To the Editor of the Farmer SIR.—Some of the old residents of Freder SIR.—Some of the old residents of Fredericton witnessed a greater overflow of the River than that of the memorable 1854, lately alluded to in the press. Your correspondent has a vivid recollection of the great freebet in the spring of 1831, caused by an ice jam at the short ferry. The upper and lower pirts of the town were flooded, the spater offine down Queen street as far as Wilmot's Alley, and flowed upward to Regent street. Cancer and house were in requisition, and your citim-apondent, and Robert Fulton, Chief Olerk in the Provincial Secretary's Office, embark in a cance at the Corner of Regent street, to go to his office for some necessary papers. Grave apprehensions were felt that the ice would shove in from above and wrock the bonness; cattle were driven the hill, and the writer's father had half, with his cows, at a moment's notice. Mr. James M, Lemont is home from the hill, and the writer's father had harbet Homes, prepared to embark his family for the high land. Watch was kept above town, and guns were to be fired to warn the inhabitants of impending danger from moving to during the night. The doors of the College were anoptically thrown open, and many residents of the lower part of the town, spent one night is the College Hall. and all others to whom it may in any wise concern:—

Besides insuring accuracy and ease of duplication of worn out parts, this way of doing is the most economical. Fancy a carpenter trying to make a door as good, and at the same time as cheap, as Risteen's Factory.

You note the absurdity at once. Well, it is just as absurd to think that one man, or a few mes, can make Mowers, or Ploughs, or Carriages, as well and chasply, as the big factories full of modern machinery.

During the past six years large factories have absorbed the business of hosts of small shops through the country. The facilities of transportation give these great establishments opportunities for sending their products at low rates to whole sections, which, under the old order of things, they could never have reached except at a cost greater than the possible profit.

We have an exclusive control in this Provice of Farm Machinery and Carriages, made by some of the largest and best factories in Canada. If you will examine our stock on its merits, and compare prices, we believe that we will get your custom when you need to give it to anybody.
