THE LAND WE LIVE IN.

When Phillip's warlike son of old,

and thro' the world his thunders roll'd,

He sigh'd when they were ended:

Here must we stop, the hero cried,

Then well or woe-whate er betide,

We'll bless the Land we live in.

MBW-BBUNSWICK PINE. In Brunswick's forests, dark and wild,

With foliage gay and ever green, And branches spread around; And still may Greece her myrtle boast, And France her sunny vine,

A stately tree is found;

We envy not their happy lot

It is the PINE that forms our home So dear to every heart, 'Tis this that builds our winter fires And bide chill care depart, Tis this that brings from foreign lands The produce of the vine;

Then let us raise our notes and praise Our country's boast, the PINE.

Green be thy fields my native land, And green thy favorite tree, Thy daughters fair and flourishing, Thy sons forever free:

And this shall ever be our toast Pledged with the sparkling wine, Let us be to our colours true

And constant as the PINE. SINGULAR OLD SONNET. The longer life, the more offence; The more offence, the greater pain: The greater pain, the less defence; The less defence, the lesser guin—

The loss of gain long ill doth try, Wherefore, come, death, and let me die! The shorter life, less count I find; The less account, the sooner made: The count soon made the merrier mind;
The merrier mind doth thought invade Short life, in truth, this thing doth try,

Wherefore, come, death, and let me die! Come, gentle death, the ebb of care,
The ebb of care, the flood of life;
The flood of life, the joyful fare;
The joyful fare, the end of strife—
The end of strife, that thing wish I.
Wherefore, come, death, and let me die!
