 TARTAR.

"Tartar" is a lime-like substance that forms on the teeth. It is composed of saliva, phosphate of lime, etc., and becomes attached to the teeth near the salivary duct. It is porous like a sponge and holds particles of food which decompose and taint the breath with an offensive odor. This tartar once formed increases, always in the direction of the gums; first inflaming them, then causing them to puff up and recede from the teeth, and finally by absorption of the bony sockets, to cause good, sound teeth to drop out for want of support.

While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer Manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

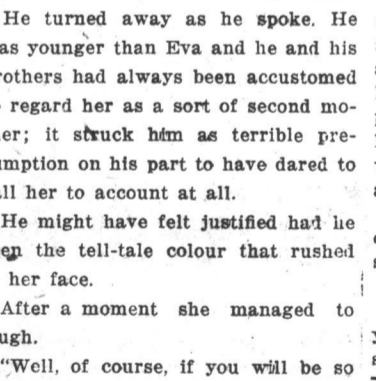

Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XXXVI. "You mean that you would rather have been with me?" She put her arms round his neck. She had always found it a most successful method of settling an argument. And afterwards, when Peter was trying to think it all out it seemed to him that the whole thing had died a natural death in kisses and foolish words.

raging about with Calligan. If I'd only been married such a little time as you and Philip, I'd break another man's head for even suggesting taking my wife out without me." Eva laughed till the tears came into her eyes. The thought of Philip being sufficiently jealous of Calligan to want to break his head struck her as decidedly funny.

lign himself... but he dismissed that as an impossible plan; after all, Calligan had done nothing! "Is Calligan calling for you?" he asked Eva at dinner.

"Oh, I know! Say it! Say it!" she defied him. "There's never been any scandal attached to the women of Philip's family yet—I've heard it all before!" She laughed shrilly, rising to her feet as the door opened.

SO WEAK COULD HARDLY DO ANYTHING

Now Looks After Home, Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

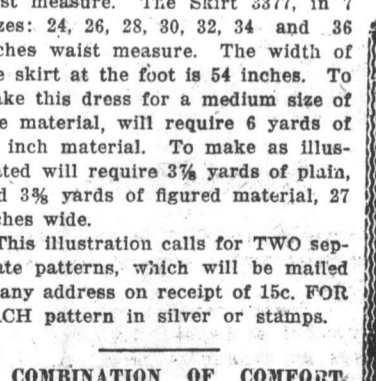

Meaford, Ontario.—"I was so weak I could hardly do anything and my back seemed the worst. I read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for women that I thought I would try it. I feel that it did help me for I am looking after my own home now and seem quite strong again. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to quite a few friends and you can use my name if you wish to do so.—Mrs. E. Fourtz, Box 440, Meaford, Ontario.

ANOTHER AIR HORROR.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 21.—A dirigible, carrying 1000 feet of gas, crashed into the water, capsizing and bursting into flames, with the loss of more than thirty lives.

Just as the Roma rescued the two men seen to leap from the ship in her slanting hull. As the flaming monster writhed in the air, the flames were dropping from the doors or ports or through the windows on the left side of the hull. The ship's side was seen to be broken in places. ## French Invasion of Wales.

On February 22, 1797, at ten o'clock in the morning, three warships and a lugger sailed past the rocks called the Bishops and steered for the town of Fishguard. They flew the British flag and the fort of Fishguard was about to fire a salute when the British colours were hoisted and French ones hoisted instead.

H. R. H. WITNESSES AN ELEPHANT HUNT.

Great enthusiasm was shown by all classes of the populace when the Prince of Wales visited Mysore. The visit was marked by two events unique in the tour thus far, the one the gathering in the Palace, the other the witnessing of an elephant hunt in a camp 50 miles from the city.

Feildians Again Champions.

SAINTS DEFEATED IN GREAT HOCKEY GAME—EXCITING PLAY OFF.

For the third successive year the Feildians have become League Hockey Champions by defeating the Saints at the Prince's rink last night. The game was the best and most exciting of the season.

NIX IN FORM.

Nix Hunt played the game of his life in the Feildian goal and stopped shots that seemed certain goals, time and time again.

THE SECOND PERIOD

was very much faster and the outstanding feature being the excellent combined play got in by both teams.

THE THIRD PERIOD

was a thriller from start to finish. The Saints went on the ice with "do or die" written on every face, and they started off with a rush which took their opponents completely off their feet.

THE PLAY-OFF.

The Feildians started off at a fast pace and within two minutes Pavn had put his side ahead.

An Open Letter to the Housewives of St. John's.

Dear Madam:—Of course all members of your family like Beans, and perhaps you would serve the canned variety more often if you could be absolutely certain they were prepared with the same regard for cleanliness you would observe in your own home.

Let me tell you the story of Libby's Beans as I saw them packed in our mammoth plant at Chatham, Ont., a few weeks ago:—The Beans used are Canadian grown, unequalled for flavor and appearance, and until ready for processing are stored in light, dry chambers into which no rust nor mildew can penetrate.

The Tariff and the Fishermen.

On Monday the Advocate three several characteristic editorial hand springs and summer suits, and after almost losing itself in a literary maze of its own making, amiably ambled back to its starting point and there decided to remain. This mental worry was caused by its own involved troubles over what should or should not constitute a plebiscite. A few days previously the same paper turned a catherine wheel, this time on the Tariff, and told its readers that now there was going to be a complete Revision, and what a good thing this would be for the country. That was on the 13th inst., ten days ago, but no announcement as to the personnel of this extra-important Commission has since been made. Years ago the Advocate was especially keen on Tariff Revision, and lost no opportunity of driving it home to the fishermen that they were being sweated of taxes by the high rates of duty imposed by the then Government. But a change occurred. Mr. Coaker and his followers got in the Government, actually became the Government, and their voices were no longer raised in protest, and the Advocate, taking its cue from the chiefs, fell equally silent. Even in the article on Tariff Revision, to which reference has been made, no mention is made of the burden of taxes borne by the fishermen—the chief, producers—and which they have to find out of their earnings to keep the revenue ahead of or to meet expenditure on current account.

In order to show that the fishermen as well as other classes of toilers, have been bled white by the Liberal Reform Government, because of their evil and iniquitous system of taxation in the shape of Surtax, Super-tax and Sales Tax we will give several illustrations of the tariff rate in 1918 under the Cashin Administration and that prevailing under the Premier-ship of Sir R. A. Squires in this year of grace 1922. The 1918 tariff, based on the original 1898 Revenue Act, and adhered to pretty straightly by successive Governments, except in certain instances when the rate of duty was raised slightly, collected duty on Ready-made Clothing at a rate of 45 per cent. Under the present Government this rate has been raised to 70 per cent. Boots of Leather and Rubber, Brushes and Matches, all of which are largely used by fishermen, stood a tariff rate under Cashin of 40 per cent. These items have been rated under the Squires regime at 63 p.c. Underclothing and Cotton Duck, old tariff 35 p.c. Squires tariff 56 per cent. Oil Clothing and Paints—Cashin tariff 30 per cent. Squires raised the rate on these two important and absolutely necessary items to the fishermen and sailors, with his series of sur, super and sales taxes to 49 per cent. Sole Leather and Dorries, Nets and Netting, most essential to all fishermen, whether Bank, Shore or Labrador, were chargeable for duty at a rate of 20 per cent. when Cashin was Minister of Customs. The present Minister, Brownrigg, was satisfied to give his consent to raising this rate to 35 per cent. when the Budget was introduced by the Prime Minister last June. The above are but a few of the numbers of items on which ad valorem duty rates are chargeable, taken from the old tariff and compared with the present one. Let the fishermen, sailors, laborers and in fact all who have to pay the extortionate and utterly unjust duty demanded to-day, study carefully the short list we have presented. Comparison of the difference in the specific rates will be given later.

Correction.

In our "War Memorial" article yesterday, it was stated that the Society of United Fishermen's Club took the initiative in the present drive, at the lecture given by Padre Nangle on the night of Tuesday, 14th inst. This, we learn is not quite accurate, the Currier's Association having had the honor of being first in the field at the Rink on the night of Saturday, 4th inst., the take-off being at 10.30 o'clock. We make this correction in justice to the Curriers, who have done yeoman service in connection with "War Memorial."

Schr. J. N. Rafuse Abandoned.

CAPTAIN, MATE AND COOK OF VESSEL AND FIRST OFFICER OF RESCUE STEAMER PERISH.

A message received yesterday by Messrs. Bowring Bros., Lloyd's Agents, conveyed the sad intelligence of the drowning of Capt. Scurry, Mate King, and Cook Billard of the schooner J. N. Rafuse, owned by J. T. Moulton, Burgeo. The message, which came via Valentin, is as follows: "S.S. Terrier from New Orleans, bound to Liverpool, reports Schr. J. N. Rafuse abandoned, and crew taken off at 4 p.m. on February 20. The captain, mate and cook of the schooner drenched lifeboat capsized under attempt to take the schooner's crew off. The first mate of the Terrier was picked up dead in the boat." The J. N. Rafuse was on her way to this port, sail laden from Cadiz. She carried a crew of 8 all told, as follows: Captain, George Harvey, 28, Fortune; Mate Ambrose King, 25, Marytown; Cook Ephraim Billard, 33, Burgeo; Bosun L. Jones, Burgeo; John Clothier, Burgeo, and James Phillip, Jamestown, B.B. Capt. Harvey only took charge of the Rafuse last year and was on his first voyage. He was formerly in the schooner General Byng. He is unmarried and we understand has a sister living in this city. The Terrier is a Norwegian ship commanded by Capt. Rodgertsen.

Royal Commission

PRIME MINISTER EXAMINED—KNEW NOTHING OF ARRANGEMENTS.

The Royal Commission in connection with the Salt and Fish charges held a session yesterday afternoon at the President's Room, Legislative Council. The Prime Minister, the first witness, was examined regarding the authority given the Minister of Marine and Fisheries regarding the Tuckahoe's salt and the Labrador fish purchases. Sir Richard stated that he was in England when the Minute of Council for the purchase of fish was made in November, 1920, and he knew absolutely nothing regarding the matter. He said he was not consulted either by wire or otherwise. Regarding the salt purchases he stated that the Salt Importers early in 1920 represented to him that a shortage in the commodity was imminent, and that the Government should take steps to assure a full supply for the fishery. The matter was discussed by the Executive Council, and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was given full power to provide a supply. Sir Richard did not think that a Minute of Council was passed delegating this authority to Mr. Coaker. The Executive realized the lack of salt, and the responsibility was left with the Minister of Fisheries, whose job it was to see that sufficient salt was procured. There was no specific Minute of Council passed, he said.

Mr. H. Hutchings, who at a previous session gave evidence, being recalled said he wished to make some corrections in connection with the evidence given by Mr. J. Sellars. He said he knew nothing about the charter party of the President Coaker, and had made no arrangements in this connection. He had brought the charter party to Mr. Sellars to have a correction made in connection with the amount of demurrage. Regarding the twin cheques Mr. Hutchings said he never saw the cheque made out by Mr. Sellars, payable to the Union Trading Co. When he gave him the Department's cheque, it was for the cargo of the President Coaker, including insurance and half the freight.

The sitting adjourned at 4.30, sine die.

The Trail of the Caribou.

TONIGHT'S LECTURE AT CASINO.

The general public will have an opportunity of hearing to-night Padre Nangle lecture of the Regiment in Egypt and Gallipoli. The Padre has 3,000 feet of cinema film, and in addition 120 slides obtained from the War Office and his own photographs taken during his recent visit.

The manner in which these synchronous shows what pains have been taken by Col. Nangle in preparing this lecture. One slide is of special interest, this being the first time it was ever shown. The original was taken with a vest pocket Kodak from the bow of the s.s. River Clyde on the morning of the historic landing. The officer who took this photograph was afterwards killed and his kit returned to his brother in England, who sent the roll of film to a photographer to be developed. The brother was killed before the negatives were returned and the Padre found it among hundreds of other negatives at the photographer's from whom he obtained a slide and an enlargement.

All who attend the lecture are assured of a very interesting evening, besides the fact that everyone who attends helps to swell the funds of the War Memorial Campaign.

B. I. S. Adjourned Meeting.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 22, 1922.

As the days draw on towards March the winds seem to become sharper, and have a paring effect, which makes the skin of face and hands feel very uncomfortable. To relieve this and to guard against its effects, a good emollient is needed. Greasy creams are useful at bedtime, but they are of little avail as preventative. It is chiefly as a preventative, to be used before going out into the wind and frost, that Cream of Lilies is prepared, and its use often washing or shaving, it will so far to prevent stiffness, spraying and chapping of the face and hands. It may also be employed as a night cream, though perhaps McMurdo's or Acme Cold Creams are more suitable for night use. Price: Cream of Lilies, 30c.; McMurdo's, 50c.; Acme, 60c. a crock.

EDWARD PATRICK.
 The Grace of God, and Favor of the Apostles. See, Archbishop of St. John's, Newfoundland, To the Clergy, Parishes, Communities and Members of the Archdiocese of St. John's, Health and Benediction.

DEARLY BELOVED BROTHERS:
 Only a few weeks after the ushering of the New Year our late Holy Father, Pope Benedict XV., of venerated memory, passed away, and the Pontifical throne was vacant. The death of the Holy Father, who had been elected to the Papacy by the College of Cardinals, was a great loss to the Church and to the world.

The Holy Father's pontificate was marked by his appointment to the Papacy of a man whose life was a model of Christian virtue and whose teaching was a source of comfort and guidance to all who followed him. His death was a great loss to the Church and to the world. many crimes, injustices, calamities, detractions, and all these other criminal means whereby people strive to injure their neighbors in their character and property, in their social and commercial standing. All this is already against the supreme Christian law of charity. "By this," said Our Lord, "shall all men know that you are my disciples if you love one another." (John XIII-35). The ideal Christian condition is summed up by St. Peter when he says, "But in all things have a constant mutual charity amongst yourselves, for charity covereth a multitude of sins." (St. Peter 1-8).

THE FRANTIC PURSUIT OF PLEASURE.

It cannot be denied that the pursuit of pleasure in all its forms, lawful and unlawful, is one of the striking characteristics of the present age. It affects, or perhaps it would be more correct to say, it infects, every class of society from the highest to the lowest. It has been more marked than ever since the termination of the war, having been stimulated, fostered and encouraged by the fictitious prosperity created by war conditions. The rate of wages was abnormally high, money was easily acquired, many found themselves with a super-abundance who before had barely the necessities of life. With the result that all sense of monetary values and proportion was lost, and money was lavishly expended on luxuries, amusements and pleasures. The same spirit survived the war, and the same craving for excitement and amusement remains. Let it be said that amusement, recreation, pleasure and within reasonable limits are necessary for all particularly the young. It is not the pursuit of pleasure or amusement that is wrong; it is the inordinate love of pleasure and the indulging in amusement of the harmful, or a sinful nature. All forms of amusement and recreation may be useful within their proper sphere, and equally they have all possibilities for infinite harm. The dance halls, the stage, the moving picture screen may be sources of innocent and harmless recreation, or they may be demoralizing and soul-destroying in their effects. There are certain dances which are distinctly objectionable and unseemly, and from time to time have been strongly condemned by the Church. Such dances are, fortunately, not common amongst us, though it must be admitted that they are not altogether unknown. Catholic parents and Catholic young women generally are warned against permitting any such abuses to gain ground here; they should set themselves resolutely against them and not permit their daughters to engage in any dances which offend against the canons of morality, modesty and good taste.

With regard to the stage and the moving picture theatres, it is well known that in the world outside they are in many instances fruitful sources of evil. Their themes very often reveal in suggestiveness, and many of them are unfit to be seen by adults, not to speak of the young. Their subjects are based on sex relations, social degradation, the irreverent treatment of the most sacred prerogatives of women, the frequent representations of suicide, murder and crimes of every description. Such plays and pictures are amongst the most potent agencies in the world to-day for the dissemination of immorality and vice. Here amongst us every care is taken to safeguard our people against dangers of this kind. There have been from time to time productions on the stage and also on the screen, which were distinctly open to objection and criticism, but, in the main, it must be said that every effort is made to maintain a correct moral standard in our theatrical and operatic performances and also in other productions amongst us. Whilst it is the duty of the Church—a duty which the Church will not fail to discharge should occasion demand it—to see that the proper standard is maintained, at the same time, a great deal rests with the people themselves. It is true to say that in the case of the Press as well as of the stage the standard will be what the people make it. A clean Press and a clean stage reflect clean standards of thought and living amongst the people to whom they cater. The moral sense of any community is quick to discern in these matters any departure from the standard of what is right and proper. As long, therefore, as our people want clean theatrical and picture shows and moral amusements generally, so long will these conform to the standard which the Church desires. Let us, then, be temperate, restrained and moderate in our pleasures and amusements, and they will tend, as it is the intention they should, to healthy relaxation and the good of the body, soul and mind.

NEGLIGENCE OF THE SPIRITUAL END OF MANKIND.

The fifth and last evil undermining society to-day may be said to be a compendium and synthesis of all the others. It is the neglect of the spiritual end of mankind. Man's supernatural destiny is lost sight of in the midst of the materialism of the age; the nations of the world are drifting further and further from the true spirit of Christianity and the teaching of Christ; man's ideas, ideals and aspirations are bounded by the narrow horizon of this life, and there is little thought of the supernatural, of that life that combines beyond the veil of the tomb, the existence of a future state, the immortality of the soul, our moral responsibility for our actions, the great accounting for our lives at the Judgment Tribunal, the doctrine of reward and punishment in the world to come, these awful and eternal verities find no place in the philosophy of the modern world. This materialism, this denial of or indifference to the higher, spiritual end of man might be fittingly summed up in the words of Holy Writ: "Eat, drink and be merry for to-morrow we die." It is against this spirit of the world that the Church is ever raising her voice in protest and exhortation, in protest against this false modern philosophy in exhortation to her children and through them to the world to a realization of the supernatural destiny of our creation. The remedy for modern evils that the Church is ever proclaiming is return to the teachings of the Gospel of Christ. Only by building on that solid foundation can society be safely reconstructed. In order to build a solid social structure on the ruins left by the war, moral forces are required, and the chief of these is the Christian religion embodied in the teachings of the Catholic Church. Two thousand years ago the Roman Empire with its luxury, materialism and immorality had inherent in it the diseases which ultimately brought about its decay and death. Christ our Lord came to save and restore society. In the forces of world construction following the disintegration of the Roman Empire the new Christian religion was the greatest and the most potent factor. It seemed as weak then in the face of its powerful enemies as it seems to-day unequal to the task imposed upon it; but, as it triumphed then, so will it triumph now. To Christianity and all that it stands for the world must look for its regeneration and true freedom. We are on the threshold of great and far-reaching changes in the immediate future; an era of world history was closed with the war, and a new era with changes bearing upon all relations of life is dawning. Whatever changes the future may bring, even though they affect the very foundations of life, we may be assured that their success will depend on how fully they harmonize with the unchangeable law, the immutable rule of right and wrong which has its abiding fulfilment in God. Compliance with this law is the necessary foundation of society; the imperishable rock on which alone public order can rest. Any other foundation of right, whether social or individual, apart from the moral law is a foundation of sand conducting to destruction and ruin. Obedience to and respect for authority, the observance of the law of Christian charity, temperance and moderation in all things, honest and conscientious discharge of duty, Christian and moral living in these and in these alone, lies the only hope for the salvation alike of nations and individuals.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

TWO STYLES I DISLIKE.
Can you always like a thing because it is in style? There are many things that are perfectly easy. The minute a thing becomes smart it becomes beautiful to them, even if they had always thought it ugly. And the minute it goes out of style it becomes ugly again. And the most remarkable thing is that these people never wonder at themselves or try to analyze their change of feeling.

Only a Little White Ago.
I do not think I am one of these people, neither am I independent enough to be entirely uninfluenced by style. But there are some styles I find it very hard to accept. And prime among these are two fads which have come more and more into vogue the last few years. I refer to the vogue of artificial flowers, and its younger sister, the vogue for artificial fruit.

Surely it's not more than three or four years ago that to have artificial flowers in a bowl on one's table would have been thought hopelessly vulgar. I went into a lovely living room the other day and seeing some nasturtiums in a blue bowl, drew nearer to admire them the better. They were the cleverest of clever imitations and they lost half of their beauty in my eye.

Was I Foolish?
Was I foolish not to find them beautiful any longer? They were the same color as before you say, and the same shape. Does not beauty lie in color and shape? Yes, but they weren't what they pretended to be. They were a cheat and how can a cheat be beautiful?

Mind you, I do not mind artificial flowers in their place, but that to me is where they do not pretend to be what they are not on a hat, in a frankly artificial and conventional basket, as a touch of color on a gown. Besides I do not know whether the canons of art have changed with the style, but I was always told that things of that sort, designs and imitation flowers and so forth, should not strictly imitate the real thing but should be conventionalized.

As Bad as a Gas Log.
Artificial fruit is, of course, a later development, mothered by the artificial flower vogue and fathered by the vogue for real fruit as table decoration. I loved that fashion. A bowl of one of the wonderful colored glasses full of fruit artistically chosen and gracefully arranged seemed to me quite as lovely as any flower centerpiece. I am sure no flower could have any lovelier color than the orange or the apple or the pomegranate, nor any blossoms be more graceful than a bunch of grapes. But when the bunch of grapes is made of cloth and the orange of composition—well the bowl of fruit seems to lose as much of the charm of the real thing as the fireplace loses when the neat and efficient gas log is substituted for the old fashioned wood fire.

But one does not need to worry about any fashion. One can always say of them as I sometimes say when I find myself in the midst of any set of circumstances that seems unbearable, "This too shall pass."

How Soviet Russia Cures Cupid's Errors.

Moscow. (Associated Press)—Political illiteracy is a worse crime than bigamy in Soviet Russia. Cupid's errors are painlessly, instantaneously and inexpensively cured by Bolshevik courts; but ignorance of Bolshevik laws is punished by sentence to courses in Communist schools organized to enlighten those untaught in the ways of the Soviet Republic. Ivan Ivanovich Linsky was recently faced in a Moscow court by two wives and five children. "I didn't know that it was necessary to get a divorce and thought my lying apart from my wife whom I didn't love any longer" was proof that I didn't want her," was Linsky's defense. One woman was granted a divorce, and Linsky was instructed to enter the school for the liquidation of political illiteracy at the government printing office, where he will be taught that wives may be disposed of only by making declaration before a Soviet court that one does not want them and paying a fee of 10,000 rubles. It's much easier than the Reno treatment and Moscow should become a popular resort for mismatched foreigners after Soviet Russia gets the recognition necessary to make Russian divorces water-proof abroad. There are no residence requirements and "difference of political views" is the ground on which many divorces are granted. Alimony has not yet come

Lonely Occupation.

London. (By Canadian Press).—Probably the loneliest occupation in Great Britain is that of Harry Edgewood, who every spring goes out to an isolated hut on the Island of Hermans, north of the Shetlands. He is the watcher of the birds under the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds. For fifteen years he has filled the post for the Society, staying in the hut, which faces the wild Atlantic, from spring until autumn, and altogether he has been keeping his annual vigil for 33 years. In his tiny shanty, the watcher has done admirable work in preventing the destruction of bird-life by skin-hunters and egg-collectors.

into fashion in Russia. Under the old Communist ideal nobody had anything, theoretically, and everybody worked and was supported by the state. With the reversion to capitalist ways and the recognition of the rights of personal property, divorce proceedings may soon be tinged by Mammon.

Try it on Your Friends.
At a certain racecourse a sharper wagered five pounds he could put more water into a black bottle than any person present at once.

An individual present at once to the sharper, saying:
"There, I think she's as full as can get. If you can crowd any water into her, mister, go ahead."
Without saying a word, the sharper corked the bottle tightly. Then he turned it upside down and in the hollow which is found at the bottom of most bottles he poured a quart of water.
"I'll trouble you to hand over money," he said to the sharper when he had done the trick.
He received the stakes and walked off.

An Irishman went to a foundry north-east Lancashire after work. When he arrived he found a man there on the same errand. The foreman came, and the Irishman, unaccustomed to asking for what he stood back, with the intention of seeing how the other fellow went about it.
After the man had asked, the man said: "What trade are you?"
"I'm a fanner," replied the Irishman.
"Come to-morrow," said the man; "I'll start you."
Turning to the Irishman, the man asked him what he was.
"Be jabbers, sorr," replied the Irishman, "I'm a fanner!"

and they only who have pressed for Undenominational Religion, wish to force upon the schools of the country a form of religion which no religious body in the country will accept.

It is not necessary for the argument to prove that the Jews, the Roman Catholics, and the Church are right or wrong in their refusal to accept Undenominational teaching—it is enough that they do refuse. What I wish now to set forth is:

- 1. The absolute injustice of one form of religious teaching being enforced and paid for in all schools by the State to the exclusion of all other religious teaching.

It is not necessary for the argument to prove that the Jews, the Roman Catholics, and the Church are right or wrong in their refusal to accept Undenominational teaching—it is enough that they do refuse.

Evidence of Hon. W. F. Coaker.

Taken by Commission of Enquiry on Salt and Fish Transactions.

Feb. 10, 1922.
WILLIAM F. COAKER—Sworn and Examined by Summers, K.C.
Q.—You are Minister of Marine and Fisheries?
A.—Yes.

Q.—How long have you been Minister of Marine and Fisheries?
A.—Since November 1919.

Q.—Did you receive any instructions from the Government respecting the purchase of salt for the year 1920?
A.—With regard to salt 1920. This matter was up before Council on several occasions for the spring of that year 1920 and Council decided to leave the matter of salt arrangement with the Department of Marine and Fisheries and I have a letter here from the Deputy Colonial Secretary dated 30 April 1920, which I now read:

"Dear Mr. Coaker.—At the last meeting of the Executive Council, it was decided to authorize you to meet the Salt Importers, and to consider the question of providing a similar guarantee with regard to the importation of salt as has been given in previous years. This is simply to bring the matter to your mind."

Yours Sincerely,
ARTHUR MEWS,
Deputy Colonial Secretary.
Hon. W. F. Coaker,
Minister of Marine and Fisheries.
(Letter put in marked W.F.C.1.)

Q.—Did you get any other communication from the Government in connection with the purchase of salt?
A.—I don't think we had any other. There were no other instructions except those given at Council meetings and contained in this letter.

Q.—What did you do?
A.—The Department arranged with the usual Salt Importers about the supply and price of salt for that spring. I have some correspondence here dealing with that.

The situation in June was no salt supply for July or August; none had been ordered by importers. If the fishery had turned out fair no salt would have been available for July and August. Consulted importers; nothing definite was arranged outside of the fact that all agreed that there was a necessity for the importation of a cargo of salt for the summer supply. No one agreed to undertake to bring in salt for summer supply. The salt importers thought a part cargo would be wanted at St. John's. At that time it was impossible to obtain salt in the world anywhere; there was no salt available except at Cadix and in Portugal. At Cadix there was a strike on and steamers were hung up. We were told that no salt could be obtained from there until late in summer. In Portugal we eventually secured a load for the steamer "Everest."

That came here to the salt importers. Other salt ports were tried, but there was no salt available to purchase anywhere.

Mr. Barr was in London. We got in touch with Mr. Barr asking him if he could find out in London if there was any salt available that we might secure at any price. Mr. Barr eventually obtained the offer of a steamer load of salt from Hamburg, and arrangements were made by the Fisheries Department to purchase this steamer load of salt from Hamburg. At that time I was north, and I received a telegram from Mr. Hutchings which I now read:

Feb. 10, 1922.
HON. W. F. COAKER,

SPECIAL!

Owing to Messrs. Libby, McNeill & Libby having decided to reduce the price of their Condensed Milk, I am able to offer the following low price on above.

1-lb. Tins Full Cream Condensed Milk
15 cents.

Ex S. S. S. Sachem:
50 Boxes New Zealand Butter,
10 Kegs Almeria Grapes.

C. P. EAGAN,
2 Stores:
Duckworth Street & Queen's Road

The salt was ordered by the Government in order to make sure that salt supply would be available. It was ordered and paid for by the Government.
Q.—What arrangement was made with the F.P.U. Trading Company?
A.—There was no arrangement except that they would have to store as much as would be required to be taken out. As President of the F.P.U. I knew there was no supply of salt north, and I knew there was some in St. John's. When we arranged for the steamer to go to Port Union we arranged for part of the cargo to be taken out at Port Union and the balance to be taken out at St. John's. There was no fish in June and very little fish was caught in July and the whole cargo of salt had to be stored because no one wanted it. That cargo arrived in July but I cannot give you the date. The amount of the cargo was 4,000 tons. It has all been disposed of long ago. The salt that remained there this spring was taken charge of by the Shipping Department and the F.P.U. Trading Co. purchased what they required from the Shipping Department.

Mr. Winter: Q.—And the salt was stored for on account of the Government?
A.—Yes, and if there had been a good fishery in June, July and August all that salt would have been consumed and paid for and the Government would not have lost any money, because they would have got back what it cost them. The F.P.U. Trading Co. made no charge for storing the salt at Port Union and was credited nothing on account for storage.

Q.—Was the price of the salt credited up to the Government as you took it each month?
A.—What we took in 1920 as we took it we credited it up to the Government account and paid for it, I think at $4.00. The salt cost a little over $4.00. I don't think we charged anything for landing the salt. Of course landing it over the ship's side is paid for by the ship, but we carried and stored it—I think there were 1100 hds. sold during 1920 which we paid for. The balance of the salt then went over to the Department of Shipping, and whatever was done Mr. Russell arranged with the Minister of Shipping regarding it.

Q.—Did this cargo turn out as invoiced?
A.—There was a shortage in the landing. There were 14,000 hds. landed at Port Union. That is what the whole cargo turned out. She had 4,000 tons. It was heavy salt and would average 24 hds. to the ton. There were 14,000 hds. taken out of store less 170 hds. which was the less. The salt was remarkably solid. That quality was never used in this country before. It was rock salt ground, and when we were taking it out we were amazed to find that it was solid, and we had to dynamite it. The fact that it was dynamite breaking it up I think accounted for its turning out so well. I think the name of the steamer that brought out the cargo of salt was the Tuckahoe, and it was the steamer that was chartered by Barr. There is some correspondence from Jobs to show that the trade knew this cargo has been arranged for. (Reads letter of June 10th.)

The salt importers knew all about this importation of salt and knew all about Barr's message. There would not have been any salt available in Newfoundland for July and August had this cargo not been ordered, because there had been none ordered by the large firms who import salt.
Q.—Have you furnished account sales to the Government?
A.—To the Shipping Department. All that we have had has been paid for long ago. As far as I can gather there was a loss of about $2.00 a hd. on that salt, about 26 to 28 thousand dollars. Mr. Hutchings can furnish that information.

Q.—Did you try when the salt came to dispose of the surplus over and above what you thought you would want for your requirements?
A.—Every effort was made. We tried to get the trade here to take a portion of the cargo before it was discharged. Our correspondence was with Mr. Job.

Q.—If you used the salt you credited it up at the market price?
A.—Yes.

Q.—And the Trading Co. made no profit out of this?
A.—We paid the Government the same price for the salt taken last year as the Government sold to other purchasers.
Q.—Of course you saved the freight in getting it down from St. John's?
A.—Yes. The price of the salt was fixed by the Shipping Department.
MR. WINTER:
Q.—Did Templeman take any of the salt the first year—1920?
A.—Yes, a small quantity, I think for the Labrador.
Q.—Did he account to the Government for that?
A.—No, he had that from the Trading Co. through Mr. Russell.

At the moment when news of the Antarctic disaster in 1912 came to hand Lady Scott was waiting in New Zealand to welcome her husband on his return to civilization.

Commander Hilton Young has a splendid war record. He was one of the officers on the Vindictive when she took part in the Zebrugge enterprise, and during the operations he was severely wounded, and thought himself fortunate to escape with the loss of an arm only.

He also served with the British Mission in Serbia, while for "great initiative, gallantry and dash when in command of an armoured train" during operations at Archangel, he was awarded the D.S.O.

Lady Scott, also, did good war work in munitions production.

A church controlled by children who perform every office except that of preacher, has been attended with marked success at St. John's, near Leeds. Boys act as stewards, wardens, and bell ringers, and girls as organist and choir. The choristers wear white veils. The girls also read the lessons and take charge of the collections. The south aisle of the church has been fitted with special pews and a small altar for communion. Services are held every Sunday morning before the ordinary service. The new development has proved more attractive than the ordinary Sunday School sessions.

Sergiyev, Russia. (By Associated Press).—The $300,000,000 treasury of the Cathedral of the Trinity Monastery of St. Sergius has disappeared. Red soldiers now use as a barracks the buildings of what was once regarded as the richest and most famous convent of all the Russians, save possibly that at Kiev. There are but five monks left in the monastery. Fifteen others have removed a mile and a half distant to the Church of Gethsemane, at Chernigovskaya (Gethsemane of God), where they have founded a humble commune and till the soil. TRINITY OVER A HUNDRED YEARS AGO.
The Collinghams were the sons of William Collingham of the parish of St. John's, Newfoundland. He was the apple of his father's eye, and the subject of his father's plans made by his father-in-law, which were to send him to school, to the time he would be old enough to take over the place on the farm. All plans (but one) were well on their way, and he was to be sent to school, to the time he would be old enough to take over the place on the farm. All plans (but one) were well on their way, and he was to be sent to school, to the time he would be old enough to take over the place on the farm.

and to Robert since he was a child—thought as much of the master's son, as if he were his own; and Robert's gentle nature—that he had inherited from his mother—together with his love for Baker, made him an apt pupil in Baker's daily school of practical work on the farm.

After the day's work and supper were over, Robert would stroll quietly across the farm, observing the results of Baker's work, and showing a deep interest in it all; for he knew that his father wished him to learn thoroughly, all that was necessary for a first class farmer to know; and then in due time to take charge of it all. Sometimes Robert would spend the whole evening with the farm limits, then return home, and after a talk with father and mother about the past day's work, and the requirements for to-morrow, he would kiss mother good night, and retire for the rest, so necessary for the next day's work.

Occasionally, however, he would visit the boundary fence of the farm, and crossing the farm of Farmer Willis, he would stroll up to the small but well kept farm of Hannah Morley's father, Hannah had now left school, and was her mother's invaluable help, in doing the many things that were necessary in a home, where there were four children younger than herself, and on a farm, that, for some reasons, was not just what it should be in profitable returns. Robert and Hannah acted in introduction, and their common love for wild flowers, constituted a sufficient reason for a quiet walk together farther a-field than the farm limits, during the long summer evenings.

By the autumn Robert found himself less interested in observing the growth of the crops, and increasingly interested in his visits to Farmer Morley's farm, and the wild flowers. It was evident to those who knew the two young people, and who saw that he so often together, that the seed sown in the farm soil in early spring, was not more surely ripening into golden grain, than was the friendship of the school days of Robert Collingham and Hannah Morley ripening into mutual love. Old Farmer Willis—who watched ed them as they passed him sitting on the rustic seat under the old oak, smoking his evening pipe, and with whom they exchanged kind greetings—used to say to himself, and to his wife when he went in, "Surely them two be made by God for one another." Robert's father was a careful observer of his son's evening rambles and what he was intently pleased when he saw him so interested in the crops, and the farm—he was positively displeased when he noticed that his interest in such things had begun to slacken, and then to find that he was a regular visitor to Farmer Morley's farm, and more than that, that he and Hannah Morley were often seen together in the country roads. It was not altogether that he objected to Hannah Morley, for she was, in her position, an ideal girl; but Robert's father, had plans of his own as to whom Robert was to marry.

Robert's mother, to whom her husband's plans were fully known, was terribly worried about them. She did not think as he did about this interference with Robert's own plans which—with a mother's quiet observation—she had already divined. Her worry, too was intensified by her knowledge of how terribly set her husband was in his ways; and she spent sleepless nights in thinking of, and dreading the time to come, when Robert's father would tell him of his objection to Hannah Morley, and of his own choice of the girl who was to be Robert's wife. A mother's knowledge of Robert's disposition when opposed, did not lessen her tears; and months before the final rupture came between Robert and his father, the effects of the worry, that eventually "broke her heart," had already begun to show themselves.

Robert's father having met Robert and Hannah Morley together one evening, became almost beside himself with rage; and there then he told Robert that unless he promised him that he would never meet Hannah Morley again he need never return to his house, and that he would, at the earliest opportunity, disinherit him. Robert replied calmly that he and Hannah Morley were engaged to be married, and that the marriage would take place as soon as the necessary arrangements could be published; and that, though he would, in the meantime, come to the house once, to say goodbye to his mother—he would take his father at his word, regardless of consequences.

The marriage took place in due time at the parish church, and Robert and his wife departed, that having to leave the place where they were born and bred, and make their future home in one of England's Colonies. One of Robert's old friends, who had been his "best man" at the wedding, was an adventurer, and had made more than one voyage to Newfoundland and Labrador; and as he was then making arrangements to spend two years at Equinox Bay, on Labrador, where he had built a comfortable house the year before, and where he had every thing necessary for the prosecution of the salmon fishery in summer, and for trapping fur in the winter, he invited Robert and his wife to accompany him. The adventure smacked of the heroic, and as such it appealed to them, and under the guidance of Robert's friend every necessary arrangement was made for the voyage, and for what was to be their new home for a while.

Old Mrs. Smith and old Mrs. Brown were neighbours in Trinity a hundred years ago. They had a mutual understanding that each was to share in all the other's social celebrations. As, however, neither had any confidence in the other, they watched each other's house, and actions from a corner of the bluff of their respective houses—used to say to himself, and to his wife when he went in, "Surely them two be made by God for one another."

This aroused her suspicions, and those suspicions were confirmed when she saw two of Mrs. Smith's old gossips come around a corner of the lake, and slip in quietly through the unfastened door, which was immediately closed and locked behind them.

Mrs. Brown knew then what was going on at Mrs. Smith's, and she made her plans accordingly. She put on her black cap with the purple ribbon—used to say to himself, and to his wife when he went in, "Surely them two be made by God for one another."

Mrs. Smith partially recovered from her surprise, and invited Mrs. Brown to join them in a cup of tea, as "Mrs. Hodder and Mrs. Clothier had dropped in so unexpectedly." Mrs. Brown accepted the invitation, though as she explained, "she was not dressed for company"; but when she shook out the reefs of her Sunday frock, and arranged the set of her cap, and started in to compliment Mrs. Smith on her beautiful new tea-pot, and the lovely she was sure that, it made. They all spent a pleasant hour, and Mrs. Brown went home quite pleased with herself. As she put her cap back into the box, and folded away her pompadour frock, she chuckled and said aloud: "that old fox of a Sally Smith will have to get up earlier in the morning than she does, to get ahead of me—with her five o'clock teas, and her desalt."

There is but little or nothing going on in Trinity at this time of year worth reporting.

A meeting has been called by the Magistrate, in the Court House, on February 25th to elect a Road Board.

Whilst thinking of the opening of the present House of Assembly in St. John's, one is reminded by Judge Prowse, (in his interesting history of Newfoundland) of the opening of the first House of Assembly in Newfoundland, on January 1st, 1883. It was then the youngest constituent body in America, and was made up of fifteen members. The Clerk, appointed by the Crown, was Mr. E. M. Archibald, and the first Speaker, elected by this, the first House of Assembly, was John Bingley Garland, the member for Trinity.

A story is told of one of the men who represented a Northern district at this Assembly. He sat in the Assembly not far from the stove, and when he was called upon to speak, he said, "I'm not much used to talkin', boy. So you do the talkin', and I'll keep the fire going."

In 1886 Trinity was represented in the House of Assembly by Tom Fitz Gibben Moore of Bideau. He used to walk from his house to the Assembly every session carrying his "gunny" bag on his back. His father was a soldier, and Tom had been a drummer in the Navy. On the strength of this, in one of his famous orations he described himself as born in the Gloucester's Regiment Relieves Neuralgia

Distribution of Income

By GEORGE E. ROBERTS
(From the Monthly Bulletin Issued by The National City Bank of New York for February)

ONE of the most interesting questions to which statisticians have devoted study is that of the total economic production and its distribution. What becomes of the industrial product of the country? Do the great industrial organizations function? In what service are the thousands of factories and the railroads and the highways? For what ultimate benefit are the great sums of capital represented by the daily stock quotations, and the industrial works projected? Do the owners reap the benefits or are they diffused among the masses of the population?

Year	National Income (Billions dollars)	Per Capita (Dollars)	Power at Price (Billion Dollars)
1910	22.2	88.5	2.2
1911	23.2	92.5	2.5
1912	24.2	96.5	2.8
1913	25.2	100.5	3.1

bound to be maintained for the best interests of all; if the equilibrium is disturbed, the normal exchange of goods and services is interrupted, and although wages may be nominally high they are actually low when unemployment and the cost of living are taken into account. The latter is the state of things existing today.

The situation tends under the free play of natural forces to make the necessary adjustments and come into balance. The products and services which all classes have for exchange must be so valued to each other that the exchanges can be made. Wages must be high enough to enable the wage-earning class to buy and consume their normal share of the industrial product; otherwise products will accumulate and business will be bad. Likewise, farm products must have a purchasing power compared with other things that will allow the farmers to take their usual share of goods, or unemployment in the other industries will result. Thus every class, instead of being interested in fixing its own compensation without regard to the effect upon others, is interested in that right adjustment of values which enables the exchanges to be completely made, and in that manner serves the common interest.

When this idea of the necessary balance throughout the industry is fully understood, the costly controversies and trials of strength, the "bloody" and various devices for imposing the will of small groups upon the community, will be seen to have been wholly misconceived and ineffective.

The per capita income shows what would come to each person if all incomes were lumped together and the sum divided equally to the population of the country.

The way of real progress is not by petty efforts to "make work" or adjustments of each group at the expense of the others, for these have the net result of nullifying each other and obstructing all progress, but by the improvement of methods, making labor more effective everywhere, within the reach of every body. Every individual, whether he be employer or employee, who does not lend his efforts in good faith to accomplish this end is unfaithful to his social obligations.

When it is realized that seven-tenths to three-fourths of the industrial product goes direct for personal service, it will be appreciated how great are the gains to labor from industrial progress. Every invention, every installation, every investment of capital that increases the industrial output increases the income of labor by approximately three-quarters of the amount invested. Conversely, every scheme for reducing the efficiency of labor or compelling the unnecessary employment of labor, thereby increasing industrial costs, offsets and nullifies the achievements of inventors and industrial leaders, and slows down the rate of social progress.

The lesson to be found in this study of incomes is that they are governed by economic law, and not, as commonly assumed, by arbitrary power. They are not, in any general sense, within the control of employers, and in years under examination either singly or as a body, to fix as they please, nor can the general wage-level be materially changed by organization among wage-earners. There are certain relationships throughout industry, which in the long run are

What is Your Verdict !

Is it not safe to assume that the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, who manufacture in their own huge perfectly equipped plant practically every part of the Ford car, are the people best qualified to make replacement parts at the lowest price compatible with the high quality which must be maintained?

Manufacturers of spurious parts, operating as they do on a small scale with limited capital and inadequate equipment, cannot possibly make parts of the same quality or accuracy at anywhere near the low price you have to pay for Genuine Ford Parts. Yet you are asked to believe that these spurious parts not only equal Genuine Ford Parts in quality but can be produced to sell for less!

We rest our case here. The verdict we leave to you.
