

TERRIBLE DISASTER IN MASSACHUSETTS TOWN

South Framingham Building Collapses Burying About Forty Workmen

Eight Taken Out Dead, Eight Missing and Likely Buried in the Ruins and the Others Are More or Less Mangled—Victims Went Down Under a Great Mass of Iron Girders, Bricks and Mortar—Rescue Work Very Difficult.

South Framingham, Mass., July 23.—At least eight, and perhaps twice that number of masons, plumbers and Italian laborers were crushed to death today in the sudden collapse of a building on the main street, which was being rushed to completion, while ten others were dragged or dug out of the mass of broken building material, out, bruised or maimed for life. At a late hour tonight there were ten still missing, and a large force of men were at work on the ruins.

Rescue Work Difficult. The rescue of those who showed any trace of life was begun at once and soon half a dozen bruised and mortar covered bodies were dragged out from the tangle of iron beams and broken girders. In some cases only a hand was seen and it took time to unearth the rest of the body. The crowd was greatly excited and it was with difficulty a space was cleared by the small body of police. The arrival of the soldiers half an hour later, however, materially assisted in the work of rescue. As fast as the injured men were taken out they were sent to the hospital, while the dead were taken to a temporary morgue.

The building was a three story structure in process of erection at the corner of Concord and Kendall streets. It had a frontage of 150 feet on Concord street and was 75 feet deep. The construction materials were brick, steel and cement, the floor being of a light colored brick and the sides and rear of cement, with interior beams and braces of steel. The government was to use a part of the ground floor for post office purposes. The work of construction had proceeded as far as the roof, the girders for which were being put in today.

May Be Forty Victims. When the accident happened at 3:50 o'clock this afternoon there were between 35 and 40 men at work in the building. Two or three very loud explosions or cracks were heard in rapid succession and then the north side wall and about half the front wall collapsed and crashed through to the basement.

Apparently very few of those who were in the building at the time escaped injury. Although the fall of the building attracted a great number of people to the scene, the tottering walls and the shaly floors which had not been carried down by the fall of the mass of the material made those who gathered extremely wary about approaching the ruins. After a few minutes had elapsed the fire department was on the scene and the work of rescue was begun in earnest.

CANADIAN NORTHERN BUYS IMPORTANT WESTERN ROAD

Gets Possession of Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railway—Purchase Price $5,000,000—C. P. R. Had an Option on Line a Short Time Ago, but Dropped It—Company Also Sells Its 500,000 Acres of Land to David Russell's Syndicate for $4,000,000.

(Special to The Telegraph.)

Montreal, July 23.—The Montreal Gazette this morning published the following: "Canadian Northern Gets Control of Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Road—Purchase Price, $5,000,000."

"The Canadian Northern Railway, having obtained the Canadian Pacific, has secured the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railway for about $5,000,000, the purchase price, of course, taking care of the bonded indebtedness of the road, which runs from Regina to Prince Albert, a distance of 249 miles and which for years past has been managed by the Prince Albert branch of the Canadian Pacific.

"The history of this transaction is all the more interesting from the fact that it was in connection with the final disposition of the 500,000 acres of land subsidiary to the Canadian government to the first promoters of the road that the close friendship which had existed between Mr. David Russell and Mr. J. N. Greenfield for ten years or more was dissolved with such dramatic suddenness.

"Hon. Wm. Pugsley, attorney general of New Brunswick, was the early promoter of the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan road and while Messrs. Oser, Hammond and other gentlemen were associated in the project the line that has now passed under the control of McKenzie & Mann has always been designated in railway parlance as Pugsley's Road.

"A good while ago the Canadian Pacific secured an option on the railway in question for about $200,000 plus the bond issue and it was stated a few weeks ago that the line had passed into the possession of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy's corporation. It appears, however, that the option was allowed to expire and with this William Mackenzie and D. D. Mann stepped in and offering $500,000 secured the road and with it an entry into a very important section of Southern Saskatchewan.

"The company that built the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake, and Saskatchewan was incorporated as far back as 1883 and the railway was completed in 1890, the Canadian Pacific having had a traffic arrangement ever since.

"To ensure the construction of this piece of road, the Ottawa government of the day gave a land grant of 500,000 acres but, of course, when the C. P. R. took over the road the land remained the property of the promoters. As a matter of fact, land at that remote period was nothing more or less than a white elephant in the hands of any man or company but Hon. Mr. Pugsley and his associates held on and today it is said that the syndicate formed by Mr. David Russell has taken over these 500,000 acres for about $4,000,000.

"The registered directors of the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railway are: Messrs. H. C. Hammond, president; Hon. Wm. Pugsley, vice-president; E. B. Oser, R. A. Smith, S. B. Sykes, F. G. Oser, G. T. Chisholm, and C. S. Macdonald, the offices of the company being at 18 King street, West, Toronto, and the Dominion Bank building, Winnipeg."

"The most important development of today took place at Viborg, Finland, whether members of parliament had fled to continue the session formally dissolved at St. Petersburg. The members had been frantically at work on their manifesto to the people, anticipating the possible arrival of troops, when the assembly was informed that the government-general of Viborg had ordered the meeting of members of parliament, using military force if necessary, and adding that such meetings could not be held in Finland.

Previously during the session, the radicals had supported the group of men, who urged that the members of parliament should place themselves at the head of a revolution. At the last the Constitutional Democrats joined the radicals, and the duma adopted a hastily prepared resolution protesting against the dissolution of parliament.

A Revolutionary Manifesto. The manifesto urges the people of Russia to refuse to pay taxes or to submit to conscription and also to refuse to recognize any imperial loans which the government might hereafter try to raise. The assembly then dispersed.

In St. Petersburg, as a result of the many arrests and the presence of 60,000 troops in the city, there was quiet on the square, but from the interior came news of revolutionary demonstrations, actual or apprehended, and at Kharkoff a number of political prisoners escaped during a strike of the factories of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, at Sosnowice and Benzin, Poland.

One of the most remarkable incidents of the day in connection with the Russian crisis was the dramatic scene in the International Arbitration Congress in London, when the premier of Great Britain cried "La donna est morte, vive la duma," and the delegates rose in a wave of enthusiasm, cheering again and again.

It was while Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman was opening the congress in an address of welcome that the sensational incident occurred. The premier had said that the British government was in entire sympathy with the object of the conference, and referred to the fact that King Edward had always been a firm advocate of peace.

British Premier Creates a Sensation. What intensified the significance of the situation as a tremendous Jewish message. A cable from London says that Israel Zangwill today received the following letter from Russia: "The Jewish inhabitants are on the eve of new and cruel massacres. July 28 will be the anniversary of Russia's conversion to Christianity. In many places crowded meetings of bootleggers are being held, arranged by the organization of the monarchical party of the 'True Russian' Union. Anti-Jewish speeches are made and arms are distributed. Leaflets are circulated inciting to massacres in the name of religion. Self-defence is impossible, for at the first attempt at self-defence people are shot down by the soldiers as revolutionists. Our only hope is in the assistance of Europe."

The newspapers here and in London regard the Russian situation as of the greatest gravity. The Sun's St. Petersburg correspondent describes the events of yesterday in part as follows: "Government Expects Bloodshed. 'It is impossible to describe the mood which reigns among the deputies. President Maronoff, who is greatly distressed, exclaimed Sunday morning: 'I wish I were dead.' 'The great force of troops in the capital was kept out of sight and the outward appearance of the city was the same as on any previous Sunday. Hospital wagons stationed in the courtyards of buildings in the political district quivered with what the government expected and was prepared for. 'There was some firing on Sadowva street, near the Newsky Prospect. Curiosity was quickly sent to reinforce the police. Troops were received with hoots and volleys of stones. They attacked the rioters with whips. The situation for the moment looked rather serious. 'Amid the ominous suspense M. Stolypin, minister of the interior, took over the control of the government, Goremkin being relieved as premier. Mins. Stolypin was received yesterday at Catcheska by the Dowager Czarina, who thanked her for her husband's devotion to his country. Stolypin a Strong Man. 'The advent of M. Stolypin as the actual premier has been well received by the better elements. He proved himself as a government of sacrifice, just and incorruptible and in the deepest post of minister of the interior, since the Duma's existence, his integrity and dignity have never been questioned. 'When the radicals shouted down his first reply to an interpellation in the Duma, he retorted: 'Incensuring and delay do not confuse me.' That quality of steadiness will unquestionably be a feature of his rule, however brief and troubled it may be. 'M. Stolypin is a tall handsome man of fifty years. He has a dark beard and short cropped gray hair. He is personally on friendly terms with several members of the Duma, including some of his political opponents, but it is known that he regarded the recent proceedings of the Duma as those of an anarchistic club. 'The special variety of martial law imposed on the capital concerned not only the dissolution of the Duma is called 'extraordinary defence.' Stolypin made its establishment a condition of his accepting the office he now holds, as he regarded it as necessary that he should be able to control the press. 'Awaiting the Signal. 'The population of the capital are anxiously awaiting events. There is much discussion on the streets and in the clubs. The strike, it is said, will be engineered from Moscow, and the signal to quit work will be given from that city. Five hundred Socialists and union delegates met here and decided to tie up the railroads and most of the telegraphs; and they will stop the manufacturing and peasant industries. Among the extremists here the strike is spoken of as the incidental step in open rebellion which will seal the fate of the Romanoff dynasty. 'Many rumors abound. One credits the laborites with the intention of appealing to the Provisional Committee to resign and to provisional government they intend to establish. 'M. Pobedonostsev, ex-procurator general of the Holy Synod, and Prince Sviatitsin are regarded as being mainly answerable for the dissolution of the Duma. Pobedonostsev, although he has been coaxed to act as procurator general, has been, it is said, constantly consulted by the Czar during the past week, and he had great influence at the recent conference at Peterhof. 'Troops Hurried the Meeting. (Associated Press). Viborg, Finland, July 23.—The curtain dropped this afternoon on the final act of the drama of Russia's first parliament, when under the spear of the threat of Governor Reichenberg to use military force to end the session, and with troops already converging on the Hotel Belvedere, where the meeting was held, the assembly members of the lower house, 186 in number, hurriedly adopted and signed an address to the people, which is thoroughly revolutionary in its nature, electing a perpetual executive committee, headed by Prince Paul Dolgoroukoff, vice-president of the house, to carry on the work of legislation, and adjourning amidst characteristic Russian embracing and kissing. 'A few members, including President Mouronoff, Ivan Demarevitch and Count Heyden, returned to St. Petersburg by evening train. The Constitutional Democratic cohorts intend to go to St. Petersburg in a body in the morning, but many of the Radical members, fearing arrest on their arrival at the capital, will remain for the present in Finland, or return by roundabout routes. 'The address, which bears a remarkable similarity to the manifesto framed by the council of workmen last November, which landed its authors and the editors of eight St. Petersburg newspapers in cells of the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, strikes the government in its most vulnerable point by declaring that the administration and not parliament is responsible for the delay in the settlement of the agrarian question, and by proclaiming a cessation of payment of taxes and of military service and repudiation of future loans. 'The address follows:— 'To the people from their popular representatives:— 'Citizens of all Russia,—Parliament has been dissolved by usage of July 21. You elected us as your representatives and instructed us to fight for our country and freedom. In the executing of your instructions and our duty, we drew up laws in order to ensure freedom to the people. We demanded the removal of irresponsible ministers who were infringing the laws with impunity and opposing freedom. JEROME WHACKS ROOSEVELT HARD

Declares President's Criticism of Judiciary Is An Injustice

Says Judges Must Administer the Laws Whether They Are Good or Bad—Thaw's Mother to Defend Him on Inanity Plea Against His Wishes—Will Not Furnish Funds for New Lawyer—Young Mrs. Thaw Decides to Stick to Husband and Mother-in-Law Will Stop Her Allowance.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

New York, July 20.—District Attorney Jerome's trip to the south is generally taken as having considerable political significance. In fact, in some quarters, it is looked upon as part of a carefully planned campaign for the nomination for the presidency.

There is one injustice which public opinion does not infrequently do, and it is one which lawyers can do much to correct, and that is the criticism of judges for decisions which they could not avoid making, if they obeyed the law.

The fact that former Judge Ololett's firm will refuse to give up these papers bearing on the question of sanity points to the line of defence which that firm will make for Thaw in spite of his protest. The ground upon which the firm refuses to deliver the insanity memoranda, Thaw's personal counsel is that all the documents are the property of Mrs. William Thaw, the prisoner's mother.

New York Politics Badly Mixed.

The political situation in New York state was never so mixed as it is now. It is all it is very true, as a politician expressed it today, that "Heast has them scared."

Sticks to Husband. Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who has been trying to carry water on both shoulders between her mother-in-law and her husband, has finally gone over to her husband's side entirely, and if his family succeeds in having him reinstated in office, she will be in practically the same position she was when she came to New York before Stanford White and Harry Thaw interested themselves in her.

Another Blow at American Meats. A special cable from Berlin says: "The government, which was not impressed by President Roosevelt's recent assurance to the British Green's Federation regarding American meats, has decided to enforce new and more stringent inspection laws in the case of American packed products beginning September 15."

The Thaw Murder Case. It was made plain today that despite the fact that Harry K. Thaw, who killed Stanford White, will probably be called in after November, by which time all the contests will have been decided.

SERIOUS RESULTS FROM DOG FIGHT

Richard Walsh Has Thumb Bitten by Man-Fredk. Keefe Arrested

TROUBLE STARTED IN UNION STREET

Walsh's Fox Terrier Attacked by Keefe's Bull Dog—Later Keefe, Police Say, Attacked Walsh in Front of the Police Station.

A small sized riot in King street east about 8 o'clock Friday was the immediate result of a mix-up which started in Union street, and the main figures were a man, a woman and three dogs.

The trouble started, the police say, about 7 o'clock in Union street, near the Simms factory, when a bull dog owned by Keefe got into a fight with another dog.

The scene then shifted to King street east, in front of No. 1 Hook & Ladder station. Mr. Walsh took some papers from the door of the station when Keefe, with a number of other men, came along, and walking up to the former, asked if he was the man who owned the dog.

From this and other circumstances in the case it is thought by many that the end Mrs. Thaw's attorney will move for a commission to inquire into Thaw's sanity.

Thaw will be let have his own way for a time, and then application will be made by Judge Ololett on behalf of a lunacy commission to examine into the young man's sanity, and if expert opinion, at the best, the Thaw millions, has the proper weight, the young murderer will be sent to Matawan in spite of himself.

Sticks to Husband. Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who has been trying to carry water on both shoulders between her mother-in-law and her husband, has finally gone over to her husband's side entirely, and if his family succeeds in having him reinstated in office, she will be in practically the same position she was when she came to New York before Stanford White and Harry Thaw interested themselves in her.

ARM BROKE IN STRANGE MANNER

Frank S. Rogers Injured on Train En Route to Brookville

BONES OF UPPER AND LOWER ARM

Sitting at Open Car Window, With Elbow on Sill, When Something Struck Him—Hard to Find Explanation for the Occurrence.

A peculiar accident happened Friday evening when the suburban I. C. R. train was on its way from St. John.

Frank S. Rogers, the Charlotte street jeweler, had been to the cinema with his family and was returning to his summer home in Brookville. As the car was about opposite the roundhouse he was sitting reading a paper, his elbow resting on the window sill.

Arriving at Brookville station he walked home and then telephoned to Dr. Thomas Walker, who went out on the Quebec express, the train making an extra stop at Brookville to allow him to alight.

He found Mr. Rogers' injuries painful and hard to explain. The bone of the upper arm was broken four or five inches from the elbow, while one bone of the forearm, and perhaps both, were broken.

FEAR KIDNAPPING OF JOHN NICHOLAS BROWN. Newport, July 22-That an attempt is about to be made to kidnap young John Nicholas Brown, "the $100,000 baby," is a charge that has caused much excitement here.

Mr. Brown is on the verge of nervous prostration. Detectives in the employ of the mother of the boy have had here what they say is a plot to kidnap the youngster and hold him for a $50,000 ransom.

Mrs. Brown broke down and wept when the secret service men intimated to her that several of the worst criminals in New York were in Newport planning to seize her child.

Meanwhile, with one arm in a sling, John Nicholas plays in a barbed wire corral, blissfully ignorant that he may become another "lost Charlie Ross" at any moment.

It is common gossip here that the mother of the youngster has received several threatening letters, which have completely unnerved her.

"I will spend $100,000 a year to protect John Nicholas from kidnapping, if necessary," she is reported as having said.

At night the hair to the Brown millions sleeps behind barred windows in the second story of his home on Halldon Hill. The private detectives would not inform newspaper correspondents today what proof they had of a kidnapping plot.
