OUR ARCTIC EXPLORER

PEN PORTRAIT OF VILHJALMUR STEFANSSON.

He Had a Narrow Escape From a Business Career, But Became an Adventurer and His Exploits Culminated in the Discovery of the Blonde Eskimos.

THROUGH the medium of the American-Scandinavian Review the reader is presented with an interesting pen portrait of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the famous Arctic explorer, who is acknowledged to be the foremost scientist-explorer of the world. The writer, John Holmes, prefaces his sketch of the explorer's life and personality as revealed to him in a recent interview by a few introductory remarks, in which he refers to the affinity between the ancient Norse Vikings and the modern explorer—both possessing in an unusual degree a fundamental desire for travel and adventure. Although by parentage an Icelander, Stefansson is by birth a Canadian. The famous explorer Mr. Holmes found to be a modest, soft-spoken person with the mild and unaffected manner often characteristic of men who have accomplished big things.

"There is a touch of the academician in his speech and gestures, and the only scars he bears of his battles with the North are patterns of furrows around the eyes, such as you might find adding good humor to the countenance of any Western rancher who has lived much in the open where the winds are never still. He is of good, medium height with a well-knit frame and the fair complexion and light-colored hair characteristic of the Icelanders, perhaps the fairest of the Scandinavian peoples.

"He gives no such impression of dynamic force or physical vigor as his great fellow explorers, Amundsen, Shackleton or Peary, when the North Pole discoverer was in his prime. Yet I believe that Stefansson has commanded as large expeditions as any of these men, and he has undoubtedly tramped greater distances around the top of the earth than any other man. I wondered at first wherein lay his strength, and almost before I knew it I had my answer.

"In the course of our talk I thoughtlessly questioned the literalness of something he had said about his polar experiences. Well, I struck flint at once. He thought, of course, that I doubted his word, and I am glad he did. I caught a glimpse of his reserve strength when he was rolled, of the steel under the velvet.

"Stefansson belongs by right to the select log cabin class of famous men, now becoming almost as rare as buffalo fur coats. He was born in 1879 in an immigrant's cabin on the shore of Lake Winnipeg, north of the Canadian city of that name. His parents were among the first Icelanders to venture from their native island to try their fortunes in the New World. They moved in a prairie schooner across the line into what was then the Territory of Dakota, when the future explorer was eighteen months old, and settled in a farming colony of Icelander immigrants near the hamlet of Mountain, Pembina County. Here Stefansson grew up on his father's farm twenty miles from a railroad. The country was wild enough to harbor a few Indian bands, and every now and then the colony was stirred by reports of impending raids. Sitting Bull was still alive, and to the Icelanders he was a sort of American troll, which never materialized, however, in their midst.

"The environments of Stefansson's early youth were those characteristic of a Western frontier community, bare in comfort, abounding in hard work and almost stripped of cultural advantages, except such as may be found on the bookshelves of the most poverty stricken Icelander, the saga classics, a few epic ballads, rimur—and, of course, the Icelandic poets.

"Does any nation owe as much to its classics and its poets as the Icelanders? Without the sagas to kindle their spiritual life they would have reverted to semi-barbarism centuries ago. Stefansson devoured his father's little library and the libraries of his neighbors, attended country school, worked on the farm and put in four summers as a cow puncher on the Dakota plains. He lost his father when he was fifteen, and the additional responsibilities thrown on his shoulders by this bereavement caused him to take a plunge into business the following year. He made a brave attempt to clean up a small fortune in hay. The farmers of the community had gone wheat mad, he explained. They would raise nothing but wheat, and they gladly gave young Stefansson liberal orders for hay to feed their horses and milch cows through the winter. Stefansson hired men to put up enormous quantities of hay on the range adjoining the farm community, but before he could deliver a ton North Dakota was swept by a blizzard that has never been equalled in the history of the Northwest. Not a wisp of hay could be delivered, and Stefansson went broke.

"Stefansson considers his failure a narrow escape from a business career. But he had other escapes. The log cabin tradition almost pulled him into politics. The pulpit reached out and nearly collared him. Stefansson dodged both callings. The inadequate country schools had not enriched his knowledge a great deal, but they had at least given him a thirst for education, and when he was eighteen he entered the preparatory department of the University of North Dakota. With a capital of $57, his summer savings, and arrayed in a brand new suit of store clothes, which cost $7, and a pair of $1.35 shoes, he set off for the state metropolis of Grand Forks. That journey was a memorable event. For, at eighteen, he had never before ridden in a railroad train.

"He then proposed to sail around Alaska to study the Pacific side of the Polar regions. Stefansson preferred a short cut across the Continent to the Mackenzie delta, and induced Harvard and Toronto universities to finance this trip. He traveled by Hudson Bay steamers down the Mackenzie, tramped part of the way, and arrived on the shores of the Arctic Ocean in a light overcoat and a blue serge suit. 'And I knew just exactly what I was doing,' said Stefansson. 'I was going to live with the Eskimos, learn their language and study them; and I did. I could never have done it effectively by putting up my own quarters, dressing as a white man and living like a white man. I got my furs, caught fish and killed game, cooked it myself in the Eskimo huts, ate delicious meals, whenever I was hungry, and stayed for eighteen months.'

"His second Arctic expedition kept him in the Far North for fifty-three months, from 1908 to 1912. This expedition was under the auspices of the Government of Canada. It was on this trip that Stefansson found the blond Eskimos, showing unmistakable signs of European origin, and believed by many to be the remnant of the lost Norse colony of Greenland. In the course of this expedition Stefansson added many new features to the map of Northern Canada, exploring one river, the Horton, more than five hundred miles in length. He commanded the Canadian expedition of 1913-18, from which he has just returned, one of the most elaborately and expensively equipped polar expeditions ever undertaken. He explored and mapped about one-fourth of the 1,000,000 square miles of the hitherto unknown polar region of the Western Hemisphere, found new islands, corrected the outlines of others on the map and established the non-existence of one island, the discovery of which had been announced some years ago.

"There remains but one thing more to tell of Stefansson, and considering the fact that I have already stated that he is an Icelander, it seems almost superfluous to mention that he started out to be a poet. He contributed verse to the college literary monthly in his undergraduate days, and even achieved the distinction of having his translations of Icelandic poems published in an Eastern magazine. I have read some of his verse written many years ago, and I can testify to its merit."

Scarcity of Pulp Wood.

The bulk of the world's supply of paper is made from spruce and other soft woods, the supplies of which are steadily diminishing. The quantities of soft woods available within the Empire are comparatively small, and so it has come about that the Empire is largely dependent on foreign countries, especially Scandinavia, for its supplies of paper or the wood pulp from which it is made, the chief source of supply within the Empire being Newfoundland and Canada. The Imperial Institute has therefore given special attention to the possible substitutes for wood which are to be found in the grasses growing in tropical and sub-tropical countries. Among these is the tannin grass of South Africa. This, on examination at the Imperial Institute, was found to give a yield of about 33 per cent. of paper of excellent quality, and the prospects of a paper industry in South Africa based on this material are now being carefully considered. Tannin grass is by no means the only paper-making material obtained in South Africa, and from the information available it seems likely that the range of materials will enable several classes of paper to be made.—Family Herald.

McClelland-Easterbrook

A very pretty wedding and one that will be of interest to Waterdown readers, was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, June 25th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Easterbrook, Burlington when their daughter, Miss Elfrida Stranger, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John F. McClelland, manager of the East End branch of the Union Bank of Canada, Hamilton. Miss Kate McPherson of Merriton was bridesmaid while Lieut. Wm. McClelland, brother of the groom acted as groomsman. The Rev. D. Anderson officiated. Miss Marion Snodgrass played the wedding march while the register was being signed. Miss McClelland sang "Because", the happy couple leaving shortly after for an extended trip to Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Cleveland and other points. Their future home will be in Hamilton. Their many friends here will wish them a long and happy married life.

Union S. S. Picnic

The committees appointed by the different churches of the village, to make arrangements for the Union S. S. picnic, met in Knox church last Monday evening. It was decided to hold the picnic this year at Wabasso Park on Wednesday, July 23rd. The following committees were appointed.

Supply Committee—W. G. Spence, W. J. Spence, J. Anderson and Miss Halliburton.

Sports Committee—Dr. D. A. Hopper, Dr. R. J. Vance, Chas. Burns, Jas. Markle, S. Wyatt, Earl Griffin, Walker Drummond, Wm. Law, Chas. Attridge.

Grounds Committee—Wm. Langton, J. C. Langford, H. W. Hill, P. H. Metzger, J. Mitchell, Wm. Attridge, C. Goodbrand, Geo. A. Best.

Finance Committee—T. J. Little, Geo. Willis, W. G. Spence.

Transportation Committee—John Mitchell, H. W. Hill, Chas. Richards, J. C. Langford, J. Anderson, Peter Ray, Wm. Attridge, Alex. Davidson, W. G. Spence.

Table Committee—Mrs. C. Richards, Mrs. Reg. Langton, Mrs. Wm. Langton, Mrs. R. A. Facey, Miss B. Simpson, Miss B. Drummond, Miss C. Radford, Mrs. C. Goodbrand, Mrs. J. C. Langford, Mrs. P. H. Metzger, Mrs. R. J. Vance, Mrs. W. G. Spence, Mrs. R. C. Griffin, Mrs. J. Anderson, Mrs. R. Smith, Miss Gladys Hassel-felt, Miss Atkins.

Mr. Chas. Richards was appointed to make arrangements for securing the park on that day.

BIRD DECEIT.

Tactics of Self-Defence They Are Adept In.

It has been pointed out that the military tactics which a commander may employ to deceive the enemy are confined in a limited way by many birds.

There is nothing more interesting in the study of bird life than the efforts to deceive which many species put forth to save their young or their nests from the despoiler. The bobwhite (commonly called quail) is a most notable tactician in this kind of deception. This bird is physically helpless in the face of danger, possessing no weapons. Its power of swift flight for a short distance is great, but when there are little bobwhites to protect, the mother will not leave them. The nest is always on the ground, and the eggs are thus peculiarly open to the ravages of snakes and other enemies.

There are sometimes a score of eggs, sharply pointed at one end and round at the other, so that space in the nest is economized. The chicks quit their birthplace before they are fairly out of the shell.

They inherit a knowledge of the family vernacular, and each little head about the size of a pea, holds quick perception and resolute will. If danger threatens the brood, the mother bird calls. The young all "go dead" instantly; they drop down wherever they chance to be at the moment. A man or a boy might step on them; they are almost invisible among the dry leaves and grass. The mother bird renders herself very conspicuous, fluttering with a "broken wing."

The morning dove is another timid and helpless creature; she also tries the broken wing ruse to divert danger from her nest. The dove acquired the "broken wing habit" of deception while the tribe yet nested on the ground. The habit persists, although rather ludicrous when exercised on the bough of a tree or on the top of a rail fence.

The domestic goose is derived from wild species. The pioneer settlers saw their domestic geese run wild in bushes and almost revert to their primitive state. Now the goose constructs a very pretentious nest on the ground. The eggs are so large and white that they would attract unfriendly notice at a considerable distance. To avoid this dangerous publicity the eggs are carefully covered over when the owners leave them even for a short time.

FIRE IN WATER.

Fire in the middle of a tank of water instead of under a boiler is a new scheme in making steam for an engine. The idea is to save heat ordinarily wasted, for, with the fire in the middle of the water, every bit of the heat must work to heat the water, as there are no side paths by which it can escape.

Keeping a fire blazing when practically surrounded by water is a problem that has been successfully solved. Gas or oil properly mixed with air feeds the fire. To start the flame tank is first emptied and the vapor fuel forced in through a pipe that ends in a nozzle pointed downward. The vapor is ignited, making a roaring torch flame shooting downward in the tank is partly filled with water until the surface of the water is well above the nozzle, entirely covering the flame. The vapor fuel, of course, must be forced in at some pressure in order to prevent the water from putting the fire out. The water is soon boiling violently, making steam for running the engine. The steam, mixed with gas from the burning fuel, is led into a separate tank, which is a sort of storage bin for the steam.—Saturday Evening Post.

How Savings Grow.

Ten dollars a month saved and put out at 4 per cent. compound interest will show an accumulation of $1,475 in ten years; $7.50 a month will show $1,106; $6 a month will show $885; $5 a month will show $737; $4.50 a month will show $663; $4 a month will show $589; $3 a month will show $442, and $2.50 a month will show $368.

Any sum saved an invested at 4 per cent. compound interest will more than double itself in 20 years. Save $10. At the end of the first year you will have $10.40; in five years you will have $12.75. At the end of the tenth year your interest will grow to $6.20, and at the end of the twentieth your interest will be $10.70, or more than double your original sum. Carried along on the same basis $100 will become $207, and $1,000 will grow to $2,070.

Save ten cents a day and in ten years your daily savings will be $365, in addition to $30.30 compound interest, making a total of $445.50. If you save 15 cents a day for ten years with interest compounded at 4 per cent. you will have $668.18; 20 cents a day will net $890.99; 50 cents a day will mean $2,227.73, and $1 a day will give you a total of $4,445.74.—Thrift Magazine.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS OF GREAT HELP

Mothers, if your baby or growing child is sickly; if he does not sleep well at night; if he cries a great deal; is constipated and his little bowels and stomach are not working right, give him Baby's Own Tablets—they have proved of great help to thousands of mothers. Concerning the Tablets Mrs. W. H. Decater, Corcoran's Sidling, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and have found them excellent for the little ones and would not be without them." The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative and are guaranteed to contain no harmful drug—that is why they always do good and never harm. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Adhesive Gum Made From Corncocks.

Corncocks—a great waste product in the world's greatest corn producing nation—have been made to yield adhesive gum and other useful substances in quantities sufficient to convince chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture that the nucleus of a profitable and important industry lies in this direction.

In addition to adhesive gum, experiments have produced cellulose and glucose, both of which have many commercial uses. The glucose so produced crystallizes well, and it is believed can be used in the same ways as crystalline glucose from starch. Manufacture of alcohol by the fermentation of corncocks appears practicable if sulphuric acid is obtainable cheaply.

To utilize corncocks commercially, the chemists believe, a large and costly plant would be necessary.

The Sun and the Weather.

Neither astronomers nor meteorologists are likely to take seriously the prediction of a French scientist that the recent renewal of sun spot activity will result in a long period of dry weather covering seventeen years. "The direct consequence of our dependence on the sun," he says, "is that seventeen years of dryness are followed by as many wet years." Many attempts have been made to discover any association between sun spot cycles and weather cycles, but as yet without success. There are three fairly well defined sun spot cycles, embracing four, eleven and thirty-three years, but no similar weather periods are known. During the last seventy years the Greenwich records of sun spots and rainfall show no relation, there being no correspondence between the two phenomena.—Westminster Gazette.

CHIVALROUS FEUDS.

Queer Features of Vendettas in Two Countries.

Before one can truly realize the terrible depravity to which human nature can occasionally descend one has to obtain just an inkling into that horror of horrors known by the name "vendetta." The misery the suffering, the fear sometimes engendered by these awful feuds it is impossible to paint in language too denunciatory, observes a writer in London Answers. A gentleman not long returned from South America described the other day the end of a vendetta he once had the misfortune to witness in the Boca (lowest quarter) of Buenos Aires. The antagonists had their knives strapped to their hands so that the weapons could not possibly drop from their fingers, however badly injured they became. Before the police had separated them one of the luckless combatants had received no less than 17 wounds. On being examined it was discovered that this individual had a loaded revolver in his belt.

"Whyever did you not use your firearm?" asked the prefect of police. "No; it was a fight with knives," explained the other, with a gasp, and the next moment he sank unconscious to the ground.

In Naples, where warning of a vendetta is almost invariably given in private, a member of the Camorra is sometimes alien to settle a dispute and in this way occasionally what might otherwise have been a brutal feud ends in the clink of glasses at a sumptuous banquet. If a Camorrist meets his death at the hands of a foe it becomes the bounden duty of some other member of the Camorra to avenge it, notice being almost invariably given to the relatives of the deceased that it is absolutely unne-sary for them to take steps in the matter whatever.

In Naples, curiously enough, the sympathy of the people is much more with the murderer in these cases than with the victim, judging that if he had had no grievance the former would never have bared his blade; and it is quite surprising how far people are prepared to go in order to protect him from the police.

It is an unwritten law among the hot-blooded races among whom the vendetta still exists that, in an open street fight, no adversary is the refusal on the part of its dying victims to disclose the name of those who have mortally wounded them.

Books Made by Slaves.

Some publishers in ancient Rome could turn out books rapidly and cheaply. A publisher of the Augustan era produced 1,000 copies of the second book of Martial in ten hours, and these, sold at about 12 cents apiece, gave him a profit of 100 per cent. This was done by employing slaves carefully trained to write swiftly and legibly. Working in batches of 100, with an overseer directing the book in hand, the task was completed in a very short time. As soon as the copies were written they were revised, corrected, rolled up and bound. Being slaves, the men required only maintenance from their master, and thus he could afford to sell their productions at a very low rate.

A fifty-cent tip to my 'cook'—quarter for the privilege of smoking in the room in which I smoked made my habit cost me about $4 a day, which made a ghastly hole in even the good salary I earned. I began to buy my opium by the can, paying $25 to $30 for tins averaging 450 fun. The elimination of the retailer's profit helped temporarily, but the ever increasing demands of my habit soon overcame the saving."

HUN IS HUNNISH TO THE VERY END

Characteristic Note in Announcing Submission.

Again Prates of Honor of Germany.

Weimar Cable — The National Assembly this afternoon voted to sign the peace terms unconditionally, the Government having succeeded in overcoming the opposition of those who insisted on two conditions.

DREAD CONSEQUENCE.

Paris Cable — In announcing its intentions to accept and sign the peace terms, the Government of the German Republic has sent the following note to M. Clemenceau, president of the Peace Congress, through Dr. Hanfstaengl, minister of Foreign Affairs. The Minister of Foreign Affairs has instructed me to communicate to Your Excellency the following: "It appears to the Government of the German Republic in consternation at the last communication of the allied and associated Governments, that these Governments have decided to wrest from Germany by force acceptance of the peace conditions, even those which, without presenting any material significance, aim at devastating the German people of their honor.

"No act of violence can touch the honor of the German people. The German people, after frightful suffering in these last years, have no means of defending themselves by external action.

"Yielding to superior force, and without renouncing in the meantime its own view of the upshot of injustice of the German Republic declares that it is ready to accept and sign the peace conditions imposed.

"Please accept, Mr. President, assurances of my high consideration.

(Signed) "Von Hanfstaengl."

Dust Causes Asthma. Even a little speck too small to see will lead to agonies which no words can describe. The walls of the breathing tubes contract and it seems as if the very life must pass. From this condition Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy brings the user to perfect rest and health. It relieves the passages and normal breathing is firmly established again. Hundreds of testimonials received annually prove its effectiveness.

WAGE WAR ON PROFITEERS

New Italian Premier Speaks to People

And Threatens Severe Punishment.

Rome Cable — Francesco Nitti, the new premier, has addressed a circular to all the prefects in the kingdom in which he says that Italy's sacred claims cannot be effaced by set forth by the Governments unless the Government is supported by the united strength of the country. The circular urges the prefects to use the utmost vigor in preventing the breaking down of national energy through dissensions.

"The supreme necessity of the country," says the circular, "is to produce, and it is impossible to produce without order."

The Premier threatens severe punishment to whomsoever contributes to augment the dearth in the cost of living and promises a speedy abolition of all war restrictions.

The new Cabinet has been chosen to succeed the one headed by Vittorio Orlando, which resigned last week, follows: Francesco Nitti; Foreign Office, Tommaso Tittoni; Foreign Office, Tommaso Tittoni; Colonies, Luigi Rossi; Justice and Worship, Signor Morata; War, Lieut.-General Albrici; Finance, Francesco Tedesco; Treasury, Signor Schanzer; Marine and Interim, Rear-Admiral Sochi; Instruction, Alfredo Baccelli; Public Works, Signor Pontano; Transport, Signor Devito; Agriculture, Signor Visconti; Industry, Commerce, Labor and Food, Carlo Ferrari; Posts, Signor Chizenti; Military Assistance and Pensions, Signor Dacomo; Liberated Provinces, Signor de Nava.

BLINDED FOR A DAY.

Moncton, N.B. Dispatch — During a very heavy electrical and rain storm at Shediac, Saturday afternoon, the side of a marble fell, and some damage was done by lightning. Willie Gagner, a six-year-old boy, while standing in the doorway at his home in Shediac Town, was struck by lightning and the shoes torn from his feet. The lad was rendered unconscious for two hours, and when restored was totally blind. To-day, however, young Gagner recovered his sight. Buildings were struck in different parts of the surrounding country.

Whether the corn be of old or new growth, it must yield to Holloway's Corn Cure, the simplest and best cure known to the public.

DEFENDS CANUCKS.

Conan Doyle's Views On Recent Outbreaks.

London Cable says — Sir Conan Doyle, writing to the Times on the Epsom outbreak, suggests that if the docks strike is the only reason Canadians are disappointed in transport, a call should be made for volunteers from among them to take the places of the dockers. He, however, questions whether some blame does not lie with want of tact or want of hospitality, and says that having had a whole Canadian division encamped for a year close by his home at Crowborough and many officers under his own roof, he can testify that no men could have behaved better.

The Sunday Times also suggests encampment of troops near debarkation ports so that they could see for themselves what barriers detain them. A Canadian soldier's letter to the Times appeals to the people not to lay responsibility on the whole Canadian force for the dastardly acts of a few, whose conduct and character are as much condemned among all ranks of Canadians as among the British public.

An Oil for All Men — The sailor, the soldier, the fisherman, the lumberman, the out-door laborer and all who are exposed to injury and the elements will find in Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil a true and faithful friend. To ease pain, relieve colds, dress wounds, subdue lumbago and overcome rheumatism, it has no equal. Therefore, it should have a place in all home medicines and those taken on a journey.

COSTLY PAINTINGS.

Famous Pictures Bring Big Prices at Christie's.

London cable — Three Romneys were sold at Christie's, Saturday, for 15,500 guineas. The highest price was paid for "The Warren Family." The child in the picture, Elizabeth Harriet Warren, afterward became Viscountess Buxley. The canvas, 26 inches by 22 inches, was bought by Albert Amor for 6,000 guineas. Two Romney portraits of Mrs. Lowther, painted when that lady was 15, were bought by Knoedler for 6,000 and 6,200 guineas, respectively. Romney's portraits of the Hon. Charles Greyville, and Charles, 3rd Duke of Richmond, were bought by Agnew for 1,500 and 600 guineas, respectively. Other prizes were Sopner's portrait of Georgiana, Lady Vernon, 2,600 guineas; Raeburn's portrait of Sir Walter Scott, 1,450; Reynolds's portrait of Dr. Samuel Johnson, 800; Gainsborough's portrait of Dr. Haviland, 600; Sir Peter Daly's portrait of Ann Duchess of York, 85.

HUN OFFICERS BRUTES TO END

Shot Down Sailors On Sinking Fleet

Who Tried to Obey British Commands.

Thurso, Scotland Cable — German sailors were shot by their own officers when they attempted to obey the commands of the British officers to return to their ships and shut the sea-cocks. This statement was made by Lieut. Nuttall of the steamer Alouette, which has reached here today from Scapa Flow, where the German ships were sunk. "I pulled alongside a German destroyer when I saw the ship begin to settle," said Lieut. Nuttall, "and ordered the Germans back to close the sea-cocks. Four or five of them turned back, whereupon the German officers shot three of them dead.

"We then opened fire on the officers and several of them dropped. "Others among the Germans then returned and closed the sea-cocks. The Germans were also driven back to four or five other destroyers; they closed the sea-cocks in time to keep the vessels afloat."

Lieut. Nuttall reports that the Emden has been pumped out and is now afloat. The Baden's crew were forced back to that vessel and compelled to shut the sea-cocks.

"Directly the first red flag and German ensign were hoisted on the first battleship the German admiral put off in a motor boat post haste to the British air station ashore. He stated that the ships were sinking and requested assistance for the crews. The admiral was arrested. Naval men believe that the trip was a ruse to lead to the belief that the crews were taking charge of the ships. This, however, was not substantiated by what actually happened."

Saves Space.

If you have not a kitchen closet to hang cooking utensils in, get a large box, place it in the corner nearest your stove, paper it inside and drive nails in the sides, on which to hang different articles. Have curtains for the front and cover top with oilcloth, which will also give you a handy kitchen table at a very small expense.

They Cleanse While They Cure.

The vegetable compounds of which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are composed, mainly dandelion and intes-drake, clear the stomach and restore the deranged organs to healthful action. Hence they are the best remedy for indigestion available today. A trial of them will establish the truth of this assertion and do more to convince the ailing than any thing can be written of these pills.

NECESSARY TO FIX WHEAT PRICE

Says Expert Before Cost of Living Probe.

Alternative is Gov't. Handling of Crop.

Ottawa Report — During the course of his examination before the cost of living committee this afternoon, Mr. W. A. Black, vice-president of the Ogilvie Milling Company, was asked to express an opinion in regard to the fixing of a price on wheat. In replying, Mr. Black referred to the situation in the United States, where the farmers will receive a price of $2.20 per bushel guaranteed by the Government. He was inclined to think that unless something were done there would be a considerable slump in the price of wheat. He expressed the view that the wheat trade and the banks will be afraid to purchase in large quantities, because of the possibility of incurring loss. On the other hand, he said, if a price were fixed in Canada, even at a lower figure than in the United States, wheat could be purchased with confidence.

Mr. Black suggested another method of dealing with the situation. He said the farmer might be paid, say $1.25 per bushel by the Government, which would handle the crop. At the end of the season the farmer could be given any additional profit which might occur to him as the result of the sale of his wheat.

Miller's Worm Powders act mildly and without injury to the child, and there can be no doubt of their deadly effect upon worms. They have been in successful use for a long time and are recognized as a leading preparation for the purpose. They have proved their power in numberless cases and have given relief to thousands of children, who, but for the good offices of this superior compound, would have continued weak and enfeebled.

Through the Canadian Alps

Between Banff, the popular summer resort in the Canadian Pacific Rockies, and Lake Windermere, the head waters of the great Columbia River, lies an Alpine ridge of spectacular beauty, forming part of the Great Divide. This ridge is penetrated by two comparatively easy passes: the Simpson, and the Vermillion which lead into the Valley of the Kootenay River, a region abounding in game on account of its being well south of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Between the Kootenay River and the Columbia River is a small range of mountains through which the Sinclair Pass and Canyon provide an easy road. When the first surveys were made for an automobile road between Banff and Windermere it was planned to use the Simpson Pass, named after Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, who made this crossing in 1841. But the route over the Vermillion was found to be easier and at the same time more beautiful, and construction of the Highway of the Great Divide was commenced from opposite Castle Mountain in this direction. At the same time the road from Windermere through the Sinclair Canyon was also commenced and at the time of the outbreak of war a gap of only thirty miles separated the two roads. War put an end to construction, and a great washout destroyed several miles of the western end, so that the project seemed to have been abandoned. Now, however, the Dominion Government has made an arrangement with the British Columbia Government by which the route of the road comes under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parks, and a substantial appropriation has been allotted to finish the work. In this way there is every prospect of the early completion of what will be the most wonderful automobile road in Canada, opening up an Alpine region of entrancing beauty. It will be possible to motor from Calgary to Windermere between sunrise and sunset through a hundred miles of the most glorious scenery in North America. A good automobile road runs south to Fort Steele and Cranbrook, and from Cranbrook there are excellent roads to Spokane, or eastwards through the Crow's Nest Pass, and back to Calgary. The Good Roads Association of Alberta is enthusiastic over the prospect as this will mean the advent of many tourists from all over America. The new road will also be of great benefit to the Upper Columbia Valley which has many attractions for settlers on account of the fertility of the soil and suitability for mixed farming. This valley is served by the Kootenay Central Railway, a recently constructed branch of the Canadian Pacific.

The many patrons and friends of Mr. Chas. Burns, who for the past six years has been the courteous and efficient Librarian here, will regret to learn that he has resigned his position, his duties terminating on Saturday last. It is to be regretted that Mr. Burns has decided to retire from library work as it will be difficult to secure a successor to this courteous young man who has proven himself thoroughly capable at the work. We understand an endeavor will be made to have the library open at least two or three nights each week. As yet no appointment of a successor to Mr. Burns has been made.

The committee appointed to visit Dundas, Burlington and Milton to try and secure candidates for the Popular Lady contest in connection with our approaching Garden Party, journeyed to Dundas last week and waited on the Council of that town in an endeavor to get that body interested in the contest. They were successful in as much that the following committee composed of Councilors was appointed to work out the scheme, E. Builder, J. Bodie and J. Vansickle. Col. Grafton and Mayor Douglas signified their willingness to assist in any way possible. No report has as yet been received from the committee appointed, but it is expected that one will reach us at an early date.

The sportsman strode into a pouter's shop, and with the air of a man who meant business said:

"Can you sell me a nice plump pheasant?"

"I'm sorry I have not a pheasant left, sir," replied the shopman, "but here are some fine sausages that I can highly recommend. I'm sure your wife will be delighted with them."

"Sausages be blowed," replied the sportsman. "How can I tell my wife I shot sausages?"

Wife (returning from overnight visit)—"Did you get yourself a good dinner last evening, dear?"

Hub—"Yes, there was a bit of steak in the ice box and I cooked it with a few onions I found in the cellar."

Wife—"Onions? Jack, you've eaten my bulbs!"

Earnest speaker (rather more eloquent than truthful): "And are you all going to take this lying down?"

Voice from audience: "No; the newspaper reporters are doing that."

THE CARIBOU.

Natural Resources of the Dominion
Includes Venison.

In the House of Commons recently Mr. Thompson, member for the Yukon, referred to the immense herds of caribou in Northern Canada. The number has been estimated at twenty-five millions and fifty millions. The difference is great, but no doubt there are difficulties in making an accurate census. An article in the London Times says:—

"Not long ago officers of the United States despatch steamer Gen. Jeff Davis reported that they saw thousands of caribou swimming across the Yukon river between Eagle and Forty Mile posts. At one time, according to one witness, between 3,000 and 5,000 could be seen from the decks of the steamer. There were also uncounted thousands which had gone over the hills or were on their way to the river. For three hours the steamer was navigated with difficulty among the swimming animals. The caribou congregated on islands in the river and along the river bars, and swam on both sides of the stream. Another witness declared that he walked for 21 miles among the moving herds. 'The mountains,' he said, 'seemed to be alive and moving.' Various other reports sustain the estimates of millions of caribou in the Barren Lands of Canada."

At present the herds are inaccessible except to a few bold explorers and hunters, but as settlement and railway building move northward it may be necessary to take measures of precaution against such indiscriminate slaughter as destroyed the vast herds of buffalo or bison in Canada and the United States. An immense supply of food is available for our future needs, and this is a part of our national resources which should be carefully conserved.

A Canadian Choir.

Considerable success has been enjoyed in England by the Bramshott Canadian Male Voice Choir, a vocal organization conducted by Sergt. J. Adamson, who was well known in Toronto before the war as an organist, choirmaster and music teacher. Since last Autumn this male choir, made up of Canadian soldiers, has given a series of concerts in London and elsewhere in England, their programs including compositions like Gounod's "By Babylon's Wave," Edward German's "O Peaceful Night," and the dramatic part-song, "The Martyrs of the Arena," by De Rille. People who are interested by church music will doubtless be familiar with Sergt. Adamson's sacred compositions. He has also written a number of songs, two of which, "Tintagel" and "The Wayfarer," were given at the All-British concerts, London, England, by the well known English mezzo-soprano, Miss Olga Haley.

CAN'T PUNCTURE OR BLOW OUT

Dayton airless tires in the past six years have been used by thousands of owners of light passenger and delivery cars in all parts of the civilized world, and have conclusively demonstrated

- 1st—They can't puncture nor blow out.
- 2nd—They ride much longer and smoothly as pneumatics.
- 3rd—They give much longer wear than the average pneumatic.
- 4th—They absolutely will not injure the car.

They have been endorsed by 50,000 or more satisfied users, including the late George Westinghouse and Edward Grey formerly Chief Engineer of the Ford Motor Company.

Piers of live elastic built about one inch apart inside the casing and vulcanized or welded to it take the place of an inner tube.

Nothing can happen but wear. We have standardized on 30x3 1/2 and the price is right.

Making Saving Attractive

Perhaps you have never been strong on saving.

You COULD save a little, but—

If you knew you could get 4 1/2 per cent. on every $4.00 you saved, wouldn't that tempt you?

Well, then — that is what War Saving Stamps will enable you to do.

If you find it hard to save $4.00 at a time because the quarters slip away unawares, Thrift Stamps will help you.

You can buy a Thrift Stamp for 25 cents, and when you have sixteen, you can exchange them for a War Savings Stamp, for which you will be paid back $5 in 1924.

By doing this you will have become an investor. And you can go on building up that investment every time you save another $4.00. The odd cents pay the accrued interest.

In June W. S. S.
cost $4.05

In July W. S. S.

If Your Food Ferments or Disagrees Just Read This!

Thousands of broken-down despondent dyspeptics have recently been given back their health.

These happy people don't proclaim it was a miracle that endowed them with a new lease of life—it was simply their common sense in selecting a tried and proven medicine, one specially adapted to their particular ailment.

All these splendid cures were effected by Dr. Hamilton's Pills which beyond all question have a strange power to restore a weak or ailing stomach.

If your stomach is tired and overworked try Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and note the prompt improvement. Pain before or after eating will disappear. You'll get a real vigorous appetite and digest what you eat. Lots of well digested food is bound to increase your strength, to make you brighter and more ambitious. In a week you'll feel like a different person, in a month you'll be permanently restored.

For folks who are out of sorts, not feeling just up to the scratch, perhaps bothered with headaches or constipation, to them Dr. Hamilton's Pills will prove a boon.

Lesson I. July 6, 1919.

Its Life and Work.

Acts 2: 37-47; Thess. 5: 11-15.

Commentary.—I. The church established (Acts 2: 37-41). 37. They—the multitudes that came together, being attracted by the manifestation of the Holy Spirit as he came in his fulness upon those who were waiting for him at Jerusalem after the ascension of Jesus. Pricked in their heart—The Holy Spirit had spoken through Peter and his hearers were awakened and deeply convicted. What shall we do?—It was not enough that they felt deeply. There was a call to do something. They felt their guilty and desired relief. 38. Repent—Turn away utterly from your sins. Be baptized—In the name of Jesus Christ—They were directed to declare publicly their faith in him whom they had put to death less than two months previously. For the remission of sins—Baptism was the external act which signified the internal work of deliverance from sin. Shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost—By the gift of the Holy Ghost they became truly one with the sanctified hundred and twenty, and are empowered to do mighty wonders in behalf of Christ, the exalted Lord—Whedon. 39. The promise—The promise of the gift of the Holy Ghost. Shall call—God has invited all mankind to come to him. 40. Save yourselves—Salvation is provided, therefore take the steps necessary to salvation. Untoward—Crooked, perverse. 41. Received his word—They not only heard the word, but believed and obeyed it.

II. The church maintained (Acts 2: 42-47). 42. Continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine—The thousands who had been converted through the efforts of the church were so thoroughly in sympathy with the gospel that they were glad to continue under the instruction of the apostles. Fellowship—There is a peculiar fellowship that exists among those who are saved. This is frequently spoken of as the communion of saints. In breaking bread—There is a difference of opinion among scholars as to what act was indicated by this expression. It is rather commonly believed that it refers to the Lord's supper which was celebrated every day. Some suppose it was the ordinary meals which were partaken of by the multitudes from a common store of food. Others think it was the lovefeast in which the people broke bread with one another in token of their Christian love and fellowship. The first view appears to be the most reasonable of the three. 43. Fear came upon every soul—The manifestations of the power of God in saving the people astonished those who knew of them, and they ceased to mock and became respectful.

44. All that believed—All who accepted the gospel message and were converted. Had all things common—The believers were as one great family. Their joys and efforts were one, they had common needs, and what they had used according to their several needs. 45. Possessions—Real estate, Goods—Personal property. Parted them to all men—The Holy Spirit was given in his fulness while multitudes were in Jerusalem, many of whom had become converted. It was desirable that the converts should remain long enough to become fully established in grace on instructed in doctrine, that they might carry back to their several communities their gospel message. The spirit of liberality that characterizes true Christians led to the giving out of supplies to all who "had need." 46. Daily—Religious services were held every day. In the temple—The temple was the central place of worship and the place to which all hearts naturally turned. The Christians had no opposition to the temple worship, but their experience of salvation enabled them to put new life and power into that worship. Breaking bread at home (R. V.)—The services were not confined to the temple, but in the homes religious services were held, the Lord's supper being celebrated there. Their meat—"Their food."—R. V. With Gladness—"The word has in it the thought of abounding joy. Singleness of heart—The Christians were of one mind and heart, having the one purpose of spreading the gospel. 47. Praising God—Praising God is an essential part of the Christian's worship and employment.

III.—The Church's Mission (1 Thess. 5: 11-15). 11. Wherefore—in view of the great fact that salvation has been provided for all who will accept it, and in view of the assurance given of a future life in the presence of God for those who love him, there is true ground for encouragement and hopefulness. edify one another—"Build each other up."—R. V. 12. beseech—Earnestly entreat, brethren—Paul addresses the church in Thessalonica in terms expressive of affection, to know them—To have a right estimate of their value. This church had been organized by Paul himself, and here is a recognition of such organization. The brethren are exhorted to appreciate those who have the oversight of the church, which labor among you—The minister of the church was to be helpful to his people as their servant, over you in the Lord—The pastor has a certain amount of authority, given him by the Lord, yet he is not to be officious or arbitrary, admonish you—He was to instruct, warn and reprove, as occasion might require. 13. esteem them very highly in love—The overseers of the church were to be given honor, in part because of their work. 14. we exhort you, brethren—The apostle has just urged the church to be at peace among themselves, but he would not urge peace at the expense of right living. The overseers were to admonish the brethren, but the brethren themselves must cooperate with them in promoting the welfare of the church. warn—Admonish, unruhly—Disorderly, comfort the feebleminded. The "feebleminded" here spoken of are not those who are mentally weak, but rather those who are faint-hearted and in need of encouragement, support the weak—Some might be inclined to discount the weak and thus discourage them, but they are rather to be helped, patient toward all—There is always need of patience, or long suffering. 15. none render evil for evil—The spirit of Christ is to return good for evil.

Questions—What was the occasion of Peter's address? Give the leading points in the address. What effect did it have? What question did the people ask? What was Peter's reply? How could they save themselves? How many were converted on that day? How did they prosper? How did they keep the unity of the Spirit? Who were added to the church?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—The spirit and mission of the Christian church.

I. The Christian church.

II. Its spirit and mission.

I.—The Christian church. The Christian church is the visible organism of the spiritual life. It consists of the body of believers in Christ, associated for Christian worship and work. The term may represent a particular division, holding the same doctrines, practising the same forms of worship and known by a common name, or a local assembly of such a division. In its spiritual sense the church is the invisible and incorporeal community of all and only those who by virtue of the mystery of the spiritual birth are Christian in fact as well as name (John 3:5). Christ is its only foundation and object of its faith (1 Cor. 3:11), its establishment was the purpose of the atonement (Eph. 5: 25-27). The Christian church consummated, and hence superseded, the "church in the wilderness," to which were committed the "living oracles" which are its solemn trust and priceless inheritance, its nucleus was the company of Spirit-baptized disciples to whom was fulfilled the Pentecostal promise. The first organization was at Jerusalem where the first gospel triumphs were won: The varied phases of its life and structure are represented in scripture as a growth, a building and an organism. "Ye are God's husbandry," representing the vital energy of truth, sincerely received (Matt. 13: 8-23). "Ye are God's building," of which Christ is the "corner stone," the foundation, the unifying force and the depository of treasures (Eph. 2: 20; Col. 2:9). The church is declared also to be the body of Christ in the "head," the crown and source of authority, and true believers are "the members of the organism, not organization merely, and "one of another."

II.—Its spirit and mission. The spirit of the Master is the spirit of his

THE POLICE FORCE OF THE BODY

Day and night—without ceasing—a struggle is going on in your body between the germs of disease and the white blood corpuscles—the police force of the human body.

If this police force weakens, disease germs gain a foothold—sickness follows.

Constipation is the most common and dangerous way of corrupting the human police force. Food waste remains too long in the intestines—decays—poisons the blood—and opens the way for attack by the germs that cause tuberculosis, diphtheria, pneumonia, and a multitude of other ills.

The culpable habit of using salts, pills, mineral waters, castor oil, etc., to force the bowels to move, makes this condition even worse, as constipation returns almost immediately.

Nujol is entirely different from drugs as it does not force or irritate the bowels.

Nujol prevents stagnation by softening the food waste and encouraging the intestinal muscles to act naturally, thus removing the cause of constipation and self-poisoning. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant.

Nujol helps Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today and keep your police force on the job.

Warning: Nujol is sold in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. All druggists insist on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

disciples. Individuals and organizations are Christian only in the measure in which they possess and express the Spirit of Christ (Rom. 8: 9). The vitalizing, animating energy of the "body" is the indwelling Holy Ghost, resident in, and operating through, each member. The spiritual tone of any church is determined by the average experience which obtains among its members. Jesus fixes the permanent standard of both experience and service. "They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." "As thou hast sent me, even so have I also sent them." The Christian church is the divinely-ordained custodian of revealed truth. Unto Israel "were committed the oracles of God." It is the solemn responsibility of the church to preserve and disseminate unchanged the sacred truths committed to her trust; and it is her sacred mission to evangelize the world through their promulgation. The gospel is for everybody and must go everywhere. Vast responsibilities attend the gospel ministry. They are the custodians of the general conscience. Departures have always commenced with priestly unfaithfulness (Hos. 4: 6, 8, 9; Mal. 1: 6, 13). The place of the church is in the van of every righteous cause. The less welcome, the more needed. The church is the spiritual dynamo of the world.

Effect of Light On Plants.

The attention of botanists has lately been recalled to experiments made at Juvisy, near Paris, by M. Flammarion on the effect of exposing the seedlings of sensitive plants to lights of different colors. Having placed four pairs of mimosa seedlings in four separate pots in a hothouse, he covered one pair with a bell of blue glass, another with a bell of green glass, a third with a bell of red glass, while the fourth was exposed to ordinary white light. At the end of two months the plants subjected to blue light were only one inch high, having hardly grown at all. Those exposed to white light were four inches high, those that had grown in green light were five inches high, while those whose light had been red were no less than sixteen inches high. Experiments with other kinds of plants gave various results, but in every instance blue light impeded growth and development.

WHO IS BLIND?

Will every person who reads this notice, and knows a blind man or woman anywhere in Canada, kindly send the name and address of that blind one to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 36 King Street East, Toronto.

The Institute is conducting work for the blind along the most modern scientific lines and desires that each blind resident of Canada should have the opportunity of availing himself or herself of the benefits represented by this work.

The immense task of registering every case of blindness can only be accomplished successfully by the earnest co-operation of the public generally. That is why we ask you to send the names and addresses of blind people you may know.

The following departments of work are being actively prosecuted by the Institute:

- Industrial Department for Men.
  - Industrial Department for Women.
  - Department of Field Work.
  - Department of Home Teaching.
  - Department of prevention of Blindness.
  - Department of After Care.
  - Residence and Vocational Training Centre for Blind Soldiers.

The Lucky Horseshoe.

The superstitious use of horseshoes as emblems of good luck originated about the middle of the seventeenth century. They were at first deemed a protection against witches and evil spirits, and were nailed on doors of houses with the curve uppermost. It was the belief that no witch or evil spirit could enter a house thus guarded. The custom of nailing horseshoes to ships and other sailing craft is still in vogue in many English-speaking countries. To find a horseshoe with an odd number of nails attached to it is considered the forerunners of good luck, and the more nails the greater the good fortune that is likely to attend the finder.

Indian Summer.

Indian summer is the return of genial but not hot weather after sharp frosts. It is the moment when the floor of the vestibule of winter is left standing ajar for a moment to let the light, and just a little—not too much—of warmth of departing summer stream in. It is a season without a rival—briefer even than the briefest spring tenderer than the softest summer; is the anodyne of the year's woes and the promise and pledge of a man's restoration of Eden—Exchange.

What She Was Looking For.

One of the many excellent stories told by Lady Jenson in her "Notes of a Nonna" concerns her godfather. "He came often to our house," writes the authoress, "having an obvious admiration for the pretty young aunt who lived with us. One day he called as usual and I at once climbed on his knee and stared searchingly into his clear, brown eyes. 'What's the matter, child?' said he, 'and what are you looking at?' 'Mamma said to papa, quote 'I that you had a wife in your eye and I'm looking to see if I can find her.'"

"I see they are going to tax talking machines." "Well, my dear, that probably won't affect you, and if it does I'll cheerfully pay the tax."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Wash The Kidneys!

After Bad Colds or Influenza Look to Kidneys and Bladder!

Owing to bad colds, over-eating or intemperance, or to the after effects of influenza—uric acid and toxins (poisons) are stored up in the body and cause backache, lumbago, rheumatic pains and stiff joints.

It is most essential that treatment be directed towards the body which cause these pains and aches.

This means that the excretory organs—(the bowels, skin and kidneys)—should be excited to their best efforts. Every one should clean house—internally—and thus protect one's self from many germ diseases, by taking castor oil or a pleasant laxative such as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which are made of May-apple, aloes and jalap. Take these every other day. This will excite efficient bowel action. If you suffer from backache, irritation of the bladder and the kidneys, shown by the frequent calls to get out of bed at night, considerable sediment in the water, brick-dust deposit, perhaps headaches in the morning, you should obtain at the drug store "Anuric" (anti-uric acid), first put up by Dr. Pierce.

To build up the strength and improve the blood, take an iron tonic such as "Ironie," manufactured by Dr. Pierce, to be had in tablets at drug stores, or some good herbal tonic such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made from wild roots and barks without alcohol, and put up in tablets or liquid.

SIR WILLIAM'S WILL

A dull resentment rose against the capricious act of the man who had befriended him, was befriending him still, a resentment that glowed in Hesketh's pale cheek and flashed in his dark eyes. If Wilfred had died, he, Hesketh, would have been the baronet, would have obtained his heart's desire. But Wilfred could marry Clytie, they would reign at the Hall, would have a son to bear the title. Yes; after all he, Hesketh, had done, after all his sordid toil at the works, and his still more sordid servitude to the old man, it was hard to bear.

He dressed slowly his eyes wandering now and again to the fading view, then he went down-stairs. A fire had been lit in the spacious, oak-lined dining-room, and Sir William was standing before it, warming his thick hands.

"It seems to me cold to-night," he said half-apologetically.

The butler—Sir William had taken him and most of the old servants over with the furniture and chattels—announced dinner, and the two men sat down. Sir William ate little and drank less; but he appeared as calm and self-possessed as usual, and talked of the business, the works, and the estate, and when the dessert came in, he helped himself to port, and pushed the decanter to Hesketh. As a rule, Hesketh refused; but to-night he filled his glass, drank it quickly, and filled it again. Sir William turned his chair to the fire, with a slight shiver.

"Ask them to clear, Hesketh, will you?" he said. "I'll sit here to-night. There is no fire in my room."

The servant cleared the table; Hesketh lit a cigarette and stood with his foot on the black marble fender, his elbow leaning on the carved mantelpiece; and both men were silent. Presently Sir William got up, steadying himself by his chair as he had done in the study, and left the room, returning after a moment or two with the two wills in his hand.

Hesketh glanced at them quickly, then went out; he was afraid lest he should be able to master the expression of his face, to keep back a word that would reveal the workings of his mind. He went to the terrace and paced up and down, smoking furiously, his thin lips working spasmodically round the cigarette. In his pacing he passed and re-passed the tall French windows of the dining-room, and once, half-absently, he looked in through a gap in the curtains.

Sir William was leaning back in the chair he had turned to the table, and the wills were lying open before him. Something in the old man's attitude caught Hesketh's attention. Sir William was so motionless that Hesketh started, opened the window, and noiselessly entered the room. No; the old man was not dead, but asleep. Hesketh drew a long breath and stood looking from the rug, heavily lined face to the wills; stood quite still for a moment; then he stole to the table and bending down scanned the documents. The one lying nearest Sir William's hand was that which made Hesketh master of Bramley and Sir William's fortune, the other was the will which gave it all to Clytie—or

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SEAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years' experience is at your service.

Wilfred. Was the old man hesitating, even now? Hesketh's breath came fast and painfully. It seemed to him that his fate hung in the balances, balances a hair might turn.

Sir William stirred in his chair and sighed heavily as if awakening; and Hesketh quickly and noiselessly went behind the curtain, with his hand upon the latch of the window. Sir William awoke with a shiver, and, taking up the will nearest him, walked unsteadily toward the fire; but before he reached it he uttered a low cry and staggered back to the chair, calling faintly, "Hesketh!"

Hesketh rattled the window-latch as if he had entered from the terrace, and hurried forward. The old man was lying back in a dead faint. Hesketh sprang toward the bell; then with his hand on it, hesitated and looked from the motionless figure to the two wills which were lying on the floor; one had fallen from Sir William's hand, and the other he had knocked over as he had sunk into the chair.

Hesketh took them up, and, panting as if he had been running, glanced from them to the old man and from him to the fire. As he stood thus, his mind in a tumult, there came a knock at the door. He dropped the wills on the table and stole to the door. It was Shoes, the butler.

"Sir William's hot water, sir," he said.

"Hush!" said Hesketh warningly. "Sir William is asleep. Give it to me. Thank you."

He turned, with the salver, to see Sir William standing upright, his eyes fixed on Hesketh's face with an expression of doubt and suspicion; and Hesketh knew that his face had betrayed him.

"Your hot water, sir," he said hoarsely.

The old man waved it aside, took up one of the wills, and walked unsteadily to the fire; but Hesketh was upon him in a moment, caught the will as it fell from the old man's hand, and, before the document could reach the flames; then with something that sounded like a snarl, the snarl of a dog that is threatened with the loss of its bone, he snatched the other will from the table and flung it in the fire.

Sir William uttered a cry of anger, and, flinging himself upon Hesketh, tore the other will from his hand.

"You—you thing—you villain!" he gasped. "I—I know you now! You—you ingrate! You'd rob my son—my son! No; no! There's time! I'll punish you! I'll—I'll—!" His voice failed and he sank back into the chair, the remaining will still grasped in his hand.

Hesketh bent over him with keen scrutiny, then he glanced toward the fire. Some small flakes of parchment flickered on top of the blazing coals. He took up the poker and beat the calcined pieces till they were utterly consumed; then he leaned against the mantel-shelf, with his hands thrust into his pockets and, gazing at Sir William, laughed softly.

And, while he gazed into the staring eyes of the old man, his lips stretched in a mocking grin, Sir William gasped, as for breath, his head fell forward, and he collapsed in the chair, a limp and lifeless man. Hesketh knew even before he bent over him, that the old man was dead. He smiled and worked his neck in his collar, as if he were choking. Death had come to his aid and saved him, given him Bramley and Carton fortune!

Some minutes passed as he stood looking down at the dead man as if he were fascinated; then he heard steps in the hall, and roused from the apathy which had possessed him, he stole through the window onto the terrace.

Was it only a minute or was it an hour before he heard a shout of consternation, before the window was wrenched open and Shoes' voice called in accents of terror upon his name?

"Yes, yes!" he cried, in response, as he hurried to the window. "What is the matter?"

"Oh, Mr. Hesketh! Oh, sir!" gasped Shoes. "Sir William—Sir William, Mr. Hesketh! I'm afraid—oh, the master is dead, sir!"

The butler's cries had summoned others besides Hesketh, and a group of servants was crowding round the chair; the men silent, the maids uttering whimpering, hysterical moans.

"Oh, yes; he's dead, sir—quite dead, Mr. Hesketh!" said Shoes. "He's been took quite sudden. What's this in his hand, Mr. Hesketh?"

Before Hesketh could answer, some one thrust the huddled crowd aside and bent over the dead baronet. It was Doctor Morton.

One glance sufficed. He shook his head and turned to Hesketh.

"Have him carried to his room," he said. "I came in—I was uneasy about him—he was worse than he thought. I knew he would go like this. What was he doing?"

Hesketh shook his head. "I—I don't know," he said hoarsely and with

And have a clear, sweet, healthy skin with little trouble and trifling expense. Contrast this simple wholesome treatment with tiresome massaging and other fads.

On retiring smear the face with Cuticura Ointment on the end of the finger, wash off in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water, using plenty of soap, best applied with the hands which it softens wonderfully, and continue bathing a few moments.

Rinse with tepid water, dry gently and dust on a few grains of Cuticura Talcum Powder, a delicate fragrant perfume. Soap, Ointment and Talcum sold everywhere.

excusable confusion. "I was outside, smoking. This deed—will you take it? I—I cannot."

Doctor Morton, with some difficulty, unclenched the stiff fingers and released the will.

"Keep it," said Hesketh, shuddering again.

Doctor Morton nodded. "Better send for Mr. Granger."

"Yes," responded Hesketh dully; and one of the footmen hurried from the room to send a carriage for the solicitor.

An hour later, when all the house was hushed into an awed silence, Hesketh stood beside the fire, his head sunk on his breast, his face white and haggard. Every now and then he glanced at the chair, and it seemed to him that the limp form, looking like a bundle of clothes only, was still huddled there. Then he raised his head and stretched out his hands to the blaze and drew a long breath of satisfaction. The will that made him master of Bramley and Sir William's vast wealth was safe in Mr. Granger's keeping.

It had been almost a public funeral; his personal friends—Sir William had no relatives besides his son, Wilfred, and his nephew, Hesketh—the tenants, the work-people from the Pit, the tradespeople, made up an immense crowd of mourners, and some of them genuinely mourned; for the departed baronet, though hard in business matters, had been capable of many a generous action which, now that he was dead, came to light. The funeral was over, the crowd had dispersed, and over a small group of persons was assembled in the stately library to hear the will read.

Hesketh, it was agreed on all hands, had borne himself well. That he had been greatly affected by his uncle's death was evident by his wan and pallid face, and by the subdued voice and manner, the voice and manner which indicated the strong man's desire to suppress all show of the grief which possessed him. He had over-seen everything, every small detail, and had won the general sympathy his courtesy and his respect for the dead, which he had displayed during the trying arrangements of the interment; and now as he sat at the table on the right of Mr. Granger, those who were present—Doctor Morton, the servants, the foreman of the works, and so on—glanced at him pityingly, and yet a little curiously; how would his position be affected by the will which the lawyer was now slowly unfolding?

Mr. Granger was a lawyer of the old school, a school which, it is to be feared, has but few disciples nowadays. Quiet, self-contained, reticent, the old man had said but one word, asked but one question, respecting the will, of Hesketh; and the question had not been asked until they were on their way to the library; then Mr. Granger had said:

"You do not know the purport of Sir William's will, Mr. Carton?"

And Hesketh with a shake of the head had replied calmly, almost indifferently:

"No; Sir William has never mentioned it to me. He was not likely to have done so."

"Quite so," assented Mr. Granger; and they went to their seats at the table.

With dignified self-possession the lawyer spread out the will and with the usual formal preamble of "This is Sir William's will, I drew it up," began to read it in a slow and distinct voice.

Hesketh leaned forward, his head resting on his hand which partially concealed his face, his eyes bent on the table, but for all his apparent calmness, his air of subdued grief, his heart was beating furiously and his brain was whirling in a confusion so thick that he scarcely comprehended the opening clauses.

There seemed to be an interminable list of bequests; Sir William had forgotten no one; some of the old workmen who had been fellow lads with him in the factory, the servants, the doctor, the various local charities; all had been remembered.

Hesketh listened in a kind of apathy, the apathy of suspense. When would come the awakening sound of his own name?

Mr. Granger read on for some time with scarcely a break; then suddenly he paused and in rather a slower and more impressive manner resumed.

There was a stir among the audience, heads were turned quickly, and eyes sought eyes, with wonder and amazement in them, and presently every one's gaze was fixed on the man who was sitting with bent head and screened face. It was the subtle influence of the battery of eyes that aroused Hesketh.

What was the old fool reading? What silly nonsense was he mousing? Why did he not come to the real kernel of the will, the clauses that left Bramley, the old man's money, to "my nephew, Hesketh Carton"? Why did he keep repeating the names "Clytie Bramley," "my son, Wilfred Carton"?

The voice, which seemed to drone in Hesketh's ears with a maddening persistence, ceased, and the lawyer laid the will down and looked, not at Hesketh, but straight before him. A faint murmur rose from the group at the end of the room; Hesketh was conscious that all eyes were still fixed on him, and he raised his head and looked expectantly, and yet in a confused fashion, at the lawyer, as if asking him why he stopped why he did not continue.

Mr. Granger met the questioning eyes with a grave and steady regard.

"You understand?" he said, in a low voice.

Hesketh put up his hand as if to clear away a mist, then let it fall on the table.

"No, he said hoarsely; and at the sound of his voice the rest of the audience, who were moving toward the door, stopped and looked back at him.

Mr. Granger took up the will and began to read the fateful clauses again; but before he had finished, Hesketh rose, rose slowly and, starting at him, laughed. It was a strange laugh, one that startled all who heard it, for there was almost a touch of insanity in it. Then he sank into the chair again and gazed straight before him, seeing nothing, hearing nothing, conscious of one fact only—he had burned the wrong will!

"It is incredible—it is monstrous!"

The clear, sweet voice, low as it was pitched, rang through the room. Clytie Bramley, the speaker, had risen from the chair which Mr. Granger had courteously placed for her, and stood, her slim, graceful figure straight as an arrow, her eyes flashing, her lips parted with a curve of something like scorn. So beautiful a picture did she make, with her dark brows raised, her dilating gray eyes—they were almost a violet shade at this moment—that Mr. Granger gazed up at her with grave admiration as he shrugged his shoulders.

"Are you sure that you are not mistaken?" she demanded, and her bosom heaved before the word. "It sounds like—like something in a sensational novel. Do you mean to tell me that—that Sir William has left"—she looked round the room—"this on condition that I—I— Oh, I cannot believe it!"

"Nevertheless, it is quite true," said the lawyer quietly. "I can understand, sympathize with your surprise, my dear young lady; and I hope that you will acquit me of all blame in the matter. I drew up the will, but not until I had exhausted all my efforts to dissuade Sir William from carrying out his project. But here it is, and nothing you or I can say can undo it.

"But why not?" she said quickly.

"I mean, why not as far as I am concerned in the matter? I suppose you know, must feel, that nothing would induce me to—to carry out this absurd condition."

Had to Bow to Custom.

The late King Oscar of Sweden was the least conventional of monarchs, but he had to courtesy to custom nevertheless. The King and M. Bonnier, the botanist, met as strangers while out in search of flowers near Stockholm. They were soon the best of friends, and Bonnier suggested lunch at his inn.

"Come home with me instead," said the other.

When the way led to the palace gates Bonnier hesitated.

"I'm sorry," said his companion, "but I happen to be the King of this country, and this is the only place where I can entertain my friends."

HIS COME-BACK.

Magistrate—"What is the prisoner charged with, constable?"

P.C.—"Assault and battery, on his mother-in-law, your worship."

Magistrate—"Are you guilty or not guilty?"

Prisoner—"Guilty, your worship."

Magistrate—"I fine you ten and six."

Prisoner—"But why the extra six-pence, sir?"

Magistrate—"That's the war tax on amusements."

FATEFUL YEARS FOR ALL WOMEN

HOW BEST TO OVERCOME THE TROUBLES THAT AFFLICT WOMEN ONLY.

The most fateful years in a woman's life are those between forty-five and fifty. Many women enter this term under depressing conditions through overwork, worry or a neglected condition of the blood, and so they suffer heavily. Still, variations of health at this time can be relieved by home treatment.

Among the commonest symptoms are headaches and pains in the back and sides, fever-flashes, palpitation, dizziness and depression. Women stand in need of rich, red blood all their life, but never more so than in middle age, when the nerves are also weak and over-wrought. Not every woman can prove the prompt help afforded to her health by renewing her blood supply. It is a test that any ailing woman can make by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for these pills make rich, red blood, which in turn helps the appetite, strengthens the nerves and restores robust health. Thousands of women have found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the means by which new health and a brighter outlook of life were gained. In proof of this is the voluntary testimony of Mrs. H. S. Peterson, Milford, Ont., who says:—

"I have suffered greatly from those troubles that afflict my sex, and I have found that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in such cases not only do all that is claimed for them, but more. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done so much for me that I urge every weak woman to try them, and they will soon realize the great difference in one's health they make."

If you suffer from any of the ills that particularly afflict womanhood you should avail yourself at once of the health help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get them from any dealer in medicine or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
