't realize also some of the abuses into which we have drifted. Too bad Mr. Bennett couldn't have stayed long enough to have really lived among us and then he could have held them up to us, and we should have seen ourselves as others see us in that respect, too.

One feels ashamed to follow in such great footsteps but in this case one wants so much to point out a certain abuse that one is emboldened to. The particular abuse I mean this time is that of the persistent and intrusive telephone caller.

The Woman Couldn't Make Up Her Mind.

A neighbour of mine told me this story. She had some dealings with another woman in regard to selling a certain piece of furniture. The other woman could not make up her mind whether she wanted it or not. Then one day she made up her mind that she wanted it and wanted it in a hurry. She called up my neighbour. The latter was out, dining with some new friends, people she knows but slightly. The woman tried to get her telephone number. The maid refused to give it. Finally she harried the maid into it by insisting that her business was very important. She then called up and summoned my neighbour in the middle of a formal dinner to transact that business.

She Would Never Have Gone To That House.

Now that woman would never have gone to the house and interrupted the dinner. She would have known that was absolutely unpardonable. But just because it was done through a telephone she lost her sense of values.

That is not an isolated case. We all know people who do through the telephone what they would not think of doing face to face.

And yet long distance rudeness is just as much rudeness as the face to face variety.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Please tell me if it is proper to use place cards at a birthday party?" was Gladys's inquiry.

"I think it is always well to provide place cards, and if they are cleverly designed, they often afford a way to start conversation," replied her aunt.

Gossip.

Gossip is the art of scattering odium upon people who are not present with an alibi. There are several kinds of time-tested odium in common use, any one of which will eat large, gaping holes in the best reputation ever designed. When a smooth, docile reputation has been well scattered with hearsay odium it becomes of no value to its owner, who is obliged to move into another state and build up a new one.

Gossip is caused by the absence of a safety valve on the human tongue. Nature intended the tongue to remain at home and live a quiet, retired life, so that it would not become overheated and explode in the direction of the neighbours. One or two such explosions, aimed at the head of the new minister or the cashier of the bank, will cause more trouble and consternation than a hair-pulling match in the choir. Nobody should be allowed to join the church until his tongue has been passed upon by a boiler inspector and found equal to the task of sustaining a pressure of 5,000 pounds.

Gossip is caused by the absence of a safety valve on the human tongue. The gossip is usually a man or woman and sometimes both. There would be much less wholesale gossip in this country if there were fewer crackers.

Summer School Notes.

Wednesday, July 25.—Morning Session (St. Bonaventure's College), 9 to 11.45. Lectures were given on Formal English Grammar and Psychology by Dr. Brunt, and on Nature Study and Arithmetic by Mr. Morehouse. Methodist College Hall 11.45 to 12.30. Mr. C. Hutton gave a lecture on teaching Music by the Tonic Sol Fa system. Afternoon Session (St. Bonaventure's College) 2.15 to 4.15.

During the first period 2.15-3 Dr. Brunt and Mr. Morehouse continued their lectures on Psychology and Arithmetic respectively. The next half hour was spent in Physical Culture on the College grounds. The ladies of A group were then taken in Art by Miss Kelly, while the rest attended Mr. Morehouse's lecture on Natural Study.

Evening Session (Synod Building) 7.30-9.—Special lessons in English Composition by Dr. Blackall, English by Mr. Whitway, French by Misses Stirling and Carmichael, Algebra by Rev. W. H. Thomas and Mr. Goodman were very well attended.

Appreciates the People's Paper.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—It is decidedly refreshing to read your spicy editorials these days, for they make us feel that "boquet-throwing" has not entirely been adopted as the way in which to lessen the obstacles that lie in our path. We have lately, as you say, become a mutual admiration society, our "brilliant and self-sacrificing" statements (?) (save the mark) leading the grand procession. Now and again, of course, the people, the Hard Drags, receive an advice from some fellow (who now runs a motor car, and who before the war ran from his creditors), on the subject of economizing, but outside of this little jar in the musceteer everything is lovely on the bowery. Your space is limited, I know, and therefore I will not trespass further, only to say that you are giving us the "goods" just now that the people are actually hungry for. We thought it was all up with us as far as an independent press in our dear loved native land was concerned, but thank goodness the sunshine of liberty still lives and thank goodness that the people have still the old reliable ever true Evening Telegram on the watch tower. Keep up the good work, the people are behind you every time.

Your Boys and Girls.

The real home in which the parents are good pals, can give points in rearing children in the old order. The wise make comrades of their growing up or grown children. There is a drawing together of their youth and middle age that is good, good for the elders and conducive to freshness of spirit. The high wall between parent and child is down, and they do not talk a strange language to which others do.

To make real comrades of your children is to let them feel that you have gone with them step by step all the way, and one day you will realize they are falling into your step, going back to childhood and blaming themselves for their failures toward you, even as you falter toward yours, and never again will you complain of their ingratitude.

Annual Budget Brought Down.

And Correspondence Tabled to Enquiry into Death of Pte. Quinton.

After long and weary waiting the annual Budget Speech was brought down in the House of Assembly yesterday afternoon.

The rules of the House in relation to all matters to come before the House were suspended on motion of the Premier.

The House discussed in Committee the Bill respecting a department of Militia and Defence. In explaining the provisions, the Minister of Justice, the introducer, said the main object of the Bill was to bring all matters in relation to the war under one Department, the head of which to be responsible to the Legislature. He paid a tribute to the valuable work done by the Patriotic Association whose efforts had saved the country large expenditures of money and spoke in optimistic terms of recruiting.

The Prime Minister and Mr. Bennett endorsed the remarks of the Minister of Justice, the former particularly eulogizing the voluntary work of His Excellency the Governor and Mr. Bennett suggesting that our brigades be subsidized for the services they had rendered the regiment.

Mr. Clift echoed the sentiments of the Prime Minister regarding the work of the Governor and also paid a high compliment to Major Montgomerie for the work he had done and was doing. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries moved the House into Committee to consider an amendment of the Shipbuilding Act. The Bill repeals a section of the old Act regarding blocks, the Minister stating that the reason for allowing imported blocks to be used in vessels built for the bounty was owing to the shortage of supply here. The Bill passed Committee, received its third reading and was sent to the Upper House for concurrence.

When the House went into Committee on Ways and Means the Finance Minister brought down his annual Budget, which showed in effect that the country had reason to congratulate itself on its unprecedented prosperity during the past two years and foreshadowed bright things for the next fiscal year.

Before the House adjourned the Prime Minister tabled the appended correspondence, forwarded by Dr. Burke, Secretary of the Standing Committee of the Patriotic Association, as a result of an inquiry into the death of Private Quinton, which sad happening elicited a considerable amount of discussion a few weeks ago in the House.

CAPT. O'GRADY'S REPORT.
July 2nd, 1917.

Relating to newspaper reports re 3525, Pte. A. E. Quinton, I beg to state as follows:—

On the afternoon of April 7th a draft of fifty men embarked on S.S. Florizel. Owing to ice conditions and fog the ship did not sail until Monday a.m., April 9th; during that time it was necessary to have a small guard mounted in order to prevent soldiers from coming ashore and to guard against soldiers going aboard who might be likely to stow away with the draft.

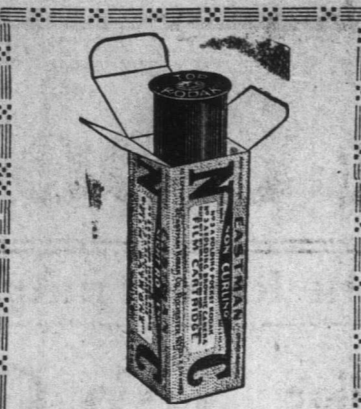

On the afternoon of April 7th, Capt. Ayre, acting O.C. Depot, gave instructions to have a Guard of six men detailed for the purpose above-mentioned. The Guard consisted of the following men:—

- 3408 Pte. W. O. Peaver.
- 3525 Pte. A. E. Quinton.
- 3050 Pte. H. A. Walsh.
- Pte. P. Benoit.
- 3537 Pte. J. Jeddore.
- 3487 Pte. I. Lidstone.

This Guard did duty from 5 p.m. 5/17 to 11 a.m. 5/17. From 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. there were two men on duty, one at the bottom of the gangway, the other on the ship; both these men were under cover, and reliefs were sent every two hours; after 11 p.m. one sentry was on duty at the head of the gangway under cover and was relieved every hour.

Previous to being laid off for this duty and up to the time when detailed, 3525, Pte. A. E. Quinton was fit for duty and did not report sick until April 20th, 1917.

At 11 a.m. on April 8th (Sunday) this Guard was relieved from duty until April 9th, 9 a.m. On the latter date 3525, Pte. Quinton was granted home leave, and reported back for duty on 20th April, 1917. He was paraded to the Depot as is customary when men come off home leave, and complained of a pain in the side. He was given medicine and duty.

At 5 p.m. of the same date he was told off for Barrack Guard duty. The work in connection with this is not heavy, being given for experience, as a sentry goes on for two hours and is off for four hours.

The hours which Pte. Quinton did sentry on this Guard are as follows:

- 5 p.m. did duty until 7 p.m.
- 11 p.m. did duty until 1 a.m.
- 5 a.m. did duty until 7 a.m.
- 11 a.m. did duty until 1 p.m.

He did not come on sentry again during the day.

The Guard was relieved at 5 p.m., April 21st, and was relieved of all duties until 9 a.m., April 22nd, on which date 3525, Pte. A. E. Quinton was reported sick in billets. The report came in late that day, and the Doctor visited him on the morning of the 23rd, and recommended indefinite leave, which was granted.

I have the honour to be, Sir, Your obedient servant,

DR. BURDEN'S REPORTS.
Report on No. 3525, Quinton, 42 Young Street.

July 2nd, 1917.
From Medical Officer, Depot,
St. M. O.

I first visited this man, sick in billets, on Monday, April 23rd. He was then suffering from a feverish cold, with slight pains about him and cough, with a rise of temperature. About three or four days later he complained of stitch in side. I examined him and found he had pleurisy (dry) in left side which ran a course of about a week or ten days, and subsided. After temperature was normal for a few days and he felt much better, I allowed him up and down stairs (on second day). Then he was taken with a stitch in the other side and went back to bed. When I saw him he had a slight temperature and what I thought was a beginning pleurisy on the right side. After a day or two I examined him and found this to be the case. I had treated him along for pleurisy in the meantime. When I saw that he was in for another stage of pleurisy I mentioned General Hospital to him, and to Mrs. Pippy. He did not want to go, neither did Mrs. Pippy want him to go. This second attack of pleurisy was accompanied by a slight effusion, and ran much longer course than the first attack. After a considerable time (I am not sure how long) the symptoms subsided, his temperature went back to normal, and he did not complain of pain in side. I did not allow him up after this, as he had a rise in temperature, and he began to sweat at night, then I examined his lungs again and found evidence of tuberculosis in right base, and recommended that he be sent to Jensen Camp for treatment.

The day before he was admitted to Jensen Camp he had an attack of diarrhoea and vomiting, which cleared up after treatment.

During the whole of his sickness he was in a fairly large bedroom, clean, well ventilated, and lots of sunshine, and was well looked after by Mrs. Pippy.

F. W. BURDEN,
Medical Officer.

Further Report on 3525, Pte. Edward Quinton,
July 7, 1917.

Sir,—

As stated in my former report I first saw this man sick in billets on April 23rd, 1917. He was then suffering from feverish cold. I visited him again on the 25th and 26th. He was then improved somewhat, and I gave him indefinite leave; he was to let me know if he became any worse. On May 1st I was called to see him again, and on examination found that he had a dry pleurisy left side. I then saw him each day up to the 7th, when his temperature dropped to normal, the pain in side left him and he was feeling alright. I saw him again on the 9th and on the 12th. From the time that I gave him leave until I was called again on May 1st, he was feeling alright, was up and around, but was taken rather suddenly on that date—with pain in side. On the 13th and 14th of May I allowed him up again, as his temperature had been normal since the 7th. I visited him every second day up till about the 22nd, when he was again stricken with pain in right side, which on examination proved to be pleurisy, which subsided after treatment, and on June 8th I saw him again, and he was running a little temperature in the evening. I saw him again on the 9th; he still had a temperature. On the 10th I examined him again and found signs of active tuberculosis in base of right lung, and on this date I recommended that he be removed to Jensen Camp for treatment. I did not visit him next day as I thought he had been sent to the Camp. On the 12th I was called over to see him again, he was vomiting and had had an attack of diarrhoea, which I treated, and I think he was removed to the Camp the next day, June 13th. I made altogether some 20 visits during his illness.

The dates I have used are approximate, although I have in my notes an accurate account of visits made. I did not make a record of changes of condition of patient from time to time.

I also saw Pte. Quinton at St. Parade at Armory on the 26th or 21st of April. He then complained of slight cold; he had no temperature and did

YESTERDAY'S BASEBALL.

The B. I. S. received their first reverse for the season (and incidentally the worst drubbing of any team for the season) when they were devoured by the Red Lions at Mount Cashel yesterday with a score of 12 to 3. Right from the start the Lions hit Carew's offerings very freely, while in addition the Irishmen played their regular old-time game of baseball—overthrowing, fumbling, etc., and their efforts to hit were generally about as harmless as a one-legged man with water on the knee. Twice they had the bases filled, but Ellis proved the mastery of his wing and retired all and sundry who appeared before him. The plate was thought the game would have been one of the features of the Garden Party, but as it resulted in a disappointing exhibition from a spectacular viewpoint. Quick was the star of the game with a thousand percent average, four hits and four runs out of four times at bat. Hiltz hit for three bags, while Doyle and Brazie both had two baggers. Carew had 7 strikeouts to his credit with one base on balls; Ellis had 5 strikeouts but gave four passes to first. Apart from the disastrous errors in the first inning which allowed four of the five runs scored by the Lions), where the Irish felled miserably in wrestling the willow, and no support whatever was given Carew by the team. The Red Lions by their victory yesterday are thus the proud possessors of the H. D. Reid cup until next year, to Manager Hiltz and his crew we extend our hearty congratulations. The result of the preliminary games netted nearly $150 for the orphans.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

The regular League fixtures will be resumed to-night when the Wanderers will clash with the B. I. S. in the fifth game of the schedule. It is expected that Brown will go in the box for the blue-and-white aggregation, and Carew for the Irishmen. It is to be hoped that "Chief" Chessman will insist upon the games starting promptly, as the delays in every game are most annoying to the fans. The line-ups will likely be:—

FATAL MINE EXPLOSION AT SYDNEY, C.B.

SYDNEY, July 25. A gas explosion occurred in a mine at New Waterford this morning. Over one hundred men were underground at the time. Forty were taken out badly gassed. Eight are dead.

Later.—The worst explosion in the history of the Cape Breton coal fields occurred at 7.30 a.m. today in No. 12 colliery, New Waterford district. The official estimate places dead at 62, including 30 native miners, 22 Ndrns, and 10 foreigners. About 270 men were in the mine at the time and the colliery officials express surprise that the loss of life is not greater. Up to a late hour to-night only a small number of bodies had been taken up. The greater number will be where they are till to-morrow. Great crowds of people including weeping women and children still surrounding the pit's mouth. It is now believed the explosion was caused by the first shot fired when the men had taken their places at No. 7 landing, blocking the way to the landing, so that rescuers have had to approach by another route than usually used. Heroic work is being done by scores of volunteers, and two young men who were down into the pit this morning on rescue work were suffocated and now lie dead.

FRENCH VICTORY.

With the French Armies in the Field, July 25.—In one short stroke the French forces, early to-day completely wiped out all the Germans gained by six days' prodigal sacrifices along the Chemin des Dames. The defence of this highway parallels in heroic brilliancy the throwing back of the German waves at Verdun. Since Thursday morning the Crown Prince's attacks had been continuous and furious. His troops suffered enormous casualties as the price of foot by foot gains. Then these same French troops who had endured the continuous bombardment and attack suddenly leaped forward and swept the Germans out of their costly gains.

RUSSIANS MAY HOLD OLD LINE.

PETROGRAD, July 25. The present line of the south-western front is approximately that occupied after General Brusiloff's drive last summer, except before Tarnopol, where the enemy succeeded in pushing further into Russian territory. The fate of the Russian town was virtually decided with the Germans holding the suburbs just across the Sereth River within easy gun range. The Germans chose the junction point of the Seventh and Eleventh Armies for beginning their offensive, the first blow being struck between Zaporoff and Pabaki, on a two mile front. Without great efforts, as is admitted in the Russian official communications, they pursued their advance to the line of the Sereth. This uncovering of the Russian positions south of Tarnopol forced a retirement along the diagonal line southwestward, cutting the Stripa and Zelota Lipa to Halicz and the Lomnica. The Russians have been obliged to retire to the right bank of the river, and Halicz is seriously threatened with the prospect of a further retirement to the original Russian positions east of Stanislaw, occupied before General Brusiloff's advance. (One of the first results has been a general agitation for the restoration of the death penalty for insubordination in the Army and for reasonable conduct on the part of agitators. General Kerniloff, Commander on the southwest front, has issued orders to all subordinate commanders to open fire on deserters and troops refusing to obey orders. The Russian Workmen's Battalion, raised by the twice-wounded officer Vera Butchikoff, was in action on the front at Kreve yesterday for the first time. They are reported to have been successful, although the battalion suffered some losses, the extent of which is not yet known. The Kovoe Vreya correspondent at the front reports that the women behaved in an exemplary way.

BRITISH SUB. REPORTED SUNK.

BERLIN, July 25. The British submarine C-34 has been sunk by a submarine. It is officially announced. The sole survivor was taken prisoner.

ALLIES MUST SPEAK OUT.

PARIS, July 25. The labor of the Allies' Conference will not be limited to the Balkans. For one thing it is important to clear the air after the Reichstag's action last week, although Premier Lloyd George has already replied to a certain extent to the speech of Chancellor Michaelis. It is desirable, says the Matin, that the Allies should issue a joint statement on what happened at Berlin, so that the Germanized peace manoeuvre may everywhere be checked and reasons given where they are needed why the Allies cannot accept the Reichstag resolution as a basis for peace negotiations. The explanation, adds the Matin, will be principally addressed to the people of Russia and Austria-Hungary. There must be no risk of the Russian revolutionaries being duped by the Reichstag, and the Allies must demonstrate to them what would be the result in Europe if Germany's crime be allowed to go unpunished. At the same time the Austro-Hungarian press, evidently acting under orders from the Foreign Office, is trying to create an impression that the Reichstag made concessions which the Allies are likely to regard as dictated by a spirit of conciliation. It is necessary to remove all doubt on this subject and show the people of Austria-Hungary how complete and final would be their subservience to German-Magyar dominion if peace were now made on a basis of no annexations and no indemnities. The French Premier, Minister of War, and Albert Thomas, Minister of Munitions, had a long conference yesterday afternoon with Premier Lloyd George, Foreign Minister Balfour, and Baron Sonnino, the Italian Minister for Foreign Affairs. After the meeting M. Ribot went to the Elysee Palace and saw President Poincaré.

CHINESE NAVY REVOLTS.

LONDON, July 25. A despatch to the Morning Post from Shanghai says the Chinese Navy has refused to recognize the Government of Tuan Chi Jul. The despatch adds that fourteen cruisers have left Wousoing for Canton to support the southern provinces.

WHAT THE GERMAN THINKS.

COPENHAGEN, July 25. A remarkable frank article by the Berlin correspondent of the National Tidenden, passed by the Foreign Office censorship, discusses the enemy side of the submarine campaign and the effect it has upon neutrals. It is generally recognized, he says, that the longer the campaign continues the fewer friends Germany will have after the war. This consideration, together with the thought of the many billions which another six months' war would cost, were the two principal factors which contributed to bringing a majority of the Reichstag into line upon a bid for immediate peace. The correspondent says now it is generally admitted that the effect of the campaign has been miscalculated, not regarding the amount in tonnage destroyed but as to the time required to make its effects felt in England. The German people are still convinced that it will succeed ultimately, if given time and they themselves are able to hold out. Disregarding the Galician happenings, as accidental, the correspondent says, there can be no question of a big offensive owing to a lack of men, as Field Marshal Von Hindenburg frankly admitted and that there is no doubt the front can hold out. The correspondent gives as two of his most striking impressions upon his return to Berlin, the appearance of a new type of Berliner, a lank individual with skin hanging in folds, who has supplanted the corpulent German. A few have lost less than 15 pounds in weight, many more than thirty, but they are healthy and usually improved. Another feature is the disappearance of vegetables, owing to the drought. Green grocers display only lemons and onions.

ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

LONDON, July 25. Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, has been elected without opposition as Tory member of the Commons for Cambridge Borough. Almeric Paget resigned his seat to make a place for Sir Eric.

WIN THE WAR CONVENTION.

TORONTO, July 25. A call for a win the war convention, issued last night, bears the signature of over 135 of Ontario's most prominent citizens. In a foot note the executive explains that owing to the need for haste many persons could not be reached, especially in more distant parts of the province. We can count on their help and support, adds the note. The object of the organization, as will be laid before the convention, when it meets on August 2nd and 3rd, are that Canada shall dedicate all her resources of men and means to winning the war, that conscription measures be immediately adopted and enforced, that a national non-partisan Government be established for a vigorous prosecution of the war, and that all patriotic elements in the country which place the winning of the war above all other considerations, be united.

RUSSIAN NAVAL COMMANDER.

PETROGRAD, July 25. Rear Admiral Haxvosoff has been appointed Commander in Chief of all the Russian naval forces in the Baltic.

SHORT MEN WILL HAVE CHANCE TO FIGHT.

ROME, July 25. Short men will have a chance to fight after August, under the new decree which reduces the minimum height by four inches. It affects 100,000 men whose height hitherto had been a bar to enlistment.

Infant Mortality.

PROPOSED CHILD WELFARE EXHIBIT.

St. John's, July 26, 1917. Dear Lady Davidson: I am endeavouring to arrange a child Welfare Exhibit to be held some time during the month of August, and as I shall require the assistance of a Women's Committee, it has occurred to me that perhaps the matter might be appropriately taken up by the Women's Patriotic Association. The infantile mortality of St. John's is lamentably high, and hitherto no particular effort has been made to bring about a better condition of things. The rate per 1,000 births for the past eight years has been as follows:—

Table with 2 columns: Year and Mortality Rate per 1000. Data points: 1909 (221.90), 1910 (185.53), 1911 (260.79), 1912 (171.53), 1913 (220.89), 1914 (168.68), 1915 (153.07), 1916 (184.25).

These figures may be compared with the mortality in other places, as follows:—

Table with 2 columns: Location and Mortality Rate per 1000. Data points: Dunedin, N.Z. (38 per 1000), Los Angeles (97 per 1000), Boston (126 per 1000), New York (125 per 1000), Vienna (170 per 1000), St. Petersburg (280 per 1000), Berlin (155 per 1000), Glasgow (145 per 1000), Paris (120 per 1000), London (103 per 1000), Stockholm (87 per 1000), England and Wales (108 per 1000), France (78 per 1000), Germany (147 per 1000), Austria (180 per 1000), Russia (248 per 1000), Italy (137 per 1000), Norway (65 per 1000), Sweden (71 per 1000), Denmark (94 per 1000), Australia (72 per 1000).

The death-rate in St. John's is only exceeded by Russia and about equalled by Austria, while it is over four times as great as that of Dunedin. In the States and Canada some years past an effort has been made to improve the conditions (which are everywhere felt to be capable of great improvement) by instituting a regular campaign of enlightenment. It has been first necessary to arouse people to a sense of the circumstances, to the fact that there is no reason why such a large proportion of children should die before they are a year old, and then a regular course of instruction to mothers is undertaken by exhibits, lectures, and public and private instruction. This has generally been done in a widely advertised campaign for a week or more in each city. I have been in correspondence with my sister-in-law, Miss Nutting, Professor of Nursing at Teachers' College, Columbia, in reference to procuring the material for an exhibit in St. John's, and the services of a Nurse who was conversant with the management of such a campaign. She has had a list made of the exhibits which are required, and has secured the services of a trained nurse experienced in this sort of work, who will be ready to leave New York for here early in August. I calculate that it will take a week to prepare the exhibit and that it should be open to the public for at least a week.

I have spoken to Drs. Brehm, Macpherson and Falk, who consider the movement is very much to be desired, and have promised their help, and I have no doubt that other city physicians will do the same. I shall not have time to attend to the matter myself, and I think it best that a Committee of Ladies should undertake the management of the enterprise, and as I have already said, I think the duty might be undertaken by the W.P.A.

In regard to expenses, I intend to devote my salary as Mayor for this year, say $600, to this purpose, and I have no doubt that any further sum necessary will be easily procurable. I do not at present see why the expenses should exceed the sum mentioned. Yours very sincerely, W. G. GOSLING.

Government House.

St. John's, Nfld., July 24, 17.

Dear Mr. Gosling: I am in the deepest sympathy with the proposal contained in your letter of the 15th instant to arrange for a Child Welfare Exhibit to be held some time during the month of August next. In accordance with your request, I brought up the subject before the Executive Committee of the W. P. A., and the matter was fully discussed, and I am glad to state that you can count upon the active co-operation of the Women's Patriotic Association, this being certainly a class of war-work in which all will most assuredly be interested.

It happens also that the subject has already been much discussed by the Governor and myself, and we have been closely following the accounts of the energetic measures which are being taken in London, where they have just had a Child Welfare Exhibit, and throughout the United Kingdom, where every means that is possible is being taken to reduce the appalling loss of life during the years of infancy.

Great improvements are shown during the last 20 years, but very much more remains to be done in many places including our own city of St. John's. The high infantile death-rate (of children under one year) in 1916 in St. John's was due in some measure to the epidemic of measles; but I feel sure that the course which you propose, actively supported by the Medical Profession and energetically backed up by the Municipal administration, should ultimately save the lives of at least one-third of the infants who die under the age of one year. Be assured of the keen sympathy and active co-operation of Government House. I am, Yours very sincerely, MARGARET DAVIDSON. W. G. Gosling, Esq., Mayor of the City of St. John's.

Scarcity of Salt Stops Fishing.

The scarcity of salt at St. Mary's has prevented fishermen from prosecuting the voyage for the past few days. This is a serious state of affairs and the proper authorities should attend to this matter immediately. In a great many cases fishermen are themselves to blame, as when given the opportunity to secure a good supply of salt they are contented with but little.

Mount Cashel Garden Party Grand Success.

Yesterday afternoon the annual Garden Party in aid of Mount Cashel Orphanage was held at their beautiful grounds. The weather being most favourable, those attending, who are estimated to have numbered 5,000, greatly enjoyed themselves. Included in those present were: His Excellency the Governor, Lady Davidson, the Misses Davidson and Capt. Riley, M.C., Hons. Dr. McGrath, W. J. Ellis, M. P., Cashin, J. C. Crosbie, M. P. Gibbs, Revs. Dr. Kitchin and Greene, Frs. Pippy, Henshot, Enright, Trenchy, Conway, Coady and other prominent citizens. The grounds were beautifully decorated with bunting, the flags of England's Allies being placed in conspicuous places. Throughout the afternoon and evening there was a continuous string of motors and carriages going and coming from the grounds. The gate receipts amounted to $486, against $318 for last year. Under the able management of Messrs. W. J. Higgins and C. Ellis the programme of sports were the best for some time. The sports opened with football five in which the C. E. I. defeated the Stars by 1 goal and a corner to 1 goal, and the B. I. S. won from the Stars by 1 goal to nil. The baseball game between the Red Lions and the B. I. S. resulted in the former putting it all over the Irish. The score by innings was:

Lions	5	2	3	0	2	12
B. I. S.	1	0	0	1	1	3

The cup goes to the Lions this season, who certainly lapped it up, as is evident by the score.

In the pony race Brophy's pacer came in first in the first heat and in the second beat W. Reid and Parrell. In the final Parrell's pony came first, Reid's second and Walsh's third. The jockeys were Hallahan, Quick and Bassett.

The exhibition of bomb-throwing by a squad of Volunteers under Sergt. P. Brien was very interesting, the exhibition being somewhat on the lines that would be used on the battlefield, minus the casualty list.

The relay race between the Regiment and the Foresters was captured by the latter, the winning team being Hill, Ellis, Gould and Panning.

Physical drill by a squad of Volunteers under Sergt. Gushue was gone through in a manner which showed how perfectly the men are trained.

The final football five was captured by the B. I. S. defeating the C. E. I. by 3 goals to 0. The winners were H. Phelan, F. Phelan, Brien, T. Dugan and Brown.

The successful athletes were presented with medals and other suitable prizes by Rt. Rev. Mons. St. John, who also congratulated them on their success.

At the close of the sports those who conducted the affair were entertained by the Brothers. Mr. J. L. Slattery presided, and with great pleasure presented to the Rev. Bro. Cashman the largest amount ever received at the Garden Party. Mr. Slattery also paid a tribute to the late John P. Grace who for many years was a prominent worker for Mt. Cashel. Speeches were also given by Rev. Bro. Cashman, W. Carroll, C. J. Hutson, Rev. Bro. Ennis, W. J. Higgins, C. J. Ellis, J. C. Pippy, G. F. Kearney and N. J. Vinicombe.

Rev. Bro. Cashman in his remarks thanked the following gentlemen who helped to make the day a success: Messrs. W. J. Higgins, C. J. Ellis, Major Montgomerie, Capt. O'Grady and other officers of the Regiment; Messrs. H. Macpherson, Joseph Pippy, P. Curran, Councillor Brownrigg, J. Larkin, Donnelly and M. O'Regan.

Wedding Bells.

A quiet though very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's Church Wednesday evening at 8.30 by Rev. H. Uphill. The contracting parties were Miss Daisy Kneeblock, daughter of Capt. George Kneeblock, as. Dundee, Port Blandford, and Mr. Edmund Long, of Clarenville, late second steward of the s.s. Floriolet. After the ceremony they drove to the residence of the groom's sister where they all partook of a sumptuous supper after which the bride and groom drove to the Tremont Hotel, going out to their future home, Clarenville, by Thursday's (to-day's) express. The bride was attired in cream silk pongee with hat to match, while the bridesmaid, Miss Martha Moore, was attired in pink silk pongee with pink and blue hat. The groom was supported by Mr. F. A. Moore, while Mr. James Long, brother of the groom gave the bride away. Congratulations.

Nice assortment of Ladies' Hats just to hand. Prices right. Get yours to-day.

Public Notice Regarding Coal.

I am instructed by the Tonnage Committee of the Executive Council to place before the General Public the soft coal situation at the present time and to ask all who are able to do so to co-operate with them in securing sufficient stocks. Coaling steamers are now available, but will not be available later on. Therefore, it is necessary to stock within the period that they are available sufficient coal to carry St. John's over the Winter till the opening of navigation next year.

The Coal Merchants have not sufficient storage capacity to enable this to be done, and the Tonnage Committee appeal to the public to assist in the matter by laying in their Winter supplies as soon as possible. Otherwise there will be a shortage of stocks next Winter. By order of the Tonnage Committee,

July 23 T. A. HALL, Secretary.

TORIC LENSES

ARE MORE BECOMING THAN FLAT LENSES.

The edges of Toric Lenses do not show as prominently as those of flat lenses. They fit in close to your eyes. You will find Torics much more becoming and useful. They give you a wider, clearer field vision. You should know about Toric Lenses. Let us explain them.
