MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GAB. GET IN-COW.

A Millionaire's Countess Westerleigh.

CHAPTER I.

"Mine is an eventful history," as the terrible old bore on the stage always says when he begins to reel off his story. If I haven't told you already, it is because I have too much regard for you; and yet I could tell it to you in almost a dozen words.

"I'll give you fifteen," said Tyers, getting into a more comfortable attitude, but one in which he could still see Tempest's face, or the sea, without moving his head.

"Here you are, then," said Vane: "My father was second son of the Earl of Westerleigh. Got that?"

Tyers nodded, and delicately knocked the ash from his cigarette with the nail of his long first finger.

"So you are 'of the nobility!'" he said, slowly. "I had a suspicion that such was the case. Isn't it rather strange that, being an Englishman, Tempest, you haven't remarked 'I am the grandson of an earl?'"

"I have known each other nearly four months you know."

Vane Tempest stared at him with frank and amused surprise.

"Haven't I mentioned it?" he said. "Well, come to think of it, I don't know why I should have done so.

There doesn't seem anything extraordinary enough in it to knock me down, after all."

"You are so used to it that you don't notice it, as the man said of his wooden leg," remarked Tyers, softly, languidly.

Tempest laughed.

"I dare say. Anyway, there it is. My father came down here when he was a young man, to hunt or fish—I don't know which—and fell in love with my mother."

"Also the granddaughter of an earl, I suppose?" said Tyers.

"No," replied Tempest, rather curtly; "she was the daughter of a small farmer. My father married her very much against the wish of his family and of hers."

"Of hers?" murmured Tyers.

"Yes," said Vane, his eyes growing thoughtful as they rested on the sea. "I don't understand it. My father died when I was too young to comprehend how the matter lay. But I know this: that her people had set their hearts upon her marrying some one in their own set, and they never saw her after her marriage with my father."

"Singular!" commented Tyers. "Small farmers are not as a rule opposed to their daughters marrying with the sons of earls."

Vane Tempest nodded.

"Yes; but these people are peculiar. The smallest of them are as proud—Did you notice the way the man who keeps this bit of a cottage—in, whatever you call it—bowed us in last night?"

"Yes," said Tyers; "it was the air of a prince receiving kings."

"Exactly. How well you put things, Sen!"

"I'm sorry I can't return the compliment," remarked Tyers, with a smile. "You agreed to tell me your story in twelve words, and—well, we have scarcely got to your birth yet."

"When my mother and father died," he went on, "I went to live with my grandfather, the earl. Then Eton, Oxford—and London, in chambers. I had some money of my own, and my grandfather allowed me a little more while he lived. But I ran through my own coin—I think it took me three years—the earl died, and I was clean stone-broke, and thinking of enlisting or driving a hansom cab, when lo and behold! there walks into my chambers one day what I took at first for a sheriff's officer, with the necessary but inoffensive writ, but who proved to be my uncle's lawyer

"Hold on," said Tyers, "your uncle?"

"Yes, my mother's brother. See?"

"Go on; but be as sparing of the characters as you can, for both our sakes. My brain is beginning to reel already."

"I'm nearly through," said Vane, laughing. "This lawyer fellow informed me that I had an uncle down here in the wild west—that, in addition to being an uncle, he was a millionaire."

"Pardon me. You distinctly told me that your mother's people were all small farmers."

"Right. But they owned their land, and this uncle found tin, or copper, or both, underneath his. See?"

"No; but it strikes me I shall have to do something for a living unless my respected but mysterious uncle behaves with unexpected liberality."

He took out a pipe and filled it, and Senley Tyers produced a cigarette and smoked slowly, sending the smoke through his nostrils, and looking over the thin clouds at Tempest as he lay along the wall, with his hands folded under his head.

"It is very strange that you should be here for the first time in your life, Vane," he said slowly and languidly, but still in the tone which invites confidence; "encourages the topics," as the Spaniards say.

"Isn't it?" responded Tempest cheerfully.

He could not see his companion's face and the dark eyes which were watching him with thoughtful latencies.

CHAPTER XXIV.

THE "TIMES" ADVERTISEMENT.

"I wonder how I shall live through the long years of the future. Will new interests rise up and take away the present bitterness of life? The knowledge of one that will come in time creeps into my heart, and causes it to stand still for an instant, then flutters on again with renewed rapidity. There will be Adrian's child, probably the heir of his name, the last of his race. I must hide myself jealously, or it will be taken from me. It is true, my husband's life has never loved me at all; but his heir—he will not be indifferent or careless of what befalls him!

Once it occurs to me that, if it be a boy, his birth may draw us closer together. There are few wounds which an open grave or a child's wee fingers will not heal. With the grave, all things seem ended. One thinks, as I did, when Theo was left a widow, that the great strife will soon be over, that our time here is so short, so fleeting, that it is but useless folly to waste it in bickerings and petty quarrels; one feels that the great troubles of life, those which no power of ours can avert, are enough to bear without adding to them by our own small or great selfishness, or our own small irritable, dissatisfied cravings, after something we cannot have or do. I say it is thus that many wounds are healed; thus might the grievous sore which existed between Theo and myself have been removed; but she would not. Yet even more powerful is the influence of a tiny child, a wee thing all your own, whose future depends so largely upon your example, your well or ill doing. The most careless hearts cannot but feel the solemnity of the charge which has been given to them, and experience a longing to make themselves better and purer. Ah, yes! In my sad heart a hope springs up, frail and fragile as a tiny plant in springtime, which I breathe may wither and destroy, yet, even in this early day, bearing fair promise of a goodly harvest, for, although Theo may have Adrian's passionate fancy, I shall be the mother of his child, and, if Heaven wills it so, the heir of his old name of which he is so proud. I think that will give me a superiority over Theo which she will find it difficult to surmount.

When I have had my dinner, the waiter asks me if I would like to see an English paper. In answer to my eager "Yes," he brings me yesterday's "Times." I take it with an avidity the like of which I am sure I never honored a newspaper with in the whole course of my sixteen years, and the very first words that my eyes fall upon is "Audrey." How very strange! Still, there it is, in large letters. For a moment I cannot force myself to read what follows it; then the mist clears away from my eyes. The advertisement runs thus:

"Audrey—Return home at once. All will be forgotten and forgiven."

I bring the unoffending paper down, in a frenzy of disgust and anger. "Forgotten and forgiven?" What, I should like to know, has Adrian forgiven? Is it I who have wronged him, who have made his life utterly wretched, who have wrecked his peace and happiness, and set the whole community talking? He will forget the amount of provocation I have had, the misery I have endured, the shame, the hourly heartache, the injustice, the slights, and the open enmity others have given me. Oh, yes, he will forget all those, and he will forgive me for having dared to free myself from such a bondage, for having forestalled him in his intention to "end this misery"—he will forgive me that. Very generous. Sir Adrian Charteris—very generous.

"A mere child, my dear, and only four months married; and, really, Sir Adrian is a man any woman ought to have been happy with; yet she disappeared, and not a trace of her could be found; and now poor Adrian is heartbroken!"

Oh, yes, they are sure to speak of Adrian as being heartbroken! Well, well, idle gossip will not affect me. I shall not be there to see the cold looks or hear the blaming tongues. I shall never be anything in English society any more. Then a sense of utter isolation and desolation creeps upon me, and I bury my face in my hands and burst into an uncomfortable passion of tearless sobs.

Cobourg, Ont., Aug. 4.—Robert Aull, Jr., the young man from St. Louis, whose marriage to a Toronto young lady on Friday of last week has occasioned much sensational talk, came up here this morning before Police Magistrate F. D. Boggs to answer to the charge of issuing a worthless cheque on the Mercantile Trust Co. of St. Louis. He was committed to trial before the County Judge.

Had a Stroke of Paralysis

And Found a Cure in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is always better to prevent serious diseases of the nerves. There are many warnings, such as sleeplessness, irritability, headaches and nervous indigestion. Prostration, paralysis and locomotor ataxia only come when the nervous system is greatly exhausted. Even very serious there is a great satisfaction in knowing that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will cure paralysis in its earlier stages.

Mrs. R. Bright, 215 Booth avenue, Toronto, writes: "Two years ago my husband had a stroke which left him in a weak, nervous condition. He started taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and we saw the good results almost immediately. They have made a new man of my husband and we cannot speak too highly of them."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Export, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

very forgiving—but hardly the terms upon which I should care to go back again and take my proper position! Doubtless, my husband will get a fair share of pity, and I a most undue amount of blame. I fancy I can hear some censorious matron—one who, knowing nothing of temptation herself, is extra hard upon those who succumb to it; one whose romance of life has been of the smoothest and most tranquil kind—I can hear the placid voice, see the shocked air with which my delinquencies are enumerated.

"A mere child, my dear, and only four months married; and, really, Sir Adrian is a man any woman ought to have been happy with; yet she disappeared, and not a trace of her could be found; and now poor Adrian is heartbroken!"

Better Sure Than Sorry.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

A few weeks ago a two-year old boy, whose position as the grandson of St. Gaudens, the famous sculptor, made him a figure in the world's news, got his hands on some strychnine pills and swallowed one. It was so large that it stuck in his throat, but the baby traveled over to a table and actually managed to clutch a glass of water in his little hands and wash the pill down. He died in convulsions before anything could be done.

I suppose some millions of mothers shuddered as they read that story and promised themselves that no such thing should ever happen to their babies.

And yet it will. Into some of those very homes the same tragedy will probably come. Where do I get such a terrible prophecy? Why, from that surest prophet of the future—the past.

I doubt if a day, surely not a week, went by in the last year in which a similar tragedy did not occur somewhere in this country.

I doubt if there is one among my readers who does not personally know at least one family which has suffered such a loss. I know of two.

In some of these cases there could be absolutely no blame attached. For instance, I know of one in which a doctor's child, who had been carefully taught not to enter his father's office, slipped in and helped himself to a large quantity of cathartic pills which were not at all poisonous, but which were fatal to him because of the size of the dose.

In other cases there is a carelessness which is so bitterly punished that it excites our pity far more than our blame.

Of course all children ought to be taught not to touch pills or anything of that sort without permission, but the best child will have his off moments, and so this training should be supplemented by unremitting care not to leave danger around.

Don't keep poisons unless you absolutely have to. When you must label them with some striking label, and put them on a separate shelf which is unquestionably out of the reach of children, or better still, lock them up. Children have been known to reach shelves which their elders thought perfectly safe.

Nor is it poisons alone which ought to be kept out of a child's reach. Many medicines which would be harmless taken in small doses, might be fatal if a child helped himself in wholesale.

And one more caution. Never throw away a bottle with anything in it, especially poisonous. Not long ago, several children were poisoned by drinking something they found on a dump. So rinse out your bottles before you throw them away. You owe that precaution to other people's children.

Egyptian Priests Used Slot Machines 2,000 Years Ago.

(From London 'Tit-Bits'.)

This is but one of the many interesting cases of the antiquity of modern inventions, related by Mr. H. E. Dudeney, in the 'Strand Magazine.' It is astonishing, but nevertheless true, that more than 2,000 years ago Egyptian priests were using a penny-in-the-slot machine, the mechanism of which was practically identical with that of the machines to be found on every railway station to-day.

The ancient machine, the inventor of which was Hero, was used for supplying sacred water at the doors of the temples. A coin was dropped from the top, fell on one end of a balanced horizontal lever, which being depressed to a certain angle the coin fell off, and the lever, being weighted, returned to its seat, and this cut off the supply.

The taximeter was in use about a hundred years ago, and was sold in various qualities in Leadenhall St., London, at from 25s. to 38s., while not only the modern telegraph but also wireless telegraphy was foreseen as long ago as 1633, when Henry Van Etten suggested, in a little book called 'Mathematical Recreations,' that a person in London might communicate with one in Prague, Germany, by the help of 'Magnes' (presumably magnetism). Van Etten suggested that if each of the persons had a needle touched with Magnes, and secret notes or alphabets they would be able to move the needle and indicate letters, and thus convey messages.

TO SUFFRAGETTE CAMPAIGN FEYD.

London, August 4.—It has been ascertained that the accounts of the Women's Social and Political Union for the first six months of 1913 show that more than $55,000 has been received during the period toward the principal fund of the union, known as the quarter million pound fund.

At the close of 1912 this stood at $706,000. To June 30, 1913, the total was more than $760,000. For the first quarter of the year the receipts varied from $1,500 to $1,750 a week, but since April they have been steadily rising.

The total receipts for June were close upon $17,500, a record amount. During June $4,000 was collected at the Pavilion Music Hall meetings.

The Good Old Days.

The good old days are a reminiscence period when a man delights to talk about when you couldn't drag him back to the farm with a rope and tackle. The farther he gets away from them the better they look, and the longer he looks at them the more convinced he becomes that he was never really happy except when doing the chores.

In the good old days people slept in houses so full of leaks that you could throw a setting hen through the siding without ruffling a feather. The boys always slept up stairs, in a room built as close to the north wind as possible, where they could look up through the roof and watch the snow pile up on the foot of the bed. If one of the boys turned over before morning, he would start an avalanche which was always sure to land in somebody's boots. If you have ever slept in a north room in the dead of winter, with the frost breaking through the bedding ever and anon and running up and down your person, you will know what home comfort is.

In the good old days the chores on the farm were done before anybody was up except some sleep-walking rooster with the asthma. It was first necessary to go out and wake up the cows, so that they could be operated upon before the milker turned into a human icicle. Then the other domestic animals were jugged with in his time, after which the juggler returned to the house to that out, filling the kitchen with the fragrant fumes of burning sole leather. There being no stoves, a person who was thoroughly congealed had to buck up to an open fireplace and revolve rapidly on one heel, to keep from becoming parboiled in front and frost-bitten behind.

In the good old days people slept in Rockford socks and the fear of slow death, mingled with salt pork three times a day and seldom saw anybody except the circuit rider and the undertaker. If the modern farmer were asked to exchange these degenerate times for the good old days, he would start a riot that would make the Turkish war look like a sophomore can rush.

Police Women of Chicago on Duty.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Chicago's ten police women, clad in modest blue tailor-made suits and wearing silver stars and hats with blue bands, went on duty to-day. Their work will be mainly to look out for women and children.

The details of their duties have been worked out by a committee of women social workers and the Chief of Police. The Chief had considered assisting the police women to stations in the red light districts, but it was decided they would be of greater service in the public parks and other places of recreation.

The police women will visit the public dance halls, excursion boats, beaches and railroad stations and will try to keep young folks off the street late at night. They will obtain information rather than make arrests, although on occasions they may be called upon to arrest some one.

Whether the police women shall wear brass buttons and carry revolvers and clubs will be decided after the civil service examinations for the positions.

Got "Jagg" Off Cod Liver Oil.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 6.—When Henry Seaver of Chatham township appeared in the country police court yesterday to answer to a charge of being drunk while on the interdicted list, he said that while he may have been intoxicated on that particular day he did so by using a certain preparation of cod liver oil. He confessed to having taken in all 18 bottles of their remedy during the past few months. A bottle of the mixture shown in court, had printed on the label, "24 per cent alcohol."

CARDINAL NEWMAN died 1890, aged 89. English cardinal, whose ostracism from the evangelical school may be dated from 1828. He wrote "Lead Kindly Light" in 1833, and was formally received into the Roman Catholic Church in 1845. Like Pascal, he had the intellect of a sceptic and the soul almost of a mystic. As a Christian poet he ranks high and his works are perfect in expression and exhibit in rare combination strength and grace.

Notes and Comments.

In the report of the Board of Trade, the Council engages in some speculations as to the effect of free entry of our fishery products into the United States. Here they are: "The duty on salted codfish was 3 cents per pound. If the full effect of this reduction reaches the consumer, it does not seem reasonable to suppose that it will occasion any very marked increase in consumption, or any excessive demand for our codfish. Again, we do not, to any appreciable extent, put up our codfish in the neat and attractive manner to which the United States consumers are accustomed. The business of preparing codfish for market in New England ports is a highly specialized one, which will take some years to learn. But we can at once supply the raw material in the shape of salt bulk codfish. For two years past the Gloucester merchants have bought from us considerable quantities of salt bulk codfish, in the fall and winter months, in order to supply the requirements of their trade, and we may confidently expect that this demand will steadily increase."

The demand is probably due to the large increase of immigration into the United States of people from the southern countries of Europe who are in the habit of eating salt codfish. Further, for some time past there has been a campaign of advertisement among these people, instituted by the fish dealers, which has stimulated the trade, and again the price of codfish is increasing largely. These are factors which should contribute to the demand for our fish and our people will surely not be slow in adapting themselves to the demand and furnishing the staple in the form which it is required.

The Harbour Grace Standard expresses the opinion that an Opposition has a good deal to encourage it in coming out, and declares: "There appears to be a feeling of uneasiness in the country not confined by any means to the political opponents of the Government at the rate at which it is going. Such was voiced in the Legislative Council last session in a most extraordinary and almost unprecedented way when the Hon. Mr. Goodridge and the Hon. Mr. Templeton appointed to move the address, expressed the hope that the Hon. Minister of Finance, Mr. Cashin, would not go too fast. . . . It seems almost certain that this feeling represents the sentiments of the many, if not of the great majority of the men that have more or less large stakes in the country."

It was also the opinion expressed in those numerous petitions, largely signed by fishermen, who asked for an election last fall, and which after being questioned in the House of Assembly by the Premier, Sir Edward Morris, was endorsed as the opinion of the Supreme Council of the Fishermen's Protective Union at the annual sessions held at Bonavista last December.

In reference to the same matter, Sir Robert Bond, the leader of the Opposition, said in the House of Assembly, when presenting a large number of these petitions: "It is very evident, sir, from the number of the petitions and the numerous signatures attached thereto, that there is at present a widespread feeling of alarm in this country as regards public expenditure, and every one of them supports the position that I have taken in this House in reference to public expenditure since the opening of this session."

A Menace to The Public.

An Open Letter to Messrs. Bowring Brothers, Limited.
S.S. Prospero.

August 6th, 1913.

We, the undersigned, residents of Newfoundland, and of the United States, passengers on the steamship Prospero, respectfully call to your attention certain conditions now existing on the steamship Prospero, which are a menace to public health and welfare. On each trip of the Prospero numerous persons, men, women and children, suffering from various diseases, are carried by this steamer between St. Anthony and other ports of call. Many of these persons are suffering from tuberculosis and other contagious diseases, yet they are in no way separated from the other passengers, and no accommodations are provided where they may receive proper care and attention during the trip.

We call to your attention two examples this trip where your other passengers have been subjected to great and unnecessary risk of disease.

(1) A man suffering from cancer of the lip was allowed to occupy a stateroom and enter the dining saloon and use the same napkins, towels, dishes, etc., as the other passengers.

(2) A woman in the last stages of tuberculosis was brought on board the steamer at St. Anthony and was placed in the saloon, where she remained for over thirty-six hours coughing and spitting. This woman was not provided with a sputum cup, and the saloon in which she lay connects directly with the dining saloon.

We are informed that on the trip prior to this one, a woman, taken on board in the same condition and placed in this saloon, died there.

These are the conditions of which we are cognizant in the First Cabin, in the stateroom matters must be worse. We therefore ask that your Company provide on this steamer accommodations where those sick and suffering from contagious and infectious diseases can be separated from the other passengers.

A copy of the above is being sent to His Excellency the Governor, the Board of Health, and the local newspapers.

(Signed):—Charles H. Burtis, Orange, N.J., U.S.A.; Mary E. Burtis, Orange, N.J., U.S.A.; J. Evans, St. John's, Nfld.; R. M. Penny, R.N., Philadelphia, U.S.A.; Alfred G. Worrall, St. John's, Nfld.; James Worrall, St. John's, Nfld.; Lizzie Spracklin, Brigus, Nfld.; Delphine Thistle, King's Point, Nfld.

We, the undersigned, have not seen the cases but are nevertheless in sympathy with the movement.

(Signed):—A. J. Goodland, Harbor Grace, Nfld.; G. B. Tuff, St. John's, Nfld.; Chas. J. Vavasour, St. John's, Nfld.; J. Swan, Toronto, Ont.; Sarah J. Patten, Twillingate, Nfld.; H. D. Hon. Edgar Bowring interviewed.
We understand that the promoters of the movement presented this letter to the Hon. Edgar Bowring this morning and that he promised to give the matter his immediate attention. The matter was also directed to the attention of Dr. Brehm who boarded the steamer at Trinity, but who did not see the cases as the patients had left the ship at a more northern port, but he expressed his sympathy and said that the matter would come before him officially.

In a conversation we had over the telephone the Hon. Edgar Bowring confirmed the statements just mentioned and said he intended to take up the matter immediately with the Premier. He considered the ladies who were promoting the movement were doing good service. The present custom was a menace to the public health and he considered some means should be devised to protect the passengers who travelled on the steamers from these cases. His idea was that a tender should be employed for the service. It was a question whether more disease was not spread by the present custom than was cured at St. Anthony. —Ed.]

EAST FREETOWN, Mass., To-day.
Six women and a man were drowned and three others were saved when a motor boat sank at Long Pond last night.

SYDNEY, To-day.

A fire on Sunday morning gutted the Y. M. C. A., and most of the lower floor occupied by MacKenzie & Giffen, Men's Furnishers, whose loss is between twenty and twenty-five thousand dollars. The damage done to the building is between five thousand and ten thousand.

LONDON, To-day.

The third attempt of the suffragettes under command of Sylvia Pankhurst to take Asquith's house failed yesterday when the militant leaders were captured by the police after night. The arrest came after the meeting when Pankhurst mounted Nelson Column and in fiery words asked the sympathizers to follow her. She started down Whitehall, surrounded by women and preceded by a flying wedge of dockmen. Squads of police were drawn across Whitehall at the Horse Guards. Militants attacked this line with such a dash that a few of them penetrated. The first crowd became fierce and the police used clubs. Pankhurst and five of the women were then arrested. Disheartened at the arrest of their leader the mob suddenly dispersed.

BERLIN, To-day.

These are the despatches between Emperor William and King Roumania Winemunde: "Your telegram which reached me to-night is a great, real joy to me. I offer my sincerest and heartiest congratulations on your splendid success, for which not only your people, but also the belligerent States of all Europe have to thank you for your wise and truly statesmanlike policy. At the same time your mentioning that I have been able to contribute something to the result achieved is a great satisfaction to me. I rejoice that our mutual co-operation was in the cause of peace."

Emperor William to-day decorated King Constantine of Greece as a General Field Marshal of the German Army and conferred upon the Greek prince the Grand Cross of the Red Eagle.

His Grace at St. Lawrence.

Special to Evening Telegram.

ST. LAWRENCE, To-day.
His Grace and suite arrived here at sunset last evening. The harbor was brilliantly illuminated and this morning early masses were celebrated in church and convent at 10.30. His Grace made his solemn entry into the church, carrying out with exactitude the prescribed ceremony. High Mass Coram Pontifice was sung by the Very Rev. Dr. Greene, the Pastor assisting at the throne. After the Gospel His Grace preached giving an outline of their Patron Saint Lawrence, whose feast was being celebrated. At half-past two the Sacrament of Confirmation was administered to 102 candidates. At night the harbor was again brilliantly illuminated. His Grace and party were rowed around the harbor in a specially appointed barge to view the pyrotechnic display. All were very much pleased.

The Seventh Heaven of Delight For Women Comes Now.

BARGAINS, Bargains everywhere!

Bargains from the factories to the stores!

The great outclearing of merchandise in every line is now at its height.

Remember factories must clear their stocks as well as stores. They must get ready for their new season. Their machinery must get busy, their warehouses must grow empty, to make ready for the new stocks.

Every factory is now offering its products to your stores at the most absurd fraction of the regular cost.

And your stores acting as your agent are buying these products and giving them to you far below the regular price you have always paid.

This is not true of any one line; it is true of all lines.

Literally tons of crockery, dishes and glassware are being unloaded now into the stores. The factories are taking any price they can get.

This is true of furniture, it is true of rugs and draperies and wall paper. It is equally true of saucepans and pianos.

And in the line of wearables, you find the same effort on the part of the manufacturers to clear their merchandise through our local stores.

Dresses, coats, waists, muslinwear, hosiery, shoes—everything that is made in quantities—everything upon which stock is carried, is being closed out now by factories and stores at wonderful bargain prices.

You will find these bargains advertised in this paper today. scores of them, and they will keep on being advertised here until this merchandise is gone.

At a time like this it is almost criminally careless not to go to the stores and buy.

Turn to your advertising now. See the remarkable bargains that are being offered and make up your mind that whatever else you do you will get your share.

Indian Island Notes.

Rev. E. French, of Pogo, occupied the pulpit of Perry's Island church both morning and evening on Sunday, and at 6.30 p.m. the Rev. gentleman commenced a very solemn and most impressive service at East-er Cove. Probably the preacher had heard of a very sad death which occurred but a few hours previous to the service. He implored the congregation to live true and useful lives. Grand and vivid pictures were given of great men and women who achieved so much by sacrifice. He led on to the greatest sacrifice of all and by building our foundation so firm and solid that when death came it would be but a medicine to cure us of all our ills and lead us safe in that eternal city whose builder and maker is God.

Jessie Reid, wife of Josiah Reid, passed into the Great Beyond on Sunday afternoon. It is a very sad picture, a mother taken away in the bloom of life. Mrs. Reid had been in delicate health. Saturday the Pogo doctor was called and visited her but could do no good. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. E. French, who preached from the text "She hath done what she could," St. Mark, 14th chap., 8th verse. We sympathize with the husband, mother and the dear little motherless children, and hope they will be consoled by the way in which the brave mother faced death. Her last moments were peaceful and happy.

We are glad to have Rev. W. Vey back again with us for another year. He has worked so faithfully for the uplift of mankind that all creeds and classes cannot but honor and admire his kindly disposition. The world is better off because such men are in it.

As we write the motor boat F.P.U. is entering the harbor with President Coaker on board. He seems to be carrying the district by storm. We want that able statesman the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Bond at the head of the country, and with such men as President Coaker, the next four years will not see so great an exodus of the prime of the country to enrich other lands.

Wedding Bells.

BROWN-FOWLTON.

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Saviour's Church, Grandview, on Tuesday evening when Miss Jessie Margaret Fowler, who recently came from Trinity, Newfoundland, was married to Captain Gilbert J. Brown. The bride was becomingly attired in a suit of cream silk with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Janette Butler of Newfoundland, who was prettily gowned in pale blue silk and carried a bouquet of ferns, acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Russel Kearley, also of Newfoundland, gave the bride away. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. St. George Buttrum. After the ceremony a drive round the city was enjoyed and later a reception was held at the home of the bride and groom and a very enjoyable evening spent. The bride was the recipient of a number of valuable gifts. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold watch, and to the bridesmaid a gold brooch set with pearls. Included among the gifts were a number from friends in Newfoundland. Captain Brown is a very popular skipper on the coast, and is well known in all the Coast cities. Captain and Mrs. Brown will reside on Gravelly Street, Grandview.—Vancouver News Advertiser, Aug. 1.

Frisco Exhibits Meant a Charge of $1,250,000.

London, Aug. 5.—The question of British participation in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915 gave rise to a debate in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Some criticism was expressed on the action in this connection, and the suggestion was offered that private enterprise might supply the impetus necessary to secure adequate British representation which the government declined to furnish.

Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in a lengthy statement explaining the official attitude of the British Government in the matter stoutly maintained that the decision of the Cabinet not to participate was entirely due to commercial considerations, and had nothing to do with the controversy over the canal tolls.

British Foreign Secretary, who repudiates in the House of Commons, the charge that the British Government refused to countenance the San Francisco Exposition because the United States proposes to exempt the country's own coastwise shipping from the levy of tolls in the Panama Canal.

Sir Edward Grey said: "The British Government came to the conclusion that under present circumstances it would not be justified in asking the country to incur the heavy expenditure required for participation in the exhibition. This expenditure was estimated at least at $1,250,000, and such a sum would be quite out of proportion with any commercial advantages likely to result from it."

No Trade Desire to Participate. "Inquiries in the commercial circles of the United Kingdom have not shown that there was any active desire to participate."

"The conditions for participants laid down by the Exposition authorities prescribe that exhibits should be distributed among a series of international pavilions, thereby rendering it impossible to secure an effective national display."

"The question was considered and dealt with on these grounds, without any reference to the question of Panama Canal tolls."

The British Government had done nothing to discourage participation in the Exhibition by the self-governing British Dominions.

Mr. O'Connor Doubts Big Expenditure. Mr. T. P. O'Connor questioned the estimate made by the government as to the expenditure and said that Great Britain's expenditure at Chicago had amounted to only $300,000, while at the Japanese, the German, and the French Expositions it had attained only $600,000.

Sir Edward Grey pleaded that conditions were not the same at San Francisco, and that the Government's estimate had been reached by inquiries made on the spot.

Mr. Alpheus Clophas Morton, a Scottish member, suggested that in view of the Government's "disinclination to help the exhibition," private individuals or the City of London might take the matter up, as was the case at the French Exhibition of 1889.

Sir Edward Grey, in reply, stated that so far as the government was concerned, the matter had been very carefully investigated by the Board of Trade, but the Government would not think of doing anything to discourage participation in the Exposition by private individuals. He would, he said, communicate with the Board of Trade to see if it was ready to assist exhibitors desiring to participate.

J. M. DEVINE, THE RIGHT HOUSE.

Personal.

Miss Hannah Bulger, daughter of Mr. Martin Bulger, of King's Bridge, who graduated recently as a nurse in a New York hospital, arrived last week by the S. S. Stephano. After spending a brief vacation with her parents she will return to the American city to resume her professional duties.

Hon. J. D. Ryan, who paid his annual visit to the Emerald Isle, returned by the Carthaginian on Saturday last.

Misses G. H. and J. Job, daughters of Hon. W. C. Job, arrived from England by the Carthaginian.

Capt. Ogilvie is here in command of the Carthaginian this trip. He was latterly engaged in the River Plate trade. The last time he was here was thirteen years ago.

Mr. E. Hills, Hon. Mrs. Hills, Hon. Miss C. B. Kay-Shuttleworth, Frederick Keppel North and Master North arrived by the Carthaginian from England and are guests at Government House.

There will soon be a smart and up to date show at the old reliable show shop when the A. B. Marcus Modern Musical Minstrel Maids arrive; they will be seen in many of the finest musical productions such as: The Blue Bird, Prince Humbug, The Maid and the Moon, The Harvard Girl and others. They are a first class comedy company. Baby Queen, a dainty little tot, known in New York as the rag time kid; Fern Wayne, an operatic singer; Sacks and Carroll, known from coast to coast, and others. They bring all new scenery, elegant costumes and the latest thing in electrical novelties.

There are twelve first class performers, and Jack Rossley will be sure of giving his patrons a real New York show, the best on the road to-day. They are now playing to record houses wherever they appear and kept a number of weeks in each theatre.

Scandal Hunters Got Their Answer.

London, August 6.—So many questions have been asked lately in all quarters as to whether the names of prominent men had been suppressed in connection with the sensational raid on "Queen Gerald's" flat in Piccadilly, a short time ago, that the Home Secretary, Reginald McKenna got upon the floor of Parliament and said there had been no influence brought to bear by the Home Office in keeping the facts of the case under cover.

The newspapers for a week past have been full of letters asking why it should be alleged that the names of some well-known men and at least one member of Parliament are being shielded, and various other insinuations have been made. For instance, in one letter in The Globe, occurs the following paragraph: "The names are thought to be known, but they have not yet been uttered. Perhaps the only documentary proof which could bring the guilt home to the right quarters lies at the Home Office in Mr. McKenna's keeping. Supposing the secret dossier to contain the name of one of Mr. McKenna's colleagues, is there any assurance, any probability even, that he has exercised merely on judicial grounds, his power to secure the withdrawal of a prosecution which would have involved the publication of that name?"

Lady Barlow, Lawrence Houseman and others have been calling on Mr. McKenna to give up the names, but without result. Finally yesterday Noel F. Buxton, a radical member and others asked the Home Secretary about the case during the session in the House of Commons. Mr. Buxton began by remarking that the prisoners had pleaded guilty on all the charges, but that as the girls found in the Gerald flat were all characters long before they came under the influence of the woman in question, and as the facts indicated "white slavery" the judge did not think himself warranted, therefore, in sentencing her to more than three months' imprisonment in the second division. He then asked directly if any names had been suppressed.

Mr. McKenna replied aggressively and in a very irritated mood that "there was no suppression of names. It is quite true that there were certain names in a diary which was found on the premises, but the mention of these names would not, and could not be relevant to the charge."

"So far as I, and the charges made against me personally are concerned, I was not aware of any names until after the trial was over."

J. Keir Hardy had intended to ask Mr. McKenna about the case which has attracted much attention in England, particularly among the Suffragettes, who compare the Gerald sentence of three months for "white slavery" to the cases of two and three years for smashing windows, and throwing acid in pillar boxes.

Sardinian Collides With Schr. in Fog.

Hullfax, N.S., August 5.—Reporting collision with an unknown schooner in the dense fog off Cape Race on the evening of Thursday, July 31, the Allan Liner Sardinian, arrived yesterday from Liverpool, via St. John's, Nfld.

As the Sardinian stood by to render assistance, if necessary, reports of "bear away" came from the sailing ship, and, concluding that the schooner was practically undamaged, the Sardinian resumed her course.

Canadian Brigade For The British Army - Manoeuvres.

Ottawa, Ont., August 5.—That Canada should send over to England in 1914 a Canadian brigade to the divisional and army manoeuvres is the proposition being urged upon Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, from all parts of the Dominion. The brigade would be under the command of the Militia Minister himself, and a staff of distinguished Canadian officers is also part of the plan urged.

The scheme suggests that the brigade should consist of four battalions of infantry and a composite corps consisting of cavalry, artillery and service corps, etc. Make Brigade From Various Regiments. The brigade would then be made up as follows: One battalion of Highlanders, composed of representatives of the different Highland Regiments from all parts of the Dominion.

One battalion of Fusiliers and Guards chosen from the different Fusilier and Guards Regiments of the Dominion. This battalion would be known as the "Beaverskin Battalion." One battalion composed of the representatives from the different Rifle Regiments of the Dominion.

One battalion composed of representatives of the other infantry regiments to be known as the "Scarlet Regiment." Then representatives of the other arms of the service, cavalry, artillery, army service corps, and other units.

The brigade would thus be representative of all the different arms of the Canadian service, and those to be taken would likely be chosen by the recommendation of the officers of the regiment.

The officers to be taken would depend upon the recommendation of the officers commanding their district, and would depend upon the interest they have taken in their regiments.

Minimise The Loss.

Practically farmers may easily minimise the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.

Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than nitrate of soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.

BUCHAREST, To-Day. The solemn Te Deum in the Cathedral at noon was attended by King Charles, Queen Elizabeth, Carmen Sylvia, and members of the Royal Family and delegates of the peace conference. King Charles conferred high decorations on all the delegates except the Bulgarians, who declined to receive them. The peace treaty provides that the Roumanian army shall evacuate Bulgarian territory in fifteen days after its signature; the Serbian and Greek armies in three days, and also provides for arbitration by Belgium, Holland, Switzerland in the event of disagreement over the delimitation of the new frontier. The Bulgarians engaged in the treaty to begin demobilization immediately.

Special to Evening Telegram. WASHINGTON, To-day. A two hours' conference between President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, brought about no change in the attitude of the administration toward Mexico. The President took the Senators into his confidence far enough to outline the following: John Lind, his special envoy to Mexico City, does not bear any solution of the present situation, but goes to continue this government's efforts to induce the Provisional President Huerta to redeem his promise for a free constitutional election, that under no circumstances does the administration propose to recognize the Huerta Government, that Lind has gone to Mexico City to be the eyes and ears of Washington administration on the ground, and to explain the attitude of this government.

Child in Cage With Snakes.

St. Thomas, Ont., Aug. 8.—A pretty fair haired girl eight years of age, was taken in charge yesterday by the Elgin county authorities at Almer where the child had been on exhibition at the "Mamie Haba Show" which has been in that town all week, and the spectators were shocked when they paid their fee to see a frightened looking child sitting in a cage surrounded with big snakes, including rattlers and copperheads.

Child in Cage With Snakes.

The usual position of the child was a crouching one as she had been told to keep her eyes on the reptiles. The two men in charge of the show were William Ford, father of the child, of Baling, near London, and Chas. Cox, her uncle, of London, both were arrested. They will be sentenced on Saturday. The child has been travelling on the road for six weeks and was compelled to sit in a canvas bag about five feet deep and five feet square for 11 hours a day with the reptiles. The little girl was brought to St. Thomas and placed in a children's shelter.

Fire on Major's Path

HOUSE RAZED TO THE GROUND. On Saturday evening the house and contents of Robert Thomas, on the Major's Path, was destroyed by fire. Mr. Thomas was in the city at the time and the only occupant in the house when the fire occurred was Mrs. Thomas, who was in bed and dangerously ill. Reflections of the blaze attracted people who live in that section to the scene. Their efforts, however, could not cope with the blaze, which was fanned with a strong wind, and gaining considerable headway. The building was razed to the ground, but the work of the volunteers prevented further disastrous results, as if the barn nearby had caught there is but little doubt that some of the buildings left standing to-day would have gone up in smoke. There was no insurance carried on the property destroyed, and the loss to the owner is a severe one. A fortunate happening in connection with the fire is that the sick woman was got out of the burning building although she had a narrow escape from suffocation by smoke.

There was no insurance carried on the property destroyed, and the loss to the owner is a severe one. A fortunate happening in connection with the fire is that the sick woman was got out of the burning building although she had a narrow escape from suffocation by smoke.

HOUSE RAZED TO THE GROUND. On Saturday evening the house and contents of Robert Thomas, on the Major's Path, was destroyed by fire. Mr. Thomas was in the city at the time and the only occupant in the house when the fire occurred was Mrs. Thomas, who was in bed and dangerously ill. Reflections of the blaze attracted people who live in that section to the scene. Their efforts, however, could not cope with the blaze, which was fanned with a strong wind, and gaining considerable headway. The building was razed to the ground, but the work of the volunteers prevented further disastrous results, as if the barn nearby had caught there is but little doubt that some of the buildings left standing to-day would have gone up in smoke. Woman Arrested Charged With Forgery.

On Saturday night, an elderly domestic named Mary Randell was arrested on a charge of forgery. The woman wrote out a cheque payable to herself for the sum of $6 and had the name of Mrs. Carter signed to it. Saturday evening Miss Randell entered Blair's store on Water St., and asked for goods to the value of 85 cents. As payment she presented the valueless cheque which was honored by the clerk who was busy at the time and who handed back the customer $5.95 change. It was only when the day's rates were being made up and the cash was counted at Blair's, that the forged cheque was discovered. The police authorities were immediately acquainted of the matter and the arrest of the woman followed. To-day in court the accused was identified by the clerk who sold her the goods and she was remanded.

GEO. KNOWLING.

Shannahan and The Cute Man at The Races.

A Little Late, But Better Late Than—

Some of our friends have asked the Cute Man why he hasn't any article in the paper on the Regatta, but the Cute Man, like myself, was of the opinion that our daily papers supplied all the news of interest that occurred and gave a very graphic account of the Regatta and general surroundings. But some of the old timers like to hear from us, and as we like to be obliging, we will, in our own free and easy way, give a short account of how we spent the day and describe in our old-fashioned way the sights which met our eyes. Most people in this country seem to have the queerest ideas of preparing a sketch for the papers, they come up to you and ask: "What about a piece on the Regatta?" as if you were a handbox chock full of pieces and only had to put down your hand and haul up a piece that they men who scribble, such as we do, can't produce pieces of this fairy-like fashion and must content ourselves in fumbling for a pencil, gathering up paper and scribbling our imagination or otherwise no piece will come forth. But to fall in line. After this year's Regatta we are more firmly convinced than ever that no event can hold a candle to it, football, golf, baseball or any other kind of ball, must take a back seat when the Races appear on the horizon. Old men, young men, women and "sixteens" all join in the great big swelling throng that parades in the Regatta. The simply wonderful hold it takes on our people of all classes. Slow at first, heavy attendance at the "Lace" on practice nights but soon it broadens into a bigger and bigger grow the enthusiastic crowd till at last even the doctor and the clergyman fall in line. No day has the same free and easy feeling about it that the Regatta Day has. Men who work and drag all day round without any amusement except it be a smoke, let themselves loose on the day of the races, they give themselves a peculiar twist that signifies freedom and Jack as good as his master air. This is just what the Regatta was made for, and the day that it loses that charm that day it dies a sudden and unprovoked death. The simplicity of our Regatta is its great draw, and Tucker was delighted to see the same old judge's boat as in the days gone by. "Someone on the bank said motor boat, but let us hope next year the four paddles and the long stroke, 'tis the link that connects the past with the present Regatta. Dancing galleries were patronized early in the morning, much earlier than on previous occasions, and the man in the stiff uncollared shirt who conducted the business of floor manager and proprietor combined bawled less than in days gone by; and what is more amusing than a good "eight-handed" quadrille, see the hardy son of toil capering at the head of the square, watch the satisfied expression on the face of his lady friend and see, yes, see for sure the stroke of the fiddler. We need not tell you, you have been there and if you haven't you know not what you are missing. At dinner time at the races many amusing scenes have in sight. The Cute Man started looking for a square feet during the interval. 'Twas difficult to strike the "main patch" but soon he was seated on a bench under portrait of a hard looking man (now in the States), while a square feed of pork, cabbage and galvanoes lay out before him. The Cute Man smiled as he gazed on the tempting feast, and after hauling pepper castor and pickles to his side started in "hoisting aboard." At the table were about fourteen other guests and all were "keeping in stroke" fine, when one of the company, an old man with a fierce whisker, arose slowly and solemnly and after mopping the perspiration from his forehead, asked the proprietress the usual question of—"what's the damage?" "One dollar, sir," said the perspiring hostess with a business tone and she put out her hand as much as to say "don't be all day with it." The sound of "one dollar" reached the ear of the Cute Man and that moment he was busily engaged trying to land a cauliflower from a narrow neck pickle bottle with a tin fork. Oh, for the ability of Dickens to describe the look on the Cute Man's face; oh, for the power of the artist to depict the glare of his eyes towards the woman who said "dollar." Knife and fork dropped slowly to the table and the Cute Man bent slowly towards me and asked in a whisper: "Say, Tim, did she say a dollar?" I jammed an extra large potato down, at quickly to hide a smile and nodded my head. The Cute Man put on a face like a northwester, but as he had half the dinner consumed there was no use crying over spilt milk, but he did the next best thing, he called for salt and pepper, chow chow and tea, plain bread and currant buns. No woman running an eating house in Sydney ever worked half as hard as that lady who said "dollar," and when the Cute Man had all below hatches I doubt very much if the poor woman made much on the transaction. TIM SHANNAHAN.

The Good Time

I put a mortgage on my home, to buy a motor car, and now all joyously I roam on rural roads afar.

I take the children and the wife, and—accour—the country, I'm bound to lead a merry life, and let all business slide. We pass the poorhouse as we race, and wearily my frau remarks: "Ains! that dismal place! It's where we're heading now!" I go in debt for gasoline, for this and that repair; but oh, the country's bright and green, and I am happy there! We pass the poorhouse as we scoot, and wife, she says to me: "Oh, mark it well, my dear girl—that's where we'll shortly be!" I, used to deal in carbon jars, and made all kinds of tink; but now the chugging motor cars are all of which I think. The clerks conduct my little store, and when I am away, they take their coats, and look the down and fishing go, folks say. But merrily my good car spins, and on the poorhouse grass the nappers sit and stroke their chins, and hail me as I pass!

Kyle Returns.

Labrador Fishery a Failure.
The s.s. Kyle, Capt. Parsons, arrived back from the Labrador yesterday bringing 400 packages of freight and these passengers: Mrs. C. H. Hillard, G. and Mrs. Davy, J. Hunt, W. Lind, R. White, P. Cornick, Mrs. B. J. Quinn, W. A. Appleton, Miss Lewis and two in second cabin. The officers of the ship report the fishery thus far to be one of the worst on record and the outlook for an improvement looks gloomy. The boats north are poorly fished, some of them having as low as 25 quintals under salt, while the shore crews have done practically nothing. However, expectations for a good voyage for the floaters are held out as the Stella Maris reports a deal of fish at the Farmyard and Queen's Lake. That ship also reports heavy ice at Nain and north of that place. The Kyle's report of the shore fishery is summed up as follows:
Belle Isle.—No fish.
Battle Hr.—No fish. Crews giving up the voyage, and one crew returned to Harbor Grace by steamer.
Venison Island.—Very little doing.
American Tickle.—Slight improvement since last report.
Flat Island.—Nothing.
Sandy Island.—Not much doing.
Griffin's Hr.—Blank.
Spotted Islands.—Blank.
Domino.—No improvement since last report.
Indian Tickle.—No fish.
Grady.—Very little fish.
Grosswater Bay.—No fish.
Macovic.—Nothing.
Cape Harrison.—No fish.
At several other places crews have less than ten quintals.

Booming Morris.

Dear Sir,—A young man has come amongst us, a Mr. P. J. Kinsella, and is writing for our papers. We are not a bad kind of people, us Cape Bretoners, and candidly we rather admire young Mr. Kinsella's writings, as long as he confines himself to local matters. But this we cannot understand—why Mr. Kinsella so favorably towards the Morris Government as to fill up our papers about it? And what has the Tory party done for this young man that he should advocate their cause in the Sydneys? As far as I can learn, too great a number of young men with the same ability as Mr. Kinsella had to leave their native country to look for employment abroad, and I can count them in hundreds, and they are coming from Newfoundland every day because of dark Tory promises. I do not write this, sir, because of any fault I have to find with Kinsella. We want him, and young men like him in Canada, but I think it very foolish of him or of any one who has one particle of ability to waste it upon a party or a people who have done nothing for him or them. The Morris Government may or may not be O.K., but my candid opinion is that the country of Newfoundland is being run into a frightful state of debt that will never be cleaned off, and that the people of the Colony will one day wake up to the direful truth that they have been badly duped. There is too much Morris, McGrath & Co. there. Give the voters a chance. My card herewith.

Yours truly,
CAPE BRETONER.
South Sydney.

Comes For Supplies.

The schooner Marion Mosher, Capt. John Mosher, entered port yesterday to get bait and other supplies. Since leaving Lunenburg on June 3rd, she has been fishing on the Grand Banks. Her crew of 18 men have about 1,400 quintals. Codfish and bait are scarce, but there is plenty of hake and with many vessels are completing their cargoes. On Saturday she tried Annapolis for bait without success. After baiting and some little repairs to her canvas she will sail for the banks.

Cured Diseases of the Kidneys

Once Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are introduced into the family and their efficacy becomes known they are usually found too valuable to do without. For everyday ailments arising from liver and bowel disorders they bring relief promptly, and when complicated diseases of the kidneys and liver develop they often prove a successful cure after doctors have failed. As an illustration, you may read the following, which was received a few days ago:
Mrs. John Wright, 23 McGee street, Toronto, Ont., states: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for ten years, and would not be without them. My husband suffered from kidney trouble, and after taking treatment from several doctors without receiving any benefit, tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which worked a complete cure. Since that time we have used them for all stomach and liver disorders."

Drowning Fatality Barely Averted.

On Saturday morning, July 26th, as James John Lear, of Hibbs' Cove, just below Port de Grave, was 'beating in' the harbor, opposite Jno. Jardine & Son's premises, his boat careened over so much that she took in water and immediately began to sink by the stern. Mr. Lear was the only occupant, and as the boat began to settle down he dropped his sculling oar and ran to the bow, which he clung to until rescued. As soon as the accident happened, a number of citizens jumped in boats and made all haste to rescue the man from his perilous position. Fortunately the bow of Mr. Lear's boat remained above water, and this kept the man, who wore oilskins and long boots, afloat. Benjamin Porter, of Blomidon, who was sculling along in his boat near the shore, was the first to reach Lear. He was followed by William and Alan Greenland and Jno. T. Kelly, and while Porter held Lear, the other men lifted him into Porter's boat. By this time a large tug boat was on the scene, followed by Mr. C. E. Russell's motor boat. The man's boat, still with her bow above water, was taken in tow by the motor boat and brought to shore and beached, while willing hands quickly threw the water out and otherwise got the boat in readiness for the fisherman to return home. The man lost nearly all his fish and a coat, but was glad he escaped with his life. It was well for him that the boat remained above water and that there were men and boats around, otherwise his chances of being rescued would have been small.—The Guardian.

Minard's Liniment Co. Limited.
Gentlemen,—In June, 98, I had my hand and wrist bitten and badly mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days and the tooth cuts refused to heal until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I began using. The effect was magical; in five hours the pain had ceased and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever.

Music For the Children.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In reading an item in Saturday's paper I see the brigade bands are giving a concert in both Parks. That is very good, and I am sure it will be appreciated by the public, as we don't have many band concerts during the summer months. But what about the children who frequent the Parks daily during the fine weather? Are they not entitled to some little amusement? What I would suggest to the members of the Council is: Could they not hire Mr. Walter Clouston's large pathé phone and give the youngsters a week's concert in each of the Parks? The cost, I am sure, would be very reasonable and the children and their parents, I know, would be charmed if the Council would arrange this cheap style of amusement before the summer is over.
Yours, etc.,
CITIZEN.
St. John's, August 11th, 1913.

Laid To Rest.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Berney took place yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. After the usual services at the Cathedral, interment took place at Belvidere, Very Rev. H. Renouf, P. P., of Trepasser, (a nephew of the deceased), officiating at the grave side and imparting the final absolutions. The venerable lady, who had nearly reached four score and ten years, was the youngest daughter of the late John Renouf, a hardware merchant of this city, who did business about the first quarter of the last century at the site of Messrs. Ayre & Sons premises. The late Dr. Charles Renouf and Judge Renouf were elder brothers. We understand that Mrs. Berney has left considerable estate, which has been bequeathed entirely to the R. C. Episcopal Corporation and the R. C. Orphanages.

Notes From Grates Cove.

WELL DONE NORRIS BROS.
Norris Bros. of Grates Cove, are again head-liners. A flag flying on their well-known schooner First Trial, gave surprise and the oldest fisherman's remark was, she is too deep; it is a risk. But fortune still favors them and they are just off for New Perlican, with fair breeze, to land their fish, where they are to get it made. From what I have heard through liver-merchants, and other true statements, I can positively say that the Norris Bros. are again head-liners to date in Grates Cove. The F.P.U. coal steamer is expected with a load of coal for the F.P.U. men.

Boy Meets With Serious Accident.

A serious accident occurred on Heart's Content Branch Railway on Saturday night. The victim was Ernest Reid, aged fifteen years. He was engaged as a cook's helper and while at work at the rear of a car an iron pin that fastens the cars fell on Reid's head, nearly killing him by the head. His skull was badly fractured and a doctor was promptly called to attend the boy who was unconscious. Later the injured lad was brought to the city by special train and conveyed to the General Hospital. This morning the unfortunate young fellow had not regained consciousness and it is feared he may not recover.

VANCOUVER, August 10.
That the Unionist Party of Great Britain and Ireland have made up their mind to accept a true public opinion of the people of Canada on the subject of Home Rule for Ireland was the statement made by Hon. Stuart Morley, M.P. for Sheffield, one of the most prominent Conservatives in the British Parliament, before he left Vancouver for Australia. In making the statement he made it on the condition that it would not be mentioned until the steamer Makura was well out to sea. We Unionists believe, he said, that the form of Home Rule for Ireland as proposed by Asquith and Redmond is the sort that will lead not only to civil war, but to the dismemberment of the Empire because it gives the Nationalists of Ireland a chance to become independent. Hon. Walter Long and Capt. Morley have such information that we have decided to send messengers to each Province of Canada to test a public opinion, and we hope to secure such a verdict as will enable us to go back to Westminster and say that the resolutions passed years ago by your parliament do not now represent the true opinion of the people of the Dominion.

LONDON, August 10.
The Times correspondent says that the treaty of peace concluded at Bucharest completely ignores the essential features of the distribution of the various Balkan races in Macedonia and consequently is devoid of all elements of permanency. Bulgaria, surrounded by five enemies, is reduced to desperation, the correspondent says, and is compelled to assent to their demands, but these arrangements cannot be regarded as final. A revision of the treaty is obviously necessary in the interest not only of justice, but of Balkan tranquility and European peace.

LONDON, August 10.
All newspapers display the utmost interest in the question between the United States and Mexico. Grave fear is expressed of an armed conflict. Universal comment is made on the probability of President Wilson's pacific administration, with Bryan, world's peace advocate, at the head of the Cabinet, will be forced into war. The general view is that Wilson's administration will force Mexico to accept Llad, which will cause an anti-American outbreak in Mexico, with the result that the American people will be hounded beyond control, and compel war in spite of Wilson's principles.

LONDON, August 10.
A group of militant suffragettes armed with horsewhips, to-day assaulted Dr. Pearson, medical officer of Holloway jail, as he was entering the prison gates. The attack was made as a protest against the treatment in jail of Miss Richardson, while undergoing sentence on three months' imprisonment for breaking windows. Miss Richardson, alleged that the doctor had threatened to deal with militants in such a way as would make them physical and mental wrecks, after which they would be confined in a lunatic asylum.

LIVERPOOL, August 10.
Two hundred fitters and fitters on the Cunard liner Lusitania, went on strike at Liverpool, yesterday, over a dispute with the boiler-makers. Forty engineers on the Mauritania also went on strike. Officials of the Cunard line say this trouble will not interfere with the sailing of the two vessels.

The situation at Barcelona, where ninety thousand workers are on strike, and 337 factories closed, is regarded by government circles as very grave. It is expected the city will be declared in a state of siege, as the strike is viewed as a revolutionary movement. The Socialists held a meeting here yesterday, and resolved to join hands with the Barcelona strikers.

LONDON, August 10.
The Commons, yesterday, ratified the contract with the Marconi Co. for construction of an imperial chain of wireless stations, by a vote of 219 to 133. In its essentials it is the same contract as that which, owing chiefly to error in judgment on the part of the Government, plunged Britain into a maelstrom of disreputation, calumny and scurrility. Postmaster General Samuel defended the contract with consummate skill, and in his speech quoted statements made by the Privy Council and Admiralty on the need of a wireless chain. How could the Government ignore representations from the authorities responsible for the defence of the Empire? he asked. He challenged the verdict of the contract on its merits, and reminded the House that the company gave a guarantee of successful operation. The Government, he said, had all the Company's inventions, and had the advantage of Marconi's personal experience, he said, and if it had got into its service, it was folly to ignore its claims. Cheers from all parts of the House greeted this statement. Marconi, he said, felt most deeply over the way his honored name had been made a political catchword and almost a term of abuse. Though partisan arguments were avoided in debate, the voting followed on party lines. Lord Cecil's hostile motion was defeated by a majority of 81, and Masterman's motion in favor of the contract, by a majority of 71. The resolution in the former government majority is explained by the absence of Nationalists and a dozen Labour members. Henry Norman abstained from voting on Lord Cecil's motion, but voted against Masterman's motion. Two other Liberals followed his example.

Cathagrian in Port.

Chicken Pox on Board.
The R. M. S. Cathagrian, Capt. Ogilvie, arrived in port at 8 o'clock Saturday night from Liverpool. The passage was made in exactly seven days. She left Liverpool on Saturday, August 2nd, and made splendid progress every day until Friday last when dense fog was run into, in consequence the speed of the ship was reduced for several hours. But for the fog the voyage from the Old Count would be made in 6 1/2 days. The ship brought 700 tons of cargo, 58 packages of mail and the following passengers for here in saloon—J. Barr, F. C. Bowring, E. R. Bowring, John Browning, Mrs. Browning, W. Bulmer, Mrs. Bulmer, J. O. Fraser, N. S. Fraser, Miss D. Gainsford, Robert Harpur, Miss Dorothy Harvey, G. Hawes, Mr. Hawes, Jr., E. Hills (Hon.), Mrs. Hills, Miss G. H. Job, Miss J. Job, (Hon.), Miss C. B. Kay-Shuttleworth, Miss Pettis-Matcote, A. Monroe, W. Monroe, Frederick Keppel North, Master North, R. O. Paterson, Hon. ... D. Ryan and Miss Janet Stirling. In transit for Halifax are 37 intermediate and 300 steerage passengers.

The day before port was reached chicken pox was discovered on board by Dr. John, the ship's surgeon. A female emigrant passenger was ill with the disease. When the ship reached at the Allan Line pier, Saturday night, all passengers were prevented from landing until Dr. Fraser went on board and examined the chicken pox sufferer. Later she was visited by Drs. O'Connell and Brehm. The woman is being kept in a separate room from the rest of the passengers so as to prevent contagion. She will be landed at Halifax.

A concert was held on board the Cathagrian on Thursday night last. Hon. J. D. Ryan acted as chairman. A collection of £3 was taken up to be devoted to the Marine Disasters Fund.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well, you did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to talk of prudence; too late then to say: "If I had only, etc., etc." That "If" means too much to many forgetful people. Is it not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it? Is it any more than his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible? Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive—aug.5.1f

Woman Lawyer Barred.

Cannot Plead in Italian Courts—Curious Reason for Decision.
Rome, Aug. 2.—The cause of women in Italy has had a set-back. Although Italians as a whole regard the question with benevolence, almost with sympathy—readers will remember the rejoicing some years ago when Signorina Teresa Labriola was admitted to the bar. Lately her right to exercise her profession has been called in question, and the Supreme Court has just given a decision against her on a finding that may make American women smile.

They are that as, according to Italian laws, a woman cannot do anything in public life without the consent of her husband; if she were allowed to practice law her husband might withdraw his consent at any moment, even while she was pleading.

Lunenburger in Port.

The Lunenburger banker, Marlon Mosher, arrived here yesterday. She left the home port two months ago for the Grand Banks; fish were found scarce and 1,500 gals. for eighteen men were taken on the voyage; the banker reports bait scarce. She put into Annapolis for a squid battle a few days ago but could get none, hence she came here. In a recent gale the Marlon Mosher had her canvas torn. Repairs for this will be made before the voyage is continued.

The Nickel Theatre.

The week end attendance at the Nickel Theatre was large and general satisfaction was expressed with it. Mr. Myers was in excellent voice and his songs were warmly applauded. There will be two new songs this evening, and as the pictures have been specially selected there will no doubt be a large attendance.

The Archbishop at Lamaline.

Lamaline, August 9.—His Grace the Archbishop and suite arrived here last evening. This morning the Sacrament of Confirmation was administered to 192 candidates. His Grace addressed the people in cordial words, and congratulated the parents and teachers on the bright appearance of the children and their knowledge of the Catechism. He also spoke enthusiastically of the energy and faith of the people, as shown in the beautiful church and school which have been completed since his last visit. His Grace on arrival was received with loud huzzas and salvos of musketry, and the children of the school hastily dressed formed a procession and sprinkled flowers before the Archbishop and clergy as they walked to the church, and an address of welcome was read by Miss Beatrice Fleming. The episcopal party started for Lawn at noon, accompanied by joyful salutes of the fusiliers, and every demonstration of joy and gladness from the whole settlement.—Daily News.

Change Island Notes.

For the past few weeks our town has been alive with visitors; Mr. G. House, Mr. J. Chaffey and family, Mr. and Mrs. N. Elliott, Mr. Walter Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roberts, Mrs. Day and Miss L. Day, being a few of those whom we were glad to see. The lovely summer weather has allowed them to take part in numerous picnics. The Church ship Amazon arrived on Wednesday, July 23rd, and we were pleased to see our grand old Bishop again. The Confirmation service was held in St. Margaret's Church, at 8 p.m. when fifty-one candidates received "the laying on of hands." The service was very impressive, and the Bishop's address one of the finest we have ever heard from him. The ship left the following morning for Victoria Cove, Gander Bay.

Mrs. A. Scammell arrived by motor boat on Monday from Herring Neck, where she was visiting her sister, Mrs. F. Lockyer.

Mr. A. J. Goodland came by the Fogota for a short visit.

Messrs. W. H. Earle and A. H. Taylor arrived on Friday from St. John's where they were attending the big L. O. A. Congress.

Mrs. T. Jones, of Fogo, is here spending a few days with her parents, Mrs. A. Phillpot and child from Herring Neck were here over Sunday.

Sometimes the digestive machinery gets away off. No kind of food looks good to you. You need Stafford's Prescription "A."

It is a temporary artificial digestive process to do the work until the stomach recovers normal conditions. Many people think Pepsin is the thing to take. Four times out of five they are wrong. Pepsin will digest eggs, meat, etc., but has no effect on starchy foods like bread, potatoes, cake, pudding—in fact most of the eatables that cause the trouble.

Stafford's Prescription "A" is the thing.

It contains all the valuable ingredients for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis, and nervous Dyspepsia, etc.

As what you like, Stafford's Prescription "A" will do the rest.

Some Class to This Tourist.

A foreigner, who recently struck the town, quit again on Saturday by the Stephano. At our Regatta held last week, he conducted a catch-penny shop and reaped a rich harvest out of it. He also succeeded in "doing" a city cabman. The latter had fulfilled his contract with the "Tourist" who told cabby to wait and he would return with the cash. Meanwhile the Stephano pulled off from the pier with the schemer on board. Needless to say the local man was victimized besides having to listen to insulting retorts.

Successful Sale
of our
Maritime Nail Preferred Stock in Newfoundland!

We are glad to inform the investing public generally that although it is barely six weeks since we introduced the 7 per cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock of the Maritime Nail Company, yet the Newfoundland sales to date have been very satisfactory.

In keeping with the conservative traditions of this firm, no sensational advertising was used, brief, dignified announcements have appeared daily in this paper calling attention to the desirable features of this attractive security and its 50 per cent. Stock Bonus.

These, coupled with our forty-year reputation of handling exclusively high-class securities, were sufficient to induce investors to purchase to such a large extent.

As our holdings of this issue are rapidly becoming depleted, we suggest that you promptly get in touch with our Special Representative, Mr. R. C. Power, who will be pleased to furnish complete information at his office or by mail.
