

LLOYD GEORGE SCORES AGAIN ON THE AMERICAN DOLLAR CRY

"Since When," He Asked, "Had the Aristocracy Despised Such Dollars?"

A GREAT PLAY BY CHANCELLOR

Lord Lansdowne Introduces His "Resolutions" to Reform House of Lords.

London, Nov. 21.—In the east end of London Chancellor Lloyd George said that the schemes for the reform of the House of Lords, the Government would consider at leisure. Under that idiom he said that the Government would consider at leisure the radical bill would be sent to a referendum. The Government would have none of these shams.

The chancellor was in excellent form, his wit biting as ever. The huge hall wherein he spoke was filled with an enthusiastic crowd.

Referring to the Tories' sarcasm about Redmond as a "dollar dictator," Lloyd George remarked that their bogey last time was a German invasion. Since then, he asked, had British aristocracy started despising American dollars, which had buttressed many tottering nobles' houses?

He added, in twenty years $80,000,000 had been paid by the children of Irish peasants across the sea in cruel rack rents to aristocratic Irish landlords.

The constitutional issue, no country in the world would stand the British second chamber. It was like, he said, running a horse car and an electric car on the same track.

Lloyd George reminded the Conservatives that a large portion of Redmond's fund came from Canada. He claimed that, when Canada and Canadian statesmen were to be used as excuses for taxing bread, then Canadians were like and kin beyond the seas, but when they subscribed to enable Ireland to obtain the same self-government they possessed, they were called aliens tearing down the constitution. (Applause.)

Lloyd George, referring to the proposals of Lord Lansdowne, said that the Lords were now crying, "Don't shoot! I'm coming half-way down!"

An Overseas Trip.

Humorously the chancellor took his hearers to the overseas dominions in search of a similar institution in imagination. He interviewed Australians, then inquired if they were anything like the descendants of the French filibuster in Britain, and they got the reply that they had a few years ago bushrangers, who, however, had only stolen cattle, not land. These had been hanged, and the opportunity of founding families.

"We have got people of that kind. They have never gone any work. They are the most ancient back of the country. They do nothing, except hunt, shoot and ride. They are very stately, dignified and idle. They have every qualification of aristocracy, but we shut them up on reservations to keep them out of mischief." (Loud laughter.)

Liberals Enthusiastic.

The Liberals are entering the fight with enthusiasm and confidence. To-night the chancellor of the exchequer followed the premier's challenge to the Lords with a magnificent speech in the House of Commons.

Lord Lansdowne, who had been kept to the veto issue, the Tories are dodging the question with the cry of "dollar domination" from the United States, ignoring the fact that the United States is not a democracy, and that the United States is not a democracy, and that the United States is not a democracy.

The key to the situation is the southern counties of England. Scotland will probably give three more Liberals, Wales probably a solid representation. This will be sufficient to relieve the premier of asking guarantees from the King, and it is believed the Lords will yield.

GOVT. WILL NOT MAKE HASTY MOVE

Sir Wilfrid Assures the House That Tariff Will Be Fully Looked Into.

POSITION ON RECIPROCITY

Premier Was in Splendid Form Yesterday and Made Another Brilliant Speech.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—With felicitations to Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the celebration of his 69th birthday, and excellent speeches by the mover and second of the address in reply to the speech from the throne, who well deserved the congratulations, Parliament today entered upon the work of a session that bids fair to be memorable one. Nothing could have been happier than the vein in which Mr. Borden extended the congratulations of the Opposition to the Prime Minister, who was obviously touched by the tribute paid to him by those who, while opposed to him in politics, recognize and appreciate the qualities that have made him Canada's first Commonwealther in name and fact.

The speeches of Messrs. Hal McGowan (Ottawa), and Lapointe (Kamouraska), in moving and seconding the address respectively, were models of their kind.

Mr. Borden began well, but when he found himself in the controversial sphere his efforts were labored and ineffective. His reference to the Prime Minister's hour in the west suggested a keen desire to offset the effects of that undertaking, and while he emphasized some of the demands emanating from the west, he was careful to avoid any specific proposals bearing upon the tariff.

On the question of better trade relations with the United States he contented himself with a request for information, and the only emphatic pronouncement in his speech had reference to the necessity, as he regarded it, for a thorough investigation of all the spending departments with a view to a reduction of the national debt.

Mr. Drummond-Arthurs, in his speech, claimed as a vindication of the Opposition's demand that the Government's naval policy should have been more liberal, and that he skillfully kept in the background what had been the main contention of his party—namely, that Canada should commit itself to a policy of building dreadnaughts or making a money contribution.

Premier in Splendid Form.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's reply revealed the Prime Minister in his best fighting form. In striking contrast with the nebulous and hesitating attitude of the leader of the Opposition, he handled the question of better trade relations with the United States with a frankness and lucidity that carried the conviction to all who heard him that in the hands of the Government the negotiations, while looking to a closer commercial intercourse with the republic, would be absolutely free of the interests of Canada and the preference extended to the mother country.

The Drummond Campaign.

It was in his treatment of the Drummond-Arthurs election, however, that the Prime Minister showed his true mettle, and the Opposition looked very sheepish while he drove home the lessons of that famous oration. He would have the floor, and when Mr. Monk intervened it looked as if the House would lose control of itself, but Sir Wilfrid's calm demeanor dominated the chamber and the heated atmosphere cooled.

The trouble arose over Mr. Monk's assertion that a Liberal notary named Beggs had stated that the Canadian navy might be used to attack the English ship, the Guinness, which was being towed by a tugboat.

The Canadian Navy.

Sir Wilfrid's defense of the Canadian navy was a statesmanlike utterance, marked by a truly patriotic spirit that roused the Liberal members to great enthusiasm, and was not without effect upon the Conservatives.

All Reports Ready.

Never in the history of a Canadian Parliament have all departmental reports been ready for presentation so early. Hon. Charles Murphy presented the report of his inquiry into affairs in the Government printing bureau, and moved that it be printed. He said that later he would move to have the report considered by a joint committee of the Commons and Senate.

The first bill of the session was introduced and explained by Mr. Laurier. It is an amendment to the railway act, having for its object lessening the rate of interest on the railway bonds.

ALD. POCOCK DISCHARGED HONORABLY BY THE JUDGE

East London Businessman Did Nothing Wrong in His Selling of a Machine to a Customer—Case Tried Before Judge Elliott Today.

Ald. Henry Pocock, of the London Concrete Machinery Company, was honorably acquitted by Judge Elliott this morning of the charges of detaining a postal letter and of stealing a check, preferred by the Ideal Concrete Company, also of this city.

A half-dozen witnesses were heard, including N. D. McKinnon, of Canington, Ont., who purchased a concrete mixer. Mr. McKinnon's story was to the effect that while at the Toronto Exhibition he visited the Ideal Concrete Company's exhibit and had a conversation with Mr. Pocock, who was in charge. A deal was discussed, but was left open. A few days later, when he returned home, he spoke to Mr. Pocock over the phone and agreed to take a certain machine. He claimed that he had not noticed the signs on either the Ideal or London exhibits at Toronto, and he did not know where Mr. Pocock belonged. He also said that he had no conversation with any person concerning a deal with the London Concrete Machinery Company. However, he later admitted that he signed a card of the London Concrete Machinery Company. (Continued on Page Nine.)

CRIPPEN'S LAST DAY ON EARTH BROKE DOWN MANY TIMES

"I Will Soon Be With My Father," He Remarked Sadly—Miss Leneve Visited Him Yesterday and Was Terribly Affected.

[Associated Press.] London, Nov. 22.—Today is Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen's last day on earth. He will probably take his final farewell of Ethel Claire Leneve late this afternoon if the girl is able to be up during her stay after the terrible ordeal she passed through when she saw him yesterday. Crippen himself has given up all hope of a reprieve of any kind, and yesterday had a very long conference with his spiritual adviser, Rev. Father Carville. The interview lasted some hours, and owing to its length reports spread rapidly that Crippen was making a confession. It was absolutely denied today by Scotland yard officials that the condemned man had made any statement in the nature of a confession.

Leneve's Farewell.

Miss Leneve, at the request of the prisoner, paid a farewell visit to Crippen at Pentonville Prison this afternoon. She reached the place in a closed cab, and was accompanied by an elderly man, who remained outside.

Miss Leneve remained for a half-hour in the visitors' room with the doctor. It was reported that she watched the condemned man closely. Crippen slept well last night, and this morning had an early breakfast.

Will Hang Tomorrow.

Crippen will be hanged at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. This announcement was made today and with it passed any hope that the condemned man may have had of an eleventh-hour delay.

The great details incident to the office of the executioner have been worked out, and the usual caution of British criminal procedure taken to guard against any hitch at the last moment.

From the time that his wife, Belle Elmore, the actress, disappeared, up to the day of his conviction, public sentiment against Crippen grew stronger, but in his last hours the prisoner is not without sympathy. Clara Ethel Leneve, the woman for whom the crown has continued her visits to the American's cell, and there are others who shake their heads and declare that they would never convict a man on circumstantial evidence.

From expressions in the papers and the gossip of the streets it is plain that no other murder case of recent years has taken such a hold upon the feeling of all classes.

Ethel Claire Leneve visited Crippen in Pentonville Prison yesterday afternoon. She was accompanied by a friend, and the two were seen to enter the prison.

PEACE AND HARMONY AGAIN WITHIN MEDICAL COLLEGE

The medical students are back at such as had been witnessed during the past week or so, must cease, and made it very plain that it would not be tolerated any further. Dr. McCullum stated that the faculty were a unit in their desire to suppress any further disturbance.

The lecture was taken much to heart by the boys. A letter was sent to the professors by them, in which they apologized for their conduct.

Dr. H. A. McCullum, on behalf of the staff, presented their side of the case. He declared that rowdiness, such as had been witnessed during the past week or so, must cease, and made it very plain that it would not be tolerated any further.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR CATHCART STREET OUTLAY?

Lively Row Brewing as Result of Ald. Richter's Speech.

LIKELY TO BE AN INVESTIGATION

Matter Will Come Up With Other Engineering Questions in Near Future.

Who is responsible for the improvements on Cathcart street? This question, in view of the rather pointed remarks of Ald. Richter at the council meeting last night, when he declared that "graft alone" could be responsible for the expenditure of so much on a street where the city would receive but little return. Those responsible were called in inmates for a lunatic asylum or prison.

Ald. Tancock, in his explanation, blamed the council of last year.

The exact cost of the improvements on the street is about a few dollars short of $9,000. Of this, 80 per cent, or about $7,200, must be paid out of the general rate. A large portion of the street has no houses, and it is but little improved.

The sewers were laid in three installments, 1906, 1908 and 1909. The sidewalks were laid in sections, running from 1900 to 1910. There was only one block of cement walk laid this year.

Done This Year.

However, the larger bulk of the expenditure was made this year's council. It is true that the curb and gutter for this street was initiated last year by the council, and it came with a number of others as a legacy for the aldermen of 1910. Not a bit of work was done last year.

In addition to the curb and gutter, costing a couple of thousand dollars, the street was rolled, gravelled and graded, costing $2,000 additional. This was this expenditure that caused the sharp debate last night.

This work was commenced after the opinion of City Surveyor Meredith was in the hands of City Clerk Baker. This fact was known, but before the council could act on it, the curb and gutter were commenced.

The board of works deny that they had anything to do with it. The truth is that the matter never came before the committee. Engineer Wright just as pointedly denied the initiative.

Names Ald. Tancock.

In an interview with The Advertiser, he charges Ald. Tancock with giving him the orders to commence the work. "Some days ago, there were certain statements made in regard to this street, which I feel in duty bound to correct," said Mr. Wright. "Were it an ordinary criticism, I would not object. If they were made before giving the order, or anything like that, we could reason it out. I will not stand for any such criticism as was levied at me."

The facts regarding the Cathcart street matter were not before giving them I deny absolutely the initiative, and declare that I did not, on my own authority, commence that work. When the question of the Cathcart street was being considered, or rather just after he had given notice of motion regarding local improvements, Ald. Tancock came to me, and requested me to have the work commenced.

Richter's motion came up in the council. This was easily done, as the contractor was finished on other work, and Cathcart street was close at hand. In this connection, I made a special point to have Ald. Tancock drive over the street with me, and he gave me his authority and instruction to do certain work that I was to start at once. I do not deny that I was given the authority, and I do not deny that I did it.

The points were the raising of the road and sidewalk on the east side between Elmwood and Dufferin avenues, to a height of two feet in front of Mr. John Cottam's property, and also cutting the road down 30 inches at the south end. The work was taken from here, and I was to make the fill between Elmwood avenue and Dufferin avenue. These changes put the street in rather bad condition.

The question of graveling it came up and Ald. Tancock, who was on the ground at the time, ordered me to proceed with the work. I was to start at once, and I am not going to shoulder the blame of having a street in such a bad condition.

Denies Responsibility.

"I was not responsible, nor will I assume the responsibility. The facts are the facts, and they cannot be disputed." The other members of the board of works that they were not responsible for the work until it was partly done.

"We were not asked anything about it," said Ald. Morgan. "We did not pass upon it in committee. Who is responsible I do not know."

It never came before the committee," declared Ald. Saunders. "I heard about it when it was nearly completed, but waited until I found out who was responsible. I am satisfied in my own mind who should shoulder the blame, and it is not Mr. Wright. Some time ago another alderman tried to shove the blame on Mr. Wright for a certain piece of work, but he had to apologize, and that is in a hurry."

Mayor Beattie is also convinced that Mr. Wright is not to blame, and stated that he was not present at the council last night in connection with this affair, but it was lost somehow, and did not make its appearance.

A General Statement.

"My statement was general that such work was not at all proper, but, as I said, Ald. Richter, 'Those responsible for the work should be held responsible.' Ald. Tancock said that the work was done by the council, and the council are not responsible, and the committee are not."

There will be a lively time before this matter is settled. The letter of Engineer Wright will be presented to the council at its next meeting, and it will not only deal with the Cathcart street matter, but with one or two others, for which he has been blamed by Ald. Tancock.

If rumors are to be relied on, there will be some other engineering matters drawn into the dispute.

To Grow Hair on a Bald Head

By a Specialist.

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair, who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair grower without result, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and can be put up for restoring grey hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out, and making the hair grow again. It will not destroy the hair, and can be put up by any chemist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces; Lavone de Composee, 6 ounces; Menthol, 1/2 ounce; Calor Perilous, 1/2 ounce. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Do not apply to the face or where hair is not desired. Be sure to ask the druggist for all the ingredients in the Lavone de Composee package. One of them entitles you to a handsome free hairbrush. You are also entitled to the free advice of an expert on the hair by simply writing to the address you will find included in the carton.

GOVERNMENT WILL NOT

reluctant to compel the holding of inquests in all cases of death by railway accidents.

Mr. Borden, the Conservative leader, made inquiry in regard to the extradition of the Russian Government. He said he knew of no man who had devoted more energy to the duties of statesmanship. After a reference to the late King he said that the result of the fisheries case before the Hague tribunal was a matter upon which he could well congratulate the Minister of Justice. The object lesson was that Canada should become a bond of amity between the Empire and the United States. They might look forward to the day when the great public and the empire could command and would command the peace of the world.

Mr. E. A. Lapointe, Kamouraska, seconded the address. Opposition, he spoke for the voices rendered to Canada by Earl Grey and deplored the absence of Mr. Fielding. He said he knew of no man who had devoted more energy to the duties of statesmanship. After a reference to the late King he said that the result of the fisheries case before the Hague tribunal was a matter upon which he could well congratulate the Minister of Justice. The object lesson was that Canada should become a bond of amity between the Empire and the United States. They might look forward to the day when the great public and the empire could command and would command the peace of the world.

The Tariff. Mr. Borden spoke of the problem Canada has to face in the assimilation of so many races. It would, he said, be more to the point to deal with Sir Wilfrid, on his tour of the west, had come to realize the importance of some of these questions, particularly that of the tariff.

Mr. Borden said he was somewhat surprised that the old enthusiasm of 1894 for "free trade as they have it in England" had almost entirely disappeared. At Yorkton the premier had informed an expectant west that if he had his own way he would "have a free British tariff."

"Why doesn't he have his own way?" asked the Conservative leader. Sir Wilfrid had had his own way for fourteen years and had accomplished nothing, yet Sir Robert Peel had converted England to free trade in two years, declared Mr. Borden. At Saskatchewan the premier had said he would appoint a commission to consult with the grain growers regarding the tariff, or two generations ago to bring about free trade. As a matter of fact, the farmers of the west had been so much bewildered by what Sir Wilfrid had told them that they were coming to Ottawa 500 strong in December to find out what it all meant. E. M. MacDonald, M. P., had come back from the west, and stated that the only free traders he had found there were a few Tories.

Nice Way to Put It. Mr. Borden waxed indignant over the fact that the premier had charged bribery in 1908, because Mr. Borden had merely offered to submit the grievances of British Columbia to a board of arbitration. In referring to the Hudson Bay Railway, Mr. Borden made a step toward public ownership. Speaking of reciprocity he said it was only fair and right that the people of this country should be informed upon what principle the Government proposed to act. If Canada were in the prosperous condition that the Government claimed there was really no need for a change in our tariff relations with the United States. After showing that Canada purchased five hundred million dollars worth more goods from the United States than they purchased from the Dominion during the last six years, and that Great Britain had purchased over $270,000,000 more than Canada purchased from the old land during the same period, he asked what were the benefits to be expected by a lowering of duties or by reciprocity.

Mr. Borden, inclosing, referred to the result in the recent election in Quebec. He declared that exactly the same campaign had been carried on there as was carried on by the collection of the Premier in 1896, and it had been stated by a leading French-Canadian the other day that the campaign had been conducted with the knowledge and consent of Sir Wilfrid. With reference to his own platform Mr. Borden said he stood today where he stood then.

The Premier Replies. Sir Wilfrid paid a glowing tribute to the many good qualities of the late King. Turning to a defence against the attack of the Opposition leader, said Mr. Borden himself had done nothing to remove the danger which existed in the west. Mr. Borden, he pointed out, believed that there was danger in the west to British and Canadian connection. He himself had found no trace of any such danger. Every man who came to the west had been proud to become a British subject.

The Tariff Question. With regard to the question of the tariff, for it was not a question of the tariff, for it was not a question to be decided at the present juncture, but Mr. Borden knew that his friends in the west did not all favor a policy which had been the shibboleth of the Conservative party.

"When we came into office fourteen years ago we endeavored to redeem the pledges we had made two years before to the people of the west, and to the people of Canada generally. It has taken the people of the west fourteen years to realize that they were unfairly treated, the wrong to which they were subjected cannot have been a very grievous one. But the country moves. Neither I nor anyone on this side has ever pretended that the tariff made in 1897 should be like the laws of the Medes and Persians, and never changed. On the contrary, we are Liberals and Reformers, and we believe in moving forward with the times. The tariff made in 1897 has been its own justification. But the people of the west are now asking for a reduction of duty on certain articles which they consume. That is a very proper subject of investigation, and we intend to investigate it, but at the proper time.

Investigation First. "We have been in office for a number of years, and it is one thing more than another essential to the business prosperity of a country it is the stability of the tariff. I stated to the people of the west during my recent trip that it was our duty to consider their requests and to deal with them in the same spirit in which we have always dealt with requests from the people of the east. I repeat that now. I stated that we would have a commission of investigation before we undertook a revision of the tariff. Does any honorable member on the other side take issue with this promise I made? Would any of them rush into a revision of the tariff without previous investigation? They would not dare to say they would favor such a course."

Friendly Relations. "If I gauge accurately the temper of the Canadian people at this moment, the one question which is engendering their thoughts is that of the commercial relations with our neighbors to the south. When Mr. Borden spoke of the friendly relations which have existed for a hundred years between Canada and the United States, nothing could be more admirable than the sentiments which he therein expressed. May I say, however, to my honorable friend that if there is one thing which is conducive to peace and harmony between nations it is free and friendly commercial relations. There has been an impression in this country, may, a positive conviction in this country, which has been expressed more than once on the floor of this House, that the attitude of our American neighbors towards Canada was not worthy of a great nation."

Day of Battle. "Now, struggle to say, while there is a better feeling appearing on the horizon, which seems to indicate the dawn of a better day, men there are in this country who tell us 'Stop, stop, don't go any further; put an end to these advances towards remedying a condition of things of which we have been complaining so long.'"

Lacked Sea Vision. When Sir Wilfrid dealt with the Government naval policy and the result of the Drummond-Arthurskaskia election there was some excitement.

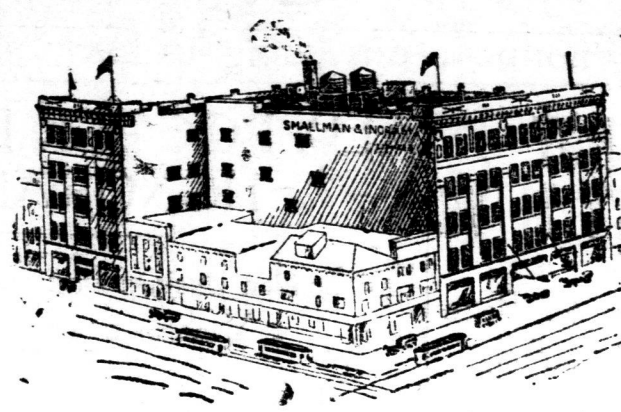

The Opposition leader had said that he had offered the Government advice last year and that the Government did not follow it. That was true, but he might also have said that in the previous year he had also offered advice which the Government had not followed. The election of Drummond and Arthurskaskia was not at this moment appreciate the necessity of a navy. They are an island and they are not familiar with the conditions prevalent upon the sea shore, and it may be that they look upon any expenditure with the navy as a waste of money. That may be their opinion today, but such is not the opinion of the provinces and the sea. When a few days ago the Niobe sailed into the port of Halifax, it was received with acclamation by the whole population. Everybody went down to the harbor to have a good view of the good ship. When the Rainbow came into Vancouver it was received with, if possible, greater enthusiasm. "Everybody in this country must understand that the conditions must be exactly the same in all its parts—that there are variances in the different sections, but all must understand that the burdens of one must be the burdens of all, just as the disabilities of one must be the disabilities of all. We are constantly developing a nation; we are discovering new sources of revenue; portions of our continent which we considered inaccessible or barren and of no account whatever we are beginning to find are abounding in wealth. We are finding resources promising great prosperity in most unexpected sections. We are building a railway to the shore of Hudson Bay, 600 miles at least from the fortifications at Esquimaux.

"We are building a railway across the continent to the northern waters of the Pacific at Prince Rupert, 600 miles at least from the fortifications at Esquimaux. "Will anyone say that we are to leave these distant portions of our country absolutely unprotected? No; the common sense of the people will come to the conclusion that these distant parts of our

100 4 to 7 Yard Lengths, One-Third Off

Amongst the HALF-PRICE ENDS you will find a few longer lengths, some with 6½ yards, and in these you will also find almost every kind of dress goods represented—serges, cashmeres, wool taffetas, voile, Panama, Venetian, chevrot, vicuna, broadcloth, ladies' cloth, worsteds—stripes, checks and tweed mixtures—materials suitable for girls' dresses, coats and ladies' separate skirts, waists, etc. All are from the present season's selling, which assures you they are new and seasonable goods. Every end has been gathered from our entire stock of dress goods, and ends that were never ends before will be found selling at a half tomorrow.

The lengths at ONE-THIRD off are the greatest opportunities of the season, including an almost complete range of colors in our famous Sedan Broadcloths; a few light shades suitable for opera cloaks, also the darker autumn shades for street wear, in lengths suitable for long coats, suits and skirts, in grays, blues, browns, greens, etc. One-third off such lengths means our $1.50 broadcloth for $1.00 a yard, $1.00 quality for 66 2-3c yard, 75c dress goods for 50c, and 50c dress goods for 33 2-3c yard. Sir Wilfrid—Did you give me a name?

After cries from the Liberal benches of "Name!" "Name!" Mr. Monk named Notary Beggs, of Richmond, who had been in the county in the Liberal interest.

Sir Wilfrid added that the result of the election was probably a blessing in disguise, because there was already a reaction, and those who had aided the successful candidate were beginning to make explanations.

Mr. Foster speaks. Mr. Foster, who followed, declared against reciprocity with the United States, asserting that the time for it had passed, and that Canada should build it up without regard to the United States.

LONDON, TUESDAY, NOV. 22.

THE GOLDEN MEAN.

The Toronto Star says on the naval question:

"What strikes one is that the more moderate the speakers on both sides become, the nearer they approach to Sir Wilfrid Laurier; while the more frantic utterances of the Nationalists are largely due to attempts to get upon a platform that is different from Laurier's, and to preserve and accentuate their position as a separate party. The same is largely true of the Imperialist wing of the Conservative party. In the session of 1909 the whole Conservative party in the House of Commons agreed to the Laurier resolutions, with some modifications proposed by Mr. Borden. But certain furious partisans in Ontario and in the west were satisfied with this position, denounced it as tame, urged Borden to fight, and to do something that would create an issue. There is undoubtedly an inevitable difference between the Ontario attitude and the Quebec attitude, but it has been aggravated by parish spirit and political ambition, by the desire both of Conservatives and Nationalists to make some political capital out of a difficult situation."

This is a fair and accurate apprais-ment of the situation. Take the speech of Mr. Lavergne in Toronto, when he was studious to conciliate Ontario opinion. His audience must have been surprised to hear him say that the Nationalists were not opposed to the creation of a Canadian navy. He asserted that the objectionable feature of the naval law was the reservation to the Government of the power to place the Canadian ships under the control of the Admiralty in time of war, and order them to distant waters. He contended that Parliament alone should have this power.

If Mr. Lavergne fairly states the position of the Nationalists, they are fighting the Government on a quibble.
In reality, the Government—ordered the Canadian fleet abroad in a time of emergency. Parliament would have to meet within fifteen days to sanction or repudiate the Government's action.
The Government must have the authority to act promptly; it might be necessary for the defence of these shores to order the Canadian ships to join the Imperial navy, but if this could not be done until Parliament met the ships might be useless when they were most needed.

Last year the Ottawa Opposition unanimously assented to the principle of a Canadian navy. With one or two exceptions, the Conservative press argued strongly for this policy, and against the alternative proposal of a money contribution to Great Britain. The Conservative party was then in a reasonable frame of mind. Its leaders have since yielded to the importunities
of extremists, and the rank and file are disposed to follow them. If we may judge by the somersault of the party
press, as the Toronto Star well says,
in their moderate utterances both the Conservatives and the Nationalists approach to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. And Laurier's policy will prevail. If his opponents were sobered by the responsibility of office tomorrow they would not venture to reverse it.

A GERMAN CRITIC OF THE BRITISH ARMY.

The British army, when not under fire of shot and shell, is always under favorable and unfavorable impressions
of Britain's military strength.

Colonel Gaedke praises the raw material of the British army as "exceptionally good," as "second to none in the world." Again, he says that their great moral qualities, their coolness and daring quality British soldiers in an unusual degree for such operations as holding India, or for intervention in Afghanistan or Tibet.
But he declares them inadequately trained and their general officers incompetent. Too much time and money, he thinks, are wasted over church parade uniforms. The recurrent field-days at Aldershot, always on the same old ground, mostly level, supply a very stereotyped and limited exercise which harm rather than helps military usefulness. The charge brought by the Germans against General Buller that he lost his head in battle, showed helpless passivity and an incapacity for large direction and co-ordination, is repeated against the generals at Aldershot. "The British army," writes Col.
Gaedke, "is incapable of throwing any decisive weight on the scales of a continental war."

This is very unkind. What does the "Entente Cordiale" mean to the popular action strategists in England but that she may aid a certain friendly power by checking the passage of another great power's flanking army through Belgium? To think that a British corps in Belgium would be a mere straw! Napoleon did not find things that way in 1815.

But there is something in Gaedke's censure upon the British generals.
Neither their public school education nor their military training tends to make large thinkers of them. The London Nation says somewhat scathingly:

"They (the public schools) breed
the caste from which generals spring.
They give us an agreeable type of men, ignorant, but rather well-mannered, and as a rule so honest that they can be trusted with sixpence—
a rare and inestimable advantage.
But at the public schools intellect
is studiously discouraged, and a boy who, unhappily for himself, displays any sign of it is boycotted as a
"saw," "swot," or whatever the special word may be. Even the masters talk of nothing but sports, and, as to learning, the boys are quite content to acquire a knowledge of the varsity teams. Conversation is limited to an exchange of particular and insignificant facts. A wide or general idea is glared upon as an intrusive monster, and far from being taught to realize masses, the boys are never allowed to imagine anything above eleven or fifteen. Good form becomes the rule of conduct—the good form which prompted a cavalry officer to say that the chief use of cavalry was to give tone to what would else degenerate into a vulgar brawl. . . . Limited to good form, trivialities, and a dread of intellect,
we cannot handle troops or anything else in masses. "We are only sportsmen," signed an officer returning to South Africa, and it is not the sport
that makes the general.

The public schools of Great Britain
do not correspond to the public schools in this country. They are such institutions as Eton and Harrow, where only the well-to-do can afford to send their children, and where there is an atmosphere of class and caste. It will be remembered that Lieutenant Sutor was recently court-martialed and reprimanded for publishing a book in which he complained that the average British officer refused to take his work seriously and scientifically, and that any officer who did so was tabooed.
That the British army has muddled
through so many campaigns successfully must be due to the moral qualities, for which the German critic gives it full credit.

TOLSTOI'S RELIGION.

The ban of the Russian Church will not be lifted over Tolstoi's grave. The old prophet could not have wished it otherwise. Although priests waited at the door of the death-chamber, he made no recantation. While in the eyes of the Church he was the great heretic, he was in his own eyes the champion of orthodoxy. He professed to find his whole creed in the Sermon on the Mount. His later life was an attempt to translate into practice what he conceived to be its teachings. He repudiated dogma, sacraments, liturgy,
and institutional religion or ecclesiastical authority in any form. All these,
he declared, were corruptions of Christianity. He held that it was entirely practicable to organize human society
on the principles of the Sermon on the Mount, and that all wrong-doing and misery were the outcome of the evolution or rejection by church and state of the plain purport of Christ's teachings. He inveighed against war and preached non-resistance. He accepted literally the injunction, "Sell that thou hast and come and follow
Me," too literally to please his family.
He wished to share his estate with tenants on communal principles, but he prevailed upon to transfer a portion of it to his wife and children. He put on a peasant's garb and worked with the peasants as one of themselves.

Tolstoi's attempt to apply his interpretation of Christ's words to the organization of society as he found it led him into some impracticable courses. His disavowal of authority carried him into anarchy, which would only be possible in a world of Tolstoi. His theory that every man should earn his bread by his own hands was economically unsound. It excluded capital and the division of labor, which have made labor incalculably more fruitful. In renouncing all creeds Tolstoi embraced anarchy, because he had to formulate his own beliefs. Whatever may be said of it as a working system,
it was characterized by the purest morality, and Tolstoi at least obeyed
it to the last letter. If it is to be judged by the life of Tolstoi himself, criticism must be silent. The world will forget some of its fantastic aspects, and remember it for its magnificent protest against sin and slaughter and selfishness and tyranny. Above all is the personality of Tolstoi, the most illustrious example of moral courage
in modern times.

BERNHARDT'S HOSPITALITY.

[Lady's Pictorial.]
An Italian journal, in commenting on Mrs. Sarah Bernhardt's recent appearance at a London music hall, explains
how it is that this great artist seems always in need of money. It is interesting to read in the case of this distinguished artist her money is literally at the disposal not only of her near and distant relations and friends, but even of people she does not know, for her house is open to all.

At one time she never entertained less than twenty persons daily at dinner, and it is related that Alexandre Dumas, who was one day of the number sitting at the right hand of Mrs. Bernhardt, asked her: "Will you kindly tell me the name of your friend on my left?" "That is more than I can do," said she, "for I have never seen him before."

HANDICAP.

[Houston Post.]
"What would you do if I were to start to kiss you? Would you try to get away?"
"I certainly would."

"But you can see I'm wearing a hobble skirt?"

THE HOBBLE SKIRT.

[Ottawa Free Press.]
From the Paris fashion makers comes the decree that the hobble skirt must go.
Mankind would fain put the fashion
makers on the back, and command them for their sound sense, were it not that these same fashion makers were the men who introduced the piece of sartorial silliness which they are now abolishing.
As far as sensible women are concerned, the hobble skirt will not have to "go,"

for the simple reason that it never "came." But the majority of women, especially in the large cities, are held enthralled by the fashion despots, and to them the edict applies.
Hubby hardly knows whether to rejoice or lament over the sudden departure of the hobble skirt. He's glad to see it go, but it's going to be a long time before ones, and those new ones will keep the check book busy for a while.

MERE COURTESY.

[Philadelphia Record.]
"I see you are smiling at my jokes,"
said the waiting contributor, hopefully.
"Yes," replied the editor, "that courtesy is due when one meets old friends."

HER FLAT.

[The Sacred Heart Review.]
Mrs. Noobridge—Yes, dear, I was married last month. I'd like you to call on me and see the pretty little flat I have.
Miss Jellus—I've seen him, my dear.

THE MAINE POINT.

Patriotic considerations aside, Northern Maine might be just as well off in a business way under the Dominion
standard as under the Stars and Stripes, and possibly it would be better off. That,
however, is an economic question that does not affect the Americanism of Maine
at all.

UNREFINED.

[Detroit News.]
The New Theatre Company, upon which the elevation of the national drama was so seriously depend, has committed the indiscretion of producing Shakespeare's "Merry Wives of Windsor." It is voted by some of the enlightened critics of the metropolis "a vulgar, and in many respects a foolish play." Thus rudely do they jar our comfortable notions of the virtue of the classics, and the superior morality of the good old days. The burly and jovial Sir John Falstaff, whom Queen Elizabeth delighted to see abroad his punch upon the society of that period,
is now set down as a "disgusting, fat drunkard, who broke up two homes in lewdity." And to these aspersions one readily assents. Nevertheless, such a revival by a distinguished company serves a notable purpose. It shows us conclusively that we have advanced so far on the path of decency, modesty and morality
in this generation, that a revival of hardened theatrogoers' recoil instinctive
hall-marked by the greatest geniuses.
Scarcely any literature produced before
the Victorian era is free from vulgarity,
not even the saintly Augustine, the staid Plutarch or the lofty Burton being free from the frank vulgarisms formerly common in speech and literature.

We have become so refined in speech that a few flagrant breaches of our code of decency creates the false impression that the world has suddenly gone to the bad, which it hasn't.

LUCK.

[Chicago Record.]
A successful man believes there is no
kind of luck but bad luck.

HIS CHANCE.

[S. E. Kiser.]
He might have helped her to remain
as sweet as when she made him care;
'Twas he that brought her here to-day,
And killed the love that made her fair.

He might have caused her charm to stay,
And made their world a world of joy;
But foolishly he flung away
A trust too precious to destroy.

TRAIN BRITISH WAITERS.

Some attempt is at last being made to train British waiters to compete with their foreign confreres. For this purpose
a school has been formed at a London hotel, where practical courses can be taken by would-be waiters before being transferred to a continental hotel for the purpose of acquiring some knowledge of languages. The experiment is being tried chiefly with intelligent youths who have been in the telegraph or district messenger service.

JUST AS HE SAID.

[Tit-Bits.]
Ferrol—I can't get any speed out of that motor car you sold me. You told me you had been arrested six times in it.

AFRICAN LOGIC.

[Life.] Dusky Driver (ushering ladies from stage—Yes, marm—dis way, marm;
c'aise to de hotel?)
First Lady (hesitating at step)—And what will you charge?
D. D.—One dollar, marm.
Second Lady—Half a dollar apiece, when the hotel is barely a block away? Why, we'd just as live—D. D. (interrupting)—Would you jest as live in de hotel bus? Day charges a quarter.
Ladies (in chorus)—Just as live!
D. D. (with flourish)—Den step right in de ca'ge, marm, an' I'll take you right
de same as de us—day is some folks
perfers de ca'ge, and I has to charge
accordin'.

EXPERIENCED.

[Puck.]
"Palaw!" scornfully ejaculated the fond mother. "What do you know about babies?"
"Very little," humbly acknowledged the bachelor who had ventured an opinion, "except that some years ago I had considerable practice at being one."

WHAT IS THE USE?

[Story Stories.]
"Can you tell me how to live 100 years?"
The philosopher stroked his beard thoughtfully. "I will try," he said, "if you can give me any good reason for wanting to live 100 years."

INVERTED PHRASOLOGY.

[Brantford Expositor.]
Another meaningless bit of phrasology
is that employed by some of the prefates of Parliament in this country. For example, "His Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, enacts as follows."
A more correct rendering would be:
Legislative Assembly of Ontario, by and with the consent of His Majesty, enacts
as follows:

A WOMAN'S AGE.

[Michael Monahan, in the Papyrus.]
My clever friend, James Barnes, con-fides to me a new reading: "A woman is as old as she makes a man feel." The sounds good to me, but I pass it up to the ladies.

THE SYSTEM IS WRONG

[Farmers' Advocate.]
At every step the education commission, in its Canadian tour, is unearthing dissatisfaction with the public school system. When enough people become thoroughly disgusted, it will be reformed.
The institution that Ontario people boasted most about is the very one that has wrought incalculable mischief to the interests of the farm, by driving rising population to the towns, and utterly failing to qualify those who remain for the successful pursuit and enjoyment of the best life that Canada affords. Moral:
Reform the rural school.

ALLEGED SWINDLE AFFECTS CANADIANS

Police Raid Big Brokerage Firm of Burr Brothers.

THOUSANDS INVOLVED
And Nearly Fifty Million Dollars
Worth of Stocks Were Sold.

[Associated Press.]

New York, Nov. 21.—Federal officials today raided the office occupied by Burr Brothers, a corporation dealing in stocks and securities. The raid was made on warrants charging
use of the mails to defraud investors.
Postoffice officials say the concern has sold to investors at par value between $10,000,000 and $50,000,000 of stock in various companies, most of which,
they say, have been taken out of existence,
or have become bankrupt.

Officers Arrested.

The officers arrested were Sheland Burr, president; Frank H. Tooley, vice-president; and Eugene H. Burr, secretary and treasurer. Arrests were expected in Cleveland, Los Angeles and San Francisco, where the corporation has offices. Hundreds of companies have been made against the corporation by investors who charge that they have been swindled through false representations made to them concerning the profits that were being realized by those who put their money into the various oil, timber, copper, lead, zinc and gold stocks. After the raid, Postmaster-General Hitchcock gave out an official memorandum concerning the Burr Bros., which was organized several years ago, and in 1909
was incorporated with a capital of $100,000 and increased to $300,000. The memorandum states that among other companies the Burr Bros. are selling
the stock of the Bulk Oil Company, a concern with $1,000,000 capital.

Many Companies.

The memorandum further states:
"They have also organized other oil companies: Carolina Consolidated, capitalized at $1,000,000; Coalfield Alladin, capitalized at $1,000,000; Kern
Western, capitalized at $750,000; new York Coalfield, capitalized at $100,000;
People's Associated Oil Company, cap-
italized at $1,000,000."

All the stock in these companies has been sold except a portion of the two first-named, and the greater portion of the money has been sent into the hands of Burr Bros., incorporated.
While all the companies are still in existence, none save the first four named is doing any work at the present time.

"The Burr Bros. have also organized,
promoted and sold the stock in the following mining companies:
"Raw Hide Tar, with a capital of $1,000,000.
"Montezuma Mining and Smelting,
with a capital of $1,000,000."

"Practically the entire stock in these companies has been sold to the public,
and at the present time all these companies have gone out of existence."

The Burr Bros. have also organized,
promoted and sold the stock of the following companies:
"Elsmore Farm of Michigan.
"California Eucalyptus Timber Company, capitalized at $1,000,000, and the New Amsterdam Securities Company, with a capital of $100,000, which was later merged with Burr Bros., incorporated."

"They have also sold large amounts of stock in the Red Top Mining and Leasing Company, capitalized at $1, 000,000.
"Long Beach, Mexico and Arizona
Mining Company, capitalized at $1, 500,000.
"Nevada Gold Field Mining, Milling and Smelting Company, capitalized at $5,000,000.
"United Standard Lead and Zinc,
capitalized at $1,000,000.
"Florence Consolidated Mining and Leasing Company, capitalized at $7, 000,000.
"Round Mountain Central Mining,
capitalized at $1,000,000.
"Cobalt-Portage Mining Company,
capitalized at $1,000,000.
"British American Copper Mines and Smelting Company, capitalized at $5, 000,000.
"Arizona Copper, Gold Mines Company, capitalized at $1,500,000.
"Searchlight Canine Gold Mining Company, capitalized at $1,000,000.
"Cotton Wood Copper Company, cap-
italized at $1,000,000."

All of these companies are at the present time out of existence.
They have sold stock in the Happy
Jack Copper Mining and Developments
Company, capitalized at $700,000.
Yukon Basin Gold Dredging Company, capitalized at $1,000,000.
Toledo, Washash and St. Louis Railroad, capitalized at $6,000,000.
Chicago, New York Electric Air Line Company, capitalized at $2,000,000, in connection with the Co-Operative Construction Company at $1,000,000.
The latter-named companies are in existence at the present time.

It can safely be said that they have sold stock at par value from $40,000-000 to $50,000,000, have an extensive suite of offices in the Flat Iron Building, this city, and at times have had

Navy Blue Cheviots That Many Are Waiting For

Good news this, just when blue Cheviots are the scarcest goods in the country, and at the same time the most fashionable goods, and the most asked for. A case of them just arrived from the old country, the heavy, wide wales, that are the proper thing for suits and long coats.

Promised Dividends.

In every instance they have promised large dividends on the stock sold,
in addition to an increase of a value of the stock, but not in a single case have any of the companies paid any dividends, and practically all of them have been complete failures.

The department has received several hundred complaints from people who have bought this stock and lost their money.

The three officials of the company,
President Burr, Vice-President Tooley
and Secretary Burr, were arraigned before United States Commissioner
Shields and held in $20,000 bail each.
The federal prosecutor said that the frauds are very extensive. The date for the examination of the three prisoners will be determined later. Pending the furnishing of bail, the officials of the company were placed in the prisoners' pen.

Man With Clothes on Fire Fell 35 Feet
From Pole.

Toronto, Nov. 22.—While working over 25 feet above the ground on a hydro-electric pole in front of the Mercer Reformatory, George Surlyss, a painter, had a narrow escape from being electrocuted.

Surlyss was painting the pole near the switch, and turning to fix the strap, which supported him, part of his clothing came in contact with the switch. His coat was covered with damp paint, and the whole upper part of the pole was immediately enveloped in a brilliant blue flash.

A second later Surlyss fell, but before striking the ground his foot caught in one of the spikes, and he dangled head downwards from the pole. He was taken to a neighboring physician's by his comrades.

The man's coat was almost burned
from his back, while his face and body are also dreadfully burned. Although in a serious condition, it is believed he will recover.

Little is known about Surlyss. He had only been working with the company for about a week, and previous to today drove the paint wagon. This

An excellent knife-case is made of two lengths of new window leather, covered with flannel, and slot-run, so that each knife is kept separate in the case.

For Baked Custard.—When making baked custard, if the milk is warmed before adding the eggs no water will settle in the bottom of the baking dish.

To prevent cooking odors.—Fill a tin cup with vinegar and place it on the back of the stove. This will prevent the spreading of cooking odors throughout the house.

When making washing flocks, lay a piece of narrow tape on the back seam of the skirt before stitching it. This will prevent its stretching out of shape at the laundry.

If a loaf of bread has become stale hold it under the water tap for one minute, then place in a brisk oven for a quarter of an hour. It will then taste like new bread.

Warm plates and dishes by pouring boiling water over them. There is not the least chance of their cracking and becoming brown as when they are put in the oven.

Vinegar blemishes may be cleared of stains instantly by dropping into them an egg shell broken fine, a lump of soda, a few drops of ammonia; fill partly with warm water, shake, then behold the result!

Plum Snowballs.—Take large blue plums, remove pits carefully, refill with finely chopped nuts and pulverized sugar; dip each one into the well beaten white of an egg and roll into freshly-grated cocoanut.

CYNTHIA GREY'S CORRESPONDENTS

The Signature.
Dear Miss Grey: Is it proper for a married woman to sign her name or her husband's name? N. H. R.
A.—A married woman should sign herself Mary Smith and not Mrs. John Smith. In concluding a business communication, if she has doubts whether the person to whom she is writing knows her married title, she writes it in brackets beneath her name thus: Mary Smith (Mrs. John Smith).

Raising His Hat.
Dear Miss Grey: Then a girl passes two young men on the street and she is acquainted with only one of them, should the other man raise his hat also? CLARICE.
A.—Yes.

Acknowledging a Gift.
Dear Miss Grey: 1. Is it proper for a woman of 20 to go with a young man for an automobile ride in the afternoon without a chaperone? 2. A young man, having asked permission, has sent me a book by mail. Is it proper for me to acknowledge the gift by letter when I know I will not see him soon? 3. When a girl is engaged, can she have three or four men friends call on her at the same time? 4. Is it proper for a girl to accept a book sent out of doors when it is very cold? MARIE.
A.—1. Not unless she has gained her parents' or guardian's permission. 2. It is your duty to send the young man a note of thanks. 3. Yes; but if possible arrange to have a few girl friends call the same evening, so that all may have a pleasant time. 4. Yes, if it is really necessary. One should always try to prepare for such conditions, however.

Hair Is Gray.
Dear Miss Grey: Will you kindly publish a recipe for restoring the color to gray hair? I do not want a dye. Will it wash off and can I put vasoline on my hair while the dye is on? I would like a dark brown if possible. K.
A.—You can hardly give your hair a brown color unless you use a dye; therefore, it would be better to let it remain gray. Keep it in good condition and arrange it becomingly and it will be just as attractive, if not more so, than if it were dyed.

Switch Has Faded.
Dear Miss Grey: I am a brunette and am using a switch with my hair. My switch was the exact color of my hair, but it has faded quite a little. Please tell me how I may get it back to the color of my hair.
A.—First of all, cleanse your switch by dipping it in gasoline. Allow it to dry and then hang it up with a brush apply dye the color of your own hair.

A SON OF THE IMMORTALS

BY LOUIS TRACY.
Author of "The Stowaway," "The Message," "The Wings of the Morning," Etc.CHAPTER XV.
The Envoy.

In the autumn of the following year, when she crossed the great Neuf on that fine morning in May eighteen months ago; but she looked and felt supremely happy, for Alec would be home from his office, where already he was proving that the qualities which made him a man of great promise were now being established in his position as a leading citizen of his native state. By her side in a dainty motor car sat another Alec, whose age might not yet be measured by many weeks, but whose size and lusty nest proclaimed him a most remarkable baby that ever "occurred" in Colorado.

Mrs. Talbot, seated in an easy chair on the other side of the cot. The day had been warm, but the evening air brought with it the crisp touch of autumn, and Joan was about to summon the unchanging Bosko—had solved the problem of the most perplexing of the garden gate caught her ear and she heard her husband's first step. He stooped and kissed her.

"I hope you have passed the whole day in the garden, sweetheart," he said. "Yes," she replied. "I was just going to send baby indoors. Will you tell Pauline it is time he is in bed; but do not disturb him one minute," he said. "Baby can wait one minute," he said. "He looks quite contented where he is. There is news from Delgratz," he added in a lower voice. "King Michael is dead."

An expression of real sympathy swept across Joan's face. "I am so sorry to hear that," she said. Then, minding the innate desire of every high-minded woman to find good where there seems to be naught but evil, she added, "Perhaps, when he reached the throne, he may have mended his ways and striven to be a better man. Did he die suddenly?"

"Yes," and a curious infection in Alec's voice caused his wife to glance anxiously toward the sleeping woman. "Was there a tragedy?" she whispered.

"Something of the sort. The details are hardly known, but the newspapers published in our Denver newspapers are not quite explicit. There is an allusion to a disturbance in a local theatre, during which the heir apparent, Count Julius Marulitch, was fatally stabbed."

"It would seem that this incident took place several days ago, but escaped notice in the American press at the time. At that time King Michael was found dead in his apartment, and an early hour yesterday morning, and it is rumored that he was poisoned."

"How dreadful!" she gasped. "It will shock your mother terribly when she hears of it."

"It is an odd feature of the affair," went on Alec, "that the telegram I received from the king as residing in the New Montha theatre, and he passed the summer months there, and had not yet returned to Delgratz. Delightful as the place was, I am glad now we never lived there."

"She rose and caught him by the arm. 'Alec,' she murmured. 'Heaven was very good to me in sending us away from that inferno! You never think, deep down in your heart, that it had not been for me you would still be sitting and the two women exchanged glances. None of this escaped Alec, who was seemingly unmoved."

"Behold in me, then," continued Poluski, "the man who has been the deliverer of a man in jail who might be suspected of the least connection with it. Moreover, had you heard of these things you would have interfered."

"Then, in the name of goodness, why didn't you protect me from the attack made by the Seventh Regiment? Surely there were enough concerned in that to supply at least one spy."

Bosko hesitated. He glanced surreptitiously at Alec's mother. "Things went wrong that day, monsieur," he said. "Information that ought to have reached the general was withheld."

And Alec left at that point for the man who might reasonably be suspected of offsetting Stanoff's vigilance was dead, and no good purpose could be served by adding one more to his mother's host of bitter memories.

A bell sounded, and Bosko went to the front door. He returned, his stolid features exhibiting the closest approach to excitement that they were capable of. Evidently he meant to announce a visitor; but before he could open his mouth a high and shrill musical voice came from the entrance hall in the exquisite opening bars of the "Salve Dimora."

With an amazed cry of "Felix!" Joan and Alec rushed to the door. Yes, there stood Felix, thinner, more wizened, more shrunken, than when last they saw him on the quay at Southampton. Joan, impulsive as ever, welcomed him with a hearty kiss.

"An envoy always delivers his message in person, my belle. I am here on affairs of state. The telegraph is but a clumsy herald, and I was forbidden to write."

Alec dragged him into the room. "Business," he said, "is the order of the day. That is the motto of strenuous America. Now, what is it?"

"Beliant came to me in Paris," said the hunchback, affecting the staid delivery of one charged with matters of imperial import. "He brought with him letters from Stanoff, which I am, I shall deliver. He also intrusted me with a copy of a unanimous resolution of the Kasovian assembly, passed in secret session."

Joan's face suddenly paled. Mrs. Talbot looked on with a keen interest. Delgratz wanted again to see its Alexia, who is invited to recapture the throne on his own infant, mother, Bosko, Pauline, even myself, and the domestic cat, all are welcome. There are even the assembly itself will dissolve."

Somehow, Poluski's manner conveyed the impression of a man who was not to be rattled, she awaited her husband's reply. He too looked at her in silence, and then Joan became demoralized by the one fateful moment. In his mind's eye he saw the sunlit domes and minarets of the White City. The blue Danube sparkled as of yore beneath its ancient walls. Through the peaceful air of that quiet Denver suburb he caught the sound of cheering crowds, the crashing of bells, the booming of a cannon, that would welcome his return.

But he thought, too, of the fret and fume of kingship, of the brave men and gracious women who had occupied an unstable throne and were now crumbling to dust in the vaults of that gloomy cathedral. He smiled tenderly at his wife, and his hand stole into hers.

"I refuse, Felix!" he said quietly. "Behold in me, then," continued Poluski, "the man who has been the deliverer of a man in jail who might be suspected of the least connection with it. Moreover, had you heard of these things you would have interfered."

"Then, in the name of goodness, why didn't you protect me from the attack made by the Seventh Regiment? Surely there were enough concerned in that to supply at least one spy."

was sheer selfishness that drove me from Kosnovia. I honestly believe I should have craved you to the weight of an empire; but just fancy what a weight you would have made!"

"Oh, don't say that," she cried. "You almost frighten me."

Alec's mother put in a gentle word. "If ever either of you is tempted to regret the loss of a throne, you ought to devote half an hour to reading the history of Kosnovia," she said. "You are happy, and that is what you would never have been in the Balkans. A curse rests on Obrenovitch's reign; a decade in peace and security. It was a red letter day for Kosnovia when you came."

"You have been here ever since," said Delgratz, my dear. "None of us knew it at the time; but there are events in life that, like certain short and sharp bolts of lightning, leave a permanent mark on the mind."

"Good gracious, Bosko!" said his master. "This is news, indeed. Why was I not told?"

"There was no need, monsieur. Each time we discovered a plot we put a man in jail who might be suspected of the least connection with it. Moreover, had you heard of these things you would have interfered."

Poluski's piercing gray eyes peered at him under the shaggy eyebrows. "Is 'Absolutely final'?"

Felix broke into a hearty laugh. "I warned Bosko!" he chuckled. "No one could have written to me as Joan has done and yet want to return to that whitened sepulchre down there in the Balkans. Well, here are my credentials," and he threw a bundle of papers on the table, and thus earned my passage money; and now, when I have kissed the baby and shaken hands all round, I will bring in my wedding present."

A minute later he danced out into the hall and returned with a huge roll of canvas. "I unpacked it at the station," he said; "so it is ready for inspection," and he spread out on the table a replica of the famous Murallo. "There," he cried, "since Joan would not come to the Louvre, I am bringing the Louvre's chief treasure to her. As it is the last, so is the best of my copies. My hand was so tired, so I prayed to that sweet Madonna to give me one last flicker of the immortal fire ere it left me a dry cinder. Well, she listened, I think, and Ave Maria! the great Spaniard himself would rub his eyes if he could see this. Now, I shall go back to my wedding, and dream of the days that are gone."

His voice broke. He was gazing at Joan at the glory of maternity on her face.

"You are not going back, Felix," said Alec. "Kosnovia has now lost both its king and its ambassador. You are here, and here you shall stay."

"Yes, dear Felix," whispered Joan, "we have found our kingdom. Our hand was small; but there is always room in it for you."

So Denver heard wild snatches of song and listened, and marvelled, and a baby and Pallas Athene forgot that one of her chosen sons dwelt in Colorado, or, if she remembered, her heart was softened and she forbore.

The End.

Black Champion Alleges That "Speed
Demon" Tried to Force Him
Through Fences.

That the nervous breakdown of Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, was brought on by the nerve-shredding experiences incidental to his race against Barney Oldfield, the automobile champion, at Sheepshead Bay track, New York, three weeks ago, is the statement made by Lou M. Houseman, of Chicago, who promoted the race. Houseman said: "Two hours after the race I visited Johnson at his hotel on a matter of business. I found him in a state of nervous collapse, his whole body shaking like an aspen leaf blown by a breeze. He could not talk intelligently on the matter I was seeking to close up, and told me that he was in bad shape."

Says Oldfield Crowded. He complained that Oldfield had crowded him several times during the race, and that he had three narrow escapes from crashing into the fence. He complained bitterly of the chances he had to take while battling with Barney on the turns, and seemed to think that Oldfield had tried to run him into the fence.

Could Not Walk Ten

Yards Without Resting.

WEAK HEART WAS THE CAUSE.

Mrs. Robinson Collette, Rogersville, N.B., writes: "I am now enjoying the best of health after having used your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I was troubled with a weak heart and was afraid to draw a long breath for the pain it would cause me. I could not sleep at night, and it was impossible for me to walk ten yards without resting myself. I cannot speak too highly of your Heart and Nerve Pills, for they are the greatest pill I have ever used and I can recommend them to all sufferers."

Thousands of people go about their daily work on the verge of death and yet do not know it.

Little attention is paid to the slight weakness of the heart for the simple reason that one thinks it will right itself, but there is where the mistake is made. It is only when a violent shock comes that the weakness of the heart becomes apparent.

On the first sign of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will soon produce a quick and permanent cure.

FANS WANT LINE
ON DANE'S ABILITY

Coast Fight Followers Await
Result of the Nelson-
Moran Battle.

BATTLER NOT SO STRONG

Many Backers of the Hegewisch
Scrapper Have Deserted
The Ranks.

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Batting Nelson, the fallen idol of the lightweight division, and Owen Moran, the diligent Briton, will furnish the topline this week on the local fight card.

The two clever boxers are billed for a fifteen-round engagement on Thanksgiving afternoon at Cofrotto's arena, the unusually high. This is accountable by two reasons, but principally because the fans are anxious to get a better line on Nelson and his present ability.

The fact that Moran is involved in the battle adds to the interest being shown in the affair. The clever Briton is well thought of in this locality, for his work in previous bouts has always made a decided hit. Not a few of his ardent admirers are boasting a clean-cut victory for their man, and with this appears as somewhat of an impossibility, the Nelson rooters are not making any rash predictions.

Dane Loses Backers. The showing of the Dane in his recent fifteen-round bout with Anton La Grave, a local product, has caused many of his former admirers to desert the ranks.

A draw with only a youngster, with no experience whatever, took the Battler's stock down several pegs, and with a tough man for his "turnkey day" engagement, he is more or less problematical as to how things will turn out.

Both the principals are in excellent condition. Nelson has been here several weeks, attending strictly to business all the time, and there will be no room for excuses if he fails to stick the route. Moran, with his eye on a chance at Wiggast and the championship, has been working like a beaver since his arrival from the east, and he, like his opponent, is right in the prime of condition.

Light From Start. The English youngster is counting upon beating Nelson at his own game. That is, he figures on wading right in from the tag of the round, and letting the Battler all the punishment he is capable of taking. Not a few are doubtful as to whether Nelson's championship can really maintain the pace in a fifteen-round bout against a hard man, and a knockout will not cause very much of a surprise.

Do You Suffer from Piles?

If so, we would ask you to enquire amongst your friends the value of Zam-Buk for this ailment! You cannot but meet with some one who has proved how excellent it is.

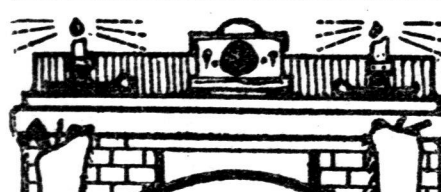

Mr. H. E. Hill of Shelburne, Man., writes:—"I suffered a long time with piles and tried numerous remedies, but without effect. Having tried a sample of Zam-Buk and being encouraged by the result, I persevered, using two boxes. It worked like magic, and effected a complete cure in a very short time."

Mr. James Ruddy of Killaloe, Ont., says:—"I suffered greatly from piles. The pain from them was as anyone who suffers from them will know, was almost unbearable. I tried first one remedy and then another, but all without effect. Then I heard about Zam-Buk and determined to give this wonderful balm a trial. I obtained a supply and commenced with the treatment, and to my great joy, after perseverance with Zam-Buk, I obtained permanent relief from the agonizing pain of the piles. Having been cured by Zam-Buk I heartily recommend the balm to all sufferers."

Zam-Buk also cures inflamed sores, eczema, scalp sores, ulcers, abscesses, cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, cuts, burns and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse substitutes and imitations.

GRAFT TALK IN THE CITY COUNCIL

Ald. Richter Says Cathcart St. Is a Disgrace to the Corporation.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS UP

Red-Hot Debate in the Chamber Last Night—Finance Minister on the Warpath.

Local improvements always start a debate in the council, and for about eight months, the present council have whittled away many hours dealing with this delectable subject. Not satisfied with the results, they last night sent it on to next year's council, and the subject will probably be a hardy perennial, coming up year after year to furnish food debating material for aldermen.

The matter was brought up by Ald. Richter, chairman of the special committee appointed to investigate the matter, and he made some rather strong statements. He recommended that the property-owner pay all the cost of local improvements. The present system was illegal, unbusinesslike, unfair to the small property-owner, wasteful, and tended to dishonesty and graft, he declared.

"I do not like to use the word graft, but it must be used in this connection," declared Ald. Richter. "For instance, take Cathcart street. The total assessment of that street, outside corporation, is $24,000, and including them, $53,000. Yet the council and preceding councils have spent between $6,000 and $7,000 there. There must be some motive behind this, other than the desire to work any alderman who would support that sort of thing should be placed in the Central Prison."

Ald. Richter declared that the present system cost the ratepayers more than if he paid the whole cost himself. He instanced his own case. His local improvements cost him $9.78 per annum, and the city paid him like sum, in addition, he paid a mill on the dollar on his assessment to meet the local improvement debt. This would mean $10.29 on his lot, making his total cost for local improvements $19.98. Had he paid the whole cost of the walks and curbs, he would pay twice $9.78, or $19.56.

Ald. Tancock blamed Cathcart street on last year's council, saying that they were altogether culpable for conditions there. "The council may have been bad enough, but it certainly is no worse than this outfit," shot back Ald. Saunders. "We may have spent money on the streets, but the people saw something in it. They paid for it. You appoint officials at good salaries, and do not know what they are to do, or anything else. I would like to know who was getting the graft on Cathcart street. I certainly did not know the work was being done. I would like to hear the man named who got the graft."

City Auditor Jewell gave an explanation of the method that would be employed in granting rebates to property-owners, who paid the whole cost of their walks. They would be granted an exemption equal to the amount paid into the general rate.

On motion of Ald. Morgan, the matter was sent over to next year's council, the vote standing six to five.

Ald. Morgan's motion to take a plebiscite on the question as to whether or not the citizens desired had the cost of cement walks to be paid out of the general rate, as at the present time, met a cruel fate, and was defeated altogether, but two aldermen supporting Ald. Morgan.

Your Time Is Not Yours

IT BELONGS TO THOSE DEPENDING ON YOU—FOR THEIR SAKES PRESERVE YOUR HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

You never thought of it just this way before. While not feeling well you have neglected to take active means of restoring health, thinking all the time that you were the only one to suffer by delay.

Not so. For who among us has not someone depending on him for comfort, happiness or the means of livelihood?

When you lie awake nights, worry over little things, get nervous and irritable, have indigestion and headaches, you may be sure the nervous system is becoming exhausted.

Time is not yours to delay. You must call a halt to the wasting process. Otherwise you will have a rude awakening some day, when prostrations, paralysis, or locomotor ataxia lays you low, or such is the natural and inevitable results of neglected nervous diseases.

You can restore the nervous system by using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. Being composed of Nature's most potent nerve restoratives, it cannot fail to benefit you. Each dose must of necessity bring you nearer to health, strength and vigor.

Mr. William Branton, Victoria street, Stratford, Ont., writes: "Before using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food my nervous system seemed all unstrung. I could not sleep, had no appetite, hands and feet were cold, my digestion was poor and I had jerking of the limbs. The first box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food helped me, and I continued until I had taken twenty-four boxes for $2.50. At this time I had made a radical change in my condition, building up the system and strengthening the nerves."

BAPTIST PASTOR BACKS UP SHEARER

He Says the Doctor Has Sworn Evidence for Every Statement Made About Winnipeg.

MAKE AN INVESTIGATION

City Council Decides To See If the Charges Made Are True.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 21.—Rev. J. McLean, of Tabernacle Baptist Church, vigorously defended Rev. Dr. Shearer last night. He said that Dr. Shearer had sworn evidence for every statement made about him.

"If," said Mr. McLean, "Dr. Shearer is not in a position to back up his statement with proof, then it is up to the city to take action against him, but so far he has utterly defied them to take any such proceedings, and the statements which Dr. Shearer made in Toronto, and made many times on platforms in this city in the next few weeks."

Adjutant McElpheny, of the Salvation Army, also defended Dr. Shearer at a big mass meeting in the Winnipeg Theatre. He said every one of the 51 houses in the red-light district was a blind pig.

There are in the district 216 girls. He also claimed that outside of the district there were twenty houses selling liquor.

At a meeting of the city council it was decided to hold an investigation into the segregated district, and the charges which have been made by Dr. Shearer, and the moral and moral reform council of Canada, in regard to the red-light district.

Application will be made to the lieutenant-governor-in-council to appoint an investigation committee. Mayor Evans made a statement that no induction and a great deal more, without one possible word being summoned. Ald. Wilton, who was in the city, said the commission, said that the money the municipality voted for the suppression of vice had been frittered away and his usefulness was gone.

INGERSOLL COUNCIL HAD BUSY SESSION

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ingersoll, Nov. 22.—J. E. Ferguson, of this town, has been honored by being elected a director of the Western Ontario Power Development Society, with headquarters in London.

Nagle & Mills, of this town, have been awarded the contract at $7,000, for a new postoffice in Goderich.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Crotty yesterday.

Rev. J. H. Fox of Bangor, County Down, Ireland, gave an interesting address in the Sunday school room of the Baptist Church last night on "Home Mission Work in Ireland."

J. G. Proctor, of Tacoma, Wash., is the guest of his sister, Mrs. R. H. Young, Church street.

The regular meeting of the town council was held last night, all the members being present except Ald. Harris. The minutes were read and approved.

Application for the free use of the town hall for special religious services by the Salvation Army was made by the local officer in command, and subsequently the request was granted.

The chairman of the finance committee submitted a brief report, recommending the payment of sundry accounts.

The reports of the indigent committee and the board of works were read and approved.

On motion the bylaw to provide for the election of commissioners to manage the hydro-electric light and power business for the town, was read a second time and the council went into committee of the whole, with Reeve Fleetin in the chair.

The bylaw is a very lengthy and comprehensive document, defining in detail the manner of electing three commissioners, defining their duties, etc. The commissioners are to be elected on Monday, Jan. 2, 1911, at the same time as other municipal representatives are elected. The bylaw does not provide for paying the commissioners for their services.

In speaking on the bylaw Ald. Mills forewarned the possibility of purchasing the waterworks in the near future, and that then the question of remuneration should be considered, as he believed it would be good economy to pay competent men for managing both the electric light and power, and the waterworks systems.

DUNDAS PASTOR CALLED TO ASKIN ST. CHURCH

Quarterly Board Sends Invitation to Rev. W. H. Harvey.

It is confidently expected that Rev. W. H. Harvey, of Dundas, will be the new pastor of Askin Street Methodist Church.

An invitation was extended to him by the quarterly official board of the church at a meeting last night. Previous to going to Dun. Rev. Mr. Harvey was called to the Askin Street Methodist Church, Brantford, and prior to that he was in St. Catharines.

Askin Street Church have been endeavoring to secure a pastor for some time, and were recently disappointed in not securing Rev. G. W. Henderson, of Peterboro, who, after considering their invitation, decided to remain in his present charge.

A dispatch was received from Rev. Mr. Harvey last night to the effect that he would probably accept the call, provided his transfer from the Hamilton to the London conference is sanctioned by the transfer committee of the Methodist Church.

London, Nov. 22.—The Lords Monday pressed their case to the country in the coming electoral struggle, a case which John E. Redmond, leader of the Nationalists, in a speech at the Mansion House, characterized as "metaphorically committing suicide as fast as possible."

It is understood that the resolutions which Lord Lansdowne gave notice he would introduce Wednesday, will introduce a bill to amend the attitude taken by the Unionist side in the veto conference and the rock on which the conference foundered.

The Resolutions. "It is desirable that provision be made for settling differences that may arise between the House of Commons and this House as respects reduced in numbers in accordance with the recent resolutions of this House."

"That as to bills other than money bills such provision should be made on the following lines: "If a difference arises between the House of Commons and this House in any other than a money bill in two successive sessions and during an interval of not less than one year, the difference shall be referred to a joint sitting composed of the members of the two Houses; provided, that if the measure relates to a matter of great gravity and has not been adequately submitted to the judgment of the people, it shall not be referred to a joint sitting, but submitted for decision to the electors by a referendum."

Money Bills. "That as to money bills the provisions should be on the following lines: "The Lords are prepared to forego their constitutional right to reject or amend money bills which are purely of a financial character provided effectual provision is made against 'tacking,' and provided that if any question arises as to whether a bill or any of the provisions thereof are of a purely financial character, that question shall be referred to a joint sitting of both Houses."

Liberals Opposed. The Liberals contend that the adoption of these resolutions would render future Liberal governments as powerless as ever against the House of Lords. The present situation appears to be that the House of Lords will discuss these resolutions, instead of passing the second reading of the veto bill.

The session of the House of Lords Monday was devoted to the veto bill, the House adjourning at 4 o'clock.

Under Martial Law. The city of Toronto was put under martial law at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The streets are closed and business is suspended. The electric railway is closed, and all public places are closed, and all people were warned to keep indoors.

Soldiers are trying to dislodge the revolutionists from the hill tops surrounding the city. A full company of federal troops rode into Toronto at midnight.

The situation on the border here at El Paso remains unchanged. No disturbances have taken place in Juarez, and the town is reported to be quiet. A big sign has been posted at the international bridge connecting this city with Juarez, Mexico, forbidding any person to pass over between the hours of 12 midnight and 6 o'clock a.m. This action is taken by the instance of the Mexican Government. Guards were posted to enforce the order.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 22.—It is reported that revolutionists attacked the town of Parral, in the State of Chihuahua at 4 o'clock this morning, and were repulsed with a loss of fifteen men. Three revolutionists were killed and three were wounded.

Serious Disorders. El Paso, Nov. 22.—From the meagre information received last night, however, it is known that the situation is critical in the extreme. Serious disorders were reported from points in seven different states, the territory affected spreading in fan shape from a point less than 100 miles west of the city of Mexico.

The situation in the state of Coahuila, Acambaro in the state of Guanajuato, and Orizaba in the state of Vera Cruz, Orizaba had been previously reported in Zatecas and Puebla in the state of Puebla.

Troops Under Arms. Rumor has it that General Bernardo Reyes, the military hero of the country, had been ordered to the uprising two years ago, and who has been practically an exile since, had reached Mexico with revolutionary troops, and was preparing to march on the city of Mexico.

Soldiers Deserted. The most serious feature of the uprising is the report from Gomez Palazao that the Mexican Government had assumed charge of all the telegraph lines within the republic, and that no message could be transmitted except under strict government censorship.

Every street in Juarez is being patrolled by the military. Double guards were on duty at the municipal prison, the banks and custom house last night. Every pedestrian is stopped and questioned every block when he entered the city this morning.

Look Many Places. El Paso, Nov. 22.—According to advices received this morning, San Antonio, San Andres, Torsion Ranch, Minaca, Encinillas, Guerrero and the surrounding country in the state of Chihuahua, were taken last night by revolutionists, who confiscated all stores and military equipment and surrounded all cities and towns. Chihuahua is under martial law.

GRAND TRUNK SHEDS BURN AT WINGHAM

Hard Work by Firemen and Citizens Alone Prevented Conflagration.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Wingham, Nov. 22.—The big building used by the Grand Trunk as freight sheds were completely destroyed by fire shortly after midnight, and only the hardest kind of work on the part of the firemen and citizens prevented the blaze from spreading to adjoining places. Two loaded box cars in a siding were burned, together with their contents, and a third, loaded with lumber, was only saved by the splendid work done by the Wingham firemen.

William Sneath, of the Grand Trunk, and Engineer Hall. When it was seen that the car was burning, Engineer Hall backed his engine down to draw it away. It was found that one of the brake shoes was stuck, and it could not be moved. By this time the lumber was burning at the end where the brake shoe was stuck, and the fire spread rapidly.

In the meantime the fire in the freight sheds blazed fiercely, and, although the town fire department had four steam engines playing on the sheds, it was feared for a time that the blaze would spread. The department devoted all their time to saving the houses, and finally their efforts were successful, as the fire in the freight sheds commenced to burn itself out. The loss will amount to several thousand dollars, as there was a large quantity of goods stored in the building.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—MRS. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for women's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

COUNCIL ACCEPTED THE RESIGNATION

Mr. C. E. Carruthers' Term With the City Has Come to an End.

The city is without a publicity agent.

At the meeting of the council held last night, Mr. C. E. Carruthers, who has held the position for about seven months, tendered his resignation.

He stated in his letter to the council that he had several positions in sight that were more to his advantage than his present office. He thanked the aldermen for their courtesy to him.

"I move that his resignation be accepted," said Ald. Tancock. "I second the motion," declared Ald. Fitzgerald.

The motion passed without any discussion whatever.

Mothers' Clubs Ask That Peddlers Be Kept Away From Schools.

The Mothers' Clubs of the city presented a petition to the city council last night asking that a bylaw be passed to prevent peddlers from selling candies and peanuts, etc., near public schools.

The communication was sent by the secretary, Mrs. L. E. Irwin, and in it pointed out how great a source of worry the peddler selling his wares in certain areas be allowed to take in the schools. A plan was submitted defining the boundaries.

It was sent to No. 1 committee, and will be discussed at the next meeting of the council.

INFORMATION WILL NOT BE SECURED

Ald. Richter's Motion Regarding Fixed Assessments Was Defeated.

Ald. Richter wanted some information submitted to the ratepayers with reference to the fixed assessment vote in January, but the council could not see it last night. He introduced a motion to the effect that Assessment Commissioner Grant be directed to procure an independent appraisal of the real property of all the firms seeking fixed assessments at the hands of the ratepayers, to show the fair and reasonable value of the land, the buildings, and the total value of the land and buildings; and also to ascertain the number of persons regularly employed by each firm, and the average of their weekly wage.

ENGINEER GRAYDON WAS DISMISSED

Council Last Night Decided to Dispense With His Services.

A STRONG APPEAL MADE

But the Aldermen Were Obdurate, and Would Not Listen to Any New Proposals.

Consulting Engineer Graydon was dismissed by the council at its meeting last night. There was a spirited debate on the question, but the opposition to Mr. Graydon was somewhat pronounced, and succeeded in ousting him from his position. He was given no retiring allowance whatever. Ald. Tancock made a bitter attack on Deputy Engineer Wright, and was called to order by Mayor Beattie.

Ald. Underwood made the motion for Mr. Graydon's dismissal, and Ald. Richter seconded it.

"We had better allow this matter to go over until next year," said Ald. Eckert. "There is some reorganization to be considered then, and we should leave it absolutely in the hands of Mr. Van Cleve."

"It would be better if we made a clean sweep of the engineers," declared Ald. Tancock. "Then we could let Van Cleve appoint his own assistants." He then drifted on to Deputy Engineer Wright, and accused him of many engineering sins, and declared that thousands of dollars had been squandered.

Mayor Beattie asked Head Engineer Van Cleve whether he still advised the council to retain the services of Mr. Graydon for six months.

"Before coming here I wrote advising the council to keep Mr. Graydon six months," said Mr. Van Cleve. "That was on the general principle that he would be a valuable man, in view of his long experience, and I considered that he would be of assistance to me. I also thought it would be a fitting recognition of a man's long service. As for his record, the council are in the best position to judge of that. Our relations are very pleasant at the present time."

Ald. Tancock Criticized.
"It is just about time Ald. Tancock dropped his senseless attacks on Mr. Wright," declared Ald. Saunders warmly. "Because he could not get the assistant engineer to carry out his pet schemes and do his dirty tricks he turned on him. It would be more to the credit of Mr. Van Cleve if he remained in his office, and quit running around after the chairman, Ald. Tancock knew of these things long before they were finished, and if they were wrong why did he not stop them instead of coming here and talking nonsense."

The engineers of this city have been found wanting," declared Ald. Tancock. "Wright has made some bad mistakes."

"This discussion regarding Mr. Wright is altogether out of order," ruled Mr. Beattie. "We are not discussing him at all. The chairman of No. 2 committee had no business bringing his name into this debate."

Ald. Pocock moved that Mr. Graydon be allowed to retire at the end of the year, and that he be paid his former salary of $2,400 for that period. Ald. Saunders seconded the motion.

Ald. Morgan paid his respects to the dominant party in the council in rather vigorous language.

A Dodge!
"This is just an electioneering dodge," declared he. "You did a lot of talk early in the year, and then you named an investigation committee. It was the whole idea of the year, and you said that conditions were perfect about the city hall. When Mr. Graydon wanted to quit you fell all over yourselves to create a position for him. Now you come and ask me to assist you in dismissing him. That is a nice way to do business. If some of you get back next year, you will want to re-engage him. I would have some backbone."

"If you are bent on dismissing him, give him decent treatment," commented Ald. Eckert. "Not a man of you would dismiss a man in your employ after twenty years' service with not even a kind word. It is not fair—it is not decent. I am still of the opinion that the whole business should stand over until Mr. Van Cleve reorganizes the whole department."

Ald. Pocock's amendment to give Mr. Graydon the balance of a year's salary was defeated, four aldermen, Ald. Pocock, Ald. Eckert, Ald. Rose and Ald. Saunders alone voting for it. Ald. Richter, Ald. Underwood, Ald. Ashplant, Ald. Jeffries, Ald. Fitzgerald, Ald. Morgan, and Ald. Tancock voted against it.

BRIDGE PROPOSITION WAS LAID OVER

It Will Cost $500 to Submit a Bylaw to the City.

The recommendation of No. 2 committee that a bylaw be submitted to the ratepayers to raise $50,000 to build a bridge across the Thames to join the South and West London, was laid over until the next meeting.

"Does Ald. Tancock know that it will cost $500 to submit that bylaw?" asked Ald. Richter. "That fact should be taken into consideration. For my part I do not see the necessity of expending that much money on a bylaw that is certain to be defeated."

The information regarding the cost of submitting a bylaw came as somewhat of a surprise, and it was decided to allow the matter to stand for the time being.

CITY FIREMEN ASK FOR MORE MONEY

Request Received By Council and Sent to Number 3 Committee.

At the meeting of the council last night a request for an increase in pay was presented by the city firemen. It was sent to No. 3 committee, and will be discussed at the next regular meeting.

"The men think they should receive more money," said Chief Aitken. "It is becoming more difficult to obtain good men for the department, as they claim the wages are not high enough. The cost of living has gone up, and the men want more salary to meet it." It is understood that there is every probability that their request will be granted.

FIXED ASSESSMENTS SENT TO THE PEOPLE

Four More Requests Were Dealt With in This Way By the Council.

Four more applications for fixed assessments were sent to the people by the city council last night. They were E. Leonard & Sons, $45,000; Wortman & Ward, $10,000; the London Foundry Company, $7,000; and the London Brass Company, $5,000.

Mr. F. E. Leonard and Mr. W. Leonard represented E. Leonard & Sons, and explained their position. Their regular assessment was $52,000, and they desired it fixed at $45,000.

"I am opposed to the principle of bonusing or fixed assessments," declared Mr. Leonard. "I do not think it fair nor just. However, I should not think it fair that one firm should be taxed, and another in the same line of business given the advantage of a bonus and fixed assessment. If others are to be granted this favor, we should be treated just as fairly. One of our competitors has a fixed assessment for 30 years. We are asking for an assessment that is about 83 per cent of our ordinary assessment, not a serious matter, I think. Others will show a much larger percentage of exemption, some of them asking to be relieved of nearly 70 per cent of the taxes."

The bylaw granting their request was given two readings, Mr. R. K. Cowan represented the London Foundry Company, and stated that they had raised their assessment from $5,000 to $7,500, which he considered reasonable.

That bylaw was given two readings and so were the Wortman & Ward and the London Brass Company, although there were no representatives of these firms present.

MUST REMOVE SNOW OFF BUSINESS WALKS

City Council Last Night Defined a New Area To Be Cleaned.

Snow furnished one of the numerous topics of debate at the council meeting last night.

In the report of the board of works, a recommendation was presented to increase the area down town, where the walks must be shovelled off by the citizens. Roughly, this area extends from the Grand Trunk tracks to Fullarton street, and from Wellington to Ridout, and includes Dundas street from Ridout to Rectory.

This is an increase of several blocks over the area set out last year.

"I think every citizen should be compelled to shovel off the walk in front of his own house," said Ald. Underwood. "I would extend the motion to cover the whole city, and pass a bylaw compelling every man to shovel off his walk before 9 o'clock. We would then do away with snow-plows."

"This is no longer a country village," declared Ald. Saunders. "Give the people who go to work at 7 and 8 o'clock some chance. The snowplow is not the best thing in the world, but if the citizens would supplement the snowplow's work by a little shovelling every morning, it would be better for the city."

Ald. Underwood moved in amendment to the original recommendation that every citizen be compelled to shovel the walk in front of his residence and place of business, but the council could not see the force of his arguments, and defeated the amendment.

FIRE ENGINE PURCHASE WAS AGAIN LAID OVER

And Ald. Richter's Suggestion Adopted to Send It Back to Committee.

Ald. Richter paid his respects to the Underwriters' Association at the council last night, and suggested that the Government take a hand in the game and buy what authority this corporation demands so much of the city of London.

Incidentally, the question of the purchase of a steam fire engine was sent back until No. 1 committee can find the money for it for No. 3 committee.

The debate followed the recommendation of No. 3 committee that the local engine be purchased, provided it would stand a satisfactory test.

Ald. Richter asked Ald. Ashplant where the money was coming from, but the chairman of No. 3 committee could not say.

Restraint of Trade.
"I do not think we need another engine in this city," declared Ald. Richter. "The underwriters should do more for us than they do. It is simply a matter of having a law passed, no status and no legal standing. I think they could be proceeded against for restraint of trade. If the member for London could bring this matter to the attention of the Government I think there would be a general decline in insurance rates. We would get a deduction and a great deal more without a cent. We are entitled to a 20-cent reduction and a great deal more, without spending one copper. This is a hold-up and we should not countenance it."

However, none of the aldermen voted for the purchase of the fire engine. Ald. Richter pointed out that the matter of financing the deal was in the

DR. COSTIGAN DEAD

Was Assistant Rector of St. John the Evangelist Church in Toronto.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Rev. Edward Costigan, assistant rector of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, died today of pneumonia after a brief illness. Rev. Mr. Costigan was born in Lurgan, Ireland, in 1869, and came to Canada in the early nineties. He was ordained as priest in 1893, and acted as missionary in charge at North Hastings for three years.
