VOTE STRONG FOR THE HOMES OF LONDON

Philip Pocock Approves Manitoba "Wet" Victory

MANITOBA "WETS" CARRY PROVINCE, GET BIG MAJORITY

Prohibition Law Defeated by Margin of Over 30,000 Voters.

TAKE THREE MONTHS

Time Required Before Government Control Can Be Introduced.

Canadian Press Despatch. Winnipeg, June 23. — Electrical storms which played about the city today, while in others it was reviewed with profound regret. Local clergymen were naturally disappointed at the 30,000 "wet" majority recorded in the western province, but some representative business men were extremely well pleased. Philip Pocock, one of London's prominent citizens, and an indefatigable supporter of Sir Adam Beck, discussing the result with The Advertiser, told of his satisfaction in emphatic terms.

Mr. Pocock believed the verdict of Manitoba would be in the best interest of that province. "It's what we should have in Ontario," he declared. London ministers were as one in deploring the outcome of the plebiscite, and local candidates for the provincial house expressed a variety of opinions. Miss Isabel Armstrong thought it only gave added zest to the work of prohibitionists, while J. M. Donahue, advocate of beer and wine, looked on the 30,000 majority for the "wets" as the "turning of the tide."

Relief Work Rushed in Mount Etna Area
Premier Mussolini Returns to Rome—Other Government Officials To Aid.
Special Cable to The Advertiser. Catania, Sicily, June 23.—Rehabilitation and relief work in the area devastated by the flow of lava in the eruption of Mount Etna went forward today. American Ambassador Child visited the region and investigated the situation. Premier Mussolini has returned to Rome, but other government officials are remaining until the situation is improved. Commander Perera, general delegate of the United States Red Cross, conferred with Senator Cirio, and it was agreed that relief funds collected in the United States would be repaid by subscription.

MAY TRY N. J. WOMAN FOR SECOND DEATH

The Police Consider Another Charge Against Mrs. Creighton, Acquitted of Killing Brother.

Special to The Advertiser. Newark, N. J., June 23.—Police and the prosecuting attorney conferred today to find out if Mrs. John Creighton shall be tried on the charge of killing her mother-in-law with poison. Late yesterday the woman and her husband were acquitted of a charge of poisoning her 18-year-old brother, Charles Avery. Creighton was released, but his wife is being held pending a decision on whether to try her on the second murder indictment. The prosecutor charged that collection of life insurance was the motive in both alleged murders. The mother-in-law died in December of 1920. The body was disinterred recently.

$5,000 LOSS FROM MORNING BLAZE IN LUMBER YARD

Prompt Work by Firemen Saved Property of Dymet-Baker Lumber Company.

FIVE-HOUR FIGHT

Fire Started in Boiler House Shortly After 6 o'Clock This Morning.

Prompt and efficient work by the London firemen checked what might have developed into a disastrous fire early this morning, when the boiler house at the Dymet-Baker Lumber Company became ignited, and in a short time the adjoining buildings were aflame. The damage, most of which is around the boiler room, is estimated at $5,000. George Blackwell, night watchman at the plant, fired the boiler at 6 o'clock, and at that time noticed nothing wrong, but at 6:15 a resident of the district saw flames in the buildings in the interior of the yard, and turned in the alarm. As the Dymet-Baker Company carry one of the largest stocks of lumber in the city, the apparatus of every station was summoned, and when the firemen arrived the boiler shed and a number of other buildings were ablaze. Fighting the fire was rendered all the more difficult on account of the fact that the adjoining sheds were well-stocked with shavings. The smoke from the shavings was sometimes so dense that no fire was discernible, and it was only after three hours of continuous work that the blaze was got under control. The last piece of apparatus didn't leave the plant till after 11 o'clock. Fire Chief Aitken attributes the cause of the fire to accumulated dirt and waste above the boiler. In his opinion, the heat of the boiler, after firing up, was sufficient to set off the material above the boiler. The damage sustained has not impeded to any great extent the work at the plant, the planing and most of the other machines being in operation as usual.

RELIEF WORK RUSHED IN MOUNT ETNA AREA

Premier Mussolini Returns to Rome—Other Government Officials To Aid.

Special Cable to The Advertiser. Catania, Sicily, June 23.—Rehabilitation and relief work in the area devastated by the flow of lava in the eruption of Mount Etna went forward today. American Ambassador Child visited the region and investigated the situation. Premier Mussolini has returned to Rome, but other government officials are remaining until the situation is improved. Commander Perera, general delegate of the United States Red Cross, conferred with Senator Cirio, and it was agreed that relief funds collected in the United States would be repaid by subscription.

BRITISH MEDICAL COUNCIL FAVORS TUBERCULAR CURE

By HENRY SOMERVILLE. Special Cable to The Advertiser. London, England, June 23.—The Medical Research Council has just issued an extraordinary helpful statement on Professor Dreyer's new treatment for tuberculosis. The new vaccine is called "antigen," and the council states that after experiments in three London hospitals results have been favorable almost without exception. No final opinion can yet be passed regarding the effects on the lungs or other internal organs which have become tubercular—but in the cases of diseased glands and skin the new treatment surpasses all other.

N. Y. WOMAN WITH BABE DIES IN LEAP FROM ROOF

Special to The Advertiser. New York, June 23.—Mary Lozier, 21, with her three-month-old son in her arms, leaped to death from the roof of a five-story tenement house. The child died instantly and the mother succumbed later. The woman's husband believes temporary insanity induced by the heat caused the act.

FOUR CANDIDATES—AND YOUR RESPONSIBILITY

Four candidates and a real responsibility face the voters of London on Monday.

The four candidates are: Isabel Armstrong, Liberal; Adam Beck, Conservative; J. M. Donahue, wet-Conservative, and Hugh Stevenson, Labor-U. F. O.

The responsibility is that of deciding what is best for the people of London and of Ontario.

To make this decision men and women will ask these questions: What are the arguments by which each candidate is appealing for election?

What are the merits of these arguments?

Below is a review of the arguments presented by the candidates during the campaign, followed by The Advertiser's judgment of their merit.

Isabel Armstrong—Liberal

Isabel Armstrong has stated to the public a definite platform, consisting of five planks: (1) Better Homes; (2) Efficient Prohibition; (3) Protection of Public Ownership; (4) Economy in Government; and (5) Wider Educational Opportunity.

The central purpose of this platform seems to be expressed in the first clause—Better Homes.

The history of Miss Armstrong's activities, wherever she has been, tends always toward welfare and humanitarian interests; her speeches in the campaign have carried the same idea and the specific legislation which she mentions in her platform has a similar purpose.

There seems to be no doubt that Miss Armstrong stands for the O. T. A., for the protection of the people's resources, for economic government and for wider education with the one idea in view—to give people more prosperous and happier homes.

Isabel Armstrong is a Liberal. From her purposes in life it is probable that she is Liberal because she believes that Liberal principles best support laws which are humanitarian in purpose. It was Isabel Armstrong who at the great national convention of Liberals in Ottawa four years ago secured as a plank in the national platform this resolution: "This gathering of Liberals in convention assembled, pledges itself to a vigorous prosecution of the measures best calculated to conserve the life and improve the physical standard of our Canadian citizenship."

J. M. Donahue—Wet Conservative

J. M. Donahue announced himself several weeks before nomination date as a candidate with one definite and single purpose—to amend the Ontario temperance act.

Mr. Donahue believes in the sale of beer and light wine by government control, and this is his definitely stated argument as a candidate for election.

J. M. Donahue has not declared himself on any other public questions, and has chosen to win or lose on the liquor issue.

There is little doubt as to Mr. Donahue's sincerity of conviction, and whatever extent one may disagree with his purpose, he seems to deserve a certain recognition on the grounds of frankness and boldness.

J. M. Donahue's politics are somewhat obscure. He is generally regarded as a Conservative, although not long ago he had Labor affiliations with which he later broke.

Statements during his campaign indicate that he adheres to some of his Conservative leanings and to classify Mr. Donahue on party lines would be to put him down as a wet Conservative.

Of These Four—Who Is Worthy To Work For London?

Of the four candidates The Advertiser believes Isabel Armstrong to be the most worthy of election.

It is, of course, natural that The Advertiser, as an exponent of Liberalism, should choose the candidate who advocates Liberal principles and Liberal legislation.

But quite distinct from party arguments and by independent comparison of the purposes of each candidate, Isabel Armstrong is London's best choice today.

Adam Beck—Conservative

Adam Beck has stated no platform, but he has made it plain in his speeches and in his campaign material that his plea for election is to represent hydro in the provincial parliament.

He has stated repeatedly that his great interest and aim is to develop the hydro power resources of the province, and he argues that this development requires his presence in the legislature.

Adam Beck has given nothing which can be accepted as a definite pronouncement on the other issues of the day—the O. T. A., education, labor and welfare legislation and education, and it would seem that he is entirely truthful and sincere when he says that his sole interest is involved in hydro.

Adam Beck was for years a prominent Conservative. In 1919 he withdrew from the Conservative party following his break with Sir William Hearst, and has since described himself as an independent in politics. It seems improbable that his return to the Conservative party indicates any Conservative convictions. From Sir Adam's own statements Conservatism means little to him, and the reasonable conclusion seems to be that Adam Beck has chosen to follow Mr. Ferguson at this time as a matter of opportunity to accomplish other objectives.

Hugh Stevenson—Labor-U. F. O.

Hugh Stevenson has stated no platform to the public, but the arguments which he has used during his campaign make it fairly clear that his plea for election is based partly on the record of the U. F. O. government and partly on his personal record as a supporter of that government during the last four years.

Dr. Stevenson has not announced his position with regard to the O. T. A., but it seems reasonable to assume that as a supporter of Mr. Drury and Mr. Raney he is also a supporter of their temperance policy.

As a Labor candidate, Hugh Stevenson has tended to stress such legislation as minimum wage and mothers' allowance, claiming credit for the Drury government during the last four years.

Government in sponsoring it and for himself as taking an active part personally. Dr. Stevenson also argues that as London's representative during the last four years he has consistently cared for the interests of the city.

Hugh Stevenson must be regarded as a member of the Labor party. His political classification is complicated, however, by the fact that he has declared allegiance to the Farmer party, and in addition to this it would seem that remnants of his former Liberalism at times remain.

LONDONERS HOLD VARIED VIEWS ON MANITOBA RESULT

Isabel Armstrong Says It Shows Prohibition Issue Not Closed.

MR. POCOCK PLEASED

J. M. Donahue Says It Marks "the Turning of the Tide"—Views of Others.

The result of the Manitoba liquor referendum elicited expressions of keen satisfaction in many quarters of the city today, while in others it was reviewed with profound regret. Local clergymen were naturally disappointed at the 30,000 "wet" majority recorded in the western province, but some representative business men were extremely well pleased. Philip Pocock, one of London's prominent citizens, and an indefatigable supporter of Sir Adam Beck, discussing the result with The Advertiser, told of his satisfaction in emphatic terms.

Mr. Pocock believed the verdict of Manitoba would be in the best interest of that province. "It's what we should have in Ontario," he declared. London ministers were as one in deploring the outcome of the plebiscite, and local candidates for the provincial house expressed a variety of opinions. Miss Isabel Armstrong thought it only gave added zest to the work of prohibitionists, while J. M. Donahue, advocate of beer and wine, looked on the 30,000 majority for the "wets" as the "turning of the tide."

PREDICT PROHIBITION WILL GO IN ALBERTA

Believe Vote in Manitoba Will Effect Other Prairie Provinces.

Canadian Press Despatch. Calgary, June 23.—The morning Alberta prohibitionists' newspaper of Alberta, this morning says in its editorial column: "Not only was the result of the referendum on government control in Manitoba some indication of the feeling at present on prohibition in the prairie provinces, but the result of the vote there today will have a direct effect upon the vote in this province."

VOTING ON MONDAY FROM 8 A.M. TO 6 P.M.

All Indications Point to Record Vote Cast in London Subdivision.

The polls open Monday at 8 a.m. and will not close until 6 p.m. From present indications a record vote will be cast. The deputy returning officers will tabulate their results at their respective polling booths, bringing the returns to the city hall directly after the result. It is not expected that the result will be known nearly as soon as in other elections although the increased vote in the prairie provinces, but the result of the vote there today will have a direct effect upon the vote in this province.

Under the new regulations the city clerk cannot open the ballot boxes again and check them over until Tuesday night.

CANDIDATES ARE WORKING IN HEAT IN FINAL HOURS

Sir Adam Beck Still Ill, But Others Are Fighting Vigorously.

ON THE LAST LAP

Isabel Armstrong Sets Pace For Others in Her Whirlwind Fight.

Stiffing heat cannot wither the infinite energy of local candidates. With the exception of Sir Adam Beck, who is still confined to bed, the final day of the campaign finds London aspirants for political laurels working hammer and tongs. Isabel C. Armstrong, J. M. Donahue and Dr. Hugh Stevenson, M.L.A., devoted the morning to personal solicitation. Miss Armstrong visited hundreds of voters this afternoon. J. M. Donahue distributed pamphlets outlining his platform in all parts of the city this morning, while Dr. Stevenson occupied his accustomed perch on the top of an auctioneer's wagon on the market at noon hour. The courageous Liberal torch-bearer is fighting until the last hour. From all classes and ranks of society she received this morning best wishes and assurances that her appeal for better homes had not been made in vain. Men and women of all political affiliations, some of them noted partisans, gave enthusiastic promise of supporting Miss Armstrong through thick and thin. One woman entered Liberal headquarters this morning and told officials there she intended casting her first Liberal vote for Isabel Armstrong.

A Converted Tory, "I've been a Tory all my life," she said, "but I'm so pleased that we women of London have a real candidate in the field that I am going to cast my ballot for her."

Numerous similar tokens of the regard in which the Liberal candidate is held by all classes of the community were received yesterday and today. Miss Armstrong is personally most optimistic. The reception accorded her by Liberal headquarters and the Labor people alike augurs well for a substantial majority for her on Monday.

Sir Adam Beck's henchmen attended, for the most part, to small detail work and individual soliciting on behalf of their leader this morning.

Dr. Stevenson, who held a waiting at the market square this evening, and it is possible that J. M. Donahue will also deliver an impromptu address before the voters during the day. Introduced by "Rattlesnake" Caton, the Indian doctor at the market this morning, as a "distinctive" lecturer, Dr. Stevenson delivered his customary oration from the top of an auctioneer's pedestal.

Dr. Stevenson's Address. The doctor told of the 41 varieties of beneficial legislation the Drury Government had been responsible for in the past three years. He took full credit for the laws passed by the provincial legislature for Western University, and told of the hard time he experienced in amending the obnoxious laws for the benefit of motorists. He claimed an auto owner could not enjoy driving anywhere in the country, owing to the stringent motor laws. On the advice of representative auto men, however, the doctor declared he had the laws changed to the satisfaction of everyone.

"If I go back to the house," he said, "I shall see that an investigating committee is empaneled to look into the space laws, which obviously are unfair, and I shall see that something is done about it."

The doctor then proceeded to summarize the various functions of various commissions, which exalted into certain aspects of public utilities. He did not mention any of his opponents, but he was himself with telling of the many fine things done by Drury and his merry men.

"If you don't send me back to Toronto, I'll stay here," all that fine work will be for naught."

IRON HOPES TO DO CONSTRUCTIVE WORK

JOHN VINCENT IRON IN KINGSTON PENITENTIARY GIVES AN ADVERTISER MAN HIS REASONS FOR SETTING FIRES

Expects To Be Able To Rid Himself of Pyromaniac Desire in Time, But Says His Mind Is Too Fully Occupied at Present To Think About It—Plans To Do Something Constructive When Liberated.

THINKS LAW WAS RATHER HARSH IN HIS CASE

Special to The Advertiser

By a Staff Reporter.

Portsmouth Penitentiary, Kingston, June 22.—K-419 is the human question mark of the great walled city of reformation—Portsmouth Penitentiary.

Who is he? None other than John Vincent Iron, London firebug, with no less than 40 blazing large and small to his credit.

But he is no longer sullen John Iron. He is care-free, optimistic and industrious.

The Advertiser staff man met him in the visitors' cage just outside the general offices of the penitentiary.

In one of the three compartments which compose the cage, Iron stood, hat in hand, when the reporter was ushered into another compartment.

The guard stood in the third, between the prisoner and the reporter.

"Hello," Iron said in cheery greeting. "Down this way on business?"

"Yes," the reporter answered, for he had interviewed Henry Jack (Slim) Williams, Melbourne bank bandit, in the morning.

"Thought you'd be angry about that row we had over taking your picture in London," the reporter remarked.

"No," replied Iron, "I was rather 'set up' at the time. You know I had a lot on my mind then."

The incident to which the reporter referred, occurred at the London police station, when Iron objected to having his picture taken for publication. He just refused to remove his hat, and had tried to make the picture a failure, by bowing his head.

"Did the picture turn out all right?" Iron inquired.

"Not too bad," the reporter answered. Iron seemed satisfied.

The Incendiary Motive.

"What was your object in setting all those fires? What gain or satisfaction did you get from it all?" The Advertiser queried.

"Well, to tell you the truth, I don't know," the fire-bug replied frankly. "I've been trying to find some explanation for it myself, but so far I have not succeeded. As I wrote Magistrate Graydon, before I was sentenced, I put it down to an uncontrollable impulse."

"I guess I will never be able to find out exactly what is the matter though. There is something wrong, you know, but what it is, I don't know."

"It was just a habit," Iron said about his capture, though. Provost-Sergeant O'Connor just stumbled on it. I wish my arrest had taken place years ago."

"It should have, too, because I know for a fact that a certain man was asked to report my activities to the authorities. He knew what I was doing, too."

"Perhaps, I will be able to rid myself of the desire to set fires, permanently, here. I have no desire now for my time is fully occupied. Of course, I don't know what would happen if I was given the opportunity. I have no opportunity to set them here. That is quite apparent."

"I have made no plans for the future, and have not even thought of any yet. My first task will be to get rid of this desire to fire places. Then I will go about doing something constructive. I think everything will turn out right in the end."

Denies "C Block" Fire.

"Where did you get the oily waste to start these fires?" the reporter inquired.

"From box cars," Iron replied. "And, speaking of that, the staff O.T. waste, I found in my locker, not oily waste. It was stuffing from a mattress. I had taken it from the mattress, because it was hanging loose, and an inspection was due. This material came into contact with oily waste and naturally the stuffing gave off the same smell as the waste."

"I would have liked to have been able to take the blame for setting that fire that destroyed C Block at the barracks. It might have helped the boys to get compensation, but I really couldn't."

"Say, by the way, have they solved the Jones or the Reid fire, yet?"

"No," the Advertiser informed him. "Well, there's another case where I couldn't take the blame. I was sleeping when the Reid fire broke out, and I was on duty when the Jones fire occurred."

"And that Springfield fire—there was another. As a matter of fact, I was down in St. Thomas, and I was with some of the boys. We had some liquor, and were coming back, when we saw the reflection. Being city chaps, we thought it would be a novel experience to help them put it out. We thought it was some farmer's place. We found it was the booths at Springfield. They had cut the fire off from one building, but later I heard it had burned, too. I can't see how that happened."

Didn't Write "Tony" Letter.

Iron turned his attention to the "Tony" letters which had been sent to various city officials, after each fire, warning of the next to come.

"Now, I didn't have anything to do with those," Iron assured the Advertiser reporter. "I think some practical joker was responsible for them. You will always find those sort of people cropping up when any situation like this arises."

"Well, think how much greater the thrill would be if you set the fire yourself," Iron remarked.

"How far did you run away, after you set the fire?" The Advertiser wanted to know.

"Just far enough to make a clean getaway," Iron declared.

"Did you pass anyone at night, when you were running from a fire?"

"Yes, I passed policemen and other people, but, of course, a man has the right to be out at night. They didn't suspect me. Why should they?"

Thinks Law Harsh.

"I think the law was rather harsh. I thought they would be more lenient. 'Is this prohibited?' Iron asked, turning to the prison official.

"No," the officer replied, kindly, "as long as you don't talk about the institution. You can talk about anything outside that has occurred."

"Did you neglect anything to set these fires?" the reporter continued.

"No. Otherwise, I was normal, the prisoner retorted. 'I read a great deal and played a great deal. I like classical stuff. They say popular music spoils a man. I had often heard that, so I avoided it. I used to read most of the standard works—Hugo and Dumas, and others."

"Was too much reading responsible for your actions?" The Advertiser pursued.

"No," Iron hastened to reply. "I could read stories and never think of going out and shooting a man. The same with stories dealing with fires."

"I hope I will be able to overcome my weakness here. I am sure I will. I am still in the dark as to it all. It is beyond me. It is something I could not figure out. I used to read a great deal."

Then Iron stopped. He looked at the reporter, and noticed the newspaperman glancing in the direction of the number sewed on his brown prison garb.

Iron blushed, and, almost instinctively, he seemed, Iron's arm was raised to his chest.

It was quite apparent. Iron had talked at any length since his arrest, except when he made his confession.

Since sentence was pronounced, he has been wont to dismiss his interests—gators—even the prison officials—with a curt, "Well, it's over now. No use talking about it."

The interview seemed to have relieved his mind. When the questioning had ended, and the reporter began to leave, Iron said:

"Ticked to death to see you, old man. I'm sure. Hope I'll see you again some time."

Iron smiled broadly.

As the reporter reached the main office, he turned his head and gazed at Iron, still in the cage, behind the glass partition.

Iron smiled again.

CITY K. OF P. MEMBERS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Delegates Will Gather at Brantford, July 11, For Monster Celebration.

Several members of the Knights of Pythias of this city will attend the delegates' convention of the Grand Lodge, which is to be held at Brantford on July 11, 12 and 13.

This year's convention at Brantford is expected to be one of the most successful ever staged, and it hoped, owing to the central location of Brantford, a record number of delegates will attend. Representatives will be there from all over Ontario to engage in a large program of entertainment and sports that have been arranged.

The opening day festivities will be in the form of a parade headed by a large "degree" team from Hamilton. This team, termed the D. O. K. K. team, will provide all the musical program for the drill display.

Among the Londoners that will attend are: Frank McLean, Charles Tinsley, past grand chancellor; William Blake, Myrtle Lodge, No. 10; Ed. Fish, of Broadview, and J. B. Barnsdale, grand vice-chancellor of Huron Lodge.

Mr. Charles Tinsley intends to leave London on Wednesday to attend the Knights of Pythias picnic at Tashmoor Park previous to going to the convention at Brantford.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES WILL MEET ON SUNDAY

Several Out-of-Town Speakers Will Address the Gathering.

At an open meeting under the auspices of the Brotherhood Maintenance of Way employees will be held on Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the Labor Temple, Rud. Hessel, secretary of the union, will occupy the chair.

The speakers for the occasion are: G. H. Cummings, Montreal, chairman of the G. T. R. section of the Brotherhood; Gerald Gerald, vice-chairman of Kinburn, Ont.; E. J. Hopcraft, member of the international executive, and J. A. Flett of Hamilton.

Local men versed in the labor affairs of the railroads will also address the meeting which it is expected will be the best organization ever put on by the Brotherhood in London.

NEW YORK STATE GIVES STATUS TO "VARSITY" MEDS

Graduates Now Qualified, Write Papers To Practice in That State.

IS DISTINCT GAIN

Official recognition of the Western University Medical School by the State Board of Medicine of New York has been authorized after much persistence on the part of London medical men, according to an announcement received by Dean Paul S. McKibben of the medical school this week. This recognition means that all graduates of Western University who have attained the degree of doctor of medicine will be placed on an equal basis with graduates of medical colleges of New York State, a condition which has heretofore been prohibited.

Under the new regulations in New York State are regarded as the most strict in the United States, only universities with the most up-to-date facilities for teaching being recognized.

Up until a few years ago Western University Medical School was handicapped for lack of proper buildings in which medicine could be taught, and this dearth of laboratories acted as a detriment in being officially recognized by sister medical schools of the province. Although some of Western were always able to take their place with the best of American university graduates, the school buildings did not come up to the standards required for official recognition.

When the new medical school was constructed on Ottawa avenue, it was thought no impediment to recognition remained, but officials of the New York State board were not satisfied with the system of clinical teaching of medicine at the Victoria Hospital. By dint of much activity and co-operation on the part of the medical faculty of Western and staff of the Victoria Hospital, the objectionable features were removed, and a recent inspection carried out by an inspector of the New York State Board of Medicine at the medical school and Victoria Hospital has resulted in the official recognition of the University of Western Ontario by the State of New York.

Much credit is due Dr. Paul S. McKibben, dean of Western University Medical School and his faculty, and Dr. Roy C. Kingswood, chief resident of the Victoria Hospital, and his staff, for the rapid strides taken in which Western is officially recognized according to the highest standards.

As New York State observes reciprocity with several other states in the union as far as medicine is concerned, this latest honor is important. Western University graduates being permitted to practice the profession of medicine in those states in which reciprocity is in existence.

The heat wave, which for days has been beating over the whole Dominion, seemed to break up in certain sections yesterday. Calgary registered a maximum of 48, while Dawson City, much further north, showed 72.

Winnipeg went to 92, and cities in the east ran from 66 to 93, the latter mark being that set by London. The minimum in the city was 66.

Although the heat during the past week has been most oppressive, London is fortunate so far in having only one death reported from the continuous wave of sultry weather. Both hospitals have been on the alert for emergency cases, but so far none have been admitted.

SHOULD NOT ESTIMATE REVENUE FROM FINES

Mayor Wenige Says People Desire Protection, Not Persecution.

There should be no such thing as annual estimates of the amount of receipts, according to Mayor Wenige, who insisted again today that what the people desire when they pay their taxes is "protection and not persecution."

The chairman of the police commission, referring in particular to the motor vehicle restrictions and by-laws and declared the principle that a certain sum must be secured each year from fines was entirely wrong.

"A great deal more good can be accomplished in this city by education and not through actual contact with the police," Mayor Wenige said, in response to an inquiry from a member of the motor league who asked if something could not be done toward the better education of the motoring public to alleviate congested and dangerous conditions on the downtown thoroughfares, particularly at night and on Saturdays.

Dealing with one phase of this situation—angle parking—it was pointed out that the city is not adhering strictly to the regulations and the suggestion was made to the mayor that the city undertake an advertising campaign to insure better results.

Mayor Wenige was more than impressed with the proposal and a definite move will be made in that direction. It is his contention that the city should impress in this campaign, that it is not the duty of the municipality to haul its residents and taxpayers into the courts upon each and every opportunity in order to secure receipts from fines, set at the beginning of each year.

A popular slogan will be adopted, as "A tip in time saves a fine, etc. And it was in this connection that the mayor in very definite terms denounced the present scheme of city estimates whereby an approximate sum is set by the city authorities, presumably for the police department to shoot at.

DENIES BALDWIN SAID DRINK ISSUE WITH U.S.

The British Government Issues Statement Refuting Rumor of Friendship Disturbance.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, England, June 22.—An official statement issued this afternoon: "There is no foundation whatever for certain remarks attributed to Mr. Baldwin (the prime minister) in the press to the effect 'now that the Irish question and the debt are out of the way, prohibition seems to be the only thing likely to disturb Anglo-American friendship.'"

FOUR CANDIDATES

most prominent of the four candidates. In spite of that fact Adam Beck is not deserving of election under the existing circumstances. A great and vital principle is involved in Adam Beck's stand as a Conservative candidate—a principle so great and so vital to the welfare of this province that no one who grasps its importance can hesitate in making the right decision.

It is the principle that what is owned by all the people must be kept for all the people. It is based on fundamentals of honesty and fair play and efficiency.

In this specific case it is hydro power which belongs to the people—given to them by a generous providence. Hydro power, owned by all the people, must be kept free from political manipulation by the Conservative party, or by any other party representing only one section of the people. It must be kept free from the trickery of men like Mr. Howard Ferguson, in whom neither the Conservative party nor any other party can place confidence.

To Adam Beck, for many years the people of Ontario have entrusted hydro, and to him must go the credit for its success. For many years he has fulfilled his trust honorably and well. Four years ago he found that his connection with the Conservative party was hindering hydro, and with the explanation that "only as an independent can I look after the interests of hydro for the people of the province," Adam Beck courageously broke with the Conservative party and became an independent. The party politicians knifed him, but Ontario respected him.

In turning back now from that course to take hydro into the Conservative party as a follower of Mr. Ferguson, Adam Beck has done wrong. His own words in 1919 condemn him—"only as an independent can I look after the interests of hydro."

Adam Beck has spoiled his splendid record. Against him now must be laid the charge of being a selfish opportunist. His plea for election to represent hydro in parliament falls to the ground. If he were really needed in that way there is no reason why he should not have sought election as an independent in any one of the twelve outside ridings which invited him.

One is forced to believe that Adam Beck is seeking election in London only because he wishes to wipe out the sting of his defeat by Hugh Stevenson in 1919. There is the selfishness.

One is forced to believe that he has gone back to the Conservative party because its strength in London gave him his best chance of winning. There is both selfishness and opportunism—a lack of sincerity which is regrettable in the record of such a man.

The plain truth is that Adam Beck is using the Conservatives of London to satisfy a personal grudge and that Tory campaigners on the other hand are hiding their hatred and using Adam Beck in order to win an election. Both the Adam Beck of today and the campaigners should be condemned by decent citizens.

J. M. DONAHUE.

J. M. Donahue's election would be a calamity for two reasons. In the first place he is advocating the thin edge of the wedge, which will pry open the door Ontario has closed on the waste and unhappiness of unrestricted liquor. Ontario has declared for prohibition in unmistakable terms; London does not want to be identified as the stronghold of the liquor interests by a member pledged to their support.

Quite apart from the question of the O. T. A. stands the second reason. London needs a representative who has something better than a single-track idea. London needs someone whose purposes and interests include the needs of all the community. Mr. Donahue is not of this type. He is a fanatic, possessed of one purpose—and that purpose is a dangerous one.

HUGH STEVENSON.

For Dr. Stevenson as a man The Advertiser is friendly and warm regard. But Dr. Stevenson is not the type of person who makes a capable member of parliament, from any party or from any constituency. Dr. Stevenson's ability lies in other directions. He is a clever doctor; he is honorable and he is generous, but his record as a member of parliament does not justify his return in that capacity.

Dr. Stevenson lacks ability in expressing himself; he lacks ability in coping with political opponents; he lacks qualities of personality which are necessary to becoming an influence in parliament. London needs a representative who can get things done because London has reached a stage where there are real problems to settle during the next few years—real things to do for the city itself. Putting personal regard to one side, it must be stated frankly that Hugh Stevenson has been able to accomplish very little for London as a member of parliament, nor for the Labor party which sent him there.

Hugh Stevenson as political champion of London has not delivered the goods. He will not do. And that opinion is stated in all kindness to the man himself.

NOT LEAST DANGER OF WATER SHORTAGE YET

But Manager Buchanan Urges Conservation in Heated Period.

If the consumption of water increases the public utilities commission will have to reduce the allowance of water per house, and prevent the watering of lawns by householders. Yesterday eight million gallons were pumped by the city pumping stations, and this works out at 133 gallons per head, or 20 barrels of water for every house in the city.

"The present rate of pumping could be maintained," said E. V. Buchanan, manager of the public utilities commission, "for two weeks more without danger of a water famine, and there is no danger of a famine at this time."

The manager complains that there is a great waste of water in London, and that the present consumption is higher than is warranted.

"If this dry spell continues," he said, "the commission may have to issue new regulations governing the water supply. This, however possible, is not at all probable."

The Pen d'Oreille Grange, Newport, Wash., offers an excellent suggestion for keeping down prices to consumers: namely, mark in plain sight on each article, package or quantity of goods, or on the bill accompanying them, the farm, mine or factory price of the article or of its principal ingredients.

LONDON PEONY SHOW PROVES BIG SUCCESS

Extreme Heat Fails To Affect Beautiful Array of Blooms.

The heat wave has had little effect on the gorgeous blooms in the peony exhibition at the horticultural building in Queen's Park other than bringing a number of them to a greater state of perfection.

The most noticeable effect of the heat is the smallness of the attendant crowds. Last night's motor traffic which made the peony show its destination was fairly large, and this morning, a number of early visitors were on the scene. The attendance, however, is still far from reaching the point anticipated.

To this morning's visitors, perhaps, the chief point of interest lay upon the excellent display of the judges' decision of last night. Many amateurs and a few professionals were noticed drawing their own conclusions as to the relative merits of the peonies and selecting their own favorites.

Not a few were heard to remark upon the excellence of the prize awarding in the face of the difficult problem of selection with which the judges were faced.

The exhibition continues this afternoon and evening. No alarm need be entertained that the flowers have lost any degree of their beauty, as the exhibition is well advanced. London's first annual civic peony show is a remarkably beautiful sight.

BOYS GIVEN FREEDOM LEAVE TO FIND WORK

State They Rode Freight To Save Money To Pay Head Tax.

With nine dollars between them, Stephen Deacock and John Richards, Toronto, arrived in London yesterday, having beaten their way on a freight train from their home town, Deacock, who possessed the money, told the court that he was saving it to use as head tax when entering the States. He offered, however, to pay Richards' fare to Windsor, from where they will notify relatives in Detroit that they wish to cross the border. Magistrate Gladman allowed them to go, and they left on the first train for the border cities.

Angus Ross, the only other case to be heard this morning, was fined $10 and costs for having been intoxicated.

4,000,000 bottles just like this are sold every year. Their contents have helped give new health and strength to an immense number of people who before were weak, sick, nervous and run-down. Among these millions of purchasers are members of Congress, Judges of United States Courts, Generals of the United States Army, and men and women in every walk of life. If you are weak, irritable, easily upset, don't sleep well, are under great stress, strain or worry, or if lack of iron in your blood is sapping your bodily and mental vigor, working out your power and thereby keeping you from making the money or the success in life that you should make, you need a bottle for yourself. It contains which is iron like the iron in your blood and like iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It helps make strong, forceful, red-blooded men and beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women. Without iron, your blood becomes pale, thin and watery and loses its power to change food into living tissue; therefore, nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the full strength out of it. To prove to yourself what Nuxated Iron can do for your doctor to take a teaspoonful of your blood and make a "blood count" of your red blood corpuscles. Then try it out for one month and have a new "blood count" made and see how your red blood corpuscles have increased and how much stronger and better you feel. How the color has come back to your face and how much stronger and more steady your nerves now are. It will not injure your teeth nor disturb your stomach. It is a genuine Nuxated Iron in tablet form only. It may be had from any reliable druggist.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found my book-let in my letter and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives."—Mrs. ENGLAND, 2032 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles caused by sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

You should give it a fair trial.

ADAM BECK THE SERVANT

In thirty years there has never been a time when Adam Beck was not serving the people of London.

Do you think of what these services mean to you, your wives, your little children?

When you or someone in your family is sick and being cared for and nursed back to health in Victoria Hospital, do you think of Adam Beck?

When your little ones are being tenderly brought back to health and strength out of the clutches of the dread white plague in the preventorium do you think of Adam Beck?

When you and your family go down to the lake to drink in the cool, health-giving airs of Port, do you think of Adam Beck?

When you turn on the lights in your home instead of lighting a smelly oil lamp, do you think of Adam Beck?

When your wife goes into a cool kitchen to cook a meal in comfort on the electric range does she think of Adam Beck?

When Hydro saves her the back-breaking work of the washtub does she think of Adam Beck?

When you turn the tap and drink pure cold water without a thought or dread of possible typhoid or diphtheria do you think of Adam Beck?

Perhaps you do think of Adam Beck the boy who came to London 40 years ago with that great idea of service planted in his boyish mind by his mother's teaching.

And you think of him working at the bench and lathe or making cores in his father's foundry and dreaming of services to his fellow-citizens as his mother had taught him—service, the greatest and best thing a man can do in life.

And for over thirty years since he gave his first public service to the hospital, his life is a story or service—the service of a true and faithful and able servant. A servant not only willing but knowing how to do things—a servant with the desire in his heart and the brilliance and driving power in his brain to carry his good work through all opposition.

That is the kind of servant Adam Beck is to the people of London—not the servant of the rich, or any clique or class or party, but the servant of all.

The results of Adam Beck's work go into the homes of every citizen—the workingman, the clerk, the artisan, the merchant, the professional man.

When you go to the polls on Monday think seriously of the servant Beck and do the right thing by him.

From Bird Orchard Farm

By AVES.

Mr. Oriole Obliges As An Alarm Clock—Beautiful Weeds Which We Ignore.

In the dim and far-off days, oh best beloved, not when the world was young, but when I was young myself, I had a collection of birds' eggs. This must have been before any law was made protecting eggs, or at any rate I knew nothing of such a law if there was one. A very interesting hobby it was and a very creditable collection, too, for "just a girl," the eggs ranging in size from the small brown-speckled egg of the house-wren to the big olive-brown black spotted egg of the loon which nests among our northern lakes. Any one who has visited these lakes knows the sound of the loon's sad call and may have seen the bird itself. It is a large, duck-like creature, strong on the wing and in the water, but almost helpless upon land. For this reason it nests right at the water's edge, whence it can slide conveniently into its true element.

Another shore-nesting bird is the sandpiper, though it was on the shore of Lake Ontario that I met them. Their nest, also, is a depression in the sand, in which are laid four buff-colored, pear-shaped eggs spotted with chocolate. A point worthy of note is the difference in the size of the eggs of praeocial and altricial birds of the same size. For instance, the egg of the spotted sandpiper, whose young are born with a covering of down and can run as soon as hatched, is almost twice the size of the egg of the catbird, whose young are helpless and practically naked when hatched.

"Having Eyes, See Not."

In the country it is especially true that many of us "having eyes see not" the beauty that lies around us in common things. The farmer in his everlasting fight against weeds isn't in a position to appreciate the beauty of the flowers of the said weeds. But if we make use of them merely for ornamental purposes we will be surprised at the results. For instance, take the common daisy which is such a pest in old hay fields, transplant a few roots to your garden, and see how it will repay you for a little care. Buttercups, which bloom at the same time, will grow to big, beautiful plants in good garden soil, also butter-and-eggs or toadflax, which is really wild snapdragon. Of course all these weeds from the roadside must be watched as they are so greedy that they would soon crowd out other things if they could, but the ordinary hardy garden flowers aren't a bit envious and will mingle with them in the most friendly way. Sturdy black-eyed Susan and dainty Queen Anne's lace are as lovely as anything you could get for the garden, while the orange butterfly weed is a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

Took First Prize.

At a big flower show in one of our cities two years ago there was, as usual, a class for table decoration. There were no restrictions placed upon the kind of flowers to be used. Some tables were done with greenhouse flowers, some with flowers from the garden, but the one which took first prize was done with yellow toadflax and blue vervain—both humble weeds till someone with "the seeing eye" realized their possibilities. There is a flower belonging to the nightshade family which isn't often met in polite society; each little blossom is a perfect white or pale lavender star with a bright yellow cone-shaped anther. A bowlful of these on our dining table mystified all visitors until we explained that they were ordinary potato blossoms! A few fern-like carrot leaves added to the beauty of the bouquet. A black bowl full of red clover and blue vetch is at present doing duty as a centerpiece, and this in season will be filled with buckwheat blossoms with their honeylike fragrance.

Mr. Oriole Helps.

Our alarm clock objected to getting up so early in the morning and struck for easier hours. This was rather inconvenient until an oriole discovered our dilemma and now comes to the apple tree outside our window every morning and whistles "It's-time-to-get-up-and-get-busy." During the day he sings the same tune, but the words are different. A pair of flickers or high-holes are raising a family in a hollow apple tree. He is less of a carpenter than the other woodpeckers and generally selects decayed logs and stumps as his hunting ground. The special attraction in our orchard is ants, of which nearly half his diet is composed. He is therefore a friend to the agriculturist, as ants encourage the green aphids, which does so much harm. Mrs. Flicker is dressed like her husband—brown and black speckled above, white and black speckled beneath, under wings and tail yellow, black bib in front and a scarlet hair-ribbon tied at the back of her neck. She sits on her nest and sticks her head confidently out of the front door of her house, while her husband sits on a branch nearby with no attempt at concealment and announces loudly that this is the home of "Flicker-flicker-flicker."

MARK YOUR BALLOT FOR BETTER HOMES ON MONDAY.

What Kind of a Dad Are You?

ALL LAST FALL, all during the long winter evenings—all through the spring nights that were calling a boy outdoors, and even these early summer days, you have been watching that boy of yours studying earnestly and conscientiously to make a man of himself through his school books; and you, his father, might be justly proud. He is going to pass his examinations, and one of these days you will be thrilled and filled with the deeper joy of life, and know the satisfaction that goes with the guiding hand of parentage.

But What Are You Going To Do About It?

Are you going to say just "thank you" to that big, fine boy of yours, bursting with the vigor of young manhood and whose inmost nature calls for the wider vision that the great outdoors will give him? Or are you going to "come across" like a regular fellow, conscious of the responsibilities of a generous father, and

GIVE THAT BOY OF YOURS THE

RED BIRD BICYCLE

YOU PROMISED HIM AND YOU KNOW HE WANTS AND DESERVES?

This isn't a sermon—just a straight man-to-man talk about an honest-to-goodness proposition that will make you feel good when you have carried it out.

Don't say you haven't the money, because we make you mighty easy terms. Don't tell him you can't get a Red Bird. Our shop is filled with brand new Red Birds. Red Bird prices have been reduced to $35, $40, $50 and $55.

IRVIN S. COBB TELLS OF A BIG MOMENT

A Big Moment in a Big Trial—From Cobb's Memories as a Reporter—Convicted by a Hand From the Dead.

By IRVIN S. COBB.

Every big criminal trial has its big moments—when the prisoner takes the stand, when the lawyers make their summing-up speeches, when the jury brings in the verdict—but these come at spaced intervals, like the climaxes of a play, dividing the action into separate acts.

The supreme scene of all breaks, often it grows out of some seemingly unimportant bit of testimony.

Nearly every time it comes as a surprise to one side or the other—sometimes it is a surprise to both sides.

But when it does come, it comes big with importance for the map of the woman whose life is at stake in the game, and on the instant the atmosphere of the courtroom changes.

The reporters hunch their shoulders above the press table and send their pencils racing across the copy paper on the hop, skip and jump. The lolling juries straighten in their chairs. The judge on the bench bends forward, alert and watchful. Heads among the spectators come frontward at the same angle, like an assemblage at prayer. The opposing lawyers are on their feet, one fighting to get the evidence in its entirety, the other fighting to keep it out, or to blunt down its edge and cripple its force. It is the Big Moment.

One of the great murder trials that took place in New York was that of Albert Wolter for the murder of Ruth Wheeler. Albert Wolter was a half-grown immigrant boy, a sinister compound of innocence and guile. He lived on the top floor of a tenement house with a girl called Katchen Miller.

There were no high lights to Katchen Miller. She worked as a kitchen drudge for $7 a week in a German cafe, and living on her earnings, Albert Wolter took his ease. His idle hands found some particularly bad work to do.

On Good Friday.

In the Help Wanted columns of a morning paper one day Wolter read the advertisements of a typewriting school seeking places for its graduates, and he answered three of them by mail, inviting the applicants to call.

Luck saved the first two girls. They distrusted the look of the house and turned back at the door. Finally, on the third day, which was Good Friday, came Ruth Wheeler, 17 years old, pretty, red-haired, blue-eyed girl, born in Alabama of native American parentage.

On this Friday morning she went to the school, dressed in her best clothes, and the principal handed her a postal card signed with a rubber stamp, "A. A. Wolter, Secretary," and giving an address in East 75th street.

Ruth rode on a street car to East 75th street. Two women tenants in the building saw her mounting the steps to Wolter's room. She never came down.

That night Wolter and Katchen Miller fled to other lodgings. The next day he was arrested—for abduction only. On the third day, one of Wolter's recent neighbors found a bundle wrapped in burlap on the fire escape outside the window of the flat lately deserted and discovered what was left of little Ruth Wheeler—a headless trunk. She had been choked, beaten, dismembered with a knife and burned with fire.

I doubt if there ever was a crime that stirred New York to deeper levels. In a little more than a month Wolter was facing a jury before Judge Warren W. Foster in the Criminal Courts Building. The assistant district attorney in charge of the prosecution, Frank Moss, had prepared a case that was well-nigh faultless.

Having to rely entirely upon circumstantial evidence for convicting Wolter, he had overlooked nothing and provided for everything.

For example, he had more than a hundred physical exhibits ready for introduction at the proper time—fragments of bone out of a fire-place where Wolter tried to destroy his victim's body—a string of fire-blackened, blue-glass beads, a charred scrap of embroidery from a shirtwaist, a bent hatpin, a patently small gold finger ring, a little whisp of singed hair, even ashes and cinders of coal and wood, each in a small wooden box, with a sliding glass top.

The Sisters.

At the press table we thought the Big Moment had been reached when Ruth Wheeler's sisters took the stand to tell of her departure from home on the last morning of her life, of their search for her that night, after she failed to return, and—worst of deal for them—to look at and touch some of the articles in the glass-topped boxes.

I think no one who was there will ever forget how Adelaide Wheeler looked. She was a slender, pretty girl, with a fair skin, which seemed dead white against the background of her black hat and black mourning gown, and a great coil of red hair on her head.

One by one, she took the objects which Mr. Moss handed to her, and in answer to questions, said, clearly and quietly: "Yes, I recognize that white article against the background of her black hat and black mourning gown, and a great coil of red hair on her head."

One by one, she took the objects which Mr. Moss handed to her, and in answer to questions, said, clearly and quietly: "Yes, I recognize that white article against the background of her black hat and black mourning gown, and a great coil of red hair on her head."

Nearly everybody who was there wanted to cry. A great many did cry when she took into her black-gloved hands an umbrella and said it had been her Christmas gift to Ruth. It was such a simple, plain little black umbrella.

But Wolter didn't cry. He stared at the dead girl's sister—only a year or two had separated the sisters in age, and they were said to have looked very much alike—with a steady, insolent stare.

As I was saying just now, we reporters thought the Big Moment had come and gone when the sisters quit the stand, after perfunctory cross-examinations by Wolter's lawyers. But it hadn't.

A little later that same day, Mr. Moss called as a witness for the state, Dr. George S. Huntington, the eminent anatomist. And now it developed for the first time that the body of Ruth Wheeler had been privately disinterred and that Dr. Huntington offered a series of wonderfully minute measurements, was prepared to establish the complete loop of evidence necessary to prove the corpse delict—the body of the crime.

The reporters slumped back in their chairs. As a rule, expert testimony doesn't make interesting reading, and we welcomed the prospect of a little respite from a strain that had been wearing us down fiercely all day.

The Missing Hand.

Presently it came out that Dr. Huntington had found the missing left hand. All along we supposed that the left hand, like its fellow, had been cut off by the murderer and destroyed separately. Now we learned that the fire afterwards had burned the left arm in two, but that the hand was caught up under the shelter of the right arm hollow and escaped, practically intact.

This point did not seem particularly important, though, but Mr. Moss had something else in store. William Travers Jerome, at once the most brilliant and the most spectacular prosecutor I ever saw anywhere, would have worked up the denouement which was now at hand as skillfully as a trained playwright. James W. Osborne would have done the same thing; for Osborne, like Jerome, has the dramatic instinct highly developed.

Moss, however, was of a different stamp. Slowly, if unaware of the sensation he was about to unleash, he produced the skeleton of the little hand which Dr. Huntington had found. It was articulated and mounted in one of the glass-topped cases.

"Doctor," said Moss, droningly, "did you, in the course of the examinations which you have described, find anything in Exhibit K for identification—this hand?"

"I did."

"What did you find, please?"

"I found clutched in this hand six human hairs."

"What was the general condition of those six human hairs?"

"They were partly burned—that is the ends of them had been scorched away."

"Did those hairs, in your opinion, come from the head of the body which you dissected?"

"They did not. They were of a different texture and a different color."

"That is all, doctor," said Mr. Moss and sat down.

For the smallest part of a minute there was a hush—and then a stir ran through the room like a breeze blowing suddenly into tree tops. The reporters began to write like mad—turning out rush copy, forty or fifty sprawling words to the sheet.

For they knew, and the jurors knew—all there knew—that if there were hairs clutched in Ruth Wheeler's fingers and they were not from her own head, they must have been torn from the head of the man who killed her.

She could not have been killed by a charivari, risen out of the grave to which Wolter's counsel had been pinning his hopes for a mistrial or a compromise verdict. She must have met her death in a struggle, fighting for her life.

Literally, Ruth Wheeler's dead hand had risen out of the grave to convict her murderer.

ALL ARE OPTIMISTIC IN NORFOLK COUNTY

The Four Candidates Wind Up Their Platform Programs With Hopeful Minds.

Special to The Advertiser.

Simcoe, June 23. — With the approach of the fateful Monday, Norfolk county U. F. O. and Conservative stalwarts are waging their campaign with renewed vigor, and interest in the outcome is becoming more marked with the growing intensity of the Conservative-U.F.O. battle in both ridings. Drury supporters in the north are supremely confident that George B. Sewell, who swept the riding with a majority of 1,300 in 1919, will easily head the polls over George M. Boughner, Conservative, but the issue is more in doubt in the south riding, where the personal popularity of the platform ability of John H. Martin, Conservative, is gaining for him immeasurable support. All four candidates are winding up the platform programs in their home centers this afternoon and evening, and at present all four are optimistic of the verdict which Norfolk electors will render on Monday.

Girls And Women Held By Anaemia

Rich, Red Blood Needed To Restore Their Health

There are thousands of growing girls and women held in the deadly clutches of anaemia. Slowly but surely a deadly pallor settles on their cheeks. Their eyes grow dull; their step languid; their appetite fickle. Daily they are using their vitality and brightness. Pains in the sides, headaches and backaches follow, and life seems to be scarcely worth living. What is needed in cases of this kind is new, rich, red blood which will bring back to weak, ailing girls and women the charm and brightness of perfect health. To obtain this new, rich, blood try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Their action is directly upon the blood; they supply the elements necessary to make it rich and red, and in this way they bring back the glow of health to the cheeks, brightness to the eyes, and a lightness and energy to the step. Among those who have found benefit through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Miss Emma J. Johnston, R. R. No. 1, Clinton, Ont., who says: "In the spring of 1921 I felt weak and very much run-down. It was with difficulty that I forced myself to work at all. I had headaches, was very pale, and felt constantly tired. In our local paper I ran across the testimonial of a lady who told of the benefit she had from using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. And I decided to give them a try. Very soon I felt a change for the better, and by the time I had taken five boxes I felt like a new person. The tired, worn-out feeling had vanished, and I would go about my work from morning until night without any difficulty. I certainly cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and when I meet anyone weak and run-down I strongly advise them to give these pills a trial."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.—Adv.

Miss Isabel Armstrong for London.

Seldom has it been the good fortune of any movement in London to gain force and favor with the same persistency and certainty as that which is growing in favor of the candidature of Miss Isabel Armstrong in this city. She entered the contest at the last moment; started with little or no organization, with no campaign fund, and with many of the ward chairmen under the impression that there was going to be no candidate in the field for the Liberals of this city.

Today her organization is complete, even to the scrutineers for the taking of the vote on Monday. The expenses of the campaign will be smaller than any campaign waged in London for some time because workers are coming forward and volunteering their services, their cars, and their assistance in any way in which it can be used to further the effectiveness of Miss Armstrong's campaign.

The real force behind Miss Armstrong's campaign is a realization of the fact that the step from London to the legislature of the province is the logical culmination of the work that the Liberal candidate has been doing for years in the interests of better citizenship, better chances for the children, for the mothers, more equality in the benefits of education. In any movement that has had for its goal the bettering of conditions under which people live, Miss Armstrong has been a consistent and an efficient worker and a tireless advocate.

She is no recent convert to this class of endeavor, nor is she one who has simply picked up the slogan of "Better Home Conditions" as something to attract attention in the hour of an election. It has been her life work, and the sincerity of her candidature cannot be questioned, nor has it been questioned.

At the outset there was some prejudice on the part of the men against a woman as a candidate. It had not been customary to do things that way, but a little thought soon wiped that feeling away. It cannot be used as a valid objection in Liberal circles. For years there have been kind, sweet words uttered by political leaders and candidates about the influence of the women on political matters, but that is as far as many of them seemed prepared to go, and the absence of a woman candidate in this district left all parties open to the charge that they were not prepared to grant a woman the same rights as a man, although they were prepared joyfully to accept their votes.

The nature of legislation enacted at the provincial parliament is such as to call for the advice of a capable woman who knows thoroughly the problems that are being faced by the homes of the community which she represents. Miss Armstrong knows London and Londoners as few people do; she has had enough experience to show what moves are worth while and what are fads or experimental notions.

A woman of good business ability, and since the death of her mother with no home ties to bind her, Miss Armstrong has placed her services at the disposal of the people of London. Her platform has been published; it is one of plain speaking so that any person can know for sure what she intends to do; she has never evaded a question or so stated it that two or three interpretations could be given to it.

The home life of London is the biggest question that can be brought up in any campaign. A vote for Miss Isabel Armstrong is a vote for better home conditions, equal opportunities for people of all classes, and the bringing about of wholesome conditions under which our citizenship can attain its highest and best level and do its most worthy work.

The Globe Makes a Discovery.

"Observer" in the Toronto Globe refers to a new battle cry being used by the Conservatives, "Beck vs. Drury." The Globe says:

"It is believed this new battle cry—Beck versus Drury—is a bit of smoke screen, thrown out by Conservatives to hide the administrative record of their nominal leader, Mr. Ferguson. Many methods have been tried to distract public attention from the 'pine tree bargains' entered into by Mr. Ferguson, but so far with apparently little success."

Exactly what The Advertiser has been trying to tell the Globe right along. The Conservatives wanted only one thing, viz., the prestige of the hydro movement taken from its proper place outside of politics and transferred for the period of the election to the Conservative fold.

The Globe's eleventh hour discovery is proof that it has deliberately shut its eyes to the facts all the way through.

Putting a School to the Test.

The excellence of the work done at the Medical School of Western University is exemplified by the fact that 23 out of 24 of those graduating in medicine have passed the further examinations of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons. This is an examination that must be passed after graduation before practicing medicine can be permitted.

Doctors from Toronto, Brantford, Windsor and Kingston were sent here and papers were all by numbers, so that no favoritism could be shown. The one man who failed in London fell short in just one subject. The showing of Western men is about 96 per cent, which is well above the average for the province, as in all 100 failed out of a class of 288.

This makes Western's standing 96 per cent, against an average of 65 per cent for the province.

The University of Western Ontario is winning its way on its merits.

The Poor Appeal of Sir John Willison.

Sir John Willison, formerly editor of the Toronto Globe, appeared in East Kent the other evening on behalf of the Conservative candidate.

His reasoning is that "the wise thing for independent voters is to give their votes in this contest to the candidates of the party which has the best chance of controlling the next legislature independent of all doubtful connections and alliances; and that means, in plain English, the wise thing in this election is to vote for the Conservative party."

That is surely high ground for an election appeal. It means this—pick out the winner and get in behind him regardless of what he stands for.

Sir John should have gone on to tell of how in the time of Ferguson patronage was given to the Conservative members, and that if he got in again they might expect some more of the same sort.

Never mind if the leader's record is a little off-side; never mind if he has gone up and down the country trying to make law enforcement difficult. Forget all these things, swallow your convictions if you have any, and vote for the crowd that I think is going to win.

Sir John Willison's line of reasoning is the poorest, the thinnest and the most spineless brand that has been placed before Western Ontario electors in the whole campaign.

Were his argument to hold good, Elijah would never have defied the prophets of Babel, 400 of them—he would have gone with them.

Were his argument to hold good, the world would never have had a Luther—he would have gone with the crowd.

Were his argument to hold good, Belgium should have declared a public holiday and sent its troops out fishing the day the invading hosts of Germany knocked at her door.

Sir John pays a poor compliment to the courage of Western Ontario when he offers a wishbone where a spine is demanded.

Both Gladiators Are Still Alive.

The Ferguson-Raney affair has come and gone. The Ferguson skating rink is still in place; thousands of gallons of gas were consumed by cars driving there from all over the country, and both sides seem quite satisfied that their champion had won the contest. That is the beauty of any such conflict—each side is pleased with the result.

Mr. Ferguson failed to do the thing he was asked to do some days ago by Mr. Raney; he did not produce names or places or dates in connection with the charges he has been so carelessly making in regard to the enforcement of the O. T. A. That being the case, the public must take it for granted that Mr. Ferguson has been talking at random all through his campaign. Why? Simply in order to bring the administration of the O. T. A. into as much disrepute as possible. That is a fair charge to bring, and marks him as a scheming politician who is winking at those who desire more than anything else the breaking down of the O. T. A.

The one weak spot in Mr. Raney's defence was that Mr. Ferguson was able to bring up that "last night party," at which liquor was consumed in the rooms of one of the ministers of the government. It would have been much better for the premier or the attorney-general to have had this cleaned up long ago. They could have done this on the safe ground that a plain statement never belies an issue. As it is, it has been allowed to slide until the reports circulated at election time are no doubt much in advance of anything that took place at that now famous gathering. The country at large would regard more favorably any member who had the courage to get up and say he was present. Had there been a clean-up of that incident, Mr. Ferguson would have had no effective ammunition when he faced Mr. Raney.

Afraid of Cars Stalled at Night.

A London motorist complains that he was driving home about 11 o'clock the other night, and could get no assistance from passing cars when his engine stalled for want of gas. He was a couple of miles from Lambeth, and had a rope in his car. He thought some passing car would give him a lift to the first gas station.

When he tried to "flag" a car coming down the road the driver put on more speed and shot past him into the night. He tried it on a second car, which, he claims, went even faster than the first.

Not wanting to leave his car and walk two miles, he tried a third car, which was coming at a slow rate. The driver saw him and slowed down about a hundred feet ahead of him. When it came up, two men jumped out, one having the crank of a car and the other a heavy wrench. They at once wanted to know what his game was.

It took the Londoner only a few minutes to explain his predicament, when help was gladly given. The men in the third car said that they were afraid to stop for a stalled car at night, thinking it might be only a trap for robbery.

Unfortunately this belief is common, and it makes it hard for a motorist in trouble to get assistance. The driver may be the best citizen in the country, and he may have his family with him, but when he pulls up on the side of the road at night he becomes an unknown quantity. His car looks the same as any other car, and a passing driver has no means of knowing whether he is a good citizen or a would-be robber.

Fortunately car bandits are not operating much in this district, but it will take quite a season of good behavior to undo the mischief that has made every stalled car on the roadside at night look like a trap.

Note and Comment.

A chicken was hatched out near St. Catharines that had four legs. If the owner had a garden he could not have been greatly grieved when he learned of its death.

Better home conditions for London. That is, and has been all through, Miss Armstrong's appeal. It has the human touch that makes any real appeal successful.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie spoke in Guelph for the Conservative candidate. Time was when the same Hon. Hugh thundered up and down Wellington as the chief crusader against all things Conservative. He is a good speaker and no mean hand as an acrobat.

Who is responsible for the story that Mr. MacBride of Brantford, in case the Ferguson party wins, will be minister of labor? Mr. Nickle went to that city and anointed the head of MacBride with pure Conservative oil. It is a Conservative move to try to win a seat at any price.

Mr. McCausland, Conservative candidate for South-west Toronto, speaking in Orange Hall on Wednesday night, said, according to the Mail and Empire, that "he would support Sir Adam Beck to the limit, and secondly, that he would oppose the O. T. A." Surely the Ferguson people are getting a great lineup for this contest.

Senator McColg from Chatham has been on the stump in Western Ontario this week. He looks in place there, and it must be some measure of relief for him to get, back into his old stride of fire and fight. Were the Hon. Archie to let loose in the senate as he can on the stump he would certainly spoil the afternoon nap of many of his senatorial colleagues.

The big fat toad has the problem of making an existence solved and well regulated. All day in the heat he crawls in some convenient hole or under a board. At night he sits under the electric lights on the side streets and feasts on flies and moths that are foolish enough to come his way. He has a tongue that does its work effectively and often. Then, long before dawn, full of moths and flies, he hops off to his rest. Wise old toad.

And the serpent said unto the woman, ye shall not surely die.—Gen. iii. 4.

The attempt to deny or ignore evil has been the stock in trade of every false doctrine that has befogged and bewildered the world since the days of Eden.

The fairy tale that the old serpent told to Eve is a poetic symbol of the lie fundamental—the theory that sin does not mean death, because it has no real existence and makes no real difference.

"Evil is nothing," say these teachers. "It is not real. It is an illusion, a negation. Shut your eyes and it will vanish."

Yes, but open your eyes again and you will see it in the same place, in the same form, doing the same work.

A most persistent nothing, a most powerful nothing! Not the shadow cast by the good, but the cloud that hides the sun and casts the shadow.

Answers to Health Questions. GRATEFUL. Q.—Will you kindly tell me how to reduce my ankles? A.—It is practically impossible to reduce one particular part of the body. However, walking and massaging, also wearing snugly-laced shoes may help to reduce the ankles.

M. R. Q.—Will you kindly tell me if it is harmful for a patient who has to rest to take a short walk to get fresh air?

A.—I do not think it would be harmful, provided your doctor has not advised you to the contrary. You should have fresh air at all times. Keep your room well ventilated.

A. B. Q.—It is advisable to wear exercise best? A.—The best way to correct this condition is by exercise and correct posture. I would suggest that you join an athletic club or Y. M. C. A. and have a physical director outline a course of exercise for you.

E. F. Q.—I am a boy 16 years of age and weigh 96 pounds. My appetite is very poor. Will you please tell me what my correct weight should be and how to increase my appetite?

A.—A boy 5 feet 6 inches tall, 15 years old, should weigh about 125 pounds. You should take plenty of outdoor exercises to increase your appetite, and also a glass of beer for further particulars, restate your question and inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

MOTHER. Q.—My little boy has a habit of grinding his teeth during sleep. Will you kindly advise me the cause of this condition?

Canada's Century

GOD'S FARM

By ARTHUR HUNT CHUTE.

Every man has his ideal country, his land of heart's desire. Literature and art have endeavored to satisfy the inner craving for that "something" lost behind the ranges.

Happy those that may fare forth, not in books, but in life, to the discovery of the land beyond their dreams.

It is well to read history in an armchair. It is infinitely better to make history under the blue.

The fact to be emphasized to every school boy, and to every new arrival, is that in Canada in this living present we are the nation builders. We are the story makers.

Canada is history's last frontier. At all costs that frontier spirit must be kept alive. That spirit was here before the war, sparkling, triumphant, full of immensity and high expectancy, rejoicing on the threshold of "Canada's Century."

In these piping times of peace, old England may settle down to a well regulated existence. Even the United States, her forests gone, her frontier vanished, may begin to measure her length and breadth. But Canada, even yet remains an unknown country whose explorers have only touched the fringes.

In a crowded world where night every nook and corner has been mapped and charted, it is still the lot of the Canadian-born to proclaim: "The land of our birth is the land beyond our dreams."

Here is the last line of romance upon this continent. Here the future is still a vista of surprises.

Frontier Still Advancing. Cartier surveying for the first time from the summit of Mount Royal the vast expanse of forest and wilderness had a vision of what might be its bounds.

Four centuries later Stefansson at Ellesmere Island upon the shore of the Polar Sea gazed upon a frontier still advancing.

For the French, when it was a question between the worth of Gaudry, and the worth of Canada, the balance seemed infinitely in favor of the abundant tropical isle.

What would there be of value in that bleak, forbidding Canada, the fairer aspects of snow, sneers Voltaire. But the wind worn flag of the lance of the evils that have arisen and are spreading under the operation of the present act.

Yours truly, ED. E. REID, London, June 21, 1923.

A Doubtful Old Custom

By ANNE CAMPBELL. A phrase often brings us to days that have gone!

Today when my son myself climbed upon A train going home to the scenes of my youth.

A phrase brought me back to my childhood. In truth I'd heard it so often, and said it "Now scrooch down and make your self small as you can!"

I saw myself humped in this very same train. The need for my shrinking was made very plain.

For perches were scarce, and we saved what we could for the future. But it is not in the vulgar figures, base language of the vulgar grubber; it is in the gypsy trail, and in the lure of the open places we hear the call of Canada today. It is the sight of a nation ending on the last frontier, that enkindles the pathfinder and the dreamer.

Today the conductor smiled wisely at me. As when, eight years old, I had tried to look three!

I paid my fare, as my mother had done. The jolly conductor winked hard at my son:

It didn't avail me to say, "Little man, Now scrooch down and make your self small as you can!" (Copyright, North American Newspaper Alliance, 1923.)

The position which British Columbia holds in the minds of the decent element on the other side of the line ought to bring a blush of shame to every citizen of the province. Bootlegging was reported to me to be rampant, and in one municipality it was reported by a member of the council that the chief of police was the head of the bootleggers' gang in that municipality.

The whole situation is unthinkable bad, and whatever sacrifices the citizens of the province might have to make to supplement that revenues if prohibition was put into effect would on the whole, I am sure, be well worth while in order to rid the prov-

Mrs. J. Stevenson Lends Home For Garden Party

Women's Association of Knox Church Welcome Many Guests At Party Held Yesterday Afternoon.

Many attractive booths were arranged on the grounds of Mrs. J. Stevenson's home, Elmwood avenue, for the garden party held yesterday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Women's Association of Knox Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Stevenson, president of the association, gave in black velvet, welcomed the many guests, assisted by Mrs. T. A. Symington, wearing a pretty summer frock of mauve and white. Tea was served under the trees at the tables, and Mrs. John Ferguson presided at a table centered with a silver basket filled with pink and white roses. The tea assistants included Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Lyle, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Cahill and Mrs. Alex. Robertson. A novel feature was the throwing of the bouquet by Mrs. John Ferguson, who, with Charlie Chaplin and Auntie, as the many attractions. These were in charge of Mrs. Kester and Mrs. Gunter. In the evening colored lights were strung across the grounds, and music was provided by an orchestra. A charming program was presented, including a fairy dance by Miss Ruth Westland and her dainty assistants, including Mary Percy, Ruth Kester, Jean McIsaac and Anna Harris. Other dance numbers were "The Gavotte," presented by Misses Gladys Tullett and Kate Davies, and "The Gavotte," arranged the program, and other attractive numbers were piano selection by Mr. Charles Percy and solos by Mrs. Kester, Mrs. May, Mr. Patterson (Mary McCullough and Alma Grigg).

BAKER-KELLY.

An interesting wedding took place at the Methodist parsonage, Askew street, on Wednesday last, when Miss R. B. Kelly of this city became the bride of Mr. Alfred B. Baker, also of London, the Rev. J. T. Morris performing the ceremony. After a brief honeymoon trip to New York Mr. and Mrs. Baker will take up their residence in the city.

EDWARDS-TOWERS.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in Petrolia last evening, when Miss Ethel Fowler, daughter of the late Jordan Mott Towers of Petrolia, became the bride of Frederick Edwards, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Edwards, the ceremony being performed in Christ Church. The bride looked very beautiful in her graceful gown of oyster chiffon, velvet, softly trimmed with exquisite rose point lace, pearls, court train, and magnificent veil of tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Hill of London, assisted by Rev. R. Pitts of Petrolia. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held, and the bride and groom received many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards left for their home at Petrolia.

BENDLE-BABCOCK.

The marriage of Miss Velma Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Babcock, to Mr. William Bendle of Sarnia, was solemnized here at the home of the bride, Miss Birdie Babcock, was bridesmaid, and Mr. William Jones best man. The bride was exquisitely gowned in a ivory brocade, with a train of white and orange blossoms. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Omlinson of Niagara Falls. After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served. The bride and groom left for Galt and Niagara. On their return they will reside in Sarnia.

DOY-MEADOWS.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Harmony Methodist Church on Wednesday, June 20, when Miss Elizabeth May, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Meadows, of London, was united in marriage to Arthur Frederick Doy of Embro. The

RIDOUT STREET HOLDS SUCCESSFUL FETE

Colored Lights and Orchestral Music Enlivens Church Grounds.

A successful garden fete was held last evening on the grounds of the Ridout Street Methodist Church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid and the Brotherhood. The guests were welcomed by the president of the Ladies' Aid, Mrs. E. M. Russell, and Mr. William Coates, president of the Brotherhood.

The grounds were effectively decorated with colored lights, and during the evening an excellent program of music was supplied by the Sunday school orchestra.

Ice cream was for sale in a large tent in charge of Mrs. Percy Taylor, assisted by Mrs. Summerhayes, Mrs. Rankin and Mrs. Fleeter. Other contributors in charge of the various booths were: Mrs. Proctor and Mrs. William Coates, convening the home-cooking; Mrs. Bickie, Mrs. Deacon, Mrs. Agnew and Mrs. Patrick, in charge of the tea-room; Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Maloney, the cold drinks; Mrs. Coates and Mrs. Fred Floyd, the weiners and rolls; Mrs. Perrin and Mrs. Martin, ice cream cones; Mrs. Coates, Mrs. Bickie, Mrs. Dutton and Mrs. Burridge, the candy.

TECUMSEH PRESIDENT PRAISES CANDIDATE

Points To Journalism As Fine School For Woman About To Enter Public Life.

The closing meeting of the Tecumseh Mothers' Club was held this week, with a record attendance. Mrs. Holtz gave the annual secretary's report, showing a busy year. Much sewing has been accomplished for the Child Welfare Association and for the Ronald Gray Home. The treasurer's report, read by Mrs. Plewes, showed that about $150 has been paid out during the year for club expenses and relief work.

A delightful program included musical numbers by J. H. Finney, J. C. Dumas, Mrs. Dumas, Miss Myrtle Jones, and readings by Miss Given Harris, Mrs. B. F. Brighton, honorary president of the club. The speaker for a few minutes on government control of liquor as she has seen it carried out in Quebec.

Before concluding the meeting, Mrs. S. J. Martin, the president, stated that mothers' club members did not as a rule "talk politics," but that they were interested in the "all know and admire Miss Armstrong and are glad that London's woman candidate is the highest type of woman." Mrs. Martin further stated that in Miss Armstrong's newspaper work she had had to learn to be a "man among men" and had been in close touch with all the things which a member should know. "No better school could be found to prepare a woman for public life," she concluded.

For the social hour, the members went to the domestic science room, where cooling refreshments were served.

The annual club picnic will be held at Springbank on Thursday, July 5th. Mrs. S. Wilson, Mrs. J. H. Finney and Mrs. Arner being the committee in charge of arrangements.

Girl Guide Commissioners In Conference In London

Come From Different Parts of Canada To Discuss Guide Affairs At Huron College Camp.

The Canadian Girl Guide Commissioners' conference opened at Huron College this afternoon with a splendid attendance of nine commissioners, who arrived in the city at noon from different points throughout Canada. Coming from farthest away is Mrs. Denniston of Winnipeg. There are also here Mrs. H. Fullerton of Cobourg, Mrs. George Watt of Brantford, Mrs. Thomas Rice of Toronto, Mrs. Harry Greening of Hamilton, Mrs. Clarence Foreman of Waterloo, Miss K. Symes, divisional commissioner, and Mrs. C. H. Hill, local commissioner. Other interesting officers attending the conference are Miss Bewley, an English ranger guide, who has been traveling in the United States for some time.

Miss Eleanor Harrington, the dominion secretary, and Miss Doris Auden of this city, the dominion treasurer. The commissioners are remaining under canvas at the provincial camp for the week-end. Today they are the guests of Mrs. E. B. Smith, the provincial commissioner, at luncheon at the Kennels. Camp activities over the week-end will include a camp service at 4:30 o'clock on Huron College grounds, conducted by the Rev. Frank Anderson.

This afternoon's conference was largely devoted to discussion of camp work. Mrs. Fullerton of Cobourg spoke on the duties of a local association and Miss Bewley discussed the duties of commissioners. Miss K. Symes, divisional commissioner, occupied the chair. The conference continued last night.

Lovely flowers were offered for sale at the flower stall under the patronage of Miss Margaret Hamilton. Daisies and ferns, combined with roses, decorated this attractive stall. Mrs. George Woods was convener of the home-cooking stand, where tempting cakes, pies and tarts were for sale. Messrs. Robert Mercer, Robert Anderson and Turnbull were in charge of the lighting effects. During the evening music was supplied by an orchestra.

One of the most successful and among the prettiest affairs of the summer season was the garden party given last evening by the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's on the lovely lawns at the church.

Japanese lanterns and tiny colored lights were effectively arranged, and the booths were most artistically decorated with flowers and colored streamers. The guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. D. A. Currie, and the general conveners, Mrs. Robert Anderson and Mrs. Frank Asplund.

Has An Interesting Time With the Photographer As He Attempts To Take Her Campaign Face.

"The way I look at it," said Alice thoughtfully, studying the already familiar features of a Liberal-Conservative candidate on a election card that had just been handed in at the door, "the way I look at it, the people who are running for parliament would have a lot better chance if they did not put their pictures on the cards."

It was this conviction that sent Alice out the very next day to the photographers to have her picture taken.

"For if people would vote for people that looked like that," said Alice, "it's simply impossible to say how they would vote for a person that looks like me."

"I want a picture to use in my political campaign," Alice explained to the photographer, as she took her seat in his studio. "Something that will appeal to the whole body of the electorate—they say our nation do almost anything with photography nowadays—I wonder if you could show in my photograph that I am a believer in the O. T. A."

"Why certainly," said the photographer. "You might just assume a serious expression."

"That is, I believe in the O. T. A. as long as it is the will of the people," said Alice.

"Keep the serious expression," said the photographer, "and slowly close the left eye."

"Must indicate something," said Alice. "They say a really good photographer can indicate practically everything about a person in their photo. I would like, if it were possible, for my photo to show that I am strongly in favor of public ownership; that I believe in a safe, sane administration; that I will advocate the development of our national resources; and that I am a constant reader of the Free Press."

The photographer said that nothing could be simpler.

"I suppose it would not cost any more to throw in an expression to show that I am a great admirer of Mayow Wenise," suggested Alice, who is a very thrifty girl.

Not a cent extra. The photographer assured her that it would be practically impossible to keep it out of the picture. There was silence for a few minutes, while he disappeared under his little black hood, and quitted through the camera at Alice's political ensemble.

"And while you are at it—you see I want this to really be a great success—while you are at it, you might just show in the photo that I have entered the campaign at the urgent request of my friends and have nothing whatever to gain from election," said Alice.

Can Relax At Last.

Yes, this would go in too. The photographer assured Alice that when he had finished she would not be able to tell her head from her political platform. He worked over it all afternoon, arranging and rearranging sittings, but finally it was completed, and Alice was able to relax her features.

"It was a lot of work, but I don't grudge the time," said Alice. "Because, in politics the pose is everything."

"I suppose you are a Conservative," said the photographer, as he stepped at last from under his black hood. No, Alice was not a Conservative.

"A Liberal then I take it," said the photographer, as he stepped at last from under his black hood. No, Alice was not a Liberal.

"A Liberal-Conservative, nor an Independent, nor a Labor representative, nor a Progressive, nor a member of the U. F. O."

"I'll tell you what I represent," said Alice in a burst of confidence. "I represent the Moron group."

The photographer staggered slightly. "The Moron group?" he cried. Alice nodded.

"I thought of representing the non-voters," she said. "Because someone said there were more non-voters than voters, but finally I decided to represent the Morons, because I read in the paper that some one said 75 per cent of the population were Morons, and when my photo is finished, I want to have it show that I am a constant reader of the Free Press."

"Well, well," said the photographer. "And what riding are you nominated in?"

"Why, I have not been nominated at all," replied Alice.

"But if you have not been nominated you can't run," the photographer pointed out.

It took him half an hour to convince Alice that she was out of the elections, and when she finally realized she was so terribly disappointed that she simply cancelled her order for the photograph.

"But wasn't he awfully mad, after spending all afternoon taking them?" asked the girl friend, when Alice related the incident to her afterwards.

"He seemed to be at first," answered Alice. "But I guess he got over it, because when I was leaving he told me I was probably the most conspicuous Moron in London."

ST. MARY'S UNIT.

The closing meeting of St. Mary's Mothers' Unit was held this week at the home of Mrs. William Hoy, 436 Elizabeth street.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. Carney, Mrs. Hoy presided. The annual reports of the year, which were presented by Mrs. Barney McCormick, showed that the unit had enjoyed a most successful season.

During the afternoon piano selections by Mrs. Schibb and Miss Margaret Haines were greatly enjoyed. At the close of the meeting tea was served by the hostess, assisted by William Ogilvie, Mrs. B. Stoddard, Mrs. Gilbert O'Mara, Mrs. P. Kelleher and Miss Minnie McKenna.

PATHFINDERS' PICNIC.

The Senior Pathfinders of St. Andrew's Church enjoyed a jolly picnic at the summer home of Mrs. U. A. Buchner at Springbank yesterday afternoon.

This was the closing meeting of the group for this year. About 24 guests were present, including the president, Miss Margaret Shillington, and the leaders, Miss Mosley Williams, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, Mrs. D. C. MacGregor and Miss Cannel.

PLAN GARDEN PARTY.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church, Hyde Park, are holding the annual garden party on the lawn of the Chester Morris home Wednesday, June 27.

Mrs. Austin Winter, president of the society, is acting as general convener, assisted by Mrs. Wheeler.

MRS. GAVIN'S REMARKABLE GOLF.

Few golfers in either Canada or Britain are in a position to realize what a tremendous handicap a British golfer faces when he or she visits Canada.

Consequently, the fine performance of Mrs. W. A. Gavin in winning the Canadian ladies' open title last year is not fully appreciated.

True it is that she has lived in America for about eight years, and is, therefore, accustomed to playing in excessive heat, but since then she had spent nearly a year in this country, and only arrived at Toronto from England the morning before the day of the qualifying round.

A week at sea is quite sufficient to affect the same of the majority of golfers, but in addition Mrs. Gavin had to contend herself to the change of ground and atmosphere. The air is so clear in America that the art of judging distance has to be acquired anew.

Of all the courses I have seen in Canada, the perfect condition of the fairways has been most noticeable. Every course has a tidy, well-kept appearance, and the description once given of Porter's Park applies equally well to any Canadian course.

It always looks as though a conscientious housemaid had just been round with a broom and duster.

For wooden club play the fairways are excellent, but for iron or mashie play the player who is accustomed to taking a divot has to change his or her methods entirely. The grass is asked why he was doing so, the stranger replied, "I am preparing to swim this river!"

Although this tale need not be regarded as strictly accurate, it serves to show that a visitor has to remember nothing is as near as it appears to be.

In length, the Canadian courses that I have seen compare favorably with the longest in the British Isles. For instance, the course of the Toronto Golf Club, over which the Canadian ladies' open championship was played for in September, has 11 holes, at which the best players required two full shots (and at five of these even more) to reach the green.

Of the remainder, four could be called one-shot holes, but full shots were being called for at two of these. Bunkering, however, is not usually severe, and putting greens are invariably good, generous in size, and comparatively slow.

of a very much coarser type than anything to be found in this country, and has a long, tough root, which makes the "push" shot a difficult and rather unsatisfactory stroke.

When playing in Canada in 1921 we soon realized that the high iron shot was the only one that found its mark with any degree of consistency.

The teeing grounds alone are worthy of mention. To us they seem odd, for instead of the customary flat disc of British courses, white wooden balls about the size of a polo ball mark the limits, and the raised sand-boxes combine a rack on which to rest the bag, a box of sand, a tin of water and brush for washing balls and also that essential article—a towel.

RUDYARD KIPLING'S STORY OF THE WAR

The Irish Guards Leave Ypres for Somme—Brigades Cease To Exist In An Hour.

By RUDYARD KIPLING.

V.—Fog shadows of the Great Battle. The outstanding wonder that any one in the sultry should be alive at all is not referred to in the diary. Men who watched the shape of that cape of death, raked by incessant aeroplanes and cross-cut by gun fire that fell equally from the flanks and, as it seemed, from the very rear, sometimes speculated, as did the French in the livelier hells of Verdun, how long solid earth itself could hold out against the upheavals of the attack. Flesh and blood could endure—that was their business—but the ground on which they stood did not abide. As one man said:

"It 'ud flee away in lumps under the sole of your foot, till there was no rest anywhere."

There is a tale of half a platoon among whom a heavy gas shall dropped as they lay in the flank of a cutting beside a road. Their platoon commander hurried to them, followed by the sergeant, calling out to know the extent of the damage. No one replied. The question was repeated. Then, "Speak up when the officer's askin'," cried the sound-dazed sergeant. But even that failed. They were all dead where they lay, and human nature being what it is, the sergeant's words became a joke against him for many days after.

Men cannot live in extreme fear for more than a very limited time. Normal little interests save them; so while they lay in cellars by candle-light at Ypres and worked stealthily at night, the battalion found time to make a most beautiful Irish star, four feet across, of glass and pounded brick, from the rubbish of the convent garden. It was a work of supererogation, accomplished while cleaning up the billets, which drew favorable notice from high authorities.

England's Turn. Meanwhile Verdun had been in the fire since February, there was no sign of the attacks on it weakening, and France and the world looked uneasily at that dread point of contact where men and stuff consumed as the current. It was time that England should take the strain, even though her troops were not fully trained or her guns yet free to spend shells as the needs of the war demanded. What had gone before was merely the initial deposit on the price of national unpreparedness; what was to come, no more than a first instalment. It was vital to save Verdun; to so hold the enemy on the western front that he could not send too much help to his eastern line or his Austrian allies, who lay heavy on the Italian army; most vital, to kill as many Germans as possible.

The main strength, the actual spine of the position, so far as the British front was concerned, was some twenty-five miles of high ground forming the watershed between the Somme and the rivers of Southern Belgium, which ran, roughly, from Maricourt in the south, where our line joined the French, to Gommecourt in the north. Here the enemy had sat untroubled for two years, looking down upon France, and daily strengthening himself. His trobled and quadrupled lines of defense, worked for him by his prisoners, ran below and along the flanks and on the tops of 500-foot downs.

First Wounded Stripes.

The regimental band arrived from England for a three months tour. The officer who accompanied it wore a wound stripe—the very first which the battalion collectively had ever seen—and men wondered whether wound stripes would become common and how many one might accumulate. It was removed from the officer by laughing friends as a matter some thing too suggestive in present company, and the band played in the still, warm evenings, while the dust of feet going Somme-ward rose and stretched unbroken along the Doullens-Albert pave. Here the very tree holes, before they began to be stripped and splintered by shell fire, were worn and rubbed beneath the touch of men's shoulders, and gnawed by the halting horses.

The King came on Aug. 9 to visit the division. Special arrangements were impossible so bombing assault practice went on, while the officers of the battalion were presented to him "in the orchard where the messes were pitched." He made no orations, uttered no threats against his enemies, nor guaranteed the personal assistance of any tribal god. His regiments merely turned out and cheered the inconspicuous car as long as they could see it. But there is a story that a Frenchman, an old Royalist, in whose wood some officers had rigged a temporary hut of which he highly disapproved, withdrew every that the chair in which the King of England had sat should be handed over to him, duly certified. Which was done.

By this date [April 11, 1916] the Battle of the Somme was six weeks old, and our troops had eaten several—in some places as much as five or six—thousand yards deep into the area.

Villages Vanished.

Heart Palpitated And Was Short of Breath

Through one cause or another a large majority of people are troubled more or less, with some form of heart trouble.

Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some little excitement, overwork or worry starts it to palpitate and throb, skip beats, beat fast for a time and then so slow as to seem almost to stop, then it causes great anxiety and alarm.

To all such sufferers

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief. Mrs. Alice Bishop, 15 Hawthorne Ave., Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in recommending Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to all persons troubled as I had been. I suffered from palpitation of the heart and shortness of breath; my heart would skip beats, and in the night, at times, I would have to sit up to get my breath. I could not go up stairs without my heart fluttering, and my nerves were all unstrung, but since using your famous Pills I have felt like a different person."

and Pozieres of the Australians. The few decenties and accommodations of the old settled trench life were gone; men lived as best they could in the open among eternal shell holes and mounds of heaped rubbish that were liable at any moment to be dispersed afresh, under constant menace of gas, blinded with the smoke screens of local attacks and beaten down from every point of the compass either by enemy fire, suddenly gathered and loosed, or that of their own heavies searching from miles off some newly-cleared hollow or skyline of the uplands where our troops lay indistinguishable from the skinned earth.

Ceased to Exist.

Battalions, brigades and divisions went into the fight, were worn down in more or an less time, precisely as the chances of the ground either screened or exposed them for a while to the fire blasts. Sometimes it was only a matter of hours before what had been a brigade ceased to exist—had soaked horribly into the ground. The wastage was brought down and back across the shell holes as well, as might be, losses were made good, and with a half, two-thirds or three-quarters, new drafts, the original battalion climbed back to its task. While some development behind the next fold of land was in progress or brought to a standstill, they would be concerned only with the life-and-death geography of the few hundred yards immediately about them, of those few score yards over which profitable advances could be made. A day, even an hour, later the use and value of their own hollow or ridge might be altogether abolished. What had been a hardly-won foothold would become the very pivot of a central attack or subside into a sheltered haven of refuge, as the next dominating ridge or lap of the large-homed French landscape was cleared. Equally suddenly, even while the men thanked God for their respite, German batteries or a suddenly pushed forth chain of German machine guns would pound or spray their shelter into exposed torment once more.

As one philosopher of that unearthly epoch put it some time afterward:

"We was like fleas in a blanket, ye'll understand, seein' no more than the next nearest wrinkle. But Jerry and our generals, ye'll understand, they kept us hoppin'."

Lever Brothers, Limited
Toronto, Ont.

Gentlemen:

"The use of a harsh soap on pure silk is ruinous to the texture of the fabric. It shortens its life as well.

We are extremely glad to report to you that we have found LUX satisfactory for the washing of Belding and Corticelli Wash Silks. It is a pure, neutral soap and there is nothing in it that could injure the most delicate silk fibre.

We would like to have all purchasers of Corticelli Fingering Yarns launder them in the safe way set forth in the LUX directions. The dirt dissolves in the LUX suds, and leaves the garment soft and unshrunk."

THE CALL OF THE GREAT OUTDOORS.

To Editor of The Advertiser who must love Nature because he prints so much Wild News.

Dearest Sir:—
Our greatest joys are like broken noses; we get them by accident (quotation from somewhere). For that reason I shall tell you of slight summer trip I took last week to Canada on the frosted side where Hon. Rocky Mts are kept on ice all year round, by golly, & Nature looks grand as well as steep. Hon. Canada are such free country that this sweet voyage do not cost me 2c carfare which are less than 100000000000 in German money.

This was how happened:
Last Wednesday a.m. Hon. Thermometer got so angry that he blew out all the mercury. It was so heated by the sun that one Gentleman got his brain fried while taking off his hat to a lady. Nobody could keep cool except Hon. Jack Dempsey who know how to work without his shirt. While such phenomena was going on I remained sitting in Kitchen of Mrs. C. W. Quackmire where I boil potatoes and hope they would get stewed before I was. Just then this Hon. Mrs. Quackmire come in wearing beads on her forehead.

"Togo," she deploy, "I got some news that will make your blood boil."

"Scare me again and maybe it will freeze!" I holla with short pants in my breath.

"We are going Nowhere this summer," she relapse despairily.

"O goody!" I snarled. "That would be considerable better than where we are."

"We have engaged 6000$ cottage (2 rooms) at Vampire Beach, but when we examine it we find it got no roof. Also the beds do not lay and the chairs do not set. So disappointed: Where else could we go?"

"Are not the Alps somewhat near so that we can get a slight freeze?" I ask to know.

"If you are so fond of freezing," she dith, "please get out Ice Cream Freezer and grind 9 qts gooseberry ice cream for Daughters of Sahara Patriotic Society, which meet here this afternoon p.m."

Thusly speaking she slandoor: What was I to do in all that heat with every pour opening and shutting till I feel like I would get a rabbi and bite something? Yet I was a perfectly good Samaritan in spite of pain. With considerable bravery in my wrists and elbows, I obtain Hon. Freezer and commence to freeze. I crank & crank till I felt quite cranky. With Hon. Handel rattling round & round I resemble an emotion picture camera doing so while my brain whirl in 5 reels, seeing ice mountains of Canada with frosting on top.

Just then I look upwards. What do I see? O!!!!

A very Pluto otomobile, all surrounded with golden lumps and 5th Ave glasswear stop by backyard gate and who should get out in his cane walking with a silk hat on?

"Togo," he commute with rapidly peculiar to Life Insurance Agt., "do not ask me to explain because maybe I couldn't. But this morning I awoke up to discover something nice. I are 2nd cousin to the Emp. of Japan."

"No!" That from me.

"Yes!" This from him.

"Well-so," I reing, "and what would that make me?"

"My valet," he pronounce distinctively. "With my own royal hand I now confer that job on you. How would you like to take a voyage with me to Canadian N. W. Banff, Lake Louise, topside edge of High Rockies where icicles are grown, where every prospectus please and only man is vile."

"Where is it?" I ask with choke.

"Where is what?" he corrode.

"My hat," I explode.

And when next seen I were riding toward Canada with Cousin Nogi, holding his hand for fearful I might lose him.

Mr. Editor, to make a short story

FORD RUNS 57 MILES ON GALLON OF GASOLINE

A new automatic and self-regulating device has been invented by John A. Stransky, 52 Fourth street, Pukwana, South Dakota, with which automobiles have made from 49 to 57 miles a gallon of gasoline. It removes all carbon, and prevents spark plug trouble and overheating. It can be installed by anyone in five minutes. Mr. Stransky wants agents, and is willing to send a sample at his own risk. Write him today.—Adv.

long, me & Nogi went to Canada by very straight road till we arrive to very high peaks where we found the grandeur awfully nice. It were so pleasant to hear Hon. Wind making wild sows amidst pine trees and eat fried deer in forest with nothing around but Indian guides. And the glaziers! I never supposed they could get so big. If you have an imagination, attempt to pull it out both ways until it will contain chunk of ice 200 feet high with me and Nogi on top, enjoying cold feet. Are you surprised that I got lofty thoughts up there, thinking how many fat gentlemen was falling down from sunstroke in N. Y., Philadelphia, Louisville & Nebraska?

O what fun we did experience, sliding down waterfalls into lakes what was just like glass, only softer when we hit. When the sun sat down at eventide we could fish and catch all sorts of things from the Indians. They were quite wild. One of them was an Indian Guide who lived at Hollywood at winter and had never seen civilization. And O such smelly wildflowers, such wet brooks, such hotels.

Pretty soon I observe an unpleasant American jay-riding around Lake Louise in a torpedo-catcher boat. As soon as he walk to shore I jump up to him with presidential handshake.

"Howdoo, Hon. Hen. Ford!" I holla.

"Hushy!" he hissy. "I have escaped to Canada and changed my name before Hon. Hearst can nominate me. Call me Mr. Rolis-Royce. He would not dare to mention me with such high title like that."

So me & Nogi strolled from place to place, enjoying sublime Nature & very good views. But Happiness are like other balloons; too much gas make blow-out. All good parties come to an end (Shakespeare). Thusly I found sudden terminal to that sweet Trip in Canada.

One (1) dear evening me & Nogi was fishing for finnan kippers which was dipping out of ice lakes with our silk hat. Of suddenly—who knows how anything happens?—a iceberg walked up behind Nogi with communist expression. What could I do? I was his valet, was not? Therefore I obtain whookbroom from pocket & attempt to brush it aside.

"Bumble!!!" I struck! O ye gods and their wives, how could I swim with an iceberg on my face? At that junction I awoke up and discovered something estranged. I had stumbled to sleep on C. W. Quackmire backsteps and Hon. Ice Cream Freezer had stumbled after me were it spurged open, and squirt gooseberry cream all over my intellectual expression. Hot sunbeam still shooting down from heaven very hellishly while I layed on grass amidst mixture.

"O horrors! O doctor!" shriech Mrs. C. W. Quackmire from winda.

"Togo Togo has got a hot spell. Hellup quick and ending for!"

"I are sufficiently iced," I negotiate with December teeth.

Therefore I commence cranking Hon. Freezer some more, expecting to dream again.

Hoping you are the same
Yours truly
Hashimura Togo.

HONOR TEACHERS GIVING UP WORK AT CHESLEY AVE.

Staff Makes Presentations To Five Colleagues Leaving For Other Fields.

REGRET EXPRESSED

It was a day of presentations yesterday at Chesley Avenue School when members of the teaching staff honored five of their number who have reached the parting of the ways.

When school opens again after the holidays Mrs. M. Cook, Misses Grace Clark, Nina North and M. Gregory, and Mr. H. Secord will be missing from the staff, but each will have with them tokens of the friendship of those with whom they had worked through many happy months in the school in the east end.

Gifts that were highly suitable were presented in each instance. A beautiful cut-glass berry bowl was presented to Mrs. Cook, who is leaving the staff after 12 years of faithful service, to be married.

Miss Clarke, who came to London from Scotland one year ago and under the exchange plan, and who is returning to her homeland once again, was given a snapshot album containing pictures of a personal nature contributed by each member of the staff. The gift has been designed to act as a constant reminder of her pleasant experiences while in London.

Two Transferred.

Books were presented to Misses North and Gregory, who have been granted transfers to other schools in this city more conveniently located to their homes. Mr. Secord, the assistant principal, who is leaving the profession to enter another field of work, was also made happy with a beautiful book.

Addresses in each instance were made by E. E. Gibbs, the principal, while the presentations were made by various members of the staff. Mr. Gibbs was deeply moved by the fact that so many members of the staff were severing their relationships with the staff. Never before in the history of the school had he been forced to bid farewell to five members of his staff at one time.

He eulogized especially the work of Miss Cook, who for several years has virtually served in the capacity of a lieutenant. He could not, he said, imagine Chesley Avenue School without her efficient and cheerful presence.

Expresses Regret.

He had also much to say to and about Miss Clark, who, although she has been at the school only a year, has won a warm spot in the hearts of each member of the staff. Mr. Gibbs felt that every teacher and pupil at the school was better for having known her.

Each of those who had been honored expressed at once their gratitude and sorrow in brief speeches.

Then, to cap the already crowded afternoon, Mr. Gibbs was pleasantly surprised when a number of his class presented him with a gold watch chain in appreciation of all that he had done for them during the school year. The presentation was made by Miss Dorothy Hill.

BANKERS ARE PROMISED A GOOD TIME AT SARNIA

Special to The Advertiser.
Sarnia, June 22.—Sarnia is ready to extend the hand of welcome to about 300 members of the Ohio Bankers' Association, who will come here tomorrow morning on their annual vacation trip or board the steamer Noronic. The visitors will be met at the N. N. Company pavilion entrance at 10 o'clock, instead of 9, as formerly announced, and be taken on a trip around the city and district, subsequently going to Lake Huron Park, where they will be the guests of the N. N. Company at a picnic. Local motorists who donated the use of their cars will also be guests at the picnic.

SUMMARY OF REPORTS ON CANADIAN TRADE

Wholesale and Retail Conditions Improve Slightly—Collections Fair.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Winnipeg, June 22.—This week's trade report of the Canadian Creditors' Trust Association, Limited, states:
Halifax—Wholesale conditions holding steady; retail showing slight improvement; collections fair.

St. John—Wholesale trade considered normal; retail satisfactory, with seasonable weather. Collections not considered satisfactory.

Montreal—Wholesale conditions are practically unchanged, and in general, are considered fairly satisfactory. Retail trade showing slight improvement on account of warmer weather. Collections slow to fair.

Toronto—Wholesale finding orders a little more plentiful, which is occasioned by retailers doing slightly better business, owing to more favorable weather. Wholesalers still finding collections poor, but there is perhaps a little improvement. Building trade is very active, and there is plenty of employment in this connection.

Winnipeg—Wholesale trade holding steady, with improvement hoped for as season advances. Retail trade fairly good. Collections fair. Entire western crop situation is very favorable.

Regina—Wholesale trade holding its own. Retail trade quiet. Collections slow.

Saskatoon—Wholesale trade fair, which is a reflection of the retail conditions. Crop prospects good. Collections poor. No improvement looked for until fall.

Calgary—Wholesale trade just fair, though improvement looked for as season advances. Retail trade showing slight improvement. Collections slow to fair.

Vancouver—Wholesalers generally report business good, especially with

Factors in Success

The things that make an enterprise successful are:

1. Management.
2. A good product.
3. A steady and extensive market.
4. Economical production and selling.
5. Ample working capital.

All these are present and have been thoroughly demonstrated in the business of Belgo Canadian Paper Co., Limited.

For the past 20 years, it has earned ample profits, despite the violent conditions that have affected the world.

Its output has increased and its hold on its market grown firmer with each succeeding year.

And the same management which has guided its progress in all that time, still directs its affairs.

Belgo Canadian Paper Company, Limited,
20-Year 6% Bonds at 99 and interest, yield nearly 6.10%.

of destruction than the cannon of war. Infant mortality in this city was then more than double what it is now, despite an increased population. This graphically demonstrates what effect the efforts of Miss Armstrong and her fellow workers had on the welfare of the city's babies.

Her Work in Toronto.

For two years Isabel Armstrong was engaged in newspaper work in Toronto. There she continued to strive that social conditions in the Queen City might be improved.

It was at the national Liberal convention that she framed the resolution which pledged the Liberal party to the prosecution of all measures intended to raise physical and mental standards in Canada and to conserve life.

Miss Armstrong's speech on that occasion was as follows:

"As a woman member of the Western Ontario Liberal Association, I believe the great question of the day is not the tariff, because the tariff is important only as it affects the welfare and the life of the citizen; the tariff is made for the citizen, not the citizen for the tariff."

The great issue, in the opinion of the women at least, is that the Liberal party shall place in its platform a plank pledging itself to support vigorous, aggressive public health measures with a view to conserving life and raising the standard of the physical efficiency of the citizens. I have much pleasure in moving the following resolution:

"Whereas the great war and the greater epidemic have taken an appalling toll of Canadian life, and

"Whereas human life and physical efficiency are the nation's greatest assets, and

"Whereas the conservation and improvement thereof should be the country's first care,

"Therefore, this gathering of Liberals in convention assembled pledges itself to a vigorous prosecution of the measures best calculated to conserve the life and improve the physical standard of our Canadian citizenship."

Voices Liberalism.

That is a plank of the Liberals of Canada. It is a plank sponsored by Miss Armstrong. And it is, to all wisdom, a plank that will lead to a better future for our country.

Not yet has the juvenile court attained the dignity of a real bright Union Jack to hang on its pale, soft colored walls. Some time ago an informal appeal was made for a flag and the caretaker of the city hall, in a spirit of willing co-operation did the best he could and dug up an old faded relic of innumerable wars, an insignificant affair of three feet by two, whose colors through the passing years have faded into a dismal grayish hue.

Both Judge Quintin Warner and Major A. G. N. Bradshaw, the probation officer, feel that this emblem is not capable of producing the effect in the court room which they desire to have, and will be glad to hear from anyone sufficiently interested in the children and in the work of the juvenile court, to give a new Union Jack to be hung on the east wall behind the judge's chair on the dais.

Both officers believe in impressing on the children who come in to the court clean patriotism of the kind that is best represented by the old flag, and for this reason are advancing their request for a "Jack." They would like to get a flag some sixteen to twenty feet in length so that they could drape it in folds. But just the same they will be very glad to have any flag, and will be grateful to anyone who can help them in this way.

GLEN CAMPBELL CLAN STAGES ANNUAL PICNIC

Many Organizations Enjoy Outing at London's Riverside Park.

Springbank Park yesterday afternoon proved the center of attraction for many organizations which held their annual picnics at the pleasure spot during the course of the day.

Among those who took advantage of the opportunity to get away from the heat of the city were the members of the Glen Campbell Clan, St. James' Anglican Church choir, Lorne Avenue Mothers' Club and Trinity Chapter, No. 64, Eastern Star. Many private picnic parties also spent the day at ease.

The feature of the St. James' choir gathering was the presentation to Mr. Willgoose, organist, of a Masonic ring set with diamonds, on the occasion of his resignation as organist. The presentation was made by Bert Wood, president.

The largest picnic on the grounds was that of the Glen Campbell Clan, more than 100 persons attending. They came from all parts of the province and from Michigan. During the afternoon the election of officers was held, the result being as follows: Arch. A. Campbell, Oklahoma, chief; Dan McIntyre and Duncan Campbell, honorary presidents; William Campbell, Belmont, president; L. McIntyre, Hamilton, vice-president; H. C. Newkirk, St. Thomas, secretary-treasurer; T. Allison, Alvinston; Mrs. G. Kaiser, Lambeth; F. McIntyre, Avon; Murray Letich, Delaware; C. Campbell, Belmont; Mrs. J. L. Grant, Belmont; Mrs. D. A. McClellan, Southwold, were elected to the executive.

Leaving household cares behind, journeyed to Springbank, where everything but a good time was forgotten. The picnic, which was a great success, was arranged by Mrs. G. Raynard, convener; Mrs. W. Rider, Mrs. T. Clift, Mrs. A. Spaulding, Mrs. Gower and Mrs. E. Beaumont.

Thanks to the hard-working committee in charge of preparing for the picnic of Trinity Chapter, No. 64, the events of the day were run off without a hitch. Those who served on the committee were Mrs. E. Elliott, worthy matron; C. B. Chapman, director of sports; Mrs. W. A. McWilliams, convener; Mrs. W. Darling, Mrs. Alex. Pollard, Mrs. William Noble, Mrs. F. Ballantyne, Mrs. H. B. Elford, Mrs. C. B. Chapman, Mrs. W. Gammage and Miss Wilkins.

ST. THOMAS PUPILS VICTORS
IN SAFETY ESSAY CONTEST

Early in May last the Ontario Safety League announced a series of cash prizes for the best essays by school children of the province on the subject of "How Children May Help to Avoid Motor Accidents." Prizes totaling $800 were donated by the Ontario Motor League to assist in the Safety League campaign against preventable accidents.

The prizes were divided into two classes—A for pupils of 12 years and under, and B for pupils of 13 and over. In this competition many children from Western Ontario were successful, there being three winners from the city of St. Thomas alone.

FIND LIQUOR STOLEN FROM CALGARY VENDOR

Police Arrest Two For Theft of $2,000 Worth of Goods.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Calgary, June 23.—Two thousand dollars worth of liquor, stolen from the government liquor vendor's office here Friday morning, was discovered and two men, J. D. Smith and Henry Repp, are under arrest following a gun battle between city police officers and the alleged burglars at midnight. No one was hit by bullets fired by the two police.

Fifty thousand cigarettes, part of a shipment of 250,000 stolen from the Imperial Tobacco Company's warehouse four weeks ago, were also found in the cache. Electric drills and two loaded revolvers were also recovered in addition to an automobile used to cart the liquor away from the vendor's office.

MOTORCYCLE CATCHES FIRE
B. McGUIRE BADLY BURNED

Bert McGuire, 823 Central avenue, suffered severe and painful burns yesterday when his motorcycle burst into flames as he was filling the tank with gasoline. The machine, which was in front of the store of J. A. Page, 807 Dundas street, was so overheated that as the gas was being put into the tank the flames became ignited. The machine fell over on the rider, and it was necessary for spectators to extricate him from the flames. He was taken to Dr. Duncan's office, where first aid was rendered and his injuries pronounced not serious. The fire department was called and extinguished the flames.

ST. THOMAS PUPILS VICTORS
IN SAFETY ESSAY CONTEST

Early in May last the Ontario Safety League announced a series of cash prizes for the best essays by school children of the province on the subject of "How Children May Help to Avoid Motor Accidents." Prizes totaling $800 were donated by the Ontario Motor League to assist in the Safety League campaign against preventable accidents.

The prizes were divided into two classes—A for pupils of 12 years and under, and B for pupils of 13 and over. In this competition many children from Western Ontario were successful, there being three winners from the city of St. Thomas alone.

HAYMAN CONCERN
RECEIVES TENDER
FOR TECH. WORKAdvisory Vocational Committee
Arranges For Four-Room Addition.

NAME TIME LIMIT

The tender presented by John Hayman & Son, Limited, for the construction of the new four-roomed addition to the Technical School, containing an offer to complete the building at a cost of $61,977, was accepted by the advisory vocational committee at a special session last night.This tender was the lowest of three tenders offered. Outriders were John Puthertough, $62,909, and
R. G. Wilson & Son, $66,350. These are all bulk tenders, and include the full equipment of the new rooms, with the exception of school furniture. The technical equipment, such as desks, chairs and blackboards, will amount to $700 per room, which was allowed for in the original estimates of the committee.

Arranged Fees.

It was agreed that the architect and the clerk of works of the board of education should be remunerated for their services by the vocational committee on the basis of a proportion of the total cost of new construction undertaken by the board this year.
This is about one-third, and will amount to $2,000.The total debenture issue for the new addition, including fittings and fees for the architect and clerk of works, will be $66,777, this being some $3,000 less than the estimates asked by the committee.
Architect Carrothers of the board stated that five months was the least time in which the building could be ready for occupancy, but the committee, in view of the fact that the rooms would be required by October 1, urged that shorter time limit be imposed on the contractors.Principal Beal of the Technical school pointed out that the cost of the department of education, which was necessary before any work could be started, could probably be procured by July 1, and it was agreed that October 1 be fixed as the time limit.HONOR MRS. A. HODDER
WHO IS COMING TO CITYChoir of Methodist Church,

With Gift.A delightful evening was spent at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs.
James Morris, Hamilton road, Dorchester, when the choir members of the Methodist Church gathered there to honor one of their number, Mrs.
A. Hodder, who is leaving their midst to reside in London. After a few well-chosen words, given by Rev. S. J.
Thompson, Mrs. Will Crockett presented Mrs. Hodder with a lovely silver cake basket with monogram engraved. The remainder of the evening was largely spent in games and music.The large living-room was prettily decorated with dark red peonies, orange blossoms and ferns, while the color scheme of pale pink and green was carried out in the dining-room.
Streamers, caught from the shaded lamps, came to the corners of the table, where pink unshaded candles were placed. A lovely bouquet of pink peonies was used for the center.
Presiding over the tea-cups was Mrs.
Albert George, while Mrs. Jack Sandy cut the ices. Assisting in serving refreshments were Mrs. James Morris,
Mrs. Dick Logan, Mrs. Frank Boyes and Miss Hattie Rath.

What's Wrong With the Churches?

That something is radically wrong with the church today is admitted on all sides. Ministers, high dignitaries of the Church, writers, lecturers, of world-wide note, continually point to present church organizations as decadent and rapidly proving themselves hopeless to cope with today's problems.Is there a remedy? Is it possible to save the modern church from total wreck? Which is Christ's Church? Which church would He attend were He here in person?
What is the truth concerning the body of Christ?

MISS ARMSTRONG GETS ROUSING RECEPTION AT LIBERAL RALLY

London's Popular Woman Candidate Again Outlines Platform.

McDOUGALL SPEAKS

Ottawa Orator Condemns Reckless Spending of Drury Government.

Isabel Armstrong's glorious battle to safeguard the interests of the people of London against the inroads of unscrupulous and trickster politicians continues with ever-increasing success, and the big Liberal rally in the Majestic Theatre last night should be a lasting warning to her opponents that Monday next spells their ignominious defeat at the ballot boxes.

The Liberal candidate was ably supported by no less a person than the brilliant Liberal orator from Ottawa, and former member of the legislature from that city, Mr. H. J. McDougall, who played most masterly and in his characteristic convincing manner the unenviable records of such reckless spenders of public money as G. Howard Ferguson, E. C. Drury, F. C. Biggs and others who have occupied the seats of the mighty at Toronto since the late Ross administration.

None the less masterly and decisive was the spirited and decisive address from the Liberal candidate herself, who enunciated again a platform calculated to carry her victory in the present contest.

Miss Armstrong dealt at considerable length upon the O. T. A. and quite handsomely answered the recent charges by her "moderate" opponent that she had been unfair in her misrepresentation of the party.

It was not difficult to appreciate the fact that Mr. McDougall, the gifted parliamentarian from Ottawa, was quite conversant with such flagrant acts of misjudgment and otherwise, as the now-famous Backus deal and the Shevlin-Clark timber deal, as featured by Drury and Ferguson administrations respectively.

And his telling denunciation of the wasters and spenders at the Toronto legislature during the past few years was the signal for frequent and spontaneous and prolonged applause.

In his opening remarks Mr. McDougall complimented the Liberals of London on the candidate of their choosing. He recalled that while it may have been others who finally tendered to the people the right to exercise their franchise at the polls, it was the Liberal party, not only in Canada, but in all true democratic countries that had laid the groundwork for it.

Lauds Her Platform.
The speaker referred to Miss Armstrong's platform, terming it as probably the best social reform platform in the province. Dealing with the clause by clause he questioned who but a high-minded woman as Miss Armstrong would include such timely and much-needed reforms in appeal.

"In my opinion the real issues of this campaign have been clouded," said Mr. McDougall. "We see as one of the big issues the charge about that famous 'last night' party in the legislature. We note a counter-charge about who were in attendance. This seems to be one great big issue—who were present on that night? Surely this platform of Miss Armstrong is to be considered a much better appeal to the people of high ideals in this province."

"The Liberals gave the franchise to the women. This may be contradicted, but while it may have been finally prescribed by the Tories it was of Liberal origin. The western provinces under Liberal administration first introduced the proposals."

With an evident wealth of knowledge at his command Mr. McDougall dealt extensively with the financial records of the three political parties.

ISABEL ARMSTRONG.

London's popular Liberal candidate, who won the utmost approval of her hearers at the big Liberal rally in the Majestic Theatre last night, when she outlined her platform and showed in a convincing manner why a Liberal government should be elected in Ontario.

Increased to $21,000,000. We heard a great deal from the Farmers when the Conservatives were in power about the enormous spending, but what followed in 1915, when they themselves took over the reins of government?

In three years alone the annual expenditure jumped from $21,000,000 to more than $37,000,000. They spent twice as much in the last year as the Liberals spent in one year and the total debt of the province was $200,000,000. And they raised the capital debt from $14,000,000 under the Liberal rule to $24,000,000.

"These are figures for serious thought. Canada's debt is over a billion dollars. Ontario's debt is over $28,000,000. The municipal debt of the province is more than $200,000,000. And the result is that the debt of the country can be apportioned $500 per head."

Reckless Spenders.
"I say that the Farmers should have put aside $15,000,000 a year. They were heeded as an economic administration, but we must conclude that they were reckless and extravagant. They appointed 28 commissions, and while they wanted nothing to do with lawyers, it would have been much better if they had had a few in the house to whom they would have had to pay only their seasonal indemnities and not have to pay out vast sums for independent lawyers."

Mr. McDougall, in discussing another phase of the financial situation, cited two glaring instances of mismanagement by the Drury administration whereby bonds were sold to Toronto dealers, netting a loss to the province of a cool million dollars in one instance alone. This could not be attributed to the market fluctuations, as the province of Quebec at the same time was obtaining the right price for similar bonds.

"The Drury Government had proved itself as incapable in finance and should be wiped out," warned Mr. McDougall. "This appears to have been a luxurious government. The farmers were the ones who wanted to do themselves well. Manning Doherty wanted a Chesterfield for his office at the parliament house, and he gets one for $160. No ordinary bed would do for 'Manny.'"

"Then the economical Mr. Biggs gets into the game with a $30 of the minister of labor, whom you would think would at least be economical, has carpets valued at $207. And so on down the line."

"No matter what the article was, they bought the best, and the premier had a coal fire, little you have heard about, valued at $100. I don't think he needs it today, but someone else will use it six months from now. Big items or small items, it didn't make any difference. It was a story of extravagance all along the line."

"Let us see what our principal opponents have to say about one of them. What does the premier think about Howard Ferguson? His main issue seems to be the Northern Ontario timber limit deals—involving those vast resources that were saved to Ontario from the Dominion Government by that grand old Liberal leader, Oliver Mowat, who carried his fight to the privy council and won.

"The Liberals handed over these limits to the Conservatives as they passed out of power. What happened? They sold a portion of them to personal friends of Howard Ferguson at $7 a thousand feet, and later the courts declared that this lumber was worth $17 a thousand feet, and more than $1,000,000 has been ordered repaid to Ontario on this Shevlin-Clarke deal alone. The facts were brought out in the courts, and now Shevlin-Clarke has to pay what was deliberately stolen from the government."

Criticizes Ferguson.
"Is Howard Ferguson the fit and proper man to head the government in view of this transaction? I say he is not the man to have charge of our vast resources, and I maintain that our crown lands if properly administered should yield sufficient to allow our governments to carry on without the people paying one dollar in taxation."

Now we will see what Mr. Ferguson thinks about Mr. Drury and Mr. Raney. No sooner had the farmer got into power than Backus, the Minnesota millionaire, decided to go into the timber business in Northern Ontario, and the people who so strongly condemned the Tories gave Backus under similar conditions timber limits that exceeded the Shevlin-Clarke grants by many times.

"And all the province received from these magnificent lands was $50,000. If this is the way the two parties act in this regard it is time that the resources of Ontario were entrusted to the Liberal party again."

In conclusion, Mr. McDougall dealt briefly with the hydro and Sir Adam Beck's candidature in London.

"The hydro question had been settled," he asserted. "I understood that Sir Adam had been placed in charge and left there to handle it. I can't see, for the life of me, why he wants to leave it and dabble in the political arena, dragging hydro in with him. I think that this is about the worst sort of a thing that could have happened to an enterprise of this nature."

In common with every address that she has delivered in her brief but spirited campaign, Miss Armstrong marked her address with a masterly use of her enunciation of her better home program and her withering criticism of the full-fledged policy of the J. M. Donahue's policy.

During her preliminary remarks the aggressive Liberal candidate remarked jovially that the Liberals seemed to be in favor of J. M. Donahue and his old friend, "John Barleycorn."

"There is one thing upon which Mr. Donahue and I agree, nevertheless," conceded Miss Armstrong, "and that is that the O. T. A. is an issue in this election. But we deal with it from different angles. There's the difference."

My platform has as its foundation better homes with a human, fair play for all and no handicaps. It is a sincere compliment to me from the Conservative candidate that he is now taking my 'better-home' slogan and using it in his publicity. He looked at mine a while, and evidently liked it. I do not think that Mr. Donahue's platform includes 'beer and better homes.'"

"I had made the statement to him that we were both honest in stating our platforms. At the Western University I stated that his platform did not tend toward the creation of such institutions. In reply, he referred to the master minds of old, Aristotle and the founders of Cambridge and Oxford, none of whom, he said, were prohibitionists. I have never set myself up as a highbrow, but being in newspaper work I think perhaps that I have seen a good deal more of life than these eminent gentlemen of old. They may have been absent-minded, living as they did in the clouds. But there has been a great deal more learnt during the last 100 years—during the last ten years for that matter—and science has advanced wonderfully well."

"I do not say myself that the O. T. A. has made better homes. I have the word of 158 school inspectors who say that the O. T. A. has improved home surroundings. In 1922 more than a million people attended the Toronto exhibition and but one person was arrested for being drunk, and our provincial license board tells us that the O. T. A. has reduced the consumption by four-fifths."

O. T. A. Helped Workers.
"Further than that more than 1,000 manufacturing plants have declared that the O. T. A. has been helpful to the workers. It has tended for better attendance at work, and for greater capacity of work and greater efficiency. Surely then the O. T. A. must be better for the workers themselves and their families and homes.

D. L. McDUGALL, of Ottawa, ex-M. P. and one of the most eloquent platform orators in the province, who spoke at Isabel Armstrong's big rally in the Majestic Theatre last evening.

One strong argument against the O. T. A. was that it would clear the minds of the people and they would think, and Bolshevism would follow. Surely we do not have to befuddle the minds of the people with liquor to have democracy.

Having disposed of her "beer and light wine" opponent in this decisive manner, Miss Armstrong explained that she had been often asked why she had not adopted the labor platform.

"That question has been answered by the previous speaker," she declared, "who has told you that no government can carry on satisfactorily without the co-operation of all talents. He saw the need of lawyers in the farmer government. It was evident that a few practical financiers were also needed. So why, then, not a few practical housewives? We need the co-operation of all the people in a good government."

Outlines Platform.
Miss Armstrong dealt briefly but effectively with the several planks in her platform, mothers' allowances, old age pensions, the workmen's compensation act, etc. etc. receiving the unbounded commendation of her supporters.

She dealt with "protection of public ownership and economy in government," insisting upon fair and open tenders for all public contract work, as has not been the procedure with the Ferguson and Drury administrations.

She referred in passing to the Toronto Globe which four years ago had so glibly congratulated Sir Adam Beck because he had demanded that all political parties keep their hands off hydro, and now was directing Londoners to elect Beck and drag hydro into the ring with him.

Jared Vining presided, and in a few well-chosen words lauded the choice of the Liberal party in London and predicted a glorious victory for the Liberals on Monday next.

CONDITION OF VIVIANA BELIEVED CRITICAL
Former French Premier Remains Weak Following Collapse In Court.

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, June 23.—The condition of former premier Viviani, who was seized with a fainting spell while pleading a case before the court two weeks ago, became suddenly worse yesterday. His illness is now believed to be critical.

Mr. Viviani, who is 60 years old, was taken home from the court in a state of collapse, but next day his physicians said he had so far improved that his condition afforded no cause for anxiety, but they advised him to take a rest.

FAIL TO CREATE WHEAT BOARD AT CONFERENCE

Premiers of Alberta and Saskatchewan Find Obstacles Befronting Plan.

MEET DIFFICULTIES

Canadian Press Despatch.
Winnipeg, June 23.—After prolonged conferences and negotiations the premiers of Alberta and Saskatchewan have reached the conclusion that it is not possible to form a satisfactory wheat board. This decision is concerned with representatives of the farmers' organizations, who have been in conference here during the week with Hon. C. A. Dunning, premier of Saskatchewan, and Hon. Herbert Greenfield, premier of Alberta. Last night a statement reviewing the negotiations and announcing the abandonment of the effort to form a board was issued to the Canadian Press with the two premiers' signatures, who are to leave for their homes at once.

"We have found it impossible," said the statement, "to form a board combining all necessary elements of experience, ability, and public confidence."

The situation was made more difficult, it is stated, by the decision of the Manitoba legislature to not co-operate with the western provinces. This made certain that trading in wheat on the Winnipeg exchange would continue, and men who might have been available had the compulsory board applied to all three provinces, would not accept responsibility for marketing the crop of two provinces only.

Failure of wheat board plans, for the second year in succession, will leave the western wheat crop to be marketed under existing machinery. While there has been talk from time to time of a voluntary wheat pool, no steps have been taken to that effect.

EAST LAMBTON W. I. ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Satisfactory Reports Are Presented At Annual Meeting Held At Alvinston.

Special to The Advertiser.
Watford, June 22.—The annual convention of the Women's Institutes of East Lambton was held yesterday afternoon in the Presbyterian Church, Alvinston, and was quite largely attended.

The district president, Mrs. W. Shugg of Brooke, was in the chair, and the reports of the 14 branches were presented, these reports being considered excellent in every way.

Mrs. George Edwards, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, had been announced as the special speaker, but was detained in Toronto by special business there, and so Mrs. Shier of Keeyers, was present in her stead and delivered a most interesting and instructive address on the "Federation Work of the Women's Institutes."

The election of officers for the year then took place, resulting as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. A. Connors of Alvinston; president, Mrs. W. Shugg of Brooke (re-elected); vice-president for the northern division, Mrs. A. Oakes of Arkona; vice-president for the southern division, Mrs. McRoberts of Florence; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. Brooke of Brooke; auditors, Mrs. H. Lett and Miss Annett, both of Brooke; representative on the London district executive, Mrs. A. Connors of Alvinston; secretary of the department of agriculture, Mrs. W. Shugg and Mrs. Randall, both of Brooke.

Following the convention the Alvinston branch entertained the visiting delegates at a delightful lunch, that was served in the hall of the Presbyterian Church. Over 100 delegates sat down at the tea tables. Watford was selected as the place of meeting for the convention in 1924.

MORNING HOUSE SESSIONS WILL BEGIN ON TUESDAY

St. Thomas To Be Derailed Today, Local Seniors Say

Lenny Starts For Railroaders—Local Line-Up Not Announced For Game.

Last night the London senior officials were quite sure what their line-up would be for today's tilt over at St. Thomas Park against St. Thomas. The only thing they were quite sure was that they were going to spread the rails for the fast-traveling railroaders from the outskirts.

St. Thomas is making sure of the use in the O. B. A. which compels a regular game and have are in a few of the starved ones into a game. London has already caught of this end of it, too, and will be some swiftness for qualifying poses.

WILL SWITCH LINE-UP.
St. Thomas, June 22.—The St. Thomas B. A. nine is journeying to London Saturday with every hope of taking another victory in the Southern Ontario League. Although it has long been the title of the first series, which has been won by the locals, London is apparently out to beat St. Thomas.

Manager George Nethercott contemplates several changes in the line-up tomorrow's game, as one of the players of the O. B. A. is that a player who has participated in at least three games before he is eligible to play in the play-offs. A couple of second stringers will be put on the field. Kenny Campbell will be the battery for St. Thomas. Catcher Crawley is still suffering from an injured finger received in the game here last Wednesday with Detroit. McPherson needs a rest, but may relieve Kenny later on in the game. Farley will likely replace Rose, though at short. Farley showed up all for two innings in the last game, and the remainder of the line-up will be actually the same.

The proposition of dividing the second series into A and B groups has been shelved by the local clubs. They consider the plan. London and Oshkosh were strong for a split series, but the local clubs believed it would prolong the games too far into the summer, and would interfere with the play-offs. St. Thomas expects to be in the running at that time.

President W. G. Ford was going to call a meeting of the Southern Ontario League here this week, but when he learned that St. Thomas would not consider the plan he called off the conference. Twelve games comprise the second series for each team.

Perrins increased their wins to two last night by defeating Murray Shoes 3-1, and incidentally gained the first of three first places in the league standings.

It was a pitchers' duel between McCallum and Quick, and each held the opposing batsmen to three safeties. Perrins grounded two of the bingles in the fourth, along with a hit batter, and walk, for three runners, the total of their scoring attempts in the same game two hits and an error gave Murray the lone tally.

IS HORNSBY GOING TO LEAVE CARDS?

Old Rumor More Persistent Last Few Days.

HIS KNEE IS BAD

By JOHN B. FOSTER.

New York, June 22.—The Rogers Hornsby rumor is afloat and bobbing like a cork on the waves today. It was due for a reappearance, what with the general heat and discomfort.

Every so often that rumor comes from St. Louis. Some day it may prove that Hornsby believes he can do better with the Browns than he can do with the Cardinals. If that is the case, the Browns' manager, Rickie, will be in a quandary.

It is not so noticeable where all the other players of the team are fast. But it hurts like a knife where all the other members are also slow. Then it takes three base hits to score a run. A star batter may be slow on his feet. It is not so noticeable where all the other players of the team are fast. But it hurts like a knife where all the other members are also slow. Then it takes three base hits to score a run.

When a man's legs begin to go in baseball it is as bad as if he had been overtaken with premature old age. Should the St. Louis club let Hornsby go to New York—presuming, of course, that he would like to go—would it be a mistake to let him go? The answer is not yet known.

It is now going on the latter part of June, and the St. Louis club is second baseman of the Cincinnati, who has not given up the idea of letting him go. Down the Line In All Sports

The Tecs picked cool spots away from the Tecs in this week, Bay City and Saginaw, win or lose. Losing games by one run margins, however, is apt to offset some of the cool Huron breezes.

Willie Ritchie, the memory of the Tecs, pointed out, tapered off his training on the golf course, and lost his title. Jimmy White did the same. It might be worth while to follow the Tecs and Gibbons' advice on the last few days before the fight.

The feat of young Plastow in the Church League last night has been done before twice this season in amateur baseball. The first was Stevens of the Hamilton Road Anchors; the veteran Barney Clarke also pitched a no-hit, no-run, and now comes the Elks' hurler with a perfect game for five innings, not even a walk. These feats are just as well executed as if they happened in the majors—as far as they go. The last four innings are usually more dangerous to a pitcher than the first five.

If Gibbons is to get all over the $300,000 mark at Shelby, his vacation trip will consist of a trip from St. Paul to Minneapolis and no stop-overs.

Tecs Rally In 9th But Fall Short By One Tally To Tie

London Infield Has Uncertain Day With Five Errors—McCallum Good.

Bay City, Mich., June 22.—Marty Gynn was outpitched here today in the final game of the two-game series with the London Cockneys by Lefty MacCallum, but weird fielding on the part of the London infielders, especially Getis and Barbelon, gave the Wolves the necessary chances, and Bay City swept the two-game series, winning today's game 3 to 2.

Lefty MacCallum, batting for MacCallum in the ninth, doubled up against the right field fence, scoring McNamara and Barbelon, who had singled, but the London infielders were left stranded on second when Stimpson was called out on strikes.

The Cockneys wasted two hits in the third inning, as Boyle was out at the plate attempting to make home on a bunt. The London infielders, however, were unable to touch their hits to any advantage on Gynn, who pitched a nice game in the pinches.

75 Enter Mfrs. Track Meet 13 Relay Teams Are Also In

Free Press Modified Marathon Draws Classy Field of Eleven Entries—Meet Promises To Be Biggest Success Ever Recorded.

The M. A. A. officials when they decided to make the annual track meet a purely industrial meet, were taking a chance, it was thought, but judging by the entries, 75 for the various track events, and 13 teams entered in the three relay races, they weren't taking any chance at all, but using splendid judgment in preparing today's program for Queen's Park.

Added to this, the Free Press modified marathon, always run in conjunction with the M. A. A. meet, has drawn a field of 11 starters, among the entries for which are such well known stars as Jimmy Dellow, permanent holder of one Free Press trophy, and prominent in many international events, and Percy Wyer, for many years one of the most consistent runners in the country, and with a good many miles left yet in his sturdy short legs. Norman General, the Brantford runner, also entered, and was supposed to have entered and will likely be a belated entrant. This event follows the usual order, and the meet will be before the grand stand at Queen's Park.

The industries of London have responded with an unexpected show of athletic talent. Many entries were turned down because the athletes were not identified with any manufacturing concern. One youngster wanted to make a drug store his business concern, but the officials could not stretch the point that far.

The entries for the various events are as follows:
—Gerald Davies, Canada Pharmacal Co.
—D. B. Wanless, Silverwoods, Ltd.
—Albert Gelsinger, Stores Dept., Can. Nat. Ry.
—Ross Jeffrey, McClary Mfg. Co.
—Clifford Baker, Wm. Gerry & Sons.
—Cecil Fagan, Somerville Paper Box Co.
—Jas. A. Kennedy, Somerville Box Co.

FOUR REDS PITCH.
Pittsburgh, June 22.—Cincinnati used four pitchers today in an unsuccessful attempt to defeat Pittsburgh. The score was 3 to 0. Cincinnati's pitchers were: Meadows pitched effectively, and also got the most hits in many trips to the plate.

ST. LOUIS LOSES ANOTHER.
St. Louis, June 22.—Cincinnati won the eighth inning today, and Chicago won from St. Louis by 3 to 2. It was St. Louis' fifth straight loss. Chicago's pitchers were: Meadows pitched effectively, and also got the most hits in many trips to the plate.

NO HELP FOR IT.

"John," said a Houston grocer the other day to one of his clerks, "you have been a faithful and competent clerk, and in order to show my appreciation, I have decided to take you into partnership. From this time on you are to have a share in the business, and be a member of the firm."

"But, sir," said John anxiously, "I have a family to support. I appreciate the honor, but I fear I am too young for the responsibility. I would much rather retain my present place."

"Can't help it," said the grocer. "Times are hard, and I've got to cut down expenses if I have to take every clerk in the house into the firm."

THE PEWEE.

In the hush of the drowsy afternoon, When the very mind on the breast of June

Is settled, and hot, white tracery of the shattered sunlight flutters free through the unstinted leaves to the pined cool sward.

On a dead tree branch sings the saddest bird of the birds that be: 'Tis the lone Pewee.

His note is a sob, and its song is a pitched plaint.

In a single key like a soul bewitched to a mournful minstrelsy.

"Pewee, Pewee!" doth it ever cry: A sad, sweet, minor thrum.

That threads the aisles of the dim hot grove Like the tale of a wrong or a vanished love.

And the fancy comes that the wee dun bird Perchance was a maid, and her heart was stirred

By some lover's rhyme In a golden time, And broke when the world turned false and old;

And her dreams grew dark and her faith grew cold. In some fairy far-off clime,

And her soul crept into the Pewee's breast; And forever she cries with a strange unrest

For something lost, in the afternoon, For something missed from the lavish June.

For the heart that died in the long ago, For the living pain that pierceth so.

Thus the pewee cries, While the evening lies Steeped in the languorous, still sun-saddest hour.

Rapt to the leaf and the bough and the vine Of some hopeless paradise.

Captain Refuses To Aid the United States Customs Officials.

RECEIVE MESSAGE

New York, June 23.—United States officials, after starting to seize liquor on the steamer Baltic today, halted their work for an hour on receipt of a mysterious telephone message, then later resumed their raid on the steamer's lockers' stock with liquor intended for use on the homeward trip. Just why the United States officials paused in their raid remained a mystery at 11 o'clock.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who promulgated the dry ruling, which the Baltic, Berengaria and Paris have defied, joined officials at Washington in professing ignorance of the reason for the pause, and officials at the custom house, locked in conference, could not be reached. At the offices of the White Star Line, it was stated that no injunction proceedings had been instituted.

Getting the liquor off the steamer promised to prove something of a thorn in the side of the customs agents. Chief Officer Williams of the Baltic said they could not look to the crew for aid, and could not use the ship's cranes to land the spirits. There are a half-dozen narrow stairways and interminable crooked corridors between the liquor and land.

A few minutes after 11 o'clock, however, customs and prohibition enforcement agents began to bring the Baltic's 6,198 bottles of liquor ashore, and loading it on trucks destined for a federal warehouse.

LONDON VIEWS ON MANITOBA RESULTS

he said. Manitoba should be commended for its display of sanity.

"The Tide Is Turning." The tide is turning, Mr. Donahue declared. "Somebody must start the ball rolling to eliminate this farce in Ontario, and I have shouldered that responsibility. If Sir Adam Beck is the champion of moderation, I am the champion of moderation. Now that people are beginning to appreciate the inviolability of the law, as represented by the T. A., there will be a tremendous agitation against it all through Ontario."

"I believe that a uniform liquor law in every province would stamp out the inconsistencies and farcical nature of enforcement at present existing. We must strive for uniformity. We must strive for something after the new Manitoba measure. I am delighted with the result in the west."

Beck Men Silent. G. S. Reid, Sir Adam Beck's campaign manager, speaking on behalf of the hydro knight who is ill in bed, stated the local Conservative party "had absolutely nothing to say."

"Haven't you got an opinion one way or the other," he was asked. "Not one way or the other," he said. Other members of the Tory party were equally reticent, apparently fearing that a statement, either approving or condemning the Manitoba vote, might react to the detriment of their candidates.

"Silence is golden," one Tory remarked meaningly. The Will of the People. Dr. Hugh Stevenson, M.L.A., commenting on the result in the west, declared it was perfectly right that the people should be given a voice in deciding the liquor policy of the province.

"The act was changed by referendum," said the doctor. "Manitoba legislators cannot help but put it into operation. If the people put the Ontario Government as strenuously as they did the government in Manitoba, the Ontario Government would be compelled to recognize their wishes and have a referendum. 'So far as I am concerned,' Dr. Stevenson continued, 'I shall stand by the verdict of the people. Liquor moderation is entirely up to them.'"

Philip Pocock Pleaded. "I am pleased with the result," declared Philip Pocock, prominent London public official. "I have always favored government control. It is impossible to manage the liquor trade otherwise. They haven't managed it yet."

"There are too many bootleggers. I believe the restriction placed on the people has been a failure. The result. I think if there was government control there would be fewer bootleggers. Armies of these men are making money which they are spending in the liquor trade. I have always been in favor of government control, although I am dry. The present system is bad. The bootlegging is worse than some think."

Views of Clergymen. "Personally I am disappointed," declared Rev. W. R. McIntosh, of King Street Presbyterian Church. "Every one is opposed to the bar, but progress is by action and reaction." He believed the tendency toward independence of action or so-called liberty, had something to do with the vote which favored the "wets." He did not think Ontario would follow suit, as there was not such a large proportion of old country people in Ontario as there is in Manitoba.

Rev. M. Kelly, of First Congregational Church, declared: "That's unfortunate. I don't see that it ought to influence Ontario. On different occasions the people of this province have expressed themselves as opposed to the liquor traffic. The people of Ontario won't change their minds. I hope that the humiliation which has befallen the 'wets' in Manitoba won't come to Ontario."

Rev. J. A. Agnew, of Ridout Street Methodist Church, was surprised when he learned the result. "I don't think Ontario will ever swing for government control, as it is probably deeper rooted than the younger provinces. I don't think it is a good thing for a government to become a party to it. This will right itself before long, as the liquor traffic is a great menace."

PUSSYFOOT JOHNSON SAYS "CANADA NEVER WAS DRY"

Special To The Advertiser. New York, June 23.—Sailing for the Near East to dry up the Moslems, William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, America's most famous roving dry crusader, today waived comment on the wet vote in Manitoba with the remark that Canada never was really dry. "Canada never had real prohibition," Johnson said. "She barred the sale of liquor, but did not stop the manufacture of intoxicants. You can't have real prohibition until the manufacture of liquor is stopped."

GAMBLING CRAZE HITS RESIDENTS OF BRITAIN

Clergyman Tells How Parishioners Bet on Sermon To Be Preached.

Canadian Press Despatch. London, June 23.—The craze in Great Britain for sweepstakes in horse racing, football, etc., seems to be growing rather than otherwise, but the government has announced that it has no intention of considering a tax upon it.

The sweepstakes fever has permeated the office of the ministry of pensions at Leeds, Yorkshire, which is a great football and cricket center, and a big pool for the St. Leger racing event is being promoted. The ministry of pensions office has announced that no official approval has been given to the sweepstakes, and has strictly forbidden the ministry's name to be associated with the affair.

The championship of England's Men's Society convention, held here this week, deeply deplored the gambling tendency of today. One clergyman who was a delegate to the convention told of how some men in his parish bet on whether the vicar would preach from a verse in the Old or New Testament, and the following Sunday went to church and found the vicar preaching on the revision of the prayer book.

SISTER OF DELORME TAKES STAND TODAY

Lily Delorme Contradicts the Police as to Her Actions on Day of Murder.

Canadian Press Despatch. Montreal, June 23.—The Delorme case was resumed this morning. Prior to calling Lily Delorme to the witness box, R. L. Calder, K.C., crown prosecutor, announced that Miss Rosa Delorme would be recalled by the defence. He asked that she be ordered to remain in the building until resumed. The court granted the order.

Lily Delorme, half-sister to the accused and full sister of the dead youth, Raoul, related her knowledge of the events which transpired in her home on the day of the murder, January 6, 1921.

She told of having seen Raoul leave the house at 2:30 p.m. He was fully dressed, but she did not notice whether he wore any rubbers. Mr. Calder—Had he an overcoat on when he left?

Witness—I did not notice, but he must have, as it was very cold out. Mr. Calder—When did you go out yourself?

Witness—I didn't leave the house at all in the afternoon. The three detectives who saw you on Jan. 7th that you had come out about 4 o'clock on the previous afternoon? "I didn't say anything of the kind," the girl retorted, vehemently.

REPORT FAILURES LESS IN BUSINESSES IN CANADA

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, June 23.—Canadian failures during the week ending yesterday were 54 as compared with 58 for the corresponding week of 1922 according to the report of R. C. Dunn and Company. By provinces they were as follows: Ontario, 14; Quebec, 23; Manitoba, 2; Alberta, 6; Saskatchewan, 2; British Columbia, 6; and New Brunswick, 1.

LAVA FLOW FROM ETNA DECREASES TO SLOW PACE

Associated Press Despatch. Rome, June 23.—The eruption of Mount Etna has entered an erratic stage, with periods of increase and decrease in its activity alternating. The flow of lava toward Lingua Gioiosa is continuing, but has slowed down to a great degree that at the present rate it would be weeks before the town proper was reached.

WRECKED BREAD TRUCK LEARNING TO DRIVE

Rathwell Baking Company of Strathroy Suffers Loss In Collision.

Special To The Advertiser. Strathroy, June 23.—The bread truck of the Rathwell Baking Company was wrecked last evening on the Mount Brydges road just outside of the town limits, by running into a telegraph pole.

It appears that the regular driver of the truck was teaching a new driver, and while the car was in the latter's hands it got out of control. The truck was damaged, it is estimated, to the amount of over $150. The company is endeavoring to make its country deliveries in the meantime by touring car.
