REMORSE and REPENTANCE.
—OR—
For Daisie's Sake

CHAPTER XXXIV.
UNMASKED.

Read Raymond followed the departing guests to the door, anxious for a private word with his friend Lord Werter; and then Mrs. Fleming exclaimed jauntily:

"Well, I must be going, too. Good-by, all!"

She was anxious to get away, for she felt frightened of Daisie, somehow, though undreaming that the girl had learned the secret of her treachery.

But, to her alarm and surprise, Daisie stretched out an imperative hand, saying sternly:

"Wait, Lottie. There is something I must say to you and Royall."

Annette turned to the door, saying nervously:

"I will go upstairs."

"No," and Daisie's outstretched white hand motioned her to a seat. As she added: "You know so much of my story, Annette, that I want you to hear the rest."

These three, who knew in their secret hearts how cruelly Daisie had been wronged, and how much they were responsible, waited in the greatest wonder and fear to hear what she might say.

They were prepared for something startling from the awful pallor of her lovely face and the tragic ring of her sweet voice.

She stood up, with her arms folded on the back of her chair, the long train of her blue silk gown trailing behind her on the floor, the rich color bringing out the waving gold of her hair and the lily white of her face—stood up and said to them in clear, unflinching tones:

"I thought it as well, Royall, to tell you and your cousin that it will not be necessary for you to pay Letty and her husband any greater price for my misery. I know it all."

"All!" muttered Royall hollowly.

"All!" murmured Annette, in surprise and grief.

And, with an almost tragic sweep of her white hand, Daisie repeated bitterly:

"All!"

They were unable to utter a single word. They could only wait shrinking.

Wash Day and Backache

WASH day is the least welcome day of the week in most homes, though sweeping day is not much better. Both days are most trying on the back.

The strain of washing, ironing and sweeping frequently deranges the kidneys. The system is poisoned and backaches, rheumatism, pains in the limbs result.

Kidney action must be aroused—the liver awakened to action and the bowels regulated by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This favorite prescription of the well-known Receipt Book author will not fail you in the hour of need.

One pill a dose, 25c a box at all dealers, or Edman, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

ly for her to continue her scathing arraignment.

"I know all!" she repeated, and the note of despair in her voice scathed their hearts, it was so pathetic. "I know the plot that was laid to part me from my lover, how we both were tricked and cheated by lies and forged letters that turned our hearts to ice. Letty and Cullen played their parts well from beginning to end—aye, until this very day; but—"

"Dallas Bain, Lord Werter, has found out, and told you this!" hissed Mrs. Fleming fiercely.

"No; I doubt if the story is yet known to him. By your own lips you are condemned. Lottie Fleming, from your own lips I heard the cruel story of my wrongs."

"Ah-h!" cried Royall, in a sharp voice of comprehension, and she went on, in that deep, accusing voice:

"When I left you with Royall this afternoon, I hurried upstairs to change my dress, and came back and lay down on the sofa in the alcove to rest. I did not mean to eavesdrop. I was only tired, and wanted to rest while you chatted with Royall, so—I heard all!"

There was nothing to be said, no defense possible, they could only hang their heads like detected felons.

Then the scheming widow, stealing a furtive glance at her cousin's face, was startled at his ghastly pallor.

Her tenderness for him nerved her to make one effort for his sake.

"Lay the blame on me!" she cried defiantly. "If you heard all, as you say, you know that he was not in the plot, that it was mine alone—all the fault mine. I dare say you would like to forsake poor Royall and run after Lord Werter now, but you cannot do it, for you stayed with my cousin of your own free will, and you cannot leave him now."

"Hush!" breathed Royall hoarsely; and Daisie turned from her with a glance of contempt.

She looked at Royall, and said gently:

"I have nothing but contempt and hatred for this woman, but you I pity."

"Only pity!" he groaned; but she continued:

"You know I never professed anything but pity for you. My love was given elsewhere before I was drawn into that mockery of a marriage that chained me, an unloving wife, to your side."

She paused, drew a long, quivering breath, and continued:

"You know I have tried to do my duty by you—that I will still try."

"Yes, yes," he cried, in a tone of infinite relief. He had feared that she meant to apply for a divorce, and in the madness of his love he was too selfish to bear such a suggestion.

"You would not leave me, Daisie—ill and crippled? It would be heartless!" he cried weakly, in his agitation.

All his pity was for himself—none for her, so beautiful, so helpless, so cruelly wronged by every additional hour of this bondage of a loveless marriage.

She answered, with the calmness of a great despair:

"I must leave you, Royall, for a while—a little while—because I should go mad just now without a change of some sort. I shall go to-morrow down to Gull Beach for a few weeks with Aunt Alice. You must do without me while I wrestle in silence with a grief beyond all telling, and gain strength by prayer to take up my burden and face the world again." A pause to gather courage, and she added: "Annette tells me she has a letter from home to-day. Her mother is sick, and begs her to return. She goes to-morrow, and I shall accompany her on her journey."

It was true. Annette had seized on the first excuse that offered to leave New York. It seemed to her that she could not breathe the same air with Ray Dering—he had come, and she must go.

"Oh, Daisie, you will soon return!" he half sobbed, breaking down utterly.

She moved to his side, and asked earnestly:

"Tell me—if you could have known what she was doing that night, would you have joined in that infamous plot against my happiness?"

No matter what he would have done, he knew at this moment that his only salvation lay in denying it now.

He answered quickly:

"No, never!"

"Then I will return," she answered, from the depths of her true womanly pity, and swept from the room without another glance at the cruel woman who had wrought all her woe.

CHAPTER XXXV.
"GOD HELP US!"

The sky was as blue as summer, the air was soft and bland, and the little, languid waves at Gull Beach, rippled by the April breeze, rolled softly upon the yellow sands.

It was three weeks now since Daisie and Annette had come away from New York back to Maryland—three weeks since the morning when Daisie, had stooped over Royall while he held her hands, and kissed him with cold, unresponsive lips, while she said:

"God help us both to bear this sorrow!"

She could not hate him, or be angry with him, because his love and his affection made her generous heart very kind and pitiful, and she realized that the cross of suffering lay heavy on them both.

So her beautiful eyes grew dim with tears as she gave the kiss his eyes entreated, and whispered pitifully and prayerfully:

"God help us both to bear our sorrow!"

"If you would only try to love me!" he groaned, entreatingly, and Daisie answered, with gentle patience:

"I have been trying ever since—that night when you were hurt. I will keep on trying."

"You are an angel, my wife!" he cried passionately, realizing remorsefully how unworthy he was of her noble sacrifice, yet not wishing himself dead and out of the way so that she might be happy. He was too selfish for that, and madly jealous in his heart of the reappearance of Dallas Bain in so enviable a position.

So when Mrs. Fleming came to see him, after the girls had gone away, he wished her godspeed when she told him frankly that she intended to follow Lord Werter to California, and try to win him in spite of all that had passed.

"He is the only man I ever loved, though I have always had plenty of lovers," she said; "and I was willing to take him, in spite of his seeming obscurity. Now, with his title, he is more desirable than ever, and I mean to throw myself in his way and win him yet if woman's wit can accomplish it. It will be a relief to you, too, if I get him, for you can never be safe over Daisie until he is married to another."

"No, never; and I am very sorry he ever turned up again. I hoped in my heart that the fellow was dead. Go in and win if you can, Lottie, and I'll give you a diamond sunburst worth fifty thousand dollars for a bridal gift!" cried Royall, who felt that the price would be small to pay for security over Daisie; for he was always dreading that she might secure a divorce from him in order to marry her old lover.

Meanwhile, Daisie and Annette had traveled to Gull Beach, and although Aunt Alice was taken by surprise, she was very glad to see her niece, and make her very welcome.

"I thought you would be so fine and gay in your grand New York mansion that you would never care to visit my humble cottage again," she exclaimed; and Daisie answered evasively:

"I have been leading too gay a life, Aunt Alice, in the whirl of social life, and now I am threatened with nervous prostration; so I must keep very quiet for a few weeks, and I knew your home was the very best haven of rest I could find."

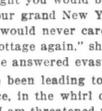

"Dear knows you'll find it quiet enough here, and I'll do my best to make you well again," replied the old lady cordially, for she was very proud of Daisie and the grand match she had made.

But she soon found that wealth does not always confer happiness; for, day by day, Daisie drooped like a strangely blighted flower, until at last she found that the girl was threatened with a serious illness.

HAD TO DO SOMETHING QUICK, SAYS REDMOND.

Had Barely Enough Strength Left to Stay on Job When He Began Taking Tanlac—Health Splendid Now.

"When I decided to try Tanlac I could not have done a better thing, for it has fixed me up so fine I feel as good as I could ask," recently declared James Redmond, who lives at Chertook, Nova Scotia.

"I had been going down hill for three years and was troubled in one way and another just about every day that came. I had a chronic case of indigestion and my stomach hurt so bad I could hardly stand for my clothes to touch me. What I ate caused gas and pain to form and I would bust up so bad that I felt right and drawn across the chest and stomach. I was bothered a lot with biliousness and often had sick headaches that lasted for several days at a time.

"I couldn't sleep to amount to anything and that pulled me down considerably in weight and strength. All day long I felt weak and tired out and just did have the strength to stick it out and stay on the job. Then last spring I had the flu and it nearly finished me. I was left in a worse condition than ever and I knew something had to be done and done right away.

"I had taken a good many medicines but I had never tried Tanlac; so I decided to see what it would do in my case. Well, sir, it was a lucky find and proved to be a friend in need. I took five bottles in all and to-day I'm a well man and haven't a sign of my old troubles. I can sit down and eat as big a meal as I ever could and enjoy every bite of it for my stomach never gives me any trouble at all now. The biliousness has all gone and those sick headaches have disappeared. I sleep like a log and have picked up ten pounds in weight. I feel strong and healthy and can do as big a day's work as I ever could."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Morey, Fermeuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renewa.—adv.

British Coal Strike May Be Averted.

Question Probably Submitted to Impartial Tribunal—Proposed Geneva Conference Postponed—Alex. Millerand New President of France—D'Annunzio Forms Cabinet—Wall Street Explosion Becomes an Incident.

LOYD GEORGE'S REPLY.

LONDON, Sept. 22. No progress was made to-day towards a settlement of the coal miners' dispute, although among the more optimistic, hope has been revived from the fact that a meeting of the "triple alliance" has been called for Thursday, to hear the reply of Premier Lloyd George to the committee of the alliance which visited him to-day. The reply of the Premier was a reiteration of the proposal made to the miners' executive committee the previous day, that there being a difference of opinion between the miners and the government as to facts and figures, the question of an increase of wages should be referred to an impartial tribunal, or alternately the miners should consent to work out with the colliery proprietors and the government some scheme whereby in return for increased production the miners could get increased wages. The Premier considered that by the alternative proposal the miners would get a greater increase than they demanded, while the country also would benefit. To this Mr. Robert Smiley, the miners' leader, replied "we are as anxious as you to increase the output, but you can only get that if you have the good will and desire to increase it."

increase in wages, was decided upon to-day by the Triple Alliance, comprising the Miners, Railwaymen, and Transport Workers.

introduced by Charles Marriott, of Toronto, was adopted by the Congress of Imperial Chambers at to-day's session favoring the project. A committee was appointed to act in the matter.

RETURNING TO BALBRIGGAN.

BALBRIGGAN, Sept. 22. Nearly one thousand persons, about half the population of this partly devastated town, crept back to their homes this morning, after having spent a second night of terror in outlying hay fields. Once during the middle of the night an alarm was raised, which caused a stampede of people to remote fields, where they took refuge under hedges and haystacks, or whatever shelter they were able to discover in the dark.

INVESTIGATION STARTED.

DUBLIN, Sept. 22. The military authorities have commenced an investigation of the Balbriggan affair. The black and tans in the vicinity of Balbriggan have been ordered confined to barracks.

WALL STREET EXPLOSION ONLY AN INCIDENT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. While the latest developments to-day into Wall Street's mysterious explosion last Thursday pointed to an incident rather than to a series of matches from other cities indicated that a "mild epidemic of bomb threats" had broken out throughout the country. Cleveland, Boston, New Bedford, Mass., Trenton, N.J., and New York were among the cities which reported anonymous messages of dire misfortunes. Although the authorities professed to regard these messages as the work of some practical joker or cranks, nevertheless in every instance extra precautions to prevent outrages were taken.

Stone, master of the Panhandle State, who is confined in New York declaring that he would land at Queenstown, Ireland, despite orders of the British Government, will get no help from the United States State Department if he comes to grief in an attempt to carry out his threat.

Remember the Orphans.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—In line with your correspondent in Tuesday's issue, might I also be permitted to add a word of congratulation to those self-sacrificing ladies of the Belvedere Orphanage for the zealous manner in which they are caring for over a hundred little orphans without help of any kind, and to bespeak for them on next Sunday a record collection from my Catholic fellow-citizens.

When one stops to think how hard it is to live, for even a little family of five, with a man's earnings coming in all the while, how much more difficult must it be to maintain a household of helpless children, provided over by helpless women (helpless in the sense of not being wage-earners) when there are no regular earnings or income.

It ought to make every Catholic father decide this very minute—while you are reading this appeal—to dig down deep on Sunday next and to give, not the price of a cigar, not something that you can do without—but make it a sacrifice for God's little ones. Let us think of the little darlings that God has left to us and try to visualize what it would mean to them to be deprived of their fathers, and in so thinking, let us all decide—every Catholic man of you who reads this paper—to make that collection next Sunday one that will remove all worry and trouble from those good Sisters for the next year at least.

All through this week put aside some little extra for Sunday. Let the slogan be "Remember the Orphans!"

Catholic fellow-men! It is NOT a courtesy; it is our solemn duty. Thank you, Mr. Editor, for the space given to

Two Fire Alarms.

Yesterday afternoon the fire companies had to respond to two fire alarms, one at Fleming Street, and the other at Prince's Street. In both instances the services of the firemen were not needed, as the trouble was settled before their arrival. Soot getting in the chimneys caused the alarms to be rung in.

Missing Accomplishment

(From the San Francisco Argonaut.)

"It is a strange thing," said the professor. "I was shaved this morning by a man who really is, I suppose, a little above being a barber. I know of my own knowledge that he studied at Heidelberg and spent several years in other foreign educational centres. I know also that he has contributed scientific articles to our best magazines and has numbered among his intimates friends men of the highest social standing. And yet," soliloquized the professor, "he can't shave a man decently."

"By Jove!" exclaimed young Round in astonishment. "What is he a barber for, with all those accomplishments?"

"Oh, he isn't a barber," said the professor, yawning. "You see, I shaved myself this morning."

In the Prize Ring.

CARPENTIER READY TO MEET LEVINSKY.

New York—Georges Carpentier, French heavyweight champion, is nettled by criticism of his failure to make a match on his previous visit, and determined, so he said, to prove himself a "parlor boxer."

With jaw set and clenched teeth the French boxer showed plainly criticism had cut him to the quick. He denied he had come here for "easy money," and that he had no stomach for a match.

When told "Battling" Levinsky, whom he will meet October 12, may prove a "hard nut to crack," Carpentier said:

"So much the better. I prefer a tough match. I am confident I can beat him, and I want to show the people who have criticized me that I am a boxer and not an actor."

Carpentier added he could not meet Dempsey before December 31, when his contract with Cochran, the London promoter, expired.

JACK JOHNSON GETS A YEAR.

Chicago—Jack Johnson, former world's heavyweight champion, will not immediately start to serve his sentence of one year and a day in Leavenworth penitentiary, to which he was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge George A. Carpentier, for violation of the Mann Act.

Johnson, nattily dressed in a blue suit, bright blue tie and patent leather Oxfords, was smiling broadly when he entered the court room. When sentence was passed, however, he appeared much downcast, as he had hoped for greater leniency. Permission was granted his attorney to file a writ of error and a stay of execution of the sentence was given until Saturday.

Judge Carpentier, who had refused to hear a plea for bail since Johnson was returned to Illinois, again refused to release the prisoner, and ordered him returned to jail.

The sentence re-affirmed that passed on Johnson in 1913, when he was convicted of transporting a white girl from Pittsburgh to Chicago.

SAYS DEMPSEY WAS ON ROCKS.

Bat Masterson writes in the New York Morning Telegraph: "Jack Dempsey is reported to have received $55,000 for his share out of the Labor Day scrap at Benton Harbor with Billy Miske, while the latter pouched $25,000 for himself out of the fracas."

"So far as I am personally concerned, I wish they had received twice the amount they are credited with getting. Dempsey and his manager were both broke when they went to Benton Harbor. The Dempsey trial at San Francisco cleaned him and his manager out of every dollar they had. Who got their money or how it was spent nobody but Dempsey and Kearns know.

"It was a costly trial for the champ and his manager if what is being said about it is only half true. However the case had to be beaten, cost what it might. But at the rate Dempsey is starting off accumulating another bank roll it will not be long until he'll be ready for another plucking. Who will pluck him next is hard to tell, but so long as some one doesn't pluck him out of his title he'll be all right.

"As for Billy Miske, the $25,000 he is said to have garnered from the Labor Day shindy will no doubt come in quite handy just now. Miske's long spell of illness must have put quite a dent in his bank roll. Doctors and lawyers come high and the fact that Miske was a prizefighter didn't get him much sympathy from the medical fraternity.

"In any event, it is safe to say that he found plenty of use for the money he got at Benton Harbor. Hope Miske goes right on getting more and keeps up the good work until he gets enough. Miske was a good fighter in his day, and a fine fellow along with it. There are a lot of fighters in the game who do not deserve as well

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR BURNS, ETC.

Very Fishy.

Perhaps the most typical fish story comes from Norway. Henrik Dahl, of Alesund, was a follower of Darwin. Wishing to prove the theory of adaptability of a species to its environment, he caught a herring in the fjord and kept it in a tub at home. The water he reduced day by day until the herring was able to do without any at all.

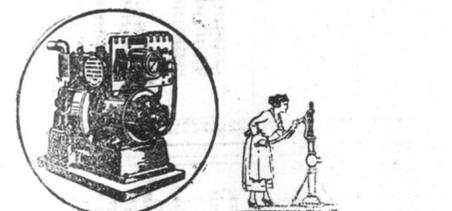

The next move was to train it to live on dry ground. It flopped about very awkwardly at first, but gradually learned to move freely, and was able at last to follow its master on his walks.

One day Henrik had to cross a bridge, which was old and out of repair. His pet was hopping along, jumping at flies now and again, all heedless of danger. Unfortunately, on the bridge it slipped, missed its footing, fell through a hole into the harbor and was drowned.

Diocesan Synod Proceedings.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 22.
To-day's session of the Synod was called to order at 7.30 p.m., the Lord Bishop presiding.

Prayers were read by His Lordship and the roll having been called the House proceeded to business.

On introduction of Canon Bolt, the Rev. A. Skinner, of the Diocese of Lichfield, was received by His Lordship the President and the Synod, and accorded a place in the House.

The minutes of yesterday's session were read and signed.

Canon Smart read the report of the Special Committee appointed to study the relation of the Board to the Executive Committee of the Synod, and to define the functions and work of the Board. The report was received.

His Lordship the Bishop then asked Dr. Mullins who is visiting the city on behalf of the Colonial and Continental Church Society, to address the Synod. A synopsis of Dr. Mullins' speech appears in another column. On Motion Dr. Mullins was tendered by acclamation the thanks of the Synod for his inspiring address.

Rev. T. E. Loder (Grand Falls) asked leave to introduce a bill to amend Chaps. 7, 11 and 12 of the Constitution and Rules. Leave was granted. Mr. Loder moved that the bill be read a first time. Agreed. Mr. Loder gave notice that he would ask that the bill be read a second time to-morrow.

Mr. J. W. Withers after a very thorough and exhaustive speech moved the following resolutions on education and that the House go into committee of the whole to discuss them, viz:—

RESOLVED, whereas the spirit of the present day favours the breaking down of artificial barriers between Christians of different forms of worship;

AND WHEREAS, the Lambeth Conference, the highest deliberative body in our Communion, has this year expressed on behalf of the whole Church a desire to draw into closer fellowship with the non-Episcopal Churches;

AND WHEREAS, the governing bodies of those Churches in Newfoundland have recorded the desire to enter into a union of educational system in St. John's with each other and with the Church of England in order to eliminate waste and secure greater efficiency in our St. John's Schools;

AND WHEREAS, this Synod reciprocates their desire;

BE IT RESOLVED, that this Synod hereby approves the principle of such a union of educational systems in St. John's;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Executive Committee may on behalf of this Synod assent to any scheme which may commend itself to the Committee for giving effect to such union;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the maintenance of denominational boarding houses and the provision of the fullest rights of entry for all denominations for religious instruction ought to form part of such a scheme.

Dr. Jones seconded the resolution. The House agreed and went into committee. On motion the House agreed to extend the closing time for one hour in order to begin the discussion of this matter.

Dr. Jones then spoke to the resolutions. Rev. E. Nichols and Mr. W. S. Monroe spoke on the question, and Mr. Monroe read a petition as follows from the subscribers to the Campaign Fund.

St. John's, Sept. 20, 1920.
To His Lordship the Bishop and the Diocesan Synod of Newfoundland.
My Lord, and Gentlemen,—Within the past year or two there has grown up in this city a strong and distinct desire on the part of the people for a re-consideration of the basis on which our Educational System is established. It is felt by many of them, we believe by a majority, that the time has come when we should no longer maintain a separate educational system for each denomination, to the detriment of efficiency and contrary to the modern spirit of union and fraternity.

As evidence of this we adduce the fact that the committees of our own and of the Methodist body who obtained last year pledges of an unprecedented sum for the benefit of education, not only found during their canvass much evidence of a desire for union, but also themselves, at their closing meetings, passed with applause unanimous resolutions looking towards a joint system. The views of these bodies, consisting as they do, each of two or three hundred active members, deserve the utmost respect.

Further than this, since your last meeting, the Nfld. Methodist Conference, the congregation of St. Andrew's Church and the congregation of the Congregational Church in this city have passed resolutions expressing a desire to enter into a general union of educational facilities with the Salvation Army, have sent delegates to an unofficial joint committee assembled at the instance of the Presbyterian body, which committee has for some months been considering the practical aspects of an amalgamation.

The working of our present denominational system has been reported upon most unfavourably by a distinguished educational organizer in the U.S.A., who has recently visited us.

We, the undersigned, being strongly in favour of a joint system of education for St. John's, now respectfully urge Your Lordship and the Synod to approve of the general principle of a union, and in so far as we are subscribers to the Church of England Educational Fund of $360,000.00, we express the desire that our money may be used for the purpose and in the interest of an inter-denominational system of education in St. John's.

We are, My Lord and gentlemen, Your obedient servants.

LeMessurier, Arthur H. Monroe, S. O. Steele & Sons, Ltd.

Mr. Monroe concluded his speech at closing hour, when on motion the committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again at 7.30 p.m. tomorrow evening. The committee rose, motion the House adjourned with the Benediction by the Bishop.

Address of Rev. Dr. Mullins.

TO THE DIOCESAN SYNOD OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

Dr. Mullins, in thanking His Lordship the Bishop and the Synod for being allowed to address them, stated that it was fortunate although not previously arranged, that he should visit here at the time of the Synod, since it enabled him to see and hear what many of the problems of the Church in Newfoundland are.

The Colonial and Continental Church Society has had a long connection with the church in this country. Here it was that the society had its beginning, mainly through the generosity of a merchant of this country, Samuel Coder. The society in early days bent its energies mostly on education. Samuel Coder was a Christian who combined religious education with the secular; but the view of the society through the society's help, behind ideas is to go on the edge of civilization and to wean the people to independence. No less than 46 places in Nova Scotia are now independent through the society's help. The idea is to go on the edge of civilization and to wean the people to independence. Ninety per cent. of emigration from England is within the Empire today. Next principally into North West Canada. It was largely through the example of the C. and C. C. Society that the Church of England in recent years has undertaken the tremendous efforts that it has in the spread of the church in N. W. Canada. The growth of that movement has been large. A nation in growth, said Dr. Mullins, must have impressed upon it the stamp of God and His Christ, and it is to be hoped that that impress should be through the honored Church of England.

The society was first in beginning work in other parts of the Empire as well as in Newfoundland. In many parts of the bush in Australia, in the diamond mines of Kimberley; in the far north in the great gold fields of the Klondyke. The society has also carried on and maintained chaplaincies on the coast of Europe in many of its seaports; and these chaplains maintained their work in Germany right through the war except where they were sent over to the front in Dunkirk, one of the most heavily bombed cities of the continent; our chaplain remained all the time; it was the Chaplain of the C. and C. C. Society who visited and ministered to Miss Edith Cavell, the martyred English nurse, and who afterwards gave the world the story of her death; and Little, behind the Society remained right through the war to minister to British women and others in that area.

In Newfoundland we have supported entirely the work of that great missionary to the Eskimo, Rev. S. M. Stewart, of Ungava, one of yourselves, a member of your Synod. For 20 years we have supported that work. Could the church in Newfoundland take charge of that work now?

It is probably our fault, said Dr. Mullins, that we have never asked you for any subscription towards our work, although I am informed that you do send subscriptions to other church societies to aid in their work. Your burdens are and have been large, but it must not be supposed that our society is a wealthy corporation or drawing on rich supporters for revenues. The revenues of the society come mostly from the collections of the churches of the poor, and from the pockets of poor people in England. It is not wealthy, but is mainly supported by those to whom giving is a denial and denial a joy.

Dr. Mullins expressed immense pleasure with his visit. Amongst Newfoundlanders he has found kindness, overwhelming. He desired to express his warmest thanks for kind words and actions shown him while here. They have given a conception of Newfoundland character which is a revelation. In closing, let me say, said Dr. Mullins, that my conception of your work is deepened in what I have been enabled to see of you here and in the Lecture Hall, and everyone present enjoyed himself and herself to the utmost. Many visitors from the outports were most interested in being shown through the College, a goodly body of males foregathering in the smoking room, where questions of the day were discussed, and many views as to present conditions both in Church and State exchanged. The function closed at 5 o'clock, when farewells were said to the kind host and hostess, and everybody came away with intensified feelings that Queen's has to be maintained as the training school of the Church of England in Newfoundland. Floreat.

Queen's College "At Home."

Every clerical and lay representative of the Diocesan Synod of Newfoundland, accompanied by lady friends, attended the "At Home" given by the Principal, Alumni and city supporters of Queen's Theological College, Forest Road, yesterday afternoon. There were no formalities. The guests were received in the main entrance hall by Dr. and Mrs. Facey, and were made free of the house. The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, and visiting clergymen from abroad were present and moved freely amongst the company. Introductions were rife and many old friendships were renewed. Tea was served by the ladies of the city parishes in the Lecture Hall, and everyone present enjoyed himself and herself to the utmost. Many visitors from the outports were most interested in being shown through the College, a goodly body of males foregathering in the smoking room, where questions of the day were discussed, and many views as to present conditions both in Church and State exchanged. The function closed at 5 o'clock, when farewells were said to the kind host and hostess, and everybody came away with intensified feelings that Queen's has to be maintained as the training school of the Church of England in Newfoundland. Sea Love.

There is nought to my soul so moving
As the sight of the infinite Sea,
So rich with the spoils of my loving,
So large and lavish and free!

So various in mood, yet unchanging,
Ah, never the same, yet for aye,
Tranquil at heart, though far ranging
She loves the still haunts of the bay.

Dark perils she has, but no sea-soul
Covers 'neath her tempests of rage,
He rides on her bosom, a free soul
To sun-dawns of age after age!

Whoso' doth slight thee, fair Ocean,
Or looks on thy bosom unmoved,
Knows not the soul's deepest emotion,
Knows not what it is to be loved.

All I have loved thou hast given,
All that I lost borne away
To that far off love-garnered haven
Whither thou'ldst bear me some day.
—J. Lewis Milligan, in "The Sailor."

The Portia Arrives.

SHIP HAD EVENTFUL TRIP—DISABLED STEAMER SALVED.

S.S. Portia arrived from the Westward at 2.30 p.m. yesterday, bringing a large quantity of freight and the following passengers—J. M. Crawford, Miss LeMessurier, F. Angot, C. Way, Mrs. Way, Mrs. Bishop, G. Way, D. Fitzgerald, A. Mills, Miss Rose, D. Slaney, C. Reeves, Mrs. Reeves, Mr. Martin, J. Marshall, B. Bowering, H. Hodder, Miss Foley, M. Fleming, Jos. Walsh. It was on her Western trip that the S.S. Portia saved the S.S. Bassan, and Capt. Tom Connors deserves praise for the seamanship displayed on that occasion. He had only left Trepassey when S.O.S. Calls were picked up from the Bassan. Proceeding to the position given the disabled steamer was located in the vicinity of Cape Pine. It was then 9.50 p.m. Capt. Oliver reported his steamer in a sinking condition and stood by. The Portia stood close until 11 p.m., when the Bassan's fires were reported out, and the engine room practically flooded with water. The Portia was then manoeuvred alongside and lashed with hawsers to the disabled steamer and a course shaped for St. Mary's. When St. Mary's was reached Capt. Connors took the bridge of the Bassan and navigated both her and the Portia to the head of St. Mary's, safely berthing the Bassan on a mud bank near the old whaling wharf, and in a cargo of scrap iron. The Portia in deep water. The ship and cargo is valued at approximately $350,000, and the salvage due the Portia must be considerable. The Bassan has since undergone repairs, and was expected to leave St. Mary's yesterday for this port, where she will likely discharge her coal cargo.

C. Society who visited and ministered to Miss Edith Cavell, the martyred English nurse, and who afterwards gave the world the story of her death; and Little, behind the Society remained right through the war to minister to British women and others in that area.

In Newfoundland we have supported entirely the work of that great missionary to the Eskimo, Rev. S. M. Stewart, of Ungava, one of yourselves, a member of your Synod. For 20 years we have supported that work. Could the church in Newfoundland take charge of that work now?

It is probably our fault, said Dr. Mullins, that we have never asked you for any subscription towards our work, although I am informed that you do send subscriptions to other church societies to aid in their work. Your burdens are and have been large, but it must not be supposed that our society is a wealthy corporation or drawing on rich supporters for revenues. The revenues of the society come mostly from the collections of the churches of the poor, and from the pockets of poor people in England. It is not wealthy, but is mainly supported by those to whom giving is a denial and denial a joy.

Dr. Mullins expressed immense pleasure with his visit. Amongst Newfoundlanders he has found kindness, overwhelming. He desired to express his warmest thanks for kind words and actions shown him while here. They have given a conception of Newfoundland character which is a revelation. In closing, let me say, said Dr. Mullins, that my conception of your work is deepened in what I have been enabled to see of you here and in the Lecture Hall, and everyone present enjoyed himself and herself to the utmost. Many visitors from the outports were most interested in being shown through the College, a goodly body of males foregathering in the smoking room, where questions of the day were discussed, and many views as to present conditions both in Church and State exchanged. The function closed at 5 o'clock, when farewells were said to the kind host and hostess, and everybody came away with intensified feelings that Queen's has to be maintained as the training school of the Church of England in Newfoundland. Floreat.

There is nought to my soul so moving
As the sight of the infinite Sea,
So rich with the spoils of my loving,
So large and lavish and free!

So various in mood, yet unchanging,
Ah, never the same, yet for aye,
Tranquil at heart, though far ranging
She loves the still haunts of the bay.

Dark perils she has, but no sea-soul
Covers 'neath her tempests of rage,
He rides on her bosom, a free soul
To sun-dawns of age after age!

Whoso' doth slight thee, fair Ocean,
Or looks on thy bosom unmoved,
Knows not the soul's deepest emotion,
Knows not what it is to be loved.

All I have loved thou hast given,
All that I lost borne away
To that far off love-garnered haven
Whither thou'ldst bear me some day.
—J. Lewis Milligan, in "The Sailor."

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. and Mrs. Silas Lewis and family of Golf Avenue, wish to thank the Wesleyan Bible Class and S. A. Late Hours.

(From an Exchange.)
For a good half hour the father had been lecturing his son on the evils of late nights and late rising in the mornings.
"You will never amount to anything," he said, "unless you turn over a new leaf. Remember, it is the early bird that catches the worm."
"Oh," said the son, "how about the worm? What did he get for turning out so early?"
"My boy," came the reply, "that worm hadn't been to bed all night. He was on his way home."

"THAT REMINDS ME."

Don't you hate to meet anyone whose sole idea of conversation is the relation of a series of personal anecdotes?

appeals to the good sport in us. It gives one a friendly feeling for the teller.

Give Him a Chance.

Having thus reduced the personal anecdotes you will decide to tell don't fail to give the other fellow a chance to tell his—both by keeping still occasionally and by taking up his lead when he shows signs of having a subject he wants to introduce.

Although it does not bear exactly on the subject of personal anecdotes, there is a description of a gentleman's way of conducting himself in a conversation which has always fascinated me. Saint Beuve says of Fontenelle that "he smiled at wit, never interrupted, was never excited nor ever in a hurry to speak."

Doesn't reading that over give you a sense of very fine dignity—the sort of dignity and poise one would like others to find in oneself?

Fashions and Fads.

Low-necked white lace dresses are simple of line and sleeveless.

A hand-embroidered slip-over blouse is of Georgette and velvet.

Henstitched bands of net finish a collar-and-cuff set of white dimity.

Brilliant-colored Georgettes is used for straight, low-waisted frocks.

With the low-necked, collarless frocks are worn wonderful pendants.

A crepe de chine blouse has chain stitching in Oriental colors and design.

White brushed wool jersey capes are trimmed with multi-colored striped jersey.

The new cape costume for children consists of a frock and cape to match.

A rose tan felt hat has a mauve and violet wreath of large velvet panicles.

Over a lingerie dress is worn a cape of black lace trimmed with monkey.

Organdie and batiste will be combined with heavy materials, such as velvet.

Satin is being revived, and is trimmed with narrow box and knife pleatings.

A child's hat of black patent leather is embroidered in bright-colored raffia.

White broadcloth frocks are heavily embroidered in Czecho-Slovakian designs.

Two Tests.

To my mind, anyone should test a personal anecdote which he feels a desire to tell, in two ways. First, is it an anecdote which would be interesting in itself even if the people he is going to tell it to did not know him, instead of basing all its claim on the fact that it happened to him?

The second test, is, is it something that is told or seems to be told merely to give his hearers a good impression of him? Beware being your own hero! You are likely to be nobody else's. And don't be afraid to tell a joke when the joke is on you. We all like the man who can see a joke at his own expense. There is something sportsmanlike about it which

Wit and Wisdom.

The novel of to-day specializes in people and neglects things.—The Nation.

Prohibition, that shapeless and toppling object, blocks up all the perspectives of history; which are full of the hostilities and vineyards of humanity, merely because it happens to have been stuck up yesterday, and will probably tumble down to-morrow.—Mr. G. K. Chesterton.

If we all always "played cricket" half of the world's troubles would be conjured away.—Times.

A man will stand a good deal of criticism, but he won't tolerate aspersions on his love-making.—Lady Dorothy Mills.

The greatest compliment a man can pay a woman is to give her his time.—Alfred Edye.

HOW MANY?

The panic men forecasted has not yet cantered by; our flag is not half masted, and we are living high. What though the prophet rages throughout the heedless land; drawing princely wages, our work is in demand; we find the money growing upon the evergreens, when we are blithely going to work in limousines. Where once the guilders trickled, they now in rivers shine; how many have you pickled, how many are in brine? The times so brisk and breezy, have lasted until now; and money's been so easy we fed it to the cow; and I am not predicting a dreadful time to come, or dreadingly inflicting a preachment out of plumb. But if you wake to-morrow and find the boom before the week is sped? For months you have been tickled, the dollars came so swift; how many have you pickled, because of inborn thrift? How many have you carried to some safe banker's vault, while foolish spendthrifts tarried with grape juice and near malt? It is a time enchanted, when roubles grow like weeds; how many have you planted, how many helpful seeds?

New Zealand Farmers as Shipowners.

The farmers of New Zealand do not relish the fact that ocean rates from New Zealand to Britain have increased 200 per cent. since 1914. They talk very freely of "shipping combines" and "rings" and they are wondering if there is not some way out, by which they may be able to ship their produce freely and with greater profit to themselves. Added to this matter of high freight there is also the difficulty of lack of space. One farmers' association, the Poverty Bay Sheep-farmers' Company, Ltd., has actually purchased and fitted with refrigerating machinery a vessel, the Admiral Codrington, and a good deal of interest will be felt in the venture. If it succeeds there will probably be other farmers' associations follow the example. If the farmers will only unite they are abundantly able financially to carry out some big ship-owning project, and it is possible that this will be the outcome. Whether the venture will be profitable remains to be seen. Just now, when ocean rates are beginning to drop, and ocean carriers are becoming more numerous, it is possible that such a venture might not prove very remunerative, but at least it would free the farmers from the "ring" of which they complain. Incidentally, however, it might bring home to them the fact that not all shipping ventures are profitable.—The Christian Guardian.

Double-Eyed Fish.

A fish that carries its young from place to place in a bag, and that has four eyes with which to find its way about is certainly out of the ordinary.

The anable usually swims about fish, possesses both these distinctions. One pair of eyes it uses for looking along the surface of the water in search of its food; the other pair is used for seeing beneath the surface. Both pairs of eyes are close together, being separated only by a horizontal division.

The anablets usually swims about using both pairs of eyes at the same time. In order to do this, it swims in such a position that the horizontal division is just level with the surface of the water. Thus it sees above and below water at the same time.

The young of this fish are not hatched from eggs, but when they are born they are carried about by the mother in a bag of thin skin. They remain enclosed in this bag until they are big enough and old enough to look after themselves.

Visiting at Sydney Smith's.

Sydney Smith's parsonage at Combe Fleury was within a few miles of Halse, and we paid him a visit. He was in high spirits, and took us round his grounds, showing us the beautiful prospects to be seen from each point of view, for Combe Fleury is situated in one of the richest tracts of Somersetshire:—

"An extensive prospect there to the East; Galatia—Mesopotamia—lie in that direction."

And when our visit was over and we rose to take leave, he asked Mrs. Villiers whether she was bound when she left Halse. "To Bath," was the answer.

"To Bath!" he said; "what can take you to Bath?"

"Well, I have an aunt there, whom I really ought to go and see."

"Ah! an aunt—you have an aunt at Bath; yes, everybody has an aunt at Bath—a perfect ant-hill. I have an aunt at Bath. 'Go to the ant, thou sluggard,' has been ringing in my ears for a century; but I've never gone."

And then followed the loud but soft volley of cordial laughter with which he usually speeded his own jests on their way.—From the Autobiography of Sir Henry Taylor.

A frock of blue serge has long sleeves and a painted collar of white crepe de chine.

An unusual girde of wide navy grosgrain ribbon, picot edged and bordered by narrow gold ribbon, is trimmed with velvet leaves and flowers of silver and gold cloth.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. J. JAMES, Editor

Thursday, September 23, 1920.

Guttersnipe Journalism.

It has been ever the habit of the Advocate to resort to the use of offensive personalities against the editor of the Telegram, whenever much displeased with anything appearing in this or any other column. This particular quality of journalism is known as the guttersnipe type, and is particularly obnoxious when used against the editor of any newspaper who desires to respect the decencies of honest and legitimate controversy. The Telegram desires acutely to avoid such, and we think its efforts have been crowned with success. Hence the raging of the heathen; but there is a limit to patience as well as to everything else, and that limit, that line of demarcation has now been reached. The organ of the Acting Prime Minister should not be the prime offender against public decency, but it is obvious that nothing is allowed to stand in the way of its foul attacks upon people who dare to confront the gentleman aforesaid with irrefutable facts in connection with his blunders and errors which have been, and are, redounding to the disadvantage of the Dominion.

The limit was reached by the Advocate in its issue of last evening which contained a most savage and villainous attack on the editor of this paper; an attack all the more scurrilous and contrary to all the amenities of journalistic honor, because the communication which contained it was printed in the form of a special message to Hon. W. F. Coaker, with a big display, AND UNSIGNED. Were it not for the evidence of eyesight it could scarcely be conceived that any newspaper would publish such stuff and take a fiendish delight in doing so, as it is obvious the Advocate did. The man himself who originated it, is not nearly so much to blame as the journalist who gave it publication, and used a lot of extra space to comment profusely and joyously on the vilest libel that ever was written. There is but one course open to the editor of the Telegram, and that is to invoke the protection which the laws of the land allow. Madmen have to be treated according to statute, and restrained from inflicting themselves upon the public. The one course open will, in the present instance, be followed, and Mr. James will seek redress from the hands of the highest authority in the land—THE SUPREME COURT.

Discrimination.

It is interesting to watch what United States fish dealers will do in view of the discrimination made against them in our Government's fish regulations. The Americans were our Allies in the late war, and we are acting towards them in a way that shows the utmost hostility. The regulations demand that they put up bonds, otherwise they cannot buy any fish in Newfoundland. We will not allow them to sell fish bought here, except they conform to the prices that we specify, and we demand that they submit their trade to laws that we make here in Newfoundland. There never was such a high-handed proceeding, and it is sure to bring about retaliation. We do not ask any other country to submit to these laws and make a dead set on those who befriended us in the late war. Canada can buy our fish and sell at whatever price suits her in any market, but we penalize the United States. The same applies to all other countries. Following is the text of this iniquitous measure:—

"No license holder shall sell any codfish known as Labrador to any person in the United States of America unless he shall first have obtained and deposited with the Marine and Fisheries a Bond of such person with sureties in Newfoundland to the satisfaction of the Codfish Export Board, and in such sum as the Board may deem sufficient (which sum may be altered from time to time by the Board), conditioned for forfeiture to His Majesty in case it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Board that either the person giving the Bond, or any other person to or through which he may sell, has failed to comply with those rules and regulations in the same manner in all respects as if he were a Licensed Exporter in Newfoundland, as far as the same are applicable."

Proposal for a Children's Hospital.

Under the Supervision of the Women's Patriotic Association.
The object of the meeting called for this afternoon at the Grenfell Memorial Hall is to enable the public of the city to pronounce upon the proposal that the Women's Patriotic Association should avail themselves of the generous offer of Sir Edgar Bowring and open Waterford Hall as a Children's Hospital. It will be remembered that Sir Edgar Bowring's offer was first published in the press in the early part of the autumn of 1919. The Children's Hospital was then treated as the ultimate object and crown of the Child Welfare Movement for which the Women's Patriotic Association were making themselves responsible. But two important points have been brought into prominence since that time. First, there is the question of funds. The annual charge for such a Hospital is not likely to be less, even with the greatest economy, than $20,000, and it may easily be considerably more. On the assumption of the higher cost the Government have stated that they are prepared to give a substantial grant of $10,000. But even so there is a big gap to be made up and the Women's Patriotic Association do not feel themselves entitled to go further unless they have a substantial guarantee from the public that they will find the greater part of this.

Secondly, it is necessary to state that the medical men of St. John's, on meeting the Executive of the Women's Patriotic Association, did not generally approve of Waterford Hall as a Hospital.
The question to be put before the meeting this afternoon will be how far the public of Newfoundland are prepared in spite of every objection to adopt Waterford Hall as a Children's Hospital under the care of the Women's Patriotic Association and to support it with a definite endowment.

C. L. B. Sports.

The first heat of the C.L.B. Cadet Sports was run off yesterday evening before a large gathering of spectators, who displayed great enthusiasm during the various events. The winners were as follows:—

Half Mile (Open Championship for the Dominion)—1st, T. Butler, 2 min. 20 1-5 sec.; 2nd, J. McColl.
Football Sixes, Ref. W. J. Higgins, C. Co., C.L.B., vs. Headquarters—Winners, Headquarters, 2 corners to nil.
The second part of the program will be run off this evening, commencing at 5:30 o'clock. The final football between H. Q. C.L.B. and O.A. Comrades and the big open Championship for the one-mile race will be the principal attractions.
Great praise is due the committee in running off these sports (which have been postponed twice), in such a creditable manner, and there should be a record attendance for this evening's programme.

Valley Field Nurseries.

We have received samples of the vegetables grown by Tessier Bros. at Valley Field Nurseries, for which we have nothing but unqualified praise. The tomatoes in particular are of excellent quality and surpass in favor and fineness of color any imported. We are proud to know that Tessier Brothers have in such a short space of time (they only started this spring) so fully demonstrated what can be done in the raising of fine vegetables and also flowers. It is a pity that more people do not go in for this work and also for fruit growing. In Messrs. Tessier & Co.'s window on Water Street, there are apples, grown in Bonavista Bay, which in appearance would compare favorably with those from the famous valleys of British Columbia or Nova Scotia.

Sugar is reported to be selling in England at retail at a price equivalent to 17.23 cents a pound, at present rates of exchange, which is lower than the retail price common to many cities of the United States. The retail price of 15 cents a pound in Washington is nearest to parity with the British price, freight charges across the Atlantic being taken into consideration, while in Canada it is still sky-high.—Halifax Chronicle.

IN REPLY TO DAILY NEWS.
Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—The reference in the "Daily News" this morning to a shipment of Sugar which arrived recently and the deductions therefrom are so grossly in error, that I feel sure you will permit me to state, that when the Food Board took control of Sugar, the cheap sugar and the more expensive sugar was pooled, and an average price arrived at. The cargo of Sugar which arrived in June to a practically bare market would have sold for 36 cents instead of 30 if the cost had not been reduced by the fact that there was cheaper sugar to come in. The so-called profit on the 3000 barrel lot which came in recently has gone already to the people, and it is unfair to attempt to suggest that it is being taken by the Board or anyone else.
Yours truly,
ALEX W. MEWS,
Chairman, Food Control Board.

Kemp's Banker Lost.

CREW SAFE.
Mr. W. J. Walsh, M.H.A., Placentia, received a message last evening from Capt. James Kemp, informing him that his banking schooner Somerville had been lost at Bonne Esperance, and that himself and crew were stranded and short of food. The message also asked that a steamer be sent to their assistance. Mr. Walsh immediately got in communication with the acting premier who arranged to have the Diana call at Bonne Esperance and take off Capt. Kemp and crew. Captain Kemp was making his first trip in the Somerville and was bound to Labrador on a fishing trip.

The One Mile Race for the Open Championship for the Dominion of Newfoundland will be run off at 6:30 p.m. sharp at St. George's Field in conjunction with the C. L. B. Cadets' Sports. sep23,21

Johnny Bell Will Run To-Morrow Night.

Acting on the suggestion of a correspondent in yesterday's issue of the "Program," we understand that at "half-time" in to-morrow night's Championship game, Johnny Bell, our local marathoneer, will give an exhibition of his winning stride. Yesterday his manager, J. I. Vinnicombe, had him run over a carefully measured 10 mile course from Flatrock to Keene's Hill, and Bell did it without pacers in the surprising time of 62 minutes. As he says himself, he was "merely jogging leisurely along." The road over which he ran is considered the hardest running course in the nearby country, and is certainly a much more difficult and trying proposition than the Halifax circuit, where 4 miles of the 10 consist of a smooth asphalt surface. It is therefore justly considered that he should do it well under Alf Rodgers' last year's winning time of 59:07—though at that it is conceded that Rodgers was at no time pushed to give all that was in him, as he held the lead all the way right from the start. While Bell is doing his exhibition stint to-morrow night, the committee consisting of Ern Churchill, Jack Tobin, Ben Stafford, and Harry Peddigray will pass-the-hat amongst the spectators, as it is felt that everybody would like to contribute their mite towards sending a Newfoundland representative to Halifax for the big event, and the smallest contributions will be thankfully received by the promoters.
The outcome of the present proposition will mean that long distance road racing in Newfoundland will be revived—not that anyone would wish to see full course 26 mile Marathon again promoted—but a good 10 mile foot run will be put on the slate for a magnificent trophy already promised to be donated by a well known gentleman prominently interested in athletics. It will naturally follow that the winner each season will be sent to Halifax and Montreal to compete as Newfoundland's choice in the big road events held at each city in October, and will thus help to put Newfoundland on the Sporting map.

Fire at Campbellton.

HOUSE AND SHOP DESTROYED.
Yesterday the Deputy Minister of Justice received a message from Constable Cramm, of Lewisporte, stating that a serious fire had occurred at Campbellton the day previous, destroying the dwelling house of Mr. Theodore Wall and the shop adjoining. The fire is believed to have originated in a lighted cigarette dropped in the shop. The loss is estimated at about $12,000.

Advancing Commercial Education.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Your Diocesan Proceedings correspondent on Education, stated yesterday that Newfoundland had no properly equipped department for commercial training, and this was repeated in the Synod this evening. Now to prove to you that this is incorrect I invite you, or any of your readers, to visit the Commercial School Stenographic and Commercial Departments, corner of Springdale and Gilbert Streets. Here you will find a good beginning; $3,500 worth of standard typewriting machines in use, up-to-date Business College desks, outfit, equipment and accommodation for 75 students; certificated Business College teachers in Short-hand and Touch Typewriting, Book-keeping and Accounting, Business Arithmetic, Business Law, Business English, Business Correspondence, Business Writing and Spelling, Rapid Business Calculation, Salesmanship and Advertising, Business Organization and Management, Office Practice, Secretarial Duties, Commercial Geography, etc. one of these teachers being of Universal Standard, winning 80 to 90 per cent. in each subject, which is as good a record as can be shown by any Business College teacher in Canada and a great many in the United States.

This rating is sufficient to qualify as Principal of a Commercial Department in a High School in New York City; yet it is alleged there is no Commercial Department here—a poor appreciation of the efforts already made.

Further, the syllabus and examinations of the Business Educators' Association of Canada and of the Accredited Commercial Schools of America, are the standards followed in this institution, the only difficulty being sufficient funds to pay the affiliation fees of fifty dollars per year, the publication of expensive calendars and reports, and the charging of the fees required, namely, forty dollars per quarter instead of ten, to maintain teachers, secure more equipment, etc., and to pay for the expenses of local monthly examinations of those associations whose courses of study develop the business capacities of the students. We have proved their value during the past three years.

Lack of funds therefore is the great difficulty. The teachers are prepared for advanced work, and they can thank themselves for it. One consolation, their work is appreciated, as can be seen by the patronage they are receiving; yet their financial support is discouraging. They are kept here by home ties, love of country, a sense of duty, living in hopes that a brighter day will dawn soon, and that better conditions and facilities for advanced commercial training will be provided, at least equal to the Business Educators' Standard Examinations, the Business College Graduates' test of Canada, that should be held in St. John's quarterly, for all business school graduates, to prove that they are up to the standard and their schools truly efficient Business Colleges like the Commercial School, Springdale Street, that is advancing in spite of all opposition.

Yours faithfully,
P. G. BUTLER.

The St. George's Coal Fields.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—Recent articles in the press concerning the railway commission work, also, contain reference to Professor Dowling's recent recommendations re our coal areas, Grand Lake Country according to Professor Dowling, may contain an enormous wealth of coal, and of course this opinion is based on the Geological data compiled by the late James P. Howley; this must be because Professor Dowling never visited the Grand Lake Areas.

The areas visited by the above gentleman during the past season, were those under the ownership of The St. George's Coal Fields, Limited, and so impressed was he from what he saw on these areas, and the geological estimate placed upon them by the late James P. Howley, that he did not hesitate to accept Mr. Howley's estimate as being geologically and scientifically correct. Accepting Mr. Howley's data of the Grand Lake areas as of the same high order as his work on the St. George's Co. Areas, Professor Dowling did not hesitate to make recommendations concerning the Grand Lake areas, although he had not seen them. According to Professor Dowling, there is no reason why Newfoundland should not be a coal producing country.

Now that the late James P. Howley's estimate has been accepted as of such a high order, it is to be hoped that Newfoundland will soon have an abundant supply of good coal from her own mines, and at a price considerably less than we are now compelled to pay for slate and dust.

The writer had the pleasure of two lengthy interviews with Mr. Dowling after he had visited the St. George's Coal Areas, and hopes shortly to be able to give for publication through the columns of your valuable paper, some information concerning these areas. Thanking you for space,
Yours truly,
JUKES SEAM.

Genius in the Making.

STORIES OF THE BOYHOOD OF GREAT MEN.

Genius that blossomed early is the theme of "Boyhood Stories of Famous Men" (Harrap.) by Katherine Dunlop Cather. "The facts that make up the tales," says the author, "have been gathered through many years and in many places, some from libraries in great cities and universities, some from dusty manuscripts in museums and private collections, some from the lips of peasants who repeated legends handed down from the olden time." The result is a series which includes Titian, Chopin, Mozart, Andrea del Sarto, Murillo, Stradivarius, Tintoretto, and Rembrandt.

Il Divino Tiziano!

Mrs. Cather makes her subjects live; we see them in the right setting. There is the story of the boy Titian, who, having a passion for colour but no colours to use, noticed on a stone walk the stains made by crushed flowers. So he went out into the meadows with his sister, gathered blossoms of many hues, and painted with the crushed petals. Then the villagers were called in to see the secret fresco.

Murmurs of "How did he do it?" "Where did he get his paints?" rose on all sides, and everyone was so excited that his father could not find out why they were there. Then he heard Tiziano's voice: "I did it with flowers from the hillside. Catarina gathered them while I worked."

Exclamations of amazement followed, and the village priest, the good padrone, spoke reverently:—"With the juice of flowers! Il divino Tiziano!"

"The Whittler of Cremona."

Another charming story is that of the great Stradivarius, who, though loving music, could neither sing nor play. But, in common with most boys, he could whittle sticks. Amati, then the most celebrated violin-maker of Cremona, had given to Antonio's two brothers a gold piece for the singing and playings carried to Amati's house some of his whittlings and begged to be taught how to make violins. To the master's question, "Why do you want to make violins?" he replied:—"Because I love music and cannot make any. Salvator and Giulio can both sing and play. You heard them last night in the piazza in front of the Duomo, and gave them a gold piece. I love music as much as they but my voice is squeaky. I can do nothing but whittle."

To which Amati answered:—"Come into the house and you shall try. The song of the heart is all that matters, for there are many ways of making music. Some play violins, some sing, some paint pictures and make statues, while others till the soil and make flowers bloom. Each sings a song and helps to make music for the world."

These stories, designed for youthful readers, have more than a youthful appeal. They have a quality rare in such books—a sense of art and atmosphere. — John o' London's Weekly.

Sovereign Egypt.

Detailed reports confirm the cabled summary as to the vast importance of the provisional agreement arrived at between the Lord Milner Commission and Zaghini Pasha, the head of the Egyptian National Delegation, effecting the sovereign independence of Egypt, and at the same time preserving complete security, as it is believed, for British interests.

A review of the arrangements arrived at, published in the British press, shows that at the time the Milner Commission visited Egypt, the Egyptians urged that the preliminary to all negotiation should be the recognition of the independence of Egypt as a sovereign State. That was not formally admitted, and the Egyptians publicly boycotted the Milner Commission in Egypt. Lord Milner, it is said, was prepared, when in Egypt, to base the future relations between Egypt and Great Britain upon a treaty, a kind of personal treaty of alliance, and to find some formula reconciling Egyptian independence with the British War Time Proclamation of a Protectorate.

A formal discussion with the Egyptian leaders took place on this basis, although at that time the Milner Commission was not prepared to commit itself precisely and explicitly. On its return to England, however, notable developments occurred, and an invitation was extended to the head of the Egyptian Nationalists to visit England. Accompanying that invitation was a pledge that Britain was prepared to recognize the independence of Egypt. That question having been settled as the basis, there still remained the thorny problems relating to the Suez Canal, to British strategic interests therein, to British officials in Egypt, and to the rights of foreigners, under what is known as the "Capitulations." The capitulations were the instrument with which the British negotiators could make most play. So long as the capitulations exist, not only is a legal system compatible with Egyptian dignity impossible, but no tax system and no system of local government of a satisfactory kind can be introduced, for the foreigner cannot be taxed without the consent of his own Government.

The Egyptians understood that only the British Government, by its influence and its guarantee, could relieve Egypt from the yoke of the capitulations. In return for this, British special interests are to be secured, but it is noteworthy that the British garrison is to be withdrawn from the Suez Canal, that the British officials in the Egyptian Service are henceforth to own undivided allegiance to the Egyptian Government, and that Egypt is to control her own foreign affairs. The sovereign independence of Egypt is a reality, and only in war time are British armed forces to enter Egypt outside the Canal one.—The Morning Chronicle.

The Objects of the British Empire Exhibition Are Interviewed With Lord Morris.

By RHODE KNIGHT.
(In British Dominions Trade.)

Some men make exhibitions of themselves; some, again, make, or arrange, exhibitions for the public. In the eyes of properly constituted persons, the last named undertaking is not only the most dignified, it is also the most arduous and onerous, and—carried out on well organised lines—far and away the most useful. It is really a profession—at once a science and a fine art.

As in the case of other professions, so in this: few men attain eminence or achieve conspicuous success. The reason is not far to seek. In order to yield a full harvest of educational value, and not merely amusement to crowds that delight in switch-backs, merry-go-rounds and jazz bands, exhibitions must have a definite practical end; their promoters must have a fixed clearcut purpose in view. Too often, unfortunately, they strike their colours to the popular craze for frivolous entertainment, or are content merely to cram a building with a heterogeneous mass of more or less uninteresting objects of the cheap-jack variety, so that when everything is arranged and the doors are opened to the public, the place resembles nothing so much as a disordered department store on a bargain sale day.

For genuine trade purposes—that is, for stimulating business between producer and consumer—such exhibitions are practically worthless. Small wonder that our big manufacturers do not show their products at popular exhibitions. They are not unnaturally prejudiced against them, regarding them as waste of time, money and energy.

This is one of the reasons why the Board of Trade established some years ago a special branch to deal with the organisation of British displays in the great exhibitions of the world. And this is also one reason why, as Lord Morris pointed out in the course of a special interview, expert committees have been entrusted with the responsible task of organising particular departments in connection with the British Empire Exhibition, which will be held in London in 1923.

An Imperial At Home.

"We intend to make the British Empire Exhibition," said Lord Morris, who is chairman of the Executive Council, "an Imperial Industrial 'At Home' in the best and widest sense of the term. Our aim is to bring together people from every Dominion and Colony under the Flag, and let them see what every part of our far-flung and richly endowed Empire is producing, and how far it is possible for us to utilise the vast and varied resources of our British Commonwealth. This was the idea in the mind of the late Lord Strathcona when, in 1913, he first suggested the holding of such an exhibition in 1915. It was a desirable and praiseworthy project then. It is infinitely more so now. The Great War has made it so. For over four years nearly all civilised countries were fiercely engaged in the work of destruction and building up colossal debts. This wastage must be replaced, these liabilities met. This can best be done so far as the Empire is concerned by increasing production, particularly in the direction of developing our boundless natural resources.

"Great things have been accomplished in the past by industrial exhibitions, in making known to the world the quality and variety of the raw and manufactured products of the Empire, especially the former. But, too often, we have stopped short and been satisfied merely to exhibit these products, as if that was all that was necessary. Whereas we should have gone a step farther and developed the industries represented by or dependent on these products. In other words, our methods have lacked thoroughness; we have not turned to the best advantage the information and experience thus acquired. Indeed in some notable instances, as the war showed, we actually allowed foreigners to exploit our resources to their immense benefit and to our serious detriment. It is not enough for a nation, especially a commonwealth of nations such as the British Empire, to "breathe the blows of circumstances"; it must also "grasp the skirts of happy chance," and take full advantage of its opportunities.

A Practical Illustration.

"Let me give you a practical illustration of my meaning. Here it is in a sentence which I quote from the final report of the Dominions Royal Commission. 'It is interesting and important to note,' says the report, 'that practically every mineral of commercial value is found in Australia.' I will go further and say that not only in Australia, but in other parts of the Empire taken as a whole, every mineral—non-metallic as well as metallic—now used in industry is to be found and, in some places, in deposits of exceeding richness and easy accessibility. Within our own Imperial frontiers we have every mineral we require for industrial purposes. But see how we have neglected our opportunities. Take iron, for instance, on which so much depends. The total British output of iron is only 15 million tons a year, as against the world's output of 150 million tons, and this in spite of the fact that we have in the Empire sufficient iron ore in sight to supply the whole world for hundreds of years.

"Now, the object of the great Exhibition we are organising, as Lord Milner said at the Mansion House meeting a few weeks ago, is not a vainglorious display. It has a practical object—to enable us all to see how we can afford mutual help to one another in the development of these vast resources. So the Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, which represents the whole of the Empire as regards its mineral wealth, has been asked by the Executive of the Exhibition to take charge of the mineral exhibit in 1923. And it is hoped to arrange not merely an exhibit of the minerals of the Empire, but a standing committee of experts representing the great industries arising out of the development of those products, whose special business it will be to point out to exhibitors how they can have their fields more fully and scientifically prospected and worked, and how and where new channels of commerce can be opened. In this way the road will be paved towards the utilisation of these resources to the fullest extent. If the Exhibition fails in this respect, then it will not realise what its promoters seek to accomplish.

"This is a change in the commercial kaleidoscope that calls for grave consideration. It strikes at the very heart of our foreign commerce. Look at the statistics. As compared with 1914 the world's shipping facilities are to-day very much against us. The tonnage of the United Kingdom has decreased by nearly one million tons in the interval, while that of the Dominions has increased by nearly half a million tons. The tonnage of the United States has increased by ten and a half million tons; of France, one million; Italy, 700,000; Holland, 300,000; Japan, one million and a quarter tons, and most of the smaller nations have also increased.

"To put the position in another light, in 1914 the United Kingdom owned 41 per cent. of the world's steam tonnage; to-day it owns only 33 per cent. The growth of the United States' steam tonnage during the same period is equivalent to an increase of over 500 per cent. In 1914 Germany, with over five million tons, ranked second only to the United Kingdom; now she has a paltry half million, and her former place has apparently been taken largely by the United States, France, Italy, Japan, and the Dominions. Norway, who occupied fourth place before the war, is now in the seventh, while Japan, who was sixth, is now third.

"I am well aware that our great steamship companies and shipowners generally are fully alive to the gravity of the situation, and realise the importance of providing cheap, rapid and improved facilities for ocean transportation. For they are faced with the fact that the revenue of something like £80,000,000 which they divided annually in pre-war days from the earnings of the mercantile fleet, has considerably diminished, and is likely to diminish still further unless they are up and doing.

"The Exhibition should, and I am convinced will, be of immense educational value. One half of the Empire does not know how the other half lives. Still less does it know what the other produces. We desire to give a striking object-lesson, first, as regards the magnitude of the Empire's resources, and secondly, of the productive power and skill of its millions of citizens. Thus we should demonstrate the great fact that the British Empire is really a world in itself, and that with adequate commercial and industrial organisation should become self-supporting and, if occasion should arise, absolutely independent of foreign countries, so far at least as supplies of raw materials are concerned. I regard this form of economic independence as one of the main planks of enlightened, practical Imperialism. It is a sound business proposition, and makes for strength, solidarity and security.

"I am no pessimist," Lord Morris said in conclusion. "On the contrary, I am a strong optimist, especially in regard to the future of our Empire. The couplet of the old Roman poet:

Empires and nations flourish and decay,
By turns command, and in their turns will never, I believe, apply to the British Empire. At the same time there are certain signs that fill one with misgiving. One is the widespread failure to grasp the radically changed conditions caused by the war and the special efforts necessary to meet these conditions. We must either bend adverse circumstances to our will, or ourselves be bent. I am not in favour of State intervention in commercial or industrial affairs as a general principle; but if private enterprise will not take the initiative, then the State must step in and, in the interests of the community, lead the way. We cannot afford to remain supine. Unless we bestir ourselves and gird up our loins, we shall certainly be left behind in the race for the best prizes of world commerce. My hope is that the Empire Exhibition will provide a powerful stimulus and sharp spur to action."

I've seen a lot o' fellers try a lot o' different ways For carvin' out their fortunes, through my little stretch o' days; I've watched the clever-minded an' the ones that thought they were, The pleasure-seekin' mortal an' the idle gossip, An' I've noticed at the finish, after all the fuss an' boast, That the chap who works the hardest is the one who gets the most.

There ain't no way around it—it's the man who never stops But keeps right on a-farmin' that will have the biggest crops. Oh there's times it's hot for hoed an' there's days the dabb'll bite, But the field that's been neglected never does come through all right.

ARCHITECT—W. D. McCarter, Esq.

The Association has been formed to build houses to rent. These houses will be let to tenants at reasonable rentals or will be sold to tenants on easy terms of payment.

Additional objects of the Association are: To remove tenants from houses which are unfit for human habitation to homes of health and comfort; to destroy all hovels within the city; to adopt a proper town planning scheme; to lay out modern streets with a perfect system of sanitation; and to rebuild certain sections of the city gradually so that workmen can live with their families amid cheerful surroundings.

The proceeds of the sales of houses bought by tenants will be reinvested in Government securities to provide a redemption fund to pay off the Capital.

The programme outlined by the Company is to build one hundred houses during the year 1921. In order to carry out this work the Directors make an appeal to the people of Newfoundland to take up the necessary Shares without delay, so that arrangements can be made with Lumber Mills and Contractors for work to be done. The one hundred houses will be built on Merry Meeting Road, in accordance with a Town Planning Scheme, prepared by the City Engineer and adopted by the Municipal Council in 1919. The thirty houses to be built by the Company this year and now nearing completion, will give the public an idea of the class of house to be erected. A more suitable site for a garden suburb would be difficult to find, it being situated in the country and yet within ten minutes' walk of Water Street.

To live in a suburb of this sort with pure air, plenty of space around the house, and modern interior sanitation and improvements is to ensure health for the residents who will realize to the full the advantages of good living. In a Garden Suburb children thrive, they grow up vigorous in mind and body; their daily association with trees and flowers, birds and all the manifold delights of nature develop in them a love of all things beautiful and a better understanding of life.

We appeal to the public to subscribe the Capital without delay for the erection of one hundred houses to be built and ready for occupation before the end of the year 1921.

More "Little" Wars.

The Serbians are fighting in Albania and the British are in more trouble in Mesopotamia. No sooner does a peace conference assemble in one part of the world than a fresh war starts elsewhere. Mesopotamia and Albania are not so important as Poland, but the world at large has a considerable interest in a durable settlement of their troubles.

Reports of the Arab rising against the British in Mesopotamia have been coming in now and then for weeks past—some time ago there was the announcement of a fight in which the British suffered 300 casualties—but now comes the news that 10,000 more troops are on their way from India to reinforce the 70,000 already in Mesopotamia, and there is fear in London that still more troops will be needed. It looks as if the British may need as large an army to hold Mesopotamia against the natives as was required to take it from the Turks. Arab troops raised in the country are apparently fighting on the British side, which indicates that native feeling is at least divided, but only trouble of a serious nature would require so large an army to repress it.

The British have already called a "constituent assembly" to frame the constitution of the new Arab Government which under British influence is to rule the country, but in the meantime British administrators have been conducting the business of government, and apparently without the talent that the British have usually shown in dealing with Oriental people. Colonel Lawrence, the English archaeologist who established the alliance between Britain and the Arabs of the Hedjaz and acted as the personal representative and shock-absorber for Prince Frisal at the Peace Conference, has lately protested against the British and French disposition to crowd the Arabs out of the picture. No doubt both French and British were surprised and pained when it appeared that the Hedjaz dynasty wanted a great deal more than European diplomats had been disposed to assign to it, and that the Arabs in general seemed to regard that dynasty as the head of the national movement. But it appeared that a more conciliatory attitude toward the sons of King Hussein—who on their part seem to have been more moderate than a good many of their followers—might have accomplished a working agreement in which the British and French got the economic privileges and political guardianship which they wanted, while leaving the prerogative of sovereignty and the job of government to the Arab princes.

Meanwhile Serbian troops holding Mount Tarabosh, overlooking Scutari, are engaged in a fight with the Albanians, and the Serbian Government fears Albanian raids in the Macedonian territory, where the two races are commingled. The Italians decided that suppressing rebellion in Albania would cost more than it was worth, so they got out. The Serbs were no doubt rejoiced at this, and now it appears that they can get some profit out of the Italian withdrawal. That Italian agents are stirring up Albanian dislike for Serbia is only natural, and the new Jugoslav kingdom has trouble enough on its hands without taking on a new fight on the southern frontier. None of Albania's neighbors are likely to do any good to themselves or to Albania by interference, but if the Albanians are left alone they will probably be no more able to govern themselves than they have been in the past.—New York Times.

Toys From Tombs.

Most children's toys are old—very old. Toy wooden spades and buckets, like those that delight your little ones on the seaside sands these holiday times, were used by Roman and Greek children two thousand years ago.

The British Museum can show us toy animals with movable legs, made about the same time, which are practically indistinguishable from those sold to-day; and ancient ivory rattles, with bells and rings attached, that might have come straight from a modern Bond Street shop.

Both Homer and Plato mention the humming-top, while dolls' furniture and "tea things" are at least as ancient as Babylon and Nineveh.

And dolls! There seem always to have been dolls. They are found hidden in the mummy swathings of ancient Egypt, in the tombs of the Incas of Peru, amongst the ruins of dead, prehistoric cities in Central Asia.

They are of all sorts and sizes. Little spoon-ended, bright-painted, wooden ones! Dolls of clay, of blue and red and yellow china, of a hard, celluloid-like substance, the secret of whose manufacture is now lost. Even gold and silver dolls, with toy cradles to match, have been found.

Palestine and the Canal.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

The removal of the British garrison of Egypt to the Suez Canal, with Kantara as its base means something like a revolution in the strategy of Canal defence. The Canal is in a military sense important as a vital line of communication between the east and west of the British Empire. A garrison of 2,000 or 3,000 men in the Canal zone, though adequate in peace time, is not adequate should a crisis arise. It will have to be able to draw promptly upon reserves near at hand. Where are such reserves? They could be found, in part at least, in Palestine. At Kantara the desert railway to Palestine begins, and as there are practically no inhabitants of the Sinai Peninsula, that line of communications is quite secure. This arrangement confirms the argument that Palestine is strategically of the highest importance to Great Britain as the staunchest bulwark of the Suez Canal. The arrangement with Zaghul thus links up with the policy of a Jewish Palestine, and as illustrating the concordance of the two it is worth recording that Zaghul Pasha occupied a prominent place on the platform at the memorable demonstration in the Albert Hall a few weeks ago to celebrate the incorporation of the Balfour declaration in the Turkish Peace Treaty. These are days when every item of expenditure, particularly military expenditure, is strictly scrutinized. We shall have to be careful for the future not to set to the account of Palestine so much of the military force as is really a reserve for the defence of the Suez Canal. Even now, owing to the healthiness and the accessibility of

More "Little" Wars.

The Serbians are fighting in Albania and the British are in more trouble in Mesopotamia. No sooner does a peace conference assemble in one part of the world than a fresh war starts elsewhere. Mesopotamia and Albania are not so important as Poland, but the world at large has a considerable interest in a durable settlement of their troubles.

Reports of the Arab rising against the British in Mesopotamia have been coming in now and then for weeks past—some time ago there was the announcement of a fight in which the British suffered 300 casualties—but now comes the news that 10,000 more troops are on their way from India to reinforce the 70,000 already in Mesopotamia, and there is fear in London that still more troops will be needed. It looks as if the British may need as large an army to hold Mesopotamia against the natives as was required to take it from the Turks. Arab troops raised in the country are apparently fighting on the British side, which indicates that native feeling is at least divided, but only trouble of a serious nature would require so large an army to repress it.

The British have already called a "constituent assembly" to frame the constitution of the new Arab Government which under British influence is to rule the country, but in the meantime British administrators have been conducting the business of government, and apparently without the least that the British have usually shown in dealing with Oriental people. Colonel Lawrence, the English archaeologist who established the alliance between Britain and the Arabs of the Hedjaz and acted as the personal representative and shock-absorber for Prince Faisal at the Peace Conference, has lately protested against the British and French disposition to crowd the Arabs out of the picture. No doubt both French and British were surprised and pained when it appeared that the Hedjaz dynasty wanted a great deal more than European diplomats had been disposed to assign to it, and that the Arabs in general seemed to regard that dynasty as the head of the national movement. But it appeared that a more conciliatory attitude toward the sons of King Hussein—who on their part seem to have been more moderate than a good many of their followers—might have accomplished a working agreement in which the British and French got the economic privileges and political guardianship which they wanted, while leaving the prerogative of sovereignty and the job of government to the Arab princes.

Meanwhile Serbian troops holding Mount Tarabosh, overlooking Sutari, are engaged in a fight with the Albanians, and the Serbian Government fears Albanian raids in the Macedonian territory, where the two races are commingled. The Italians decided that suppressing rebellion in Albania would cost more than it was worth, so they got out. The Serbs were no doubt rejoiced at this, and now it appears that some Serbs, at any rate, hope that they can get some profit out of the Italian withdrawal. That Italian agents are stirring up Albanian dislike for Serbia is only natural, and the new Yugoslav kingdom has trouble enough on its hands without taking on a new fight on the southern frontier. None of Albania's neighbors are likely to do any good to themselves or to Albania by interference, but if the Albanians are left alone they will probably be no more able to govern themselves than they have been in the past.—New York Times.

Toys From Tombs.

Most children's toys are old—very old. Toy wooden spades and buckets, like those that delight your little ones on the seaside sands these holiday times, were used by Roman and Greek children two thousand years ago.

The British Museum can show us toy animals with movable legs, made about the same time, which are practically indistinguishable from those sold to-day; and ancient ivory rattles, with bells and rings attached, that might have come straight from a modern Bond Street shop.

Both Homer and Plato mention the humming-top, while dolls' furniture and "tea things" are at least as ancient as Babylon and Nineveh.

And dolls! There seem always to have been dolls. They are found hidden in the mummy awashings of ancient Egypt, in the tombs of the Incas of Peru, amongst the ruins of dead, prehistoric cities in Central Asia.

They are of all sorts and sizes. Little spoon-ended, bright-painted, wooden ones! Dolls of clay, of blue and red and yellow china, of a hard, celluloid-like substance, the secret of whose manufacture is now lost. Even gold and silver dolls, with toy cradles to match, have been found.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)
The removal of the British garrison of Egypt to the Suez Canal, with Kantara as its base means something like a revolution in the strategy of Canal defence. The Canal is in a military sense important as a vital line of communication between the east and west of the British Empire. A garrison of 2,000 or 3,000 men in the Canal zone, though adequate in peace time, is not adequate should a crisis arise. It will have to be able to draw promptly upon reserves near at hand. Where are such reserves? They could be found, in part at least, in Palestine. At Kantara the desert railway to Palestine begins, and as there are practically no inhabitants of the Sinai Peninsula, that line of communications is quite secure. This arrangement confirms the argument that Palestine is strategically of the highest importance to Great Britain as the staunchest bulwark of the Suez Canal. The arrangement with Zaghul thus links up with the policy of a Jewish Palestine, and as illustrating the concordance of the two it is worth recording that Zaghul Pasha occupied a prominent place on the platform at the memorable demonstration in the Albert Hall a few weeks ago to celebrate the incorporation of the Balfour declaration in the Turkish Peace Treaty. These are days when every item of expenditure, particularly military expenditure, is strictly scrutinized. We shall have to be careful for the future not to set to the account of Palestine so much of the military force as is really a reserve for the defence of the Suez Canal. Even now, owing to the healthiness and the accessibility of Palestine, part of what is really the Egyptian garrison or reserve is stationed in Palestine.

Each German leader writes a book explaining how he got the book. Writes Ludendorff, "If Bill had done just what I said, we'd sure have won."

And Hindenburg sits on his spine awaiting lines about his line.

Obituary.

ROBERT C. GRIEVE.

By the last Sachem the Hon. W. B. Grieve, C.B.E., left for England. His mission was a sad one, for at Smedley's Hydrophobic at Matlock, in Derbyshire, his only son, Robert Cecil Grieve, was lying dangerously ill. Little hope was held out for the invalid's recovery, and yesterday the brave young man passed away. Bob Grieve had many friends in this city. A true-hearted and loyal friend, none was more deservedly popular in the regiment. Scion of a family of wealth and prominence, he was the comrade of poor and rich, influential and comparatively unknown alike. When the great Challenge was defiantly hurled against the Empire in August, 1914, Mr. Grieve was one of the first to answer. None knew better than he did the discomforts and hardships inseparable from a soldier's life. He came from a family of soldiers, and in the war many of his relatives distinguished themselves. To him the call admitted of only one response and there was no uncertainty, no hesitancy in the response. Bob Grieve sought no distinction. He was content to do a private's work and did it well and willingly, winning the friendship and affection of his fellow soldiers of all ranks by his modesty, reliability, generosity and readiness at all times to do the hardest tasks and face the greatest dangers without question or complaint. It was enough for him that his was the privilege and the joy of service. The training at Plesantville in the September days of 1914 was enough to tax the spirit and the temper of the toughest, but Mr. Grieve accepted it with a smile. No fatigue was too arduous, no duty too unpleasant. So it was right through his service. Not a man who returned from Gallipoli but had a good word to say of Grieve. With a laugh and a "cherrio" the privations and discomforts of those days were dispelled. Danger had no terrors for Private Bob Grieve. He played the game of war as the public school boys play cricket. There were many thousands of the Empire's young manhood that met the anxieties and perils of war in the same spirit, and to these daring, manly, cheerful and cheer-inspiring men the Empire owes the safety which is hers. The hospitals were filled with happy, hopeful men, ready for the issue, come what would, but determined to "carry on" so long as life should last. From the Gallipoli wounds he recovered and was soon again in the thickest of the fray, falling badly wounded at Beaumont Hamel. He returned to Newfoundland, but earlier in the year revisited the Old Country for treatment. At the age of 37 he has gone to answer the roll call in the world beyond, and carries with him the record of a good soldier, a loyal subject and citizen, and a square and honest man. "He played the game" is his epitaph. To his widow, a daughter of Geo. Hutchings of this city, his little daughter, and his father the sympathy of their friends and his go forth. Amongst the latter are his comrades in the war, without exception. Within a few hours he will be laid to rest whether in the Derbyshire Hills or in the land of his Scottish forefathers, and fidelity will say of him with prayerful hope and confidence, "after life's fitful fever he sleeps well."—Daily News.

Financing the Undertaking.

Our city sports are contributing generously to finance the undertaking of Bell's representation of Newfoundland at the Halifax marathon. Already half the amount needed has been subscribed and in a few days it is hoped to have enough money to at least pay some of the expenses of the trip. There is no doubt about it but Bell will make a showing to be proud of. He is in splendid form and has covered some measured distances in remarkably quick time.

Licensed Fish Exporters Meet.

The collapse of the Italian market has made matters very precarious for exporters, in so far that the Banks will not now make advances unless a guarantee that the shipper has a license and that said license will not be cancelled. The latest rumor is that Mr. Hawes is to be sent to Italy to try and straighten out matters. This is like putting a red rag to a bull. The fish exporters held a meeting today in the Board of Trade Rooms when the situation was to have been discussed. The matter of keeping up the price in the foreign market and the cull will also be given consideration. The official business of the meeting was—

- (1) To consider the question of cull under the Standardization Committee.
- (2) To consider the advisability of guaranteeing that the prices in the foreign markets fixed by the Government will not be lowered for a definite period.

Very little was done in settlement of the matters and the meeting adjourned at 1.30 p.m.

Sugar, Sugar Sweet.

The question why the Government through the Food Control Board is persisting in bleeding the people of this country by having them to pay from 30 to 32 cents per lb. for sugar when even the rats and mice can have all they may consume for nothing, is to say the least, puzzling. It cannot be fear of exposure of the bad mess they have made of the situation, that is already in part, known. The only other reasons apparent are obstinacy, and fear of defeat by political opponents. We have millions of pounds of sugar stored on various premises in this city for which the Food Control Board is demanding from an outraged public, 8 or 10 cents per lb. more than the article could be sold for if business men part of the situation is that of this part of the situation is that of this stored sugar, thousands of dollars worth are being destroyed. In one store to our knowledge there are piles of sacks of sugar, wet, burst open, half empty and gnawed full of holes. Sugar is scattered everywhere about the floors. The conditions are so filthy that no person with any delicacy would, after seeing for themselves care to purchase.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. One week after the Wall Street explosion, officials are still groping for the light that will lead them to a solution of the mystery. William J. Flynn, chief of the Department of Justice agents characterized as "plain bunk" stories that the explosion was accidental.

Polish Boy's Romance.

Sammy Kac, a diminutive hunchback, has proved what pluck and perseverance will do for a youth in the face of adversity. Six years ago Sammy arrived in New York from Poland, and because of his physical defects was sent to Ellis Island and ordered to be deported. Friendless, with little money, and unable to speak the tongue, his plea that he be given a chance was heeded by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society. He was finally permitted to enter the country under bond. With just about enough money to pay his fare he went to Detroit—and made good. Recently, he returned to Ellis Island to intercede for his mother and father, both 68 years old, and his brother Yankel (19), detained by the immigration authorities.

The very inspectors who had pitied the friendless deformed immigrant youth of 22 back in 1914 now found him a rich business man of Detroit. And Sammy proudly told them how he had taken a job at a lunch counter in a factory saving his slender earnings until he managed to start a business restaurant, and money poured in as the business grew. To-day he owns a general merchandise store, a temperance saloon, and a large restaurant. He has a fine home in Detroit, several automobiles, and is a prominent member of the Masonic order there. As his prosperity continued he sent for his sisters and brothers, and would have had his parents with him before now but for the war in Poland, which prevented their getting passports.

Origin of Our Modern Way of Saluting.

In the olden days, when a knight arrived at a neighboring castle, he took off his helmet to show his host that he did not suspect them of ulterior motives and did not anticipate a bang on the head with a sword or a mace. To enter helmeted amounted to saying that he preferred to run no risks. From this has come the custom of a man baring his head as greeting.

That a man should take off his right glove before shaking hands with a woman, comes from the same period, when travellers were gaunt.

BORE.

On Sept. 22, to ex-Pte. J. and Mrs. Noseworthy, 41 McDougall Street, a son.

MARRIED.

lets, which were removed to avoid injuring an uncovered hand.

The custom of firing salutes in the artillery comes to us from the time when guns were first used. It was then considered polite and courteous to any great personage who happened to arrive at the castle to load all the guns with shot rounds—not blank—and to fire them off as he arrived at the threshold. The reason for doing this was to show how they trusted their guests by emptying all the guns just before they came into the range of them. This practice was not kept up very long. Blank rounds were soon fired, instead of real ones. They were not so dangerous!

The origin of saluting the quarter-deck when one boards a man-of-war is that in days gone by, when a crucifix was always placed in the stern of the vessel, it was, of course, saluted by all who came on board. Though the crucifix has disappeared the custom remains, and men salute the place where it used to be.

The custom of offering the right hand in greeting is practically the same as that of baring the head or of firing salutes. When one man met another in long-ago times he held out his unarmed sword-hand to show that his intentions were not evil.

The habit of mounting a horse on the near side came about because as a man wore his sword on the left he could not very well mount his horse on that side. This must be a comparatively recent custom, for swords were worn quite short and on the right side even in the first years of the Christian era.—Ex.

Not Quite the Same.

"Yes, that is where he made a mistake," said McLean, referring to the latest act of stupidity on the part of McFarlane.

"I don't call such an action as that a mistake," replied old Cormack, dictatorially. "I call it a blunder."

"Well, it's all the same thing," returned McLean.

"No, you are wrong there," was Cormack's reply. "There's a great deal of difference between a blunder and a mistake."

"I should like to know what it is," answered McLean, skeptically. "Well, suppose you went to call on some friend, put an old umbrella into the stand, and took away a new one when you left, that would be a mistake; but suppose you put down a new one and brought away an old one, that would be a blunder; 'dye see?'"

A Poem By All the Poets

Result of a Year's Patient Work.
A reader, (John O'Condon's Weekly) sends the following singular poem—a compilation of lines selected by Mrs. H. A. Deming from thirty-eight of the standard authors of England and America. It was the result of a year's laborious research among their voluminous writings, and is a remarkable example of literary skill in selection and arrangement.

Why all this toil for triumph of an hour? (Dr. E. Young.)
Life's a short summer—man's a row'r. (Dr. Johnson.)
By turns we catch the vital breath and die. (Pope.)
The cradle and the tomb, alas! too nigh. (Prior.)
To be is better far than not to be. (Dr. Sewell.)
Though all man's life may seem a tragedy. (Spenser.)
But light cares speak, when mighty cares are dumb. (Daniel.)
The bottom is but shallow whence they come. (Raleigh.)
Your fate is but the common fate of all (Longfellow.)
Ungilded joys here to no man befall. (Southwell.)
Nature to each allots his proper sphere (Congreve.)
Fully makes fortune her peculiar care. (Churchill.)
Custom does offer reason overrule. (Rochester.)
A cruel sunshine on a fool. (Armstrong.)
Live well—how long or short permit to Heaven. (Milton.)
Those who forgive most shall be most forgiven. (P. J. Bailey.)
Sin may be clasped so close you cannot see its face. (Trench.)
Vile intercourse where virtue has no place. (Somerville.)
Then keep each passion down, however dear. (J. Thomson.)
Thou pendulum betwixt a smile and tear. (Byron.)
Her sensual snares let faithless pleasure lay. (Smollett.)
With craft and skill—to ruin and betray. (Crabbe.)
Soar not too high to fall, but stoop to rise. (Massinger.)
We masters grow of all that we despise. (A. Cowley.)
Oh, then, remove that impious self-esteem. (Beattie.)
Riches have wings, and grandeur is a dream! (Cowper.)
Think not ambition wise, because 'tis brave. (Davenant.)
The paths of glory lead but to the grave. (T. Gray.)
What is ambition? 'Tis a glorious cheat. (W. P. Willis.)
Only destruction on the brave and great. (Aclison.)
What's all the gaudy glitter of a crown? (Dryden.)
The way to bliss lies not on beds of down. (F. Quarles.)
How long we live not years but actions tell. (Watkins.)
The man lives just who lives the first life well. (Herriock.)
Make, then, while yet ye may, your God your friend. (W. Mason.)
Whom Christians worship, yet none comprehend. (A. Hill.)
The trust that's given guard, and to yourself be just. (R. A. Dana.)
For live how we can, yet die we must. (Shakespeare.)

Reporters and Their Duty.

(From the Lindsay Post.)
Many who are ignorant of the duties imposed upon the newspaper reporter resent the zeal and persistence displayed in asking questions and seeking information. Recently a New York Supreme Court justice granted an injunction to prevent Mayor Hylan from barring the representative of one newspaper from the meetings of a city board. In doing so, the judge said: "The press is the lever that moves the world as no other earthly power could move it."
In commenting on this decision, the Jacksonville Metropolis says: "The public is entitled to know the news. No other agency other than the newspapers can serve them in this respect. Reporters are not seeking facts for the satisfaction of personal curiosity. It is their duty to gather the news regard less of whom it affects, and when a stumbling block is thrown in their way it is an attempt to thwart the rights of the public."

The Geese That Lay the Golden Eggs.

(From the Wichita Eagle.)
The man who made a big fortune was speaking a few words to a number of students at a business class. Of course, the main theme of his address was himself.
"All my success in life, all my tremendous financial prestige," he said proudly, "I owe to one thing alone—pluck."
Here he made an impressive pause, but the effect was totally ruined by one student, who asked impressively: "Yes, sir, but how are we to find the right people to pluck?"
