THE Lady of the Night

Amelia Makes a Success

CHAPTER XXV. THE RESCUE.

She went down to the cabin, and sat before a sheet of paper, asking herself to whom she should write, and what she should say. At last she decided to write to Miss Deborah and to Elliot; she owed him that much at any rate. The first letter was short, consisting of only a few lines:

"Dear Mr. Graham,"—She pondered some time over the question whether she should address him thus, or as "Dear Elliot," but she decided on the former mode—"I hope you have heard long before this that I was picked up after the Happy Lucy was run down, and I hope that you have also heard that Captain Marks was saved. I am going to London, and shall try and get work there." She paused, with her head on her hand, her brows knit. She wanted to ask him to let her know whether Captain Marks had been picked up or not; but she dared not, for if she asked him to write to her, she would have to give him an address; and if she gave that of Mr. Benson, it would be easy for Elliot to trace her. With a sigh she finished:

"I hope you have not been very anxious about me. I was very happy on the island. I shall never forget it, or the friends there. Yours very faithfully, CYRIL MERTON."

She had longed to write "Yours affectionately," or "Yours affectionate friend," but she resisted the temptation.

Before he turned in that night the captain reported his finding of the lad, Cyril Merton, to the owners of the Araminta. He wrote another letter also, telling how he had found the boy, and that he would start him off to some friends of the lad had there. This letter the captain printed himself on his astuteness, addressed to Mr. Merton, Loneway Island, North Devon.

"Now," he said to himself, "if, for some reason or other, the youngster doesn't write—there's something queer about him; run away from home. I reckon the people will know that he's safe and sound. Anyway, I've done my duty by him."

CHAPTER XXVI. ALONE IN LONDON.

Next day the Araminta glided to her moorings at the docks. Captain Butler would not let Nora leave the vessel until he was able to accompany her and start her on the way to her friends; but after he had seen she was safe and sound, and Nora had taken farewell of the mate and the crew, she and the captain left the docks and went to the railway station.

"You're sure you're all right, my boy?" he said somewhat anxiously. "I should like to go with you, and see you safely landed where you are going; but I can't leave the Araminta today or to-morrow, for the matter of that. The cargo is ready, and I must get it on board. Touching that five-pound note—"

Nora assured him she did not want it, and thanked him again for his kindness to her.

"That's nothing," he said, with a wave of his hand. "I should like to have kept you, but the vessel would be too rough for you. You're a smart lad, and you'll make your way in the world, and you'll get those letters. Here's a post-box; let's put 'em in."

When the moment of parting came, his reluctance to say good-bye touched Nora so much that she had hard work to keep back her tears; and when he had seen her into the train, she hung over the door, muttering little exclamations of good-will and encouragement.

Nora felt very lonely as she lost sight of him; it seemed as if she were fated to lose all her friends. The strangeness and novelty of her surroundings increased her sense of loneliness, and she was anxious to reach the office of the Mr. Benson to whom she was going. The office was in the City; Nora alighted at the crowded station, and was instantly overwhelmed by confusion. It was her first acquaintance with London, and she had never imagined its vastness, the number of people, the rush and tear which went on around her. She asked her way of a policeman, who pleasantly advised her to take a bus, and actually put her into the proper one, and told the conductor where to get her down; but it seemed to her when she left the bus, that her difficulties had only increased; and she stood at the edge of the pavement, gazing at the huge buildings, and the hurrying crowds with bewilderment.

However, after a few more inquiries, she succeeded in making her way to the office of which she was in search. She climbed up three storeys, and found a door with the man's name printed on it; but the door was closed, and no response came to her timid knocking. While she was waiting there, a boy rushed out of an opposite office with such velocity that he nearly knocked Nora down.

"Ullio!" he said indignantly, "wot's yer game? Wot are you obstructing the King's thoroughfare for?"

"I am very sorry," said Nora. "I want Mr. Benson. Does he live here?"

"That's a good 'un!" remarked the boy. "Why, nobody lives here. And Benson don't even do business 'ere now. 'E's gone."

"Gone," echoed Nora in dismay. "You're clean gone, bust!" said the boy laconically, and the next instant was tearing down the stairs as if his life depended on his reaching the bottom in a given time.

Nora stood as if transfixed. She had intended to ask this Mr. Benson to help her find a situation; and she had fixed upon him because he did not know of her existence—she had always written to him in her father's name—and there was no one else to whom she could go without risk of discovery. This sudden baulking of her plans reduced her to utter helplessness, and she stood on the landing, trying to decide on some course of action.

She went slowly down the stairs and into the street, and walked up Cheap side towards the West End. The first introduction to London is an astounding one to most persons; it produces on Nora's mind a sense of bewilderment and awe which seemed to crush her. The noise of talking, the roar of the vehicles, the shouts of the omnibus conductors, almost deafened her; and she wondered how any one could live in such a place and under such conditions.

After a while she grew hungry; but she was literally afraid to enter one of the innumerable restaurants; they all looked too gorgeous, too expensive. To escape the noise and the crowd she turned up one of the streets on the right of the Strand, and presently came, near Holborn, to an unpretentious coffee-house, where she got a cup of tea and some bread and butter; and a little encouraged by the simple meal, she continued her purposeless walk. The London pavement made her feet ache, and her head ached in sympathy with them; she knew that she would have to find some place in which she could spend the night; and she began to wonder anxiously how long her money would last, and how soon she would be able to find employment.

In one of the quieter streets to the north of Holborn she saw a small hotel, and she went in and asked for a room.

"Oh, yes, we've got a room," said the woman at the little office in the hall. "Is your luggage here?"

"I haven't any luggage," said Nora, colouring.

"Oh," said the woman coldly and suspiciously. "Well, you'll have to pay in advance; bed and breakfast, five shillings and sixpence; and if you don't pay the money, inspected her room, which was little larger than a cupboard, at the top of the house, had a wash, and went out into the streets again. It was growing dusk, the lamps were being lit. After wandering about until her headache had become almost intolerable, she was glad to return to the hotel and get to bed. But she was as wakeful as London, which never sleeps. The street was one of the thoroughfares to Covent Garden, and the big market carts lumbered and rattled under her window during the night; and for the early hours of the morning cabs and omnibuses took up the burden of the noise and shade the dawn hideous.

She got up early, a day with her sense of helplessness weighing heavily upon her, walked round one of the squares which make an oasis in the London desert. Early as it was, there were a large number of people about, and as Nora looked at the boys hurrying to their work, she envied them; how long would she be permitted to enforce idleness; and what chance of employment would there be for her in this great city, which already seemed to be over-populated.

She went back to breakfast, and while she ate it, tried to pluck up her old spirit. There was a newspaper lying on the table, and she read the advertisements eagerly; but everybody wanted some one who could do something definite. But she was determined not to be discouraged, and immediately after breakfast she went out in search of work.

The details of the failure which met her at every place where she applied need not be set down. Sometimes she met with a polite refusal; but more often she stood on the sidewalk, trying to decide on some course of action.

She went slowly down the stairs and into the street, and walked up Cheap side towards the West End. The first introduction to London is an astounding one to most persons; it produces on Nora's mind a sense of bewilderment and awe which seemed to crush her. Young Girls Need Care

FROM the age of twelve a girl needs all the care the thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time.

If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter make life easier for her.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for such conditions. It can be taken in safety by any woman, young or old.

Read How These Mothers Helped Their Daughters

Cobourg, Ont.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me for my daughter. She had trouble every month which left her in a weak and nervous condition, with weak back and pain in her right side. She had these troubles for three years and frequently was unable to attend school. She has become regular and feels much better since she began taking the Vegetable Compound and attends school regularly. She is gaining steadily and I have no hesitancy in recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine."—Mrs. JOHN TOMS, Ball St., Cobourg.

Carbon, Alta.—"I was in a general run-down condition with a weak back and a tired feeling so that I did not feel like working. My mother was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and recommended it to me, so I have taken it and my back is better and I am now able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my neighbors and you may publish my letter."—Mrs. JOSEPHAT A. GREENER, Box 47, Carbon, Alta.

TEN-FINGERED MICE.

When a cake is nicely frosted and it's put away for tea, it looks as trim and proper as a chocolate cake should be. Would it puzzle you at evening as you brought it down the table? To find the chocolate missing from its smooth and shiny edge?

As you viewed the cake in sorrow would you look around and say, "Who's been nibbling in the pantry when he should have been at play?"

And if little eyes look gaily as they hungered for a slice, would you take Dad's explanation that it must have been the mice?

Oh, I'm sorry for the household that can keep a frosted cake smooth and perfect through the day-time, for the hearts of them must ache—

For it must be very lonely to be living in a house where the pantry is never ravaged by a glad ten-fingered mouse.

Though I've traveled far past forty, I confess that I, myself, even now will nip a morsel from the eight things on the shelf. And I never blame the youngsters who discover chocolate cake. For the tiny little samples which exultantly they take.

Household Notes.

Egg stains on silver may be removed by rubbing with a little salt.

Whole hominy should be cooked for twelve hours to be thoroughly done. The house fern should have a little ammonia in the water twice a week.

Slices of pineapple, bananas and sweetened strawberries make a good salad.

A good cedar floor oil applied generously is one way of preventing moths.

A dingy rug will come up bright and clean if wiped with ammonia water.

Mixed raisins and nuts added to the plain cookie mixture makes it delicious.

A heavy cold on the chest will be much relieved if hot compresses are applied.

LETHE.

Forget the symptoms of disease over which you're prone to cry aloud, those signs of string-knit in your knees, and hints of cricks along your back; forgetting all such things as these, you'll be surprised how high you stack. For brooding over all the lines; far better hear the wood-land choir, or catch a fish where streamlets shine; far better buy a wholebone lyre, and turn out madrigals like mine. And talking of your divers' life is surely bound to make them worse; forget the doctor and his pills, the undertaker and his hearse, and walk along the sunlit hills, and chant a glad and grateful verse. He to the greatest age survives who doesn't let the briny pour, who romps and gambols with his wives, and shows his head is never sore; and if you talk of itch and bites, you only make yourself a bore. Flocks of Suns.

Every new invention of the astronomer's observatory enlarges the distance he can peer into space and measure its receding boundaries, so that one can never say which is the farthest star.

But we can say which is at the farthest distance measured. This honour is at present borne by a tiny blur of light, which has no name, and a few years ago was not noticed, but which is now identified in the New General Catalogue of stars as Number 7,006—or, more precisely, N.G.C. 7,006.

It is not really one star, but a great flock of stars, probably containing more than the equivalent of a quarter of a million of our suns; and it is so

English Journal Praises Admiral Sims.

Guilty in Good Company--Miners Will Cast Ballot To-morrow--Newspaper Campaign Against Lloyd George--Northcliffe Press Hostile to Premier.

WORLD'S Y. M. C. A.'S ASSEMBLY.
UTRECHT, Holland, June 13. The annual meeting of the World's Young Men's Christian Association opened here on Saturday, with delegates from all National Organizations in attendance. The sessions will close next Monday.

SIMS IS PRAISED.
LONDON, June 13. In an editorial on this speech of Rear-Admiral William Sims, the Express says "he has been guilty of the crime of many great sailors—speaking his mind, without attempt at subtlety. The late Admiral Lord Bereford and the late Admiral Lord Fisher were offenders of the same sin. There is something in the vastness of the ocean and the unharmed elements that makes men of the sea impatient of such laws as sway small men of political affairs. Admiral Sims may have been indiscreet, that depends on the view point, but he has done more for Anglo-American good feeling than all the studied phrases of a hundred diplomats. He returns home, honored and beloved of England."

ROTARIANS MEET.
EDINBURGH, June 13. The International Association of Rotary clubs began its twelfth annual convention here today and will remain in session until Friday.

COAL MINERS BALLOT.
LONDON, June 13. Reports from various mining centres indicate a growing feeling among the men in favor of accepting the coal owners' latest offer. Meetings to explain the details of the offer will be held in many districts before the ballot of miners on Wednesday. A few of the Miners' leaders remain irreconcilable, telling the Glamorganshire miners that the owners' terms are surrender pure and simple for them, and arguing that they would get better terms if they continue to struggle. Against these sentiments is the definite declaration of Herbert Smith, Acting President of the Miners' Union, that a two-third majority of the owners' proposal will be considered necessary to continue the strike.

WILL ASQUITH COME BACK?
LONDON, June 13. The domestic political situation is obscure. Recent bye-elections have been won by the Opposition or Government on platforms which, to say the least, indicate profound dissatisfaction with some aspects of the Government's policy. There is a strong newspaper campaign against Lloyd George and especially against his Chancellor of the Exchequer, Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain. Lord Northcliffe and his brother, Rothermere, daily fill the air with criticism and complaint, not in London alone, but through the Provinces, where newspaper magnates have several journals under their control. Lord Beaverbrook is also developing the critical influence of the Daily Express, quite considerably. In the towns most of the present indications are in favor of an increased labor vote, and in the counties the Government is thought to have alienated agricultural laborers. In the North County there is a rapidly growing demand for the return to Liberalism. Gladstonian and Asquithian Liberalism, to use the phrases currently employed. "Where, it is asked, is the coalition going to turn for support?"

A DUBLIN REPORT.
LONDON, June 13. A despatch to the London Press Association from Dublin to-day said that Thomas Russ, said to be a United States Navy pensioner, was shot to death, yesterday evening, at Lisacul, near Castlereach by Crown forces.

STRICTLY NEUTRAL.
LONDON, June 13. The attitude of Great Britain with regard to the conflict between Greeks and Turkish Nationalists will be one of strictest neutrality, announced by the British Government leader in the House of Commons, announced to-day.

BELEAST'S DEATH LIST.
BELFAST, June 13. Riots last night added four more victims to Belfast's week-end death toll.

MORE HORRORS.
DUBLIN, June 13. Two former soldiers were shot dead last night in the street by three unknown persons. The Camlough District of Newry was again, this morning, of its third shooting in a week. The victim was a young man reputed to be a Sinn Feiner, who was taken from his home by a gang of men and murdered. He leaves a widow and three small children.

HOUSE ACCEPTS PORTER RESOLUTION.
WASHINGTON, June 13. The Porter Resolution, terminating a State of War with the Central Powers, was adopted to-day by the House as a substitute for the Senate Resolution repealing the declaration of war. The measure now goes to a conference.

NEWFOUNDLANDER KILLED AT NIAGARA FALLS.
NIAGARA FALLS, June 13. Arthur Knight, aged 26, of Newfoundland, employed on the Chippewa Power Canal Works, was fatally injured last night in the collapse of a scissor on which he was working. He fell sixty feet and never regained consciousness.

Legislative Council.
MONDAY, June 13th. The session opened at 4.30 p.m. The amendment to the Act to Encourage Sheep Farming was referred to a Select Committee consisting of Hons. Dr. Campbell, S. Milley, M. P. Gibbs, F. Steer, Sir P. T. McGrath and F. McNamara.

An Act to amend the Law Society Act was read a first time.
An Act with respect to cutting of timber and the amendment to the War Measures Act, 1914, were given a first reading.
The House adjourned at 5.15 p.m. until Thursday next.

Sirs,—I feel that I should be doing a wrong if I neglected to write you. I have had four tumors growing on my head for years. I had them cut off by a surgeon about fifteen years ago, but they grew again till about three months ago I had one as large and shaped like a lady's thimble on the very place where my hair should be parted, and it was getting so embarrassing in public that it was a constant worry to me. About three months ago I got a bottle of your Lintment for another purpose and saw on the label good for tumors. Well I tried it and kept at it for exactly two months, with the result that it had entirely removed all traces of the tumor, and were it not that they had been cut fifteen years ago, no mark would be seen. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.

Sims Tells How His Wife Finally Put End to Her Trouble

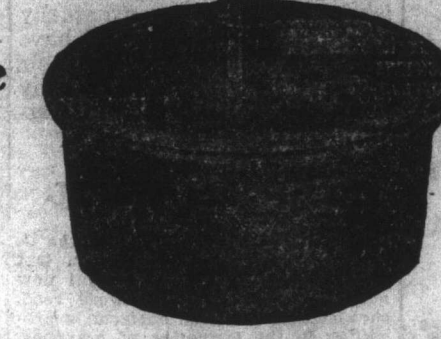

St. John's Man Feared She'd Never Be Well Again, But She Is Now Picture Of Health.

"I never saw such a change in anybody as has taken place in my wife since she began taking Tanlac," said James Sims, ship-rigger, living at 29 Mullock St., St. John's, N.F.
"I had about given up hope of ever seeing her well again, so Tanlac certainly brought the sunshine back to our home. I don't believe anybody ever had indigestion worse than she did. Nothing agreed with her and finally she ate barely enough to keep body and soul together. She suffered from periodic headaches, and became so nervous she got little rest, either day or night."
"We certainly owe a big debt of gratitude to the good neighbor who prevailed upon her to try Tanlac. This was exactly what she needed, and from the first dose her improvement was simply remarkable. She eats anything and everything she wants and nothing disagrees with her. She never has a headache now and her nervousness is all gone. In fact she is the very picture of health, and we both are enthusiastic over Tanlac."

In Memoriam.

JAMES N. HADDON.
In the death of James N. Haddon, of Fortune, one of the sterling school teachers of Newfoundland has passed away. Mr. Haddon was educated in the city of St. John's, his father before him having been an educationist and for many years a school inspector. After a short term spent in teaching at Carbonear, Mr. Haddon came to Fortune, and was for many years the only teacher there; so that most of the older generation as well as the younger, including many who have left to seek opportunity elsewhere, owe their elementary school training to Mr. Haddon, and they owe much of their character formation to his faithful and continued labours. After the introduction of the Superior Schools, Mr. Haddon continued the work of his department until about half a century of teaching had been rounded out; and he followed his calling as one of the most earnest and noblest of the men and women who have thus spent their lives in the service of their community. The boy or girl who went through Mr. Haddon's classes had a thorough elementary training in the great essentials known as the three R's, which, in spite of all the additions to our school courses, still form the equipment of the great majority who must leave the schools of all countries to go out early into their way in the great world about them.
Throughout most of the years of his life at Fortune, Mr. Haddon was also organist in the Methodist Church, and in this and other ways contributed a long and valued service. He retired from teaching a few years ago, and had since been enjoying a well deserved rest, when in the midst of seeming robust health he was stricken suddenly and passed away after only a day or two of illness. Not only at Fortune, but far away, there are many who deem it a great privilege to have enjoyed the benefit in their early days, of the training and example of a man who taught so faithfully; and here again, at the passing of a good school-master, it may be said that "Hankin loses a friend, and no man gets rid of an enemy."—COM.

Dr. Scholl's Foot-Eazer

"EASES THE FEET"

Hurting, burning, tender feet, cramped toes, "rheumatic" foot and leg pains, are often due to weakened or fallen longitudinal arches. In all such cases, Dr. Scholl's Foot-Eazer can be depended upon to give immediate relief.

It springily supports the arch, bridging the weight from the heel to the ball of the foot and induces solid foot comfort. Worn in your regular shoes—no larger size or "freaky" shape required. In fact, it materially improves the appearance of the shoe and foot and enables one to wear the smart, well-fitting shoes of the present styles without the slightest discomfort.

There is a

Girls, Don't Wash Your Face

Use Liska cold cream instead (you have never seen it). Use it once, and you will never be without it. Soap and water has a tendency to make the skin rough, and does not cleanse the skin as thoroughly as Liska cold cream. To prove it make this test: Wash your face with soap and water, dry thoroughly, then apply a Liska cold cream massage it well into the skin, then wipe off the superfluous cream with a soft white cloth; examine the cloth and see how clean the skin has become thereon. Liska cold cream cleanses, softens and beautifies the skin. For sunburn or after a dusty auto trip there is nothing like it. Use after shaving too. Let hubby or brother try it. Just compare Liska cold cream with any other you have ever used and you will need no further argument to convince you that it's the best. It's put up in tubes, the only sanitary way. Try it tonight. The water works are delightful counters everywhere including M. CONNORS, A. W. KENNEDY.

More Freak Bets Made on Dempsey.

Atlantic City, N.J.—A wager of $10.00 to $3,500 that Jack Dempsey will win over Georges Carpentier by a knockout, on by a general newspaper decision, in the Jersey City ring on July 2, is the first authentically reported bet made on the coming international battle along the board walk. The bet was made in the shop of a board walk broker by two wealthy members of the summer colony, and the stake placed in the hands of a third friend, who is to make the decision as to its payments after the fight. The wager was made as a result of a gentlemanly difference of opinion and the men involved sought to prevent rather than to seek publicity.

However, the figures of the stake approximate closely the odds which are generally accepted as proper bases for bets to be made here. A number of experts who have visited Dempsey's training camp for the specific purpose have looked in at the champion's corners and have imparted the news of local sporting men that they intend to place money on Jack at odds of three to one.

Bets that Dempsey will knock his French opponent out in from four to ten rounds have been made at various short odds, but there is a general feeling that there will be enough difference between the two fighters to make decision as to wager payments a matter of easy judgment.

What is the Object?

The opening of a Labor Registration Bureau in the Militia Building is one of the latest ideas of the Government. What is the object, or what good purpose can it serve to take down the names of the men, with various other statistical particulars, including the names of the clergymen under whose cure they worship? Can the Government find labor for those hundreds who need work so badly? If they can then let them get down to it without further hesitation or delay, and cut out the red tape and camouflaged immediate employment is a desideratum if a great portion of the population of the city is to be kept from utter destitution and want. The Government is the custodian of the people's money; the Government is responsible to the people for the expenditure of that money, and when times are bad and there is no work offering it were far more business-like if the Government were to let up on its extravagances and make some attempt, real or apparent, to conserve the welfare of those rapidly approaching a state of destitution. The present is not the occasion for picnic trips by honorable Ministers. Instant attention to an unprecedented condition of local affairs is more necessary than attendance at an Imperial Conference by the Premier of a country reduced to such a low ebb of fortune as is Newfoundland. More courage is needed to tackle the instant problem and successfully solve it, than in facing a Conference of Prime Ministers and talking a lot of platitudinous nonsense, while people are on the verge of starvation.

Let the Government consider the situation confronting them and act like men, not politicians. The present unhappy and unfortunate conditions cannot be overlooked any longer. There is grave danger in delaying any measures for alleviating suffering, suffering bound to become intensified if something is not speedily done. The accomplishment of that something is a responsibility which the Government cannot shift to the shoulders of others. Smug sympathy will not fill the mouths or clothe the bodies of hungry and naked children. The House of Assembly has been appealed to by one who moves about in the homes of the unemployed, one who daily associates with the workman and his family, and who knows whereof she speaks. The picture painted by this lady is not agreeable, but, and that is the pity of it, it is from actual life as lived in the City of St. John's to-day. Honorable members, both Government and Opposition cannot afford to turn a deaf ear to the "Appeal for the Unemployed." The laboring classes do not solicit pauper relief, and any attempt to offer them such will be treated with the resentment and contempt it deserves. But what is the meaning of all this registration? There must be something more behind it that is obvious to the superficial observer. A reporter's item in yesterday's Telegram told that it is the intention of the Government to make an effort to place men out of work in the positions formerly occupied by them. But if this is the case how do members of the Government propose to do it? If factories do not find it remunerative to keep their wheels turning, and have closed their doors because of a slump in the demand for their products, can it be expected that the Government can induce the managements to resume operations, when nothing but loss faces them? The same applies equally to other employers of labor. Will it then eventually mean that thousands will have to seek poor relief from their clergy? The question is worthy of consideration by all interested.

G. W. V. A. Meeting.

At the adjourned meeting of the G. W. V. A. held in the Club Rooms last night, the reports from several new outport branches, which were read, showed that much enthusiasm is prevailing in the formation of branches. A report from the sports committee was read in connection with Sports Day, which is being held on July 19th. Discussion took place with respect to the Canteen Funds and suggestions with regard to this were read from the Executive. This matter will be brought up for final discussion at a representative meeting of all ex-service men, which will be held on June 23rd. A brief outline of the preparations in connection with the ceremonies on Commemoration Day was read and the discussion of details was deferred until the next meeting which takes place on Thursday evening the 23rd inst.

Vigilance Committee

ENDORSE COMMISSIONS REPORT.
A meeting of the Prohibition Vigilance Committee was held in the Board of Trade Rooms on Monday, at which the report of the Royal Commission was discussed. The recommendations were considered to be in accord with the spirit of the Prohibition Act and to give promise of satisfaction to a large majority of the people of Newfoundland. It was unanimously decided to endorse the Commission's recommendations and to call a public meeting on Sunday next at 8.30 p.m. to further discuss the matter.

Schooner Ashore at Belle Isle.

A message received from Capt. Blandford of S.S. Glencoe states that an unknown schooner of small tonnage drifted ashore at the S.W. end of Belle Isle early last week and became a total wreck. The Marconi operator was unable to say on enquiry if the schooner drifted out of some harbor or not, but was satisfied when she went ashore that there was no life on board.

Talented Pianist.

MISS ALLISON RENNIE GIVES RECITAL.
Miss Allison Rennie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rennie, who has been attending the Halifax Conservatory of Music, gave her graduation recital recently and incidentally showed that she is a pianist of undoubted talent. The programme of the recital contained a variety of admirably chosen selections all of which were well calculated to test a far more experienced player, and the splendid manner in which they were rendered by Miss Rennie was a great tribute to her ability in the direction of Miss Jeanne Webster, soprano, and Miss Edith Jones, violinist, assisted in the recital.

Mr. Ayre, Lord Morris and the 24th June.

Mr. Ayre recently sent to Lord Morris the following cable and received the appended reply:
MR. AYRE TO LORD MORRIS.
"Dear Sir:—
"3 Heath Drive, London, N.W.3.
"Societies, War Veterans, N.I.W.A. and people generally want Newfoundland's Birthday, also Empire's Birthday, June 24th, observed as holiday. Governor desires 22nd, Coronation Day. People not interested in latter. Will you point out importance of 24th, as advertisement for Newfoundland and link of Empire, and get King's opinion. Wire me collect. Celerity essential."
"GEORGE AYRE."
LORD MORRIS TO GEO. AYRE.
"GEORGE AYRE, St. John's, N.F.
"It would be idle to ask King for opinion on subject named in your cable. Under our Constitution statutory and other holidays are matters entirely for Parliament of Newfoundland and its people. On no account would the King express an opinion."
"MORRIS."

The Council and the Parade Ground.

The Secretary of the Newfoundland Amateur Athletic Association has written the Council re their passing over the Parade Ground to the Association as a headquarters for the sports of the city and the country, and the matter came up for consideration at the last meeting and was held over until next meeting, so that the members might consider on what terms it might be granted, safeguarding the rights of the city.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Miss Margaret Kelly, of Placentia, desires to express her sincere thanks to Drs. Keegan, Aikens, also the Sisters and Nurses of the General Hospital for their kindness to her while at the institution.—adv.

Not Afraid of Men.

BOTH PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT FINED.
Both the plaintiff and defendant were fined in an assault case which was heard before Judge Morris, this morning in the Central District Court, latter $5.00. The plaintiff, a married woman, charged her stepmother's son-in-law with hitting her several times, and with finally punching her into unconsciousness. The plaintiff admitted that she threw several stones and a half brick at the defendant and other witnesses proved that she tore his shirt off. This garment was exhibited in court. When asked by Mr. G. W. B. Ayre if she were afraid of the defendant, plaintiff replied, "Oh, yes, catch me being afraid of a man." Mr. J. Barron appeared for the accused and Mr. G. W. B. Ayre for the plaintiff. In another case in which this time Mr. Ayre appeared for the defendant, the charge failed and the case was dismissed.

More Discrimination.

A most important question was debated in the House yesterday afternoon during question time, that of the proposed increase in duty on kerosene oil coming in here. Mr. F. F. Moore in discussing the matter, said that recently a local firm imported 50 casks of this useful commodity and sold it at 6 cents per gallon less than the current price, and he accused the Government of putting on this extra tariff to protect a certain corporation, instead of looking after the fishermen. But this is merely another instance of Government discrimination in favour of the rich at the expense of the poor.

Kirk Men's Association.

The Kirk Men's Association met last night in the Presbyterian Hall, over 150 being present. The meeting was presided over by Mr. J. W. Morris, on the platform with him being Rev. Capt. Kent and Rev. Dr. Power. Committees were appointed to attend to various matters and report later. Rev. Mr. Kent then gave a most inspiring address on "Church Matters," which was listened to with rapt attention by all present. A musical programme followed in the direction of Mr. F. V. Chesman and was greatly enjoyed. It was decided that meetings would be held on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month from October to April.

Perpetuating Memory.

During last week the Dickie Co. placed a neat mural tablet in the vestibule of the Bank of Nova Scotia. The inscription on the Bronze reads:
"To the memory of F. Abbott, G. M. Clarke, W. H. Norman, F. O. Roper, officers of this Bank in Newfoundland who gave their lives in the Great War."

$2.15 Last Summer is $1.50 This Summer.

It is high time for the men to have a change from present conditions. They are at great disadvantages and can not do justice to their work if still clad in heavy weight Underwear. BISHOP'S have received by S. S. Rosalind a shipment of Mulin and Balbriggan Shirts, Pants and Combinations. Underwear that was Two Dollars and Fifteen last Summer is One Dollar and Fifty this year.

CARPLINE IN DENSE FOG.—Yesterday the Furness Withy Co. received a telegram from the disabled steamer Carpline stating the ship was 330 miles East of this port in dense fog making slow progress. The Carpline is bound from New Orleans to Glasgow.

The Unemployed.

A large gathering of unemployed were assembled near the Militia Building this morning awaiting the posting of the bulletin announcing the names of those for whom work had been secured. Three notices were posted and 25 men were given work on a job out on the Topsail Road. The pay for this work is $2.50 per day until Monday next, when it will be reduced by 25 cents, with a further cut on the following week, when the pay will be $2.00 per day. Over 500 unemployed have been registered by Major Butler and his staff, and the work is still proceeding. It is thought that after a week work will be found for between 80 and 100 men. The whole matter has been taken out of the hands of the Unemployed Committee, which is arranging to hold another meeting to try and arrive at a more satisfactory way of relieving a situation which, they say, has not been improved by the new arrangements.

Football Notes.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.
The field will be in very bad condition for to-night's game between the Stars and Feildians, but owing to the no-postponement rule the game will have to be played. Whilst the Feildians play better football than their opponents, it should be noted for their "pop" and an exciting game should ensue. There are no changes in either team.

ACCIDENTAL OR DELIBERATE HANDS.

In reference to my note a few days ago under this heading, an esteemed correspondent sends me the following note which should be of interest to all footballers:—
"The Deliberate Hands.—The Laws of Association Football state that a player must deliberately strike the ball before the free kick is awarded. The player against whose hand the ball is kicked ought not to be penalised. 'Hands' is given if the player strikes the ball with the hand or the arm up to the elbow—not to the shoulder."

The Taxpayer's Burden.

New Sales Tax Amazes the House - Opposition Leader Objects to Suspension of Rules.

Yesterday's session of the House was a short but fiery one. The greater part of the debate was confined to question time and beyond giving a third reading to a few Bills, no business of importance was accomplished. The Sales tax which was introduced during the evening did not meet with a very favourable reception which was not to be wondered at. The increased burden of taxation is making life here intolerable and in spite of it all, there seems very little hope of the Prime Minister ever realising the impression he anticipates at the end of the next fiscal year.

The House met at 3:15 p.m. A Bill for the Quietness of (Land) Titles was introduced by the Prime Minister. The name of this Bill is a most ambiguous one and more than one member was under the impression that it dealt with titles in the respect of dignities and honours. The Bill was read a first time.

The Prime Minister asked that the motion with respect to the Railway be deferred. He explained that the Committee he proposed to have deal with the Railway problem should consist of four non executive Government members, four Opposition members, the Executive Council, the Auditor General, and an expert now in the country. He asserted that the Government could not undertake the running of the Railroad as at present constituted. The order referring to the suspension of the Rules was deferred at the Prime Minister's request, but not until it had undergone some severe criticism at the hands of Opposition members.

Sir Michael Cashin thought it most unusual to suspend the rules of the House. It was even indecent when the country was passing through such strenuous times. He informed the Government that the Opposition would oppose a Suspension of Rules to the full, and would not pass a single estimate until the Government reconsidered their decision. The House was the right place to discuss the Railway problem and he would not consent to go on any commission at 48 hours notice. Was the Prime Minister prepared to repeat the occurrences of last year, if he were, the Opposition were not. They were not going to rush any legislation through the House. He served notice again that the Opposition were not going to allow it.

NO UNDULE OBSTRUCTION.
The Prime Minister explained the reason for his motion for the Suspension of the Rules. He announced that he had no intention of leaving the country.

Mr. Higgins then, the Prime Minister had quite missed the point. He suggested the withdrawal of the motion for Suspension of the Rules. It quite only he passed with the concurrence of the Opposition as a two-thirds vote was required. The Opposition attitude was that it was not only not the practice in this country to suspend the Rules, but that in any case it was not proper in regard to money bills. He suggested that when the matters of Supply, Ways and Means and the Railway were considered, a Suspension of the Rules might be agreed to.

Mr. Bennett thought that the legislation now before the House was probably the most important that had come before the Legislature for some time and he said that the Government were ill-advised to have the motion for Suspension of the Rules on the Order Paper. The Opposition had no intention of undoing the Government's decision but they had to see that the people were fairly dealt with.

Sir Michael Cashin said the Prime Minister was not in earnest when he said the debate on the Budget was practically completed. Furthermore, the dealer in getting through the business of the House was caused by the Government who had closed the House for several days because they had no business to bring in.

Mr. MacDonnell thought that the Motion should be removed from the Order Paper because it was an imputation on the Opposition. It could mean only one thing, that the Opposition was responsible for the motion being made. The Government had got themselves out of it as best they could without casting reflections on anybody else.

A CURIOUS ANSWER.
Question time was productive of some considerable debate and some interesting information was elicited.

The Prime Minister informed Sir Michael Cashin that the building of the new freight shed at St. John's would not be proceeded with as there were no funds for this purpose.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries tabled replies to Sir Michael Cashin's questions.

Sir Michael hotly criticized the answer he received to question six which was as follows:—
"Sir M. P. Cashin—To ask Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the table of the House an estimate of the losses sustained by the fishermen and the business people of this country through the operations of his fish regulation policy since the present Government took office in November 1919 and if he intends to propose any measures to recoup these people even in part for these losses?"

The Minister's answer was that if any losses had been made in fish it was because of the cancellation of the Fisheries Regulations. This ridiculous answer aroused Sir Michael's ire and he roundly denounced the Minister who had given it. He took as a concrete example the case of John Penny & Sons of Ramea, who had lost $60,000 thanks to Government meddling with their fish. Sir Michael queried as to whether Penny was going to be compensated, and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was doubtful whether there were any losses on fish! Penny was here to-day looking for $60,000 robbed from him by the Government.

The answer he received was that the King could do no wrong. Sir Michael tried hard to get a proper answer out of Mr. Coaker but that usually loquacious gentleman sat still and did not utter a sound.

NEW LABOUR BUREAU.
The Prime Minister informed Sir Michael Cashin that no labour legislation would be introduced this session. Major Butler had been asked to draft a list of unemployed and their trades.

Sir John Creble thought it would be a case of "Good morning, good afternoon, come again to-morrow." Mr. Sullivan wanted to know if Major Butler's salary would be arranged for in estimates.

Mr. Bennett wanted to know if the organization of this Labour Bureau was common knowledge.

Mr. Higgins asked that the Government find some way of utilizing labour on some essential public works.

Some discussion arose over Sir Michael Cashin's question concerning the dredge. Sir Michael said it cost $37,000 last year and not a cent of revenue had covered what had the Government to say to this?

Mr. Fox said that if the dredge were to be used in St. John's West, could not St. John's East also have it for a short time?

Sir Michael Cashin—You're in opposition and will have to pay for it. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries thought it could be arranged. He promised to have a survey made.

Mr. MacDonnell in referring to the Dredge said it might be used to take him home later in case there was no Railway.

C. E. I. and Cadets Draw.

Many Fine Opportunities Lost.

Opportunity after opportunity for scoring was thrown away by the C.E.I. in last night's football game when they drew with the Cadets, the score being one all, before a very large number of spectators. The game seemed from the start as if it were going to be a good one, but it deteriorated into one of the poorest exhibitions of football seen for some time. A little combination was in evidence during various parts of the game, but the same old fault of hanging on to the ball too long, lost many fine openings. The C.E.I. made a mistake in playing Hammond full back for he missed several kicks which Churchill was not up to his old form. The Cadets' backs were also very weak. Often the curious sight of two players on the same team kicking against one another was to be seen and it was no unusual thing for a player to send the ball in the direction of his own goal. A most unusual incident occurred when the C.E.I. inside right on several occasions came over to the left wing for a throw in. Not only is it bad football for a player to start his play in that manner, moreover, it is quite confusing to his own side, for the men who should be there are quite sufficient. There was an excellent goal when the C.E.I. played a very good game at centre half for the C.E.I. and was always on the ball.

THE OPENING.
The game started with the C.E.I. defending the western goal. They pressed the Cadets from the start and showed some good combination at first. The C.E.I. however, was most indiscriminate when near goal. The Cadets managed to clear and bring the ball up field, but it was soon brought back again by the C.E.I. and after play in front of the Cadet goal following a corner, Ralph Stick headed the ball into the net in good style. From the centre the Cadets had a good try at goal, but poor shooting spoiled their chances. They had another try soon after, and with really good combination plus Mearney scored on a pass from Callahan. With the score level both sides worked hard, and the C.E.I. gradually began to press their opponent's goal. When poor shooting lost them some splendid opportunities. Chances that it seemed scarcely possible to miss, were missed. When the first half ended the score still stood at 1-1.

The second half was much worse than the first, play being very sloppy throughout. The wind had freshened considerably and with it at their backs, the Cadets attacked and several good combinations were made. The C.E.I. goal was in danger and the ball was just barely cleared. Wild kicking predominated during this half, the players seeming to be in a state of confusion. The C.E.I. was sending the ball in all directions. All that they seemed to realize was that the ball was there to be kicked. The C.E.I. were treated to a few thrills in the last few minutes of the game, but no score resulted. The game ended in a draw. Both the C.E.I. and Cadets have some good football in them and it is a pity they will not use their knowledge to better advantage. If they had played right through last night as they started, the game would have left little to be desired. Better things are hoped for from both teams before the season closes.

King's Cove Notes.
Mr. M. E. Mallowney returned from a visit to Summerville a few days ago. His story of the visit to the C.E.I. (John Mallowney) passed away to his eternal reward. The sympathy of the whole neighborhood goes out to Mr. Mallowney in his bereavement.

Mrs. (Capt.) Field and family arrived by last Prospro to spend the Summer at their father's home, and mother, (Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Brown).

Mrs. Wilson W. Brown and infant, who were the winter visitors of friends in England and Scotland came out last trip of S.S. Digby, and was a passenger to King's Cove on S.S. Prospro. Mrs. Brown looks well after her trip to the Old Country. "Welcome back to Newfoundland, and to King's Cove, Mrs. Brown."

Mrs. Samuel Brown who was visiting St. John's returned by Prospro.

Mr. W. E. Curtis who was residing at "Sault Ste Marie" the past 3 years, returned home last week.

Mr. Thos. Devine who was at St. John's on a business trip came home Tuesday past.

Rev. Fr. Dwyer of Bonavista was in town last week on a visit to Rev. Fr. Scully.

Mr. F. Sommerton Stipendiary Magistrate, Trinity, paid an official visit to King's Cove Monday last. He was accompanied by Sergt. Ryan.

Work was started on the Public wharf last week under the supervision of Mr. Richard Hancock. Without a doubt we will have a good wharf with such a competent man in charge.

Mr. Kenneth Monks has opened a grocery store adjoining his dwelling house. No doubt Mr. Monks' many friends will patronize him in his new line of business.

Capt. William Doyle's many friends in King's Cove were glad to hear of his success in winning the race from Sydney to St. John's at King's Cove is Capt. Doyle's birth-place—its only case of another "King's Cove Boy" making good. Keep it up Capt. Doyle.

Wedding Bells.

McCULLOUGH-FENWICK.

At the Church of the Epiphany, Toronto, on Wednesday, the 8th of June at 3:30 o'clock the marriage took place of Jacquelin, eldest daughter of Dr. J. W. S. McCullough and Mrs. McCullough, to Dr. Charles P. Fenwick, son of the Rev. Mark Fenwick, D.D., of St. John's, Newfoundland. The church was simply and attractively decorated with palms and daisies, and the Rev. Dwyer Hague performed the ceremony. The bride was charming in her gown of white crepe charmeuse and Carrick-managed with pearls. Her veil was arranged on her head with a bandeau of hand and caught the side with orange blossoms. She carried a superb bouquet of white lilies of the valley and butterfly orchids, and was attended by her sister, Dorothy, Patterson as bridesmaid. They wore lovely eighteenth century gowns of delicate orchid colour with taffeta plaid in the skirt. The bride wore a tulle hat to match, and carried a bouquet of lilies. The bride was given away by her father, Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Dylworth, accompanied by Miss Irwin the organ, sang "At the Dawning." The bridegroom was assisted by Dr. Tom Ballyntyne, and the ushers were Dr. P. Hockett, Brown, Dr. J. Harrison Howell, and Dr. Cecil Has. The groom's gifts to the bridesmaids were pearl pins, and to the best man and ushers gold cuff links and tie clips. After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, 61 Beatty Avenue. The bride groom received with Dr. and Mrs. McCullough in the drawing room, which was gaily decorated with flowers and ferns, and refreshments were served from a marquee on the lawn. Mrs. McCullough wore a handsome gown of embroidered yellow voile over taffeta with black sash, large black hat, and carried a bouquet of pansies. After the reception the bride and groom received two weeks' honeymoon in Quebec. The bride's going away costume was of navy blue with embroidered coat, a gray fox fur neck piece and orchid coloured silk hat. Dr. and Mrs. Fenwick will live at Niagara Falls on their return. Among the many beautiful wedding presents were some lithographs by the bride's uncle, James Kerr-Lawson, of London, England. A large number of guests attended the ceremony and reception.

GATHERAL-MULCAHY.
On Wednesday, the 8th inst., under ideal weather conditions the Parish Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Mr. Ernest J. Mulcahy, the popular Agent of the R.N. Co., led to the altar Miss M. Gatheral, eldest daughter of the late Mr. John Gatheral of this place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. J. O'Brien, P.P., in the presence of the immediate friends of the bride and groom. The bride looked charming in a handsome dress of white crepe de chine, embroidered with blue and pink silk. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Kitty Gatheral, who was neatly attired in a handsome dress of pink silk. The groom was ably supported by his cousin, Mr. W. R. Fanning of St. John's. The ceremony being performed the wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's mother, where a dainty breakfast was served. Bunting was displayed from the principal residences of immediate friends and sounded through the air, testifying to the popularity of the bride and groom. Amidst showers of rice and good wishes the happy couple left by train for Ferryland, where the honeymoon will be spent. The groom's present to the bride was a cheque, to the bridesmaid a roll of pins, and to the best man a gold stick pin. Mr. and Mrs. Mulcahy are both very popular in the social circles of their native town, and elsewhere, and carry with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends on their voyage across the matrimonial sea.

Police Protection Sought.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—The furious driving of motor cars from the King's Bridge to Kenna's Hill this past month is something outrageous. I feel safe in saying that some of the cars are driven towards the hill at a speed of seven miles an hour, and why the children at the King's Bridge are not all killed is certainly a miracle. From my experience the past month in passing the Bridge every day, I would advise Inspector-General Hutchings to place a policeman on duty to regulate the motor traffic, for it is as essential as in any part of the city, especially during the going season and the next three months.

It is rumored among the King's Bridge residents that they are going to apply to the Council asking that Kenna's Hill be barred from motor cars as the motor drivers apparently don't care a snap about the lives of the children in that vicinity. Hoping the Inspector-General will accept the above suggestion and send one of his men to protect our lives, as it might be the means of saving a great deal of ministerial emoluments, and thanking you, Mr. Editor, for publishing the above, I remain,
Yours truly,

An Appeal for the Unemployed.

Dear Sir—I call upon Heaven to guide my pen, that I may write only words which will help to ease the agony of the fathers and mothers in the homes where unemployment exists.

Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly, won't you weigh the words, written in weakness, but from a heart praying that they may be made strong? Listen, while I show you.

WHERE TO REALIZE LIFE.

In the thick of dull, grey service in the lowliest work if it be the work for which God calls them, do men find themselves, their happiness, their true life. Longfellow pictures this truth in "The Vision Beautiful." A monk in his cell, meditating on heavenly themes, has a vision of heavenly visitants. Some beggars come and ask for food at the monastery gate. He is loth to leave the glorious vision for a menial task.

"Should he slight his radiant guest, Slight his visitant celestial For a crown of ragged bestial Beggars at the Convent gate? Then a voice within his breast Whispered, audible and clear, As if to the outward ear, "Do thy duty; that is best Leave unto the Lord, the rest."

He went to minister to the poor, and returned to find the vision still standing where he left.

"And the Blessed Vision said, Hadst thou stayed, I must have fled!"

Emerson, our great poet, has said, "The strongest man is the one who stands most alone."

Somebody needs to raise the proper fund to feed the hungry little treasures in the homes of the unemployed.

For God's sake I say—send the men to work on a wage that will feed and clothe the ones committed to their care.

Sir Michael Cashin, Sir John Crosbie, Sir Richard Anderson, Squires, Mr. J. R. Bennett, Mr. Coaker, Mr. Higgins, which one of you will be the man that Emerson wrote about, and will stand alone for the right? This is not from the heart of an agitator, as some say I am, but from the heart of one who hears the cry for assistance, who sees the tears of a heart-broken father who has neither food nor fire for his family.

Listen! can you realize the awfulness of the moment, which must surely come when you and I will have to stand alone before a just God and answer. Remember—this is only a school for eternity. Are we doing our duty? I leave it to each one of you to answer. When you stand before that God what will you feel like, if he answers you?— "I was hungry, and ye fed me not; I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink; "For as much as ye did it not unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it not to me."

THE CROSSES.

"Somewhere in far off Flanders, A small white cross I see, It marks the grave of a soldier, A soldier who died for me."

In that beautiful land of "somewhere," Perchance by the crystal sea, We shall meet those brave, young heroes, Who suffered for you and me.

Shall the meeting be one of gladness, When we meet with our risen dead? 'Twas for you that we fought in Flanders, 'Twas for you that our blood was shed."

Somewhere on Calvary's mountain A rude, rough cross I see, There hung the Hero of Heroes The Christ who died for me.

And so the cross of the soldier, And the cross of the Calvary, To-day are calling, calling, "Oh! finish this fight for me."

"Give yourself to God and your Country," The call comes over the sea, From the thousands of crosses in Flanders, From the crosses of Calvary, These boys who bled and died for us.

"They are not dead, they live to-day above us, Ruling our lives, guiding our mind and thought, Leading us on to nobler life and action."

Biliousness
Means too much bile left in the blood by a deranged liver. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills set the liver right and biliousness and headaches disappear. One pill a dose. 25c. a box, all dealers.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills
GERALD S. DOTY, Distributing Agent, Water Street, St. John's.

What mighty deeds our living dead have wrought." And what about the rude, rough cross on Calvary's mountain. Was that agonizing death for others to be in vain?

Oh! that like St. Francis we may cry to Heaven to be given a taste of that agony to perform our life's mission. Heaven granted him his prayer and we know the life he led. Once more I ask that before the House of Assembly closes that employment may be given to the hundreds of men now idle, and what a lovely summer it will then be. The sun shining, the flowers blooming in the fields, the little children's laughter, not the cry for bread.

When I am gone, these words I want written on the little cross that will be placed at the head of the grave where I will rest; a wooden cross perhaps, but these are the words—(Weigh them well you.)

"It is to the ears that are deafened your choicest things are said. The words that the living longed for, you waste them upon the dead."

Many a little child and mother too, will be lying cold in death, if something is not done to give the fathers work.

Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly, won't you listen to me, and see that assistance is given those unemployed men, and I must not forget the hundreds of girls also out of work on account of the factories closing, whom I have got to love and respect. Some of these girls are boarding without a friend, others are the sole support of their mothers and orphan brothers and sisters.

Oh, please, do not feel it is only Julia Salter Earle that has written this, and slap it in the waste paper basket, but realize it over and over, until you realize the need as I do. What an opportunity men of the Government when you know that "He that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord."

I remain, "The Friend of the Working Class," JULIA SALTER EARLE. St. John's, June 12th.

Introduction of Porcelain

When fine hard porcelain was first brought to Europe from the Far East, in the fifteenth century it was regarded with admiration that mounted almost to awe, a vessel of porcelain being valued more than one of gold. Extraordinary virtues were attributed to this material, among them that of revealing the presence of poison by breaking or by losing its translucency. The physician of the Archduke Maximilian of Austria thought it almost beyond belief that the Turks should use this precious china daily to drink water and sherbet. Many guesses were hazarded by the learned as to its composition and mode of preparation. Scaliger believed that it was a compound of powdered gypsum, egg shells and lobster shells, kneaded into a paste in the earth. It was supposed to be taken out by the son or nephew of the man who buried it, and moulded into delicate translucent vessels.

Gonzales de Mendoza, who had travelled in China and had seen the process of manufacture, announced that the hardening was done in a furnace. This was confirmed by Alvarez, the Jesuit missionary, who added the further information that while the necessary clay was found in many parts of China all porcelain was manufactured in one town of the province of Chiamsi, because the water of that part of the country was especially adapted to the purpose. Some of the vessels, he explained, were tinted blue, some red, some yellow, but those presented to the king were yellow only. The "Province of Chiamsi" is undoubtedly the Province of Kiangsi, and the town, Ching-te chen, which has been noted for its production of fine porcelain from the fourteenth century.

Those Mesmeric Eyes of Descamps.

New York.—Will Carpenter beat Dempsey by hypnotism? French fans are betting he will, after the first chapter of the boxer's reminiscences were published in Le Petit Parisien to-day. Carpenter relates that his first public appearance was at the age of 11, in a medium act, with his present manager, Descamps, in whom hypnotic powers are highly developed, writes the special correspondent of The Times.

Already, after his sensational defeat by Carpenter, the English champion, Beckett, complained he had been influenced by the mesmeric eyes of Descamps fixed on him from outside the ropes. Bombardier Wells, too, once told correspondents that the moment he entered the ring with Carpenter he was overcome by a feeling of uneasiness which he was unable to explain. Witnesses of the wretched showing of both the Britishers against the young Frenchman declared, they were different from their usual selves, and from the outset exhibited a nervousness and uncertainty that made them beaten men before a blow was struck.

Skeptics may scoff at stories of the "evil eye," but if Dempsey is wise he will take no chances and insist that Descamps be fitted with a pair of opaque motor goggles through which the malevolent emanations pass.

A LETTER.

Here is a letter which has come to me recently:

"I would like to ask you to write your opinion of a man married the second time who, whenever somebody comes to the house or he meets anybody on the street or anywhere, never misses a chance to refer to his first wife in the presence of his second wife.

"To my way of thinking this is very humiliating and insulting to his second wife, and yet he tells her she loves her. What do you think of him?"

"Yours truly, "Unhappy." Silly Or Cruel.

What could anyone think of such a man? That he is either silly or cruel, I suppose.

I started to call him tactless, but that seemed a bit weak for an action which anyone with a glimmer of sense must know would embarrass and discomfort.

And yet how often one hears husbands and wives who unquestionably really care for each other, nevertheless rub each other the wrong way with what seems to an outsider like the most unnecessary crudeness.

"That's Just Like You."

For instance, the wife makes some mistake and the husband promptly says, "Yes, that's just like you." Now to be told that an awkwardness

An Ordinary Amendment.

CONSTITUTION NOT INVOLVED, Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—There is something of a melo-drama, or mock-heroics in Mr. MacDonnell's planting of himself on the constitution, striking a "Come-one-come-all, this-look-shall-it-from-one-come-all, this-look-shall-it-from-one-come-all" attitude, his firm-basis-the-soon-as-I-attitude, never recede from his determination to protect the constitution of the land. Mr. MacDonnell is all alone in his solitude for the constitution. It is not involved.

The granting of women suffrage would be a change in the constitution, says Mr. MacDonnell, and the legislature has no mandate to do that, and they couldn't do so without the mandate of the people. I have a hazy idea that even with that mandate the legislature wouldn't have power to change the constitution—I fancy that the Imperial Parliament would do that little thing. As a matter of fact, the matter of constitution doesn't come in. The Election Act does. To make women suffrage operative it is necessary only to amend that act so as to read "all males and females over 21." The legislature is supreme in Newfoundland. It has power to amend the Election Act, even though on more than one occasion at least it has used. It need take no plebiscite on the question at all. Then again, it may take one from the present constituents—the men. Still again, it may take one from the women only. Again, it may take one from men and women—and in either case act contrary to the result of the plebiscite or in accordance, just as it chooses. Now, it is quite constitutional for the legislature to amend the Election Act to give women suffrage, without taking any plebiscite. Perhaps it may be undemocratic. I do claim that that would be less undemocratic to amend without a plebiscite than to amend with one from the men—when the matter is one which affects all the people, men and women. That is to say, if there is to be a sounding of views, it should be a sounding of the views of all the people considered, or none. Suppose that to amend the Election Act without any plebiscite were undemocratic in the short run; would not the fact that it was done to ensure greater democracy justify it? When two principles are involved the greater one should prevail.

Mr. MacDonnell wants to have the women suffrage matter referred to the men (i.e. part of the people concerned), who are the legislature's constituents. Now, Mr. MacDonnell happens to be in Ireland. Suppose he is introduced in Ireland. Suppose that I should propose that the way to settle the Irish question was for the British legislature to take a plebiscite from the people of England, Scotland, Wales and Ulster, but not the part of Ireland outside Ulster. Mr. MacDonnell would not accept that. Why? Because, for one reason, the plebiscite would not have been taken from all the people concerned—all the people had been taken from the British legislature's constituents. (The Irish people outside of Ulster are not constituents of the British legislature.)

Now for one or two points of Mr. MacDonnell's observations on democracy. He says that there is no democracy but political democracy. He denies that there is or can be such a thing as social democracy—or such a thing as the principle of democracy worked out in industry. Then under what huge hallucination are the Social Democratic organizations of England, Germany, France, Italy, etc., laboring? Tell that yarn to the eighty millions who have dedicated their lives to the attainment of social democracy, Mr. MacDonnell!

Mr. MacDonnell seems to have fallen into the error which befalls many minds less clear than his own. Referring to "equality" he says "men as men are equal, but not equal as individuals." Surely that makes the common mistake that anyone supposes that men are equal in capacities, attainments, cleverness, brilliancy, etc.? He must know that equality means equality in the right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—in other words, equality of rights.

One more point and then I'll close for lack of space: "I am unaware of any democracy in ancient times where women had a vote, and no one can deny that these democracies boasted of rule by the people." What if they did boast?—clearly they didn't have rule by the people and for the people, because women are people, in spite of the heinous crime of their sex.

May I appeal to the liberalism which must be in Mr. MacDonnell and to the breadth of his view and vision, to vote for woman suffrage? Mr. MacDonnell, like myself, is unmarried; also like myself, he must know that such a fine young fellow cannot long remain in that condition. Why not save himself an enormous amount of trouble, by ceasing his opposition to woman suffrage? 'Twill make him feel better. I know.

Yours sincerely,
J. H. SMALLWOOD,
June 12, 1921.

Animals Doctor Themselves.

A child's pet canary recently received surgical treatment at the Seaman's Hospital, Greenwich. The bird's leg was badly fractured, and its owners appeal for help met with a ready response from the house-surgeon.

He very tenderly lifted the tiny leg, gravely applied a match splint, and the fracture was set. The patient is reported to be doing well.

Usually, animals are their own medical advisers and surgeons, and some wonderful cures have been put on record. Cats will devour chew grass, as do dogs; but the latter require a certain kind, commonly known as "dog-grass." It is thicker and coarser than the usual variety.

Sheep and cows seek out a certain herb. Rheumatism-sufferers stay out of the sun's glare. A wounded antelope stanches the flow of blood by dressing the injury with leaves and grass. The sting of a viper seldom kills one of the four-footed tribe; they know how to deal with this danger.

Most wonderful of all is the ant-worm ambulance and hospital. Numbers of these marvellous little creatures are allocated first-aid duties,

Thoughtful Bricklayer.

(From an Exchange)

A man was walking along the street, when he drew near to some laborers, who were engaged in building a house.

As he passed the scaffolding a brick accidentally fell, striking him on the shoulder.

Looking up to the men who were two stories high, he shouted indignantly: "Hi! up there! You've dropped a brick on me!"

"All right!" responded one of the bricklayers. "You needn't trouble to bring it up!"

Sales Tax Resolutions.

To be submitted to a Committee of the Whole House on the subject of a tax on goods sold in the Colony.

- BE IT RESOLVED THAT:
- (1) There shall be assessed, levied and paid upon all goods imported into this Colony for the purpose of sale therein, including non-dutiable goods, a tax of five per centum of the value thereof, which shall include the invoice cost of the goods and the freight and customs duty, if any, payable thereon;
 - (2) This section shall not apply to the articles enumerated in schedule A thereof.
 - (3) The Minister of Finance and Customs may prescribe such forms of bills of entry, warrants, declarations and other documents as he may deem fit for the purpose of the admission of goods taxed hereunder and the collection of the tax thereon.
 - (4) This tax shall be payable to His Majesty's Customs, and shall be collected in the same manner as customs duties are now collected; and the provisions of the Customs Act shall, subject to these resolutions apply in the case of goods taxable under these resolutions, as if made a part thereof;
 - (5) Where goods are imported which are not intended for sale in the Colony, the Minister of Finance and Customs may require a declaration upon oath to be made by the owner of the said goods or the person making entry thereof setting forth the purpose for which they will be used.
 - (6) There shall be assessed, levied and paid upon all goods manufactured in this Colony and sold therein the following taxes:
 - (a) In the case of goods upon which an excise tax is payable, a tax of two and one half per centum of the price at which such goods are sold. The said tax imposed hereunder shall not be included in sale price in computing the said tax.
 - (b) In the case of all other goods, a tax of three per centum of the price at which such goods are sold. The said tax imposed hereunder shall not be included in sale price in computing the said tax.
 - (7) This section shall not apply to the articles enumerated in Schedule B hereof.
 - (8) The taxes mentioned in the next preceding section shall be paid by the manufacturer of the goods.
 - (a) In the case of goods on which excise duty is payable, to the Minister of Finance and Customs in the same manner in which such excise duty is paid; and the provisions of the Customs Acts relating to the payment and collection of the said tax; and the Minister may prescribe such forms as he may deem fit to be used in connection with the collection of the said tax; and
 - (b) In the case of all other goods, to the Minister of Finance and Customs through the office of the Tax Assessor.
 - (9) Every person (which term shall include any individual, firm, body, corporation or association and the legal representatives of such person) manufacturing goods liable to taxation under section four hereof, on which no excise duty is payable, shall on or before the first day of every calendar month without demand furnish to the Tax Assessor at St. John's a statement verified by affidavit of the sales made by him of such goods during the month preceding the date of such statement, setting forth the number, amount and value of such sales with all necessary details.
 - (10) The statement and affidavit in the case of a corporation, association or other body shall be made and signed by the president, secretary, treasurer or chief agent, having a personal knowledge of the affairs of such corporation, association or other body, or, in any case, by such other person or persons employed in the business thereof as the Tax Assessor may require.
 - (11) If the Tax Assessor, in order to enable him to make an assessment under this section, desires further information, or if he suspects that any person who has not made a statement is liable to taxation hereunder, he may, by registered letter, require additional information, or a statement containing such information as he deems necessary, to be furnished him within fourteen days.

(4) The Tax Assessor may require the production, or the production on oath, by any person liable to taxation hereunder or by his agent or officer, of any letters, books, invoices, statements and other documents.

(1) For every default in complying with the provisions of the next preceding section, the taxpayer, and also any other person or persons required to furnish a statement, shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars for each day during which the default continues.

(2) Any person making a false allegation in any statement or in any information required by the Minister of Finance and Customs or the Tax Assessor shall be liable, upon summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding ten thousand dollars, or to six months' imprisonment, or to both fine and imprisonment.

(1) The Tax Assessor shall determine the amount payable by a taxpayer under section six hereof, and shall thereupon issue a statement in such form as he may prescribe to such taxpayer, notifying him of the amount payable by him for the tax. The tax shall be paid within one month from the date of mailing of the notice of assessment in such form as he may prescribe to such taxpayer, notifying him of the amount payable by him for the tax. The tax shall be paid within one month from the date of mailing of the notice of assessment in such form as he may prescribe to such taxpayer, notifying him of the amount payable by him for the tax.

(2) The Tax Assessor shall not be bound by any statement or information supplied by or on behalf of a taxpayer, and notwithstanding any statement or information, or if no statement has been made, the Tax Assessor may determine the amount of tax to be paid by any person.

(3) The assessment of any tax hereunder by the Minister of Finance and Customs or the Tax Assessor, as the case may be, shall be final and conclusive.

(4) All taxes and penalties assessed and imposed under the provisions of these resolutions shall be recoverable as a debt due to His Majesty from the person upon whom they are assessed or imposed, and may be sued for and recovered in the name of His Majesty.

The Minister of Finance and Customs shall have the administration of these resolutions, and the control and management of the collection of the taxation levied hereby, and of all matters incident thereto, and of the officers and persons employed in that service. The Minister may make any regulations deemed necessary for carrying these resolutions into effect.

These resolutions shall come into effect on Monday, the 13th day of June instant.

A Bill shall be introduced to give effect to these resolutions:

SCHEDULE A.
Goods exempted by Act of Legislature, other than the Revenue Act, from taxes, duties or other charges.
Flour.
Raw materials, when imported for use in manufactures within the Colony.

SCHEDULE B.
Goods exempted by Act of Legislature from taxation, Fishery and agricultural products of all kinds.
Goods sold for export out of the Colony.
Lumber the product of Newfoundland.
Cooperative supplies and manufactures.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

RIOTING RENewed.
BELFAST, June 13. Notwithstanding patrolling of vicinity, rioting was renewed in the neighborhood of York Street this forenoon. The Sinn Fein side had marksmen engaged in sniping, virtually all the morning. When the police appeared, with rifles they were fired upon, but returned the fire, and later an armored car arrived in the district. Two persons were wounded and sent to hospital. Throughout the afternoon the feeling in the district continued tense.

RAISED TO THE PURPLE.
ROME, June 13. Three Italian Cardinals were added to the Sacred College to-day, when Pope Benedict, in secret consistory, raised to the purple, Monsignor Giovanni Tacchi Porcelli, Papal Major Domo; Monsignor Camillo Laurenti, Secretary of the Congregation of the Propaganda; and Monsignor Achille Ratti, Papal Nuncio to Poland.

AGITATOR ON TRIAL.
BERLIN, June 13. Max Hoelz, the Communist leader, who last year incited a reign of terror in Prussia, during which murder and arson were rampant, was arraigned before a special court here to-day, on charges of murder, high treason and disturbing public order. Unusual circumstances attended the trial, as those entering the court room had to submit to being searched. The prisoner was escorted to the dock by four soldiers and several policemen. In reply to questions put by the President of the Court, Hoelz made a rambling statement, in which he refused to regard himself as a person accused of crime. On the contrary, he declared it had been provoked by the authorities. Hoelz also refused to answer questions relating to his private life.

BELFAST IN A FERMENT.
BELFAST, June 14. Rioting, accompanied by heavy revolver and rifle fire, was renewed in the Clifton Street area of this city early this morning. In authoritative circles it was asserted that this rioting was organized by republicans for the purpose of preventing the visit of King George to Belfast on June 22, for the purpose of attending the State opening of the Ulster Parliament. Top hatted merchants dodged about mid-flying bullets, and one newspaperman had a very narrow escape as a lamp post behind which he had sought shelter, was struck by bullets. Stenographers fled screaming from the battle zone, and tramcars, with their passengers lying flat on the floors, dashed past at record speed.

An Important Matter.
A largely attended meeting was held in the Board of Trade Rooms this forenoon, when a proposed amendment to the Warehouse Receipts Act was considered. The matter is of great importance to the business community and there was considerable discussion. The meeting adjourned at 1 p.m. until this evening, when the matter will be further dealt with.

"REG'LAR FELLERS"

(Copyright 1919 by George Matthew Adams—Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office)

A Chinese School of Instruction.

Beggars are numerous in China; there is no city or town of size in which they are not found in considerable numbers.

Many of these beggars are in real poverty, not because of shiftlessness and a distaste for labour, but because of an overcrowded population, and the widespread destitution caused by the frequent floods which sweep away the crops and leave the people to starve by the thousand.

The Chinese as a race are far from being a lazy people, having proved beyond question that they are both industrious and frugal. No labour is too hard, and the average Chinese will work all day at the most laborious task for a mere pittance in order to sustain life.

Ranks as Royalty.

On the other hand, there are many beggars in China who have grown well-to-do by preying upon the sympathies and the purses of others. In some sections there are regular organizations of beggars. Committees are appointed to see to the revenues. These committees are usually squads of itinerant beggars who go out at stated times through certain districts, demanding their fees, a specified amount placed upon the head of each household like a tax.

The person taxed dare not refuse unless he shows strong reason that if he should do so it would result in the bringing down upon him of a swarm of beggars, to be fed and housed so long as they chose to remain.

Some cities, notably Peking and Shanghai, have either a prince or king of the beggars. He ranks as royalty, not only with his followers, but with others of the people who dare not resist his mandates. When he issues a command it must be obeyed. When he levies a tax it has to be paid. The king of Shanghai beggars is attired in full royal robes, his crown a bedecked turban or bonnet of several colours, while in his hand is his sceptre twisted about with gay stripes of cloth.

These organized beggars have considerable ingenuity in planning devices for the tricking of the public, especially the many Europeans who either reside in or are visitors to Peking and Shanghai.

This story of a beggar is told by a missionary: "A man came to me pointing to his wrist, where there was a fearful gash extending through the tendons and blood vessels. My suspicions were aroused, and I grasped the beggar's arm. He grappled with me, struggled hard to get away. In the struggle a casting of flesh-coloured wax, with red paint to represent blood, fell from his wrist, which was in as good condition as that of the other arm."

Horrible Self-Torture.

There are even schools for beggars in some of the cities and towns over which the prince or king presides. It is his part and that of his assistants to devise tricks with which to impose upon the charitably inclined.

Some of these tricks bring horrible results to the beggars themselves. In one of the beggars' schools in Shanghai they put lime in the eyes in order to produce blindness; tie a string tightly around the foot above the ankle and let it cut into the flesh until the foot becomes dead and drops off, so that the raw stump and bone can be exhibited as the beggar sits by the roadside; cram dirt and mud into the ears till deafness ensues, the ears inflame and become a mass of sores, and reduce the frame by starvation to a skeleton-like appearance.

Not Dead Yet.

Many of the prehistoric beasts and reptiles are still with us, though we do not always recognize them.

Our common hedgehog was one of them. He lived and flourished in these islands thousands of years ago, his survival mainly to his prickles, his comfortable disposition and careful habits; and, seeing he is a useful little beast, nobody is sorry that he outlived the dragons of old.

The common shrew is literally "as old as the hills." His remains have been found as deep as men have ever dug, and that means a very ancient history indeed. The shrew is the smallest animal on the globe, and, despite his size, he is the champion "fly weight" of the field. He also has a frightful temper, especially when "he" is a "she." Hence the term "shrew".

Turtles and tortoises are old-timers, too. The huge Galapagos tortoise at the Zoo are real "prehistorians"; and, in fact, all the tortoise tribe is very ancient.

The armadillo, that horny-backed creature which lives in South America, owes its parentage to an era when time was young. And even our old friend the elephant belongs to an ancient race, as well as our own companion, the horse.

The last mentioned represents civilization, for he has steadily improved as time has gone on, whereas the other creatures mentioned have generally deteriorated, being small in comparison with their far-off progenitors.

Novelty galahs and beaded girdles are worn with cloth dresses. Appetite sauce is delicious on batter pudding, and makes a change from the usual lemon sauce.

THE LAST CALL

Do you hear it, Newfoundlanders? It is the call to each and every one of you to help your fellow countrymen to employment and independence.

We have during the past ten weeks brought before your notice Newfoundland's depressed trade conditions. The numbers of unemployed increase daily--unless ALL of you pull together and in the right direction where will it end.

There is only one means by which this can be accomplished, and that is by your CON- STANT purchasing of LOCAL MADE GOODS the manufacture of which keep your country men and women employed.

Below we list many articles made in New Newfoundland that equal and in many cases are more suited to the needs of the country than the imported article. Buy the goods made at home and help to save your country.

Miss Ella Johnson Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"My trouble began as small pimples and in a few months they grew worse and my forehead was just a mass of large pimples. They were hard and red and caused me to scratch, and I was disgusted for the time. They made me embarrassed when out in company. I tried everything but it was of no help. I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and sent for a free sample. After using them I bought more, and when I had used one case of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment for about a month I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Ella May Johnson, Box 65, Carleton Place, Ont., March 9, 1920.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Tablets promote and maintain skin purity, skin comfort and skin health when all skin fails.

Mary Magdalene.

Mary Magdalene probably takes her name from Magdala, the city which she once lived, which was situated somewhere near Tiberias on the west shore of Galilee.

By some writers Mary Magdalene is set down as the same person as Mary of Bethany, sister of Lazarus and Martha, while others claim that she and the "woman who was a sinner" are one and the same. But there is nothing in the New Testament to support their contentions. Nor is there any reason, so far as history tells us for the now common opinion that she had been a woman of impure life.

St. Luke says that our Lord in His journeyings throughout the Holy Land was accompanied by some good women among whom was Mary Magdalene, "out of whom went seven devils."

Of course, this account may be taken either literally or figuratively. But there is no real reason why it should not be read literally, although nothing in that statement could be taken to imply that Mary Magdalene was a "woman of sin."

Her malady, demoniacal possession, was a common one in that day, and Jesus Christ's cure of it made her His grateful follower. Evidently from the little ascribed to her she was a lady of consequence and possibly, as tradition asserts, of much wealth.

At all times, she showed the most devoted affection to Jesus Christ and we learn that she followed Him about, ministering to Him, no doubt helping from her purse to sustain the Apostolic band, as good women ever since have striven to nourish His Church.

She stood with two other Marys at the foot of the cross, and later saw the Blessed Saviour laid in the tomb. She has the honor of being the first recorded woman of the reality of the resurrection, and was sent by Him on a truly Apostolic mission to convey the glad tidings to His disciples.

It should be noted, as not without significance, that St. John, who wrote the fourth Gospel to complete what the other three Evangelists had left unfinished, is at special pains to narrate the touching scene in Arimathea

Joseph's garden, where Mary Magdalene, weeping outside the empty tomb, supposed the risen Lord "to be the gardener."

Surely, it is in order to remark, that the woman to whom that special revelation was made, to whom the Ascension into heaven was explicitly revealed, was held in peculiar esteem by the Redeemer of mankind!

That was the last opportunity of the name of Mary Magdalene in the New Testament. She had ministered to the Saviour. She had witnessed His death of humiliation. She had seen Him laid in the tomb, truly dead. She had been a witness, against hope, of His Resurrection in the new "spiritual body" of the future life. That all important duty done she disappears.

Tradition has been busy, however, with her name. How much of truth the tradition contains, it is now impossible to say. But the story goes that the Jews, incensed at the attestation of the truth of the resurrection by personages of such importance as Joseph of Arimathea, Nicodemus (a ruler of the Jews) and Mary of Magdala, and not daring to put them to death, lured them to the sea shore and set them afloat before the wind with a sail, but neither helm or oar. With them they carried a silver cup or chalice in which they had gathered drops of our Lord's precious blood, as they prepared His Body for the grave.

Their little craft was wafted along the Mediterranean, past the Pillars of Hercules, (now the Straits of Gibraltar) across the Bay of Biscay and made a landing on the south coast of Britain. At Glastonbury they built a little rude church of wattles, or willows, where they set the sacred chalice. And there before their eyes, Joseph is said to have struck in the ground a thorn stick he carried, which took root, and grew into the Glastonbury Thorn that existed down to our own times.

The travellers, like all the early Christians, were enthusiastic missionaries, and some historians accord credit to them with the foundation of the ancient British Church, which certainly existed in Apostolic days, and was afterwards almost exterminated to many districts by invading Saxons.

The beautiful set of stories of the Holy Grail, narrated in the ancient histories, and retold by Tennyson in his Idyll's of the King, are centred in the Grail, or Chalice, which Mary and her companions brought with them to Britain. For the tradition to which we have referred, has had great influence upon history and literature, and is at least old enough to merit respect.

According to the old stories Mary, thus becomes a British saint, and is said to have died in Britain, although there is no tradition of the place of her burial, which is probably what she would have desired. For her there was only one place of pilgrimage, the heaven into which she saw the Lord ascend.

A Lonely Prince.

Crown Prince Hirohito of Japan must regard his English trip—he is accompanied by Viscount Chinda, lately ambassador in London—as an emancipation from the well-meant efforts of a multitude of guardians and counselors. He is probably the most lonely figure of his years in the few remaining royal families of the world. The films of King George and the Prince of Wales in France during the war, which were exhibited in Tokio and also sent to the Crown Prince's palace, must have stirred the Crown Prince to an appreciation of the possibilities open to a royal personage in these days. These films certainly astonished the Japanese audiences, who saw for the first time royalties so genial and accessible. Many spectators were not slow to say that they would like to see their Crown Prince similarly free.

It is only of recent years that the Emperor has been seen shaking hands with distinguished visitors in Tokio. When his majesty has proceeded to a review there have been parties of old people kneeling on the streets as he passed, and the police have been active in keeping people away from windows from which they could look down on their sovereign. The same police precautions against sightseers at upper windows have even been taken at Yokohama when one of the lesser princes has gone to the races.

It should be mentioned that a Japanese crowd is not in the habit of cheering its royalties. It does not cry "Banana!" in the actual presence of the emperor. His majesty is received in reverential dead silence. The crowd does not bow in the ordinary way. The people merely incline their heads slightly and keep their eyes on the ground.

PYORRHEA.
Pyorrhoea is the most destructive, the most difficult to treat, yet one of the commonest of all the diseases of the teeth. It is present in the mouths of countless thousands of adults who fondly think their teeth are in perfect condition. It progresses slowly, and in its early stages, painlessly. The gums become soft and bleed easily, then they grow sore and become inflamed. Pus forms at the roots of the teeth and they loosen in their sockets. When the disease reaches this stage it affects the general health and usually extraction is the only remedy. tu, th, s, fr
